TRANSITIONAL JUSTICE IN POST-UNIFICATION KOREA: PEACE-BUILDING & RECONCILIATION

Date: May 23(Thurs.) -24 (Fri.), 2013
Place: 12F, Stimson Center, 1111 19th Street NW, Washington, DC
Host: The Asan Institute for Policy Studies-Washington, DC
(Note: Agenda & Presenters are subject to change)

No one knows when Korean unification will take place. However, when it does, undertaking a fair and transparent process of transitional justice will be one of the key elements for peace-building and reconciliation in a unified Korea. This conference seeks to examine the implementation of transitional justice mechanisms in the Korean context by bringing together renowned experts on transitional justice, North Korea, and human rights to address the issue of transitional justice in post-unification Korea.
