2018 Year in Review

NORTH KOREA AND THE WORLD

A YEAR IN HEADLINES

EDITED BY ALBERT BUIXADÉ FARRÉ
HAEUN RHO

HRNK
THE COMMITTEE FOR HUMAN RIGHTS IN NORTH KOREA

Committee for Human Rights in North Korea

2018

YEAR IN REVIEW

NORTH KOREA AND THE WORLD

A YEAR IN HEADLINES

Edited by
Albert Buixadé Farré
Haeun Rho

2018 YEAR IN REVIEW
NORTH KOREA AND THE WORLD:
A Year in Headlines

© 2025 Committee for Human Rights in North Korea. This work is published under the Creative Commons Attribution-ShareAlike 4.0 International License (CC BY-SA 4.0).

You are free to copy, distribute, and adapt the material, provided you give appropriate credit to the original publishing institution, author(s), and source. If you remix, transform, or build upon the material, you must distribute your contributions under the same license as the original. Any modifications must be noted in a reasonable manner and must not imply endorsement by the licensor.

Material included here that is excerpted from other sources may be subject to its own copyright, which remains with the original authors or publishers, and is presented under fair use for educational and research purposes.

e-ISBN: 978-1-959391-11-1
DOI: https://doi.org/10.69981/4771

Editors:
Albert Buixadé Farré, Managing Editor (https://orcid.org/0009-0006-3249-123X)
Haeun Rho, Associate Editor

Cover design: Samantha Garcia
Cover image: “Map of North and South Korea" by Tanarch, courtesy of Canva

Published digitally by:
Committee for Human Rights in North Korea
1801 F Street, NW,
Suite 305 Washington,
DC 20006, USA
HRNK.org

This report is intended for digital distribution only and is not available in print.

This publication can be downloaded at no cost at HRNK.org.

First digital edition, September 2025

2018 YEAR IN REVIEW
NORTH KOREA AND THE WORLD:
A Year in Headlines

TABLE OF CONTENTS

ABOUT THE COMMITTEE FOR HUMAN RIGHTS IN NORTH KOREA 3
FOREWORD 5
CREDITS AND ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS 6
YEAR IN REVIEW 7
INTRODUCTION 8
A. OVERVIEW 8
B. SCOPE OF NEWS COVERED 8
PART I. EXECUTIVE SUMMARY 9
PART II. CHRONOLOGY OF EVENTS 10
A. IN NORTH KOREA 10
B. IN SOUTH KOREA 11
C. INTER-KOREAN RELATIONS 12
D. INTERNATIONAL 12
PART III. DAILY PRESS 15
1. JANUARY 15
2. FEBRUARY 144
3. MARCH 277
4. APRIL 431
5. MAY 580
6. JUNE 749
7. JULY 933
8. AUGUST 1063
9. SEPTEMBER 1217
10. OCTOBER 1378
11. NOVEMBER 1522
12. DECEMBER 1635
RESEARCH NOTES 1737
GUIDE TO MORE HRNK RESOURCES 1738

ABOUT THE COMMITTEE FOR HUMAN RIGHTS IN NORTH KOREA

The Committee for Human Rights in North Korea (HRNK) is the leading U.S.-based nonpartisan, non-governmental organization (NGO) in the field of North Korean human rights research and advocacy, tasked with focusing international attention on human rights abuses in that country. It is HRNK's mission to persistently remind policymakers, opinion leaders, and the general public that more than 20 million North Koreans need our attention. Since its establishment in October 2001, HRNK has played an important intellectual leadership role in North Korean human rights issues by publishing over 50 major reports (available at https://www.hrnk.org/documentation/). Recent HRNK reports have addressed issues including North Korea's overseas workers, the influx of outside information into North Korea and the regime's response, the health and human rights of North Korean children, and North Korea's political prison camps.

HRNK is the first and only NGO that solely focuses on North Korean human rights issues to receive consultative status at the United Nations (UN). It was also the first organization to propose that the human rights situation in North Korea be addressed by the UN Security Council. HRNK was directly and actively involved in all stages of the process supporting the work of the UN Commission of Inquiry (COI) on North Korean human rights. Its reports have been cited numerous times in the report of the COI, the reports of the UN Special Rapporteur on North Korean human rights, a report by the UN Office of the High Commissioner for Human Rights, two reports of the UN Secretary-General António Guterres, and several U.S. Department of State Democratic People's Republic of Korea Human Rights Reports. HRNK has also regularly been invited to provide expert testimony before the U.S. Congress.

BOARD OF DIRECTORS, 2018

Gordon Flake, Co-Chair
Executive Director, Perth USAsia Centre, The University of Western Australia
Katrina Lantos Swett, Co-Chair
President and CEO, Lantos Foundation for Human Rights and Justice
John Despres, Co-Vice Chair
Consultant on International Financial & Strategic Affairs
Suzanne Scholte, Co-Vice Chair
President, Defense Forum Foundation
Seoul Peace Prize Laureate
Helen-Louise Hunter, Secretary
Attorney, Author, Kim Il-Song's North Korea
Kevin C. McCann, Treasurer
General Counsel, StrataScale, Inc., Counsel to SHI International Corp.
Roberta Cohen, Co-Chair Emertius
Andrew Natsios, Co-Chair Emeritus
Former Administrator, USAID
Professor, Texas A&M University
Morton Abramowitz
Senior Fellow, The Century Foundation
Jerome Cohen
Director, US-Asia Law Institute, NYU Law
Adjunct Senior Fellow, Council on Foreign Relations
Lisa Colacurcio
Advisor, Impact Investments
Rabbi Abraham Cooper
Associate Dean of the Simon Wiesenthal Center, LA
Jack David
Senior Fellow, Hudson Institute
Nicholas Eberstadt
Henry Wendt Chair in Political Economy, American Enterprise Institute
Carl Gershman
President, National Endowment for Democracy
Steve Kahng
President, Kahng Foundation
David Kim
Coordinator, The Asia Foundation
Robert King
Former U.S. Special Envoy for North Korean Human Rights Issues
Jung-Hoon Lee
Director, Institute of Modern Korean Studies Yonsei University
Debra Liang-Fenton
U.S. Institute of Peace, Former Executive Director, HRNK
Winston Lord
Former Assistant Secretary for East Asia, Department of State
David Maxwell
Senior Fellow, Foundation for Defense of Democracies
Fellow, Institute for Korean-American Studies
Marcus Noland
Deputy Director and Senior Fellow, Peterson Institute for International Economics
Jacqueline Pak

*Board of Directors as of Septembr 28, 2018
https://web.archive.org/web/20180928130044/https://www.hrnk.org/about/board-of-directors.php

FOREWORD

After its establishment in 2001, the Committee for Human Rights in North Korea (HRNK) has assumed intellectual leadership of researching, investigating and reporting on the North Korean human rights situation. In addition to our reporting, HRNK has conducted robust outreach to think tanks, universities, civil society organizations, U.S. Government agencies, Congressional offices, members of the European Parliament, members of the South Korean National Assembly and the Japanese Diet as well as the UN, especially since acquiring UN ECOSOC consultative status in April 2018.

As HRNK embarked on a mission to find out and tell the truth about North Korea's human rights violations, our organization has relied on youthful energy and enthusiasm rather than large budgets. HRNK has trained around 450 interns over the past 14 years. Our research interns execute multiple tasks. One product that keeps attention constantly focused on our work and mission is our Daily Press, a daily compilation of relevant articles on Korean peninsula issues. This is entirely the mission of our interns, who take turns and work in teams to ensure not a single day is missed.

The Daily Press requires effort, discipline, and teamwork. HRNK Managing Editor Albert Buixadé Farré had the brilliant idea of collecting and categorizing all headlines of the daily press issued throughout a calendar year and publishing them in one volume. We started this past June by publishing as a pilot project the first volume, covering the year 2023. Now we are expanding the series by launching four more volumes covering the years 2018, 2020, 2021, and 2024. In this one, Albert has worked with HRNK research intern Haeun Rho, covering the calendar year 2018.

This will be an essential tool, meant to enable researchers and students of North Korea to get a firm grip on the timeline, nature, and implications of relevant developments throughout a given calendar year.

Greg Scarlatoiu

President and CEO
Committee for Human Rights in North Korea (HRNK)
September 25, 2025

CREDITS AND ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

This report is the result of the dedicated efforts of our team throughout 2018. Haeun Rho took the leading role in compiling the daily news digests and drafting the summary sections, helping to shape a comprehensive overview of the year's events.

We also acknowledge the diligent work of the authors listed below, who created the original daily news digests compiled in this report. Their commitment and expertise ensure that our readers remain well-informed about the latest developments.

Jinny Ahn
James Park
Emma Stubblefield
Huiwon Yun
Susannah Pearl-Katz
Hangyun Kim
Woohyeon Kim
Dohyun Kim
Lauren Jackson
Sohee Ha
Jack Maerz
Cassandra Wood
Grace Warwick

Cover design by Samantha Garcia.
Editorial direction, project management, and manuscript editing by Albert Buixadé Farré.

YEAR IN REVIEW

This report is part of HRNK's Year in Review series. The series is primarily composed of the annual North Korea and the World: A Year in Headlines reports, which present a curated collection of news coverage capturing global and regional developments related to North Korea.[1] This collection provides context for our work and for those in related fields, ensuring that significant events are documented and their record preserved for reference.

Through this series, HRNK seeks to provide a reliable resource for academics, policymakers, advocates, and others interested in the evolving landscape of North Korean human rights.

[1] As of September 2025, the following Year in Review – North Korea and the World: A Year in Headlines reports have been published (release date in parentheses) or are slated for imminent release: 2018, 2020, 2021, 2023 (June 2025), and 2024.

INTRODUCTION

A. OVERVIEW

The Committee for Human Rights in North Korea (HRNK) is dedicated to providing comprehensive and up-to-date information on developments related to North Korea through our daily email digests. This report consolidates an entire year's worth of monitoring into a single, accessible document, offering valuable insights for the general public and researchers.

The report is divided into three distinct parts:

- Part I: A concise one-page executive summary offering a snapshot of the year's key events and trends.
- Part II: A five-page chronological account, organized by topic, providing a more detailed overview of the events of 2018
- Part III: The complete collection of daily news digests, spanning one thousand and seven hundred pages, preserving the original content for in-depth research and reference.

By organizing the information in this manner, we strive to accommodate various preferences for detail and to enhance the utility of the report for all readers.

B. SCOPE OF NEWS COVERED

HRNK staff compile a daily list of news articles focused on North Korea, its relations, key developments in the U.S.-South Korea relationship, and significant domestic events in South Korea. Most of the news is sourced from the following outlets:

- NK News: North Korea News
- Korea JoongAng Daily
- The Korea Times
- The Korea Herald
- Radio Free Asia
- 38 North
- BBC
- The Guardian
- The Daily Telegraph
- Reuters
- Associated Press News
- CNN
- The National Interest
- North Korea Leadership Watch
- North Korea Economic Watch
- The New York Times
- PIIE: Peterson Institute for International Economics
- UPI: United Press International
- VOA: Voice of America
- The Washington Post
- HRNK Insider

PART I. EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

In 2018, North Korea shifted from isolation and confrontation toward a year of high-level diplomacy, while remaining constrained by international sanctions. Kim Jong-un made his first foreign visits since taking power, engaging closely with China and holding historic summits with South Korea and the United States. The country's human rights situation remained a persistent concern, though global attention centered on nuclear talks.

Militarily, Pyongyang paused the missile and nuclear tests that had defined 2017. Kim announced a freeze on nuclear testing and the closure of the Punggye-ri test site—seen by outside experts as already of little use after a 2017 collapse. While no major new tests followed, North Korea kept its arsenal and stressed that dismantlement required reciprocal U.S. steps and sanctions relief.

Economically, the regime emphasized development, self-reliance, and raising living standards. Yet sanctions continued to restrict exports, fuel, and financial flows, and observers saw little visible recovery. China remained its primary economic lifeline, though formal trade stayed constrained. Humanitarian concerns persisted, with food insecurity and chronic shortages.

Diplomatically, 2018 marked a breakthrough. Kim met Chinese President Xi Jinping three times and South Korean President Moon Jae-in three times, including a September summit in Pyongyang that pledged peace, military de-escalation, and cross-border projects. The landmark Singapore Summit with Donald Trump in June produced a joint statement on denuclearization and improved relations, though concrete progress soon stalled.[2]

In South Korea, the year saw heated debate over Moon's labor reforms, which reduced the maximum workweek and raised the minimum wage. The #MeToo movement (a global campaign led by women against sexual assault and harassment) swept the country, toppling figures in politics, arts, and literature. Among the most prominent was An Hee-jung, a provincial governor and presidential hopeful, charged with sexual assault by a former aide.

Overall, 2018 brought a dramatic shift in North Korea's international posture. Weapons tests gave way to summitry, as Kim appeared on the global stage with leaders of China, South Korea, and the United States. Yet substantive denuclearization and sanctions relief did not follow, leaving the process fragile. North Korea ended the year balancing cautious engagement with enduring economic hardship, dependent on China and wary of U.S. intentions..

[2] Post-2018 note: A second summit between Kim Jong-un and U.S. President Donald Trump took place in Hanoi, Vietnam, in February 2019. The talks were cut short and ended without a deal, largely due to U.S. demands for denuclearization and North Korea's insistence on sanctions relief.

PART II. CHRONOLOGY OF EVENTS

A. IN NORTH KOREA

HUMAN RIGHTS

- March 8, 2018, Unspeakable Atrocities: A United Nations report accused North Korea of committing "unspeakable atrocities" against its citizens, citing systematic torture, starvation, and forced labor in political prison camps.
- August 17, 2018, UN Report on Children's Rights: The UN Committee on the Rights of the Child published its concluding observations, expressing deep concern over "grave violations" of children's rights in the DPRK, including forced labor and malnutrition.
- November 12, 2018, Expert Report Finds "No Improvement": The Group of Independent Experts on the DPRK released a report concluding there was a "deplorable lack of improvement" in the human rights situation and that crimes against humanity were ongoing.

MILITARY ACTIVITY

- April 21, 2018, Suspension of Nuclear Tests: North Korea announced it would immediately suspend all nuclear and ICBM tests and dismantle its Punggye-ri nuclear test site.
- May 24, 2018, Demolition of Tunnels: North Korea demolished tunnels at its Punggye-ri nuclear test site in a ceremony attended by foreign journalists (though not international experts).
- September 18–20, 2018, Third Inter-Korean Summit in Pyongyang: Kim Jong-un and South Korean President Moon Jae-in signed the Pyongyang Joint Declaration, which included a military agreement to establish no-fly zones along the border, cease live-fire drills in designated areas, and dismantle 11 guard posts within the DMZ.
- September 2018, Commitments on Yongbyon and Dongchang-ri: As part of the Pyongyang Declaration, Kim Jong-un committed to permanently dismantling the Yongbyon nuclear facility if the United States took "corresponding measures." He also agreed to dismantle the Dongchang-ri missile engine test site under international observation.
- November 2018, Meeting Postponement: A meeting between U.S. and North Korean officials scheduled for November 8 in New York was abruptly postponed by North Korea, citing displeasure with the U.S.'s unwavering stance on maintaining sanctions.

- December 2018, Reports of Continued Missile Site Activity: Satellite imagery analysis from experts indicated continued operational activity at key ballistic missile sites, suggesting no progress on dismantlement beyond the Punggye-ri site.

ECONOMICS

- January 1, 2018, Declaration of New Economic Development: Kim Jong-un used his New Year's Address to emphasize a new focus on domestic economic development and boosting the national economy.
- June 14, 2018, Discussions on Reopening the Kaesong Industrial Complex: Following the Singapore Summit, discussions began about potentially reopening the jointly run Kaesong Industrial Complex as an economic confidence-building measure with South Korea.
- July–December 2018, Sanctions Stalemate Continues: The core international sanctions regime remained fully in place. The U.S. maintained its "maximum pressure" policy, insisting sanctions would not be lifted until denuclearization was complete, creating a stalemate.

B. IN SOUTH KOREA

- January 4, 2018, Cross-Border Hotline Reopens: South Korea confirmed North Korea had reopened a cross-border hotline after a nearly two-year hiatus.
- February 2, 2018, Supreme Court Upholds "Comfort Women" Agreement Ruling: The Supreme Court upheld a lower court ruling that found the 2015 "comfort women" agreement between South Korea and Japan, which aimed to "finally and irreversibly" resolve the issue, did not invalidate the victims' individual right to claim compensation. This paved the way for continued legal battles.
- April 6, 2018, Former President Lee Myung-bak Arrested on Corruption Charges: Following his indictment on charges of bribery, embezzlement, and tax evasion, former President Lee Myung-bak was arrested, making him the fourth South Korean former president to face arrest.
- August 24, 2018, Supreme Court Orders Retrial for "Comfort Women" Statue Dispute: The Supreme Court ordered a retrial in a case regarding a local government's refusal to install a statue commemorating "comfort women," a decision seen as supportive of freedom of expression and the right to commemorate historical issues.
- November 29, 2018, Court Orders Dissolution of Unified Progressive Party (UPP) Upheld: The Constitutional Court upheld its 2014 decision to dissolve the left-wing Unified Progressive Party for being pro-North Korea and a threat to the country's democratic order, a ruling that remained controversial on free speech grounds.

C. INTER-KOREAN RELATIONS

- January 1, 2018, New Year's Address: Kim Jong-un announced that North Korea's nuclear forces had "been completed," offered an olive branch to South Korea by suggesting participation in the upcoming PyeongChang Winter Olympics, and emphasized a new focus on economic development.
- January 9, 2018, Peace House Talk: North and South Korea held high-level talks at the Peace House in Panmunjom, agreeing on North Korean participation in the Olympics.
- February 9–25, 2018, North Korea in the PyeongChang Olympics: As part of the diplomatic thaw, North Korea sent a delegation, athletes, and an art troupe to the PyeongChang Olympics, presenting the event as a major soft-power initiative despite the expenses involved.
- April 27, 2018, Steps to Complete Denuclearization: Kim Jong-un and South Korean President Moon Jae-in met at the Peace House in Panmunjom and signed the Panmunjom Declaration, agreeing to work toward the "complete denuclearization" of the Korean Peninsula.
- May 26, 2018, Second Moon-Kim Summit: The two leaders held an unplanned, surprise meeting at Panmunjom to ensure the success of the upcoming North Korea–U.S. summit in Singapore.
- September 18–20, 2018, Agreement on Cross-Border Railways: The two Koreas agreed during the Pyongyang summit to begin reconnecting cross-border railways and roads. This project was subject to sanctions exemptions, highlighting the tension between inter-Korean engagement and international sanctions.
- November 2018, Military Agreement Implementation Begins: As part of the Pyongyang Declaration, the two Koreas began dismantling 11 front-line guard posts within the DMZ, establishing no-fly zones, and ceasing live-fire drills in designated areas. They also launched a joint effort to remove landmines from the Joint Security Area (JSA) in Panmunjom.

D. INTERNATIONAL

UN SECURITY COUNCIL & SANCTIONS

- January 24, 2018, Panel of Experts Report on Sanctions Evasion: The UNSC Panel of Experts submitted a report detailing "a massive increase in illegal ship-to-ship transfers of petroleum products and coal" by North Korea, highlighting sophisticated evasion techniques that violated sanctions.
- May 11, 2018, UNSC Exemptions for Inter-Korean Project: The UN Security Council granted a sanctions exemption to allow a joint inter-Korean survey on modernizing North Korea's railways to proceed, demonstrating a willingness to support diplomatic confidence-building measures.

- August 5, 2018, UN Report on Sanctions Violations: The United Nations Security Council Panel of Experts reported that North Korea had illegally smuggled petroleum products through ship-to-ship transfers at sea and had violated sanctions by exporting coal.
- December 21, 2018, China and Russia Propose Sanctions Relief: Following the diplomatic momentum of the year, China and Russia introduced a draft resolution to the UNSC that would have lifted some sanctions on North Korea. The proposal was rejected by the United States and other members, who insisted pressure must remain until denuclearization.

UN GENERAL ASSEMBLY

- September 29, 2018, Foreign Minister Ri Yong-ho Addresses UNGA: North Korean Foreign Minister Ri Yong-ho addressed the UN General Assembly, stating that sanctions were "threatening to wipe out our development and achievements" and that trust with the U.S. was "fading away," signaling frustration with the lack of progress.
- October 18, 2018, UN Report on "Dire" Situation: The UN General Assembly's Third Committee heard a report from the UN Secretary-General, which stated that "the human rights situation in the Democratic People's Republic of Korea remained dire."
- November 5, 2018, UNGA Third Committee Condemns DPRK Human Rights: The UN General Assembly's Third Committee adopted a resolution condemning North Korea's "systematic, widespread and gross violations of human rights," continuing the annual practice despite the year's diplomatic talks.
- December 17, 2018, UNGA Plenary Adopts Human Rights Resolution: The full UN General Assembly formally adopted the resolution condemning North Korea's human rights record, maintaining international scrutiny on the issue irrespective of nuclear diplomacy.

CHINA

- March 25–28, 2018, Xi and Kim First Meet in Beijing: Kim made his first foreign trip since assuming power, traveling to Beijing to affirm North Korea's commitment to denuclearization and willingness to hold a summit with the U.S.
- May 7–8, 2018, Second Meeting in Dalian: Kim paid a second visit to China in Dalian and exchanged views on denuclearization and China–DPRK relations.
- June 19–20, 2018, Third Meeting in Beijing: One week after Kim's summit with U.S. President Trump, he met Xi for the third time to discuss outcomes and align future diplomatic strategy.
- April 22, 2018, Bus Accident Kills Chinese Tourists: A bus carrying Chinese tourists on a tour in North Hwanghae Province crashed off a bridge. Thirty-two Chinese tourists and four North Koreans were killed, and Kim visited the Chinese embassy in Pyongyang to express condolences

- September 18–20, 2018, China's Reaction to Inter-Korean Summit in Pyongyang: China's state media praised the third inter-Korean summit of 2018 as promoting peace and denuclearization.

UNITED STATES

- March 30, 2018, U.S. Announces New Unilateral Sanctions: The U.S. Treasury Department sanctioned a group of shipping and trading companies from China, Singapore, and Panama, along with dozens of vessels, for facilitating illicit trade with North Korea, acting outside the UN framework.
- May 9, 2018, Release of American Detainees: North Korea released three American detainees as a goodwill gesture ahead of the U.S.–North Korea summit.
- June 12, 2018, Trump and Kim Met in Singapore: U.S. President Donald Trump and Kim Jong-un met in Singapore, signed a joint statement committing to "work toward complete denuclearization," and for the U.S. to provide "security guarantees."
- July 6–7, 2018, Mike Pompeo Visits Pyongyang: U.S. Secretary of State Mike Pompeo made his first visit to Pyongyang after the Singapore Summit for follow-up talks. He reported progress, but North Korea later accused the U.S. of making "gangster-like" demands for denuclearization.
- July 27, 2018, Repatriation of U.S. War Remains: The Korean War remains of 55 U.S. servicemen were repatriated and transferred to Osan Air Base in South Korea, fulfilling a commitment from the Singapore Summit.
- October 7, 2018, Pompeo's Visit to Pyongyang: U.S. Secretary of State Mike Pompeo visited Pyongyang and met with Kim Jong-un. He stated the meeting was "productive" and that plans for a second Trump–Kim summit would advance.
- November 2018, Planned New York Meeting Cancelled: A meeting between Pompeo and top North Korean official Kim Yong-chol, scheduled for November 8 in New York, was postponed by North Korea, citing displeasure with the U.S.'s unwavering stance on maintaining sanctions.
- December 2018, Diplomatic Stalemate Sets In: Working-level talks between U.S. and North Korean officials made no progress on bridging the gap between the U.S. demand for complete denuclearization before sanctions relief and the North's demand for a step-by-step process. Planning for a second summit continued into 2019.

.

I. PART III. DAILY PRESS

1. JANUARY

Monday, January 1, 2018

N.K. open to sending delegation to PyeongChang Olympics: leader; S. Korea's presidential office hails North's proposal on PyeongChang delegation

In North Korea:
(LEAD) N.K. leader set to deliver New Year's speech amid tensions over nukes (Yonhap, 12/31/17)
Kim Jong Un delivers New Year's address (CNN, 01/01/18)
Kim Jong-un may send athletes to PyeongChang Olympics (Joongang Ilbo, 12/31/17)
Kim Jong-un says 'nuclear button on his desk' (Korea Times, 01/01/18)
Kim Jong-un: North Korea's nuclear arsenal is now complete (Guardian, 12/31/17)
Kim's New Year's address (Joongang Ilbo, 01/01/18)
Kim's New Year's address strikes a conciliatory note (Joongang Ilbo, 01/01/18)
Leader Kim Jong Un says North Korea completed its nuclear force in 2017 and the U.S. must know it is a reality (AP, 12/31/17)
N. Korea opens 2018 with big fireworks (Yonhap, 12/31/17)
N.K. names Putin before Xi in list of allies that sent New Year's greetings to leader Kim (Yonhap, 12/31/17)
New Year's Address (NK Leadership Watch, 01/01/18)
North Korea's Kim Jong-un issues threats and olive branch (BBC, 01/01/18)
North Korea's New Year Message (BBC, 01/01/18)
North Korean leader says he has 'nuclear button' but won't use it unless threatened (Washington Post, 01/01/18)
What to Read if You Want to Know More About North Korea (NYT, 01/01/18)

In South Korea:
North Korea: South seizes second ship in oil supply row (BBC, 12/31/17)
PyeongChang Olympics' top organizer welcomes N. Korean interest in participation (Yonhap, 01/01/18)
Rival parties show mixed reaction toward N. Korean leader's new year message (Yonhap, 01/01/18)
Seoul seizes another vessel for trading with Pyongyang (Joongang Ilbo, 01/01/18)
South Korea seizes second ship amid North Korea sanctions row (CNN, 12/31/17)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
(LEAD) N.K. may demand S. Korea lift sanctions in return for Olympics participation: report (Yonhap, 01/01/18)
(2nd LD) S. Korea's presidential office hails North's proposal on PyeongChang delegation (Yonhap, 01/01/18)

(5th LD) N.K. open to sending delegation to PyeongChang Olympics: leader (Yonhap, 01/01/18)
Eyes on Kim Jong-un's New Year message (Korea Times, 12/31/17)
Inter-Korean dialogue may resume soon (Korea Times, 01/01/18)
Kim Jong-un claims he has nuclear button on his desk as he floats meeting with South Korea (Telegraph, 01/01/18)
Kim Jong Un extends olive branch to Seoul while threatening Washington with 'nuclear button' (UPI, 01/01/18)
Kim Jong-un Offers North Korea's Hand to South, While Chiding U.S. (NYT, 12/31/17)
Kim Jong Un offers rare olive branch to South Korea (CNN, 01/01/18)
Kim Jong-un says willing to send delegation to PyeongChang (Korea Times, 01/01/18)
Kim's speech on Olympic delegation 'a nice surprise': PyeongChang (Korea Times, 01/01/18)
N.K.'s olive branch toward Seoul targets breakthrough amid sanctions: experts (Yonhap, 01/01/18)
North Korea likely to demand a price for Olympic participation (UPI, 01/01/18)
North Korea's Kim says 'open to dialogue' with South Korea, will only use nukes if threatened (Reuters, 01/01/18)
North Korea's Kim says nuclear weapons will prevent war with U.S. (Reuters, 12/31/17)
Peace overture (Korea Times, 01/01/18)

International:
Asia's best and worst in 2017 (Joongang Ilbo, 12/31/17)
Bring United Nations headquarters to Korea (Korea Times, 12/31/17)
Former Joint Chiefs chairman: Nuclear war with North Korea closer than ever (CNN, 01/01/18)
Kim Jong-un's Overture Could Drive a Wedge Between South Korea and the U.S. (NYT, 12/31/17)
Korean War, a 'Forgotten' Conflict That Shaped the Modern World (NYT, 12/31/17)
North Korea casts nuclear shadow over Asia's 2018 (Guardian, 01/01/18)
North Korea Leader Warns US of Reality of its Nuclear Program (VOA, 01/01/18)
Nuclear war with North Korea is closer than ever, says former US military chief (Telegraph, 12/31/17)
Remember the Acheson Line (Joongang Ilbo, 01/01/18)
Sen. Graham: U.S. can deal 'fatal blows' to Iran, North Korea in 2018 (UPI, 12/31/17)
U.S. experts divided over possible delay of S. Korea military drills (Yonhap, 12/31/17)
In North Korea:

- N. Korean leader KJU is set to deliver his New Year's address Monday as the country's nuclear and missile programs are advancing at a fast clip amid deepening international sanctions. (Yonhap)
- In a New Year's Day speech, N. Korean leader warned the US that he keeps a nuclear button on his desk, but said he genuinely wishes for peaceful resolution with the southern border. (CNN)
- KJU said he is willing to send a N. Korean delegation to the upcoming PyeongChang Winter Olympics in a New Year's address Monday, adding both Koreas "could urgently meet" to discuss the matter. (Lee Sung-eun, Joongang Ilbo)
- NK has completed its development of nuclear weapons, its leader KJU claimed in his New Year's speech, Monday, saying he has a "nuclear button on his desk" to strike the mainland US. (Choi Ha-young, Korea Times)
- Leader says US 'can never start a war against me' and also hopes for better ties with Seoul before the Winter Olympics. (Justin McCurry, Guardian)
- N.Korean leader KJU delivered two messages in his New Year's address Monday, one conciliatory and one threatening. (Joongang Ilbo)

- He says he may send athletes to Olympics and hold 'urgent' talks. (Lee Sung-eun, Joongang Ilbo)
- Leader KJU says NK completed its nuclear force in 2017 and the US must know it is a reality. (AP)
- NK has welcomed the new year with massive fireworks at an annual gala initiated by its leader KJU. (Yonhap)
- NK's state media has mentioned Russian President Vladimir Putin before Chinese President Xi Jinping when it called out the names of foreign leaders who sent its leader KJU New Year's cards. (Yonhap)
- " Dear fellow countrymen and brave service personnel of the People's Army, Dear compatriots, Today, recollecting with great pleasure and pride and deep emotion the proud achievements we performed last year.." (NK Leadership Watch)
- NK's leader KJU has said a nuclear launch button is "always on my table" and warned the US it will never be able to start a war. (BBC)
- KJU boasts of a nuclear button on his desk. (BBC)
- N. Korean leader KJU boasted in an annual New Year's Day speech Monday that he had a nuclear button on his desk and that the entire US was within range of his weapons — but he also vowed not to attack unless threatened. (Simon Denyer, Washington Post)
- NK may be the most secretive and totalitarian country in the world, as well as the wackiest. (Nicholas Chrostof, NYT)

In South Korea:

- S. Korean authorities have seized a second ship suspected of supplying oil to NK in violation of international sanctions. (BBC)
- The top organizer for the 2018 PyeongChang Winter Olympics on Monday welcomed North Korea's expression of interest in participation in the games, saying the gesture was akin to "a gift on New Year's Day." (Yoo Jee-ho, Yonhap)
- Rival parties showed mixed reactions toward the New Year's message from N. Korean leader KJU in which he made an unexpected conciliatory gesture to the South and hinted at the possibility of sending athletes to PyeongChang. (Yonhap)
- South Korea is investigating a second vessel it suspects of illegally transferring oil for shipping to North Korea in violation of UN sanctions. (Ser Myo-ja, Jung Hyo-sik, Joongang Ilbo)
- SK has seized a second ship as part of what it describes as an ongoing effort to monitor NK's attempts to evade UN sanctions. (Taehoon Lee, Lauren Said-Moorhouse, Yuli Yang, CNN)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- NK may demand that SK lift sanctions on Pyongyang, resume inter-Korean economic projects and provide aid in exchange for the North's participation in the Winter Olympics. (Yonhap)
- SK's presidential office welcomed Monday's proposal by N. Korean leader KJU to send a delegation to the upcoming PyeongChang Olympics slated for next month. (Yonhap)
- NK could send a delegation to the upcoming PyeongChang Olympics to be held in SK and is open to talks with Seoul over it. (Yonhap)

- Government officials and experts here are paying keen attention to what message N. Korean leader KJU will deliver during his New Year address. (Jun Ji-hye, Korea Times)
- N. Korean leader KJU's New Year address increased the likelihood for inter-Korean talks to take place soon, as the young leader showed a stronger willingness than ever to improve frozen relations between the two Koreas, according to experts. (Jun Ji-hye, Korea Times)
- N. Korean leader KJU made a dramatic shift in his approach to Seoul as he called for direct talks in an apparent bid to drive a wedge between SK and the US, its key ally. (Julian Ryall, James Rothwell, Telegraph)
- N. Korean leader KJU has offered a potential olive branch to SK while warning the US that he has a "nuclear launch button" on his desk. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- NK's leader, KJU, moved Monday to ease his country's isolation by offering to send a delegation to the Winter Olympics in SK, even as he claimed to have accomplished the ability to launch a nuclear missile at the mainland United States. (Choe Sang-hun, NYT)
- N. Korean leader KKU held out a rare olive branch to the country's southern neighbor Monday, offering talks over sending a delegation to the Winter Olympics in Pyeongchang next month. (Alanne Orjoux, Steve George, CNN)
- NK is willing to send its delegation to the PyeongChang Winter Olympics, scheduled for Feb. 9 to 25, N. Korean leader KJU said in his New Year's address. (Jun Ji-hye, Korea Times)
- The organizing committee of the 2018 PyeongChang Winter Olympics hailed N. Korean leader K's announcement that he is wJUilling to send a delegation to the Olympics to be held in SK next month. (Kang Hyun-kyung, Korea Times)
- N. Korean leader KJU's offer of an olive branch toward SK is seen as an attempt to use better inter-Korean ties to break the current stalemate amid deepening international sanctions. (Yonhap)
- NK may demand a price for its participation in the Winter Olympics next month. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- KJU on Monday warned the US he has a "nuclear button" on his desk ready for use if NK is threatened, but offered an olive branch to South Korea, saying he was "open to dialogue" with Seoul. (Heekyong Yang, Josh Smith, Reuters)
- N. Korean leader KJU said on Monday that the US will never be able to start a war against NK now that his country has developed the capability to hit all of the US mainland with its nuclear weapons. (Reuters)
- Kim Jong-un should put words into action (Park Yoon-bae, Korea Times)

International:

- Kim's continued survival may well rest on China's support more so than his nuclear arsenal. (Curtis S. Chin, Jose B. Collazo, Joongang Ilbo)
- The Trump administration's decision to reduce drastically the US contribution to the UN was generally interpreted as payback after the stunning rebuke to the American decision to recognize Jerusalem as Israel's capital. (Emanuel Pastreich, Korea Times)
- The US is "closer to a nuclear war with NK" than ever, Adm. Mike Mullen, a former chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, said, adding that he does not "see the opportunities to solve this diplomatically at this particular point." (Zachary Cohen, CNN)
- NK's surprise call for direct talks with SK could drive a wedge into the decades-old alliance between Seoul and Washington, potentially creating a reprieve from months of tensions but also undercutting President Trump's tough approach to North. (Choe Sang-hun, NYT)

- The Korean War has been called “the Forgotten War” in the US, where coverage of the 1950s conflict was censored and its memory decades later is often overshadowed by World War II and the Vietnam War. (Liam Stack, NYT)
- Its missile tests have dominated the region in the past year and, with little to suggest any diplomatic aces from Trump, this is likely to continue. (Justin McCurry, Benjamin Haas, Michael Safi, Guardain)
- N. Korean leader KJU says the US must realize that the North's nuclear program is a reality. (VOA)
- The US is closer than ever before to war with NK, according to Mike Mullen. (Telegraph)
- On Jan. 12, 1950, US Secretary of State Dean Acheson under President Harry Truman announced the so-called Acheson Line. (Ko Soo-suk, Joongang Ilbo)
- Current and former US officials said President Trump's response to Iranian protests could have long-term effects on nuclear tensions with North Korea. (Daniel Uria, UPI)
- With the PyeongChang Winter Olympics a month away, US experts are divided over whether the two countries should postpone their annual military exercises to lower tensions with NK. (Yonhap)

Prepared by Huiwon Yun, HRNK Legal Research Intern

——————————————————

Tuesday, January 2, 2018

Seoul offers high-level talks with Pyongyang on Jan. 9; U.S. warns North Korea against new missile test, plays down talks; IOC welcomes North Korean Olympic overture

In North Korea:

Clad in light grey, North Korea's Kim goes for softer image in New Year address (Reuters, 01/02/2018)
Kim Jong-un's sister speculated to lead delegation to South (Korea Times, 01/02/2018)
Markets provide relief for ordinary people hurting from sanctions (DailyNK, 01/02/2018)
North Korean defector claims Kim Jong-un has ordered biggest missile yet for nation's 70th anniversary (Telegraph, 01/02/2018)
North Korean shellfish for sale in Yanji despite sanctions (DailyNK, 01/02/2018)
North Korea shows off icy replica of Hwasong-15 missile (BBC, 01/02/2018)
Pyongyang authorities to expel defector families from the city (DailyNK, 01/02/2018)
What's it like to live in North Korea? (BBC, 01/02/2018)

In South Korea:

(LEAD) Moon urges swift steps to realize N. Korean participation at PyeongChang (Yonhap, 01/02/2018)
PM: N. Korea could demand 'different treatment' in rare inter-Korean talks (Yonhap, 01/02/2018)

S. Korea 'carefully' mulling timing of offering talks with N.K. (Yonhap, 01/02/2018)
S. Korea pledges coordination with U.S. over potential inter-Korean talks (Yonhap, 01/02/2018)
Sports minister says PyeongChang 2018 will lead to peace, prosperity on Korean Peninsula(Yonhap, 01/02/2018)
Time to be careful (Joongang Ilbo, 01/02/2018)
Unification minister to make announcement after N.K's dialogue offer (Yonhap, 01/02/2018)
We won't get fooled again (Joongang Ilbo, 01/02/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
(3rd LD) S. Korea offers high-level talks with N.K. next week (Yonhap, 01/02/2018)
FM says more global coordination needed to brace for thaw in inter-Korean ties (Yonhap, 01/02/2018)
Kim Jong Un's game of chicken roulette (UPI, 01/02/2018)
North Korea: South proposes Olympics delegation talks (BBC, 01/02/2018)
Seoul offers high-level talks with North Korea over Winter Olympics (Telegraph, 01/02/2018)
Seoul offers high-level talks with Pyongyang on Jan. 9 (Korea Times, 01/02/2018)
Seoul phones North Korea to arrange dialogue (UPI, 01/02/2018)
Seoul proposes Tuesday talks with North (Joongang Ilbo, 01/02/2018)
South Korea offers to hold talks with North after Olympics olive branch (Guardian, 01/02/2018)
South Korea Offers Talks With Rival North Over Winter Olympics (VOA, 01/02/2018)
South Korea offers talks with North ahead of Olympics (Reuters, 01/02/2018)
South Korea offers talks with North on Olympic cooperation (Washington Post, 01/02/2018)
South Korea Proposes Border Talks With North Korea After Kim's Overture (NYT, 01/02/2018)
South Korea welcomes North's offer of talks, proposes to meet next week (Washington Post, 01/02/2018)

International:
Chinese firms own ships suspected of supplying oil to North Korea (UPI, 01/02/2018)
How the Korean War put presidents in charge of nuclear weapons (Washington Post, 01/02/2018)
IOC says it's 'open' to North joining Games (Joongang Ilbo, 01/02/2018)
IOC welcomes North Korean Olympic overture (Reuters, 01/02/2018)
Lockheed to support Korea's Peace Krypton intelligence aircraft (UPI, 01/02/2018)
No. of N. Korean refugees in U.S. sharply drops under Trump gov't (Yonhap, 01/02/2018)
North Korean Olympic overture seen aimed at blunting international pressure (Reuters, 01/02/2018)
'Sanctions on North Korea are biting' (Korea Times, 01/02/2018)
Shinzo Abe seeks improved ties with South Korea, China (UPI, 01/02/2018)
The art of good enough (Joongang Ilbo, 01/02/2018)
Trump says N.K. wanting talks with S. Korea could be good news (Yonhap, 01/02/2018)
Trump sounds open to Korea dialogue, says Kim feels pressure (Washington Post, 01/02/2018)
U.S. cautious in commenting on N.K. leader's New Year's Day speech (Yonhap, 01/02/2018)
U.S. warns North Korea against new missile test, plays down talks (Reuters, 01/02/2018)
Why North Korea succeeded at getting nuclear weapons — when Iraq and Libya failed (Washington Post, 01/02/2018)

In North Korea:

- The light-grey suit and matching tie that KJU donned for his New Year's address was likely carefully calculated to project a softer, more relaxed image to go with his surprise offer for talks with Seoul. (Christine Kim, Reuters)

- Kim may consider his right-hand man Choe Ryong-hae or his younger sister Kim Yo-jong on the list of candidates to lead the delegation. (Yi Whan-woo, Korea Times)
- With little expectation that the government will deliver beneficial reforms, North Koreans are trying to find ways to survive through market trading. (Kang Mi Jin, DailyNK)
- KJU has ordered NK scientists to construct a missile that will be the largest in the regime's arsenal and to have it ready to be launched on September 9, the 70th anniversary of the founding of the republic. (Julian Ryall, Telegraph)
- A number of vendors in Yanji, China, are openly selling NK seafood, despite this year's UNSC Resolution 2371 banning the North from exporting such goods. (Kim Sung Il, DailyNK)
- A frozen replica of NK's long-range missile Hwasong-15 was the star of an ice sculpture festival in Pyongyang. (BBC)
- NK authorities are preparing to conduct a large-scale expulsion of families from the capital. (Kang Mi Jin, Kim Chae Hwan, DailyNK)
- NK is one of the most closed-off counties on the planet, with little access to the outside world.
- Four North Koreans who managed to escape explain what life was like back home and what they miss the most. (BBC)

In South Korea:

- Moon called for swift measures to realize NK's participation in Winter Olympic Games, one day after KJU hinted at a resumption of inter-Korean dialogue to the end. (Yonhap)
- PM Lee Nak-yon said NK could demand "different treatment," apparently as a nuclear power, if rare talks take place between the two sides to discuss its participation in Winter Olympics. (Yonhap)
- SK's unification ministry said it is "carefully" considering the timing of proposing talks with NK as the North's leader expressed his willingness to send a delegation to Winter Olympics. (Yonhap)
- SK will continue its "watertight" coordination with the US as it takes steps to resume dialogue with NK. (Yonhap)
- SK Sports Minister Do Jong-hwan said the upcoming Winter Olympics in the country will usher in an era of peace and prosperity on the Korean Peninsula. (Yonhap)
- Seoul must not overreact to Pyongyang's proposal and lift economic sanctions. (Bae Myung-bok, Joongang Ilbo)
- SK's unification minister will make an announcement on inter-Korean ties, government officials said, a day after NK leader KJU offered talks over the Winter Olympics. (Yonhap)
- Moon welcomed KJU's New Year's address in which he expressed a willingness to send a North Korean delegation to hold a senior-level meeting with Seoul, but it is too early to expect NK to take the road to peace. (Joongang Ilbo)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- SK proposed high-level talks with NK next week over the North's possible participation in Winter Olympics, in response to KJU's reconciliatory New Year message. (Yonhap)
- SK's top diplomat underlined the need for stepped up efforts Tuesday to seek global policy coordination to brace for a thaw in inter-Korean relations. (Yonhap)

- For KJU, developing a nuclear weapons system will ensure that he has a greater chance of survival than doom in the event of an armed confrontation, the way Russian roulette gives a much higher chance of survival and death. (Madhav Das Nalapat, UPI)
- SK has offered high-level talks with NK to discuss its possible participation in Winter Olympic Games, and KJU would consider sending a team to SK for the Games in February. (BBC)
- SK has proposed talks next week in order to arrange NK athletes' participation in the upcoming Winter Olympic Games. (Julian Ryall, Telegraph)
- Unification Minister Cho Myoung-gyon proposed Tuesday holding high-level talks with NK, Jan. 9, to discuss its participation in the Winter Olympics. (Yi Whan-woo, Korea Times)
- SK has proposed holding high-level dialogue with the North at the truce village of Panmunjom next Tuesday. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- Seoul proposed high-level talks with Pyongyang on SK's side of the JSA to discuss NK's participation in the upcoming Winter Olympics. (Lee Sung-eun, Joongang Ilbo)
- SK has proposed holding high-level talks with NK next week, a day after KJU said he was prepared to send a delegation of athletes to Winter Olympics. (Justin McCurry, Guardian)
- SK offered to hold high-level talks with bitter rival NK over the North's possible participation in the upcoming Winter Olympic Games. (VOA)
- SK offered talks with NK next week amid a standoff over its weapons programs, a day after KJU said he was open to negotiations but that his country would push ahead with "mass producing" nuclear warheads. (Christine Kim, Reuters)
- SK offered high-level talks with rival NK to find ways to cooperate on next month's Winter Olympics in the South. (Hyung-Jin Kim, AP)
- SK responded to an overture from NK and proposed holding high-level talks between the countries on their border next week. (Choe Sang-hun, NYT)
- SK welcomed on Tuesday an offer of talks from KJU ahead of next month's Winter Olympics, and suggested the two sides meet as early as next week. (Simon Denyer, Washington Post)

International:

- Two ships SK authorities detained after they were suspected of transferring fuel supplies to NK vessels at sea are of Chinese origin. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- The president's unilateral nuclear authority comes from decisions made at the start of the Atomic Age. (Se Young Jang, Washington Post)
- Mark Adams, the director of communications for the IOC said the IOC will consider "in an open way" KJU's remarks about possibly sending a delegation to the Winter Olympics. (Chun Su-jin, Joongang Ilbo)
- IOC welcomed the possibility of NK competing at next month's Pyeongchang Games in SK and said the invitation remained open. (Reuters)
- Lockheed Martin was awarded a $33.6 million contract by the U.S. Air Force to extend support for SK's tactical reconnaissance aircraft and mission support equipment. (James LaPorta, UPI)
- Only one NK defector entered the US in the capacity of a refugee last year, the fewest since Washington began to accept NK refugees in 2006. (Yonhap)
- After a year of making threats and weapons advances, KJU appears to be using the upcoming Winter Olympic Games in SK as a tool to blunt growing international pressure on Pyongyang while leaving his nuclear arsenal untouched. (Josh Smith, David Brunnstrom, Reuters)

- NK's overture to SK for dialogue shows signs the reclusive regime has started to feel the pinch of sanctions, according to a former high-ranking U.S. diplomat. (Kim Jae-kyoung, Korea Times)
- Abe says he wants to improve ties with SK and China, despite tensions over a 2015 "comfort woman" deal and disputes with Beijing over Chinese coast guard vessels. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- The US indeed needs SK to resolve the problem of NK nukes diplomatically. (Venerable Pomnyun Sunim, Joongang Ilbo)
- Trump said that NK's willingness to hold talks with SK could be "good news," although he also expressed skepticism. (Yonhap)
- Trump sounded open to the possibility of an inter-Korean dialogue after KJU's New Year address. But Haley insisted talks would not be meaningful unless the North was getting rid of its nuclear weapons. (Matthew Pennington, AP)
- US has not said much about KJU's New Year's Day address, in which he gave a nuclear warning against it but also a conciliatory gesture toward SK. (Yonhap)
- Nikki Haley warned NK against another missile test and said Washington would not take planned talks between two Koreas seriously if NK did not take steps to give up its nuclear weapons. (Rodrigo Campos, Christine Kim, Reuters)
- NK was considered too poor, authoritarian and vulnerable to succeed with its nuclear and missile programs. And yet it has acquired advanced nuclear capabilities. What differentiates NK from Iraq and Libya? (Malfrid Braut-Hegghammer, Washington Post)

Prepared by James Park, HRNK Research Intern

————————————————

Wednesday, January 3, 2018

Engaging North Korea Successfully on Human Rights; North Korea reopens border hotline with South; Trump says his nuclear button is bigger

Top News:
Engaging North Korea Successfully on Human Rights (johnfeffer.com, 12/28/2017)

In North Korea:
A New Enchilada (38 North, 01/03/2018)
Central authorities offer pork and rice for new year, but uneven distribution angers residents (DailyNK, 01/03/2018)
Convoy of Chinese military trucks seen moving towards North Korea border in late December (DailyNK, 01/03/2018)
Hotline restored on Kim's order (Joongang Ilbo, 01/03/2018)
New calendars reflect North Koreans' disinterest in propaganda (DailyNK, 01/03/2018)

Nine Reasons Why Kim Jong Un's South Korea Initiative is More Than Just a Tactic (38 North, 01/03/2018)
North Koreans focusing on Kim Jong Un's new look more than New Year's address content (DailyNK, 01/03/2018)
North Korea prepares new ICBM launch: report (Korea Times, 01/03/2018)
North Korea and the Olympics: Bombs, media blackouts and glory (BBC, 01/03/2018)
Stability-seeking Party cadres seek out illegal fortune tellers (DailyNK, 01/03/2018)

In South Korea:
Analyst: Kim Jong Un May Agree to Talks with S. Korea, But Will Not Stop Building Nuclear Arsenal (VOA, 01/03/2018)
How South Korea's missile defense may be hurting Hyundai (Washington Post, 01/03/2018)
Kim's Achilles' heel (Joongang Ilbo, 01/03/2018)
Kim Jong-un's trap (Joongang Ilbo, 01/03/2018)
S. Korea to enable talks between Pyongyang and Washington (UPI, 01/03/2018)
Sports minister says PyeongChang 2018 will lead to peace, prosperity on Korean Peninsula (Yonhap, 01/03/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
Inter-Korean talks must deal with nukes (Korea Times, 01/03/2018)
N. Korea shows no reaction to S. Korea's offer for talks (Yonhap, 01/03/2018)
N. Korea reopens communication channel with South (Yonhap, 01/03/2018)
North Korea reopens hotline to South to discuss Olympics (BBC, 01/03/2018)
North Korea Reopens Cross-Border Hotline to South (VOA, 01/03/2018)
North Korea reopens border hotline with South (Korea Times, 01/03/2018)
North Korea reopens border hotline as Trump boasts of 'bigger' nuclear button (Reuters, 01/03/2018)
N. Korea reopens cross-border communications with S. Korea (Washington Post, 01/03/2018)
North Korea Reopens Border Hotline With South (NYT, 01/03/2018)
PyeongChang offers to send cruise for N. Korean delegation (Yonhap, 01/03/2018)
PyeongChang reaffirms readiness to host N. Korea at Winter Olympics (Yonhap, 01/03/2018)
South and North Korea make contact on communication line (UPI, 01/03/2018)
Two phones, two years, two calls: How North and South Korea reconnected (CNN, 01/03/2018)
Two Koreas reopen hotline (Korea Times, 01/03/2018)
Will North Korea compete in Winter Olympics? (BBC, 01/03/2018)

International:
China endorses easing of tensions on Korean peninsula (UPI, 01/03/2018)
Donald Trump says his nuclear button 'bigger' than Kim Jong-un's as North Korea reopens border hotline (Telegraph, 01/03/2018)
IOC 'welcomes' Koreas' interest in talks on North's participation in PyeongChang 2018 (Yonhap, 01/03/2018)
Kang, Tillerson reaffirm commitment to ironclad coordination in peacefully resolving N.K. issue (Yonhap, 01/03/2018)
N.K. leader's overture seen aimed at weakening int'l sanctions: defector (Yonhap, 01/03/2018)
Q&A: Is there a chance for a breakthrough with the Koreas? (Washington Post, 01/03/2018)
Social Media Shudders After Trump Mocks North Korea's 'Button' (NYT, 01/03/2018)
The Latest: UN leader welcomes Koreas' communications link (Washington Post, 01/03/2018)

This North Korea business will get out of control (Washington Post, 01/03/2018)
Trump's big-stick approach to North Korea suddenly becomes extremely literal (Washington Post, 01/03/2018)
Trump boasts of 'nuclear button' but doesn't really have one (Washington Post, 01/03/2018)
Trump hasn't caused an international crisis yet, but we might not be so lucky in 2018 (CNN, 01/03/2018)
Trump's loony nuclear-button tweet adds to incoherence on North Korea (Washington Post, 01/03/2018)
Trump says his nuclear button is bigger (Joongang Ilbo, 01/03/2018)
Trump says N.K. wanting talks with S. Korea could be good news (Yonhap, 01/03/2018)
Trump Says His 'Nuclear Button' Is 'Much Bigger' Than North Korea's (NYT, 01/03/2018)
Trump tries to call out North Korean propaganda. Will it work? (Washington Post, 01/03/2018)
US-North Korea Nuclear Button Explainer (VOA, 01/03/2018)
US skeptical about Pyongyang's overture (Korea Times, 01/03/2018)
US Urges Further Pressure on N. Korea Ahead of Possible Missile Test (VOA, 01/02/2018)
U.S. to continue to put maximum pressure on N. Korea: White House (Yonhap, 01/03/2018)
U.S. warns North Korea against new missile test, plays down talks (Reuters, 01/03/2018)
What it actually takes to launch a nuclear strike (CNN, 01/03/2018)
Why nuclear war with North Korea is less likely than you think (Washington Post, 01/03/2018)
Why the Olympics matter when it comes to North Korea (Washington Post, 01/03/2018)

Top News:

- Greg Scarlatoiu, the Executive Director of HRNK: "NK has ignored other issues, such as the terrible things done to political prisoners in the camps, the utter lack of freedom of expression, freedom of association, any conceivable human right." (38 North)

In North Korea:

- With this year's New Year's address, KJU put in play a familiar NK gambit—letting the fox loose among the chickens. Kim went surprisingly easy on the US in his speech compared with last year. (Robert Carlin, 38 North)
- NK authorities have distributed pork and rice in celebration of the new year. However, KJU's failure to distribute these items to all households highlights the leader's limited resources and has resulted in negative reactions as well. (Kang Mi Jin, DailyNK)
- Dozens of Chinese military trucks were spotted on December 24 driving from Yanji (Jilin Province) towards the NK border, drawing the curiosity of passersby. (Kim Sung Il, DailyNK)
- NK accepted SK's offer of dialogue and said it would reopen its military hotline in the border village of Panmunjom to discuss "practical matters" about its participation in the upcoming Olympics. (Lee Sung-eun, Joongang Ilbo)
- NK's calendars have historically featured heavy propaganda idolizing the Kim family. However, more recent editions are showing signs of moderation, with less emphasis on the regime. (Kim Sung Il, DailyNK)
- Discerning the seriousness of NK's SK initiatives goes beyond cherry-picking lines from Kim's New Year's Speech and the subsequent announcement. There are nine reasons why recent North Korean proposal is serious. (Robert Carlin, Joel S. Wit, 38 North)

- Following NK's annual broadcast of KJU's New Year's address to the nation, residents have reportedly been more interested in the leader's changing appearance than the content of the speech. (Kang Mi Jin, Kim Sung Il, DailyNK)
- NK may test-fire another ICBM this week or next, a U.S. broadcaster reported. (Oh Young-jin, Korea Times)
- For a country like NK, where image is everything, the Olympic Games present a conundrum. (BBC)
- A new fad coinciding with the New Year is emerging in NK, in which fortune tellers are making house visits. More people are pursuing the banned service in secret to avoid punishment by the authorities. (Seol Song Ah, DailyNK)

In South Korea:

- Talks between SK and NK officials will not deter Pyongyang from building its nuclear arsenal, says a Seoul-based political analyst. (Zlatica Hoke, VOA)
- SK' deployment of THAAD may be hurting Hyundai as Hyundai experienced decreasing sales in China when the Chinese government's boycott took effect. (Peter Holley, Washington Post)
- Kim's Achilles' heel is economics. He knows his power will be safe if the economy runs well. But the economy cannot flourish if it is under strict controls. And a free market will weaken his dictatorship. (Kim Byung-yeon, Joongang Ilbo)
- NK's willingness to reconnect the communication hotline attracts SK's attention, but if the Moon Jae-in administration rushes to dialogue, it can fall into Pyongyang's trap. (Joongang Ilbo)
- SK says it will aim to improve inter-Korean relations as a means of enabling engagement between Washington and Pyongyang. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- SK Sports Minister Do Jong-hwan said Tuesday the upcoming Winter Olympics in the country will usher in an era of peace and prosperity on the Korean Peninsula. (Yonhap)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- Rep. Yoo Seong-min, chairman of the minor conservative Bareun Party, has demanded the Moon government include the NK nuclear issue on the agenda of high-level talks between the two Koreas, if such talks are held. (Kim Rahn, Korea Times)
- NK has yet to respond to SK's latest offer for high-level talks Wednesday after its leader KJU extended a rare rapprochement toward Seoul. (Yonhap)
- SK and NK made their first contact via a cross-border communication channel in nearly two years as NK reopened the suspended hotline one day after Seoul offered high-level talks. (Yonhap)
- NK has reopened a hotline to South Korea, almost two years after it was disabled on the orders of leader KJU. (BBC)
- NK has reopened a cross-border communications channel with SK Wednesday, the first significant sign the bitter rivals are seeking to improve relations after years of rising tensions. (VOA)
- NK reopened the border hotline with SK. It came a day after Seoul proposed high-level inter-Korean talks in Panmunjeom on Jan. 9 to discuss matters related to the NK's participation in the Winter Olympics. (Park Si-soo, Korea Times)

- NK reopened a long-closed border hotline with SK on Wednesday, hours after Trump appeared to mock KJU by saying he has a “bigger and more powerful” nuclear button than he does. (Christine Kim, Reuters)
- KJU reopened a key cross-border communication channel with SK for the first time in nearly two years as the rivals explored the possibility of sitting down and talking after months of acrimony and fears of war. (Hyung-Jin Kim, AP)
- NK reopened a border hotline with SK, restoring a channel of direct dialogue and signaling a possible thaw in relations between two Koreas. (Choe Sang-hun, NYT)
- The Gangwon provincial government, organizer of the upcoming Winter Olympic Games, has expressed an intention to send a cruise to a NK port to transport a delegation. (Yonhap)
- SK reaffirmed its readiness to host NK at the competition held south of the border, with Pyongyang expressing interest in participation. (Yonhap)
- SK and NK made contact on a re-established communication channel running through the truce village of Panmunjom on Wednesday. (UPI)
- NK state media announced that KJU had given the order to open the line and make the call. The trigger appeared to be the upcoming Winter Olympics in SK, where NK hopes to have its athletes represented. (Judith Vonberg, CNN)
- NK reopened the cross-border communication link at Panmunjeom, in response to SK's suggestion for high-level talks on its participation in Winter Olympics and other issues. (Kim Rahn, Korea Times)
- NK and SK both seem keen for the North to take part in the 2018 Winter Olympic Games in the South. But there are still hurdles to overcome. (BBC)

International:

- China is welcoming news of détente between NK and SK after the two sides agreed to re-establish contact after months of tensions. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- NK called SK on Wednesday on a hotline that had previously remained dormant for two years despite an astonishing tweet by Trump, boasting that his “nuclear button” was bigger than KJU's. (Nicola Smith, Telegraph)
- IOC on Wednesday welcomed the interest taken by the two Koreas in having talks on the North's participation in the upcoming Winter Games south of the border. (Yonhap)
- The top diplomats of SK and the US reaffirmed Wednesday that they will continue their joint diplomatic efforts to peacefully resolve the NK nuclear problem through "ironclad" coordination. (Yonhap)
- KJU seems to be seeking to weaken coordination among SK, US and China in applying sanctions on Pyongyang when he issued a New Year message, a high-profile defector said. (Yonhap)
- Amid NK’s strongest-ever nuclear bomb test and repeated missile launches — an unexpected, very tentative interest in peace seems to have broken out. What does this mean? (Foster Klug, AP)
- Trump's tweet taunting KJU over the relative strength of the two nations' nuclear arsenals set off a torrent of concern of Twitter. (Austin Ramzy, NYT)
- The UN is welcoming the reopening of a key cross-border communication channel between NK and SK. (AP)

- Trump's advisers don't seem to know how to persuade him not to stumble his way into a conflict with NK. And Trump's inability to coerce NK into giving up its nuclear weapons will only cause him to make even more outlandish threats. (Daniel W. Drezner, Washington Post)
- Trump has had enough foreign policy wins that he probably thinks his madman approach is working. But a central feature of the madman approach is that it appears to work well right up until the moment it backfires and turns to tragedy. (Aaron Blake, Washington Post)
- Trump boasted that he has a bigger and more powerful "nuclear button" than KJU does — but the president doesn't actually have a physical button. (Matthew Pennington, AP)
- Trump's presidency has helped usher in unprecedented risks on numerous fronts. Those 2018 Trumpian risks fall into three main categories: international security, American democracy and his dangerously unfit temperament. (Brian Klaas, CNN)
- Having a commander in chief who is erratic, ignorant, bellicose and illogical will only make the US harder to deal with NK issues in the future (Jennifer Rubin, Washington Post)
- Trump boasted over Twitter that his nuclear arsenal is bigger, more powerful and more functional than NK's in his latest salvo at KJU. (Sarah Kim, Joongang Ilbo)
- Trump said that NK's willingness to hold talks with SK could be "good news," although he also expressed skepticism. (Yonhap)
- Trump again raised the prospect of nuclear war with NK, boasting in strikingly playground terms that he commands a much bigger and powerful nukes than KJU (Peter Baker, Michael Tackett, NYT)
- Propaganda matters deeply for NK. It always has — and for reasons that Trump, with his bellicose tweets about nuclear buttons, clearly doesn't comprehend. (Benjamin R. Young, Washington Post)
- Trump tweeted Tuesday in response to KJU that his nuclear button is "bigger" and "more powerful" than Kim's. In reality, there is no nuclear button. (VOA)
- US has remained cautious about possible talks between the two Koreas after KJU expressed his willingness to send a delegation to Winter Olympics (Yi Whan-woo, Korea Times)
- U.S. Ambassador to the UN Nikki Haley said the "civilized world" must remain vigilant against NK weapons development. "We will never accept a nuclear NK." (Steve Herman, VOA)
- US will continue to put "maximum pressure" on NK to force it to abandon its nuclear weapons program, the White House said amid the possibility of inter-Korean talks next week. (Yonhap)
- Nikki Haley warned NK against staging another missile test and said US would not take any talks between NK and SK seriously if they did not do something to get Pyongyang to give up nukes. (Rodrigo Campos, Christine Kim, Reuters)
- While Trump and KJU talked about a "nuclear button" on their desks, it takes a lot more than just pressing a button to launch a nuclear strike. (Zachary Cohen, Brian Todd, CNN)
- There are many other factors, including geography and military capabilities, that will matter more than tweets or the characteristics of leaders. And these factors reduce the likelihood of war. (Michael C. Horowitz and Elizabeth N. Saunders, Washington Post)
- The presence of NK officials and athletes at the games may calm jitters about potential missile tests or worse occurring during the events, which will be held just 50 miles from the DMZ. (Adam Taylor, Washington Post)

Prepared by James Park, HRNK Research Intern

———————————————

Thursday, January 4, 2018

Moon, Trump agree to suspend military drills during PyeongChang Olympics; S. Korea: No sign of imminent North Korean provocation; Taiwan investigates man over illegal North Korean oil sales

In North Korea:
Kim Jong Un's 2018 New Year's Speech: Self-Confidence After a Tough Year (38 North, 01/04/2018)
New kimchi culture reflects marketizing North Korea, warts and all (*Daily*NK, 01/04/2018)
North Korean test missile accidentally hit one of its own cities (Telegraph, 01/04/2018)

In South Korea:
FM reaffirms inter-Korean dialogue won't go separately from denuclearization efforts (Yonhap, 01/04/2018)
Koreans Turn Down the Volume (NYT, 01/04/2018)
Military gets ready for talks with North Korea (Korea Times, 01/04/2018)
Moon to hold press meeting on 2018 policies (Joongang Ilbo, 01/04/2018)
Most S. Koreans approve of North Korea's presence at PyeongChang Olympics (Yonhap, 01/04/2018)
NK offer boosts Moon's popularity (Korea Times, 01/04/2018)
Outgoing U.S. commander awarded medal for service in Korea (Yonhap, 01/04/2018)
Separation won't work (Joongang Ilbo, 01/04/2018)
SKorea's leader apologizes to ex-sex slaves over Japan deal (Washington Post, 01/04/2018)
South Korean president apologizes to Japan's sexual slavery victims over 2015 deal (UPI, 01/04/2018)
S. Korea: No sign of imminent North Korean provocation (UPI, 01/04/2018)
S. Korean military: No signs of N. Korea's imminent missile launch (Yonhap, 01/04/2018)
S. Korea opposed to 'freeze for freeze' option on N. Korean nukes: foreign ministry (Yonhap, 01/04/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
Hotline at DMZ is working but North is reluctant (Joongang Ilbo, 01/04/2018)
Koreas end contact via resumed hotline without agreement on talks (Yonhap, 01/04/2018)
Seoul open to discuss details of high-level talks with North Korea (Korea Times, 01/04/2018)
North Korea's Overture Raises Hopes, but Huge Obstacles Loom (NYT, 01/04/2018)

International:
A United Front Against North Korea (NYT, 01/04/2018)
As North and South Korea Begin to Talk, Trump Watches From Sidelines (NYT, 01/04/2018)
Chinese own five ships involved in illegal trade with Pyongyang: report (Korea Times, 01/04/2018)
Don't the South Koreans get a vote on war with the North? (Washington Post, 01/04/2018)
Expert says NK's dialogue overture will ease tensions, but cautions against excessive optimism (Yonhap, 01/04/2018)
Japan's Abe: N. Korea should change course, end nuke program (Washington Post, 01/04/2018)
Japan faces greatest danger since World War due to North Korea: PM (Reuters, 01/04/2018)

Mentally Unfit or Rational? White House, US Intelligence Differ on Kim Jong Un (VOA, 01/03/2018)
Moon, Trump agree to suspend military drills during PyeongChang Olympics (Korea Times, 01/04/2018)
Moon, Trump agree to delay joint military drills during PyeongChang Olympics (Yonhap, 01/04/2018)
Nuclear envoys of S. Korea, U.S., Japan share updates on N. Korea (Yonhap, 01/04/2018)
Offer of talks could be 'wedge,' says McMaster (Joongang Ilbo, 01/04/2018)
Pence defends Trump's tweets on N. Korea (Yonhap, 01/04/2018)
Seized vessel tied to China firm (Joongang Ilbo, 01/04/2018)
Sharp Reactions in Congress to Trump Tweet on North Korea (VOA, 01/03/2018)
Taiwan investigates man over illegal North Korean oil sales (Washington Post, 01/04/2018)
Taiwan releases man on bail in suspected North Korean oil transfer (Reuters, 01/04/2018)
Trump agrees to delay military exercise with South Korea until after Winter Olympics (Washington Post, 01/04/2018)
Trump hails potential Korea talks, credits his firm stance (Reuters, 01/04/2018)
Trump: Inter-Korean talks are 'good thing' (Yonhap, 01/04/2018)
Trump tells South Korean president that talks with North would be 'a good thing' (Guardian, 01/04/2018)
U.S. commander: Kim Jong Un's speech should be met with caution (UPI, 01/04/2018)
U.S. opposes South Korea funding for North Korea Olympians (UPI, 01/04/2018)
U.S. redesignates N. Korea as violator of religious freedom (Yonhap, 01/04/2018)
US Re-designates 10 Nations for Violations of Religious Freedom (VOA, 01/04/2018)
U.S. reluctant to comment on inter-Korean dialogue (Yonhap, 01/04/2018)
US, South Korea Delay Military Drills Until After Winter Olympics (VOA, 01/04/2018)
USFK chief warns against illusions about N. Korea's peace overture (Yonhap, 01/04/2018)
Washington convulses over Trump's 'button' (Joongang Ilbo, 01/04/2018)
Xi Jinping tells army not to fear death in show of China's military might (Guardian, 01/03/2018)

In North Korea:

- In his 2018 New Year's Speech, KJU acknowledges the effects of the toughest ever sanctions against NK but refuses to yield. (Ruediger Frank, 38 North)
- The gap between the rich and poor in NK is evident in all areas of life, like housing, jobs and medical care. And now, it is becoming more evident in a central aspect of Korean culture: making kimchi. (Seol Song Ah, DailyNK)
- NK accidentally misfired a test ballistic missile into one of its own cities in April last year, destroying an industrial complex. (Nicola Smith, Telegraph)

In South Korea:

- SK's top diplomat said that the country will maintain close coordination with the US in seeking dialogue with NK, and reaffirmed that inter-Korean talks will not go separately from the allies' joint denuclearization efforts. (Yonhap)
- While Trump began the new year with an apocalyptic Twitter outburst, Moon, like an adult, has tried to resume direct engagement with NK. It provided at least some hope for a peaceful resolution to the NK nuclear issue. (NYT)

- The restoration of the cross-border communication channel at Panmunjeom is fueling optimism that the two Koreas may soon reopen their military hotlines as well. (Yi Whan-woo, Korea Times)
- Moon will hold a press conference next week to personally lay out his administration's policy objectives for the new year. (Yonhap)
- Three out of four South Koreans are in favor of NK's participation in the upcoming Winter Olympics. (Yonhap)
- Moon's approval rating rose to 72.1 percent amid high expectations for the resumption of dialogue between the two Koreas. (Jun Ji-hye, Korea Times)
- The SK government awarded Lt. Gen. Thomas S. Vandal, the outgoing commander of the U.S. Eighth Army, a medal of merit for his contribution to the alliance. (Yonhap)
- If the government insists on scrapping or renegotiating the comfort women deal, Seoul-Tokyo relations will get worse. (Joongang Ilbo)
- Moon apologized to Korean women forced into sexual slavery by Japan's imperial army in WWII over what he called a flawed 2015 deal with Tokyo to settle long-running disputes over the issue. (Hyung-Jin Kim, AP)
- Moon has apologized to the victims of Japan's wartime sex enslavement over a controversial 2015 deal reached by Seoul and Tokyo to resolve the contentious historical issue. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- SK's Joint Chiefs of Staff says there is no sign of an imminent provocation from NK. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- SK's defense authorities said there has been no indication of an imminent missile test by NK, responding to U.S. news reports that NK appears to be preparing to fire another ICBM. (Yonhap)
- SK does not support the option of a so-called "freeze-for-freeze" that requires NK to stop its military weapons tests in return for the suspension of annual South Korean-U.S. joint military exercises. (Yonhap)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- One day after the restoration of a military hotline between the two Koreas at Panmunjom, no conversation has been held on possible talks leading up to Winter Olympics. (Lee Sung-eun, Joongang Ilbo)
- SK and NK closed contact via a reopened cross-border hotline without reaching an agreement as the North did not comment on Seoul's latest offer for high-level talks. (Yonhap)
- SK is ready to discuss issues over high-level talks with NK, including timing, place and agenda, a senior Ministry of Unification official said. (Yi Whan-woo, Korea Times)
- While most South Koreans favor dialogue and peaceful accommodation with NK, many also fear that hastily engaging and granting the North economic concessions would throw a lifetime to KJU. (Choe Sang-hun, NYT)

International:

- Trump needs to accept that NK will not give up its nuclear weapons as long as the Kim regime is in power. (Robert S. Litwak, NYT)

- While the two Koreas were gingerly reopening a border hotline, Trump was gleefully taunting KJU. This captured the challenge facing the Trump administration as SK embarked on fragile new talks with NK. (Mark Landler, NYT)
- Five vessels that are being investigated by the UN for being involved in illegal oil trade with NK ships in international waters were found to be owned by Chinese businessmen. (Choi Ha-young, Korea Times)
- NK is still a long way from being able to wage war against the continental US. If war begins, it's not heartland Americans who will pay the price. It's South Koreans. (Christian Caryl, Washington Post)
- Lankov cautioned against reading too much into the overture as a possible breakthrough to the current nuclear standoff, as the North will not give up its missile and nuclear programs under any circumstances. (Yonhap)
- NK should shift course and drop its nuclear program and missile tests to become a wealthier nation, Shinzo Abe said Thursday. (AP)
- The security situation facing Japan is the most perilous since WWII because of NK's "unacceptable" provocations, Abe said on Thursday and he vowed to bolster defenses to protect the Japanese people. (Reuters)
- Questions about Trump's latest tweets about NK appear to be exposing some possible rifts between the White House and the U.S. intelligence community over how best to read KJU. (Jeff Seldin, VOA)
- Moon and Trump agreed to delay their regular joint military drills during the Winter Olympic Games. (Bahk Eun-ji, Korea Times)
- Moon and Trump agreed to delay their countries' regular joint military exercises during the Winter Olympic Games to be held here next month. (Yonhap)
- SK's top envoy on NK nuclear issues has talked to his American and Japanese counterparts to share the latest news about the security situation on the Korean Peninsula. (Yonhap)
- Trump's National Security Adviser H.R. McMaster said the purpose of KJU's New Year address was to "try to drive a wedge" between Seoul and Washington. (Lee Sung-eun, Joongang Ilbo)
- Vice President Mike Pence defended Trump's fiery tweets at NK, saying the commander-in-chief's clear messaging helped increase pressure on the regime over its nuclear weapons program. (Yonhap)
- A Panama-flagged vessel suspected of illicitly transferring oil products to NK and seized by SK authorities last week was operated by a Chinese company with links to a blacklisted NK shipping company. (Yoo Jee-hye, Sarah Kim, Joongang Ilbo)
- Trump's tweet warning KJU set off a series of sharp reactions on Capitol Hill as the Senate gaveled in for its first day of business in 2018. (Michael Bowman, VOA)
- Prosecutors in Taiwan said they're investigating a man suspected of involvement in illegal oil sales to NK. (Kelvin Chan, AP)
- A court in Taiwan has released on bail a man prosecutors allege to have made false declarations in the case of a Hong Kong-flagged tanker suspected of transferring oil to NK in violation of international sanctions. (Reuters)
- Trump and Moon have agreed to postpone the sprawling joint military exercise their nations hold each year until after the Winter Olympics. (Dan Lamothe and Simon Denyer, Washington Post)
- Trump called potential talks between NK and SK "a good thing" and the SK presidency said he had agreed there would be no military drills with SK during next month's Winter Olympics. (David Brunnstrom, Christine Kim, Reuters)

- Trump said that resumed dialogue between SK and NK was a "good thing" and took credit for making it happen. (Yonhap)
- Trump told Moon in a telephone call that he hoped inter-Korean talks would lead to good results and that he would send a high-level delegation, including members of his family, to the Winter Olympics. (Reuters)
- The top U.S. military commander in SK said KJU may have an ulterior motive in offering talks and reconciliation in his New Year's speech. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- US is opposed to any move by the SK government to extend financial support to the NK national team during the Winter Olympics. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- US has redesignated NK as a violator of religious freedom for the 17th consecutive year, the State Department said. (Yonhap)
- US re-designated 10 countries, including Myanmar, China, Iran and NK, as "countries of particular concern" for having engaged in or tolerated violations of religious freedom. (VOA)
- US State Department has made no particular comments on the latest reopening of a hotline between the two Koreas, just saying inter-Korean dialogue and NK's nuclear program cannot be handled separately. (Yonhap)
- US and SK have decided to delay joint military exercises until after the Pyeongchang Winter Olympics next month. (Carla Babb, VOA)
- The commanding general of U.S. Forces Korea (USFK) stressed the importance of combat readiness and unity among regional powers to cope with NK's recent peace offensive. (Yonhap)
- White House downplayed concerns about Trump's tweets and said the "people of this country should be concerned about the mental fitness of the leader of NK." (Sarah Kim, Joongang Ilbo)
- Xi tells armed forces to be 'capable of combat and sure to win' in move designed to bolster his political standing. (Tom Phillips, Guardian)

Prepared by James Park, HRNK Research Intern

——————————————————

Friday, January 5, 2018

North Korea accepts offer from South to meet for peace talks; China tightens North Korea trade limits under UN sanctions; No. of defections by North Koreans falls 21 pct in 2017

In North Korea:

Kim Jong Un follows history of empty promises in annual New Year's address (*Daily*NK, 01/05/2018)
North Korea: Has diplomacy already peaked for the year? (BBC, 01/05/2018)
North Korea Likely Preparing for New Rocket Engine Test at Sohae (38 North, 01/04/2018)
North Korea opens new ski resort amid Olympic optimism (BBC, 01/05/2018)
North Korea Stokes Anti-China Sentiment in Response to Tougher Sanctions (RFA, 01/04/2018)
Uber in North Korea? On-demand taxi services on the rise (*Daily*NK, 01/05/2018)

In South Korea:
Moon, Trump agree to delay joint military drills during PyeongChang Olympics (Joongang Ilbo, 01/05/2018)
Moon, Trump agree to delay joint military drills during PyeongChang Olympics (Yonhap, 01/05/2018)
No. of defections by North Koreans falls 21 pct in 2017: data (Yonhap, 01/05/2018)
Nuke envoys of S. Korea, Japan to meet ahead of inter-Korean talks (Yonhap, 01/05/2018)
PyeongChang Olympics the key agenda for inter-Korean dialogue: Cheong Wa Dae (Yonhap, 01/05/2018)
S. Korea hopes inter-Korean talks will pave the way for better ties: minister (Yonhap, 01/05/2018)
S. Korea, U.S. affirm strong alliance amid inter-Korean dialogue mood (Yonhap, 01/05/2018)
S. Korea, U.S. to start joint military exercise in late April: source (Yonhap, 01/05/2018)
Trump, South Korea's Moon agree to no military drills during Olympics (CNN, 01/04/2018)
Washington, Seoul agree to delay joint exercises (Joongang Ilbo, 01/05/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
A two-way street (Joongang Ilbo, 01/05/2018)
Cautious optimism grows over inter-Korean ties, nuclear deadlock (Yonhap, 01/05/2018)
Is it a trap to talk? (Joongang Ilbo, 01/05/2018)
Koreas agree to hold high-level talks next week (Yonhap, 01/05/2018)
Koreas communicating via hotline for talks over Winter Olympics (Yonhap, 01/05/2018)
Korea talks set for next week, with low expectations and lots of wariness (Washington Post, 01/05/2018)
Koreas to hold high-level talks Tuesday (Korea Times, 01/05/2018)
North Korea accepts Olympics talks offer, says South (BBC, 01/05/2018)
North Korea accepts offer to hold high-level talks next week (Joongang Ilbo, 01/05/2018)
North Korea accepts offer from South to meet for peace talks (CNN, 01/04/2018)
North Korea accepts offer from South to meet for talks ahead of the Winter Olympics (Telegraph, 01/05/2018)
North Korea agrees to talks after U.S., South Korea postpone military drills (Reuters, 01/05/2018)
North Korea agrees to talks with South at Panmunjom (UPI, 01/05/2018)
North and South Korea Agree to Border Talks Next Week (NYT, 01/05/2018)
North Korea's offer: Is this a trap? (Korea Times, 01/05/2018)
Pyongyang will attend talks on Tuesday (Joongang Ilbo, 01/05/2018)
Time to be careful (Joongang Ilbo, 01/05/2018)

International:
Chinese delegate calls deferred U.S.-South Korea drills a 'freeze-for-freeze' (UPI, 01/05/2018)
China promises to 'deal seriously' with sanctions violators (Washington Post, 01/05/2018)
China tightens North Korea trade limits on oil, steel products (Yonhap, 01/05/2018)
China tightens North Korea trade limits under UN sanctions (Washington Post, 01/05/2018)
Is Donald Trump's North Korea strategy working? (CNN, 01/05/2018)
Is Trump making himself irrelevant on North Korea? (Washington Post, 01/04/2018)
Let the Games begin? Why Kim Jong Un might be interested (Washington Post, 01/05/2018)
Support for NK's Olympic delegation may breach world sanctions (Korea Times, 01/05/2018)
The CDC wants to gently prepare people for (an unlikely) nuclear war (CNN, 01/05/2018)
U.S-Korea trade talks pit pickup trucks against nuclear threat (Reuters, 01/05/2018)

U.S. redesignates N. Korea as violator of religious freedom (Yonhap, 01/05/2018)
U.S. says inter-Korean talks would be limited to Olympics (Yonhap, 01/05/2018)
U.S. to Start Korean Trade Talks Amid Rising Tensions (NYT, 01/05/2018)

In North Korea:

- NK residents are not easily moved by New Year's overtures to 'improving the lives of the people,' seeing the yearly address as proof of the 'history of lies' of the Kim family. (Seol Song Ah, DailyNK)
- The first inter-Korean talks since 2015 are due to take place next week, but the optimism surrounding them could be fleeting (Ankit Panda, BBC)
- Media reports suggest that NK is undertaking preparations to launch its new Kwangmyongsong-5 Earth-observation satellite in the near future, possibly from a mobile transporter-erector-launcher (TEL). (38 North)
- NK says it has completed construction of a winter sports resort amid proposed talks to secure the country's attendance at the Winter Olympics in neighbouring SK. (BBC)
- NK authorities are stirring up anti-China sentiment among ordinary citizens through conferences and lecture sessions as the closed, authoritarian country's economy bears the brunt of tough new economic sanctions supported by its longtime ally. (RFA)
- On-demand taxi services have recently been gaining popularity in major NK cities. The price to summon a taxi by phone is reportedly higher than the base fare for hailing a taxi, but many are happy to pay for the added convenience. (Seol Song Ah, DailyNK)

In South Korea:

- Moon and Trump agreed Thursday to delay annual bilateral joint military exercises to ensure the safety and success of the Winter Olympics, which kick off next month. (Sarah Kim, Joongang Ilbo)
- Moon and Trump agreed Thursday to delay their countries' regular joint military exercises during the Winter Olympic Games to be held here next month. (Byun Duk-kun, Yonhap)
- The number of North Koreans defecting to SK declined 21 percent in 2017 from the previous year. The drop comes as NK has been strengthening border control. (Yonhap)
- The top nuclear envoys of SK and Japan will meet to discuss NK's nuclear issue ahead of the upcoming inter-Korean talks on NK's possible participation in the Winter Olympics. (Yonhap)
- SK and NK may discuss ways to improve ties but only after they first settle the issue of the North's participation in the PyeongChang Winter Olympics. (Yonhap)
- SK's unification minister expressed hope that next week's high-level talks with NK could pave the way for an improvement in long-stalled inter-Korean ties. (Yonhap)
- The defense chiefs of SK and US agreed Friday to continue close cooperation for a nuclear-free peninsula in the face of NK's recent peace gesture. (Yonhap)
- SK and US defense authorities have already set a schedule for this year's Key Resolve combined exercise. (Yonhap)
- Trump and Moon have agreed not to hold joint military drills during the Winter Olympic Games in February. (Stella Ko, Angela Dewan, Barbara Starr, CNN)
- Moon and Trump agreed to delay annual bilateral joint military exercises to ensure the safety and success of the Winter Olympics, which kick off next month. (Sarah Kim, Joongang Ilbo)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- The first high-level inter-Korean meeting in two years must be used to create a momentum for solving the NK nuclear problem. The two sides must restore mutual trust first. (Joongang Ilbo)
- The two Koreas' agreement to hold high-level talks, coupled with US-ROK delaying their joint military exercises, raised hopes for reduced tensions and possible progress in efforts to resolve the NK nuclear standoff. (Yonhap)
- Before moving to wider economic concessions, however, Moon needs to think about what it seeks in return. Unrequited support for the regime would not only violate the multilateral sanctions regime, but send the wrong signal. (Stephan Haggard, Joongang Ilbo)
- SK and NK agreed Friday to hold high-level talks next week to discuss Pyongyang's potential participation in Winter Olympics and ways to improve ties. (Yonhap)
- SK and NK began the third day of their contact via the recently reopened border hotline as they are seeking to hold talks to discuss the North's potential participation in Winter Olympics. (Yonhap)
- NK and SK are due to hold their first official talks in more than two years, as both sides dial down tensions ahead of next month's Winter Olympics, but experts warned not to expect too much from the fragile process. (Simon Denyer, Washington Post)
- NK accepted SK's offer to hold high-level talks to discuss the North's participation in the Winter Olympics and ways of improving inter-Korean relations. (Jun Ji-hye, Korea Times)
- NK has accepted an offer to attend high-level talks next week. (BBC)
- NK has accepted SK's proposal to hold a high-level meeting next Tuesday near the border to discuss its participation in the Winter Olympics and other issues "related to the improvement" of South-North relations (Lee Sung-eun, Joongang Ilbo)
- NK has accepted SK's proposal for official talks, in what will be the first high-level contact to take place between the two countries in more than two years. (Euan McKirdy, Taehoon Lee, CNN)
- NK and SK agreed on Friday to hold border talks next week amid signs of the first major thaw in relations between the two nations in two years. (Nicola Smith, Telegraph)
- NK agreed to hold official talks with SK, the first in more than two years, hours after US and SK delayed a military exercise amid a standoff over the North's nuclear and missile programs. (Christine Kim, Reuters)
- NK accepted a SK offer of talks, to be held on Tuesday, a month before the 2018 Pyeongchang Winter Olympics. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- Moon said that he would take a tougher line with NK than his progressive predecessors, vowing to strengthen the military even as the two Koreas agreed to start high-level talks next week. (Choe Sang-hun, NYT)
- Moon will have to ensure NK will respond in concrete ways to both SK needs and joint ROK-U.S. needs. This will be complex, but is exactly what two Koreas should have been doing for the past decade. (Stephen Costello, Korea Times)
- NK has accepted SK's proposal to hold a high-level meeting next Tuesday near the border to discuss its participation in Winter Olympics and other issues "related to the improvement" of South-North relations (Lee Sung-eun, Joongang Ilbo)

- Moon must be extra careful in responding to Kim's latest peace offensive. The proposal for inter-Korean talks to dispatch a NK delegation to the Olympic Games is too tempting to refuse. (Bae Myung-bok, Joongang Ilbo)

International:

- Chinese government officials are welcoming news of the postponement of U.S.-ROK military exercises following a phone call between Trump and Moon. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- China's government promised to "deal seriously" with violators of U.N. sanctions on NK after a SK newspaper said Chinese-owned ships registered abroad regularly delivered oil. (AP)
- China's commerce ministry and customs authorities said they've tightened trade restrictions with NK, banning outbound shipments of steel goods and limiting the export of oil products. (Yonhap)
- China on Friday tightened limits on critically important energy supplies to NK and stepped up other trade restrictions under intensified U.N. nuclear sanctions. (Joe McDonald, AP)
- To the extent that NK anxieties are due to US-inspired sanctions, Trump has a point. But Trump's unpredictability may also have contributed to Pyongyang's decision. (John Everard, CNN)
- As Trump's first year in office draws to a close, the president is starting to look like a bystander in the situation on the Korean Peninsula. (Adam Taylor, Washington Post)
- Why, after a year marked by the test of his country's most powerful nuclear bomb to date and a record number of missile launches, is KJU starting off 2018 by proposing talks across the DMZ? (Eric Talmadge, AP)
- SK's pledge to support a NK delegation likely to participate in the Winter Olympics has drawn controversy over its possible breach of international sanctions against the nuclear-armed country. (Choi Ha-young, Korea Times)
- It is absolutely impossible to mention nuclear war without freaking people out, but the US Centers for Disease Control and Prevention is trying to gently prepare for the possibility. (AJ Willingham, CNN)
- Talks starting Friday to amend a U.S.-ROK trade deal must balance Trump's domestic agenda against the need to contain a nuclear armed NK and will have to be completed swiftly. (Lesley Wroughton, Hyunjoo Jin, Reuters)
- US has redesignated NK as a violator of religious freedom for the 17th consecutive year. (Yonhap)
- US understands that possible talks between SK and NK would be limited to discussing the upcoming Winter Olympics, not the nuclear weapons program of the communist regime. (Yonhap)
- Trump and SK officials will meet on Friday to begin formally renegotiating a free-trade pact that has served as a source of conflict between the two allies. (Ana Swanson, NYT)

Prepared by James Park, HRNK Research Intern

———————————————————

Saturday, January 6, 2018

Two Koreas to continue discussions on details ahead of next week's high-level talks; Trump hopes inter-Korean talks go beyond Olympics

In North Korea:
Analysts: North Korea had been preparing rocket engine test (UPI, 01/05/18)
Kim Jong Un follows history of empty promises in annual New Year's address (Daily NK, 01/05/18)
N.K. scholar dismisses impact of U.N. sanctions, claims sustained economic growth (Yonhap, 01/05/18)
North Korea agrees to talks with South Korea: Video (CNN, 01/05/18)
North Korea official says likely to participate in Winter Olympics: Kyodo (Reuters, 01/06/18)
North Korea opens new ski resort amid Olympic optimism (BBC, 01/05/18)
North Korea: Has diplomacy already peaked for the year? (BBC, 01/05/18)
Reports: North Korea says likely to join Olympics in South (AP, 01/06/18)
Uber in North Korea? On-demand taxi services on the rise (Daily NK, 01/05/18)
What to Read About North Korea (NYT, 01/05/18)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
(5th LD) Two Koreas to continue discussions on details ahead of next week's high-level talks (Yonhap, 01/06/18)
Koreas Will Meet for Talks Next Week in Small Breakthrough (AP, 01/05/18)
N. Korea accepts offer to talks with S. Korea: Video (CNN, 01/06/18)
N. Korea likely to join in PyeongChang Olympics: Kyodo (Yonhap, 01/05/18)
North Korea 'likely' to attend Olympics in South, says official (BBC, 01/06/18)
North Korea 'likely' to join Winter Olympics, says regime official (AFP, 01/06/18)
North Korea Agrees To Talks With South (BBC, 01/05/18)

International:
(LEAD) Diplomatic efforts on N. Korea backed by military option: Tillerson (Yonhap, 01/05/18)
'Strong' military action against North Korea remains an option, Tillerson says (CNN, 01/05/18)
Asia Society Panel on the Alliance and North Korea (PIIE, 01/06/18)
N. Korean restaurants in China face closure soon (Yonhap, 01/06/18)
North Korea's trade with Mongolia at record high in 2017 (Yonhap, 01/05/18)
The Significance of Small Gestures: The Decision on Military Exercises (PIIE, 01/05/18)
Transcript: CNN's exclusive interview with Rex Tillerson (CNN, 01/05/18)
Trump hopes inter-Korean talks go beyond Olympics (Yonhap, 01/06/18)
Trump on Korea Talks: 'I Hope It Works Out' (VOA, 01/06/18)
Trump Says He'd Be Open to Talking With North Korean Leader (AP, 01/06/18)
Trump says he's open to talks with North Korea, hopes rogue nation participates in Winter Olympics (Washington Post, 01/06/18)
Trump says he would talk with Kim Jong Un: Video (CNN, 01/06/18)
Trump takes credit for Olympics talks between North and South Korea (Guardian, 01/06/18)

Trump's tweets rattle the globe, but aides say North Korea policy is carefully calibrated (Washington Post, 01/05/18)
U.S.-Korea trade talks pit pickup trucks against nuclear threat (Reuters, 01/06/18)
VOA Interview With Senator Ben Cardin - Full Transcript (VOA, 01/05/18)

In North Korea:

- NK is more likely to have been preparing the test of a rocket engine at its Sohae satellite launching facility than a new Earth-observation satellite. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- During his 2018 New Year's address, KJU mentioned plans to 'bring improvements to the lives of the people' this year. Similar to last year's address, he mentioned the goal in the context of building up the country's industries – a point made repeatedly since the beginning of his rise to power 6 years ago. (Seol Song Ah, Daily NK)
- A Pyongyang scholar has insisted that the N. Korean economy remains on the path to sustained growth despite toughened international sanctions. (Yonhap)
- NK has accepted SK's proposal for official talks in what will be the first high-level contact between the two countries in more than two years. (CNN)
- NK's representative at the IOC said the country expects to send a figure skating pair to compete at the Pyeongchang Winter Olympic Games in SK next month. (Reuters)
- NK says it has completed construction of a winter sports resort amid proposed talks to secure the country's attendance at the Winter Olympics in neighbouring SK. (BBC)
- The first inter-Korean talks since 2015 are due to take place next week, but the optimism surrounding them could be fleeting. (BBC)
- NK's IOC representative said his country is likely to compete in figure skating in next month's Winter Olympics in SK. (AP)
- On-demand taxi services have recently been gaining popularity in major North Korean cities. (Seol Song Ah, Daily NK)
- In The New York Times Book Review, Nicholas Kristof writes about the best fiction and nonfiction to read for glimpses into the secretive world of NK. (NYT)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- Sk and Nk will continue their discussions for a second day on Sunday to arrange the details of high-level talks next week over the North's potential participation in the PyeongChang Winter Olympics. (Yonhap)
- The rival Koreas will sit down for their first formal talks in more than two years next week to find ways to cooperate on the Winter Olympics in the South and to improve their abysmal ties. (AP)
- NK has accepted SK's proposal for official talks, in what will be the first high-level contact to take place between the two countries in more than two years. (CNN)
- Nk is likely to join in the upcoming PyeongChang Winter Olympics to be held in SK. (Yonhap)
- A N. Korean Olympic official has said that his country is "likely to participate" in next month's Winter Olympic Games. (BBC)
- NK's Olympic representative has reportedly said the reclusive nation is "likely to participate" in next month's Winter Games in SK. (AFP)

- NK accepts SK's invitation to the first high level talks between the two nations in more than two years. (BBC)

International:

- US Secretary of State Rex Tillerson said Friday that military action remains an option should diplomatic efforts fail to end NK's nuclear weapons program. (Yonhap)
- In mid-December I participated on a panel at the Asia Society in San Francisco on the theme of "Trump, Moon and the 'Ironclad' Alliance: Responding to North Korea's Nuclear Ambitions." (Stephan Haggard, PIIE)
- Tough military action against NK remains an option if diplomatic efforts fail to end its pursuit of nuclear weapons. (Nicole Gaouette, Elise Labott, CNN)
- A large number of N. Korean restaurants operating in China are expected to close soon, as the Jan. 9 deadline imposed by Beijing in accordance with the Un sanctions nears. (Yonhap)
- Trade between NK and Mongolia reached a record high last year due to a surge in the North's tobacco imports. (Yonhap)
- The chance that the Trump administration would unilaterally cancel exercises altogether remains close to zero, and certainly in the absence of some sign of willingness on the part of NK to discuss the nuclear issue. (Stephan Haggard, PIIE)
- There was big news last night about the North and South arranging talks for next week. (CNN)
- US President Trump said that he hopes South and North Korea discuss more than just the Olympics when they meet for rare high-level talks next week. (Yonhap)
- US President Trump says he hopes the newly arranged talks between North and SK will go "beyond the Olympics" and promised the US will take part "at the appropriate time." (VOA)
- President Trump says he's open to talking with the N. Korean leader he's called "Rocket Man" and is hoping some good can come from upcoming talks between the Koreas. (AP)
- President Trump said he remains open to direct talks with NK's regime over its nuclear program and added that he hopes the rogue Asian nation participates in the Winter Olympics to be held in SK next month. (David Nakamura, Washington Post)
- During a media briefing at Camp David, President Trump said he would be willing to talk to NK's leader KJU, but not without preconditions. (CNN)
- Donald Trump said he was open to talking to KJU and hoped good could come from negotiations between NK and SK over this year's Winter Olympics in Pyeongchang. (Guardian)
- President Trump's taunting tweet this week raising the specter of nuclear war with NK sparked fresh concerns in the Pentagon, about whether a carefully calibrated strategy to compel the rogue state into negotiations can survive the impulses of both countries' leaders. (Philip Rucker, Greg Jaffe, Washington Post)
- The Korea trade talks will have to strike a balance between Trump's domestic agenda and the need to contain a nuclear-armed NK. (Lesley Wroughton, Hyunjoo Jin, Reuters)
- Senator Ben Cardin, (D-MD), the highest ranking Democrat on the Senate Foreign Relations Committee spoke to VOA contributor Greta Van Susteren about Iran and NK. (VOA)

Prepared by Huiwon Yun, HRNK Legal Research Intern

———————————————————

Sunday, January 7, 2018

Trump says he would 'absolutely' talk to North Korea's Kim on phone; N.K. picks top point man on inter-Korean ties as chief delegate to Tuesday's talks; UN envoy says no change in US position on North Korea talks

In North Korea:
N. Korean media urges stronger inter-Korean cooperation ahead of bilateral talks (Yonhap, 01/06/18)
North Korea 'likely' to attend Olympics in South, says official (BBC, 01/06/18)
North Korea calls for inter-Korea cooperation ahead of talks (Korea Times, 01/07/18)
Official says North Korea likely to join PyeongChang (Korea Times, 01/07/18)
What's behind Kim Jong-un's peace overture? (Korea Times, 01/07/18)

In South Korea:
Lessons from Roh's U.S. policy (Joongang Ilbo, 01/07/18)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
(LEAD) N.K. picks top point man on inter-Korean ties as chief delegate to Tuesday's talks (Yonhap, 01/06/18)
'Principled approach' needed in inter-Korean talks (Korea Times, 01/07/18)
A 'super week' lies ahead (Joongang Ilbo, 01/07/18)
Both sides agree on dialogue delegations (Joongang Ilbo, 01/07/18)
I have no answers. Do you? (Korea Times, 01/07/18)
Ministry with 'intractable' task of reuniting North and South Korea (CNN, 01/06/18)
North Korea's point-man to lead inter-Korean talks (Korea Times, 01/07/18)
South and North Korea's unification chiefs to lead inter-Korean talks (UPI, 01/07/18)

International:
How U.S. Intelligence Agencies Underestimated North Korea (NYT, 01/06/18)
Jimmy Carter's role for peace (Korea Times, 01/07/18)
Nikki Haley: Trump aimed to 'keep Kim on his toes' with 'nuclear button' tweet (Guardian, 01/07/18)
Nuclear envoys of China, Japan visit Seoul (Korea Times, 01/07/18)
Trump is about to put his mark on the US nuclear arsenal (CNN, 01/07/18)
Trump on North Korea: 'I always believe in talking' (CNN, 01/06/18)
Trump says he'd be open to talking with North Korean leader (AP, 01/06/18)
Trump says he would 'absolutely' talk to North Korea's Kim on phone (Reuters, 01/07/18)
Trump Tweet on Nuclear Button Keeps Kim Jong Un 'on His Toes': Haley (Reuters, 01/07/18)
Trump willing to talk with Kim if conditions are set (Joongang Ilbo, 01/07/18)

Trump's Twitter Threats Put American Credibility on the Line (NYT, 01/07/18)
Trump: 'Great Thing for the World' if Korean Talks Make Progress (VOA, 01/06/18)
UN envoy says no change in US position on North Korea talks (AP, 01/07/18)
US adds platform for stealth jets to Pacific (CNN, 01/06/18)
US Ambassador Haley: N. Korea's Nuclear Threat Remains 'Very Dangerous' (VOA, 01/07/18)

In North Korea:

- North Korea's state media on Sunday called for inter-Korean cooperation as the two Koreas are set to hold their first formal talks in more than two years early this week. (Yonhap)
- A North Korean Olympic official has said that his country is "likely to participate" in next month's Winter Olympic Games. (BBC)
- NK's state media called for inter-Korean cooperation Sunday ahead of bilateral high-level talks this week. (Rachel Lee ,Korea Times)
- NK's representative to the IOC has reportedly said his country expects to take part in the 2018 PyeongChang Winter Olympics. (Baek Byung-yeul, Korea Times)
- "Ahead of the proposed inter-Korean dialogue, the mood is upbeat. " (Kim Jae-kyoung, Korea Times)

In South Korea:

- Shocked by the briefing, Roh gave up his anti-American sentiment and turned toward pro. (Kang Chan-ho, Joongang Ilbo)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- NK notified the South that it will send a five-member delegation led by Ri Son-gwon, point man on inter-Korean affairs, to high-level talks to be held this week. (Yonhap)
- Kim's overture does not mean he is changing his strategy, experts say. (Kim Jae-kyoung, Korea Times)
- NK has presented us the names of the members of its delegation for an inter-Korean meeting to discuss its participation in the upcoming PyeongChang Winter Olympics and other urgent issues. (Joongang Ilbo)
- North-South relations leaders will focus on upcoming Olympics (Lee Sung-eun, Joongang Ilbo)
- I have been told many times that Koreans outside of Korea worry more about the dangers of war than Koreans in Korea. (Chang Se-moon, Korea Times)
- On Tuesday, in a building along the border between North and South Korea, negotiators will sit down face to face for the first time in more than two years. (James Griffiths, CNN)
- NK's Committee for the Peaceful Reunification of Korea (CPRK) Chairman Ri Sun-gwon will spearhead its five-member delegation for high-level talks with Seoul. (Yi Whan-woo, Korea Times)
- South and North Korea's top unification officials will lead the high-level meeting Tuesday aimed at arranging the North's participation in the Pyeongchang Winter Olympics. (Jennie Oh, UPI)

International:

- At the start of Trump's presidency, American intelligence agencies told the new administration that while NK had built the bomb, there was still ample time to slow or stop its development of a missile capable of hitting an American city with a nuclear warhead. (David E. Sanger, William J. Broad, NYT)
- The UN recently placed new sanctions on NK, the US independently sanctioned two N.Korean officials, and Pyongyang called the UN sanctions an "act of war". (Chi Wang, Korea Times)
- Trump's tweet taunting N. Korean leader KJU over the size of his "nuclear button" was meant to "keep Kim on his toes", the US ambassador to the UN said on Sunday. (Martin Pengelly, Guardian)
- The top nuclear envoys of China and Japan have been visiting SK since last week, ahead of the scheduled high-level talks between Seoul and Pyongyang. (Yi Whan-woo, Korea Times)
- The first comprehensive review of US nuclear forces is shaping up as President Trump's signature nuclear weapons initiative in the face of a growing N. Korean nuclear threat. (Barbara Starr, CNN)
- President Trump told reporters Saturday at Camp David that he's open to talking with N. Korean leader KJU. (Daniella Diaz, CNN)
- President Trump, shelving comparisons about the size of a "nuclear button," said he is open to talking with the N. Korean leader he's called "Little Rocket Man" and hopes some progress results from upcoming talks between the Koreas. (Jill Colvin, AP)
- US President Trump said he would "absolutely" be willing to talk on the phone to N. Korean leader KJU and that he hopes a positive development results from talks between NK and SK. (James Oliphant, Reuters)
- US President Trump's tweet about having a bigger nuclear button than N. Korean leader KJU's has kept Kim "on his toes" and makes clear the risks of a nuclear standoff. (Reuters)
- US president takes credit for bringing Pyongyang to the table (Lee Sung-eun, Joongang Ilbo)
- Since the first of the year, President Trump has attacked a variety of countries in Twitter posts, urging protesters to overthrow the Iranian government, threatening to blow up NK (Steven Erlanger, NYT)
- US President Trump says he hopes the newly arranged talks between North and South Korea will go "beyond the Olympics" and promised the US will take part "at the appropriate time." (VOA)
- President Trump's UN ambassador says the administration hasn't changed its conditions regarding talks with NK amid growing tensions over the North's nuclear and missile programs. (AP)
- The fifth-generation fighter jets are seen as a major advantage for the US in any contingencies involving NK as they are undetectable by Pyongyang's radars. (Brad Lendon, CNN)
- The US ambassador to the UN, Nikki Haley, says it is "good for the US" that North and South Korea are set to engage in high-level talks, but warned Pyongyang's nuclear weapons ambitions still pose a serious threat to the world. (Ken Bredemeier, VOA)

Prepared by Huiwon Yun, HRNK Legal Research Intern

———————————————

Monday, January 8, 2018

S. Korea seeks to discuss divided families, easing tensions at inter-Korean talks; Six North Koreans found at sea seek repatriation

In North Korea:
Call for safety regulations after fatal tractor crash (DailyNK, 01/08/2018)
Cryptocurrency may be getting quietly channeled to North Korea university: report (Reuters, 01/08/2018)
It's Kim Jong-un's 34th birthday - but North Koreans are not celebrating (Telegraph, 01/08/2018)
N. Korea marks Kim Jong-un's birthday low key (Korea Times, 01/08/2018)
N. Korea opens new ski resort (Yonhap. 01/08/2018)
North Korea slams U.S. despite Trump's appeasing words (Yonhap, 01/08/2018)
North Korean leader Kim Jong-un 'has kidney problem' (Korea Times, 01/08/2018)
Pyongyang suggested Olympic talks in Dec. (Joongang Ilbo, 01/08/2018)
Who is Kim Jong Un? Separating myth from fact (CNN, 01/07/2018)

In South Korea:
Coast Guard rescues N. Korean in East Sea (Yonhap, 01/08/2018)
First steps (Joongang Ilbo, 01/08/2018)
Nuke envoys of S. Korea, Japan vow cooperation for peaceful resolution of N.K. issue (Yonhap, 01/08/2018)
Over half of S. Koreans agree on supporting N.K. Olympic group's travel expenses (Yonhap, 01/08/2018)
Remember what's at stake (Joongang Ilbo, 01/08/2018)
Seoul could halt sanctions to let North join Games (Joongang Ilbo, 01/08/2018)
Seoul will ask Tokyo to revisit 2015 deal (Joongang Ilbo, 01/08/2018)
S. Korea hopes to drive peace momentum beyond PyeongChang: FM (Yonhap, 01/08/2018)
South Korea moves to expand remit of planned talks with North (Telegraph, 01/08/2018)
South Korea sees speedy trade talks with U.S., but 'uphill battle' ahead (Reuters, 01/08/2018)
S. Korea seeks to discuss divided families, easing tensions at inter-Korean talks (Yonhap, 01/08/2018)
S. Korean spy agency to regularly brief security ministries on N. Korea (Yonhap, 01/08/2018)
'We may see progress in dialogue with Pyongyang' (Joongang Ilbo, 01/08/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
Inter-Korea talks will focus on Olympics (Korea Times, 01/08/2018)
North and South Korea to Talk About Olympic Cooperation (VOA, 01/08/2018)
Seoul and Pyongyang set the time for first inter-Korean talks in 25 months (UPI. 01/08/2018)
Six North Koreans found at sea seek repatriation (UPI, 01/08/2018)

International:
A new Korean war would kill more U.S. military personnel than you might think (Washington Post, 01/08/2018)

AP Explains: What to expect from North-South Korean talks (Washington Post, 01/08/2018)
Can these two North Korean ice skaters help bring about a diplomatic thaw? (Washington Post, 01/08/2018)
Experts: N. Korea could be using inter-Korean talks to reach Washington (UPI, 01/08/2018)
IOC extends deadline for North Koreans to register for Olympics (CNN, 01/08/2018)
Newt Gingrich: Differing approaches to North Korea are working (UPI. 01/08/2018)
Nikki Haley on Trump's 'nuclear button' tweet: He must 'keep Kim on his toes' (CNN, 01/08/2018)
North Korea crisis in 300 words (BBC, 01/08/2018)
Olympics: IOC extends North Korea deadline for Pyeongchang Games (Reuters, 01/08/2018)
Olympics keeps 'door open' for NKorea at Pyeongchang Games (Washington Post, 01/08/2018)
Pope, in 'state of world' speech, urges dialogue in Korea, nuclear ban (Reuters, 01/08/2018)
Pope urges efforts to rebuild trust in North Korea, Syria (Washington Post, 01/08/2018)
Pope Urges Efforts to Rebuild Trust in North Korea, Syria (VOA, 01/08/2018)
U.S. wants diplomatic solution to N.K. nuclear crisis: CIA chief (Yonhap, 01/08/2018)
Trump has to keep N.K. leader on his toes: U.S. envoy (Yonhap, 01/08/2018)
Winter Olympics 2018: 'A tension reducer' for North and South Korea (CNN, 01/08/2018)

In North Korea:

- A tractor being delivered as a gift from KJU was recently involved in a deadly accident in Ryanggang Province, resulting in the deaths of the driver and all passengers. (Kang Mi Jin, DailyNK)
- A cybersecurity company said it has found software that appears to install code for mining cryptocurrency and sends any mined coins to a server at a NK university, the latest sign that NK may be searching for new ways to infuse its economy with cash. (Joyce Lee, Reuters)
- KJU is believed to be marking his 34th birthday on Monday, but without the expected fanfare of a leader known for his cult of personality and audacious public celebrations of missile launches. (Nicola Smith, Telegraph)
- NK passed the birthday of its leader KJU without holding any major events or military provocations (Jun Ji-hye, Korea Times)
- NK has completed construction of a new ski resort in its northern region. (Yonhap)
- NK on Monday continued its harsh rhetoric aimed at the US, despite Trump's recent conciliatory remarks that alluded to dialogue with the North. (Yonhap)
- KJU appears to have a kidney disease. Kim's voice during his New Year speech indicated his kidneys were not functioning as well as his other organs. Kidney disorders often cause body parts to swell. (Oh Young-jin, Korea Times)
- Pyongyang initially told Seoul last month that it was interested in participating in the Winter Olympics, and the SK government was preparing for NK's official announcement on the matter. (Jeong Yong-soo, Kang Tae-hwa, Joongang Ilbo)
- The legacy KJU carries is beset with the expectation that he will finally achieve what both his father and grandfather had long pursued but never attained: transforming NK into a legitimate nuclear power. (Jamie Tarabay, CNN)

In South Korea:

- SK's coast guard rescued a NK boat carrying one crewman in the East Sea earlier in the day. (Yonhap)

- The Moon administration must find out why NK used its Olympics card from the start. (Joongang Ilbo)
- The top nuclear envoys of SK and Japan agreed to step up cooperation on efforts to turn the emerging "peace momentum" on the Korean Peninsula into a peaceful resolution of NK's nuclear stalemate. (Yonhap)
- More than half of South Koreans approve of helping cover the expenses that NK's athletes and cheering squad would incur if they join the upcoming Winter Olympics in SK. (Yonhap)
- Seoul would lose face and credibility from Washington if the upcoming talks stop at arranging NK participation at PyeongChang. It must somehow develop the momentum to set the grounds for denuclearization talks. (Joongang Ilbo)
- SK is considering a temporary suspension of its unilateral sanctions against NK during the Winter Olympics after local authorities unearthed a web of restrictions that would prevent a NK team from participating in the Games. (Jeong Yong-Soo, Lee Sung-eun, Joongang Ilbo)
- The Ministry of Foreign Affairs plans to announce measures to follow up on a task force's review of the controversial agreement between Seoul and Tokyo in 2015 to resolve the issue of comfort women. (Ser Myo-ja, Sarah Kim, Joongang Ilbo)
- SK's foreign minister expressed hopes that the North's expected participation in the Winter Olympics will catalyze inter-Korean reconciliation and the resolution of the nuclear standoff. (Yonhap)
- SK wants the reunification of families divided since the end of the Korean War to be on the agenda when its diplomats meet their NK counterparts at Panmunjom on Tuesday morning. (Julian Ryall, Telegraph)
- SK's trade ministry said on Monday it anticipates an "uphill battle" to revise its bilateral trade deal with the US, but it expects Washington to proceed with the talks in a speedy manner. (Hyunjoo Jin, Reuters)
- SK will seek to discuss ways to ease military tensions and reunite divided families during this week's high-level talks with NK. (Yonhap)
- SK's spy agency said Monday it will share intelligence on NK with security-related ministries through regular briefings. (Yonhap)
- JoongAng Ilbo sat down with Lee Jong-seok, former unification minister and one of SK's leading experts on NK to hear his thoughts on the future of North-South relations. (Cha Se-hyeon, Joongang Ilbo)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- The two Koreas will focus on NK's participation in the Winter Olympics and resuming stalled exchanges during the inter-Korea talks slated for today. (Kim Rahn, Korea Times)
- NK and SK will hold high-level talks on Tuesday primarily to discuss the North's participation in the upcoming winter Olympics, but also to look for ways to reduce heightened tensions over NK's growing nuclear threat. (Brian Padden, VOA)
- Seoul and Pyongyang officials will meet at 10 a.m. on Tuesday for the first inter-Korean dialogue to be held in 25 months. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- Six North Koreans found at sea are seeking repatriation after being discovered by SK authorities. The finding comes only a day after a NK boat containing bodies was found in SK waters. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)

International:

- A Korean war would put the tens of thousands of U.S. military personnel stationed in SK in harm's way, with much higher human costs — and many more fatalities — than the US has seen in its recent military conflicts. (Tanisha M. Fazal, Washington Post)
- Tuesday's planned talks between the Koreas, the first in about two years, have raised hopes of at least a temporary easing of tensions over NK's recent nuclear and missile tests. What are there to expect from the talks? (Hyung-Jin Kim, AP)
- Ryom Tae Ok and Kim Ju Sik, the North Korean figure skating duo will be at the center of inter-Korean talks set to take place Tuesday, but they won't even be inside "Peace House" on the southern side of the border between the two countries. (Anna Fifield, Washington Post)
- NK's overture for improving inter-Korean relations may be a tactic to increase its leverage in potential negotiations with Washington. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- The International Olympic Committee (IOC) announced that it had extended the deadline to register NK athletes to participate in the Winter Olympics. (Lauren Said-Moorhouse and Sean Coppack, CNN)
- Former Speaker of the House Newt Gingrich says Trump's NK policy is working and differing approaches to Pyongyang, in Seoul and Washington, are well matched. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- US ambassador to the UN Nikki Haley says Trump's tweet warning KJU about US nuclear capabilities helps global security because it keeps Kim "on his toes." (Eli Watkins, CNN)
- The NK stand-off is a crisis that, at worst, threatens nuclear war, but it's indeed complicated (BBC)
- The International Olympic Committee (IOC) has extended the deadline for registration of NK athletes for the Winter Olympics and is planning more talks with all sides. (Reuters)
- Olympics officials say they have "kept the door open" for NK to take part in the upcoming Winter Games in SK. (AP)
- Pope Francis, in his annual "state of the world" address called on Monday for all nations to support dialogue to ease tensions on the Korean peninsula and to work for a legally binding ban on nuclear weapons. (Philip Pullella, Reuters)
- Pope Francis urged concerted international efforts to rebuild trust on the Korean peninsula and in Syria, using his annual foreign policy address to demand that political leaders put the dignity of their people before war, profit or power. (Nicole Winfield, AP)
- Pope Francis urged concerted international efforts to rebuild trust on the Korean peninsula and in Syria, using his annual foreign policy address to demand that political leaders put the dignity of their people before war, profit or power. (AP)
- US is determined to end NK's nuclear weapons program through diplomacy, but it is also prepared to use force if necessary. (Yonhap)
- US Ambassador to the UN Nikki Haley on Sunday defended Trump's controversial tweets on NK, saying he needs to keep the North's leader "on his toes." (Yonhap)
- The selfie taken by SK gymnast Lee Eun-Ju with her NK competitor Hong Un-Jong during a training session at the 2016 Olympics showed how sport can bring people together. (Aimee Lewis, CNN)

Prepared by James Park, HRNK Research Intern

———————————————

Tuesday, January 9, 2018

N.K. agrees to hold military talks, send Olympic delegation to South; Can South Korea Avoid Getting Played by the North?; U.S. welcomes inter-Korean meeting on Olympics; N. Korea restores military hotline with South

Top News:
Can South Korea Avoid Getting Played by the North? (NYT, 01/08/18)

In North Korea:
After Olympic deal, North Korea figure skaters may lead team (AP, 01/09/18)
Domestic food industry a focal point of North Korea's 2018 calendars (Daily NK, 01/09/18)
Family shame explains why Kim Jong Un's birthday is still not a holiday (Daily NK, 01/09/18)
In sanctioned North Korea, bribery problem worsens (Daily NK, 01/09/18)
Kim Jong Un setting a 'bad example' smoking cigarettes on camera (Daily NK, 01/08/18)
Kim Jong-un's weak voice suggests he has a kidney complaint, says audio forensics expert (Telegraph, 01/09/18)
North Korea and the Olympics: A long and surprisingly successful history (Washington Post, 01/09/18)
North Korea country profile (BBC, 01/09/18)
North Korea Is in Winter Olympics Without Any Star Athletes (NYT, 01/09/18)
North Korea's cheerleading charm offensive (BBC, 01/09/18)
North Korea: A sporting history of bombs and diplomacy (BBC, 01/09/18)
Satellite image shows vehicle movement in Kaesong complex: VOA (Yonhap, 01/08/18)

In South Korea:
Parties show mixed reactions to gov't measures on sex slavery deal (Yonhap, 01/09/18)
South Korea's liberal president isn't anti-American (Washington Post, 01/09/18)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
(2nd LD) N. Korea restores military hotline with South (Yonhap, 01/09/18)
(7th LD) N.K. agrees to hold military talks, send Olympic delegation to South (Yonhap, 01/09/18)
(Yonhap Feature) Koreas sit down for talks amid hopes for better ties (Yonhap, 01/09/18)
A first step (Joongang Ilbo, 01/09/18)
A small uptick in inter-Korean ties follows a tense year (AP, 01/09/18)
Can these two North Korean ice skaters help bring about a diplomatic thaw? (Washington Post, 01/09/18)
China's Foreign Ministry says happy to see talks between North and South Korea (Reuters, 01/09/18)
How the Olympics gave Kim Jong Un a moment of unearned legitimacy (CNN, 01/09/18)
In rare inter-Korean talks, North pledges 'invaluable' gift (Reuters, 01/09/18)
Inter-Korean talks: Is a corner being turned? (Korea Times, 01/08/18)

Is the tide turning in Korea? (Korea Times, 01/08/18)
Moscow welcomes dialogue between North and South Korea (Reuters, 01/09/18)
Moon watched inter-Korean talks live (Korea Times, 01/08/18)
North and South Korea agree to hold talks on easing military tensions (CNN, 01/09/18)
North Korea agrees to send athletes and cheer squad to Winter Olympics after first talks with South in two years (Telegraph, 01/09/18)
North Korea agrees to send athletes to Winter Olympics after talks with South (Guardian, 01/09/18)
North Korea agrees to send athletes to Winter Olympics, South says (Washington Post, 01/09/18)
North Korea taking part in South Korean Olympics after talks (AP, 01/09/18)
North Korea tells South it will not discuss nuclear arms in future talks (Reuters, 01/09/18)
North Korea says nuclear program talks would dent inter-Korean ties (Reuters, 01/09/18)
North Korea to participate in PyeongChang Olympics (Korea Times, 01/08/18)
North Korea to reopen military hotline with South: Seoul minister (Reuters, 01/09/18)
North Korea to Send Olympic Athletes to South Korea, in Breakthrough (NYT, 01/08/18)
North Korea to send team to Winter Olympic Games (BBC, 01/09/18)
North Korea urges guarantee of peace on Korean peninsula: South Korea (Reuters, 01/09/18)
North Korea will join Olympics, military talks planned, another hotline between countries restored (Joongang Ilbo, 01/08/18)
North Korea, South Korea agree to hold military talks: joint statement (Reuters, 01/09/18)
Paralympics panel to discuss N. Korea's wild-card entry to PyeongChang (Yonhap, 01/09/18)
Premature to judge if inter-Korean dialogue is beginning of change: U.S. senior adviser (Yonhap, 01/08/18)
Prosecutors clears ex-presidential aide of leaking inter-Korean summit transcript (Yonhap, 01/09/18)
PyeongChang Olympics chief welcomes N. Korea's historic participation (Yonhap, 01/09/18)
S. Korea could consider temporary lifting of sanctions on N.K. officials (Yonhap, 01/09/18)
S. Korean flag bearer remembers "harmony" under Korean Peninsula flag at 2006 Winter Olympics (Yonhap, 01/08/18)
Seoul demands denuclearization talks (Korea Times, 01/08/18)
South Korea moves to expand remit of planned talks with North (Telegraph, 01/09/18)
South Korea says North Korea has said it will send a delegation to the Winter Olympics next month in the South (AP, 01/09/18)
South Korea says will consider temporary lifting of sanctions against North Korea to facilitate Winter Olympics participation (Reuters, 01/09/18)
South Korean officials head to border for talks with North (AP, 01/08/18)
South, North Korea talk about Olympics (Joongang Ilbo, 01/09/18)
Sports have their limits (Joongang Ilbo, 01/09/18)
Suddenly, an Olympic Charm Offensive From Kim Jong-un (NYT, 01/09/18)
Taekwondo hoped to bring two Koreas together in PyeongChang (Yonhap, 01/09/18)
Two Koreas begin high-level talks on Winter Olympics, ties (Korea Times, 01/08/18)
Venue for Korea talks is potential flash point inside border (AP, 01/09/18)
What to Expect When North Korea Talks With Seoul: QuickTake Q&A (Washington Post, 01/08/18)

International:
(2nd LD) U.S. welcomes inter-Korean meeting on Olympics (Yonhap, 01/09/18)
Analysis: With Koreas talking again, should US be worried? (AP, 01/09/18)
Britain cancels plan to forgive N. Korean debt (Yonhap, 01/09/18)
Ex-UN chief hopes inter-Korean talks lead to dialogue on denuclearization (Yonhap, 01/08/18)

Foreign Leaders Wary of Being Burned by 'Fire and Fury' (VOA, 01/09/18)
How rugby, ping-pong and other sports have mended political rifts (CNN, 01/09/18)
IOC welcomes North Korea competing at Olympics (AP, 01/09/18)
IPC optimistic over N.K.'s presence at PyeongChang Paralympics (Yonhap, 01/08/18)
Kim's olive branch and US (Korea Times, 01/08/18)
North Korea's peace offensive (Joongang Ilbo, 01/09/18)
Pence credits Trump with enabling inter-Korean talks (Yonhap, 01/08/18)
S. Korea's top envoy on N. Korean nukes to visit U.S. this week (Yonhap, 01/09/18)
State Department sees 'a start' (Joongang Ilbo, 01/09/18)
The Latest: UN chief welcomes progress to ease Korea tension (AP, 01/09/18)
The Latest: US consults with SKorea over NKorea talks (AP, 01/09/18)
Treat Kim Jong Un like the gangster that he is (UPI, 01/09/18)
Trump's military option for North Korea is not an option (Washington Post, 01/08/18)
U.S. hails Korea talks, despite North's rejection of denuclearization (Reuters, 01/09/18)

Top News:

- The talks that opened this week between the North and South Korean governments are off to an inauspicious start: Even before negotiators could settle into their seats, the North had pocketed its first concession from the South, offering nothing in return. (Nicholas Eberstadt, NYT)

In North Korea:

- They're the friendly face of NK, and it looks like they're coming south to the Olympics. (James Ellingworth, AP)
- Some of the more unique items to appear in this year's calendars are the various domestically-produced products being shown off by the authorities, such as smartphones, cosmetics, sports equipment, and medicines. (Kang Mi Jin, Daily NK)
- NK's 2018 calendar was recently distributed. Although some were wondering whether KJU's birthday, January 8, would be designated a national holiday, it has yet to happen. (Jung Kyo Jin, Daily NK)
- Daily NK sources in NK are reporting that a large part of the problem is due to increasing demands for bribes by state officials. (Kim Sung Il, Daily NK)
- Just as in many parts of the world, families in NK also contemplate New Year's resolutions to quit smoking. (Kang Mi Jin, Daily NK)
- Analysis of KJU's voice indicates that the N. Korean dictator is suffering from a kidney disease, according to a S. Korean expert. (Julian Ryall, Telegraph)
- NK will send a delegation to the Winter Olympics in SK next month — a move that prompted a rare outbreak in optimism on the Korean Peninsula after months of tension surrounding Pyongyang's weapons tests. (Adam Taylor, Washington Post)
- For decades NK has been one of the world's most secretive societies. It is one of the few countries still under nominally communist rule. (BBC)
- NK has agreed to send a team to the Winter Olympics in Pyeongchang. While the decision may help defuse nuclear tension with the West, it is unlikely to bring the emergence of a hidden-away NK version of Shaun White or Yuzuru Hanyu. (Victor Mather, NYT)

- NK announced that it would be sending a delegation to this year's Winter Olympic Games in SK, including a team of cheerleaders. (BBC)
- Sport often brings a certain degree of drama - but perhaps never more so than when it comes to the two rival Koreas. (BBC)
- A satellite photo shows North Korea presumably filching products from the closed inter-Korean industrial complex in its border city of Kaesong. (Yonhap)

In South Korea:

- SK's political parties gave mixed responses to Seoul's measures to deal with a controversial 2015 deal with Japan to address its wartime sexual slavery. (Yonhap)
- To suggest that SK doubts its alliance with the US is a mistake — and a dangerous one, given the need for us to maintain a common front against the nuclear threat from the North. Let's put our faith in the present, not the past. (S. Nathan Park, Washington Post)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- The US welcomed inter-Korean talks that led to NK's agreement to participate in the Winter Olympics and hold military talks with the South on easing tensions. (Yonhap)
- NK told the South that it has recently restored a military hotline severed for nearly two years. (Yonhap)
- NK accepted Seoul's proposal to hold military talks to reduce tensions and agreed to send a delegation to next month's Winter Olympics in the South. (Yonhap)
- South and North Korea reactivated a communication channel between the Ministry of Unification and the Committee for the Reunification of the Fatherland in Pyongyang. (Joongang Ilbo)
- The last N. Korean to cross this heavily militarized border was shot by his own comrades, and barely escaped with his life. (Reuters)
- North and South Korea sat down to talk after a year of mounting tensions that saw NK test ever-more capable missiles and conduct its largest nuclear detonation ever, and the US and its allies respond with sanctions and harsh rhetoric. (AP)
- Two people were at the center of inter-Korean talks that began Tuesday, but they were not even inside "Peace House" on the southern side of the border between the two countries. (Anna Fifield, Washington Post)
- China's FM said it was happy to see talks between North and South Korea take place, their first formal dialogue in more than two years, and welcomed all positive steps. (Reuters)
- Most people love peace and sports. But the sudden rapprochement between North and South Korea over the Winter Olympics pretty much trashes most norms of diplomacy. (Nick Paton Walsh, CNN)
- President Moon and his aides watched the progress of the inter-Korean talks held at the border village of Panmunjeom via television at Cheong Wa Dae, Tuesday. (Choi Ha-young, Korea Times)
- NK said after its first talks with SK in more than two years that it would not discuss its nuclear weapons with Seoul because they were aimed only at the US, not its "brethren" in SK. (Christine Kim, Hyonhee Shin, Reuters)

- Tuesday sees the previously unanticipated resumption of high-level bilateral talks between North and South Korea, the first such discussions since 2015, and the latest evidence of a surprise mini-rapprochement. (Andrew Hammond, Korea Times)
- High-level talks between North and South Korea today offer a potential for diplomacy ? not threats of war ? to reduce the increasingly tense standoff between Washington and Pyongyang. (Frank Ching, Korea Times)
- NK agreed to send athletes and cheerleaders to next month's Winter Olympics in SK and to hold talks with Seoul to ease military tensions, in the most significant diplomatic breakthrough between the neighbouring countries in years. (Nicola Smith, Telegraph)
- Delegation including cheerleaders will travel to Games despite rising tensions over Pyongyang's nuclear weapons programme. (Justin McCurry, Guardian)
- NK's representatives assured the S. Korean government that its "cutting edge" nuclear weapons are aimed only at the US, not at its neighbors, as it struck a deal to send athletes to next month's Winter Olympics and to re-open a military hotline. (Anna Fifield, Washington Post)
- NK has agreed to send a delegation to next month's Winter Olympics in SK and to hold talks with Seoul to ease military tensions, in the most significant thaw in relations between the neighboring states in years. (Taehoon Lee, Joshua Berlinger, Angela Dewan, CNN)
- The rival Koreas moved toward reducing their bitter animosity during rare talks, with NK agreeing to take part in next month's Winter Olympics in SK. (Hyung-Jin Kim, AP)
- Russia welcomes dialogue between North and South Korea. (Reuters)
- NK agreed to send a large-sized delegation, including athletes, a cheering squad and officials, to the upcoming PyeongChang Winter Olympics following the first high-level talks with the South in almost two years. (Kim Bo-eun, Korea Times)
- The discussion of NK's nuclear program and its weapons arsenal, which is solely aimed at the US, would negatively impact inter-Korean ties, a N. Korean official said while finishing up talks with the South. (Reuters)
- NK has completed technical maintenance needed to reopen a military hotline with SK on the west coast with normal communications via the hotline expected to resume. (Reuters)
- NK agreed to send athletes to February's Winter Olympics in SK, a symbolic breakthrough after months of escalating tensions over the North's rapidly advancing nuclear and missile programs. (NYT)
- NK is to send a delegation to the 2018 Winter Olympic Games taking place in SK in February. (BBC)
- SK asked NK to halt hostile acts that raise tension on the Korean peninsula, in the first talks between the neighbors in two years. (Reuters)
- Seoul and Pyongyang agreed to hold working-level meetings in the near future to discuss NK's participation in the PyeongChang Winter Olympics next month, boost inter-Korean cooperation in various fields. (Lee Sung-eun, Joongang Ilbo)
- The first thing the two Koreas shared during their first talks in two years was words about the cold weather, a metaphor for years of frozen ties and a requirement for the success of the PyeongChang Winter Olympics in the South. (Yonhap)
- North and South Korea agreed to hold military talks, a joint statement said after the two Koreas engaged in formal dialogue on Tuesday for the first time in more than two years. (Reuters)
- The International Paralympics Committee (IPC) said it will convene an executive committee meeting later this month to discuss whether to grant a wild-card entry to NK for the upcoming PyeongChang Paralympics. (Yonhap)

- It's premature to judge if the results from the ongoing talks between South and North Korea will lead to any changes in the US' policy toward NK. (Yonhap)
- Prosecutors cleared a former presidential aide of leaking the classified transcript of a 2007 inter-Korean summit, which sparked a political dispute in 2012 over whether late President Roh Moo-hyun conceded to the North over the de facto maritime border in the Yellow Sea. (Yonhap)
- The top organizer for the 2018 PyeongChang Winter Olympics welcomed NK's decision to participate in the quadrennial event. (Yonhap)
- SK may consider the temporary lifting of sanctions against NK if it is necessary to enable N. Korean officials to visit the South for next month's PyeongChang Winter Olympics. (Yonhap)
- "I want to see the South-North joint march again at Winter Olympic Games. It will be more meaningful as the Team Korea will be the last team in as the host country." (Yonhap)
- SK asked to resume dialogue on denuclearization during high-level talks with NK, Tuesday. (Yi Whan-woo, Korea Times)
- SK wants the reunification of families divided since the end of the Korean War to be on the agenda when its diplomats meet their N. Korean counterparts at Panmunjom on Tuesday morning. (Julian Ryall, Telegraph)
- SK says NK has said it will send a delegation to the Winter Olympics next month in the South. (AP)
- SK said it will consider a temporary lifting of sanctions against NK if it is necessary to facilitate the visit of N. Koreans to the Winter Olympics in SK next month. (Reuters)
- North and South Korea were set to hold rare talks at their tense border Tuesday to discuss how to cooperate in next month's Winter Olympics in the South and improve their long-strained ties. (Hyung-Jin Kim, AP)
- Military hotline along west coast is restored after being cut in 2016. (Lee Sung-eun, Joongang Ilbo)
- The US and China did not normalize a diplomatic relationship through ping-pong. (Nam Jeong-ho, Joongang Ilbo)
- NK's leader, KJU, spent 2017 rattling the world with nuclear and long-range missile tests. Now, the new year has brought him an ideal opportunity for a sudden charm offensive: the Winter Olympics. (Choe Samg-hun, NYT)
- NK offered to send a taekwondo demonstration team, along with athletes and others to next month's Winter Olympics in SK, shedding light over a possible reconciliation between two Koreas through sports. (Yonhap)
- South and North Korea began their first formal talks on Tuesday to discuss the North's potential participation in the PyeongChang Winter Olympics in the South next month and how to improve their long-stalled ties. (Ko Dong-hwan, Korea Times)
- The two Koreas' rare high-profile talkstook place at the jointly controlled area inside the world's most heavily fortified border — the same place where N. Korean soldiers recently sprayed bullets at a colleague who was making a daring dash for freedom. (Hyung-Jin Kim, AP)
- At 10 a.m. Seoul time on Tuesday, North Korean and South Korean officials will open their first high-level meeting in more than two years. (David Tweed, Washington Post)

International:

- NK is starting off the new year with a fresh diplomatic initiative aimed at wooing SK ahead of its hosting of next month's Winter Olympics. But it's sticking to a decidedly harsh — and familiar — message for Trump. (Eric Talmadge, AP)
- The British government has withdrawn its plan to cancel a N. Korean debt that has been unpaid for more than four decades, in consideration of the possibility that NK could pay it back after the two Koreas are unified. (Yonhap)
- Former UN Secretary-General Ban Ki-moon said he hopes the upcoming talks between South and North Korea lead to more meaningful dialogue on ridding the North of its nuclear weapons. (Yonhap)
- Only five months ago, world leaders reacted with public disapproval of Trump's promise to respond to any N. Korean aggression with "fire and fury." Now a new "fire and fury" is occupying their thoughts. (Jamie Dettmer, VOA)
- Never mind high-pressure peace talks that fail amid the looming threat of warfare. Try wrestling or ping-pong diplomacy instead. (Holly Yan, CNN)
- The International Olympic Committee says it welcomes moves by NK to take part in next month's Winter Olympics in SK. (AP)
- The International Paralympic Committee (IPC) has said it is sanguine about NK's participation in the upcoming PyeongChang Paralympics and will consider a wild card for N. Korean athletes if they fail to acquire qualification to join. (Yonhap)
- Nk's Kim offered a rare peace overture. Washington should be careful not to make the usual mistake of tossing the ball over to Beijing. (Lee Seong-hyon, Korea Times)
- North Korea is trying to break our military alliance with the United States and stoke internal division. (Chung Young-tae, Joongang Ilbo)
- US Vice President Pence credited President Trump with enabling rare high-level talks between South and North Korea this week, backing Trump's own argument. (Yonhap)
- South Korea's top negotiator on North Korea's nuclear issues will visit Washington this week to share assessments on the latest developments involving the North. (Yonhap)
- Policy adviser to Tillerson says talks so far focus on Olympics. (Sarah Kim, Joongang Ilbo)
- UN Secretary-General Antonio Guterres is welcoming progress during talks between the two Koreas, especially their agreement to work to ease military tensions, hold military-to-military talks and to reopen a military hotline. (AP)
- The US is consulting with S. Korean officials to ensure NK's participation in the Winter Olympics does not violate UN sanctions imposed over its nuclear weapons. (AP)
- US President Trump and N. Korean leader KJU should never talk to each other on the phone, or through Twitter. Two unpredictable, nuclear-armed egotists are a threat to themselves and to the world, regardless of the size of their buttons. (Robert Huish, UPI)
- When President Trump boasted that he had a "bigger" nuclear button than North Korean dictator Kim Jong Un, members of both parties rightly condemned his reckless bravado about possible nuclear war with North Korea. (Jennifer Rubin, Washington Post)
- North and South Korea held their first talks in more than two years on Tuesday and Washington hailed them as a good first step in solving the crisis over the North's nuclear missile program, even though Pyongyang said it would not discuss weapons that were only aimed at the US. (Christine Kim, David Brunnstrom, Reuters)

Prepared by Huiwon Yun, HRNK Legal Research Intern

———————————————————

Wednesday, January 10, 2018

S.K President Opens the Door for Talks with N.K Leader; Trump open to US-N.K talks 'under right circumstances'; Pence to Lead US Delegation to Winter Olympics

Top News:
[Interview] Kim Chang-deuk, President of Vision Forum for Reunified Korea and Co-representative of United Korea Party (NBN, 12/28/2017)

This article has been translated from Korean. Please see the full English text at the bottom of this email.

In North Korea:
Hundreds of North Koreans likely to attend Winter Olympics (UPI, 01/10/2018)
Is economic struggle driving North Korea to negotiating table? (BBC, 01/10/2018)
New Year's holiday sees sharp increase in defector arrests at Chinese border (*Daily*NK, 01/10/2018)
N.K.'s U.N. contribution for this year set at US$121,535 (Yonhap, 01/10/2018)
Tense atmosphere in border regions around leader's birthday (*Daily*NK, 01/10/2018)

In South Korea:
(LEAD) S. Korea wants to hold working-level talks with N.K. on Olympics this week (Yonhap, 01/10/2018)
(2nd LD) President urges efforts to finalize constitutional revision by June (Yonhap, 01/10/2018)
(2nd LD) Seoul says military talks will focus on measures needed for N. Korea's Olympic participation (Yonhap, 01/10/2018)
(3rd LD) President reaffirms resolve to denuclearize N. Korea (Yonhap, 01/10/2018)
Moon: South Korea will not compromise push for North's denuclearization (UPI, 01/10/2018)
Moon stands firm on sanctions on North (Joongang Ilbo, 01/10/2018)
PM: N. Korea expected to send 400-500 people to PyeongChang Olympics (Yonhap, 01/10/2018)
S. Korean defense chief reaffirms robust alliance with U.S. (Yonhap, 01/10/2018)
S. Korea dismisses concerns inter-Korean talks could weaken pressure on N.K. (Yonhap, 01/10/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
(LEAD) Koreas set for military talks on easing border tension (Yonhap, 01/10/2018)
IOC to convene meeting with two Koreas over North's participation in PyeongChang Olympics (Yonhap, 01/10/2018)
Koreas test-run military hotline: ministry (Yonhap, 01/10/2018)
Militaries of two Koreas prepare for round of talks (Joongang Ilbo, 01/10/2018)
No quick fix (Joongang Ilbo, 01/10/2018)
North snubbed nuke discussion (Joongang Ilbo, 01/10/2018)
SKorea open to summit with North's Kim, but it won't be easy (Washington Post, 01/10/2018)
South Korean President Opens the Door for Talks with North Korean Leader (VOA, 01/10/2018)

Time for sophistication (Joongang Ilbo, 01/10/2018)
Toward a 'Peace Olympics' (Joongang Ilbo, 01/10/2018)
Tricky issues may hamper inter-Korea military talks (Korea Times, 01/10/2018)

International:
(3rd LD) U.S. welcomes inter-Korean meeting on Olympics, says sanctions to continue (Yonhap, 01/10/2018)
Analysis: With Koreas talking again, should US be worried? (Washington Post, 01/09/2018)
Are Trump's Threats to North Korea Working? (Fair Observer, 01/09/2018)
China scolds Japan over issue of 'comfort women' (UPI, 01/10/2018)
Commentary: Why Kim Jong Un wanted the Korea talks (Reuters, 01/10/2018)
EU welcomes outcome of inter-Korean talks as positive step for Koreas' relations (Yonhap, 01/10/2018)
IOC to host talks on North Korean participation on January 20 (Reuters, 01/10/2018)
Moon Jae-in credits Donald Trump for inter-Korea talks (Guardian, 01/10/2018)
Netherlands seizes generators bound for N. Korea (Yonhap, 01/10/2018)
North Korea: Trump open to talks but will apply 'maximum pressure' (Guardian, 01/10/2018)
Pence to Lead US Delegation to Winter Olympics (VOA, 01/10/2018)
Russia welcomes outcome of inter-Korean talks (Yonhap, 01/10/2018)
South Korea's Moon credits Trump with 'huge' contribution to North Korea talks (CNN, 01/09/2018)
South Korea's Moon thanks Trump for talks with North (UPI, 01/10/2018)
South Korea Pushes Denuclearization Through Olympic Engagement (VOA, 01/10/2018)
South Korean president credits Trump with bringing North Korea to the table (Washington Post, 01/10/2018)
South Korea's Leader Credits Trump for North Korea Talks (NYT, 01/10/2018)
South Korea's sunshine man: Can Moon Jae-in fix the North Korea crisis? (CNN, 01/09/2018)
Trump admin approves $133 million anti-ballistic missile sale to Japan (CNN, 01/09/2018)
Trump's nuclear-button tweet was a stroke of 'stable genius' (Washington Post, 01/10/2018)
Trump open to US-NKorea talks 'under right circumstances' (Washington Post, 01/10/2018)
Trump says U.S. open to talks with North Korea: White House (Reuters, 01/10/2018)
Trump tells Seoul he's open to talks with North Korea (CNN, 01/10/2018)
Trump to South Korea: US Open to Talks with North at 'Appropriate Time' (VOA, 01/10/2018)
U.S. approves anti-ballistic missile sale to Japan amid North Korea threat (Reuters, 01/09/2018)
USFK chief sounds cautious note on N. Korea's peace overture (Yonhap, 01/10/2018)
USFK commander says talks were 'good news' (Joongang Ilbo, 01/10/2018)
Vice President Pence to lead U.S. delegation to Winter Olympics (Reuters, 01/10/2018)
Vice President Pence will lead U.S. delegation to Olympics in South Korea (Washington Post, 01/10/2018)

Top News:

- Kim Chang-deuk: SK must pursue reunification to free the suffering North Koreans. If SK ignores the pains of North Koreans, it would come back to haunt SK as the boomerang of pains. (NBN)

In North Korea:

- NK is will likely send hundreds of sporting representatives to the Pyeongchang Olympics next month. (Jennie Oh, UPI)

- Does KJU have a very practical reason to start showing a different face to enemies across the border? The reason probably is the economy. (Karishma Vaswani, BBC)
- Defection attempts across the NK border with China are on the rise, but there have also been reports of an increasing number of arrests as the authorities intensify their crackdown. (Kang Mi Jin, Ha Yoon Ah, DailyNK)
- A budget contribution allocated to NK for the operation of UN this year has been set at US$121,535. (Yonhap)
- Sources reported a tense atmosphere on January 8, the birthday of KJU. Although the date has yet to be officially designated a holiday, an increased troop presence was noted in certain areas on the day. (DailyNK)

In South Korea:

- SK on Wednesday expressed hopes of holding working-level talks with NK to discuss its participation in the Winter Olympics as early as this week. (Yonhap)
- President Moon called on lawmakers to expedite consultations on constitutional revision, reiterating his resolve to hold a national referendum concurrently with local elections scheduled for June. (Yonhap)
- SK defense officials said Wednesday upcoming inter-Korean military talks will focus on measures necessary for the North's participation in the Winter Olympics. (Yonhap)
- President Moon welcomed the resumption of inter-Korean dialogue but said his country will continue to work with the international community to denuclearize NK. (Yonhap)
- Moon said that denuclearizing the Korean peninsula is a goal that could never be compromised or separated from the process of improving South-North relations. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- SK has no intention of curtailing its sanctions on NK unless there is progress in resolving the nuclear crisis, dismissing speculation that Seoul may lift the punishments as inter-Korean talks resume. (Ser Myo-ja, Joongang Ilbo)
- NK is expected to send a delegation of between 400-500 people to SK for the Winter Olympics, Prime Minister Lee Nak-yon said Wednesday. (Yonhap)
- SK Defense Minister Song Young-moo reassured the US on Wednesday that their strong alliance will remain rock solid despite renewed inter-Korean dialogue. (Yonhap)
- SK's unification minister dismissed concerns that Seoul's push for dialogue with NK may create a fissure in the united front pressing Pyongyang into giving up its nuclear weapons. (Yonhap)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- SK began preparations Wednesday for what would be the first military talks with NK in more than three years. (Yonhap)
- IOC announced Thursday it will convene a meeting with officials from the two Koreas this month to decide on the NK's participation in the Winter Olympics. (Yonhap)
- SK and NK militaries conducted test communication Wednesday through a reconnected hotline. (Yonhap)
- A day after SK and NK agreed to hold the first military talks to diffuse tension on the peninsula, SK's National Defense Ministry has begun internal discussions on the agenda and delegates. (Lee Sung-eun, Lee Chul-jae, Joongang Ilbo)
- SK must not let emotions override us and fall for the North's sweet talk and charm offensive. SK is in the driver's seat and must remember where it wants to end up. (Kim Hyun-ki, Joongang Ilbo)

- Pyongyang snubbed Seoul's offer again to hold a reunion of families separated in the 1950-53 Korean War. (Lee Sung-eun, Joongang Ilbo)
- Moon remains open to a meeting with KJU, if it would improve the strained relations between their two countries and help resolve the global standoff over NK's nuclear weapons development. (Hyung-Jin Kim, Ken Moritsugu, AP)
- Moon said Wednesday he is willing to hold one-on-one talks with KJU -- but only if certain conditions are met. (VOA)
- The Moon government must push a more sophisticated two-track policy of dialogue and sanctions. (Joongang Ilbo)
- When the talks are over, the PyeongChang Games will surely be an Olympics of peace where SK and NK — and the rest of the world — can come together in the spirit of sport. (Kim Joo-ho, Joongang Ilbo)
- The two Koreas agreed to resume talks between their militaries at their high-level meeting, Tuesday, but tricky issues may hamper the progress of the envisioned meetings. (Choi Ha-young, Korea Times)

International:

- US welcomed inter-Korean talks that led to NK's agreement to participate in the Winter Olympics and discuss easing military tensions with SK, but also emphasized it will continue its maximum pressure campaign. (Yonhap)
- NK is starting off the year with a fresh diplomatic initiative with SK, but it's sticking to a familiar message for Trump: back off and let Koreans solve their own problems. (Eric Talmadge, AP)
- Although Trump has cultivated praise from some over his handling of NK, there is no evidence that the reopening of talks between NK and SK was a direct result of American coercion toward Pyongyang.(Sebastien Smith, Fair Observer)
- China says it doesn't want Japan to dismiss the issue of "comfort women," who were forced to serve in Japanese wartime brothels. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- Pyongyang appears to be pursuing a deliberate and increasingly successful strategy to drive a wedge between Washington and Seoul. (Peter Apps, Reuters)
- The EU welcomed the outcome of the recent talks between SK and NK, labeling the talks as a positive step toward improved inter-Korean relations. (Yonhap)
- IOC will host talks on Jan. 20 to discuss details about NK's participation at next month's Winter Olympics in SK, such as flags and the number of athletes. (Stephanie Nebehay, Reuters)
- Moon has credited Trump for creating the political backdrop to this week's inter-Korea talks, and echoed the US president's warning that Pyongyang faced more pressure if it continued to conduct missile and nuclear tests. (Justin McCurry, Guardian)
- The Dutch government has intercepted a shipment of generators destined for NK in accordance with U.N. resolutions over its nuclear and missile programs. (Yonhap)
- Trump has said that he is open to holding direct talks with NK, but added he was determined to apply "maximum pressure" over Pyongyang's nuclear program. (Justin McCurry, Guardian)
- U.S. Vice President Mike Pence and Second Lady Karen Pence will lead the U.S. delegation to the Winter Olympics in SK. (VOA)
- Russia welcomed the results of the recent talks between SK and NK, expecting the latest development to ease tensions on the Korean Peninsula. (Yonhap)
- SK President Moon has credited his US counterpart Donald Trump with making a "huge" contribution to bringing NK and SK together for landmark talks. (James Griffiths, CNN)

- In a telephone call with the White House on Wednesday, Moon thanked Trump for enabling talks between Seoul and Pyongyang. (Susan McFarland, UPI)
- Moon emphasized that the denuclearization of NK is the long-term goal of his efforts to engage with NK to participate in the upcoming Olympics, and to resume military talk. (Brian Padden, VOA)
- Moon has ushered in the first positive news related to NK in years this week, responding to an overture from KJU and, on Wednesday, very diplomatically giving much of the credit to Trump. (Anna Fifield, Washington Post)
- Moon warned that NK would face stiffer sanctions if it resumed weapons tests, while crediting Trump with helping force NK to resume dialogue and strike a broader agreement to improve Korean ties. (Choe Sang-hun, NYT)
- NK agreement of Olympics participation is a major achievement for Moon, who has consistently promoted dialog and peaceful reconciliation as the way forward. (Paula Hancocks and James Griffiths, CNN)
- Trump notified Congress on Tuesday that it has approved the potential sale of SM-3 anti-ballistic missiles to Japan in a deal estimated to be worth $133.3 million. (Zachary Cohen and Ryan Browne, CNN)
- Trump's recent tweet was part of an intentional campaign designed to get NK to understand that Trump, unlike his predecessors, is willing to use force to stop Pyongyang from threatening American cities. (Marc A. Thiessen, Washington Post)
- Trump threw his weight behind the Olympics-inspired diplomatic opening with NK, telling Moon that the U.S. was open to talks with NK under the right circumstances. (Matthew Pennington, Ken Thomas, AP)
- Trump told Moon a day after the first intra-Korean talks that US was open to talks with NK "at the appropriate time, under the right circumstances," (Steve Holland, Christine Kim, Reuters)
- Trump expressed openness to holding talks between US and NK during a call with Moon on Wednesday, the latest of Trump's forays into inter-Korean relations. (Dan Merica, CNN)
- Trump said during his telephone call with Moon that he is open to talks with NK "at the appropriate time." (Peter Heinlein, VOA)
- The U.S. government has approved the sale of anti-ballistic missiles to Japan to defend itself against a growing nuclear and missile threat from NK. (Chris Sanders, James Dalgleish, Reuters)
- The commanding general of U.S. Forces Korea (USFK) remained cautious about NK's motivation behind its decision to hold talks with SK as part of its recent peace offensive. (Yonhap)
- Gen. Vincent Brooks, commander of the USFK, cautiously welcomed the high-level inter-Korean talks that took place Tuesday as "good news," adding they appear to have been "earnest" and "productive." (Sarah Kim, Joongang Ilbo)
- Vice President Mike Pence and second lady Karen Pence will lead the U.S. delegation to the Winter Olympics in Pyeongchang (Blake Brittain, Andrew Hay, Reuters)
- Trump informed Moon that Vice President Pence would attend the games in PyeongChang. (Anne Gearan, Washington Post)

[Interview] Kim Chang-deuk, President of Vision Forum for Reunified Korea and Co-representative of United Korea Party
NBN, 12/28/2017

On December 11, 2017 at 3p.m., Kim Chang-deuk, President of Vision Forum and co-representative of the Unified Korea Party, won the Grand Prize in Party Politics Sector at the ceremony of the 16th Korean Parliament Awards and the Korea Consumer Preference Brand Awards held at the Seoul Press Center International Conference Hall.

The award was selected through an impartial verification process by judges composed of reporters, professional faculty members, and the Korea Consumer Rights Promotion Solidarity Forum. As a pastor and one who holds a Ph.D. in politics, he holds Vision Forum for Reunified Korea every month to listen to opinions from various sectors and present the directions for reunification, the long-cherished wish of Koreans. He said that the ultimate future vision of a reunified Korea is to free 25 million North Korean compatriots and insisted reunification by means of absorbing the North with liberal democracy. In his speech for the award, he said he believes that this award was a result of efforts and prayers that the reunification of the beautiful Korean Peninsula should be accompanied by the values of free democracy and market economy. He greeted with a humble attitude that he considered this award as an encouragement, saying that becoming a leader who serves people with a humble and meek mind has been his dream.

Meanwhile, on December 15, 2017, he was invited to the Future Korea Peace Forum which was sponsored by the ROTC Federation of Korea and held at the Foreign Correspondents Press Club in the Press Center. During the press brief, he actively suggested the vision of the reunified Korea with a distinctive claim due to his political science Ph.D., along with the former Prime Minister Chung Un-chan, the former president of Seoul National University.

He stressed that the reason why we must pursue reunification is that we have to free the North Korean people who have suffered from hunger for 70 years since the division of the Korean peninsula. He pointed out that if the government ignores the pains of North Korean compatriots, it would come back to haunt South Korea as the boomerang of pains. Deeply touched by his lecture, we asked for an interview with him and asked some key questions after the lecture. The following is the summary of his viewpoints about reunification, including the need for the reunification through absorption by the ROK.

Q: In the Republic of Korea where people are facing the North Korean nuclear crisis, there are some people who insist reunification under communism. Moreover, the mood has been detected where political circles do not provide a clear direction for reunification and are not even interested in reunification. Since you have emphasized the need for free and democratic reunification, could you tell us about it more specifically?

A: Last Chuseok, I attended the event of the displaced people at the Yeoncheon Station Plaza entitled, 'The Face that I Want to See and My Dear Old Home.' I cried along in my heart while watching the event. If those who govern the people turn away from the pains of the dispersed families whose members are held hostage in North Korea, it is like throwing away the remaining hope of the whole nation. Why have the two Koreas been split by ideology, pointing guns at each other? The major contributors to this misfortune are the three generations from Kim Il-sung since its foundation in North Korea. North Korea is under deteriorated communism, totalitarianism, and hereditary dictatorship. The North Korean regime is isolating itself from the world and developing nuclear weapons, threatening South Korea and the rest of the world. North Korea is antagonizing the US and trying to achieve reunification under communism through the destruction of the US -

ROK alliance and the US Troop withdrawal from Korea. These are the reasons why the two Koreas are still divided.

Q: Could you tell us more specifically about the Moon administration impeding reunification?

A: The Moon administration eliminated the Commission of Human Rights in North Korea under the Ministry of Unification and resumed the inter-Korean economic cooperation. They said we should work out inter-Korean affairs through dialogue. In addition, they are opposed to President Trump's preemptive strike suggestion. The Moon administration has opposed the reunification of the two Koreas in every way. Reunification through peaceful dialogue sounds ideal. The truth is, however, it is a hollow claim and they do not even grasp what the Communist dictatorship, North Korea is. Dialogue for assuring the dictator his security and stability is meaningless to North Korean people who have been forced to slavery.

Q: What are the reunification plans that Vision Forum for Reunified Korea are pursuing?

A: Many people ask me if inter-Korean reunification will be possible and if so, when that will happen. Of course, it is possible. However, we are not quite so sure when that would happen. At least it should be by the time the ROK is prepared for reunification. First of all, there should be a government with the collective will to achieve reunification. However, it seems like the current administration is not the one. Forum for Reunified Korea is focusing on freeing North Korean people who are suffering from slavery and groaning under brutal KJU's regime. Inter-Korean reunification is for the innocent North Korean people. Therefore, the plans should be aimed to eliminate Kim Jong-un and those ringleaders in Pyongyang surrounding Kim Jong-un who are suppressing the North Korean people. I am a pastor. I personally feel like eliminating Kim Jong-un and achieving reunification is up to God's will. Nobody knows exactly when and how or by whom Kim Jong-un will be eliminated – it can be via an internal rebellion or a US preemptive attack. What we do is simply remain calm constantly, praying for the North Korean people, and trying to let the world know that freeing the North Korean people is the essence of reunification.

Q: You gave such a passionate lecture at the Future Korea Peace Forum. Could you summarize your main points again?

A: Two Koreas share a 1,000 year-old history together since Silla unified the three kingdoms, and Wang Geun reunified the later three kingdoms, - Silla, Hubaekje, and Hugoguryeo - establishing the Koryŏ (Korea) Dynasty in the year 936. Since then, I think the only nation on the Korean peninsula is Korea, which has a 1,000 year-old history. After Korea's liberation in 1945, tragedy of national division happened, and ever since then, it has been 70 years since one Korea is divided into two: South and North Korea. Making these two Koreas back into one Korea should be the primary task for the people in South Korea. In order to accomplish this task of reunification, it is necessary to verify what caused the division with objective and accurate viewpoint about history. It is obvious which regime – South or North Korea – is really working for its own people. It has clearly shown that Communism is a failed ideology. Reunification by absorbing the North is the way it should be and we have to think what reunification really should be like for the people.

Q: Could you explain the necessity of reunification for those who have become insensible toward unification issues?

A: The current administration is trying to reduce unemployment issues by creating more jobs. The only resolution to this serious unemployment problem is the reunification of two Koreas. It is necessary to sustain domestic economic development. The reunified Korea will become one of the five Powers of the international community with GNP per capita of fifty thousand dollars and population of eighty million people, rising up to G7.

Q: You won the Grand Prize in Party Politics Sector at the ceremony of the 16th Korean Parliament Awards and the Korea Consumer Preference Brand Award. Could you explain about this award?

A: It is sponsored by Yonhap Daily Newspaper and Award Selection Committee and organized by Newsfile and Korean Society for Journalism. My acquaintance recommended me, and I was chosen for the prize winner. I consider it as an encouragement, so I gladly and gratefully took it.

Q: They say the forthcoming local election in June 2018 will be really important because it will get to change the future political landscape for each party. It is attracting national attention. How is Unified Korea party preparing for this and what is your view on this matter?

A: This election is very crucial because it will show the people's thoughts on the ruling party. In addition, the position of the current opposition party, Liberty Korea Party, will be determined as the main opposition party. The Bareun Party and the People's Party are planning on becoming a merging of two parties. Therefore, this election is going to be a very crucial one that will show the future political landscape.

NBN News Kim Jun-ho

Translation by Huiwon Yun, HRNK Legal Research Intern

Prepared by James Park, HRNK Research Intern

——————————————————

Thursday, January 11, 2018

Inter-Korean talks on PyeongChang to open before IOC meeting; Moon, Xi reaffirm joint efforts on North Korea nuclear issue; Tillerson to host N.K. meeting in Canada

In North Korea:
Choe Ryong Hae to OGD? (nkleadershipwatch, 01/11/2018)
Is the US Preparing for Preventive War? Views from North Korea (38 North, 01/10/2018)
New title for bigwig in Pyongyang (Joongang Ilbo, 01/11/2018)
North Korea: Book's Popularity Predicts Trump's End (VOA, 01/11/2018)
N. Korea fears war with U.S. (Yonhap, 01/11/2018)
N. Korean official Choe Ryong-hae apparently leading ruling party's key department (Yonhap, 01/11/2018)

North Korea Praises 'Fire and Fury' Book on Trump Administration (NYT, 01/11/2018)
North Korean trading companies in China look to South Korea for sanctions relief after high-level talks (DailyNK, 01/11/2018)
Punggye-ri Nuclear Test Site: Significant Tunneling Underway at the West Portal (38 North, 01/11/2018)
Young North Koreans Ask For 'New Year's Gift' of Money to Defect (RFA, 01/10/2018)

In South Korea:
(LEAD) (News Focus) S. Korea faces balancing act between sanctions and support for N.K. joining Olympics (Yonhap, 01/11/2018)
Gangneung offers hanok village to North Korean visitors (Joongang Ilbo, 01/11/2018)
Gangwon governor proposes 'floating hotel' for North Korea delegates (Korea Times, 01/11/2018)
South Korea ended its review of its 'comfort women' deal with Japan. Here's what you need to know (Washington Post, 01/11/2018)
S. Korean envoy vows 'watertight' coordination with U.S. on N. Korea (Yonhap, 01/11/2018)
S. Korean IOC member to attend meeting on N. Korea's participation in PyeongChang 2018 (Yonhap, 01/11/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
In the driver's seat (Joongang Ilbo, 01/11/2018)
Inter-Korean talks on PyeongChang to open before IOC meeting: Seoul (Yonhap, 01/11/2018)
Moon briefs both Trump and Xi on talks with North (Joongang Ilbo, 01/11/2018)
N. Korea calls on S. Korea to stop military drills with U.S. (Yonhap, 01/11/2018)
North Korea's sly tactics (Joongang Ilbo, 01/11/2018)
Possible joint Koreas parade at Pyeongchang under discussion: source (Reuters, 01/11/2018)
Swiss meeting to discuss Olympic issues (Joongang Ilbo, 01/11/2018)
Two Koreas to meet at IOC over PyeongChang Games (Korea Times, 01/11/2018)

International:
(2nd LD) Leaders of S. Korea, China reaffirm joint efforts to denuclearize N. Korea (Yonhap, 01/11/2018)
Air Force deployed B-2 stealth bombers to Guam as sensitive talks involving North Korea commenced (Washington Post, 01/11/2018)
Asia's top Olympic body hails N. Korean participation in PyeongChang 2018 (Yonhap, 01/11/2018)
China's Xi supports progress in inter-Korean talks: South Korea's Blue House (Reuters, 01/11/2018)
[INTERVIEW] North Korea seeks sanctions relief with olive branch: ex-US negotiator (Korea Times, 01/11/2018)
Last-minute North Korean visit sends Olympics planners scrambling (Reuters, 01/11/2018)
Moon, Xi reaffirm joint efforts on North Korea nuclear issue (Korea Times, 01/11/2018)
No US military action during inter-Korean talks: Trump (Korea Times, 01/11/2018)
Putin Says 'Shrewd' North Korean Leader Has Outplayed His Rivals (NYT, 01/11/2018)
Should you worry about a U.S. war with North Korea? Not really (Washington Post, 01/11/2018)
Tillerson to Attend North Korea Talks in Canada: State Department (NYT, 01/11/2018)
Tillerson to host N.K. meeting in Canada (Yonhap, 01/11/2018)
Trump hopes inter-Korean talks lead to 'success for the world' (Yonhap, 01/11/2018)
Trump jokes that US general may know more than he does about looming war (CNN, 01/10/2018)
Trump, on possibility of North Korea talks, says: 'Who knows where it leads?' (Reuters, 01/10/2018)

Trump shifts tone on North Korea and signals he's ready to talk with 'Little Rocket Man' (CNN, 01/10/2018)
UN welcomes Korea talks which can build confidence and trust (Washington Post, 01/10/2018)
Xi Jinping tells South Korea he supports inter-Korea talks (UPI, 01/11/2018)

In North Korea:

- Choe Ryong Hae was appointed director of the Workers' Party of Korea [WPK] Organization Guidance Department [OGD]. (nkleadershipwatch)
- NK fears that the US is already trying to shape the battlefield for a military operation against the North. (Alexander Vorontsov, 38 North)
- Choe Ryong-hae, widely believed to be the second most influential man in the NK regime, has added yet another job title: Director of the Organization and Guidance Department of the Central Committee in the Workers' Party. (Lee Sung-eun, Joongang Ilbo)
- NK has found good material to attack Trump: Michael Wolff's bombshell new book, Fire and Fury: Inside the Trump White House. (Hyung-Jin Kim, AP)
- NK diplomats are extremely serious about the possibility of war between NK and the US, noting that the US has already prepared for it for months. (Yonhap)
- Choe Ryong-hae, a close aide to KJU, appears to be leading the Workers' Party of Korea (WPK) department that oversees the party's operation and surveillance. (Yonhap)
- Michael Wolff's book about the Trump administration has been getting fulsome praise from NK state media. (Gerry Mullany, NYT)
- NK traders operating in China are feeling renewed optimism over potential inter-Korean economic cooperation as high-level talks between NK and SK kick off this week. (Seol Song Ah, DailyNK)
- Recent commercial satellite imagery of NK's Punggye-ri Nuclear Test Site indicates that the North Portal, where the last five nuclear tests were conducted, remains dormant and that tunnel excavation has been stepped up at the West Portal. (38 North)
- Young North Koreans frustrated by the conditions of life in NK are beginning to ask their parents for money they can use to cross the border into China, in what some are calling the best New Year's gift they can hope to receive. (RFA)

In South Korea:

- With NK set to join the Winter Olympics, Seoul appears to be struggling with how to accommodate a large-scale delegation of NK officials and athletes without violating multi-layered sanctions against Pyongyang. (Koh Byung-joon, Yonhap)
- The Gangneung city government on Thursday offered to provide lodging for NK's cheerleading squad and cultural performance troupe for the upcoming PyeongChang Winter Olympics. (Sarah Kim, Joongang Ilbo)
- Gangwon Province Governor Choi Moon-soon proposed Wednesday using a cruise ship to accommodate NK athletes and delegates during the Winter Olympics. (Choi Ha-young, Korea Times)
- Seoul announced Tuesday that it would not ask to renegotiate the 2015 deal, ending months of uncertainty about the agreement's fate while also answering domestic criticism of the deal. (Celeste Arrington, Washington Post)

- SK will coordinate closely with the US on all matters related to the Korean Peninsula, including the North's nuclear weapons program. (Yonhap)
- The lone SK member of the International Olympic Committee (IOC) said he will travel to Switzerland next week to attend a meeting on NK's participation in the Winter Olympics. (Yonhap)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- The time has come for Moon — supposedly in the driver's seat now — to demonstrate his ability to drive Washington and Pyongyang toward dialogue. (Joongang Ilbo)
- SK and NK will likely hold working-level talks on the North's participation in the PyeongChang Winter Olympics before IOC's meeting slated for late next week. (Yonhap)
- Moon debriefed Trump in a 30-minute phone call on Wednesday night about the South's high-level talks with the North on the previous day. Moon had another telephone talk with Xi Jinping. (Ser Myo-ja, Joongang Ilbo)
- NK on Thursday called for SK to suspend its military drills with the US, claiming the drills are the fundamental cause of growing tensions on the Korean Peninsula. (Yonhap)
- NK is unbeatable in negotiations. The regime's diplomatic skills are an asset of their system. They take initiative with sentimental language, and the high-level inter-Korean meeting on Tuesday illustrated their character. (Park Bo-gyoon, Joongang Ilbo)
- NK and SK athletes could parade together at the opening ceremony of next month's Pyeongchang Winter Games, under a proposal the IOC will consider next week. (Karolos Grohmann, Reuters)
- SK and NK officials will convene at the IOC headquarters in Switzerland on Jan. 20 to hammer out details of the North's participation in the upcoming Winter Games. (Lee Sung-eun, Joongang Ilbo)
- IOC President Thomas Bach has called a meeting with the two Koreas to discuss NK's participation in the PyeongChang Winter Olympics. (Baek Byung-yeul, Korea Times)

International:

- The leaders of SK and China agreed to continue working together to peacefully resolve the NK nuclear issue, welcoming the result of the recent inter-Korean talks as part of such efforts. (Yonhap)
- The U.S. Air Force quietly deployed three stealth B-2 Spirit bombers to Guam this week as discussions between NK and SK involving the Winter Olympics were about to commence. (Dan Lamothe, Washington Post)
- Sheikh Ahmad Al Fahad Al Sabah, head of the Olympic Council of Asia (OCA) hailed NK's recent decision to participate in the upcoming Winter Olympics. (Yonhap)
- Xi told Moon that he supported Moon's stance that the advancement of inter-Korean ties and the denuclearization of the peninsula should "go in parallel". (Hyonhee Shin, Reuters)
- KJU's peace overture to SK is a calibrated strategy aimed at securing relief from sanctions, according to a former chief U.S. negotiator with NK. (Kim Jae-kyoung, Korea Times)
- NK's late announcement it will send a large delegation to the Winter Olympics has eased concerns over any Pyongyang threat during the games, but it does create headaches for planners over accommodations and security. (Hyunjoo Jin, Jane Chung, Reuters)

- Moon and Xi have agreed to increase cooperation to help the ongoing inter-Korean talks lead to a peaceful resolution of the NK nuclear issue. (Kim Rahn, Korea Times)
- Trump confirmed that there will be no military action by his country against NK as long as the two Koreas are engaged in talks. (Kim Rahn, Korea Times)
- Vladimir Putin said KJU was "shred and mature" and has won the latest standoff with SK and the West over his nuclear and missile program. (Reuters)
- Many fear a possible war between NK and the US as mutual threats and hostility creating an extremely dangerous environment. But there are plenty of reasons not to panic. (Dan Reiter, Washington Post)
- Tillerson will attend a meeting of international foreign ministers in Canada next week to discuss diplomatic efforts on the Korean peninsula. (Reuters)
- U.S. Secretary of State Rex Tillerson will travel to Canada next week to co-host an international foreign ministerial meeting on addressing NK's nuclear and ballistic missile programs. (Yonhap)
- Trump voiced hope Wednesday that recent high-level talks between South and North Korea will lead to "success for the world." (Yonhap)
- Trump joked, after a reporter asked him Wednesday about an American general telling troops "there's a war coming," that the general could "know something that I don't know." (Dan Merica, CNN)
- Trump said on Wednesday after the first inter-Korean talks in over two years that the US was willing to speak to NK “under the right circumstances,” although it was far from clear whether this would pay dividends. (Steve Holland, Christine Kim, Reuters)
- After months of apocalyptic rhetoric and mockery of "Little Rocket Man," KJU, Trump is offering to open dialogue when it's "appropriate," and even says he's willing to talk to KJU himself. (Stephen Collinson and Nicole Gaouette, CNN)
- The UNSC is welcoming talks between the two Koreas saying they can open “possibilities for confidence building and trust building on the Korean peninsula.” (AP)
- Moon received support from Xi for inter-Korea dialogue following a recent round of talks between North and South at Panmunjom. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)

Prepared by James Park, HRNK Research Intern

————————————————

Friday, January 12, 2018

S.K. offers working-level talks with N.K. on Olympics next week; N.K. calls for total suspension of Seoul-Washington military drills

In North Korea:
Kim Jong-un visits science academy in his first inspection this year (Yonhap, 01/12/2018)
Kim Jong Un's economic plans - realistic or not? (DailyNK, 01/12/2018)

N.K.'s art troupe set to take stage in S. Korea for rare performance (Yonhap, 01/12/2018)
North Korea and Cyber Catastrophe—Don't Hold Your Breath (38 North, 01/12/2018)
North Koreans excited but cautious over participation in Pyeongchang Olympics (DailyNK, 01/12/2018)
North Korea may prepare nuclear test (Korea Times, 01/12/2018)
Satellite imagery shows tunneling at N.K. nuclear test site (Yonhap, 01/12/2018)
Satellite (Wisong) Scientists Street Announced (sort of) (nkeconwatch, 01/12/2018)

In South Korea:
S. Korea approves relief fund for firms hit by severed inter-Korean economic cooperation (Yonhap, 01/12/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
(LEAD) Kang, Tillerson discuss follow-up measures, coordination after recent inter-Korean talks (Yonhap, 01/12/2018)
(LEAD) S. Korea offers working-level talks with N.K. on Olympics next week (Yonhap, 01/12/2018)
A precarious situation (Joongang Ilbo, 01/12/2018)
N.K. calls for total suspension of Seoul-Washington military drills (Yonhap, 01/12/2018)
North Korea media calls for termination of all U.S. military exercises in South (UPI, 01/12/2018)
North Korea Olympic team transportation could violate sanctions (UPI, 01/12/2018)
North Korea will join Olympics, military talks planned (Joongang Ilbo, 01/12/2018)
S. Korea's military not rushing to talks with N. Korea: official (Yonhap, 01/12/2018)
S. Korea notifies N.K. of plan to repatriate bodies found in boat (Yonhap, 01/12/2018)
S. Korea proposed unified Korean team in women's hockey at PyeongChang 2018: official (Yonhap, 01/12/2018)
S.Korea Proposes Meeting With N.Korea to Discuss Olympics (NYT, 01/12/2018)
S. Korea, U.S. in talks to develop ties with N.K.: envoy (Yonhap, 01/12/2018)
Sports have their limits (Joongang Ilbo, 01/12/2018)

International:
(LEAD) Ministers to discuss maritime interdiction at N.K. meeting in Canada (Yonhap, 01/12/2018)
Abe defends 2015 deal, may skip Olympics (Joongang Ilbo, 01/12/2018)
As Sanctions Bite, China Trade With North Korea Plummets (VOA, 01/12/2018)
China's imports from North Korea plummet in December, lowest for four years (Reuters, 01/12/2018)
China's trade with North Korea plunges as sanctions tighten (Washington Post, 01/12/2018)
Demand for antiradiation drug jumps after Trump nuclear tweet (CNN, 01/11/2018)
It's time to accept a nuclear North Korea (Washington Post, 01/12/2018)
Japan PM rejects South Korean call for new steps to help 'comfort women' (Reuters, 01/12/2018)
Korea talks ease war fears in Washington, but for how long? (Reuters, 01/12/2018)
The Korean crisis will resume — after the Olympics (Washington Post, 01/11/2018)
Trump claims a 'relationship' with North's Kim (Joongang Ilbo, 01/12/2018)
Trump suggests 'good relationship' with N.K. leader, signaling more efforts on diplomacy (Yonhap, 01/12/2018)
Trump Suggests He Has 'Very Good Relationship' With North Korea's Kim (VOA, 01/11/2018)
Trump won't say whether he has talked to Kim Jong Un (CNN, 01/12/2018)
U.N. group asks N. Korea to determine whereabouts of 27 missing persons (Yonhap, 01/12/2018)
U.S. must send clear signals to reopen talks with N.K.: expert (Yonhap, 01/12/2018)

Yes, North Korea could drive a wedge between the U.S. and South Korea (Washington Post, 01/12/2018)

In North Korea:

- KJU visited a state science academy in his first public outing since the New Year address and praised the country's scientific forces as the backbone of overcoming international sanctions. (Yonhap)
- It is hard to imagine that Kim will be able to use scientific technology alone to compensate for a lack of resources to mass produce and expand the state economy to the extent that it begins to improve the people's lives. (DailyNK)
- A rare performance by a NK art troupe will take place soon in SK amid a mixed sense of curiosity and doubt over the North's intent. (Yonhap)
- The heightened tension over NK's nuclear weapons programs, combined with growing NK cyber capabilities, has led some to conclude that NK may launch cyber-attacks against US critical infrastructure. (James A. Lewis, 38 North)
- While North Koreans hope to see their country represented on the world stage, NK people are expressing doubts that despite KJU's political efforts, not many athletes may be able to participate. (Kang Mi Jin, DailyNK)
- North Korea appears engaged in preparing for a nuclear test. The activity involves in significant tunneling on the west side of its main nuclear test site. (Oh Young-jin, Korea Times)
- NK has carried out significant tunneling on the west side of its main nuclear test site, indicating the potential for another bomb detonation. (Yonhap)
- While KJU was touring the newly renovated history museum, he was photographed in front of a map that advertised the plan for "Phase 2" of the Wisong Scientists Street. (nkeconwatch)

In South Korea:

- The government has decided to provide a total of 18.3 billion won (US$17.2 million) in relief to South Korean companies affected by years of suspended inter-Korean economic cooperation. (Yonhap)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- The top diplomats of SK and US had a phone conversation Friday to discuss the outcome of recent inter-Korean talks and ways to strengthen their coordination on major issues of mutual concern. (Yonhap)
- SK on Friday proposed working-level talks with NK next week to discuss details of the North's participation in the PyeongChang Winter Olympics. (Yonhap)
- NK's representatives insisted that Seoul and Washington stop joint military exercises. NK takes the position that denuclearization cannot be a subject of discussion, no matter what. (Joongang Ilbo)
- NK's propaganda outlet called for the total suspension of joint military drills between SK and the US in response to the allies' decision to delay them until after the PyeongChang Winter Olympics. (Yonhap)

- Fast-thawing relations between NK and SK have renewed enthusiasm for the 2018 Winter Olympics, but NK may be using the momentum to request other concessions from Seoul. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- SK could face difficulties if NK decides to use the Man Gyong Bong to dispatch its Olympians to the 2018 Pyeongchang Winter Olympics. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- SK and NK agreed to hold working-level meetings in the near future to discuss NK's participation in the Winter Olympics, boost inter-Korean cooperation in various fields, have military officials meet to defuse tension on the Korean Peninsula. (Joongang Ilbo)
- SK has no plan to offer a date for the agreed-upon military talks with NK until the decision on the size of its delegation to the PyeongChang Winter Olympics. (Yonhap)
- SK contacted NK via the recently reopened border hotline to repatriate the bodies of four people presumed to be North Koreans and found in a boat adrift in the East Sea. (Yonhap)
- SK has proposed assembling a joint women's hockey team with NK at the upcoming PyeongChang Winter Olympics. (Yonhap)
- SK said Friday it has proposed a meeting with NK next week to discuss details of its participation in Pyeongchang Winter Olympics. (AP)
- SK and US are in talks over how to develop ties with NK in the wake of the regime's recent overture leading to the first dialogue in two years. (Yonhap)
- SK must not raise too much hope about NK's participation in the PyeongChang Games. No matter how many gold medals a joint Korean team wins, the NK threat does not go away. (Nam Heong-ho, Joongang Ilbo)

International:

- Foreign ministers from more than a dozen nations will discuss ways to stop NK's sanctions evasion through maritime interdiction when they meet in Canada next week. (Yonhap)
- Abe flatly rejected Moon's position that the 2015 agreement between the two countries doesn't settle the issue of the Japanese military's wartime sexual enslavement of Korean women. (Ser Myo-ja, Joongang Ilbo)
- China's trade with NK plunged 50 percent in December as U.N. sanctions imposed over Pyongyang's nuclear and missile development tightened. (AP)
- China's imports from NK plunged in December to their lowest level in dollar terms since 2014, with trade curbed by U.N. sanctions aimed at persuading NK to abandon its ballistic missile and nuclear weapons programs. (Yawen Chen, Ryan Woo, Reuters)
- China's trade with NK plunged 50 percent in December as U.N. sanctions imposed over Pyongyang's nuclear and missile development tightened. (Joe McDonald, AP)
- A Twitter battle over the size of each "nuclear button" possessed by Trump and KJU has spiked sales of a drug that protects against radiation poisoning. (JoNel Aleccia, Kaiser Health News)
- NK's regime clearly believes that it is in its national interest to have a nuclear shield. Sanctions will not work. (John Wood, Washington Post)
- Abe rejected SK's call for more steps to help "comfort women", a euphemism for women forced to work in Japan's wartime military brothels, and urged Seoul to honor a 2015 pact on the divisive topic. (Reuters)
- Talks between NK an SK have eased fears of war, but any reduction in tensions could prove shortlived as KJU has shown no sign of willingness to give in to U.S. demands and negotiate away a weapons program. (John Walcott, David Brunnstrom, Reuters)

- Though NK's participatin in the Winter Olympics would decrease the tension between NK, ROK, and the US, it is only temporary and the Korean crisis will resume. (David Ignatius, Washington Post)
- Trump bragged about having a "very good relationship" with KJU despite his past insults of the NK leader, describing himself as a "very flexible person" who can build rapport with someone "all of a sudden." (Lee Sung-eun, Joongang Ilbo)
- Trump hinted that he has developed a "good relationship" with KJU in an interview, raising expectations that he could pursue more diplomacy in dealing with Pyongyang's nuclear and missile threats. (Yonhap)
- Trump has suggested he is on very good terms with KJU despite their recent debate over whose desk has a bigger nuclear button. (VOA)
- Trump would not say whether he has talked with KJU, saying he "probably" has a good relationship with the rogue leader. (Dan Merica, CNN)
- The U.N. Working Group on Enforced or Involuntary Disappearances (WGEID) has asked the NK government to carry out probes into 27 enforced disappearances. (Yonhap)
- US could hold talks with NK if it demonstrates its sincerity, such as by suspending joint military exercises with SK, a US expert said. (Yonhap)
- Critics of NK-SK talks warn that KJU may be reaching out to Seoul to drive a wedge in the U.S.-ROK alliance. (Oriana Skylar Mastro, Arzan Tarapore, Washington Post)

Prepared by James Park, HRNK Research Intern

——————————————————

Saturday, January 13, 2018

Kim Jong Un's economic plans - realistic or not?; IOC considering joint Korean hockey team proposal: N. Korea's IOC member

In North Korea:

Could North Korea's military-themed 'Spice Girls' make a show at the Winter Olympics? (The Telegraph, 01/12/2018)
Kim Jong Un's economic plans - realistic or not? (DailyNK, 01/12/2018)
National Campaign to Purge 'Non-socialist' Elements Terrifies North Koreans (RFA, 01/12/2018)
North Korean soaps turn to romance and travails of modern life as they seek to woo youth and Pyongyang elite (The Telegraph, 01/13/2018)
North Korean state media hail talks with South as path to reunification (CNN, 01/13/2018)
'Significant tunneling' detected at Punggye-ri (The Korea Times, 01/12/2018)

In South Korea:

(News Focus) Forming joint Korean Olympic hockey team challenging on many levels (Yonhap, 01/13/2018)
S. Korea to install additional artificial reefs near western sea border (Yonhap, 01/13/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

(LEAD) N. Korea proposes to hold working-level talks next week on art troupe's visit to S. Korea (Yonhap, 01/13/2018)
(LEAD) S. Korea agrees to meet N. Korea on Monday over art troupe's visit to Olympics (Yonhap, 01/13/2018)
Bobsled Diplomacy: Rival Koreas May Share Sled at Olympics (The Washington Post, 01/13/2018)
N. Korea yet to respond to S. Korea's Olympics talks proposal (Yonhap, 01/12/2013)
Olympics Officials Discuss a Potential First: A Unified Korean Hockey Team (The New York Times, 01/2013)
Rival Koreas Agree to Talk on Art Troupe's Visit to Olympics (The New York Times, 01/13/2018)
S. Korea preparing for Pyongyang's possible participation in PyeongChang Paralympics (Yonhap, 01/12/2018)
South and North Korea discuss joint women's ice hockey team for Olympics (The Guardian, 01/13/2018)
South Korea and North Korea to hold working-level talks on January 15 (Reuters, 01/13/2018)
South Korea says North Korea suggested talks to send performance group to winter olympics (Reuters, 01/13/2018)
South Korea Suggests Combined Olympics Women's Hockey Team With North (VOA, 01/13/208)

International:
2 N. Korean defectors die in boat sinking: activist (Yonhap, 01/13/2018)
Economic chiefs of S. Korea, China to hold talks next month (Yonhap, 01/12/2018)
Inter-Korea talks unwelcome only in Japan (The Korea Times, 01/12/2018)
IOC considering joint Korean hockey team proposal: N. Korea's IOC member (Yonhap, 01/13/2018)
North Korea says IOC is considering South Korea's proposal for united women's hockey team: Yonhap (Reuters, 01/12/2018)
Trump asked why 'pretty Korean lady' analyst wasn't negotiating with North Korea (The Guardian, 01/13/2018)
U.S. and allies must work more closely on North Korea: Japan expert (Reuters, 01/13/2018)
U.S. hails China's reduction of trade with N. Korea (Yonhap, 01/12/2018)
US, Japan Hold Joint Military Drill Amid Korea Tensions (VOA, 01/12/2018)
What does North Korea want from the Olympics? An expert in the politics of sports explains. (The Washington Post, 01/13/2018)
Will PyeongChang bring US, North Korea back to table? (The Korea Times, 01/12/2018)
With North Korea in Mind, Japan's Abe Strengthens Ties to Europe (VOA, 01/12/2018)

In North Korea:

- NK's decision this week to send an art troupe to accompany its athletes to SK's Winter Olympics in February has sparked excited speculation on the Korean Peninsula about which high octane performance might take the stage. (Nicola Smith, The Telegraph)
- The New Year's address provides insights into KJU's frame of mind and his thoughts on new policy directions. This year—in addition to laying out his positions and proposals on matters including foreign relations, the status of North-South relations, and extensions of themes and contents previously seen in past addresses—he used the new phrase "domestification" (which implies national autonomy), to describe accomplishments in various sectors. These sectors include nuclear weapons and foreign policy, NK military, economic interests, and scientific technology. (Lee Geun Young, DailyNK)

- NK residents are terrified that leader KJU's recent call to eliminate remaining "non-socialist" elements in society will mean a return to the bloody executions and fearful politics of the past when nonconformists were weeded out and brutally neutralized, sources inside the country said. (Kim Jieun, Jun Leejin, Roseanne Gerin, RFA)
- NK soap operas are turning away from plot-lines featuring heroic soldiers and workers devoting themselves to the party to instead focus on the material benefits - laptop computers, fashionable clothes, gold watches - of being loyal citizens. (Julian Ryall, The Telegraph)
- A NK state newspaper is celebrating the country's leader over the resumption of face-to-face talks with the South, saying KJU's policy to improve relations were "brilliant" for "national reunification." (Pauline Lockwood, Jason Hanna, CNN)
- Tunnel excavation has been detected at NK's Punggye-ri nuclear test site, a website analyzing NK said Friday. (Kim Bo-eun, The Korea Times)

In South Korea:

- Forming a joint women's hockey team with NK at the upcoming Winter Olympics will present a series of challenges for SK on many levels, despite the government's pledge to minimize any negative impact. (Yoo Jee-ho, Yonhap)
- SK will install additional artificial reefs near the western maritime border with NK to prevent illegal fishing by Chinese vessels, the provincial government said Saturday. In July, NK condemned the artificial reef structures as part of Seoul's military provocations against Pyongyang's maritime demarcation line. (Yonhap)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- NK offered to hold a working-level meeting with SK next week to discuss details of its plan to send an art troupe to the South during next month's PyeongChang Winter Olympics, the unification ministry said Saturday. (Yonhap)
- SK on Saturday agreed to meet NK next week over the latter's plan to send an art troupe south of the border during the upcoming PyeongChang Winter Olympics. (Yonhap)
- Sliders from North Korea and South Korea may share a four-man sled at next month's games, with coaching provided by top international officials from Italy and the United States. (Tim Reynolds, AP)
- NK has given no response yet to SK's proposal to hold working-level talks next week to discuss details of the North's participation in the upcoming Winter Olympics in the South, an official said Saturday. (Yonhap)
- SK has proposed that NK join it in fielding a unified women's hockey team at the Winter Olympics next month, in what would be a first for the Games and a potentially dramatic emblem of the recent turn toward rapprochement on the Korean Peninsula. (Choe Sang-Hun, The New York Times)
- The rival Koreas have agreed Saturday that their talks next week will address a NK art troupe's visit to the Pyeongchang Winter Olympics in the South, rather than the participation of the nation's athletes. (The Associated Press)

- SK's Paralympic committee said Friday it is preparing to invite NK to the PyeongChang Winter Paralympics, which are slated for March, amid hope of inter-Korean reconciliation through sporting events. (Yonhap)
- SK has proposed fielding a joint women's ice hockey team with NK at next month's Winter Olympics, days after Pyongyang agreed to send a large delegation to the Games. (Justin McCurry, The Guardian)
- NK and SK have agreed to hold working-level talks at the Tongil Pavilion on the NK side of the truce village of Panmunjom on Jan. 15, SK's unification ministry said in a statement on Saturday. (Reuters Staff, Reuters)
- SK's unification ministry said on Saturday that NK has proposed working-level talks on the prospects of sending its performance 'art' group to the winter olympics held in the South. (Reuters Staff, Reuters)
- South Korea has suggested the formation of a combined women's hockey team with North Korea to compete at the Winter Olympics next month, a potential landmark development in relations between the bitter rivals. (VOA)

International:

- A small boat carrying 12 NK female defectors recently sank in the Mekong River on the border of Laos and Thailand, killing two of them, a human rights activist in SK said Saturday. (Yonhap)
- The top economic policymakers from SK and China will hold a bilateral meeting early next month, the Ministry of Strategy and Finance said Friday, restarting regular talks that have been halted for 21 months over a missile row. (Yonhap)
- While the rest of the international community welcomes the resumption of the inter-Korean dialogue and NK's decision to attend the PyeongChang Winter Olympics, Japan has shown a skeptical stance toward the talks. (Kim Bo-eun, The Korea Times)
- The International Olympic Committee is considering a proposal that South and North Korea form a joint women's hockey team at next month's PyeongChang Winter Games, the North's IOC member Chang Ung said Saturday. (Yonhap)
- NK's International Olympics Committee (IOC) official said it is considering SK's proposal for a united female hockey team, Yonhap news agency reported on Saturday. (Reuters Staff, Reuters)
- Amid global furor over his recent reported remarks, Donald Trump faced further controversy on Friday when it was reported that he referred to an intelligence analyst presenting information to him in the Oval Office as a "pretty Korean lady" and suggested she should be part of negotiations with NK. (Martin Pengelly, The Guardian)
- The US, SK, and Japan must coordinate more closely on NK, with whom they are engaged in a "pre-negotiation bargaining process", a former Japanese defense official told Reuters. (Stephanie Nebehay, Reuters)
- The US on Friday hailed the reduction of trade between China and NK, saying it supports global efforts to end the North's nuclear and ballistic missile programs. (Yonhap)
- US and Japanese military forces have launched joint exercises amid tensions with NK over its nuclear and ballistic missile programs.
  (Carla Babb, VOA)
- NK's participation in the upcoming Winter Olympics in PyeongChang may seem to be a change of pace after months of military tension. But NK has a long history in international sporting events, and has frequently been accused of using its participation for political ends. (Adam Taylor, The Washington Post)

- After the two Koreas agreed to resume dialogue, hopes are running high there will also be positive changes in the relations between US and NK. (Yi Whan-woo, The Korea Times)
- Japan's prime minister Friday landed in Estonia, his first stop on a tour of the Baltic states and other European nations as he seeks to drum up support for his hawkish stance on NK. (Agence France Presse, VOA)

Prepared by Jinny Ahn, HRNK Research Intern

Sunday, January 14, 2018

The Transition of Trump's N.K. Policy and decreasing number of N.K. defectors in the US; N.K. slams Moon for lauding Trump's role in opening up inter-Korean talks; Trump denies saying he has good relationship with N.K. leader

Top News:
[Video] Washington Talk: The Transition of Trump's North Korea Policy and decreasing number of North Korean defectors in the US (VOA Korea, 01/13/2018)

In North Korea:
The coach who helped North Korea's skaters qualify for the Olympics (BBC, 01/14/2018)

In South Korea:
S. Korea's FM to attend Vancouver meeting to discuss N.K. issues (Yonhap, 01/14/2018)
The cost of ignoring Japan (Joongang Ilbo, 01/14/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
(LEAD) 2 Koreas to hold working-level talks this week on details of art troupe's trip (Yonhap, 01/14/2018)
(LEAD) N. Korea slams Moon for lauding Trump's role in opening up inter-Korean talks (Yonhap, 01/14/2018)
N. Korea emphasizes reconciliation, calls for expanded inter-Korean exchanges (Yonhap, 01/14/2018)
North, South will meet again over arts group's visit (Joongang Ilbo, 01/14/2018)
South Korea and North Korea to hold working-level talks on Jan. 15 (Reuters, 01/14/2018)

International:
Administration plan sees deterrence in new nuclear firepower (Washington Post, 01/14/2018)
A wave of panic rattles Hawaii after false missile alert (Washington Post, 01/14/2018)
Ballistic missile warning sent in error by Hawaii authorities (Reuters, 01/13/2018)
Gabbard: 'Unacceptable' false alarm missile warning in Hawaii underscores need for talks with North Korea (CNN, 01/14/2018)

Hawaii congresswoman says false alarm shows Trump's failure on North Korea (Guardian, 01/14/2018)
Hawaii False Missile Alert Explained: Worker 'Pushed Wrong Button' (VOA, 01/13/2018)
Hawaii False Alarm Hints at Thin Line Between Mishap and Nuclear War (NYT, 01/14/2018)
'Is this the end of my life?': False alert of missile attack sends Hawaii scrambling (Washington Post, 01/14/2018)
New Trump Policy Could Strengthen Role of Nuclear Weapons (VOA, 01/13/2018)
Nuclear deterrence is a myth. And a lethal one at that (Guardian, 01/14/2018)
Trump denies saying he has good relationship with N.K. leader (Yonhap, 01/14/2018)
Trump's dilemma (Joongang Ilbo, 01/14/2018)
Trump Escalates a Dispute With The Wall Street Journal Over a Quotation (NYT, 01/14/2018)
White House attacks WSJ over Trump interview (CNN, 01/14/2018)
White House claims Wall Street Journal misquoted Trump as saying he has a good relationship with Kim Jong Un (Washington Post, 01/14/2018)

Top News:

- HRNK Executive Director Greg Scarlatoiu discusses North Korea issues of the week, particularly regarding potential US-NK talks and the decreasing number of North Korean defectors in the US. (VOA Korea)

In North Korea:

- Canadian figure skating coach Bruno Marcotte will be watching closely when NK's figure skating team takes to the ice in Pyeongchang during the Olympics. (BBC)

In South Korea:

- SK's top diplomat is to join a gathering of ministers from 16 countries to be held in Canada this week to discuss issues related to security and stability on the Korean Peninsula. (Yonhap)
- Japan adheres to the position that NK's policies should be changed through maximum pressure. It may be hard to win the support of the US without Japan's backing. SK also cannot rule out the possibility that Japan may seek relations with NK. (Joongang Ilbo)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- Two Koreas will hold working-level talks this week to work out details on the North's participation in next month's Winter Olympic Games. (Yonhap)
- NK slammed President Moon for his recent press conference remark that Trump has to be credited for helping open up inter-Korean talks. NK also threatened a withdrawal of its participation in the 2018 PyeongChang Olympics. (Yonhap)
- NK's state media emphasized the importance of reconciliation and unity between the two Koreas and also called for expanded inter-Korean exchanges in a way that would be conductive to reunification. (Yonhap)
- Representatives from Seoul and Pyongyang will convene again near the border to discuss a NK performing arts group's visit to the South next month for the PyeongChang Winter Olympics. (Lee Sung-eun, Joongang Ilbo)
- NK and SK have agreed to hold working-level talks at the Tongil Pavilion on the NK side of the truce village of Panmunjom on Jan. 15. (Reuters)

International:

- With Russia in mind, the Trump administration is aiming to develop new nuclear firepower that it says will make it easier to deter threats to European allies. (Robert Burns, AP)
- The second recent blunder in Hawaii's planning for a possible NK nuclear attack left islanders shaken after an emergency alert warning of an imminent strike sounded on hundreds of thousands of cellphones. (Caleb Jones and Audrey McAvoy, AP)
- An emergency alert was sent mistakenly to Hawaii's residents warning of an imminent ballistic missile attack when an employee at the state emergency management agency pushed the "wrong button," Hawaii's governor said. (Jolyn Rosa, Reuters)
- The false ballistic missile warning in Hawaii was "unacceptable" and points to a need for Trump to negotiate with NK directly. (Eli Watkins, CNN)
- The false alarm about a ballistic missile strike that terrified Hawaii on Saturday showed Trump's policy on NK is wrong (Martin Pengelly, Guardian)
- Hawaii Governor David Ige said the false missile alert that panicked islanders was "totally unacceptable" and said the warning was caused by human error. (VOA)
- Nuclear experts are warning that Hawaii's false alarm, in which state agencies alerted locals to a nonexistent missile attack, underscores a growing risk of unintended nuclear war with NK. (Max Fisher, NYT)
- The incident underscored the already heightened level of anxiety amid mounting tensions with NK over its nuclear arsenal and the menacing social media exchanges between Trump and KJU. (Amy B Wang, Dan Lamothe and Greg Miller, Washington Post)
- Trump's administration could pursue development of new nuclear weaponry and explicitly leave open the possibility of nuclear retaliation for major non-nuclear attacks, if a leaked draft policy document becomes reality. (Reuters)
- Nuclear deterrence continues to dominate international relations. Yet there is no proof it ever worked, nor that it ever will. (David P Barash, Guardian)
- Trump said a newspaper misquoted him as saying that he has a good relationship with KJU, when in fact he said he "would" have a good relationship with Kim. (Yonhap)
- The emergence of North-South dialogue just as the pressure campaign on NK was reaching its apex clearly presented Washington with a dilemma. (Michael Green, Joongang Ilbo)
- Trump ratcheted up a dispute with The Wall Street Journal, accusing the newspaper of purposely misquoting him as saying in an interview that he has a good relationship with KJU (Michael D. Shear, NYT)
- White House criticizes WSJ misquoting Trump's comment on his relationship with KJU, saying Trump said ""I'd probably have a very good relationship with KJU" instead of "I probably have a very good...." (Rob McLean, CNN)
- Trump claimed Sunday that the Wall Street Journal deliberately misquoted him as saying that he probably has a good relationship with KJU. (Anne Gearan, Washington Post)

Prepared by James Park, HRNK Research Intern

——————————————————

Monday, January 15, 2018

N.K. orchestra to perform in South during Olympics amid easing tensions; N.K. slams U.S. for throwing cold water on warming inter-Korean ties

In North Korea:
Bribes needed for spot on Olympic cheer squad (Daily NK, 01/15/2018)
North Korea announces "Naenara" brand vehicles (NK Economy Watch, 01/15/2018)
Public prison camp executions belied state propaganda for former prisoner (Daily NK, 01/15/2018)
Residents angered by continued government demands to provide material aid for construction projects (Daily NK, 01/15/2018)

In South Korea:
S. Koreans turn in favor of N. Korea's Olympic participation (Yonhap, 01/14/2018)
Staying alert (Joongang Ilbo, 01/16/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
Can South Korea stomach North Korea's girl band? (Korea Times, 01/15/2018)
How far is South Korea willing to go to meet Kim Jong-un's demands over the Winter Olympics? (Telegraph, 01/15/2018)
Koreas would march behind 'Korean Unification' flag in joint Olympic entrance: minister (Yonhap, 01/15/2018)
North and South Korea meet again to discuss Winter Olympics (CNN, 01/15/2018)
North Korean orchestra to perform in South during Olympics amid easing tensions (Reuters, 01/15/2018)
North Korea talks: Baby steps in a big, complex picture (CNN, 01/15/2018)
Police to beef up security for N.K. delegation to PyeongChang Olympics (Yonhap, 01/15/2018)
Pyongyang to PyeongChang (Korea Times, 01/15/2018)
Seoul has no plans for joint Korean teams in sports other than women's hockey: official (Yonhap, 01/14/2018)
South Korea Engagement Strategy Requires Daunting Diplomacy (VOA, 01/14/2018)
S. Korea may consider including N.K. in land development plan (Yonhap, 01/14/2018)
S. Korean Olympic body to propose regular inter-Korean sports exchanges (Yonhap, 01/14/2018)
Will Kim Jong Un's favorite band be attending the Winter Olympics? (CNN, 01/15/2018)

International:
(LEAD) Alliance-based diplomacy on N. Korea crucial: U.S. senator (Yonhap, 01/15/2018)
Allies to hold talks on 'extended deterrence' (Yonhap, 01/15/2018)
China absence looms over Canada meeting on how to pressure North Korea (Reuters, 01/15/2018)
(LEAD) Leaders of S. Korea, Mongolia vow to improve ties, work for denuclearization of N. Korea (Yonhap, 01/15/2018)
North Korea meeting to stress importance of sanctions - Canada (Reuters, 01/15/2018)
(LEAD) N.K. slams U.S. for throwing cold water on warming inter-Korean ties (Yonhap, 01/14/2018)
Pope warns world is one step away from nuclear war (Reuters, 01/15/2018)
Russian foreign minister berates US for 'destabilizing' world (CNN, 01/15/2018)
Russia ready to support direct talks on North Korea crisis: Lavrov (Reuters, 01/15/2018)
Russia will not support U.S. bid to change Iran nuclear deal: Lavrov (Reuters, 01/15/2018)

S. Korean FM communicates results of inter-Korean talks to visiting U.S. lawmakers (Yonhap, 01/15/2018)
USFK halts shooting exercises at Rodriguez range after another accident (Yonhap, 01/15/2018)
US moves ships, bombers toward Korea ahead of Olympics (Washington Post, 01/15/2018)
(LEAD) Vice foreign minister to visit U.S. to discuss N.K. issue, attend security meeting (Yonhap, 01/15/2018)

In North Korea:

- Training is underway for NK's new cheerling squad for the 2018 Pyeongchang Olympics. Girls hoping to make the team not only need to meet aptitude requirements, but must also pay bribes to officials in order to stand a chance at selection. (Daily NK)
- The NK news portal "Naenara" announced "Naenara" brand vehicles over the weekend. (NK Economy Watch)
- Interview with Pak Joo-yong, who was born in the Pukchang Concentration Camp and did not escape until he was almost 23. It details his experiences of life in a political prison camp. (Daily NK)
- Since the start of the New Year, N.Korean residents have been receiving orders to provide aid supplies for construction in Samjiyon County as part of perennial efforts to propagandize the town that N. Korean folklore has established was the hometown of KJI. The residents are reacting negatively to this move, as the purpose is to further idolize KJU, rather than to build homes for the people of Samjiyon. (Kang Mi-jin, Daily NK)

In South Korea:

- S. Korean public opinion has swiftly turned positive over NK's participation in the upcoming Winter Olympic Games, since the reclusive country decided last week to join the international event in the South, a local big data analysis firm said Mon. (Yonhap)
- The government must be on alert if NK makes a move to take advantage of the Olympics to accelerate its propaganda through the dispatch of artistes. The Moon administration must not be one-sidedly dragged into dialogue. (Joongang Ilbo)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- The Moranbong Band's performances focus on glorifying dictator KJU while belittling the Seoul government and antagonizing the US. The band sometimes features mockups of NK tanks and performers in military uniforms, describing SK and the U.S. as helpless enemies. Its music and lyrics reflect the North's military-first policy. (Oh Young-jin, Korea Times)
- The two Koreas have very quickly been able to reach a broad agreement on NK taking part in the upcoming Pyeongchang Winter Olympic Games, but there are countless details that need to be solved before the two nations' athletes can walk into the stadium shoulder-to-shoulder for the opening ceremony on Feb 9. (Julian Ryall, T*elegraph*)
- Athletes of the two Koreas would march together behind the "Korean Unification" flag at the opening of the 2018 PyeongChang Winter Olympics in the case the two sides agree on a joint entrance, Seoul's sports minister said Mon. (Yonhap)
- NK and SK are discussing fielding a joint ice hockey team in next month's Winter Olympics, a potential first for the two countries, which have never competed under one flag at the Games. (Joshua Berlinger, Jeyup Kwaak, CNN)
- NK agreed during rare talks on Mon. to send a 140-strong orchestra to perform during the Winter Olympics in SK next month, Seoul said, amid easing tensions after a months-long standoff over the North's weapons programs. (Hyonhee Shin, Christine Kim, Reuters)
- There have been numerous attempts at finding a diplomatic solution to stymie Pyongyang's nuclear ambitions, but each time yielded little long-term gains. Last week's talks and the follow-up, are baby steps in the big picture, analysts say and it's unclear whether they'll eventually help both sides walk toward a solution. (Joshua Berlinger, CNN)

- Police said Mon. that they will beef up security for NK participants in next month's PyeongChang Winter Olympics. (Yonhap)
- With Pyongyang abruptly announcing that it will come to PyeongChang — something Moon has long been pressing and hoping for — spiraling tensions look to, at least temporarily, evaporate. I may be a naive dolt, but I consider this to be, on balance, a good thing. However, the cynics are out in force. (Andrew Salmon, Korea Times)
- Seoul has no plans to push for a joint Korean team in sports other than women's hockey at the upcoming Winter Olympics, a sports ministry official said Mon. (Yonhap)
- After negotiating what seems to be an Olympics truce with NK, Moon now has a chance to test his outreach strategy to achieve the denuclearization of the Korean Peninsula through economic engagement. (Brian Padden, VOA)
- SK may consider including NK in its countrywide land development plans through consultations with related parties, the transport ministry said Mon. (Yonhap)
- SK's Olympic body will propose to its N. Korean counterpart holding regular sports exchanges, when the two sides meet at International Olympic Committee (IOC) headquarters later this week. (Yonhap)
- As talks continue between the two Koreas an unlikely face popped up at the demilitarized zone as diplomats sat down together Mon: Hyon Song-wol, a member of Kim's personal girl band, Moranbong. Her presence suggests Moranbong may be attending next month's Winter Olympics in Pyeongchang, SK. (James Griffiths, CNN)

International:

- Visiting U.S. Sen. Tammy Duckworth (D-IL)mentioned two keywords: alliance and denuclearization, expressing support for SKs talks with the North. (Yonhap)
- SK and the US will open senior-level two-plus-two talks this week on Washington's security commitment, the Ministry of National Defense said Mon. (Yonhap)
- Foreign ministers from around 20 nations gather on Tuesday to discuss how to curb NK's nuclear ambitions through diplomatic and financial pressure, but China, seen as a key player in any long-term solution, will be absent. (David Ljunggren, Reuters)
- Moon and Mongolian Prime Minister Ukhnaa Khurelsukh called for efforts to upgrade their countries' relationship on Mon, while also pledging joint efforts to peacefully denuclearize the Korean Peninsula. (Yonhap)
- A summit on curbing North Korea's nuclear ambitions will focus in part on how to ensure countries fully implement all the sanctions imposed on the reclusive state, a Canadian government source said on Monday. (David Ljunggren, Reuters)
- NK condemned the US on Mon for damaging a thaw in inter-Korean ties, as Washington vows to employ maximum sanctions and pressure until the North gives up its nuclear and ballistic missile programs. (Yonhap)
- Asked if he was worried about the possibility of nuclear war, Pope Francis said: "I think we are at the very limit. I am really afraid of this. One accident is enough to precipitate things." He did not mention Hawaii or NK.(Philip Pullella, Reuters)
- Lavrov criticized the US for issuing regular "threats" in relation to events in North Korea and Iran, saying they had "further destabilized" the global situation. (Emma Burrows, Angela Dewan, Lindsay Isaac, CNN)
- Russian Foreign Minister Sergei Lavrov said on Mon. Moscow is ready to support direct talks between parties involved in the NK missile crisis. (Reuters)

- Russian Foreign Minister Sergei Lavrov said on Mon. Moscow will not support attempts by Washington to modify the Iran nuclear deal, arguing such a move could also complicate diplomacy over NK's nuclear weapons program. (Reuters)
- In a meeting with visiting US lawmakers (Senator Tammy Duckworth and Arizona Representative Ruben Gallego), SK's top diplomat (Foreign Minister Kang Kyung-wha) on Mon. discussed NK's participation in the 2018 PyeongChang Winter Olympics and called for US Congress' support for the successful hosting of the event. (Yonhap)
- U.S. Forces Korea (USFK) has again suspended the operation of an accident-prone firing range close to the border with NK following a probe into the latest case of stray bullets found in a nearby area, the Ministry of National Defense said Mon. (Yonhap)
- The U.S. is beefing up its presence around the Korean Peninsula ahead of next month's Winter Olympics by deploying stealth bombers, at least one extra aircraft carrier and a new amphibious assault ship to the region. (Eric Talmadge, AP)
- Vice Foreign Minister Lim Sung-nam, a senior SK diplomat will visit the US this week to discuss cooperation on NK and other security issues, the foreign ministry here said Mon. (Yonhap)

Prepared by Emma Stubblefield, HRNK Research Intern

——————————————————

Tuesday, January 16, 2018

North Korea Nuclear Talks: Greg Scarlatoiu on BBC; Top diplomats of S.K, US, Japan likely to hold trilateral meeting in Vancouver; Japan public TV sends mistaken North Korean missile alert

Top News:
North Korea Nuclear Talks: Greg Scarlatoiu on BBC (BBC, 01/16/2018)

In North Korea:
N. Korea calls for complete stop of S. Korea-U.S. joint drills (Yonhap, 01/16/2018)
North Koreans feel economic pain, even if Kim boasts success (DailyNK, 01/16/2018)
North Korea Mocks Trump's 'Nuclear Button' Boast (VOA, 01/16/2018)
North Korea calls Trump a 'lunatic' and a 'loser' in response to nuclear button tweet(Washington Post, 01/16/2018)
Photo shows forced work mobilization of residents in Hyesan (DailyNK, 01/16/2018)

In South Korea:
DP head is eager to help inter-Korean talks (Joongang Ilbo, 01/16/2018)
Opposition moves to defend NIS (Joongang Ilbo, 01/16/2018)
S. Korea hockey coach says 'damage' inevitable if N. Koreans are added for Olympics (Yonhap, 01/16/2018)
South Korean police prep security for North Korean Olympic visitors (UPI, 01/15/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
(LEAD) Koreas exchange list of delegates for talks on Olympics (Yonhap, 01/16/2018)
(6th LD) N.K. to send 140-member art troupe to S. Korea during Winter Olympics (*Yonhap*01/15/2018)
Experts wary of North Korea using Olympic art troupe for propaganda purposes (*Daily*NK, 01/16/2018)
Final-NK art troupe to Olympics is rarely known (Korea Times, 01/16/2018)
Going crazy over the Games (Joongang Ilbo, 01/16/2018)
In symbolic move, N.K. art troupe likely to walk across tense border (Yonhap, 01/16/2018)
North Korea's 140-strong troupe may cross over at DMZ (Joongang Ilbo, 01/16/2018)
N. Korea requests delay in return of four bodies (Yonhap, 01/16/2018)
North Korea slams Moon for giving Trump credit for talks (Korea Times, 01/15/2018)
North Korea to send 140-member troupe to South; to hold concerts in Seoul, Gangneung (Korea Times, 01/16/2018)
North Korea to send orchestra to Winter Olympics as talks continue over single flag at opening ceremony (Telegraph, 01/16/2018)
N. Korean talent not enough to make difference for S. Korea on joint hockey team: coach (Yonhap, 01/16/2018)
North Korea warns against joint drills with South; U.S. deploys bombers (UPI, 01/16/2018)
Plan for joint Olympics team with North gets icy reception in South Korea (Reuters, 01/16/2018)
South Korea refuses to send back 12 North Korean defectors (UPI, 01/16/2018)
When North and South played together (Joongang Ilbo, 01/16/2018)

International:
(LEAD) Top diplomats of S. Korea, U.S., Japan likely to hold trilateral meeting in Vancouver (Yonhap, 01/16/2018)
Can the U.S. and Russia work together? A new poll suggests some shared foreign policy goals (Washington Post, 01/16/2018)
Canada pledges solidarity with S. Korea over handling N. Korean nukes (Yonhap, 01/16/2018)
China, Russia slam meeting in Vancouver as outmoded (Joongang Ilbo, 01/16/2018)
Did the U.S. underestimate North Korea's weapons program? It's not that simple. (Washington Post, 01/16/2018)
First Hawaii, now Japan sends a false alarm about incoming North Korean missile (Washington Post, 01/16/2018)
Japan issues false alarm over missile launch, days after Hawaii alert gaffe (Reuters, 01/16/2018)
Japan's national broadcaster wrongly sends out North Korea missile warning - days after Hawaii sent accidental emergency message (Telegraph, 01/16/2018)
Japanese broadcaster issues North Korean missile alert by mistake (Guardian, 01/16/2018)
Japanese Broadcaster Issues False Alert of North Korean Missile Strike (VOA, 01/16/2018)
Japanese broadcaster apologizes after false North Korea missile alert (CNN, 01/16/2018)
Japan investigates how to evacuate citizens from South Korea in crisis: report (Reuters, 01/16/2018)
Japan public TV sends mistaken North Korean missile alert (Washington Post, 01/16/2018)
North Korean Defector Speaks Out After China Repatriates Family (VOA, 01/16/2018)
Russian, US and other ministers expected at UN meetings (Washington Post, 01/16/2018)
Russia's hidden world of North Korean labor (CNN, 01/16/2018)
The case for using military force against North Korea (UPI, 01/16/2018)
The Latest: SK Says Talks With NK a 'Significant First Step' (NYT, 01/16/2018)
The Hawaii alert was an accident. The dread it inspired wasn't. (Washington Post, 01/16/2018)

Trump's first year of diplomacy finds friends and foes (CNN, 01/16/2018)
Trump Talks North Korea, Trade With Chinese President Xi (NYT, 01/16/2018)
US advises travellers to North Korea to write will and make funeral arrangements (Telegraph, 01/16/2018)
US allies from Korean War meet on North Korean nuke threat (Washington Post, 01/16/2018)
US and Canada will host North Korea nuclear meeting (CNN, 01/15/2018)
U.S. warns against visiting North (Joongang Ilbo, 01/16/2018)
Vancouver meeting focuses on sanctions as Koreas explore detente (Reuters, 01/16/2018)
Vancouver Talks Focus on Pressuring North Korea (VOA, 01/16/2018)
Xi tells Trump: hard-earned peace on Korean peninsula 'must continue' (Korea Times, 01/16/2018)

Top News:

- HRNK Executive Greg Scarlatoiu discusses various North Korea issues including the recent N.K.-S.K. meeting. (HRNK)

In North Korea:

- N.K. propaganda outlets repeated their calls for S.K. to totally stop its joint military drills with the US, claiming their temporary halt does not mean the abatement of war danger on the Korean Peninsula. (Yonhap)
- As the number of sanctioned items continues to grow, merchants trading in N.K's markets are complaining that they "have no future." KJU and the authorities are demanding loyalty funds so that they can weather the storm. (Kim Sung Il, DailyNK)
- N.K. has issued another salvo in the war of words with Trump, calling a recent boast about the size of his "nuclear button" as compared to KJU's as the "spasm of a lunatic." (VOA)
- N.K.'s official news agency responded to Trump's controversial "nuclear button tweet," describing it as the "spasm of a lunatic." (Rick Noack, Washington Post)
- A source inside N.K. has sent a photo of local residents mobilized to work on a road and rail construction project in Hyesan, Ryanggang Province. (DailyNK)

In South Korea:

- The leader of S.K.'s ruling Democratic Party voiced her willingness to play a mediating role that would allow ongoing inter-Korean talks to lead to dialogue between the US and N.K. (Yonhap)
- Moon's initiative to redistribute investigative powers from the NIS and prosecution to police and overhaul the judicial system is facing strong resistance by opposition parties, prosecutors and members of the intelligence community. (Joongang Ilbo)
- S.K. women's hockey head coach Sarah Murray said her players will suffer "damage" if N.K. players are added to the team for next month's Winter Olympics. (Yonhap)
- S.K. police are preparing to ramp up security protection for North Koreans attending the Pyeongchang Winter Olympics next month. (Jennie Oh, UPI)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- S.K. and N.K. exchanged lists of delegates for this week's working-level talks on the North's participation in the PyeongChang Winter Olympics. (Yonhap)
- N.K. agreed to send a 140-member art troupe including an orchestra to S.K. during next month's PyeongChang Winter Olympics. (Yonhap)
- Analysis of the North's agenda during working-level talks in Panmunjom reveals that N.K. is openly indicating its intention to use the Olympics for propaganda purposes. (Ha Yoon Ah, DailyNK)
- The Samjiyon Orchestra, a 140-member N.K. musical performance troupe, is drawing keen attention as it will perform during the Winter Olympics next month. (Kim Rahn, Korea Times)
- Controversy arises over the proposed formation of a single hockey team as many South Koreans believe that a sports event cannot be sacrificed to their government's political goals. (Joongang Ilbo)
- A 140-member N.K. art delegation that will attend next month's Winter Olympics is likely to walk across the tense border, where a soldier made a dramatic defection to the South two months ago while sustaining gunshot wounds. (Yonhap)
- Pyongyang asked Seoul to allow 140 members of an orchestra to cross into the country to attend the Winter Olympics through Panmunjom next month. (Lee Sung-eun, Jeong Yong-soo, Joongang Ilbo)
- SK's unification ministry has postponed the return of four bodies of apparent North Koreans to the communist nation by a day at the North's request. (Yonhap)
- N.K. state media have strongly criticized Moon about his remarks on the ongoing inter-Korean talks. (Kim Rahn, Korea Times)
- N.K. will send a 140-member orchestral music troupe to the PyeonChang Winter Olympics. (Kim Bo-eun, Korea Times)
- N.K. will send an 80-piece orchestra and a further 60 singers and dancers to perform concerts in S.K. during the upcoming Winter Olympic Games. (Julian Ryall, Telegraph)
- NK doesn't have enough talent to make a difference for SK in women's hockey even if a joint team is assembled for the PyeongChang Winter Olympics. (Yonhap)
- N.K. media has called for a complete halt of joint military drills between S.K. and the US. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- While Seoul forges ahead with plans to use the upcoming Winter Olympics to showcase inter-Korean unity, some S.K. athletes are "furious" at proposals to form joint teams with North Koreans. (Heekyong Yang, Josh Smith, Reuters)
- Seoul says it will not repatriate a group of N.K. defectors who escaped through China two years ago. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- With the growing possibility of N.K. and S.K. fielding a unified women's ice hockey team for the upcoming Winter Olympics, attention is turning to previous instances where the estranged countries played together on the international field. (Park Rin, Kim Ji-han, Joongang Ilbo)

International:

- The foreign ministers of S.K., the US and Japan are likely to hold a joint meeting in Vancouver this week on the sidelines of an international meeting focused on N.K. issues. (Yonhap)

- New comparative polling data shows that the American and Russian publics broadly agree on the importance of a number of key foreign policy issues. (Adam Taylor, Washington Post)
- The top Canadian diplomat has pledged her country's solidarity with S.K. in dealing with N.K. nuclear issues as Canada co-hosts a meeting of foreign ministers from countries that fought for the South in the Korean War. (Yonhap)
- China and Russia lambasted a foreign ministers' meeting, from which they have been excluded, hosted by the US and Canada on the N.K nuclear issue, criticizing it as mostly involving US allies. (Sarah Kim, Joongang Ilbo)
- US seems to underestimate N.K.'s ability to develop a missile capable of hitting an American city with a nuclear warhead. (Alex Bollfrass, Washington Post)
- Japanese public broadcaster NHK mistakenly sent an alert Tuesday warning that N.K. had fired a missile, just days after a similar mistake caused panic in Hawaii. (Anna Fifield, Washington Post)
- NHK issued a false alarm on Tuesday saying N.K. appeared to have launched a missile and urging people to take shelter, but it managed to correct the error within minutes. (Reuters)
- Japan's national broadcaster sent out a message warning the country of an imminent N.K. missile attack, which later turned out to be a false alarm. (Helena Horton, Telegraph)
- Japan's public broadcaster mistakenly sent an alert warning citizens about a N.K. missile launch and urging them to seek immediate shelter, then retracted it minutes later – days after a similar error occurred in Hawaii. (AP)
- NHK sent out a message online and through its mobile phone application that read "North Korea likely to have launched missile" and urged people to take shelter either underground or inside buildings. (VOA)
- Japanese national broadcaster NHK issued an on-air apology after issuing an alert incorrectly claiming that N.K. had launched a ballistic missile. (CNN)
- Japan is examining how to evacuate its roughly 60,000 citizens from S.K. in the event of a crisis that closes airports, with military ships being used as shuttles. (Reuters)
- Japan's public broadcaster mistakenly sent an alert Tuesday warning citizens of a N.K. missile launch and urging them to seek immediate shelter, then minutes later corrected it, days after a similar error in Hawaii. (Mari Yamaguchi, AP)
- N.K. defector Lee Tae-won is still plagued with guilt over his failed efforts to bring his wife and child to S.K., which resulted in their forced repatriation and the likely prospect of imprisonment and possible execution in N.K. (Brian Padden, VOA)
- A high-level UNSC meeting this week will focus on "confidence building" measures to deal with weapons of mass destruction, and N.K. is expected to be in the spotlight. (AP)
- In pre-fabricated buildings, down a muddy track on the outskirts of St. Petersburg lies a world of hidden North Korean labor in Russia. (Emma Burrows and Matthew Chance, CNN)
- As American and Canadian officials meet this week to discuss N.K, it's worth a reminder that military options must be on the table if diplomatic efforts to denuclearize the country fail. (Danny Lam, University of Waterloo, UPI)
- S.K. Foreign Minister says its talks with N.K. are a "significant first step toward restoring inter-Korean relations." (AP)
- The Hawaii incident could be a wake-up call for state and federal agencies to review their systems with closer scrutiny to the possibility of human error, system malfunction or deliberate manipulation by hackers. (Alex Wellerstein, Washington Post)
- Trump has visited 13 countries himself, deepening ties to the club of world leaders. The at-times bombastic Trump has also shown a flair for diplomacy, befriending and charming unlikely world leaders, as both a host and a guest. (Kevin Liptak and Dan Merica, CNN)

- Trump and Xi are hopeful that talks between N.K. and S.K. might prompt a change in N.K.'s destructive behavior. (AP)
- American citizens who wish to visit N.K. should write a will, make funeral arrangements and designate carers for their children and pets, a chilling travel advisory from the US State Department has warned. (Nicola Smith, Telegraph)
- Secretary of State Rex Tillerson huddles Tuesday with nations that fought on America's side in the Korean War, looking to tighten the economic noose around N.K. over its nuclear weapons even as hopes rise for diplomacy. (Matthew Pennington, AP)
- US and Canada will co-host an international summit on the N.K. nuclear threat in Vancouver, as tensions on the Korean Peninsula settle into a steady simmer while direct talks between the north and the south continue. (Laura Koran and Nicole Gaouette, CNN)
- American citizens who wish to travel to N.K. have been advised to first draft a will and make funeral plans in a new warning system introduced by the U.S. Department of State. (Sarah Kim, Joongang Ilbo)
- Vancouver meeting will look at ways to better implement sanctions to push N.K. to abandon its nuclear weapons, even as the North and South explore detente ahead of next month's Winter Olympics. (David Ljunggren, David Brunnstrom, Reuters)
- US and Canada are hosting a meeting Tuesday in Vancouver focused on pressuring N.K. to abandon its nuclear weapons program. (VOA)
- Xi Jinping told Trump in a phone call that the hard-earned easing of tensions on the Korean Peninsula must continue. (Park Si-soo, Korea Times)

Prepared by James Park, HRNK Research Intern

——————————————————

Wednesday, January 17, 2018

Koreas agree to march together at PyeongChang, field first joint Olympic team

In North Korea:

Crackdown on South Korean media continues despite North-South 'thaw' (Daily NK, 01/17/2018)
Female cheering squad likely to lead N.K. charm offensive at PyeongChang (Yonhap,01/17/2018)
North Korea 'could become world's most prolific crystal meth dealer on the dark net' if diplomacy fails (Telegraph, 01/17/2018)
North Korea opens new ski resort amid talks to be involved in next month's Winter Olympics (Telegraph, 01/17/2018)
North Korea state-run media reporter joins inter-Korean talks (Korea Times, 01/17/2018)
Kim Jong-un's right hand man or his sister: The senior figures tipped to lead North Korea at Winter Olympics (Telegraph, 01/17/2018)
North Korea writer 'Bandi' is incommunicado, activist says (UPI, 01/17/2018)
SPECIAL REPORT-The fabulous story of North Korea's fabric made of stone (Reuters, 01/17/2018)

Satellite image shows ongoing work on N.K.'s second SLBM test barge (Yonhap, 01/17/2018)
Violinists and cheering squads: North Korea's Olympic lineup (Washington Post, 01/17/2018)

In South Korea:
Koreas plan Olympic first with joint women's hockey team. But many in the South are not happy. (Washington Post, 01/17/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
Agreement on joint Olympic hockey team unprecedented feat for Koreas (Yonhap,01/17/2018)
Behind the curtain of Ri Son Kwon's change of tune during high-level talks (Daily NK, 01/17/2018)
Experts: Inter-Korean dialogue unlikely to lead to denuclearization talks (UPI, 01/17/2018)
FM: Inter-Korean talks do not run afoul of int'l sanctions on N. Korea (Yonhap, 01/17/2018)
Joint march at 2018 Winter Olympics long time coming for Koreas (Yonhap, 01/17/2018)
Koreas agree to march together at PyeongChang, field first joint Olympic team (Yonhap,10/17/2018)
Koreas to be united by traditional martial art of taekwondo -- again (Yonhap, 01/17/2018)
Moon touts joint team of two Koreas in Jincheon (Joongang Ilbo, 01/17/2018)
N. Korea set to make 1st Winter Paralympics appearance (Yonhap,01/17/2018)
North Korea to send 230-member cheering squad to Olympics (Washington Post, 01/17/2018)
Olympic talks boost hopes for reopening of Inter-Korean land routes (Yonhap, 01/17/2018)
Petition filed against unified women's ice hockey team (Korea Times, 01/17/2018)
S. Korea may send nat'l team reserves, prospects for joint skiing training with N. Korea (Yonhap,10/17/2018)

International:
A nuclear North Korea is bringing back Cold War paranoia (Washington Post, 01/17/2018)
China says Canada meeting on North Korea showed "Cold War" mentality (Reuters, 01/17/2018)
Donald Trump administration 'looking very seriously at North Korea military options' (Telegraph, 01/17/2018).
First 'ghost ship' of 2018 washes up in Japan with dead North Koreans (CNN, 01/17/2018).
Foreign ministers of 20 countries support inter-Korean talks, diplomatic efforts on nuke issue(Yonhap, 01/16/2018)
Japan government tells public broadcaster not to repeat false missile alert (Reuters, 01/17/2018)
Nations to consider more North Korea sanctions, U.S. warns on military option (Reuters, 01/17/2018)
North Korea linked to new cryptocurrency attacks (CNN, 01/17/2018)
North Korean nuclear weapons crisis at a 'tenuous stage,' Tillerson says (Washington Post, 01/16/2018)
North Korea Rejects Sanctions Talk, Ready for 'Successful' Olympics: Diplomat (NYT, 01/17/2018)
North Korea rips 'lunatic' Trump as US moves B-52 bombers to Guam (CNN, 01/16/2018)
Russia: North Korea summit undermines U.N., aggravates situation (Reuters, 01/17/2018)
S. Korean, Japanese FMs discuss N.K., historical issues (Yonhap, 01/17/2018)
S. Korea, U.S., Japan reaffirm shared goal of peacefully resolving N.K. nuke problem(Yonhap, 01/17/2018)
Switzerland 'not in favor' of expanded roster for potential joint Korean Olympic women's hockey team (Yonhap, 01/17/2018)
Trump, Kazakh president discuss North Korea nuclear threat (Washington Post, 01/16/2018)
Trump says 'Russia is not helping' with North Korea (CNN, 01/17/2018)
UN chief believes war over North Korea nukes is avoidable (Washington Post, 01/16/2018)
US, Japan warn North Korea playing for time as talks press on (CNN, 01/17/2018)

US: North Korea's Recklessness Put Civilian Air Traffic in Danger (VOA, 01/17/2018)
US Ups Pressure on African Nations to Cut N.Korea Ties, Trade (VOA, 01/17/2018)
U.S. watchdog again rates North Korea as among least-free countries (Yonhap, 01/17/2018)

In North Korea:

- Sources inside NK have reported on a recent decision by the authorities to hand down severe punishment to six people charged with spying and treason for making phone calls to SK. Despite an outward appearance of warming North-South relations with the recent high-level talks occurring between the Koreas, anti-S.Korean domestic policies remain unchanged. (Kang Mi-jin, Daily NK)
- NK's "army of beauties" appears set for another charm offensive in SK during next month's Winter Olympics, spicing up the political rapprochement across the border and possibly helping soften the image of the belligerent regime of KJU. (Yonhap)
- NK could emulate the Taliban in becoming one of the world's most prolific dealers in illicit drugs if it feels trapped by economic sanctions and diplomatic talks fail, the author of a new book on the hermit kingdom has warned. (Nicola Smith, Telegraph)
- NK has just announced the opening of the Kanggye Ski Resort. (Lucy Aspden,Telegraph)
- A reporter dealing with S. Korean affairs in Pyongyang was part of the North Korean delegation taking part in vice-ministerial-level talks with the South, Wed. The KCNA reporter's appearance Wed could indicate that the North may send a number of journalists to PyeongChang. (Choi Ha-young, Korea Times)
- Who will represent KJU in Pyeongchang? Speculation in S. Korean circles is focusing on the N. Korean leader's right-hand man, Choe Ryong-hae, 67, or his twenty-something younger sister, Kim Yo-jong, whose star is rising in the ruling Worker's Party. (Nicola Smith, Telegraph)
- NK's first known dissident writer still living in the country has become unreachable since his book has been published in the US and translated into 21 languages. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- For much of the world, vinylon/vinalon is a niche product. In NK, where winter temperatures are frigid and which cannot produce enough cotton or wool for clothing, the synthetic fibre was glorified as a revolutionary invention. (Reuters)
- Recent satellite imagery showed ongoing work on NK's second submarine-launched ballistic missile (SLBM) test stand barge off its western coast (Yonhap)
- NK's hoping to grab as much of the spotlight as it can with what might be an Olympic first in ice hockey and a flamboyantly crowd-pleasing all-female cheering section. (Eric Talmadge, AP)

In South Korea:

- Many S. Koreans are up in arms over a plan to field a single Korean women's hockey team at next month's Winter Olympics, viewing it as a step too far in the government's attempt to bring about a thaw in relations between the two Koreas. (Anna Fifield, Washington Post)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- SK and NK on Wed. agreed to form a joint women's hockey team at the upcoming Winter Olympics south of the border, an unprecedented breakthrough in the history of sporting exchanges between the two. (Yoo Jee-ho,Yonhap)

- NK's lead delegate Ri Son Kwon allowed the South to mention denuclearization without any particular reaction, but later appeared incensed by the topic, probably due to direction from Pyongyang. (Ahn Jong-sik, Daily NK)
- The recent round of talks between SK and NK are unlikely to break the stalemate on denuclearization, SK experts told UPI on Wednesday. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- The ongoing talks between SK and NK do not run counter to international economic sanctions imposed on the North, the top SK diplomat said Tues following a multilateral meeting focused on NK in Vancouver, Canada. (Yonhap)
- The joint Korean march to start the 2018 Winter Olympics, as agreed to by the two sides on Wed, has been a long time coming for two countries that have been technically at war for over six decades. (Yoo Jee-ho,Yonhap)
- SK and NK agreed Wed to field a joint women's ice hockey team for the PyeongChang Winter Olympics and march together under a "unified Korea" flag at the opening ceremony. (Yonhap)
- The Korean martial art of taekwondo brought the divided Koreas together, if only briefly, south of the tense border last summer and it will do so again. NK is sending a taekwondo demonstration team of about 30 to perform in PyeongChang and Seoul. (Yonhap)
- Despite public criticism that Seoul's push for an inter-Korean team is robbing S.Korean athletes of a rare chance to play in PyeongChang, Moon urged players on Wed. to consider the importance of improving ties with the North. (Joongang Ilbo)
- NK is set to make its first ever Winter Paralympic Games appearance after Pyongyang decided to send its delegation to the multi-sport event for disabled athletes in SK following an inter-Korean meeting Wednesday. (Yonhap)
- NK plans to send a 230-member cheering squad as part of its delegation to next month's Winter Olympics in SK, officials said Wed, as Moon announced his support of a proposal for the rivals' first unified Olympic team. (Kim Hyung-jin, AP)
- The landmark agreement Wed on NK's participation in the PyeongChang Winter Olympics raised hopes for the reconnection of inter-Korean road links for the first time in two years. (Kim Soo-yeon, Yonhap)
- A fan of SK's women's ice hockey team has filed a petition with the National Human Rights Commission against the government move to form a unified women's ice hockey team with NK for the upcoming Olympics. (Kim Jae-heun, Korea Times)
- SK's ski governing body said Wed it is considering sending national team reserves and promising younger skiers for joint training with NK at a resort north of the border, after the two Koreas agreed to the unprecedented sports exchange ahead of the Olympics (Yonhap)

International:

- The panic the Hawaii alert sowed was immeasurable, reviving the terror sparked by similar false alerts during the Cold War. And given the state of tensions with NK and the rogue regime's demonstrated weapons capabilities, the prospect of ballistic missiles raining down on Hawaii can't be shrugged away. (Ishaan Tharoor, Washington Post)
- China said on Wed a just concluded meeting in Canada about NK showed a Cold War mentality and would only undermine a settlement of the NK issue. (Reuters)
- Mac Thornberry, Chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, said that the US was looking into ammunition and deployment issues linked to military involvement against NK. (Ben, Riley-Smith,Telegraph)
- Police discovered a wooden ship carrying the corpses of seven men on a beach in Ishikawa prefecture last week. It is believed the vessels are coming from NK, based on markings and belongings found on the boats, as well as a handful of crew who have survived. Hunger and desperation are thought to be driving them further out to the choppy seas between the Korean Peninsula and Japan. (Yoko Wakatsuki, Ivan Watson, CNN)

- Foreign ministers of 20 countries, including the US, SK and Canada, on Tues. expressed their support for ongoing inter-Korean talks, hoping that they will lead to steady eased tensions going forward. (Yonhap)
- The Japanese government called on public broadcaster NHK on Wednesday to make sure a false alarm warning of a N.Korean missile launch will not be repeated, with tensions still high because of the NK's missile and nuclear programs. (Reuters)
- 20 nations agreed on Tuesday to consider tougher sanctions to press NK to give up its nuclear weapons and Tillerson warned Pyongyang it could trigger a military response if it did not choose negotiations. (David Brunnstrom, David Ljunggren, Reuters)
- Recorded Future said it believes attacks late last year on S. Korean cryptocurrency exchanges and their users were carried out by Lazarus, a hacking group that has previously been tied to NK. (Sherisse Pham, CNN)
- Tillerson on Tues warned that the crisis over NK's nuclear weapons is at a "tenuous stage" and said the time for Pyongyang to show a willingness to talk about denuclearization is now. (Carol Morello,Washington Post)
- NK rejects as a "provocation" a U.S.-led meeting in Vancouver that discussed tougher sanctions that Pyongyang will fight, a senior NK diplomat told Reuters on Wed. (Reuters, NYT)
- The US Air Force has deployed six nuclear-capable B-52 Stratofortress bombers to Guam, according to US Pacific Air Forces, adding more firepower to the region just hours after N. Korean state media mocked Trump's tweet referencing the size of his nuclear button as the "spasm of a lunatic."(Zachary Cohen, CNN)
- Russia hit out on Wed at a U.S.-led effort to increase international pressure on NK, saying it was making the situation worse and undermining the UN. (Reuters)
- The foreign ministers of SK and Japan met to discuss cooperation on NK and other issues of mutual concern, including friction over Japan's wartime sexual enslavement of Korean women on Wed. (Yonhap)
- The top diplomats of SK, the US and Japan reaffirmed their shared goal of peacefully resolving NK's nuclear problem during a trilateral meeting in Vancouver, on Wed. (Yonhap)
- As SK is pushing for a joint women's hockey team with NK for the upcoming Winter Olympics, Switzerland thinks that giving only the Korean team extra players would create an uneven playing field. (Yoo Jee-ho,Yonhap)
- Trump said Tues. that he and the president of Kazakhstan are united in a shared determination to prevent NK from threatening the world with nuclear devastation. (Darlene Superville, AP)
- Trump accused Russia of helping NK skirt international sanctions aimed at curbing NK's nuclear and ballistic missile programs on Wed.(Jeremey Diamond, CNN)
- Secretary-General Guterres said Tues he believes war over NK's nuclear weapons is avoidable, but he's still worried and thinks peace isn't guaranteed. (Edith M. Lederer, AP)
- SK pressed ahead with talks to include its northern neighbor in next month's Winter Olympics Wednesday, but Seoul's allies are voicing concern Pyongyang may be using the talks to buy time to pursue its weapons program. (Joshua Berlinger,Taehoon Lee, CNN)
- Passengers on a commercial flight from San Francisco to Hong Kong could see a NK intercontinental ballistic missile flying through the Nov. sky, Tillerson told a gathering of foreign ministers in Vancouver, Canada, Tues, highlighting what he called the "recklessness" of KJU's regime. (Nike Ching, VOA)

- As relations get hotter between the US and NK, U.S. officials say they are trying to cut off Pyongyang's income sources any way they can, especially on the African continent. (Anita Powell, VOA)
- Freedom House, a U.S. human rights watchdog has evaluated NKas one of the least free nations in the world in their annual report, "Freedom in the World 2018." (Yonhap)

Prepared by Emma Stubblefield, HRNK Research Intern

——————————————————

Thursday, January 18, 2018

Crackdown on South Korean media continues despite North-South 'thaw'; Seoul defends joint training at N.K. ski resort as part of efforts for 'Peace Olympics'

In North Korea:

Behind the curtain of Ri Son Kwon's change of tune during high-level talks (*Daily*NK, 01/17/2018)
Crackdown on South Korean media continues despite North-South 'thaw' (*Daily*NK, 01/17/2018)
Despite stacked deck, North Koreans use private education to climb social ladder (*Daily*NK, 01/18/2018)
Merchants trying to keep shops open despite forced mobilization and mandatory lectures (*Daily*NK, 01/18/2018)
N. Korea introduces highway toll system (Yonhap, 01/18/2018)
North Korea's long, complicated Olympic history (The Washington Post, 01/18/2018)
The strange history of the Pyongyang Teacher Training College (NK Econ Watch, 01/17/2018)
Why is North Korea sending the Samjiyon Orchestra to the Olympics? (*Daily*NK, 01/18/2018)

In South Korea:

(LEAD) Seoul defends joint training at N.K. ski resort as part of efforts for 'Peace Olympics' (Yonhap, 01/18/2018)
Cheong Wa Dae hails outcome of inter-Korean dialogue on Olympics (Yonhap, 01/18/2018)
Ice hockey moms aren't angry, just disappointed (Joongang Ibo, 01/18/2018)
Joint Olympic Flag Deal Angers Conservatives in South Korea (NYT, 01/18/2018)
PyeongChang, not Pyongyang (Joongang Ibo, 01/18/2018)
S. Koreans divided over use of single flag during two Koreas' Olympic march: poll (Yonhap, 01/18/2018)
Stoking division (Joongang Ibo, 01/18/2018)
United Korea Hockey Team Divides South (VOA, 01/18/2018)
Who will watch the watchers? (Joongang Ibo, 01/17/2018)

With joint team talks behind, S. Korean figure skating duo vows good performance at PyeongChang (Yonhap, 01/18/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
A Tricky Reunion on the Ice for North and South Korean Hockey (NYT, 01/17/2018)
N. Korea to participate in four sports at PyeongChang 2018: top organizer (Yonhap, 01/18/2018)
North Korea crisis: South to continue talks with 'clear eyes' (BBC, 01/18/2018)
North and South Korea to march under same flag at Winter Olympics in diplomatic breakthrough (The Telegraph, 01/17/2018)
Olympic Win in View From Korean Unity at Pyeongchang Games (NYT, 01/181/2018)
Two Koreas' 'one flag' emblematic of once better ties (Reuters, 01/18/2018)
Unified table tennis duo may meet again in Pyeongchang (Joongang Ibo, 01/18/2018)

International:
'Pyongyang Olympics?' Backlash reveals changing attitudes in South Korea (Reuters, 01/18/2018)
(LEAD) S. Korea, U.S. affirm no daylight between sides (Yonhap, 01/18/2018)
(News Focus) Trump builds global consensus on N.K. pressure, sows confusion over policy (Yonhap, 01/18/2018)
Australian PM in Japan to Boost Military, Economic Ties (VOA, 01/18/2018)
Australia PM says Olympic Unity Won't Denuclearize N. Korea (VOA, 01/18/2018)
China might be able to help with North Korea — but only if President Trump switches tactics (The Washington Post, 01/18/2018)
Column: Kim Jong Un Plays the Olympics Like a Champion (NYT, 01/17/2018)
North Korea Demands US Apology for Not Using Official Name (NYT, 01/17/2018)
North Korea going to the Olympics: 5 things to know (CNN, 01/18/2018)
North Korea's Olympic move a chance for U.S. talks, analyst says (UPI, 01/18/2018)
Olympic Détente Upends U.S. Strategy on North Korea (NYT, 01/17/2018)
Russia rejects Trump allegation it violating U.N. sanctions on North Korea: Ifax (Reuters, 01/18/2018)
S. Korea with enough talent to fight distraction in women's Olympic hockey (Yonhap, 01/18/2018)
Tillerson: Evidence sanctions 'really starting to hurt' North Korea (Reuters, 01/17/2018)
Tillerson blames North Korea for its sanctions suffering (The Washington Post, 01/18/2018)
Tillerson Says Russia Not Implementing All North Korea Sanctions, May Be Frustrating Some Steps (NYT, 01/17/2018)
Trump: Predecessors left North Korea to a president 'that scored the highest on tests' (CNN, 01/18/2018)
Two Koreas' joint cultural events, training cause stir (The Korea Times, 01/18/2018)
White House: Joint Olympics march could give N. Koreans taste of freedom (Yonhap, 01/18/2018)

In North Korea:

- On Jan. 9, NK's lead delegate Ri Son Kwon suddenly appeared incensed at the end of the day by the topic of denuclearization after allowing the S.Korean press to mention the topic earlier in the afternoon without any particular reaction. (Ahn Jong Sik, DailyNK)
- Sources inside NK have reported on a recent decision by the authorities to hand down severe punishment to six people charged with spying and treason for making phone calls to SK. (Kang Mi Jin, DailyNK)
- As NK enters the school winter holidays, private for-profit education services are kicking into high gear. Although the NK proclaims its educational system is equal for all, the reality on the ground is quite different. (Unification Media Group, DailyNK)

- The N.Korean people are showing signs of great adaptability, and the developments in the current market trend reflect their ability to survive through self-reliance. (Unification Media Group, DailyNK)
- NK has decided to collect highway tolls starting later this week in an apparent bid to obtain badly needed hard currency amid international sanctions on its nuclear and missile provocations, a US broadcaster reported Thurs. (Yonhap)
- N.Korean involvement in the Olympic Games is nothing new. Pyongyang has a long and surprisingly successful history at sporting events such as the Olympics, but these events have sometimes been a source of international tension, too. (Adam Taylor, Nick Kirkpatrick, The Washington Post)
- N.Korean media reports that KJU visited the newly renovated Pyongyang Teacher Training College. Despite the glowing description of the model school in the official KWP paper, its history has been a textbook case of "Our-style economic mismanagement" [(CR) Curtis Melvin 2018]. (NK Econ Watch)
- Talks over the Pyeongchang Olympics continue between NK and SK this week, and an agreement for NK to send 140-members of the Samjiyon Orchestra members to the games was reached on Jan. 15. (Ha Yoon Ah, DailyNK)

In South Korea:

- The news of SK and NK's agreement to conduct joint training at a ski resort in NK sparked a heated debate as critics say the joint exercise would promote the ski resort, which is one of the N.Korean leader KJU's pet projects. (Yonhap)
- The presidential office Cheong Wa Dae on Thurs. welcomed the outcome of inter-Korean dialogue over NK's participation in the PyeongChang Winter Olympic Games, calling it a chance to reduce tension between the divided Koreas. (Yonhap)
- The decision by NK and SK to field a joint women's ice hockey team in the upcoming PyeongChang Winter Olympics may have pleased government officials, but the S.Korean players' mothers feel like they've been left out in the cold. (Kim Won, Park Rin, Kang Yoo-rim, Joongang Ibo)
- After the two Koreas reached a package of Olympics-related rapprochement deals including marching together at the opening ceremony behind a single flag, many conservatives in SK are asking why their athletes cannot carry their own national flag during the first Winter Olympics on their soil. (AP)
- The PyeongChang Olympics should be a chance to improve relations with NK. The determination is understandable, but should we stage the show of a joint team? (Ko Jung-ae, Joongang Ibo)
- Only 4 out of 10 S.Koreans are in favor of using a unified flag when SK and NK athletes march together at the opening and closing ceremonies of the upcoming Winter Olympics in SK, a survey showed Thurs. (Yonhap)
- We welcome a harmonious Olympics, but we must not over-glorify N.Korean participation, which could stoke division among the S.Korean people. (Joongang Ibo)
- The S.Korean public has been generally supportive of N.Korean participating in the upcoming Olympics, but they are divided over the decision to field a joint women's hockey team that critics say places politics over competitive fairness. (Brian Padden, VOA)
- The government recently announced a plan to transfer the National Intelligence Service's mission of investigating pro-communist activities to the police; however, transferring the

NIS's authority to investigate pro-communist activities would critically weaken its function. (Song Bong-sun, Joongang Ibo)

- S.Korean figure skating pair Kim Kyu-eun and Kam Kang-chan said Thursday they will compete in good faith with their N.Korean rivals at the PyeongChang Olympics, with talks of a possible joint Korean team for their sport finally behind them. (Yonhap)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- The S.Korean hockey team has a little over three weeks to figure out how to incorporate new N.Korean teammates into its style of play without disrupting chemistry. While there are hopes that the IOC approves the measure with the caveat that no S.Korean players be cut from the team, some original members of the roster would most likely not dress for every game. (Seth Berkman, NYT)
- The two Koreas have agreed on four sports in which N.Korean athletes will compete at the PyeongChang Winter Olympics, the event's top organizer revealed Thurs. (Yonhap)
- SK says it will continue high-level talks with NK with "clear eyes" amid global warnings that Pyongyang might be playing for time to continue its nuclear-arms programme. (BBC)
- NK and SK have agreed to form a joint women's hockey team and march under the same flag for a parade at next month's Winter Olympics, in a major step towards easing tensions on the peninsula. (The Telegraph)
- Uniting athletes from SK and NK at the Pyeongchang Games next month offers hope of an Olympic victory for all parties. (AP)
- NK and SK's plan to march together under the same blue-and-white Korean peninsula flag at the Pyeongchang Winter Olympics next month marks the revival of an emblem of warmer ties between the old foes from years past. (Joyce Lee, Ju-min Park, Reuters)
- Two former table tennis players from Seoul and Pyongyang who forged a historic inter-Korean team back in 1991 are likely to be reunited in Mar., as NK on Wednesday vowed to send a delegation to the PyeongChang Paralympics in SK. (Yonhap)

International:

- An agreement between SK and NK to march under a unity flag and field a joint ice hockey team at next month's Olympics was met by sharp criticism from many in the SK on Thurs., highlighting changing attitudes toward the country's northern neighbor. (Heekyong Yang, Josh Smith, Reuters)
- SK and the US said Thurs. that there will be no letup in the rotational deployment of high-profile US defense assets to and around the Korean Peninsula. (Yonhap)
- US President Donald Trump's first year in office established a global pressure campaign to curb NK's nuclear ambitions, but also left many alarmed over what they saw as inconsistent policies and reckless rhetoric toward the provocative regime. (Yonhap)
- Australian Prime Minister Malcolm Turnbull traveled to Japan Thurs. on a mission to boost defense ties amid China's aggressive maritime expansion and NK's escalating nuclear weapons program. (VOA)
- Australian Prime Minister Malcolm Turnbull said Thurs. he welcomed the recent dialogue between NK and SK but marching together at the Winter Olympics won't denuclearize the Korean Peninsula. (AP)

- As much as the power relations between China and NK make it difficult for China to intervene successfully, there are currents in Chinese politics that Trump could take advantage of to prod Xi into acting. (John Harney, The Washington Post)
- When the Olympic flame has been extinguished, KJU will continue to use every tool at his disposal, including his gulags and thought police, to maintain his iron grip on power, demanding unfailing loyalty from each and every N.Korean. (The Associated Press)
- NK demanded an apology from the US on Wed. for what it called "insolent outrageous behavior" in refusing to refer to the country by its official name — the Democratic People's Republic of Korea. (The Associated Press)
- With a 140-piece orchestra, 230-strong performance squad and its athletes walking under a unified Korean flag, NK will be hoping to grab the limelight at next month's Winter Olympics. How could N.Korean participation at the Games play out? (Evan McKirdy, CNN)
- NK is pursuing a dangerous path of nuclear weapons development, but that does not mean the US should dismiss an opportunity to deescalate tensions during the 2018 Pyeongchang Winter Olympics, a US analyst said Wed. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- NK and SK reached an agreement Wed. for their athletes to march together under one flag at the opening ceremony of the Winter Olympics next month, further complicating President Trump's strategy for dealing with the nuclear-armed regime of KJU. (Choe Sang-Hun, Mark Landler, NYT)
- Moscow regards an allegation by US President Donald Trump that it is in breach of UN sanctions on NK as absolutely groundless, the Interfax news agency cited an unnamed source at the Russian Foreign Ministry as saying on Thurs. (Reuters Staff, Reuters)
- Despite facing some unexpected distractions, S.Korean women's hockey team has enough talent to keep its focus on the 2018 PyeongChang Winter Olympics, as the International Olympic Committee will determine the size of the unified roster on the weekend. (Yoo Jee-ho, Yonhap)
- US Secretary of State Rex Tillerson said on Wed. the US is getting evidence that international sanctions are "really starting to hurt" NK, even as he accused Russia of not implementing all of the measures. (David Brunnstrom, Reuters)
- Secretary of State Rex Tillerson said Wed. that NK is responsible for the suffering of its people from international economic sanctions imposed over its nuclear weapons. He voiced skepticism that humanitarian aid to alleviate that suffering would reach the people who need it. (Matthew Pennington, AP)
- US Secretary of State Rex Tillerson accused Russia on Wed. of not implementing all UN sanctions on NK over its nuclear weapons program and said Moscow "may be frustrating" some of the steps. (Reuters)
- Discussing the issue of NK's nuclear ambitions in an interview Wed. with Reuters, Trump took a swing at his predecessors, former Presidents Obama, Bush, and Clinton for their approaches to the rogue nation. (Eli Watkins, CNN)
- The Koreas' agreement Wed. to hold a joint cultural event at Mount Geumgang and an inter-Korean athlete training at Masikryong Ski Resort in NK is stirring controversy over whether it breaches the international community's sanctions on Pyongyang over its military provocations. (Kim Bo-eun, The Korea Times)
- The White House expressed hope Wed. that N.Koreans will get "a small taste of freedom" when they march together with S.Koreans at the opening ceremony of the PyeongChang Winter Olympics. (Yonhap)

Prepared by Jinny Ahn, HRNK Research Intern

——————————————————

Friday, January 19, 2018

N.K. abruptly cancels trip by advance team to S. Korea for performances; S.K. to push for regular high-level talks with N.K.; IOC: More initiatives coming to promote Korean unity

In North Korea:
American Illusions and Korean Realities: Preventing Conflict on the Korean Peninsula (38 North, 01/19/2018)
Collective farm authorities ransack homes for food in midst of shortage (DailyNK, 01/19/2018)
Kim Jong Il's birthday poses propaganda opportunity (DailyNK, 01/19/2018)
North Korea may hold military parade on eve of Olympics, analysts say (Reuters, 01/19/2018)
North Korea Orders Nursing Homes Built, Passes on The Cost (RFA, 01/18/2018)
North Korea plans military parade on eve of the Olympics, diplomats say (CNN, 01/19/2018)
Quick Takes: No Signs of Recent Tests at the Magunpo Engine Test Facility (38 North, 01/19/2018)
Singer will check out arrangements for North's troupe (Joongang Ilbo, 01/19/2018)

In South Korea:
(Yonhap Feature) Gangneung hopes to promote peace through Winter Olympics (Yonhap, 01/19/2018)
Honeymoon no more (Joongang Ilbo, 01/19/2018)
Listen to the people (Joongang Ilbo, 01/19/2018)
Military to cut troops to 500,000 by year 2022 (Joongang Ilbo, 01/19/2018)
Moon's support among youth shows decline (Joongang Ilbo, 01/19/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
(LEAD) Foreign ministry to focus diplomatic efforts on inducing N.K., U.S. into 'dialogue process' (Yonhap, 01/19/2018)
(LEAD) S. Korea to push for regular high-level talks with N.K. (Yonhap, 01/19/2018)
(2n LD) Seoul vows support for N.K. Olympic participation within sanctions regime (Yonhap, 01/19/2018)
(3rd LD) N.K. abruptly cancels trip by advance team to S. Korea for performances (Yonhap, 01/19/2018)
Frosty reception for South Korea's Winter Olympics detente with North (Guardian, 01/19/2018)
N.Korea cancels S.Korea visit by advance team for art troupe (Washington Post, 01/19/2018)
North Korea Cancels Visit to South by Arts Delegation (VOA, 01/19/2018)
North Korea last-minute cancels planned trip to South (UPI, 01/19/2018)
S. Korea to send 12-member advance team to inspect N. Korea's ski resort, cultural facilities (Yonhap, 01/19/2018)

S. Korea working on N. Korea's Olympic participation not running afoul of int'l sanctions: FM (Yonhap, 01/19/2018)
South, North agree to joint Olympics team, common flag (Joongang Ilbo, 01/19/2018)
'The Pyongyang Olympics' - Backlash in South Korea over plans to march with North at Winter Olympics (Telegraph, 01/19/2018)

International:
Amid nuclear tensions, South Korea tops Trump's long list of unfilled diplomatic posts (CNN, 01/19/2018)
China denies violating shipping sanctions against North Korea (UPI, 01/18/2018)
Families of missing Japanese to urge prosecution of North Korean leader at Hague court (Reuters, 01/19/2018)
IIHF welcomes unified inter-Korean ice hockey team (Yonhap, 01/19/2018)
IOC: More initiatives coming to promote Korean unity (Washington Post, 01/19/2018)
Mattis unveils new strategy focused on Russia and China, takes Congress to task for budget impasse (Washington Post, 01/19/2018)
Pentagon Puts Countering China, Russia At Center Of US Defense Strategy (VOA, 01/19/2018)
Russian official: U.S. campaign of North Korea pressure 'deeply concerning' (UPI, 01/19/2018)
Trump's defense strategy sees China and Russia as biggest threats (CNN, 01/19/2018)
U.S. lawmakers ask Trump to re-establish military communication with N.K. (Yonhap, 01/19/2018)
U.S. won't meet N.K. officials during Olympics: report (Yonhap, 01/19/2018)

In North Korea:

- The Trump administration's policy of maximum pressure and engagement has significantly increased the risk of a disastrous war while offering few prospects for meaningful dialogue that could reverse the spiraling crisis. (Stephen J. Blank, 38 North)
- Conflicts have recently been breaking out between N.K. authorities and residents in drought-hit regions due to continued demands for food and bribes. (DailyNK)
- There is concern that North Korea may try to promote Kim Jong Il's birthday for propaganda purposes during the games since the day – February 16 – coincides with the Olympics. (DailyNK)
- N.K. may be preparing to hold a military parade on the eve of next month's winter Olympics in S.K., analysts and diplomats say, even as the two countries have sought to mend ties. (Josh Smith, Reuters)
- N.K. government has ordered the country's provinces to build nursing homes for senior citizens as part of a New Year's push to complete showcase projects, but is passing the cost of labor and construction on to local citizens who are already strapped for cash (RFA)
- Invitations sent to diplomats and satellite imagery suggest Pyongyang is preparing for a major military parade on the eve of the Pyeongchang games (Will Ripley, Tim Schwarz and James Griffiths, CNN)
- Commercial satellite imagery from January 10 shows no indications of any recent solid-fuel engine tests at the Magunpo Solid-fuel Rocket Engine Test Facility. (38 North)
- A delegation led by N.K. singer Hyon Song-wol, head of the well-known Moranbong Band, will be visiting Seoul and Gangneung to check conditions for the North Korean artistes coming to the Olympics. (Esther Chung, Han Young-hye, Joongang Ilbo)

In South Korea:

- The rare visit by North Koreans will not only be a boon for Gangneung's ice events but will also provide an opportunity to reckon with a darker past when tensions flared between the two Koreas. (Yonhap)
- The young are turning their backs on Moon they put in power because of flip-flopping on policy on the cryptocurrency trade and controversy over forcing to form a joint female hockey team with N.K. for the Olympics. (Joongang Ilbo)
- South Koreans increasingly disapprove of the consensus sought by the liberal Moon administration for the sake of achieving harmony and peace on the Korean Peninsula. (Joongang Ilbo)
- S.K.'s military will reduce the number of troops to half a million by 2022 as part of a new round of defense reforms according to the Ministry of National Defense. (Yonhap)
- Moon's approval rating has fallen as his traditional supporters, liberals in their 20s and 30s, oppose government attempts to regulate cryptocurrencies and form an inter-Korean team for the upcoming Winter Olympics. (Huh Jin, Ser Myo-ja, Joongang Ilbo)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- S.K. will work hard to induce N.K. and the US into a "dialogue process" based on the peaceful momentum created by the resumption of inter-Korean talks on Pyongyang's participation in the upcoming Winter Olympics. (Yonhap)
- S.K.'s unification ministry said that it will push to regularize high-level talks with N.K. and provide humanitarian aid to vulnerable people there, as it makes inter-Korean reconciliation a policy priority for this year. (Yonhap)
- S.K. said it plans to financially support N.K.'s participation in the PyeongChang Olympics in a way that doesn't weaken tough international sanctions on the North. (Yonhap)
- N.K. on Friday canceled its plan to send an advance team over the weekend to prepare for a trip by an art troupe to S.K. during the PyeongChang Winter Olympics. (Yonhap)
- S.K. is facing a public backlash over its sports rapprochement with N.K., with critics accusing the government of turning next month's Pyeongchang Winter Olympics into the "Pyongyang Olympics". (Justin McCurry, Guardian)
- N.K. abruptly canceled plans to send a delegation led by the head of a hugely popular girl band to S.K. over the weekend to check preparations for a trip by a North Korean art troupe. (Hyung-Jin Kim, AP)
- N.K. abruptly canceled plans to send a delegation led by the head of a hugely popular girl band to S.K. over the weekend to check preparations for a trip. (AP)
- N.K. may be canceling a trip planned for its leading performing artists to the South, only 12 hours after Pyongyang agreed to send the delegation to check S.K. facilities ahead of the Winter Olympics. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- The S.K. government said it will send a 12-member advance team to inspect facilities in N.K. next week for joint training and cultural events. (Yonhap)
- S.K.'s top diplomat said Seoul is working closely with the international community to make sure N.K.'s Olympic participation does not run afoul of international sanctions imposed on the North. (Yonhap)
- North and South Korea agreed to form a joint women's ice hockey team for the PyeongChang Winter Olympics next month. (Joongang Ilbo)

- A landmark decision to unify the Korean Peninsula under a common flag and by fielding a joint ice hockey team at the Winter Olympics in February has sparked a sharp public backlash in the South. (Nicola Smith, Telegraph)

International:

- Key diplomatic posts remain unfilled a year into the Trump administration, chief among them the US ambassador to S.K. (Kevin Liptak and Nicole Gaouette, CNN)
- China denied it is in violation of UNSC sanctions resolutions, following a WSJ report six cargo ships with ties to China were loading N.K. coal while flying under different foreign flags. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- The families of Japanese abducted by N.K., and those believed to have been taken, will urge the International Criminal Court to prosecute KJU, saying the lack of information about their loved ones is a human rights abuse. (Reuters)
- The International Ice Hockey Federation (IIHF) has expressed support for the creation of a unified inter-Korean women's ice hockey team for the upcoming PyeongChang Winter Olympics. (Yonhap)
- Olympics organizers welcomed an agreement between N.K. and S.K. to unite athletes at the upcoming Olympics, and promised that "much more exciting initiatives" promoting Korean unity will emerge this weekend. (Jamey Keaten, AP)
- The US must build up its military to prepare for the possibility of conflict with Russia and China, according to a new Pentagon strategy. (Dan Lamothe, Washington Post)
- US military has put countering China and Russia at the heart of a new national defense strategy, the latest sign of shifting American priorities after more than a decade and a half of focusing on the fight against Islamist militants. (Reuters)
- Russian officials may be more concerned about U.S. deployment of strategic assets to Asia than they are focused on increasing pressure on N.K. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- The Pentagon now sees China and Russia as "the central challenge" facing the US military, according to the unclassified pages of the Trump administration's new National Defense Strategy. (Ryan Browne, CNN)
- A group of U.S. lawmakers asked President Trump on Thursday to re-establish military-to-military communication with North Korea to avert a conflict between the sides. (Yonhap)
- The U.S. State Department has reconfirmed that it will not make contact with N.K. officials on the sidelines of the upcoming PyeongChang Olympics. (Yonhap)

Prepared by James Park, HRNK Research Intern

——————————————————

Saturday, January 20, 2018

N.K. Agrees, Again, to Pre-Olympic Visit to S.K.; 22 North Koreans to compete in Winter Olympics; U.S. defense chief says N.K. threatens global stability

In North Korea:
Making North Korea Great Again. How realistic are Kim's new year plans? (CNN, 01/19/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
(LEAD) N. Korea to send 22 athletes in three sports to PyeongChang Winter Olympics: IOC (Yonhap, 01/20/2018)
(2nd L) N.K's advance team for Olympic art performance to visit S. Korea Sunday (Yonhap, 01/20/2018)
22 North Koreans to compete in Winter Olympics (Telegraph, 01/20/2018)
Canceled North Korean visit to prep for Olympics 'not permanent': South Korea ministry (Reuters, 01/19/2018)
IOC meeting on N. Korea's participation in PyeongChang Olympics begins (Yonhap, 01/20/2018)
Koreas to march together as one at PyeongChang Olympics opening ceremony (Yonhap, 01/20/2018)
North Korea Agrees, Again, to Pre-Olympic Visit to South Korea (NYT, 01/20/2018)
North Korea offers to resume pre-Olympic visit to South (Washington Post, 01/20/2018)
North Korea says to send delegation to prepare for Olympics on Sunday: South Korea ministry (Reuters, 01/20/2018)
North Korea to send 22 athletes to Pyeongchang (Reuters, 01/20/2018)
North Korean athletes will compete at Winter Olympics (CNN, 01/20/2018)
S. Korea, U.S. agree to stay unified against N.K. nukes (Yonhap, 01/20/2018)

International:
(LEAD) U.S. defense chief says N. Korea threatens global stability (Yonhap, 01/20/2018)
At One-year Mark, Trump Foreign Policy Seen as Conventional (VOA, 01/19/2018)
Chinese Investors in North Korea Suffer Heavy Losses (RFA, 01/19/2018)
Confronting China and Russia, not tackling terrorism, is now America's top security priority (Telegraph, 01/19/2018)
Hawaii Governor Takes 15 Minutes to Announce Missile Alert Is False (VOA, 01/19/2018)
IOC permits North Korea to ski and skate at Olympics (Joongang Ilbo, 01/20/2018)
IOC says North Korea to have 22 athletes in 5 Olympic sports (Washington Post, 01/20/2018)
Olympics-Talks under way to finalise North Korea participation (Reuters, 01/20/2018)
President Trump made 2,140 false or misleading claims in his first year (Washington Post, 01/20/2018)
Russia, U.S. likely to discuss North Korea in Moscow: Minister to TASS (Reuters, 01/20/2018)
The Pentagon says China and Russia are bigger problems for U.S. than terrorists. American voters may not agree (Washington Post, 01/20/2018)
US competitive warfighting edge has slipped, says Mattis (Washington Post, 01/20/2018)
U.S. military puts 'great power competition' at heart of strategy: Mattis (Reuters, 01/19/2018)

In North Korea:

- KJU shared various goals during his New Year's address including factory jobs and coal, textiles and scientific research, domestic production of consumer goods, and even green initiatives. Are they realistic? (Joshua Berlinger, CNN)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- N.K. will send 22 athletes to compete in three sports at the 2018 PyeongChang Winter Games in S.K., the International Olympic Committee (IOC) said Saturday. (Yonhap)
- N.K. will send an advance team next week in preparation for a trip by its art troupe to the South during the PyeongChang Winter Olympics. (Yonhap)
- 22 North Korean athletes will take part in Pyeongchang Winter Olympics, competing and marching together with their S.K. counterparts under a unified flag. (Nicola Smith, Telegraph)
- S.K.'s Unification Ministry said that the sudden cancellation of a N.K. delegation's planned visit to the South to prepare for the North's art troupe during the Winter Olympics was "not a permanent cancellation". (Reuters)
- An International Olympic Committee (IOC) meeting on N.K.'s participation in the Winter Games in S.K. opened here Saturday. (Yonhap)
- S.K. and N.K. will march together as one at the opening ceremony of the upcoming Winter Games south of the border, a move that the world Olympic chief said will be "a very emotional moment" for the world. (Yonhap)
- After keeping S.K. in suspense, N.K. will send an advance team of officials, including a well-known singer, a day later than scheduled to prepare for cultural performances during the Winter Olympics. (Choe Sang-hun, NYT)
- N.K. proposed sending a delegation led by the leader of a hugely popular girl band to S.K. to check preparations for a trip by a N.K. art troupe during the Winter Olympics. (Tong-Hyung Kim, AP)
- N.K. will send a delegation to S.K. to prepare for a trip by an art troupe during next month's Winter Olympics, pushing the visit back a day after earlier cancelling it. (Joyce Lee, Reuters)
- N.K. will send 22 athletes to the Winter Games in the neighbouring South next month and compete in three sports and five disciplines, the International Olympic Committee (IOC) said. (Brian Homewood, Reuters)
- N.K. decided to send 22 athletes who will compete in three sports and five disciplines following a meeting between delegations from the two Koreas and Olympic officials in Switzerland. (Laura Smith-Spark, CNN)
- S.K. and the US agreed Friday to stay unified and work together to rid N.K. of its nuclear weapons program. (Yonhap)

International:

- U.S. Defense Secretary Jim Mattis said Friday that N.K. threatens global stability with its nuclear and ballistic missile programs as it oppresses its own people. (Yonhap)
- International opinion polls indicate that one year into Trump's presidency, America's standing in the world is at a low point. Analysts say, Trump's foreign policy has turned out to be mostly conventional. (Peter Heinlein, VOA)

- Chinese businessmen with investments in N.K. are suffering heavy losses as China tightens sanctions on the nuclear-armed state in response to its provocative weapons tests and missile launches. (RFA)
- Countering China and Russia is a bigger focus for US national security than defeating terrorism, the American administration announced yesterday. (Ben Riley-Smith, Telegraph)
- The Hawaii National Guard's top commander said Friday he told Gov. David Ige that a missile alert was a false alarm two minutes after it went out statewide. But the governor didn't tell the public until 15 minutes later. (AP)
- The International Olympic Committee (IOC) announced that 22 N.K. athletes will be competing in three sports and five disciplines in the upcoming Olympics. (Lee Sung-eun, Joongang Ilbo)
- A Korean unity deal for the Pyeongchang Olympics will see 22 N.K. athletes cross the border with S.K. to compete and march together under a unification flag at the opening ceremony. (Graham Dunbar, AP)
- Talks began at the International Olympic Committee (IOC) headquarters to finalise details on N.K.'s participation at the Winter Olympics in the neighbouring South next month. (Brian Homewood, Reuters)
- One year after taking the oath of office, Trump has made 2,140 false or misleading claims, an average of nearly 5.9 claims a day. (Glenn Kessler and Meg Kelly, Washington Post)
- Diplomats from Russia and US are likely to hold their next round of consultations on N.K. in Moscow on a date yet to be decided, TASS news agency quoted Russian Deputy Foreign Minister Igor Morgulov. (Reuters)
- A newly released Pentagon strategy document proposes that competition with China and Russia is more important to the US than the fight against international terrorism. Do American voters agree? (Adam Taylor, Washington Post)
- Countering China's rapidly expanding military and an increasingly aggressive Russia are now the U.S. military's top national security priorities, says Mattis. (Lolita C. Baldor, AP)
- The U.S. military has put countering China and Russia at the center of a new national defense strategy unveiled on Friday, the latest sign of shifting priorities after more than a decade and a half of focusing on the fight against Islamist militants. (Idrees Ali, Reuters)

Prepared by James Park, HRNK Research Intern

Sunday, January 21, 2018

North Korean Pop Singer Leads Pre-Olympic Delegation to South; Not all South Koreans are happy about unified hockey team

In North Korea:

Legendary N. Korean folk singer dies (Korea Times, 01/21/2018)
Medals unlikely as 22 North Koreans head to Winter Olympics (Washington Post, 01/20/2018)
Meet Hyon Song-wol, North Korea's 'Spice Girl' whose execution was greatly exaggerated (Telegraph, 01/21/2018)
N. Korea may televise PyeongChang Olympics (Korea Times, 01/21/2018)
N. Korea prepares military parade on eve of Olympics (Korea Times, 01/21/2018)
Preparation underway to send 'army of beauties' to S. Korea (Korea Times, 01/21/2018)

In South Korea:
Joint ice hockey team turns young South Koreans hostile toward North (Korea Times,01/21/2018)
Not all South Koreans are happy about unified hockey team (Washington Post, 01/20/2018)
Rival parties collide over N.K.'s participation in PyeongChang Olympics (Yonhap, 01/21/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
Beware wishful thinking (Joongang Ilbo, 01/21/2018)
(LEAD) Joint Korean hockey team to play at least 3 N. Koreans at PyeongChang Olympics(Yonhap, 01/20/2018)
(3rd LD) N. Korea accepts S. Korean advance team's planned visit for joint ski training(Yonhap, 01/21/2018)
(6th LD) N. Korean delegation wraps up 1st day of concert venue inspection (Yonhap, 01/21/2018)
(LEAD) N.K Olympic participation to ease tensions, S. Korean presidential office says(Yonhap, 01/21/2018)
North Korean Pop Singer Leads Pre-Olympic Delegation to South (NYT, 01/21/2018)
Propaganda posters underscore inter-Korean cooperation (Korea Times, 01/20/2018)
S. Korean presidential office welcomes IOC decision on N.K. Olympic participation (Yonhap, 01/20/2018)
Unification flag harks back to friendlier times (Joongang Ilbo, 01/21/2018)

International:
How the seizure of a US spy ship by North Korea nearly sparked nuclear war (CNN,01/20/2018)
Nations Seek the Elusive Cure for Cyberattacks (NYT, 01/21/2018)
Trump asked Moon to give him public credit for pressuring North Korea into talks (Washington Post, 01/20/2018)

In North Korea:

- Kim Kwang-suk, a well-known N. Korean folk singer in the 1980s and 1990s died last week, according to Pyongyang's state-controlled Korean Central News Agency (KCNA). They didn't give details on her cause of death (Yi Whan-woo, Korea Times)
- The 22 N. Korean athletes are unlikely to bring home any medals; only the figure skating pair met the qualifying standard on merit. (Graham Dunbar, AP)
- Hyon Song-wol, rumored to have been KJU's girlfriend, was reportedly executed by firing squad. Her alive appearance in Seoul on Sun. was greeted by a barrage of camera flashes and reporters. (Chris Graham, Telegraph)
- N. Korean media outlets will supposedly broadcast the Olympics. If this happens, N. Koreans will get a rare glimpse of SK's first Winter Games amid a thaw in cross-border relations. (Yi Whan-woo, Korea Times)

- There are signs that NK is preparing to hold a large-scale military parade on Feb. 8 to mark the anniversary of the founding of its regular armed forces (Yi Whan-woo, Korea Times)
- NK is preparing to send a 230-member cheering squad to the Olympics.NK has been scouting and training candidates for the cheering squad since Jan. 10, a day after the two Koreas agreed on the North's participation in the Olympics. (Yi Whan-woo, Korea Times)

In South Korea:

- Young S. Koreans have a growing sense of hostility toward NK, viewing a recent decision by the two Koreas to form a joint ice hockey team as giving the North a "free ride" in the upcoming Olympics. (Lee Min-hyung, Korea Times)
- S. Koreans seem generally happy they'll see the N.Koreans at their Olympics, but aren't as pleased about sharing a team with them. The unified women's hockey team has triggered a debate in SK, where there's no longer strong public clamor for reunification. (Kim Tong-hyung, AP)
- SK's ruling and opposition parties clashed on Sun. over the formation of a unified, inter-Korean team, as Seoul and Pyongyang are speeding up discussions about the details of NK's participation in the 2018 Olympics. (Yonhap)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- The S. Korean government must have a balanced sense of reality. We urge the administration to not make too many concessions towards NK and allow the rouge state to take control of the "driver's seat." (Joongang Ilbo)
- The historic joint Korean women's hockey team will feature at least three players from NK, as per a decision reached by the International Olympic Committee (IOC) on Sat. (Yonhap)
- NK consented Sun. to SK's plan to send an advance team later this week to its ski resort in preparations for joint training ahead of the upcoming Olympics. (Yonhap)
- A N. Korean delegation on Sun. wrapped up its first day of checking venues for its proposed art performances at next month's Olympics. (Yonhap)
- SK's presidential office's Cheong Wa-dae said Sun. that N. Korean athletes' participation in the upcoming Olympics will help ease tensions on the peninsula and serve as a stepping stone to establishing peace.(Yonhap)
- Gates on the heavily fortified border between NK and SK swung open for the first time in two years on Sun., allowing in a team of officials from NK, led by one of its most celebrated singers, Hyon Song-wol, to help plan for next month's Olympics. (Choe Sang-hun, NYT)
- NK has released posters that promote inter-Korean cooperation, in the lead-up to its participation in the Olympics. Pyongyang's move comes amid speculations that it is reaching out to Seoul to dampen the growing alliance between SK and US.(Yi Whan-woo, Korea Times)
- SK's presidential office on Sun. welcomed the IOC's approval of N. Korean athletes' participation in the upcoming Winter Olympics. (Yonhap)
- The Koreas marched as one in several sports events during the early 2000s, until Lee Myung-bak was elected in 2008 and Park Geun-hye in 2013. Under Moon, and amidst both positive and negative responses, the two Koreas will again march together. (Kim Hyo-kyung, Park Rin, Chae Hye-seon, Joongang Ilbo)

International:

- A recounting of when 83 Americans were held captive inside NK, following the seizure of the USS Pueblo spy ship in international waters, on Jan. 23, 1968. What avoided war in 1968 could be what avoids it today: sitting down and talking; which NK and SK just did. (James Griffiths, CNN)
- NK has been a case study in how a nation learns to make use of its cyber weapons for disruption, revenge or profit, without fear of serious retaliation. It has learned how to station hackers around the world and has gotten away with bolder and bolder attacks. (David E. Sanger, NYT)
- Trump is claiming (and getting) most of the credit for the sudden burst of Olympics-related diplomacy between the two Koreas. But Moon is trying to manipulate Trump into effectively undermining his own militaristic policy towards NK. (Anna Fifield, Washington Post)

Prepared by Emma Stubblefield, HRNK Research Intern

——————————————————

Monday, January 22, 2018

HRNK Executive Director Greg Scarlatoiu on Al Jazeera; For South Korean Hockey Team, Unity With North Is a Sacrifice

Top News:
HRNK Executive Director Greg Scarlatoiu on Al Jazeera (Al Jazeera, 01/17/2018)

In North Korea:
'Executed' North Korean pop diva takes Olympic spotlight (Washington Post, 01/22/2018)
Kim Jong-un promotes sister to senior post at major agency (Joongang Ilbo, 01/22/2018)
North Korean security agents to make up large part of Olympic group (Daily NK, 01/22/2018)
Resident tortured on trumped up charges, foreign communications crackdown (Daily NK, 01/22/2018)

In South Korea:
South Korean media show split opinion on North's Olympic participation (UPI, 01/22/2018)
South Korea went gaga over a North Korean singer. Just wait until the rest arrive. (Washington Post, 01/22/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

An Olympic spectacle (Joongang Ilbo, 01/22/2018)
Delegation finishes inspection of venues (Joongang Ilbo, 01/22/2018)
Dreamers, or delusional? (Joongang Ilbo, 01/22/2018)
For South Korean Hockey Team, Unity With North Is a Sacrifice (NYT, 01/22/2018)
Kim Jong-un 'handed propaganda victory' over North Korea's luxury ski resort (Telegraph, 01/22/2018)
Korea DMZ Sends Olympic Peace Messages (VOA, 01/22/2018)
(LEAD) Moon urges support for N. Korea's participation in Olympics (Yonhap, 01/22/2018)
(3rd LD) N. Korea accepts S. Korean advance team's planned visit for joint ski training(Yonhap, 01/22/2018)
N. Korea promotes Masik ski resort ahead of S. Korea's inspection (Yonhap, 01/22/2018)
N.K.'s high-level delegation trip to South expected to be good chance to discuss peace (Yonhap, 01/22/2018)
Olympics: South Korea ice hockey put in tough situation, says coach (Reuters, 01/22/2018)
Protesters burn picture of N.K. leader in rally against Olympic participation (Yonhap, 01/22/2018)
Protesters greet North Korean Olympic delegation touring Seoul (Reuters, 01/22/2018)
Ski lift: North Korea may capitalize on joint Olympics training visit (Reuters, 01/22/2018)
S. Korean hockey director looks for 'solutions' with joint women's team (Yonhap, 01/22/2018)
S. Korean inspection team to visit N. Korean venues for joint Olympic events this week (Yonhap, 01/22/2018)
The chimera of unification (Joongang Ilbo, 01/22/2018)
(LEAD) Women's hockey coach has 'mixed feelings' over joint Korean Olympic team (Yonhap, 01/22/2018)

International:
Japanese capital holds first North Korean missile attack drill (Reuters, 01/22/2018)
Malaysian prosecutors to call final witnesses in Kim Jong Nam murder trial (Reuters,01/22/2018)
Report: North Korea ships blocked in China head to Russia (UPI, 01/22/2018)
South Korea's Moon hopes inter-Korean thaw 'opens door' for nuclear talks with U.S.(Reuters, 01/22/2018)
The Latest: EU slaps sanctions on 17 more North Koreans (Washington Post, 01/22/2018)

Top News:

- HRNK Executive Director Greg Scarlatoiu discusses various N. Korean issues, including the recent Vancouver meetings and the absence of Russia and China, international sanctions, and the motives behind the talks between the two Koreas. (HRNK)

In North Korea:

- A few years ago Hyon Song-wol was reportedly executed by a N. Korean firing squad due to a porn scandal. Now, she's a senior ruling party official and a surprise headliner in the run-up to the S. Korean Olympics. (Eric Talmadge, AP)
- KJU's sister, Kim Yo-jong, has been promoted to first deputy director of the powerful Organization and Guidance Department within the Central Committee, another sign that

KJU is solidifying his grip on power by replacing remnants of the former leadership with his own picks. (Jeong Yong-soo, Heo Jin, Joongang Ilbo)

- N. Korean security staff will be among the group NK is sending to Pyeongchang. They will monitor N. Korean participants and keep them from escaping or saying anything disparaging about NK. (Jang Seul-gi, Daily NK)
- A N. Korean resident has had two toes amputated after contracting frostbite and gangrene while serving prison time. He was arrested by the Ministry of State Security unit for making international telephone calls, which KJU has cracked down on since coming to power. (Seol Song-ah, Daily NK)

In South Korea:

- S. Korean media on Mon. showed split opinions on the government accommodating NK's participation in the Olympics. Many are criticizing Seoul for being overly obliging toward the North, while others express approval of the talks. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- Hyon Song Wol's appearance and the upcoming N. Korean Cheering Squad are soft propaganda tools for NK to represent a side different from the rampant starvation and human rights abuses that is the reality for most N. Koreans. (Anna Fifield, Washington Post)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- 23 S. Koreans and 12 N. Koreans will compete as one ice hockey team after the IOC allowed the roster to expand to 35 instead of the usual 23. The joint team is raising questions of fairness against the normal sized teams and more joint teams in later in summer sporting events. (Chang Hye-soo, Joongang Ilbo)
- The 7 member delegation from NK that crossed over the border Sun. to check local facilities for two concerts next month traveled back to Seoul on Mon. visiting 3 venues before returning to NK. (Lee Song-un, Joongang Ilbo)
- Over 80% of people in their 20s and 30s, core supporters of the Moon administration, are expressing not only opposition to the joint team, but also serious disappointment. (Lee Hoon-beom, Joongang Ilbo)
- SK's scrappy women's ice hockey team has worked hard to earn the right to challenge tougher opponents at the Olympics. But after years of effort to build unity among the players, the S. Korean team is frustrated at suddenly being made a pawn in a geopolitical drama. (Mokoto Rich, Seth Berkman, NYT)
- Joint training could be used as a propaganda tool to rationalize how far-sighted KJU was in making what was actually an anachronistic decision to build the ski resort at a time when ordinary citizens are starving to death. (Nicola Smith,Telegraph)
- Olympic hosts in SK are working to transform the heavily militarized border area, just north of Pyeongchang, into a tourist attraction emphasizing the theme of inter-Korean peace (Brian Padden, VOA)
- Moon on Mon. urged public support for NK's participation in the Olympics, calling it a rare chance to restart international talks on ending NK's nuclear ambitions. (Yonhap)
- NK consented Sun. to SK's plan to send an advance team later this week to its ski resort in preparations for joint training ahead of the upcoming Olympics. (Yonhap)

- NK promoted Masikryong Ski Resort, one of KJU's signature achievements, 1 day ahead of S. Korean on-site inspection group's visit there for joint training of non-Olympic national skiers.(Yonhap)
- SK's unification minister said Mon. that it will be a "good opportunity" for the two Koreas to discuss peace and inter-Korean relations when the North's high-level delegation makes a trip to join next month's Olympics. (Yonhap)
- Sarah Murray, head coach of the S. Korean women's ice hockey team, said that while she had been given no choice about coaching a joint Korean team, there's been no pressure on her to play the N. Koreans in actual games. (Peter Rutherford, Reuters)
- Conservative protesters on Mon. burned a picture of KJU and the North's national flag, in a rally against NKs participation in next month's Olympics. (Yonhap)
- Small, vocal groups of S. Korean demonstrators on Mon. protested NK's participation in next month's Olympics, as a delegation of N. Korean officials visited Seoul and venues. (Shin Hyon-hee, Yuna Park, Reuters)
- SKs offer to send athletes to a N. Korean ski resort for joint training ahead of the Olympics risks giving KJU's regime legitimacy and some much needed cash (Shin Hyon-hee, Reuters)
- S. Korean national hockey director Jim Paek said that he is trying to "look for solutions, not problems" when it comes to the joint Korean women's team at the upcoming Olympics. (Yonhap).
- A S. Korean delegation is set to travel to NK this week to inspect the venues where the two Koreas will hold joint cultural and sports events ahead of the upcoming 2018 Olympics. (Yonhap)
- History shows that reunification of a divided nation normally takes some external cataclysm, not the mere will of the people- marching under the same flag won't be enough. (Harold Piper, Joongang Ilbo)
- S. Korean women's national hockey coach Sarah Murray said it's "exciting" to coach the first-ever unified Korean team in any sport at the Olympic Games, though she wished it didn't have to come at the expense of her own players. (Yoo Jee-ho,Yonhap)

International:

- Tokyo held its first missile evacuation drill on Mon. with participants taking cover in subway stations and other underground spaces that would double as shelters in the event of a N. Korean missile strike. (Reuters)
- Malaysian prosecutors in the trial of two women accused of the poison murder of Kim Jong-nam will call their final witnesses in coming weeks as the defense attempts to discover their motive. (Reuters)
- More N. Korean ships are heading to Russia as sanctions take root and Chinese ports are under scrutiny for trade with Pyongyang. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- Moon claimed that a thaw in relations between the two Koreas ahead of the Olympics presented a "precious chance" for the US and NK to discuss the North's weapons programs. (Shin Hyon-hee, Yuna Park, Reuters)
- The EU slapped travel bans and asset freezes on 17 N. Koreans accused of illegal trading activities and side-stepping sanctions imposed on Pyongyang over its nuclear program. (AP)

Prepared by Emma Stubblefield, HRNK Research Intern

———————————————

Tuesday, January 23, 2018

'The Seoul Syndrome' and the 'Pyongyang Olympics'? S.K. on Thin Ice; S.K. government urges public to restrain from provoking N.K.; U.S. has no plans to meet N.K. officials around Olympics

Top News:
'The Seoul Syndrome' and the 'Pyongyang Olympics'? South Korea on Thin Ice (Daily Beast, 01/22/2018)
Cheong Wa Dae urges public to restrain from provoking N. Korea (Yonhap, 01/23/2018)

In North Korea:
Experts: Kim Jong Un aims to step out of predecessors' shadows (UPI, 01/23/2018)
N. Korea to mark new army founding day just before PyeongChang Olympics (Yonhap, 01/23/2018)
North's army founding day shifted to eve of Olympics (Joongang Ilbo, 01/23/2018)
North Korea denounces burning of Kim Jong-un picture (Korea Times, 01/23/2018)
North Korea Signals It Might Hold Military Parade on Eve of Olympics (NYT, 01/23/2018)
North Korea ski resort: South Korean officials to visit Masikryong (BBC, 01/23/2018)
North Korea tops list of world's most neglected humanitarian crises (Guardian, 01/23/2018)
North Koreans, forced onto winter worksites, turn to markets for protection (DailyNK, 01/23/2018)
Remembering the Pueblo: How Internal Imperatives Shape North Korean Decisions (38 North, 01/23/2018)

In South Korea:
Defense minister urges faster transfer of wartime Opcon (Joongang Ilbo, 01/23/2018)
'Harmony and convergence' are Olympic themes (Joongang Ilbo, 01/23/2018)
Ice hockey coach has 'mixed feelings' over unified team (Joongang Ilbo, 01/23/2018)
S. Korea to coordinate closely with U.S. amid inter-Korean talks: envoy (Yonhap, 01/23/2018)
S.Korean officials discussing N.Korea taekwondo performance (Washington Post, 01/23/2018)
South Korea rejects 'Pyongyang Olympics' criticism (Reuters, 01/23/2018)
South Korea to file complaint to WTO over U.S. safeguard measures (UPI, 01/23/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
(LEAD) Presidential office urges public to welcome Olympic participants including North Korea (Yonhap, 01/23/2018)
(2nd LD) S. Korean team begins field survey on N. Korea venues for joint Olympic events (Yonhap, 01/23/2018)

(4th LD) N. Korean delegation returns home after wrapping up 2-day inspection stay (Yonhap, 01/23/2018)
Controversial Olympic Outreach Sparks Korean Unification Debate (VOA, 01/23/2018)
Envoys from Koreas Exchange Visits Ahead of Pyeongchang Winter Olympics (VOA, 01/23/2018)
Ex-North Korean spy recounts Olympic plot to blow up plane (CNN, 01/22/2018)
Former K-pop entrepreneur among S. Korean team to arrange Olympic show in N.K. (Yonhap, 01/23/2018)
Joint hockey team coach gets wish with early arrival of N. Korea players (Yonhap, 01/23/2018)
N. Korea selects 2 concert venues in S.K. ahead of Olympics (Yonhap, 01/23/2018)
North Korea musician expresses rare gratitude to South for 'cooperation' (UPI, 01/23/2018)
North Korea participation to highlight opening ceremony (Reuters, 01/23/2018)
North Korean pop star finds fame in South Korea during Games tour (CNN, 01/22/2018)
Pyeongchang Winter Olympics may open with North Korean performance (UPI, 01/23/2018)
Seoul proposes N.K. art team perform on eve or opening day of PyeongChang Olympics (Yonhap, 01/23/2018)
S. Korean advance team goes to North for pre-Olympic events (Washington Post, 01/23/2018)
South Korean delegates visit Mt. Geumgang, Masikryong ski resort (Korea Times, 01/23/2018)
South sends delegation to resort in North (Joongang Ilbo, 01/23/2018)
Skirting sanctions (Joongang Ilbo, 01/23/2018)
Teamwork at risk (Joongang Ilbo, 01/23/2018)
What will budget procurement look like in post-unification Korea? (*Daily*NK, 01/23/2018)

International:
China Sends Top Economic Adviser to Davos as Trade War Concerns Grow (VOA, 01/23/2018)
CIA: North Korea moving 'ever closer' to putting US at risk (Washington Post, 01/23/2018)
Did Trump just start a trade war with China? (CNN, 01/23/2018)
Hawaii's governor couldn't correct the false missile alert sooner because he forgot his Twitter password (CNN, 01/23/2018)
IOC President Bach says PyeongChang Olympics can send 'message of peace' to world (Yonhap, 01/23/2018)
Malaysia: Technicians Testify about CCTV Tapes of Kim Jong Nam Attack (RFA, 01/22/2018)
Most Americans don't trust President Trump with the 'nuclear button' (Washington Post, 01/23/2018)
NBC News President arrives in North Korea (Korea Times, 01/22/2018)
N. Korea 'handful of months' away from ability to nuke U.S.: CIA chief (Yonhap, 01/23/2018)
North Korea, U.S. clash at disarmament forum over nuclear arms (Reuters, 01/23/2018)
Report: China's maritime surveillance extends to Guam (UPI, 01/23/2018)
Tokyo stages missile drill as fears linger of North Korean attack (CNN, 01/22/2018)
U.S. defense chief says N. Korea a topic on Asia trip (Yonhap, 01/23/2018)
U.S. has no plans to meet N.K. officials around Olympics: State Department (Yonhap, 01/23/2018)
U.S., Japan, Britain reportedly opposed S. Korea's proposal to resume humanitarian aid to N. Korea (Yonhap, 01/23/2018)

Top News:

- HRNK Executive Director Greg Scarlatoiu: "After the Olympics, N.K. will continue to stay in the driver's seat in inter-Korean relations, aim to control the agenda, extract maximum benefits, and also drive a wedge between S.K. and the US." (Gordon G. Chang, Daily Beast)

- The Blue house called on the public to show more respect to all countries that will participate in the upcoming Winter Olympic Games, including N.K., one day after a group of conservative activists staged a violent protest against N.K. (Yonhap)

In North Korea:

- KJU is attempting to step out of his predecessors' shadows by building up his own military might, according to S.K. experts. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- N.K. said that it has designated Feb. 8 as the new founding anniversary of its army and will prepare "practical" steps to mark the "historic" occasion, which will come one day before S.K. opens the Winter Olympic Games. (Yonhap)
- N.K. announced Tuesday it would return to celebrating Feb. 8 as its army founding day and hold “diverse events” - on the eve of the PyeongChang Winter Olympics. (Lee Sung-eun, Lee Chul-jae, Joongang Ilbo)
- N.K. has condemned a S.K. far-right group's burning of a picture of its leader KJU and the national flag, calling them "unforgivable atrocities." (Kim Rahn, Korea Times)
- N.K. announced that Feb. 8, the day before the Winter Olympics open in S.K., will be a national holiday honoring its army, raising the possibility of a large military parade. (Choe Sang-hun, NYT)
- S.K. officials are visiting Masikryong ski resort in the North, ahead of the Winter Olympics. (BBC)
- Study says N.K.’s severe food shortages are ignored by global media, with emergencies in Eritrea and Burundi similarly overlooked. (Rebecca Ratcliffe, Guardian)
- Despite temperatures below freezing, N.K. authorities continue to exacerbate the situation by forcing residents to participate in uncompensated outdoor work on state projects. (Kang Mi Jin, DailyNK)
- For a reminder of how indigenous forces can shape DPRK behavior, contemporary policymakers could do worse than turn the clock back to 1968 and “Remember the Pueblo.” (Mitchell Lerner, 38 North)

In South Korea:

- Defense Minister Song Young-moo urged the military’s top brass on Tuesday to hasten preparations to take back S.K.’s wartime operational control from the US. (Ser Myo-Ja, Joongang Ilbo)
- “Harmony and convergence” are the overall themes of the upcoming Olympics and will be used to express a message of “passion and peace.” (Kang Yoo-rim, Joongang Ilbo)
- S.K. women’s national hockey coach Sarah Murray said she has “mixed feelings” about having to coach the joint Korean team at the upcoming PyeongChang Winter Olympics. (Yonhap)
- S.K. will closely coordinate with the US as it pursues dialogue with N.K., Seoul's top envoy to the UN has said. (Yonhap)
- S.K. Olympic organizers say it’s too late to include a N.K. taekwondo performance in the opening ceremony of the Pyeongchang Winter Games, but it might still occur at the Olympic Stadium on Feb. 9. (Kim Tong-Hyung, AP)

- The Blue House rejected criticism that next month's Winter Games had been hijacked by N.K., saying the event will help defuse tensions over N.K.'s nuclear and missile programs. (Hyonhee Shin, Reuters)
- Seoul plans to file a complaint to the World Trade Organization against the US' safeguard measures on S.K. washing machines and solar panels. (Jennie Oh, UPI)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- The Blue House urged the public to welcome all participating countries in the upcoming Winter Olympic Games, including N.K., calling it a rare chance to ease tension between the divided Koreas and also restart denuclearization dialogue. (Yonhap)
- A S.K. delegation began their three-day field survey of N.K. venues where the two Koreas will hold joint cultural and sports events ahead of the PyeongChang Winter Olympics. (Yonhap)
- A N.K. delegation led by the powerful female head of a national orchestra returned home late Monday after touring concert halls in Seoul to inspect candidate venues for planned art performances during next month's PyeongChang Winter Olympics. (Yonhap)
- Concessions being made to accommodate N.K.'s participation in the upcoming Olympics have reignited the debate in S.K. over the benefits of working towards unification with N.K. (Brian Padden, VOA)
- N.K. and S.K. are engaged in a flurry of cross-border visits ahead of next month's Winter Olympics, as the bitter rivals press ahead with an agreement for N.K. to take part in the games. (VOA)
- Ex-N.K. spy Kim Hyun-hui: "N.K. is using S.K. to overcome their difficulties ... to achieve their goal they execute their own people, siblings, families, do not be fooled, N.K. has not changed at all." (Paula Hancocks and Jake Kwon, CNN)
- A prominent K-pop guru is among S.K.'s delegation visiting the North's mountain resort to arrange a joint cultural event to mark the PyeongChang Winter Olympics. (Yonhap)
- Sarah Murray, head coach of the joint Korean women's hockey team got her wish on Tuesday, with the news of an earlier-than-expected arrival of N.K. players. (Yonhap)
- N.K. has selected two concert venues in S.K. for its proposed art performances celebrating the PyeongChang Winter Olympics next month. (Yonhap)
- The leader of N.K.'s Samjiyon Orchestra expressed gratitude to S.K. officials after touring venues ahead of the 2018 Pyeongchang Winter Olympics. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- N.K.'s participation at the next month's Winter Olympics will form an integral part of an opening ceremony that will highlight a key message of peace. (Jane Chung, Reuters)
- In a country where K-pop reigns supreme, Hyon's trip appears to have created the perfect storm for the S.K. media: a young, attractive musician whose visit carries geopolitical implications. (Ivan Watson and Joshua Berlinger, CNN)
- Seoul proposed the North's cultural delegation stage one of its two performances on the eve of the Pyeongchang Olympics or on the opening day in the sub-host city of Gangneung. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- S.K. has suggested that a N.K. art troupe hold one of its two proposed performances on the eve of the PyeongChang Winter Olympics or on opening day. (Yonhap)
- A team of S.K. officials traveled to N.K. to check logistics for joint events ahead of next month's Winter Olympics in the South, as the rivals exchanged rare visits to each other amid signs of warming ties. (Hyung-Jin Kim, AP)

- A S.K. delegation arrived in N.K for a three-day tour of Mount Geumgang and the Masikryong Ski Resort, where inter-Korean events will take place ahead of the PyeongChang Winter Olympics next month. (Kim Bo-eun, Korea Times)
- A 12-member delegation from S.K. entered the North Tuesday to examine facilities at a symbolic mountain resort and ski range, marking another historic moment in inter-Korean relations. (Lee Sung-eun, Joongang Ilbo)
- While N.K. is gearing up with its charm offensive, its intention in engaging in talks while adhering to nuclear missile development could be an attempt to seek financial assistance and have sanctions lifted. (Joongang Ilbo)
- Forming a joint women's national hockey team with N.K. has generated a very heated controversy as people believe the authorities did not consider that ice hockey requires teamwork perhaps more than any other sport. (Joongang Ilbo)
- A federal government overseeing a united peninsula could finance its budget using one or a combination of three different sources: taxation, government bonds, and loans. (DailyNK)

International:

- China is sending a top economic adviser and rising politician to lead its largest entourage to date to attend the World Economic Forum this week. He is also expected to warn Washington against the dangers of a possible trade war. (Bill Ide, VOA)
- CIA said that N.K. is moving "ever closer" to putting Americans at risk with a nuclear-tipped missile and KJU won't rest until he's able to threaten multiple nuclear attacks against the U.S. at the same time. (Deb Riechmann, AP)
- Trump's decision Monday to slap tariffs on imports of solar panels and washing machines risks inflaming tensions with China and other big U.S. trade partners. (Daniel Shane, CNN)
- When Hawaii pushed out a ballistic missile alert earlier this month, Gov. David Ige knew within two minutes it was a false alarm. But he couldn't hop on Twitter and tell everybody -- because he didn't know his password. (Doug Criss, CNN)
- With the two Koreas having agreed to march in together at their opening ceremony, the 2018 PyeongChang Winter Games can send "the message of peace" to the rest of the world. (Yonhap)
- Returning to court on Monday after a seven-week hiatus, the prosecutors of two Southeast Asian women charged with murdering KJN called computer technicians to verify CCTV footage taken during and after last year's chemical attack. (RFA)
- About half of Americans are concerned that Trump might launch a nuclear attack without justification. (Emily Guskin, Washington Post)
- NBC News President is believed to be arranging to cover N.K. athletes and envoys participating in the Pyeongchang Winter Olympics. (Ko Dong-hwan, Korea Times)
- N.K. is only a "handful of months" away from being able to strike the mainland US with a nuclear weapon, and Washington is working to extend that timeline. (Yonhap)
- N.K. said it had a "powerful and reliable" nuclear deterrent to thwart any attack and accused the US of deploying military assets nearby under the pretext of ensuring security at the Pyeongchang Winter Olympics. (Stephanie Nebehay, Reuters)
- Chinese acoustic sensors may be picking up signals between U.S. submarines in the South China Sea and their command base. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)

- Despite the appearance of warmer Korean ties, Japanese Prime Minister Shinzo Abe warned his countrymen to remain vigilant, describing the threat of N.K.'s nuclear and missile development as "unprecedented" and "imminent." (Will Ripley, CNN)
- US Defense Secretary Jim Mattis said he is sure to discuss the N.K. nuclear crisis when he meets with his counterparts in Indonesia and Vietnam this week. (Yonhap)
- US has no plans to meet with N.K. officials around the PyeongChang Winter Olympics amid hopes of a breakthrough in their nuclear impasse. (Yonhap)
- The US, Japan and Britain voiced their opposition to S.K.'s proposal to resume humanitarian assistance to N.K. during a recent foreign ministerial meeting in Canada. (Yonhap)

Prepared by James Park, HRNK Research Intern

——————————————————

Wednesday, January 24, 2018

On Inter-Korean Talks — B.R. Myers; Gaps remain in CIA's understanding of N. Korean nukes, spy chief says; NK gearing up for massive military parade

Top News:
On Inter-Korean Talks — B.R. Myers (Sthele Press, 01/24/2018)

In North Korea:
North Korea gearing up for massive military parade (Yonhap, 01/24/2018)
Olympics become hot issue in North Korean market gossip (Daily NK, 01/24/2018)

In South Korea:
South Korean human rights groups eager for launch of new foundation (Daily NK, 01/24/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
A flurry of exchanges, protests: What's next for Koreas? (Washington Post, 01/24/2018)
Activists Rip Kim Jong Un's Photo in Olympic Protest (NYT, 01/23/2018)
Bobsleigh coach rejects joint Korean Olympic team idea (Yonhap, 01/24/2018)
Cheong Wa Dae denounces ideological offensive over Olympics (Korea Times, 01/23/2018)
Main opposition party calls on N. Korea to delay military parade (Yonhap, 01/24/2018)
North Korea says protesters who burned Kim Jong-un image are 'stinking conservative riff-raff' (Telegraph, 01/23/2018)
North Korean ice hockey players to visit Seoul Thursday (Korea Times, 01/24/2018)
North Korean singer's visit part of strategy to rattle South (UPI, 01/24/2018)
South Korea mulling over gift options for North Korean Olympic delegation (UPI, 01/24/2018)

S. Korean businessmen pushing to visit N. Korea after PyeongChang Olympics (Yonhap,01/24/2018)
(Yonhap Feature) S. Koreans view N.K. participation in Olympics with mixed feelings
(Yonhap,01/24/2018)
(LEAD) Two Koreas agree on dates, venues for N. Korea's art performances (Yonhap,01/24/2018)
What will budget procurement look like in post-unification Korea? (Daily NK, 01/23/2018)

International:
CIA believes North Korea weapons aimed at coercion, not just defense: Pompeo
(Reuters,01/24/2018)
CIA chief draws new 'red line' on North Korea nuclear buildup (Guardian, 01/24/2018)
Gaps remain in CIA's understanding of North Korean nukes, spy chief says (Washington Post,01/24/2018)
Japan tells U.N. of North Korean tanker suspected of sanctions busting (Reuters, 01/24/2018)
Lavrov, Tillerson discuss North Korea, Syria by phone: Russian foreign ministry (Reuters,01/24/2018)
Lessons From a Spy Ship's Seizure (NYT, 01/24/2018)
Mattis praises Vietnam's 'leadership' on North Korea sanctions (Reuters, 01/24/2018)
N. Korea Olympic Pause Delays Talk of US 'Bloody Nose' Strategy (VOA, 01/24/2018)
N. Korea seeks ability to simultaneously fire multiple nuclear missiles: CIA chief (Yonhap,01/23/2018)
North Korea, U.S. clash at disarmament forum over nuclear arms (Reuters, 01/24/2018)
(LEAD) Now is the 'best time' for N.K. to come out for talks with U.S.: Seoul official
(Yonhap,01/24/2018)
Remembering the Pueblo: How Internal Imperatives Shape North Korean Decisions (38 North, 01/23/2018)
South, U.S. hold military talks before Games (Joongang Ilbo, 01/24/2018)
US Congress may ban 'unilateral' N. Korea strike (Korea Times, 01/23/2018)
US Treasury official presses Hong Kong, Beijing on NKorea (Washington Post, 01/24/2018)

Top News:

- Talks have progressed quickly because the Koreas share the short-term goal of making the North look better despite its refusal to disarm. The Moon administration will continue to push its inter Korean agenda even though the public itself is still divided. (B.R. Myers, Sthele Press)

In North Korea:

- A massive movement of N. Korean soldiers, apparently preparing for a grand parade to mark the new military founding anniversary, has been captured by a commercial satellite. (Yonhap)
- NK's participation in the S. Korean hosted Olympics have reportedly become a hot topic of conversation in the markets of Kangwon Province. (Kang Mi-jin, Daily NK)

In South Korea:

- While the international community condemns NK for its rights abuses, the launch of SK's N. Korean Human Rights Foundation, which aims to serve as a central hub in supporting research into N. Korean human rights, investigations, and civic groups, has been held up by political bickering. (Kim Ji-seung, Daily NK)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- Moon hopes to engage in nuclear talks, NK, however, has insisted it won't discuss its nuclear program during its ongoing talks with SK, and some experts warn that tensions could flare again after the Olympics. (Kim Hyung-jin, AP)
- Anti-Pyongyang activists on Wed. ripped photos of KJU in the latest protests in Seoul against SK's outreach to NK over next month's Olympics. (AP)
- S. Korean bobsleigh head coach Lee Yong on Wed. rejected a recent proposal for a joint Korean team for test runs at the Olympics, saying the idea would only embarrass the sport. (Yonhap)
- Cheong Wa Dae has expressed discontent at an escalating political offensive over North Korea's participation in the Olympics, reiterating the need for unified efforts to successfully host the Games. (Kim Rahn, Korea Times)
- SK's main opposition Liberty Korea Party called Wed. for NK to delay its reported plan to hold a military parade on the eve of the Olympics next month. (Yonhap)
- NK has demanded SK apologize for "despicable conservative riff-raff" protesters who burned an image of KJU in Seoul. (Nick Allen,Telegraph)
- N. Korean female ice hockey players will arrive in Seoul Thurs. for joint training with their S. Korean counterparts ahead of next month's Olympics, as part of a larger delegation that will inspect facilities for the Games. (Kim Bo-eun, Korea Times)
- International media attention on a N. Korean musician who recently visited the South is enabling a N. Korean strategy to secure more power in future negotiations. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- With more than 700 N. Koreans expected to attend the Olympics next month, the S. Korean government is seeking ways to give North Korean gifts or sporting equipment for the Olympics. without violating international sanctions. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- S. Korean businessmen are pushing for a trip to NK around the end of next month to inspect their facilities at the now-shuttered joint factory park in the North's border city of Kaesong, the head of a private task force said Wed. (Yonhap)
- S. Koreans have mixed feelings over NK's participation in the games, which has both raised hope of reconciliation on the divided peninsula and sparked outrage over what is seen as a disguised charm offensive meant to weaken the brunt of international sanctions. (Yonhap)
- SK has agreed to NK's recent offer on the dates and venues for the North's planned art performances to celebrate next month's Olympics. NK's art troupe will hold performances at Gangneung Arts Center in Gangneung on Feb. 8 and the National Theater of Korea in Seoul on Feb. 11. (Yonhap)
- Tax collection alone will be insufficient to fund reunification, the new state would likely need to take out loans and go into debt. (Daily NK)

International:

- The CIA believes NK's missile program is aimed at coercion, not just self-defense, and that Pyongyang's next logical step would be to develop an arsenal of weapons and the capability to fire multiple missiles at the US. (David Brunnstrom, Warren Strobel, Reuters)
- The Trump administration is intent on preventing NK from being able to fire multiple nuclear missiles at the US, apparently sketching out a new red line for the regime in Pyongyang. (Julian Borger, Guardian)
- The CIA has a better understanding of NK's efforts to develop nuclear missiles that can reliably hit targets in the US, but is still working to make up for what he described as insufficient attention to the country under previous administrations. (Shane Harris, Washington Post)

- Japan has told the UN about a N. Korean tanker spotted in the East China Sea that it suspects was engaged in a transfer of goods with another Dominican tanker in defiance of UN sanctions. (Reuters)
- Russian Foreign Minister Sergei Lavrov and his U.S. counterpart Rex Tillerson on Wed. and agreed on the need for NK to strictly comply with the demands of the U.N. Security Council. (Reuters)
- Through Johnson's patience, apologies, and diplomacy, the crew of the Publeo returned home. But, one wonders if Trump possesses sufficient reserves of patience and restraint to cope with NK's provocation today. (Jack Cheevers, NYT)
- U.S. Defense Secretary Jim Mattis praised Vietnam on Wed. for adhering to sanctions against NK, saying that its leadership on the issue came despite the costs associated with lost trade. (Phil Stewart, James Pearson, Reuters)
- NK's recent Olympic peace offensive has reduced talk that the U.S. is preparing to give Pyongyang a "bloody nose" the next time it is provoked. But the controversial U.S. strategy to respond to continued N. Korean missile or nuclear tests with a limited military strike reportedly remains an option under consideration. (Brian Patten, VOA)
- NK is pushing to acquire the capability to fire multiple nuclear missiles at the same time, increasing the threat posed to the US, the head of the CIA said Tues. (Yonhap)
- NK said on Tues. it had a "powerful and reliable" nuclear deterrent to thwart any attack and accused the US of deploying military assets nearby under the pretext of ensuring security at the Olympics. (Stephanie Nebehay, Reuters)
- Now is the "best time" for NK to hold dialogue with the US on its nuclear and missile programs, a high-ranking S. Korean diplomatic official anonymously said Wed., adding that the Seoul government does not oppose their bilateral talks. (Yonhap)
- When analyzing the history behind the Publeo incident, it can be seen that NK acted alone and that Kim used it to rally N. Koreans against the external US threat in order to distract them from economic troubles. (Mitchell Lerner, 38 North)
- National Defense Minister Song Young-moo and U.S. Secretary of Defense Jim Mattis will meet in Hawaii this Sat. to discuss NK's Olympic participation and how Washington can help Seoul ensure a successful Olympics. (Lee Chul-jae, Joongang Ilbo)
- Congress has proposed a bill to prohibit the government from conducting any preemptive strikes against NK, but it comes with a clause under which the US can launch a preemptive strike against NK when the attack is aimed at rescuing U.S. citizens or stopping Pyongyang from attacking the US and its allies. (Lee Min-hyung, Korea Times)
- A U.S. Treasury official has urged officials in Hong Kong and Beijing to step up measures to counter N. Korean smuggling and financing, as part of Washington's fine tuning of efforts to shut down Pyongyang's nuclear program. (Kelvin Chan, AP)

Prepared by Emma Stubblefield, HRNK Research Intern

Thursday, January 25, 2018

Timeline of North Korean Military Parade Preparations; Preventing a Post-Collapse Crisis in North Korea: How to Avoid Famine and Mass Migration; US announces new sanctions over NK weapons program

Top News:
Timeline of North Korean Military Parade Preparations (38 North, 01/24/2018)
Preventing a Post-Collapse Crisis in North Korea: How to Avoid Famine and Mass Migration (Foreign Affairs, 01/25/2018)

*Please scroll to the bottom to view an excerpt from "Preparing a Post-Collapse Crisis in North Korea: How to Avoid Famine and Mass Migration"

In North Korea:
50 Years Later, USS Pueblo on Display as North Korean Prize (VOA, 01/25/2018)
N. Korea Planning Military Event on Eve of Pyeongchang Games (NY Times, 01/25/2018)
North's army founding day shifted to eve of Olympics (Joongang Ibo, 01/24/2018)
North Korea Tightens Security Before Major Military Parade (RFA, 01/24/2018)
North Korea to show off military prowess on eve of PyeongChang Olympics (Korea Times, 01/25/2018)
North Korea trumpets 'world-level' tourist project ahead of Olympics (Reuters, 01/25/2018)
North plans concerts in South on Feb. 8 and 11 (Joongang Ibo, 01/25/2018)
The unchecked corruption of Chairman Pak: graft, rent-seeking, and false imprisonment (Daily NK, 01/24/2018)

In South Korea:
Exclusive: South Korea's foreign minister says has 'all contingency scenarios' for inter-Korean talks (Reuters, 01/25/2018)
Improving Inter-Korean Ties Could Strain US Alliance (VOA, 01/25/2018)
NK soldier's defection motive under scrutiny (Korea Times, 01/25/2018)
Moon's approval at 59.8%, lowest since taking office (Joongang Ilbo, 01/26/2018)
President's birthday riles up supporters and detractors (Joongang Ibo, 01/26/2018)
Seoul waiting for inspection results of ski resort in N.K. for joint training (Yonhap, 01/25/2018)
South Korea Minister Says Military Option 'Unacceptable' on North Korea Crisis (NY Times, 01/25/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
'Olympic option': Winter Games could be a win for Korean unity (UPI, 01/24/2018)
Don't mess with PyeongChang (Joongang Ilbo, 01/26/2018)
Korean Hockey Players Arrive for Joint Olympics Practice as North Korea Calls for Unity (NY Times, 01/24/2018)
(2nd LD) N.K. women's ice hockey players, Olympic advance team travel to S. Korea(Yonhap, 01/25/2018)
N. Korea's Olympic participation opens up 'tiny' window for denuclearization talks: Ban Ki-moon (Yonhap, 01/25/2018)

(LEAD) N. Korean women's hockey players join S. Korean team for Olympic training (Yonhap, 01/25/2018)
N. Korean officials inspect Olympic venues in Gangneung (Yonhap, 01/25/2018)
North, South Korea Hockey Players Team Up for Olympics (NY Times, 01/25/2018)
North's ice hockey players arrive (Joongang Ilbo, 01/26/2018)
North Korea calls for reunification as hockey teams unite ahead of joint effort at Winter Olympics (Telegraph, 01/25/2018)
North Korea calls for unity with South as hockey players begin Olympics training (Reuters, 01/24/2018)
North Korea Missile Threat Revives Talk of 'Star Wars' (VOA, 01/25/2018)
North Korea sends rare announcement to all Koreans, calls for unification (Reuters, 01/24/2018)
(2nd LD) S. Korean team returns after checking venues for joint events in N.K. (Yonhap, 01/25/2018)
S. Korea willing to consider joint cross-country skiing team with N.K. (Yonhap, 01/25/208)

International:
China barely exports any oil products to North Korea in December: customs (Reuters, 01/25/2018)
China Says Evidence Needed to Punish Entities Tied to NKorea (NY Times, 01/25/2018)
Japan accuses Dominican Republic tanker of passing fuel to North Korea (Telegraph, 01/24/2018)
(Yonhap Interview) Mexican Senate chief expresses hope for improved inter-Korean ties through Olympics (Yonhap, 01/25/2018)
NBC's Holt says he approached North Korea with eyes open (Washington Post, 01/25/2018)
North Korean ship caught likely violating sanctions, Japan says (CNN, 01/24/2018)
Peace and nukes don't mix (Joongang Ilbo, 01/26/2018)
Pro-N.K. residents in Japan getting ready to cheer N. Korean Olympic athletes (Yonhap, 01/24/2018)
(LEAD) S. Korea's nuke envoy, U.S. Treasury official discuss pressure on N.K. (Yonhap, 01/25/2018)
(LEAD) S. Korea, U.S. defense chiefs to meet in Hawaii Friday (Yonhap, 01/25/2018)
Senior U.S. Treasury official visits S. Korea (Yonhap, 01/25/2018)
Ship That Took Russian Fuel to North Korea Hit by U.S. Sanctions (NY Times, 0125/2018)
Singaporean-owned ship defies sanctions in contacting N. Korean tanker (Yonhap, 01/25/2018)
Tillerson stresses urgency of implementing U.N. sanctions on N.K. (Yonhap, 01/25/2018)
Treasury targets North Korea again, sanctions illicit Chinese and Russian actors (CNN, 01/24/2018)
Trump Administration Slaps New Sanctions on North Korea (NY Times, 01/24/2018)
(2nd LD) U.S. announces new sanctions over N.K. weapons program (Yonhap, 01/25/2018)
U.S. imposes more North Korea sanctions; urges China, Russia expulsions (Reuters, 01/24/2018)
U.S. sanctions people, firms, ships for aiding N. Korean arms industry -Treasury (Reuters, 01/24/2018)
U.S. slaps sanctions on more entities, people (Joongang Ilbo, 01/26/2018)
US Imposes New Sanctions on North Korea (VOA, 01/24/2018)
US Lawmaker: Curtail US-South Korea Drills in Exchange for North's Denuclearization (VOA, 01/25/2018)
US official warns Hong Kong over North Korea smuggling, money laundering (CNN, 01/25/2018)

Top News:

- Featuring analysis from Joseph S. Bermudez Jr.: NK recently announced that to celebrate the founding of the KPA, a parade will be held on Feb. 8. Commercial satellite imagery has suggested that preparations for this military parade, a parade frequently used to showcase new military equipment and the latest N.Korean weapons systems, are already underway.

Should the parade happen as announced, there will likely be criticism from inter-Korean dialogue skeptics, especially as the parade coincides with the opening of the Pyeongchang Olympics. (38 North)

- Written by Andrew Natsios, HRNK Co-chair Emeritus and Joonbum Bae, "Preventing a Post-Collapsse Crisis in North Korea" explores the potential ramifications of a post-KJU regime collapse in NK. (Andrew Natsios, Joonbum Bae, Foreign Policy)

In North Korea:

- Fifty years after it was seized by NK, the USS Pueblo is the only US Navy ship held captive by a foreign government. And though mostly forgotten in the US, the "Pueblo Incident" for NK remains a potent symbol of military success. (AP)
- NK is preparing to stage a major event to mark the 70th anniversary of the founding of its military on Feb. 8—just one day before the opening ceremony of the Pyeongchang Winter Olympics in SK. (AP)
- NK announced Tues. it would return to celebrating Feb. 8 as its army founding day and hold "diverse events" on the eve of the PyeongChang Winter Olympics. NK did not specify what events it had in mind, but the news came as local military and intelligence officials said they've detected signs Pyongyang is preparing a military parade. (Lee Sung-eun, Lee Chul-jae, Joongang Ilbo)
- N.Korean authorities have initiated a special month-long security mobilization period in the run-up to a military parade on Feb. 8, the day before the opening of the Winter Olympics in SK, sources inside the country said. (Sunghui Moon, Leejin Jun, Roseanne Gerin, RFA)
- NK is apparently preparing to show off its combat prowess by holding a large military parade on the eve of the PyeongChang Winter Olympics, in a move that will revive tension in the thaw in inter-Korean relations. (Lee Min-hyung, Korea Times)
- NK advertised a new "world-level" tourist project in coastal Kangwon province on Thurs., a statement that coincides with plans by Winter Olympics host SK to participate in joint sporting and cultural events in the area. (Josh Smith, Reuters)
- A N.Korean orchestra will hold a concert on Feb. 8, the eve of the PyeongChang Winter Olympics, in Gangneung, Gangwon, the first time since Aug. 2002 that N.Koreans will perform in SK—and the first time ever outside Seoul. (Lee Sung-eun, Joongang Ilbo)
- The County Party Chairman of Kimjongsuk County in Ryanggang Province, Pak Chol Ho, has been abusing his power to increase his own wealth in foreign currency. The vice chairman who had brought up the charges against Pak in Jan. 2015, lost his position after Pak requested a personnel change, which allowed Pak to continue to accumulate power. (Unification Media Group, Daily NK)

In South Korea:

- SK has prepared "all contingency scenarios" in case NK stages another weapons test even as the two countries hold a series of talks and mutual visits around next month's Winter Olympics, SK's foreign minister said. (Soyoung Kim, Reuters)
- NK's conciliatory message sent out Thurs. may indicate SK's Olympic outreach is working, but there are concerns that improving inter-Korean relations could undermine the US maximum pressure strategy. (Brian Padden, VOA)

- Moon's weekly approval rating plunged to 59.8 percent, marking the lowest since he took office in May 2017, as his policy to invite NK to the upcoming Winter Olympics failed to generate public support. (Ser Myo-ja, Joongang Ilbo)
- The National Intelligence Service (NIS) is reportedly looking into allegations that a N.Korean soldier who escaped to SK through the Joint Security Area had caused a traffic accident under the influence of alcohol just before the defection. (Choi Ha-young, Korea Times)
- As Moon's birthday approached last Wed., the national divide over his policies became more rancorous. His supporters celebrated with a ringing endorsement of his efforts to make the PyeongChang Games a "peace Olympics" while his critics typed in "Pyongyang Olympics" to denounce the government's concessions to NK during the weeks leading up to the Games. (Lee Sung-eun, Joongang Ilbo)
- SK has yet to be informed of the current state of a ski resort on NK's east coast, which will be used for joint skiing training by the two Koreas' non-Olympic skiers, government officials said Thurs. (Yonhap)
- SK's foreign minister said on Thurs. the standoff over NK's nuclear programme must be resolved diplomatically, and she was certain Washington would consult her government first if a military option were to be considered. (Reuters)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- Over the past few weeks, news from the Korean peninsula took a sharp turn from the "nuclear option" to the "Olympic option." The recent rapprochement around the Olympics is a step in building consensus and identity as Koreans first, and could help resolve the Korean division. (Kate Tsubata, UPI).
- The S.Korean government must demand that Pyongyang not hold a military parade before the Olympics period and also explain NK's military movements to the people as the conservative community is already mad about NK stealing the limelight during the Olympics. Pyongyang could lose big if it goes ahead with a military parade on the eve of the Olympics. (Joongang Ilbo)
- A delegation of N.Korean officials and ice hockey players crossed the heavily guarded border into SK on Thurs. for joint Olympics training, as Pyongyang called for all Koreans to seek unification of the two nations. (Reuters)
- N.Korean women's ice hockey players and an advance team of sports officials arrived in SK Thurs. in preparation for their country's participation in next month's PyeongChang Winter Olympics. (Kim Soo-yeon and Joint Press Corps, Yonhap)
- NK's participation in the 2018 PyeongChang Winter Olympics opens up a window of opportunity to resume long-suspended talks to discuss the country's denuclearization, former UN Secretary-General Ban Ki-moon said Thurs. (Yonhap)
- A dozen N.Korean women's hockey players joined the S.Korean team Thurs. to start preparing for next month's Winter Olympics together. (Yonhap)
- N.Korean officials on Thurs. began their inspection of major venues of the PyeongChang Winter Olympics to prepare for NK's participation in the games, a rare sign of reconciliation with SK. (Yonhap)
- Female hockey players from the NK and SK were paired up with each other Thurs. to form their first-ever Olympic squad during next month's Pyeongchang Winter Games, as their countries press ahead with rare reconciliation steps following a period of nuclear tensions. (AP)

- Twelve women's ice hockey athletes from NK crossed the border Thurs. to start training with S.Korean teammates on a joint Olympic team. Their teamwork will get a pre-Olympics test in a friendly match against Sweden in Incheon on Feb. 4. (Lee Sung-eun, Joongang Ilbo)
- The arrival of N.Korean ice hockey players came as NK issued a statement calling for unification on the peninsula, in contrast with its more bellicose declarations in recent months following soaring tensions over its nuclear weapons programme. (Danielle Demetriou, Telegraph)
- Early on Thurs., NK sent a rare announcement addressed to "all Koreans at home and abroad," saying they should make a "breakthrough" for unification without the help of other countries, its state media said. (Christine Kim, Josh Smith, Reuters)
- Scientists and NASA officials who spearheaded development of a space-based missile defense system in the 1980s are urging its revival to counter emerging nuclear threats from NK and other rogue states. (Martin Arostegui, VOA)
- NK sent a rare announcement addressed to "all Koreans at home and abroad" on Thurs., saying they should make a "breakthrough" for unification without the help of other countries. (Reuters Staff, Reuters)
- An advance team of S.Korean officials returned home from NK on Thurs. after inspecting venues for joint events on the occasion of next month's PyeongChang Winter Olympics in SK. (Yonhap)
- SK is willing to review the possibility of forming a joint cross-country skiing team with NK for next month's PyeongChang Winter Olympics, a senior official at the Korea Ski Association (KSA) said Thurs. (Yonhap)

International:

- China exported no oil products to NK in Dec. except for a tiny cargo of jet fuel, data showed on Thurs., the latest sign that Beijing has kept up pressure on its isolated neighbor amid tensions over its nuclear and missile program. (Reuters Staff, Reuters)
- China on Thurs. promised to take action against US-sanctioned companies if it sees "solid evidence" they illegally helped NK, while cautioning against the imposition of foreign laws on Chinese citizens. (AP)
- A Japanese patrol plane spotted a Dominican Republic tanker apparently transferring fuel to a N.Korean vessel in the East China Sea in violation of UN sanctions. (Danielle Demetriou, Telegraph)
- Mexican Senate President Ernesto Cordero has voiced hopes that NK's participation in next month's PyeongChang Winter Olympics will mark a "new beginning" of cross-border ties long strained by its continued provocations. (Yonhap)
- Despite facing criticism for presenting an air-brushed view of the N.Korean dictatorship, NBC News anchor Lester Holt thought positively of his trip to NK, despite being shown what the regime wanted him to see and operating under the assumption that everything that was said was being monitored. (David Bauder, AP)
- Photographs taken by a Japanese spy plane show a N.Korean tanker likely violating UN sanctions, Japan's Ministry of Foreign Affairs said Wed. (Joshua Berlinger, Yoko Wakatsuki, CNN)
- NK insists that peace can still be maintained even if it retains nuclear weapons. The S.Korean government is trying to take advantage of the Games to pave the way to dialogue and denuclearization of NK; however, the US is tightening its sanctions on the N.Korean regime in its belief that only strong pressure on NK can change the regime. Dialogue is good, but it must be accompanied by resolute sanctions and peace is impossible with nuclear weapon in NK. (Joongang Ilbo)

- Chongryon, a pro-Pyongyang association of Korean residents in Japan, is stepping up work to create a cheering squad for NK athletes who will take part in SK's Winter Olympics, sources well-versed in the organization said Wed. (Yonhap)
- SK's nuclear envoy and a senior US Treasury official discussed cooperation in maintaining pressure on NK to stop its nuclear and missile development, the foreign ministry said Thurs. (Yonhap)
- The SK and US defense chiefs will meet in Hawaii Fri. to discuss issues related to the bilateral alliance, including NK. (Yonhap)
- A senior US Treasury official has visited SK amid Washington's announcement of enhanced sanctions against NK for its nuclear and missile programs, diplomatic sources said Thurs. (Yonhap)
- The US has imposed sanctions on the Kum Um San, a vessel that Reuters revealed last year was delivering oil products from Russia to NK. (Reuters)
- The real owner of a Dominican-flagged tanker, which was recently spotted while engaging in an illicit transfer of goods to a N.Korean tanker on the East China Sea, is a Singaporean energy company, a US broadcaster reported Thurs. (Yonhap)
- US Secretary of State Rex Tillerson spoke by phone with his Russian counterpart Wed., stressing the urgency of implementing UN sanctions against NK, the State Department said. (Yonhap)
- The Trump administration on Wed. targeted a swath of illicit actors in China, Russia and elsewhere working on behalf of the NK regime. (Donna Borak, CNN)
- The Trump administration unfurled new sanctions on Wed. targeting NK and its weapons program, underscoring the aggressive approach that President Trump has promised to take against the government of KJU. (Alan Rapport, NY Times)
- The US on Wed. imposed new sanctions on 9 entities including 2 Chinese firms, 16 N.Korean individuals, and 6 N.Korean vessels over their links to the N.Korean nuclear and ballistic missile programs. (Yonhap)
- The US announced new sanctions on Wed aimed at stopping NK's nuclear weapons development and urged China and Russia to expel N.Koreans raising funds for the programs. (David Brunnstrom, David Alexander, Reuters)
- The US tightened its economic crackdown on NK over its nuclear arms program on Wed., imposing sanctions on nine entities, 16 people and six ships it accused of helping Pyongyang develop weapons of mass destruction. (Reuters Staff, Reuters)
- The US Department of the Treasury on Wed. levied new sanctions on 9 additional entities and 16 individuals linked to NK's nuclear and missiles program. The sanctions were slapped on 2 Chinese trading companies, 6 vessels, and N.Korean representatives of companies and banks, mostly based in China and Russia (Sarah Kim, Joongang Ilbo)
- The administration of U.S. President Donald Trump imposed new sanctions Wed. aimed at halting NK's nuclear and missile development programs. (VOA)
- The US should consider curtailing the US-SK joint military exercises held annually on the condition that NK agrees to give up its nuclear weapons and intercontinental ballistic missiles (ICBMs) that Pyongyang claims can reach the US mainland, a US lawmaker said. (Joeun Lee, VOA)

- Hong Kong needs to do more to combat N.Korean smuggling and money laundering in the city, a top US official has warned. (Joshua Berlinger, CNN)

Excerpt from Top News Item, "Preventing a Post-Collapse Crisis in North Korea: How to Avoid Famine and Mass Migration" by Andrew Natsios, HRNK Co-chair Emeritus and Joonbum Bae

- "If the regime of North Korean Supreme Leader Kim Jong Un was to collapse, whether from internal problems or external force, one of the most pressing problems facing the United States, China, and South Korea—as well as one of the most promising avenues for cooperation—would be how to respond to the resulting humanitarian crisis. A collapse of the regime would likely exacerbate the chronic food shortages North Koreans have endured for 25 years and worsen the country's problems with infectious disease and public health. This would in turn provoke mass population movements from North Korea into China. To prevent these large-scale refugee flows, the United States, China, and South Korea would need to work together to provide food, clean water, and basic medical treatment for the North Korean population."

Prepared by Jinny Ahn, HRNK Research Intern

——————————————————

Friday, January 26, 2018

S.K. and US to conduct joint military exercises 'normally' after Olympics; N.K. likely to hold 'intimidating' military parade on Feb. 8; S.K. Foreign Minister calls for peace efforts at Davos

In North Korea:
Captured ship is North's propaganda prize (Joongang Ilbo, 01/26/2018)
Exclusive: Despite sanctions, North Korea exported coal to South and Japan via Russia-intelligence sources (Reuters, 01/26/2018)
Former North Korean national athlete describes Olympic selection and training procedure (DailyNK, 01/26/2018)
Interesting new underground facility (nkeconwatch, 01/26/2018)
Kim Jong Un orders war simulation training amidst 'peace Olympics' (DailyNK, 01/26/2018)
Kim Jong Un Slush Fund 'Running Out' as North Korea Tests Weapons Despite Sanctions (RFA, 01/25/2018)
Kim Jong-un's young sister elevated to powerful position controlling North Korea state security (Telegraph, 01/26/2018)
KJU and RSJ Visit Pyongyang Pharmaceutical Factory (NKleadershipwatch, 01/26/2018)
N.K. newspaper says nuke war clouds lingering on Korean Peninsula (Yonhap, 01/26/2018)

In South Korea:
(LEAD) S. Korea, U.S to conduct joint military exercises 'normally' after Olympics: Seoul (Yonhap, 01/26/2018)
Moon's landing (Joongang Ilbo, 01/26/2018)
South Korea's Moon drops in polls amid Olympic cooperation with North (UPI, 01/26/2018)
Vice unification minister met with U.S. Treasury official over Olympics (Yonhap, 01/26/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
(2nd LD) N.K. likely to hold 'intimidating' military parade on Feb. 8: Seoul minister (Yonhap, 01/26/2018)
(2nd LD) S. Korea finds N.K. ski resort good enough for joint training (Yonhap, 01/26/2018)
FM calls for peace efforts at Davos (Korea Times, 01/26/2018)
N.K. officials continue inspection of Olympics venues on 2nd day of trip (Yonhap, 01/26/2018)
N. Korean visit Olympic venues for second day (Korea Times, 01/26/2018)
North Korean Skaters Say They'll Treat Olympics Just Like Any Other Competition (NYT, 01/26/2018)
North readies 'threatening' parade (Joongang Ilbo, 01/26/2018)
S. Korean foreign minister in Davos stresses PyeongChang Olympics' role in easing tensions with N. Korea (Yonhap, 01/26/2018)
South offers K-pop concert for joint show at Kumgang (Joongang Ilbo, 01/26/2018)
Teamwork at risk (Joongang Ilbo, 01/26/2018)
Unification and its contradictions (Joongang Ilbo, 01/26/2018)

International:
(LEAD) Kissinger rejects 'freeze-for-freeze' with N. Korea (Yonhap, 01/26/2018)
China envoy says "complex" reasons why has not been to North Korea (Reuters, 01/26/2018)
Dominican Republic denies ship transferred goods to N.K. tanker (Yonhap, 01/26/2018)
Hockey sisters Hannah and Marissa Brandt to represent US and Korea in PyeongChang (CNN, 01/26/2018)
It's 'complicated:' China's NKorea envoy on lack of visit (Washington Post, 01/26/2018)
Kissinger, Shultz Warn of Rising Nuclear Perils (VOA, 01/25/2018)
Mattis says a U.S. aircraft carrier is likely to visit Vietnam amid Chinese tension (Washington Post, 01/26/2018)
Mattis: U.S. could 'fight tonight' if S. Korea attacked (Yonhap, 01/26/2018)
North Korea sanctions are strangling this Chinese city (CNN, 01/25/2018)
Pentagon: U.S. not contemplating suspension of S. Korea military drills (Yonhap, 01/26/2018)
Russia 'hub for North Korean sanctions-busting coal shipments' (Telegraph, 01/26/2018)
Russia Says No Obligation to Comply With U.S. Sanctions on North Korea (NYT, 01/26/2018)
Top US general warns of 'tough' North Korean ground war (CNN, 01/26/2018)
Unease mixes with excitement as Pyeongchang awaits the world (Washington Post, 01/26/2018)
US, South Korea to resume military exercises after Winter Olympics (CNN, 01/26/2018)
U.S. supports inter-Korean talks on Olympics (Yonhap, 01/26/2018)

In North Korea

- Fifty years after it was seized by N.K., the USS Pueblo is the only U.S. Navy ship held captive by a foreign government. The “Pueblo Incident” for N.K. remains a potent symbol of military success. (AP)
- N.K. shipped coal to Russia last year which was then delivered to S.K. and Japan in a likely violation of U.N. sanctions. (Guy Faulconbridge, Jonathan Saul, Polina Nikolskaya, Reuters)
- With the final announcement coming only two weeks before the opening of the games, former national athlete for N.K. Lee Ji Young, now living in S.K., about the Olympic selection and training procedure in the North. (Jang Seul Gi, DailyNK)
- An underground facility seems to be constructed in an abandoned railway tunnel, construction of which was halted at a time that pre-dates commercial satellite imagery. (nkeconwatch)
- An order for a new round of ideological training and combat preparation for the entire military was handed down by KJU on January 19. KJU is taking action to prevent a lapse in discipline in the midst of warming inter-Korean relations. (Kim Chae Hwan, DailyNK)
- A critical slush fund controlled by KJU is nearly depleted following a series of nuclear weapon and missile tests, and the nation’s decision to participate in the upcoming Winter Olympic Games is part of a plot to bolster its failing economy. (RFA)
- KJU may have put his younger sister Kim Yo-jong in charge of the pariah nation’s powerful state security apparatus, it has emerged. (Nicola Smith, Telegraph)
- KJU and his wife Ri Sol Ju visited and inspected Pyongyang Pharmaceutical Factory. (NKleadershipwatch)
- A N.K. newspaper said Friday that a "dark vortex of a nuclear war" is lurking on the Korean Peninsula, citing what it calls the U.S. hostile policy toward the regime. (Yonhap)

In South Korea:

- S.K. and the US plan to resume their delayed joint military exercises after the 2018 PyeongChang Winter Olympics and Paralympics. (Yonhap)
- Moon’s approval rating slipped below 60 percent in just two weeks. Yet his administration said nothing about Pyongyang’s plan of holding a massive military parade on the eve of the Olympics. The administration must check itself before it’s too late. (Joongang Ilbo)
- A S.K. decision to allow N.K. and S.K. athletes to march together under a unified Korea flag at the opening ceremony of the 2018 Pyeongchang Winter Olympics may be costing President Moon support. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- S.K.'s vice unification minister and a senior U.S. Treasury official have discussed inter-Korean ties and N.K.'s participation in the upcoming Winter Olympics. (Yonhap)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- N.K. is likely to hold a military parade on an "intimidating" scale to mark the 70th founding anniversary of its military, one day before the opening of the Winter Olympics. (Yonhap)
- S.K. officials good enough condition to host joint ski training ahead of the PyeongChang Winter Olympics. (Yonhap)
- Foreign Minister Kang Kyung-wha called for global support for S.K.'s efforts to ease regional tension through talks with N.K. in a speech at the World Economic Forum (WEF) in Davos, Switzerland. (Yi Whan-woo, Korea Times)

- N.K. officials on Friday visited PyeongChang, the host town of the 2018 Winter Games, in preparation for their country's landmark participation in next month's event. (Yonhap)
- An eight-member N.K. delegation visited venues for the PyeongChang Winter Olympics on Friday, the second day of their visit. (Yi Whan-woo, Korea Times)
- N.K.'s figure skating team took bronze in a competition in Taipei on Friday and opened a window on what life is like for sports people in the world's most isolated country as they head for next month's Olympics in the rich, democratic S.K. (Reuters)
- N.K. is gearing up for an "extremely large-scale" military parade that will likely fall on Feb. 8, its army founding day and the eve of the Winter Olympics. (Lee Sung-eun, Joongang Ilbo)
- Foreign Minister Kang Kyung-wha used her attendance at the World Economic Forum's (WEF) annual meeting in Davos, Switzerland, to promote the upcoming Winter Olympics as a chance to ease tensions with N.K. (Yonhap)
- A senior S.K. government official who visited N.K. earlier this week to examine the Mount Kumgang resort offered to hold a K-pop concert there for pre-Olympic celebrations. (Lee Sung-eun, Joongang Ilbo)
- The joint team cannot be changed. For the best possible outcome, both S.K. and N.K. athletes need to be convinced of the tough situation, and the joint team needs to meet as soon as possible to build their teamwork. (Nam Jeong-ho, Joongang Ilbo)
- Unification and peaceful coexistence can be contradictory. The two Koreas must be able to overcome their enormous gap after living isolated from each other for over 70 years. (Joongang Ilbo)

International:

- Former U.S. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger said he does not believe N.K. will abandon its nuclear weapons in exchange for a suspension of U.S. joint military exercises with S.K. (Yonhap)
- China's special envoy for N.K. said there were "complex" reasons why he has yet to visit the country, but that China's efforts to help bring about the denuclearization of the Korean peninsula and foster peace were relentless and unchanged. (Philip Wen, Reuters)
- The Dominican Republic denied suspicions that a Dominican tanker has transferred fuel to a N.K. tanker in the East China Sea in violation of U.N. sanctions. (Yonhap)
- Brandt sisters will be representing different countries in the Olympics; Hannah will play for the US team while Marissa, who was born in S.K. but adopted when she was just four-months-old, will play for a unified Korea team. (Eoghan Macguire, CNN)
- China's chief envoy for N.K. affairs said the reasons he hasn't visited Pyongyang are "complicated" but that China remains committed to finding a diplomatic solution to tensions over the North's nuclear weapons program. (Christoper Bodeen, AP)
- Two former U.S. secretaries of state on Thursday warned lawmakers of a marked rise in nuclear dangers stemming from N.K.'s race to develop atomic weapons and the means to deliver them. (Michael Bowman, VOA)
- The US is finalizing plans to dock an aircraft carrier in the south of Vietnam this March, part of growing military cooperation between the nations and a 1,092-foot-long signal to China to rethink its aggressive expansion. (Alex Horton, Washington Post)
- U.S. Defense Secretary Jim Mattis has reaffirmed his country's commitment to the defense of S.K., saying his troops could "fight tonight" if S.K. was to come under attack. (Yonhap)

- For decades, Dandong has been a key trading hub that helped the N.K. regime cash in on China's spectacular economic rise. But now it's suffering due to N.K. sanctions. (Matt Rivers and Steven Jiang, CNN)
- The US has no plans to postpone joint military exercises with S.K. beyond the end of the Winter Olympics and Paralympics, the Pentagon said. (Yonhap)
- Russia has become a transit hub for illicit N.K. coal shipments in an apparent breach of UN sanctions. (Ben Farmer, Telegraph)
- Russia has no obligation to carry out sanctions set by the US, including those on N.K. (Reuters)
- The head of the US Marine Corps warned Thursday that a conflict with N.K. could involve an exceptionally bloody ground war. (Barbara Starr, CNN)
- Just weeks before the Olympics, an unusual culture clash is taking place in Pyeongchang, and it's only partly about the anticipatory jitters in this remote, mountainous region before a swarm of foreigners arrives. (Foster Klug, AP)
- Joint military exercises involving tens of thousands of troops from the US and S.K. are set to resume after the 2018 Winter Olympics. (Ben Westcott, CNN)
- The US supports inter-Korean talks about the Olympics but does not believe it is time to hold negotiations on the North's nuclear weapons program. (Yonhap)

Prepared by James Park, HRNK Research Intern

——————————————————

Saturday, January 27, 2018

N.K. slams U.S. sanctions as wild violation of international law; N.K. says S.K.'s military alliance with U.S. may end momentum for dialogue

In North Korea:
N. Korea slams U.S. sanctions as wild violation of int'l law (Yonhap, 01/27/2018)
North Korea condemns latest U.S. sanctions (Reuters, 01/27/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
(LEAD) N. Korean delegation returns home after inspection visit to S. Korea (Yonhap, 01/27/2018)
N. Korean cheering squad to support S. Korean athletes during PyeongChang Olympics (Yonhap, 01/27/2018)
N. Korea reports visit of S. Korean advance team for joint Olympics training (Yonhap, 01/27/2018)
N. Korea says Seoul's military alliance with U.S. may end momentum for dialogue (Yonhap, 01/27/2018)
No clash of egos between coaches on joint women's hockey team: officials (Yonhap, 01/27/2018)
North Korean officials wrap up Olympic inspection in South (Washington Post, 01/27/2018)
Trump touts campaign to denuclearize N. Korea (Yonhap, 01/27/2018)

International:
Charities see nail clippers, shovels are North Korean no-nos (Washington Post, 01/27/2018)
In Hawaii, Mattis Praises Renewed Talks Between South, North Korea (VOA, 01/27/2018)
Mattis Promises to 'Hold the Line' on North Korea (VOA, 01/26/2018)
Mattis says Korea talks can't distract from denuclearization (Washington Post, 01/26/2018)
U.S.'s Mattis: Diplomacy should impose reason on North Korea's Kim (Reuters, 01/27/2018)

In North Korea:

- N.K. strongly condemned the US Saturday for passing its own sanctions against the North, calling the sanctions a clear and reckless violation of its sovereignty. (Yonhap)
- N.K. on Saturday condemned the latest U.S. sanctions announced this week aimed at curbing the isolated nation's development nuclear weapons. (Reuters)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- An official N.K. delegation returned home Saturday after a three-day visit to inspect venues for the upcoming Winter Olympic Games and accommodations for a N.K. delegation to the event. (Yonhap)
- N.K. cheerleaders, who are set to visit PyeongChang for the Winter Games, will support S.K. athletes in addition to their own Olympians. (Yonhap)
- N.K. reported a recent visit of S.K. officials to the reclusive nation to inspect venues for the countries' joint cultural events and joint training sessions for their Olympic skiers. (Yonhap)
- N.K. strongly condemned the ROK-US alliance Saturday, accusing their joint defense efforts of being aimed at toppling its communist regime and saying such efforts may also lead to an end of ongoing dialogue between the two Koreas. (Yonhap)
- There has been no clash of egos between the coaches of the two Korean women's ice hockey teams, as their players try to get on the same page for the PyeongChang Winter Olympics. (Yonhap)
- N.K. officials wrapped up a three-day visit to S.K. where they examined Olympic stadiums, hotels and concert halls that will potentially be used by N.K. athletes and other delegates during the Olympics. (Kim Tong-Hyung, AP)
- Trump praised his administration's efforts to rally international support to squeeze N.K. over its nuclear and ballistic missile programs. (Yonhap)

International:

- Two shipping containers full of hygiene kits languish for weeks in a Chinese port, unable to reach N.K. (Matthew Pennington, AP)
- Defense Secretary Jim Mattis praised the talks between N.K. and S.K. but said they do not address the overarching issues in the standoff over Pyongyang's nuclear and ballistic missile programs. (William Gallo, VOA)
- U.S. Defense Secretary Jim Mattis says the US will continue to "hold the line and provide credible military options" to diplomats working to de-escalate tensions on the Korean Peninsula and address Pyongyang's nuclear and missile threat. (William Gallo, VOA)
- U.S. Defense Secretary Jim Mattis said that Olympics talks between two Koreas should not distract from the internationally agreed goal of denuclearizing the North. (AP)
- U.S. Defense Secretary Jim Mattis stressed diplomacy as the way to deal with the N.K. crisis on Friday during talks with his S.K. counterpart in Hawaii, a day after Seoul's top diplomat said a military solution would be unacceptable. (Phil Stewart, Reuters)

Prepared by James Park, HRNK Research Intern

———————————————

Sunday, January 28, 2018

3.2 magnitude-quake detected in N. Korea: weather agency; S.Korea pondering whether to provide N.Korea oil for cultural event; The effect of sanctions

In North Korea:
3.2 magnitude-quake detected in N. Korea: weather agency (Yonhap, 01/28/2018)
Kim Jong Un's real Pyeongchang Olympics strategy, as told through official state media (Daily NK, 01/27/2018)

In South Korea:
Pyongyang's fuel request puts Seoul in a quandary (Joongang Ilbo, 01/28/2018)
South Korea pondering whether to provide North Korea oil for cultural event (UPI, 01/28/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
Inter-Korean Olympic events begin this week (Korea Times, 01/28/2018)
Joint Korean women's hockey team has first practice together (Yonhap, 01/28/2018)
Koreas try out Olympic diplomacy at North Korean ski resort (Washington Post, 01/28/2018)
North Korea: U.S. is trying to ruin inter-Korean relations (UPI, 01/28/2018)
Pandering to Pyongyang (Joongang Ilbo, 01/29/2018)
The effect of sanctions (Joongang Ilbo, 01/28/2018)

International:
Defense chiefs confer at meeting in Honolulu (Joongang Ilbo, 01/28/2018)
Made in North Korea – a unique glimpse of life inside a closed society (The Guardian, 01/27/2018)
S. Korea, U.S. defense chiefs reaffirm 'no wedge' in alliance (Yonhap, 01/28/2018)
(LEAD) (Yonhap Interview) Schroeder voices support for inter-Korean talks (Yonhap, 01/28/2018)

In North Korea:

- A 3.2 magnitude earthquake was detected in NK on Sun., Seoul's weather agency said. The tremor occurred at 8:07 p.m. and the depth at its epicenter was six kilometers, according to the Korea Meteorological Administration (KMA). (Yonhap)
- NK state media often provides hints as to the true intentions behind the NK's participation in the Pyeongchang Olympics. Following KJU's New Year's address, there was a considerable lack of further information on NK's participation, but after staying quiet on the matter for nearly 20 days, the state-run Rodong Sinmun ran a story on Jan. 18. (uJung Kyo Jin, Daily NK)

In South Korea:

- The government is agonizing over whether it should send refined petroleum products to North Korea for upcoming joint cultural events in the midst of tough international sanctions over Pyongyang's missile tests, officials said Sunday. (Yonhap)
- SK is considering a move to ship refined petroleum to NK to power an inter-Korean cultural event next week as "the North's oil supplies aren't in good condition." However, there has been criticism that such a decision would "go against the flow of international sanctions on Pyongyang." (Jennie Oh, UPI)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- Joint events hosted by NK and SK, including the inter-Korean ski training at Masikryong resort in NK and the inter-Korean cultural at Mount Geumgang, will begin this week ahead of the PyeongChang Winter Olympics to be held next week, according to related ministries, Sun. (Kim Bo-eun, Korea Times)
- The joint Korean women's ice hockey team had their first practice session together Sun. It consists of 35 players, with 12 N.Koreans joining 23 S.Koreans, following the recent inter-Korean agreement and the IOC's stamp of approval granting extra roster spots for the Korean team. (Yonhap)
- NK's only luxury ski resort is getting a taste of the Olympic spotlight, having been chosen to host joint training for N. and S. Korean skiers ahead of the Games' Feb. 9 opening date in SK. It has become something of a symbol of a budding detente between the two Koreas after a year of particularly high tensions over the NK's nuclear weapons and long-range missile tests. (Eric Talmadge, AP)
- NK has accused the US of devising ways to "intentionally" harm inter-Korean relations, accusing the US of "creating instability in an intentional and calculated manner at a time when the world is welcoming dialogue between the North and South." (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- Despite a warning fro the US Defense secretary James Mattis that ongoing inter-Korean talks for the North's participation in the Pyeongchang Games should not hamper the international goal of denuclearizing NK, the SK government is keeping a low profile on the delayed joint military exercises, citing the need to not provoke NK amid eased tension in the lead up to the Games. (Joongang Ilbo)
- To change the NK's course permanently, the S.Korean government must not pollute its NK policy as part of an ideological battle. Rather, it must understand the North through an objective analysis through the data that suggests the ultimate effects of the sanctions. (Kim Byung-yeon, Joongang Ilbo)

International:

- A top US defense official warned Fri. that talks between the two Koreas on the Olympic Games must not disrupt the international campaign to pressure the North to give up its nuclear arms. (See Myo-ja, Joongang Ilbo)
- Glimpses of normal life in NK, something few outsiders ever sample, are to go on show in a London exhibition next month, including many items on display for the first time outside the communist republic. (Vanessa Thrope, The Guardian)
- The defense chiefs of SK and the US have reaffirmed that NK will not succeed in driving a wedge in the bilateral alliance, the Pentagon said Sat., addressing concerns that NK could be seeking to weaken the SK-US alliance through its recent talks with SK. (Yonhap)
- Former German Chancellor Gerhard Schroeder has voiced strong support for the recently resumed inter-Korean dialogue, saying talks between the two Koreas should be pursued under any circumstances. (Yonhap)

Prepared by Jinny Ahn, HRNK Research Intern

——————————————————

Monday, January 29, 2018

NK cancels joint performance with SK, blames South media: Seoul; Influenza A kills 4 in North Korea: Red Cross

In North Korea:
Influenza A kills 4 in North Korea: Red Cross (Yonhap, 01/29/2018)
Kim Jong-un's 'inheritance dwindling' after expensive missile tests and vanity projects (Telegraph, 01/29/2018)
N. Korean newspaper warns of danger of game addiction (Yonhap, 01/28/2018)
North Korean paralympians used for propaganda (Daily NK, 01/29/2018)
Pak Pong Ju Inspects C1 Chemical Industry Construction Site (NK Leadership Watch, 01/28/2018)
Seoul: North Korea mobilizes 50,000 for upcoming military parade (UPI, 01/29/2018)

In South Korea:
S. Korea's foreign ministry to beef up email security (Yonhap, 01/29/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
A missed opportunity to promote peace : South Korean orchestras will not perform with North for Winter Games (Joongang Ilbo, 01/29/2018)
Bad politics stands in way of sports (Korea Times, 01/29/2018)
Communication is key (Joongang Ilbo, 01/29/2018)
(2nd LD) Defense chief says N. Korea's use of nuke would be 'suicidal (Yonhap, 01/29/2018)
Korean Women's Ice Hockey Teams Unite Before 2018 Winter Olympics (VOA, 01/29/2018)
Koreas Try Out Olympic Diplomacy at North Korean Ski Resort (NYT, 01/29/2018)
North Korea cancels joint performance with South Korea, blames South media: Seoul (Reuters, 01/29/2018)
Olympic Dreams of a United Korea? Many in South Say, 'No, Thanks' (NYT, 01/29/2018)
(LEAD) S. Korea to use chartered flight for ski training with N.K. (Yonhap, 01/29/2018)
S. Korean military expects 'similar pattern' of N. Korea's military parade (Yonhap, 01/28/2018)
South Korean skiers to spend 2 days in the North this week (Joongang Ilbo, 01/29/2018)

International:
A demand too far (Joongang Ilbo, 01/29/2018)
Aid groups feel heat as sanctions on North Korea intensify (Washington Post, 01/29/2018)
Lessons from Lee Kuan Yew (Joongang Ilbo, 01/29/2018)
N. Korea most important midterm issue for Republicans: poll (Yonhap, 01/28/2018)
Police Witness: Kim Jong Nam Met American Before His Murder (NYT, 01/29/2018)
Trump not likely to provoke N. Korea in State of the Union speech (Yonhap, 01/28/2018)

In North Korea:

- 4 people have died and more than 81,000 have been infected with Influenza A (H1N1) virus in NK since last month, according to a report from the International Federation of Red Cross and Red Crescent Societies (IFRC). (Yonhap)
- Two Chinese sources with connections to N. Korean government officials said that KJU has been exhausting his inheritance on a series of missile and nuclear tests, and extravagant vanity projects. (Nicola Smith, Telegraph)
- The official newspaper of NK's ruling party on Mon. warned of the danger of game addiction across the world. (Yonhap)
- There is a renewed focus on the environment for people living with disabilities in NK, but observers are questioning whether or not conditions for the disabled are improving. (Seol Song-ah, Daily NK)
- DPRK state media reported on January 25, 2018 that State Affairs Commission vice chair and Premier Pak Pong Ju inspected the C1 chemical industry construction site. (NK Leadership Watch)
- NK appears to have mobilized tens of thousands of troops and civilians for a massive military parade next week, S. Korean officials said Mon. (Jennie Oh, UPI)

In South Korea:

- SK's foreign ministry, one of the government agencies that is most targeted by hackers, often from NK. is to introduce an enhanced email verification feature this week to counter growing threats of hacking, sources said Mon. (Yonhap)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- The Korean government recently confirmed that the N. Korean Samjiyon Orchestra will hold two solo concerts on Feb. 8 and Feb. 11, letting down many S. Koreans, especially musicians, who expected a scene of peace and harmony through a joint orchestra. (Yim Seung-hye, Joongang Ilbo)
- Nobody has stopped NK's athletes from competing fairly and equally like the athletes on other national teams. But many ask: Is this the moral way for the two Koreas to form an integrated team? Is this good sportsmanship? (Park Hyong-ki, Korea Times)
- S. and N. Korean players should display consideration, concession and communication for better harmony and the SK. must continue to support the women's team after the Olympics. (Hyun Jung-hwa, Joongang Ilbo)
- S. Korean Defense Minister Song Young-moo voiced doubt Monday that NK will use its nuclear weapons, saying that such an act would be "suicidal." (Yonhap)
- The N. Korean women's ice hockey team is in SK to prepare for the Olympics. The 2 governments reached an agreement to play together wearing the same jerseys and march under a unified peninsula flag. (Arash Arabasadi, VOA)
- NK's Masik Pass ski resort, a popular stop for tourists, will be the site of the joint training for N. and S. Korean skiers, and is gaining international attention for it. (AP)

- NK has canceled a joint cultural performance with SK scheduled for Feb. 4 blaming S. Korean media for encouraging "insulting" public sentiment regarding the North, SK's unification ministry said on Mon. (Christine Kim, Reuters)
- The Koreas are cooperating in unheard-of ways, including their first joint Olympic team. But S. Koreans, especially younger ones, are far less interested in reconciliation, to say nothing of reunification. (Choe Sang-hun, NYT)
- SK will use a chartered plane to fly its skiers to NK for joint training and will not pay the airport fee to the North, as such a payment would violate international sanctions, Seoul officials said Mon. (Yonhap)
- NK is likely to stage a major military parade next month similar to the previous one in April last year to mark the birth anniversary of late founding leader Kim Il-sung. , South Korean defense authorities said Mon. (Yonhap)
- A team of S. Korean skiers will take a chartered plane to NK's Kalma Airport in Wonsan, Kangwon Province this week to train with N. Korean athletes at the Masikryong Ski Resort, the Unification Ministry announced Mon. (Lee Sung-eun, Joongang Ilbo)

International:

- The Moon administration is considering the idea of supplying diesel oil to help NK supply electricity for a joint performance between the two Koreas, breaking US and UN sanctions, risks alienating the US, an important ally. (Joongang Ilbo)
- As sanctions on NK intensify, the few aid groups operating in NK are facing sometimes bewildering economic restrictions and bureaucratic hurdles that could cripple life-saving work. (Matthew Pennington, AP)
- SK needs to follow the example of Singaporean PM Lee Kuan Yew, and decisively become a mediator to facilitate discussion between the US and NK. (Ko Soo-suk, Joongang Ilbo)
- Republican voters in the US are most interested in hearing congressional candidates talk about the situation with NK during this year's midterm elections, according to a recent poll. (Yonhap)
- A police witness said Mon. that Kim Jong-nam met with an unidentified Korean American man on a Malaysian resort island four days before he was murdered, as the trial of 2 women accused of killing him resumed. (AP)
- Trump is likely to refrain from using provocative language to address NK's nuclear and missile threats in his first State of the Union address this week, according to a senior U.S. government official. (Yonhap)

Prepared by Emma Stubblefield, HRNK Research Intern

——————————————————

Tuesday, January 30, 2018

N.K. cancels joint cultural performance with S.K.; Refugees From 11 Countries Will Face Extra Screening in the US; S.K. pressing ahead with joint ski training in N.K. amid uncertainty

In North Korea:
60,000 North Korean children may starve, sanctions slow aid: UNICEF (Reuters, 01/30/2018)
Authorities initiate nationwide crackdown on Chinese products in the markets (DailyNK, 01/30/2018)
Defectors: North Koreans train in extreme cold for upcoming military parade (UPI, 01/30/2018)
Is North Korea scaling back winter exercises because it lacks fuel and food? (nkeconwatch, 01/30/2018)
N.K. stepping up preparations for military parade: report (Yonhap, 01/30/2018)
N. Korean diplomat accuses White House of seeking confrontation at the Olympics (Washington Post, 01/30/2018)
North feels the pain of sanctions, says report (Joongang Ilbo, 01/30/2018)
North Korea has stepped up executions, says top US commander (Telegraph, 01/30/2018)
North Korea places Hyon Song Wol in inspection team as distraction (DailyNK, 01/30/2018)
North Korea producing garments at closed inter-Korean industrial park: report (Yonhap, 01/30/2018)
North Korea's push for ski resorts reveals its hopes for a life after isolation (Washington Post, 01/30/2018)
North Korea's Solid-propellant Rocket Engine Production Infrastructure: The No. 17 Factory in Hamhung (38 North, 01/30/2018)
Report: North Korea selling clothes made from Kaesong Industrial Complex (UPI, 01/30/2018)

In South Korea:
IOC president arrives, eager to get started (Joongang Ilbo, 01/30/2018)
Seoul to continue preparations for inter-Korean ski training (UPI, 01/30/2018)
S. Korean nuke envoy to leave for Russia for discussion on N.K. issues (Yonhap, 01/30/2018)
With Olympics set to begin, South Korea is still working to eradicate the avian flu (Washington Post, 01/29/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
(LEAD) S. Korea pressing ahead with joint ski training in N.K. amid uncertainty (Yonhap, 01/30/2018)
(LEAD) S. Korean nuke envoy to leave for Russia for discussion on N.K. issues (Yonhap, 01/30/2018)
(3rd LD) N. Korea calls off joint Olympic event at Mount Kumgang: Seoul (Yonhap, 01/30/2018)
Defectors Torn by North Korean Olympic Charm Offensive (VOA, 01/30/2018)
Koreas to have hectic joint training sessions ahead of Olympics (Korea Times, 01/29/2018)
North Korea calls off joint cultural event with South (Korea Times, 01/29/2018)
North Korea Cancels Pre-Olympic Event, Blaming South Korean Media (NYT, 01/29/2018)
North Korea cancels joint performance with South Korea, blames South media: Seoul (Reuters, 01/30/2018)
North Korea cancels joint cultural performance with South (BBC, 01/30/2018)
North Korea Cancels Joint Cultural Performance with South Korea (VOA, 01/29/2018)
North Korea's cancellation overshadows future talks (Korea Times, 01/30/2018)
North pulls out of joint performance at Mt. Kumgang (Joongang Ilbo, 01/30/2018)
North, South Korea Hit by Flu Outbreaks Ahead of Olympics (VOA, 01/29/2018)

Rekindle the dialogue (Joongang Ilbo, 01/30/2018)
Seoul: North Korea cancels pre-Olympic joint cultural event (Washington Post, 01/30/2018)
Skepticism grows over dialogue with NK (Korea Times, 1/30/2018)
South Korea says still pushing forward on other projects with North Korea (Reuters, 01/30/2018)
Stop pandering to Pyongyang (Joongang Ilbo, 01/30/2018)
Two Koreas' ice hockey team struggles with language gap as detente stalls between North and South (Telegraph, 01/30/2018)

International:
(LEAD) N.K. ambassador to China makes first public appearance in two months (Yonhap, 01/30/2018)
Alleged Kim Jong Nam killer was hired for 'Japanese prank show' (CNN, 01/30/2018)
Angola ends contracts with N.K. builder, orders workers to leave (Yonhap, 01/30/2018)
Kim Jong Nam met mystery American days before he was murdered (CNN, 01/29/2018)
Kim Jong-un's brother 'met US agent' days before VX nerve agent attack (Telegraph, 01/30/2018)
New Scrutiny Coming for Refugees From 11 "High-Risk" Nations (NYT, 01/30/2018)
N. Korea 'spooked' by Trump's threats of military strike: ex-CIA official (Yonhap, 01/30/2018)
Top U.S. Air Force officials vow 'extended deterrence' for S. Korea (Yonhap, 01/30/2018)
U.S. general says North Korea not demonstrated all components of ICBM (Reuters, 01/30/2018)
US increases vetting and resumes processing of refugees from 'high-risk' countries (CNN, 01/30/2018)
US: Refugees From 11 Countries Will Face Extra Screening (VOA, 01/29/2018)
Vladimir Putin calls US potential sanctions list an 'unfriendly act' (Telegraph, 01/30/2018)
White House says there's no need for new Russia sanctions (Washington Post, 01/30/2018)
Witness: Kim Jong Nam Met With an American Days Before Assassination (VOA, 01/29/2018)

In North Korea:

- An estimated 60,000 children face potential starvation in N.K., where international sanctions are exacerbating the situation by slowing aid deliveries, UNICEF said on Tuesday. (Stephanie Nebehay, Reuters)
- The N.K. authorities have reportedly begun a nationwide crackdown on Chinese products in the country's markets. The unprecedented change now puts them in the same category as S.K. products, which are illegal to buy and sell. (Kang Mi Jin, Kim Sung Il, DailyNK)
- North Koreans would have to endure more than ten hours of outdoor rehearsals every day for the regime's upcoming military parade. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- Much has been made of N.K.'s apparent decision to scale back its annual winter military exercises. Some have concluded it's a sign that sanctions are working as the army lacks both fuel and food. (Benjamin Katzeff Silberstein, nkeconwatch)
- Fully-dressed preparations for a grand military parade to mark the new founding anniversary of N.K.'s military have been spotted at Kim Il-sung Square in Pyongyang by a commercial satellite. (Yonhap)
- A N.K. official this week accused the White House of advocating for a "confrontation at the sacred place of Olympic Games" in S.K. next month. (Jenna Johnson, Washington Post)
- Global sanctions are expected to take a toll on the N.K. economy, particularly since China has been more strict, which could lead to political unrest. (Lee Ho-jeong, Joongang Ilbo)
- N.K. has stepped up its executions, the top commander of US troops on the Korean Peninsula said on Monday, amid increasing strain on the its military from international economic sanctions. (Nicola Smith, Telegraph)

- The N.K. authorities have recently ordered cadres to attend lectures focused on explaining and celebrating the strategy behind the recent decision to send Hyon Song Wol to high-level Olympics talks and an inspection mission to S.K. (Lee Sang Yong, DailyNK)
- N.K. is covertly producing garments at a shuttered inter-Korean industrial park and distributing them in its local markets. (Yonhap)
- N.K. spent much of the past year pursuing new long-range missiles and nuclear bombs. But in the coming weeks, Pyongyang will be proudly displaying a very different program: its luxurious ski resorts. (Adam Taylor, Washington Post)
- While a number of potential production facilities have been identified in N.K., the No. 17 Explosives Factory and its branch factories have been identified as being the most probable site for the manufacture of solid-propellant rocket engines. (38 North)
- N.K. appears to be running clothing factories in Kaesong Industrial Complex, an inter-Korean zone that was supposed to have shut down two years ago. (Jennie Oh, UPI)

In South Korea:

- IOC President Thomas Bach arrived in S.K. on Tuesday to inspect preparations the upcoming PyeongChang Winter Olympics. (Joongang Ilbo)
- Seoul will continue to prepare for a joint training session of S.K. and N.K. skiers, despite the North abruptly calling off an inter-Korean cultural event. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- S.K.'s top nuclear envoy will travel to Russia this week to discuss cooperation in dealing with N.K.'s nuclear and missile ambitions. (Yonhap)
- With the PyeongChang Winter Olympics set to begin on Feb. 9, S.K. confirmed the presence of a highly pathogenic strain of the H5N6 avian influenza virus at two chicken farms south of Seoul. (Matt Bonesteel, Washington Post)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- S.K. is preparing for joint skiing training with N.K. at a ski resort in the North as earlier agreed, as Pyongyang has not said anything unusual following its cancellation of a planned cultural event. (Yonhap)
- S.K.'s top nuclear envoy will travel to Russia this week to discuss cooperation in dealing with N.K.'s nuclear and missile ambitions. (Yonhap)
- N.K. has called off a joint cultural event scheduled to be held in its country to celebrate the upcoming Winter Olympic Games in S.K. (Yonhap)
- N.K. defectors are voicing concern that the North's Olympic delegation featuring its "army of beauties" will score deceptive propaganda points. (Brian Padden, Kim Hyunjin, VOA)
- The two Koreas will engage in hectic sports and cultural exchanges in the lead-up to the PyeongChang Winter Olympics. (Choi Ha-young, Korea Times)
- N.K. abruptly called off a joint cultural event with S.K. artists ahead of the forthcoming PyeongChang Winter Olympics, blaming Seoul's media for encouraging "insulting" public sentiment regarding the North. (Park Si-soo, Korea Times)
- N.K. canceled a joint cultural event it had planned to hold with S.K. early next month, blaming "insulting" S.K. news media coverage of its participation in the Olympics. (Choe Sang-hun, NYT)
- N.K. has canceled a joint cultural performance with S.K. scheduled for Feb. 4 blaming S.K. media for encouraging "insulting" public sentiment regarding the North. (Christine Kim, Reuters)

- N.K. has abruptly cancelled a cultural event scheduled to be held jointly with the S.K., blaming "biased" and "insulting" media coverage in the South. (BBC)
- N.K. has cancelled a joint cultural performance with the South planned ahead of the winter Olympic Games. (VOA)
- The government is taking a cautious stance on N.K.'s sudden cancellation of a joint cultural event, being wary of the possible negative impact the North's decision may have on the future inter-Korean exchange programs for the Olympics. (Kim Bo-eun, Korea Times)
- N.K. is no longer taking part in the joint cultural event both countries had agreed to hold at Mount Kumgang and blamed S.K. for insulting its sincerity regarding the Winter Olympics and taking issue with an internal celebration. (Lee Sung-eun, Lee Chul-jae, Joongang Ilbo)
- N.K. and S.K. are reporting outbreaks of different strains of influenza, less than two weeks before thousands of visitors from around the world arrive for the 2018 PyeongChang Winter Olympics in the South. (Brian Padden Kim Hyunjin, VOA)
- N.K.'s nuclear program is the biggest threat for S.K. Rather than waiting for what the US and N.K. have to say, S.K. needs to rekindle the dialogue at the PyeongChang Olympics. (Kim Sung-tak, Joongang Ilbo)
- N.K. sent a message saying it won't hold a joint cultural event at the North's Diamond Mountain on Feb. 4, which was one of two pre-Olympic events in N.K. the countries had agreed to. (Hyung-Jin Kim, AP)
- N.K.'s sudden cancellation of a joint inter-Korean cultural event at Mount Geumgang has again brought concerns about the effectiveness of holding dialogue with the unpredictable KJU regime. (Kim Rahn, Korea Times)
- S.K. will go ahead with other Winter Olympics projects with N.K. despite Pyongyang calling off a joint cultural performance that was less than a week away. (Christine Kim, Reuters)
- S.K. wants to draw a dialogue between N.K. and US through inter-Korean talks, but it only created a schism in the alliance. S.K. government must deal with N.K. confidently. If not, it will have to succumb to its unreasonable demands constantly. (Joongang Ilbo)
- The two Koreas' united women's ice hockey team is in danger of falling flat on its face because the players cannot understand each other. (Julian Ryall, Telegraph)

International:

- N.K.'s ambassador to Beijing attended a New Year's reception that China's foreign minister hosted for foreign diplomats Tuesday, his first public appearance in about two months. (Yonhap)
- One of the two women accused of murdering KJN, the exiled brother of KJU, was hired to take part in a Japanese prank show in the weeks prior to his death. (Ben Westcott and King Chai Woon, CNN)
- Angola has terminated all its contracts with a N.K. construction company and asked its workers to leave the country in line with UNSC sanctions on Pyongyang. (Yonhap)
- Kim Jong Nam, the elder half-brother of KJU, met with an American man five days before he was murdered, a court in Malaysia heard Monday. (Sandi Sidhu and Hilary Clarke, CNN)
- Kim Jong-nam, the half-brother of KJU, reportedly met with an American intelligence agent just days before he was killed. (Julian Ryall, Telegraph)
- The Trump administration said that it is resuming the admission of refugees from 11 countries including N.K. with additional screening. (Miriam Jordan, NYT)

- N.K. appears to have reached out to S.K. after being "spooked" by President Trump's threats of a military strike, a former CIA official said. (Yonhap)
- U.S. Secretary of the Air Force Heather Wilson assured S.K. on Tuesday of an extended deterrence commitment, during a meeting with a top defense official here. (Yonhap)
- N.K.'s nuclear program has made some strides in recent months but the country has not yet demonstrated all the components of an intercontinental ballistic missile (ICBM), including a survivable re-entry vehicle. (Reuters)
- The Trump administration announced new security screening measures meant to further vet refugees applying to enter the US from certain high-risk countries, including N.K. (Laura Koran and Tal Kopan, CNN)
- The Trump administration is hardening refugee admissions to the US by looking deeper into the background of applicants from 11 "high-risk" countries, including N.K. (Victoria Macchi, VOA)
- Vladimir Putin said on Tuesday the release of a U.S. list of Russian businessmen close to the Kremlin was an unfriendly act, but Moscow did not currently plan to retaliate. (Reuters)
- The Trump administration, under fire from lawmakers for not punishing Moscow over election meddling, said it will not implement Russia-related sanctions mandated by Congress last year because the threat itself is acting as a "deterrent." (Carol Morello, Washington Post)
- The half brother of KJU met with an unidentified American in Malaysia four days before he was assassinated, a police official told a court hearing Monday. (VOA)

Prepared by James Park, HRNK Research Intern

——————————————————

Wednesday, January 31, 2018

In State of the Union, Trump Goes Where Kim Jong Un Fears Most; NGO Committee | will the UN benefit from full participation of NGOs expert on North Korea?

Top News:
In State of the Union, Trump Goes Where Kim Jong Un Fears Most (Daily Beast, 01/31/2018)
(Gordon Chang, Daily Beast)
NGO Committee | will the UN benefit from full participation of NGOs expert on North Korea? (ISHR, 01/31/2018)
The Uncrushable Courage of Ji Seong-Ho (NED, 11/23/2017)

In North Korea:
Even Party officials put to work in North Korea's manure marathon (DailyNK, 01/31/2018)
N.K. lacks accessible infrastructure for disabled persons: expert (Yonhap, 01/31/2018)
Tens of thousands mobilized for Wonsan beach tourist project (DailyNK, 01/31/2018)

In South Korea:

South Korea sends athletes for joint training at North Korean ski resort (Reuters, 01/30/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
Inter-Korean ski training still up in the air: official (Yonhap, 01/31/2018)
(Olympics) Koreas to hold four joint taekwondo events to celebrate Olympics (Yonhap, 01/31/2018)
Pro-N. Korean newspaper warns of 'Olympics of confrontation' (Yonhap, 01/31/2018)
(5th LD) N. Korean Olympic athletes to use S. Korean plane to travel to PyeongChang (Yonhap, 01/31/2018)
Over 20 pct of N.K. defectors have thought about returning to North: survey (Yonhap, 01/31/2018)
(EDITORIAL from Korea Times on Jan. 31) Pyongyang should do its part for 'Peace Olympics' (Yonhap, 01/31/2018)
(3rd LD) S. Korean skiers visit N. Korea for joint training (Yonhap, 01/31/2018)
Skiers train at Masikryong (Korea Times, 01/31/2018)

International:
Ambassador candidate dropped over stark warning on North Korea (CNN, 01/30/2018)
Analysts Say Trump Comments Bad News for North Korea (NYT, 01/31/2018)
Crutches, Tears Humanize North Korean Threat in Trump Speech (NYT, 01/31/2018)
Ending North Korea oil supplies would be seen as act of war, says Russia (Reuters, 01/31/2018)
Ji Seong-ho: North Korean defector praised by Donald Trump (The Guardian, 01/31/2018)
North Korea accuses US of rights violations against its own people in 'white paper' (Telegraph, 01/31/2018)
North Korea Hits Back at U.S., Calls Trump Administration 'Racist' (NYT, 01/31/2018)
North Korea Paid Kim Murder Suspect for Pranks, Malaysian Investigator Testifies (RFA, 01/31/2018)
North Korea to parade dozens of long-range missiles before Winter Olympics (CNN, 01/31/2018)
North Korean defector attends State of the Union (CNN, 01/30/2018)
North Korean Defector, Honored by Trump, Has a Remarkable Escape Story (NYT, 01/31/2018)
President Trump talked tough on North Korea in the State of the Union. Here's where things stand. (Washington Post, 01/31/2018)
Russia to send home tens of thousands of North Korean laborers (UPI, 01/31/2018)
Russia's ambassador: Oil deliveries to N.Korea should not stop -RIA (Reuters, 01/31/2018)
Russian envoy has never made direct contact with N.K. leader: report (Yonhap, 01/31/2018)
S. Korea wins U.S. sanctions exemption to fly its skiers to N. Korea (Yonhap, 01/31/2018)
Senior diplomat discusses N.K., alliance in meetings with U.S. officials (Yonhap, 01/31/2018)
Skiers get clearance to take off for Masikryong (Joongang Ilbo, 01/31/2018)
Source: Trump to give 'eye-opening' remarks on North Korea (CNN, 01/30/2018)
Taiwan Citizens Accused of Violating U.N. Sanctions on North Korea (NYT, 01/31/2018)
The Latest: Japan Praises Trump for Pressuring North Korea (NYT, 01/31/2018)
Trump calls N. Korean leadership 'depraved'; nuke missile threat to US looms 'very soon' (Korea Times, 01/31/2018)
Trump calls Pyongyang a clear, present danger (Joongang Ilbo, 01/31/2018)
Trump Condemns "Depraved" North Korea In State of the Union (VOA, 01/31/2018)
Trump pushes hardline immigration policies even as he urges unity (Reuters, 01/30/2018)
(LEAD) Trump says N.K. nukes could 'very soon' threaten U.S. (Yonhap, 01/31/2018)
Trump warns Americans of nuclear threat from 'depraved' North Korea (Reuters, 01/30/2018)
U.S. reaffirms close coordination with S. Korea over N.K. participation in Olympics (Yonhap, 01/31/2018)
US serious about precision strike on N. Korea (Korea Times, 01/31/2018)

Victor Cha: Giving North Korea a 'bloody nose' carries a huge risk to Americans (Washington Post, 01/31/2018)
Victor Cha no longer being considered for ambassador to Seoul (Joongang Ilbo, 01/31/2018)
Victor Cha opposes military strike against N.K. (Yonhap, 01/31/2018)
White House 'Embarrassed' By NBC's Pre-Olympic Coverage from North Korea (VOA, 01/30/2018)

Top News:

- HRNK Executive Director Greg Scarlatoiu on last night's State of the Union: "This is an historic event. The presence of the Warmbier family and disabled North Korean escapee activist Ji Seong-ho clearly signals that North Korean human rights is at the top of the Trump administration's agenda.The message sent to the Moon Jae-in government in South Korea is clear: Protect and support North Korean escapees and groups working to improve the North Korean human-rights situation, give North Korean escapees a voice, do not muffle them." (Gordon Chang, Daily Beast)
- HRNK's application for consultative status with the NGO Committee, after having repeatedly been deferred since May 2016, will be considered once again at tomorrow's session. (ISHR)
- Starvation, loss of limbs, government persecution, near drowning – any of these would have stopped most people, but not Ji Seong-ho, a North Korean activist and NED grantee who was recognized by Trump during last night's State of the Union, calling his story ""a testament to the yearning of every human soul to live in freedom." (NED)

In North Korea:

- Every year, NK mobilizes its population to contribute manure to the state. As part efforts to counter the country's chronic shortages, the policy is a combination of forced labor and taxation. This year, the authorities have put both ordinary residents and workers associated with the Party and judicial agencies to work. (Kang Mi Jin, DailyNK)
- The U.N. Special Rapporteur on the rights of persons with disabilities, Catalina Devandas-Aguilar, has pointed out the inadequacy of infrastructure for persons with disabilities in NK, a U.S. broadcaster reported Wed. (Yonhap)
- N. Korean authorities are mobilizing ordinary citizens and military conscripts alike in a push to accelerate construction of the "Wonsan Kalma Shore Tourist Zone." Inside sources report that the authorities have conveyed their intentions to complete the project before the July 27 "Victory Day" holiday. (Lee Sang Yong, Daily NK)

In South Korea:

- SK will begin a joint training program at the Masikryong ski resort in NK on Wed. as had been initially planned, the South's Ministry of Unification said, with a 45-person delegation engaging in a two-day trip. (Christine Kim, Reuters)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- An agreed-upon ski training of S. and N. Korean skiers is still in limbo amid concerns about a possible negative impact on U.S.-led sanctions on the nuclear-armed communist nation, an official here said Wed. (Yonhap)

- The two Koreas will hold a total of 4 joint taekwondo demonstrations in the South to celebrate the first Winter Olympics in South Korea next month, organizers said Wed. (Yonhap)
- A pro-N. Korean newspaper in Japan said Wed. Pyongyang's recent cancellation of a joint Olympic celebration with Seoul is a warning against conservative media and politicians in the South over their "reckless remarks" against its planned army anniversary event. (Yonhap)
- 10 N.Korean Olympic athletes will board a S. Korean chartered airplane on Thurs. when it carries a S. Korean delegation home after two days of joint ski training in the North ahead of the Olympics, according to S. Korean pool reporters on Wed. (Yonhap)
- More than 20% of N. Korean defectors who resettled in SK said they have thought about returning to their country of origin, a survey showed on Wed. (Yonhap)
- The Olympics are less than 10 days away and NK is making last-minute preparations harder by issuing abrupt changes to the inter-Korean agreement on cultural exchanges for Pyeongchang eached earlier this month. (Korea Times)
- Two dozen S. Korean skiers began a two-day trip to NK on Wed. for a joint training, keeping alive the mood of inter-Korean cooperation ahead of the Olympics. (Yonhap)
- Skiers from the two Koreas began a 2-day joint training at the North's Masikryong Ski Resort ahead of the Olympics, Wed., amid lingering concerns about Pyongyang's cancellation of an inter-Korean event at Mount Geumgang two days earlier. (Kim Bo-eun, Korea Times)

International:

- A former candidate to be the Trump administration's ambassador to SK has issued a direct challenge to the White House over its consideration of a pre-emptive strike against NK. (Elise Labott, Kevin Liptak, Nicole Gaouette, CNN)
- Trump's fiery comments on NK reflected confidence that his campaign of pressure and sanctions on the country is working, S. Korean analysts said Wed. (AP)
- Trump put a human face on the threat posed by NK in his State of the Union address Tues., sharing the powerful story of a defector now living in SK and the pain of parents who lost their child after his imprisonment. (AP)
- The delivery of oil and oil products to NK should not be reduced, Moscow's ambassador to Pyongyang was cited as saying by RIA news agency on Wed, adding that a total end to deliveries would be interpreted by NK as an act of war. (Reuters Staff, Reuters)
- Some of the loudest applause during Trump's state of the union address greeted his introduction to Ji Seong-ho, a human rights and disability campaigner who must now be the world's most recognizable N. Korean defector. After paying tribute to Otto Warmbier, Trump devoted several lines to Ji's dramatic flight to freedom. (Justin McCurry, The Guardian)
- NK has accused the US of a raft of human rights violations against its own citizens, including racial discrimination, erosion of the freedom of the press and gender inequality. (Julian Ryall, Telegraph)
- NK struck back at the US on Wed., accusing the Trump administration of being a billionaires' club that harbors a "policy of racism" while denying freedom of the press and health coverage to citizens. (Reuters)

    - A Southeast Asian woman charged with murdering Kim Jong-nam, the N. Korean dictator's estranged half-brother, was paid for performing pranks at a mall in the weeks prior to his killing, a Malaysian court heard Tues. (BenarNews, RFA)
    - NK is planning to show off dozens of long-range missiles at a Feb. 8 parade, the day before the Olympics is set to begin in SK, two diplomatic sources with deep knowledge of NK's intentions told CNN Wed. (Will Ripley, Joshua Berlinger, CNN)
    - Ji Seong-ho, a N. Korean man who made it out of the rogue nation and now resides in SK, received a standing ovation at Trump's first State of the Union address Tuesday night. (Eli Watkins, Madison Park, CNN)
    - Ji Seong-ho, the N. Korean defector honored by Trump last night, has a remarkable escape story, even by the standards of N. Korean defectors, making it across South Asia on crutches. (Choe Sang-hun, NYT)
    - 4 different takes on the US/NK situation, in the end, but NK still shares a border with China and faces a formidable foe in the US. War would be costly. These structural pressures constrain any U.S. or N. Korean leader — and may indicate why preemptive wars or miscalculation spirals are historically rare. (Elizabeth Saunders, Monkey Cage)
    - Moscow plans on sending home all N. Korean workers within its border by the end of 2019, Russian media reported Wed. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- Russia's ambassador to NK said on Wed. it was better not to cut deliveries of oil and oil products to NK, RIA news agency reported. (Reuters Staff, Reuters)
- Russia's Ambassador to Pyongyang Alexander Matsegora has never made face-to-face contact with KJU since he began his service in the North five years ago, a US broadcaster reported Wed. (Yonhap)
- SK won an exemption from US sanctions Wed. to fly its athletes on a chartered passenger jet so the two Koreas could conduct joint ski training in NK, according to the foreign ministry. (Yonhap)
- A senior SK diplomat has discussed NK and other pending issues with high-ranking US government officials in recent back-to-back meetings, the foreign ministry here said Wed. (Yonhap)
- A delegation of 45 S. Korean skiers and officials kicked off a trip to the Masikryong Ski Resort in NK Wednesday after Seoul wrangled with Washington up to the last minute over American sanctions barring planes that visit North Korea from traveling to the United States. (Sarah Kim, Joongang Ilbo)
- Trump will give "eye-opening" remarks Tues. on US efforts to curb NK's nuclear weapons program, a source familiar with the Trump's State of the Union speech said. (Jim Acosta, CNN)
- Prosecutors in Taiwan have accused a former judge and his son of violating UN sanctions on trade with NK, the second such case involving citizens of Taiwan so far this year. Both cases also involve Chinese nationals. (Chris Horton, NYT)
- Chief Cabinet Secretary Yoshihide Suga says Japan "highly praises President Trump for sending a powerful message in his own words" as NK continues to pursue its ambitions. (AP)
- Branding NK's leadership "depraved," Trump told Americans on Tues. that Pyongyang's pursuit of nuclear missiles could "very soon threaten our homeland" and vowed a continued campaign of maximum pressure to keep that from happening. (Korea Times)
- Trump said Tuesday that North Korea's nuclear weapons could "very soon" threaten the American homeland but that his administration is working to stop that from happening. (Yonhap)

- Calling NK a “depraved” and “cruel dictatorship,” Trump, in his first State of the Union address, again promised to exert “maximum pressure” to prevent Pyongyang from developing nuclear missiles that can threaten the U.S. mainland. (Brian Padden, VOA)
- Trump urged lawmakers on Tues. to work toward bipartisan compromises, but pushed a hard line on immigration, insisting on a border wall and other concessions from Democrats as part of any deal to protect the children of illegal immigrants. (Steve Holland, Jeff Mason, Reuters)
- Trump said Tues. that NK's nuclear weapons could "very soon" threaten the American homeland but that his administration is working to stop that from happening. (Yonhap)
- Branding NK’s leadership “depraved,” Trump told Americans on Tues. that Pyongyang’s pursuit of nuclear missiles could “very soon threaten our homeland” and vowed a continued campaign to prevent that. (Matt Spetalnick, David Brunnstrom, Reuters)
- The US remains in close coordination with SK, the State Department said Tues., amid persisting concerns about NK's participation in the PyeongChang Olympics. (Yonhap)
- It seems the US thinks a precision strike against NK is one of its serious options, despite concerns about catastrophic results it might trigger, as the Trump administration withdrew its nominee for ambassador to Seoul who opposed the idea. (Kim Rahn, Korea Times)
- Victor Cha offers an alternative coercive strategy that involves enhanced and sustained U.S., regional and global pressure on Pyongyang to denuclearize. His strategy is likely to deliver the same potential benefits as a limited strike, along with other advantages, without costing American and S. Korean lives.(Victor Cha, Washington Post)
- Victor Cha, a former White House National Security Council (NSC) official, is no longer being considered for the post of U.S. ambassador to SK, according to multiple sources, at least in part due to a split with the White House over NK policy.(Sarah Kim, Joongang Ilbo)
- Victor Cha, a NK expert whom the US withdrew from consideration as ambassador to SK, has voiced strong opposition to preventive strikes against NK. (Yonhap)
- An American news outlet that made a rare visit to NK to cover the country's Olympic team is being criticized by the Trump administration for coverage that, in the words of one official, depicted "the most totalitarian country on the planet ... as a cheerful winter holiday resort."(William Kim, VOA)

Prepared by Jinny Ahn, Emma Stubblefield, HRNK Research Interns

2. FEBRUARY

Thursday, February 1, 2018

PRESS RELEASE-SOTU Address to the World: Protect and Support N.Korean Escapees; HRNK's EXCLUSIVE First Interview with Ji Seong-ho after SOTU Appearance as Guest of FLOTUS Melania Trump; Why Trump Was Right to Slam NK in SOTU

Top News:
PRESS RELEASE: State of the Union Address to the World: Protect and Support North Korean Escapees! (HRNK, 02/01/2018)
HRNK's EXCLUSIVE First Interview with Ji Seong-ho after SOTU Appearance as Guest of FLOTUS Melania Trump (HRNK Insider, 02/01/2018)
Why Trump Was Right to Slam North Korea in State of the Union (PJ Media, 01/31/2018)

In North Korea:
(2nd LD) N.K. vice sports minister to lead delegation traveling to S. Korea via air (Yonhap, 02/01/2018)
(LEAD) (Olympics) N. Korean athletes check in to athletes' village for PyeongChang 2018 (Yonhap, 02/01/2018)
Increased Personnel and Vehicles Present at the Mirim Parade Training Facility (38North, 01/31/2018)
KJU Visits Pyongyang Trolley Bus Factory (NK Leadership Watch, 02/01/2018)
NK leader wants 'thorough' military parade (Korea Times, 01/31/2018)
North Korea's athletes arrive for Games (Joongang Ilbo, 02/02/2018)
North Korea's athlete factories: how they work (DailyNK, 02/01/2018)
North Korea figure skating pair to arrive in South Korea with other Olympians (Reuters, 01/31/2018)
North Korea Installs New Radio Devices to Catch Citizens Illegally Calling Abroad (RFA, 02/01/2018)
North Korea relishes world's interest in its high-level Olympic delegation (DailyNK, 02/01/2018)
North Korean leader calls for world-class trolley bus factory (UPI, 02/01/2018)
North Korean Olympians to travel to Pyeongchang on Thursday (UPI, 01/31/2018)
N.Korean athletes competing in the Pyeongchang Winter Olympics will travel to SK Thurs. on a chartered plane, along with S.Korean skiers returning from a two-day joint training session. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
Remaining N.K. Olympic athletes set to come to S. Korea on plane (Yonhap, 02/01/2018)
Satellite images show preparations for Pyongyang's parade (Joongang Ilbo, 02/02/2018)
Wonsan Kalma Peninsula construction verified (NK Economy Watch, 02/01/2018)

In South Korea:
(Yonhap Feature) Resignation, skepticism: Life in civilian-restricted Unification Village (Yonhap, 02/01/2018)
Defectors 'easy target' for abuses due to lack of legal knowledge, access to counsel (DailyNK, 02/01/2018)

Fans will pay a lot to watch the joint ice hockey team (Joongang Ilbo, 02/02/2018)
Heading for a collision course? (Joongang Ilbo, 02/02/2018)
Lottery to give free tickets to see Samjiyon Orchestra (Joongang Ilbo, 02/02/2018)
N.K. art troupe's Olympic concerts to involve no financial rewards: Seoul (Yonhap, 02/01/2018)
North Korean arts troupe concert tickets to be won on lucky draw (UPI, 02/01/2018)
S. Korea lauds Trump address for pledging firm will to resolve N. Korean nukes (Yonhap, 02/01/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
(4th LD) Koreas' skiers conduct rare joint training amid hope for better sports exchange (Yonhap, 02/01/2018)
Analyst: Winter Olympics could make Korean history (UPI, 02/01/2018)

International:

Amid global turmoil, Trump leaves ambassador posts empty (CNN, 01/31/2018)
An ominous signal (Joongang Ilbo, 02/01/2018)
AP Interview: New Zealand Urges North Korea 'De-escalation' (NYT, 02/01/2018)
Bracing for post-PyeongChang (Joongang Ilbo, 02/01/2018)
Cha's warning on North divides experts (Joongang Ilbo, 02/02/2018)
Communication gap (Joongang Ilbo, 02/02/2018)
Me and my crutches - a North Korean defector's story (Reuters, 02/01/2018)
North Korean defector Ji Seong-ho never looked back - but some wish to return (Telegraph, 02/01/2018)
North, South Korea report flu outbreaks ahead of Winter Olympics (CNN, 02/02/2018)
Russia supports S. Korea's efforts to improve inter-Korean ties for peace on peninsula (Yonhap, 02/01/2018)
S. Korea, U.S. hold joint combat training (Yonhap, 02/01/2018)
S. Korean, Canadian diplomats discuss N.K. issues, cooperation (Yonhap, 02/01/2018)
Seoul, U.S. hold training as North Korea preps for parade (UPI, 02/01/2018)
Trump's foolish decision on South Korea (CNN, 01/31/2018)
Trump advisers clash over 'bloody nose' strike on North Korea (CNN, 02/01/2018)
Unpacking a US Decision to Use Force Against North Korea: Issues, Options, and Consequences (38North, 01/31/2018)
U.S. hails Olympics security plan; opposes North Korea military parade (Reuters, 01/31/2018)
U.S. missile defense test unsuccessful: official (Reuters, 01/31/2018)
U.S. Says Military Option Not Believed to Be Close for Solving North Korea Crisis (NYT, 02/01/2018)
U.S. seeks S. Korea's understanding of delayed appointment of top envoy (Yonhap, 02/01/2018)
U.S. Test of Missile Interceptor Fails Off Hawaiian Coast, Officials Say (NYT, 01/31/2018)
US Officials: No Specific Threats to Pyeongchang Winter Olympics (VOA, 01/31/2018)
US Envoy for North Korea Says Military Option 'Not Close' (NYT, 02/01/2018)

Top News:

- President Trump's State of the Union (SOTU) Address on Tues. sent a clear message to the world: protect and support N.Korean escapees and give them a voice. Trump displayed his administration's commitment to the N.Korean people and the "American resolve" to confronting the Kim regime by inviting Ji Seong-ho as well as Fred and Cindy Warmbier, the parents of Otto Warmbier, to appear as the First Lady Melania Trump's special guests during the SOTU. HRNK Co-Vice-Chair Suzanne Scholte notes: "Much congratulations go to HRNK Executive Director Greg Scarlatoiu for leading the effort to make it possible for Ji to be there for this historic occasion" as we at HRNK will never forget those who have suffered and died due to the Kim regime, and continue to call for the regime to dismantle its political prison camps. (HRNK)

- In an HRNK exclusive first interview with Ji Seong-ho conducted by HRNK Director of Programs and Editor Rosa Park, Ji recounts his escape from NK, his life in SK and work in NK human rights, as well as his experiences at the State of the Union Address Tues. night. He also gives his thoughts of the impact and significance that this event will have on his life going forward. (HRNK Insider)
- In facing down NK, a major problem for the US today is that Pyongyang has plenty of reasons to write off US threats as bluffs and discount the US military as fundamentally impotent to stop NK's rogue nuclear program. The US, over many years and under previous US presidents has repeatedly blinked in this game of chicken against NK. In particular, President Obama, whose eight years in the White House were marked by precious little interest in deterrence, a great squandering abroad of US credibility, and virtually no serious effort to stop NK, snubbed US allies and stretched out its hands to its enemies on an eight-year binge of apology and appeasement, largely sidelined the issue and packed his neglect of American security as "strategic patience." (Claudia Rosett, PJ Media)

In North Korea:

- NK's vice sports minister is set to travel to SK on Thurs., leading a 32-member delegation, including 10 athletes, aboard a S.Korean chartered plane, Seoul's unification ministry said. (Yonhap)
- N.Korean Olympic athletes checked in to their living quarters for the upcoming PyeongChang Winter Games amid tight security on Thurs. (Yoo Jee-ho, Yonhap)
- Analysis by Joseph S. Bermudez Jr. shows that new commercial satellite imagery indicates military parade preparation and training continues to gradually expand at the Mirim Parade Training Facility, with a noticeable increase in the number of personnel and vehicles present. (38North)
- DPRK state media reported on Feb. 1 (Thurs.) that KJU visited the Pyongyang Trolley Bus Factory. (NK Leadership Watch)
- N.Korean leader KJU reportedly ordered low-key celebrations for his birthday to focus on preparing for a "thorough" military parade next week, according to media reports Wed. (Lee Min-hyung, Korea Times)
- NK's Olympic delegation flew into SK Thurs. on a chartered plane and checked in at the Gangneung Olympic Village Thurs. night, with local media jostling to catch every image and comment. (Kang Jin-kyu, Choi Hyung-jo, Joongang Ilbo)
- Since the inception of his reign, KJU has focused on development of the country's athletics programs, marking a change from the Kim Jong Il era, which encouraged artistic pursuits. (Seol Song Ah, DailyNK)
- A N.Korean figure skating pair—the only N.Koreans to have secured a spot at the Winter Games through the conventional qualifying competition—will arrive in SK later on Thurs. by airplane with eight other athletes, set to compete in the Pyeongchang Winter Olympics that will begin next week. (Christine Kim, Reuters)

- NK has installed new Russian-made radio locators along sections of its 880-mile border with China to detect citizens placing illegal mobile-phone calls to friends and relatives outside the isolated authoritarian country, sources said. (Jieun Kim, Leejin Jun, Roseanne Gerin, RFA)
- In recent days, NK and SK have explored exchanges and cooperation for the 2018 Olympics, which will continue in the coming weeks as the planned joint event draws near. However, NK has yet to reveal details of the top-level delegation it plans to send to the Olympics, which analysts believe will be structured to grab as much attention from the international community as possible and maximize the benefits of any further announcements. (Ha Yoon Ah, DailyNK)
- N.Korean leader KJU emphasized the importance of domestic production, as he toured a trolley bus factory in Pyongyang, the North's state-run media reported. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- Ten N.Korean Olympic athletes are set to travel to SK aboard a S.Korean chartered plane Thurs., together with the South's skiers who will come home after a two-day joint ski training in the North. (Yonhap)
- Satellite images of NK's preparations for a military parade were released Wed. by 38 North—a website that specializes in NK analysis—showing at least 12,000 troops and 110 artillery pieces, tanks and other armored vehicles practicing on training grounds on the outskirts of Pyongyang. (Lee Sung-eun, Jeong Yong-soo, Joongang Ilbo)
- Although it is still difficult to see any significant construction taking place on the northern end of the peninsula, recent planet imagery taken of a plot of land on the south end of the Kalma Airport runway shows construction activity for a recent construction project occurring in the area. (NK Economy Watch)

In South Korea:

- Living in Tongilchon, which is only 4.5 kilometers south of the Military Demarcation Line (MDL) and within the Civilian Access Control Line, means one has to live with many inconveniences, such as the around-the-clock background noise as well as the unpredictable, volatile cycle of security situations at the front line, including a near-war experience. (Woo Jae-yeon, Yonhap)
- N.Korean defectors are often the targets of legal scams in SK, and are also often unprepared for how to deal with them, which can break illusions of proper justice in S.Korean society. By publicizing her story, Kim Hye Eun (alias) hopes to warn other defectors and prevent similar incidents from occurring. (Kim Ji Seung, DailyNK)
- Demand is so hot for tickets to the inter-Korean women's ice hockey team games at the PyeongChang Winter Olympics that sports fans are offering double the regular price to get them, since tickets have been sold out since mid-Jan. (Kim Won, Esther Chung, Joongang Ilbo)
- If Trump's decision to abandon Victor Cha's nomination to be the US Ambassador to SK was because of Cha's disagreement with the hawks in the White House to enact a "bloody-nose" strategy on NK, the Korean Peninsula could well be headed into a disaster, despite Cha getting approval from the Moon administration. (Kang Hiok, Joongang Ilbo)
- Over 1,000 tickets for a N.Korean orchestra concert in Seoul and Gangneung, Gangwon, will be available to the public for free through an online lottery system, the Unification Ministry announced Thursday. (Lee Sung-eun, Joongang Ilbo)
- SK said Thurs. a N.Korean art troupe's planned performances in the South will not involve any provision of financial rewards, such as performance fees, as it is not allowed to provide bulk cash to the North under a set of U.N. sanctions on Pyongyang's nuclear and missile programs. (Yonhap)

- The SK Unification Ministry announced Thurs. that it will hold a lucky draw for S.Korean citizens wishing to attend either of the performances. From Fri. midnight local time, S.Koreans will have 36 hours to enter a draw on a ticketing website to win a pair of seats at one of the concerts. 1,060 tickets will be given away to 530 randomly drawn citizens next Tues. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- SK on Thurs. lauded US President Donald Trump's recent congress address for displaying "strong determination" to resolve N.Korean nuclear weapons issues. (Yonhap, 02/01/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- S. and N.Korean skiers conducted joint training at a ski resort in the North on Thurs., expressing hope that both sides can keep building strong friendship in the sports field. (Kim Soo-yeon, Joint Press Corps, Yonhap)
- US policy against NK has not helped ease tensions on the peninsula and the 2018 Pyeongchang Winter Olympics is an opportunity for change, a S.Korean sports historian said Thurs. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)

International:

- The Trump administration's decision to drop plans to nominate Victor Cha as ambassador to SK—which prompted him to issue a direct challenge to the White House over its consideration of a pre-emptive strike against NK—is the latest decision that leaves a crucial diplomatic post in limbo. (Laura Koran, Joyce Tseng, Aaron Kessler, CNN)
- Despite Cha's hardline stance towards NK, the Trump administration chose not to appoint him US Ambassador to SK. If the S.Korean government continues to act like a puppet to Pyongyang, the reaction of the US can be easily guessed—it will be tempted to take military actions. The Moon administration must be very careful about its next steps. (Joongang Ilbo)
- New Zealand Prime Minister Jacinda Ardern expressed support Thurs. for economic sanctions against NK while also urging a "de-escalation" on the Korean Peninsula, and said her country should maintain a close relationship with the US even if they don't always agree. (AP)
- After the Olympics, Moon hopes to follow the resumed inter-Korean talks with US-NK talks. However, Washington seems to be cold on that idea and even the inter-Korean talks as the Secretary of Defense, CIA director and marine commanders underscore that military options against NK are still on the table, that SK-US joint military exercises would resume after the Olympics, and preparations for ground warfare in SK are in progress. (Joongang Ilbo)
- Following ex-White House official Victor Cha's warning against Washington taking a "bloody nose" strategy on NK, US lawmakers and experts have been speaking out against such a preventive military strike. (Sarah Kim, Kim Hyun-ki, Joongang Ilbo)
- A lack of communications between Seoul and Washington volatile situation rings alarms about the security of SK. No one knows if or when the US may strike NK. The government must maintain close communication with the US if it really does not want to be ignored at times of true peril. (Joongang Ilbo)

- Ji Seong-ho, 35, a N.Korean defector who appeared at President Trump's State of the Union address this week, is from Hoeryong, near the border with China. He told Reuters last year about the wooden crutches that he left NK with in 2006. (Seung-Woo Yeom, Reuters)
- North Korea threats spur U.S. search for new radiation therapies (Reuters, 01/31/2018)
  The escalating threat of a potential nuclear war between NK and the US has led the Department of Defense to join hands with a clutch of companies in developing more effective medical treatments for acute radiation syndrome. (Divya Grover, Reuters)
- More than 20 percent of N.Korean defectors who have made their way to safety in SK have contemplated returning to their homeland, according to a new study. (Julian Ryall, Telegraph)
- As athletes and tourists arrive in SK ahead of the 2018 Winter Olympic Games in Pyeongchang, health officials on the Korean Peninsula are battling two strains of influenza. Flu outbreaks in both NK and SK have raised concerns for those traveling to the region. (Robert Jamison, CNN)
- Russia has voiced its support for SK's ongoing efforts to improve inter-Korean relations to secure peace on the Korean Peninsula, the S.Korean foreign ministry said Thurs. SK and Russia also agreed to cooperate in making the current "positive" momentum turn into talks, including contacts between the US and NK, which could result in solving the NK's nuclear problems, according to the ministry. (Yonhap, 02/01/2018)
- SK and the US pressed ahead with a regular joint military exercise this week amid renewed inter-Korean exchanges ahead of the PyeongChang Winter Olympics, a defense official here said Thurs. (Yonhap)
- Senior diplomats of SK and Canada have discussed ways to enhance cooperation in many areas, including the N.Korean nuclear issue, the foreign ministry in Seoul said Thurs. (Yonhap)
- SK and US conducted joint military training aimed at detecting and removing N.Korean weapons of mass destruction in the event of conflict, amid reports that Pyongyang continues to prepare for a massive military parade. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- Cha's ghosting comes in the context of increased talk of war, his dismissal adding to the narrative that Washington is gearing up for a "bloody nose" strike that nobody in the region wants, and that the US doesn't need. The impact of this decision could result in a reorientation away from the US by our allies and increase the likelihood that KJU misperceives a joint SK-US drill or exercise as an attack. (Jonathan Cristol, CNN)
- The tabled nomination of a widely-respected diplomat is bringing renewed focus to divisions inside the Trump administration over how tough the US should be in positioning against NK with nuclear tests expected to resume after the upcoming Olympics. (Zachary Cohen, Nicole Gaouette, Barbara Starr, Kevin Liptak, CNN)
- Although there is no formula for evaluating the likely efficacy of using force against NK, there are a number of factors, dilemmas, and trade-offs that should be considered. These factors include asking what is the objective we hope to achieve, why do we expect the proposed measures to achieve it, what are the likely side effects and costs we can anticipate and how they might be mitigated, and what should we do if our measures fail to have the intended results. (Jervis, 38North)
- The US State Department voiced displeasure Wed. over N.Korean plans to stage a military parade on the eve of the Winter Olympics, but assured Americans going to the games the SK's security plan considered all contingencies. (Reuters Staff, Reuters)
- The US military carried out an unsuccessful test to shoot down an incoming dummy missile from Hawaii on Wed., a US official said, amid heightened concerns about NK's developing missile and nuclear program. (Idrees Ali, Reuters)

- A US special envoy said on Thurs. all options remain on the table for solving the nuclear standoff with NK but that he did not think the military option was close. (AP)
- The US has sought SK's "understanding" with regard to Washington's recent withdrawal of Victor Cha from consideration for ambassador to Seoul, the foreign ministry in Seoul said Thurs., adding that the allies continue to cooperate on filling the long-vacant post as soon as possible. (Yonhap)
- An US interceptor missile missed its target in a test off the Hawaiian coast on Wed., Defense Department officials said, renewing concerns of how the US will defend itself in the event of a missile attack by NK or another adversary. (Helene Cooper, Eric Schmitt, NYT)
- The United States says it is not aware of any specific threats to the Winter Olympics in South Korea next month, despite nuclear tensions with neighboring North Korea. (Cindy Saine, VOA)
- The US special envoy for NK said Thurs. that US is not close to taking military action against the North. Joseph Yun said US policy is to apply pressure and leave the door open for dialogue, while keeping all options open. (AP)

Prepared by Jinny Ahn, HRNK Research Intern

——————————————————

Friday, February 2, 2018

Why a Defector Hoisted His Crutches Over His head at Trump's State of the Union; Trump to meet with N.K. defectors in Oval Office in bid to raise pressure on KJU; N.K. Human Rights in the State of the Union

Top News:
Why a Defector Hoisted His Crutches Over His head at Trump's State of the Union (CBN, 02/01/2018)
Trump to meet with North Korean defectors in Oval Office in bid to raise pressure on Kim Jong Un (Washington Post, 02/02/2018)
North Korean Human Rights in the State of the Union (Sino-NK, 01/31/2018)

In North Korea:
A Few Facts on North Korea's Army Day (38 North, 02/01/2018)
Hot heads or cold feet? North Korea's mixed Olympic messages (Washington Post, 02/02/2018)
Market conditions worsen in Sinuiju following crackdowns on both sides of the border (*Daily*NK, 02/02/2018)
NK urges UN to stop 'US nuclear war provocation' (Korea Times, 02/02/2018)
No. of swine flu-infected N. Koreans rose to 110,000 last month: report (Yonhap, 02/02/2018)
North Korea slams US for 'human rights abuses' (Korea Times, 02/02/2018)

North Korea warns against U.S.-South Korea military drills after Olympics (Reuters, 02/02/2018)
South Korean press 'insults' not the real reason for North Korea's Mt. Kumgang event cancellation (DailyNK, 02/02/2018)
Why did North Korea cancel the Mt. Kumgang joint performance? (DailyNK, 02/02/2018)
'Victory in all fronts' - North Korea releases new propaganda posters and stamps for 70th anniversary (Telegraph, 02/02/2018)

In South Korea:
(3rd LD) (Olympics) N. Korean short track skater suffers ankle injury in training (Yonhap, 02/02/2018)
(Olympics) N. Korean athletes sport large flag at dorm in Gangneung (Yonhap, 02/02/2018)
[Olympics] Two N. Korean staffers have no IOC accreditation (Korea Times, 02/02/2018)
Air Force general picked to oversee defense ministry's N. Korea policy (Yonhap, 02/02/2018)
Geniuses think alike (Joongang Ilbo, 02/02/2018)
Korea and Japan should renew their partnership: Aide (Joongang Ilbo, 02/02/2018)
N. Korea Olympic skaters begin training in South; 1 injured (Washington Post, 02/02/2018)
We are all Olympic hopefuls (Joongang Ilbo, 02/02/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
(Yonhap Feature) Inter-Korean joint training offers rare glimpse into luxury ski resort in N. Korea (Yonhap, 02/02/2018)
Bracing for post-PyeongChang (Joongang Ilbo, 02/02/2018)
Extending North Korea Olympic Truce Seems Unlikely (VOA, 02/02/2018)
N.K. art troupe to play many S. Korean songs during performances: ministry (Yonhap, 02/02/2018)
North Korean athletes under observation as they arrive in South ahead of Winter Olympics (Telegraph, 02/02/2018)
PyeongChang may be no game changer for nuclear standoff (Korea Times, 02/02/2018)
Remaining Group of North Korean Athletes Arrives for Pyeongchang Games (VOA, 02/01/2018)
South, North skiers train together at Masikryong (Joongang Ilbo, 02/02/2018)

International:
(LEAD) Top U.S. nuke envoy says Washington wants 'credible dialogue' with N.K. for denuclearization (Yonhap, 02/02/2018)
(News Focus) Cha's withdrawal raises concerns about preventive strike on N. Korea (Yonhap, 02/02/2018)
As Olympics approach, Trump tries to pressure North Korea (Washington Post, 02/02/2018)
Jordan cuts diplomatic ties with N.K. in line with policies of allies: reports (Yonhap, 02/02/2018)
North Korean Defector: Trump Sent Warning to Kim in State of Union Address (VOA, 02/02/2018)
No Samsung phones, Nike uniforms for North Koreans? Sanctions cloud Olympic perks (Reuters, 02/02/2018)
Pentagon downplays N. Korea military parade (Yonhap, 02/02/2018)
Trump invites 9 defectors to White House: RFA (Joongang Ilbo, 02/02/2018)
UN Chief: Denuclearization of Korean Peninsula Is Objective (Washington Post, 02/02/2018)
US missile defense test failed in Hawaii, officials say (Guardian, 02/01/2018)
US Missile Defense Test Fails (VOA, 02/01/2018)
Top News:

- Christians in China made Ji Seong-ho realize a universal truth.There's someone else outside the world that sympathizes with him and loves him. After he got to know God, his life changed significantly. And he says now he's living for spreading love. (Paul Strand, CBN)
- Trump is expected to meet with eight N.K. defectors including Ji Seong-ho who was praised by Trump during STOU. This meeting was arranged with the help of HRNK's Executive Director, Greg Scarlatoiu. (David Nakamura, Washington Post)
- Trump's STOU speech elaborated two stories involving N.K. human rights record, including the story of a N.K. escapee Ji Seung-ho, who is now a human rights advocate in Seoul. Mr. Ji was invited to STOU as an honored guest. (Leif-Eric Easley, Sino-NK)

In North Korea:

- While N.K. has reinstituted February 8 as Army Day this year, thus giving it an excuse for a military parade the day before the opening of the Pyeongchang Winter Olympics, there are a few facts about the Army Day. (Robert Carlin, 38 North)
- Despite all the attention N.K. is getting for its conciliatory gestures ahead of the S.K. Winter Olympics, it is stepping up some unusually pointed verbal attacks on Trump's administration and conservatives in the S.K. government and media. (Eric Talmadge, AP)
- Economic conditions are reportedly worsening in the N.K.'s border city of Sinuiju due to the intensification of international sanctions enforcement by China. (Kim Sung Il, DailyNK)
- N.K. has sent a letter to the UN, urging for efforts to be made to halt what it referred to as the U.S. 's nuclear war provocation scheme. (Korea Times)
- The number of patients infected with H1N1 influenza, also known as swine flu, in N.K. rose to 110,000 last month. (Yonhap)
- N.K., one of the world's most notorious regimes for human rights abuses, says President Trump's administration is a "gross violator of human rights." (Jung Min-ho, Korea Times)
- N.K. has warned that if the US goes ahead with delayed military exercises with S.K. after the Winter Olympics it will not "sit idle." (Christine Kim, Reuters)
- Despite the North abruptly canceling a joint cultural performance, the ski event went forward as planned. Concerns have been raised that the North is exploiting their participation in the Olympics as an opportunity to promote the Masik Pass ski facilities. (Ha Yoon Ah, DailyNK)
- N.K. has cancelled a joint North-South cultural performance that was set to be held at Mt. Kumgang, blaming negative S.K. media coverage. Analysts have raised the possibility that the move was pre-planned and part of a wider strategy. (Ha Yoon Ah, DailyNK)
- Pyoungyang has released a new series of propaganda posters to encourage its citizens, workers, and the military to carry out the demands set out by KJU to mark the 70th anniversary of the founding of the nation. (Telegraph)

In South Korea:

- N.K. short track speed skater Choe Un-song was treated for a right ankle injury he suffered during his first training session at Gangneung Ice Arena in Gangneung. (Yonhap)
- N.K. athletes participating in the 2018 Winter Games put up a large national flag at their dormitory in the sub-host city of Gangneung on Friday. (Yonhap)

- Two N.K. staff members, who were not registered with the International Olympic Committee (IOC), have been staying here since Jan. 25 for the PyeongChang Winter Olympic Games. (Korea Times)
- S.K.'s defense ministry has chosen a two-star Air Force general to lead its N.K. policy team, despite speculation that a retired military official or a civilian would be installed in the new post. (Yonhap)
- S.K. government must make meticulous and relentless efforts to resolve the nuclear crisis. A peace with nuclear weapons cannot exist on the Korean Peninsula. Appointing like-minded people to top posts will not resolve the nuclear crisis. (Joongang Ilbo)
- A top aide to President Moon said it is desirable for Korea and Japan to announce a new joint declaration to renew their partnership. (Ser Myo-ja, Joongang Ilbo)
- N.K. skaters attending this month's Winter Olympics in S.K. began their training Friday, and one was injured during his first practice. A giant N.K. flag hanging from a N.K. apartment in the athletes' village also captured the media spotlight. (Hyung-Jin Kim, AP)
- Pyongyang still poses a menacing threat, and many worry about post-PyeongChang Korea. Will the Games burn away these uncertainties? (Park Jeong-ho, Joongang Ilbo)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- The recent joint ski training between the two Koreas offered a rare glimpse into a ski resort in N.K., which leader KJU aspires to develop as a lavish sports tourism attraction. (Yonhap)
- S.K. needs to focus on what comes after the Olympics. Moon hopes to follow the resumed inter-Korean talks with U.S.-North Korea talks. But Washington seems to be cold on that idea and even the inter-Korean talks. (Kim Young-hie, Joongang Ilbo)
- A N.K. military parade and talk of a possible U.S. military strike cast an ominous shadow over S.K.'s diplomatic efforts to extend an Olympic truce. (Brian Padden, VOA)
- N.K.'s art troupe will play many S.K. songs during their performances in the South to celebrate the upcoming Winter Olympic Games, the unification ministry said. (Yonhap)
- The first 10 N.K. athletes have checked into their living quarters for the upcoming Pyeongchang Winter Olympic Games, watched closely by both S.K. security guards and agents embedded into Pyongyang's delegation. (Julian Ryall, Telegraph)
- Four columnists of The Korea Times got together for a round table discussion Tuesday to discuss post-Olympics consequences. (Oh Young-jin, Korea Times)
- The last group of N.K. athletes has arrived in S.K. to complete preparations for the Winter Olympics Games, set to begin next week in Pyeongchang. (VOA)
- S.K. and N.K. skiers conducted joint training at a ski resort in the North on Thursday, expressing hope that both sides can keep building strong friendship in the sports field. (Yonhap)

International:

- The top U.S. nuclear envoy said Friday that Washington wants to open dialogue with N.K. for its denuclearization. (Yonhap)
- Trump's withdrawal of his pick for ambassador to S.K. has fanned concerns that the administration is seriously considering a military strike on N.K. (Yonhap)

- Trump is trying to pressure Pyongyang just a week before the Olympic Games begin. He called the leaders of S.K. and Japan on Friday to ask them to keep up the pressure on N.K. (Jonathan Lemire and Jill Colvin, AP)
- Jordan has cut diplomatic ties with N.K. amid global efforts to put pressure on Pyongyang to give up its missile and nuclear programs. (Yonhap)
- A N.K. double amputee who fled N.K. on crutches says President Trump sent a warning when he spoke of human rights violations in N.K. (Lee Yeon Cheol, VOA)
- All of the almost 3,000 athletes competing at the upcoming Pyeongchang Winter Olympics are set to get perks including the latest $1,100 Samsung smartphones, top of the range new equipment to take home and sleek Nike uniforms. (Hyunjoo Jin, Christine Kim, Reuters)
- The Pentagon on Thursday played down the significance of N.K.'s military parade reportedly set for next week. (Yonhap)
- Trump is inviting nine N.K. defectors to the White House to discuss human rights abuses by the Pyongyang regime. (Esther Chung, Chou Ik-jae, Joongang Ilbo)
- Secretary-General Antonio Guterres says he is encouraged by the improvement of relations between the two Koreas, but the UN's objective is the peaceful denuclearization of the Korean peninsula. (AP)
- The US military carried out an unsuccessful test to shoot down an incoming dummy missile from Hawaii on Wednesday, a US official said, amid heightened concerns about N.K.'s developing missile and nuclear program. (Guardian)
- The Pentagon says the military conducted an unsuccessful missile defense test over Hawaii on Wednesday. (Carla Babb, VOA)

Prepared by James Park, HRNK Research Intern

——————————————————

Saturday, February 3, 2018

Trump hosts North Korea defectors at WH; Moon, Trump discuss N.K. human rights issue; N.K. made $200m flouting sanctions

Top News:

'Like leaving another universe': North Korean defectors tell Trump what it's like to escape (USA Today, 02/03/2018)

Trump hosts North Korea defectors at WH (CNN, 02/02/2018)

Trump will meet North Korean defectors in the Oval Office — here's why that's a big threat to Kim Jong Un (Business Insider, 02/02/2018)

Will North Korea attack the Olympics? Countries think not (Global News, 02/03/2018)

In North Korea:

State media image of Hyon Song Wol front and center surprises residents (DailyNK, 02/03/2018)

Winter Olympics: North Korea presses ahead with military parade (BBC, 02/03/2018)

In South Korea:
(LEAD) (Olympics) N. Korean athletes stay guarded in build-up to Olympics (Yonhap, 02/03/2018)
(LEAD) Over 150,000 apply for free tickets to N.K. concerts (Yonhap, 02/03/2018)
(Olympics) Head of N. Korean delegation attends training for 1st time (Yonhap, 02/03/2018)
Conservative civic groups hold rally against N.K.'s participation in Olympics (Yonhap, 02/03/2018)
N. Korea skaters draw applause during Olympic practice (Washington Post, 02/03/2018)
Training was tougher in North Korea, say defectors (Reuters, 02/03/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
N. Korea defends army anniversary parade slated for day before Olympic opening (Yonhap, 02/03/2018)

International:
(2nd LD) Moon, Trump discuss N.K. human rights issue (Yonhap, 02/03/2018)
Exclusive: North Korea earned $200 million from banned exports, sends arms to Syria, Myanmar - U.N. report (Reuters, 02/02/2018)
German intel chief: North Korea used embassy for procurement (Washington Post, 02/03/2018)
North Korea is dodging sanctions with fish and front firms in Mozambique (CNN, 02/03/2018)
North Korea made $200m flouting sanctions, UN told (BBC, 02/03/2018)
North Korea flouts UN sanctions earning millions, say experts (Telegraph, 02/03/2018)
North Korea supplied arms to Syria and Myanmar, UN sanctions report finds (Guardian, 02/02/2018)
North Korean Escapees Tell Trump About Their Ordeals (VOA, 02/02/2018)
Pentagon Adding New Nuclear Capabilities, Keeping Nuclear Triad to Deter Attacks (VOA, 02/03/2018)
Trump hopes 'something good' comes from Olympics despite North Korean warning (Reuters, 02/02/2018)
Trump meets with N.K. defectors at White House (Yonhap, 02/03/2018)
Trump taking tougher stance on Russia nuclear threat (Washington Post, 02/03/2018)
UN chief welcomes Korea dialogue, but says political settlement needed (CNN, 02/03/2018)
UN experts: North Korea flouts UN sanctions earning millions (Washington Post, 02/02/2018)
UN report accuses North Korea of earning $200 million by violating sanctions (CNN, 02/03/2018)
U.S. denies existence of 'bloody nose' strategy for N. Korea (Yonhap, 02/03/2018)
U.S. vows 'end of regime' if N. Korea launches nuclear attack (Yonhap, 02/03/2018)
With an eye on Russia, U.S. to increase nuclear capabilities (Reuters, 02/03/2018)

Top News:

- HRNK Executive Director Greg Scarlatoiu discusses President Trump's meeting with N.K. defectors. (Oren Dorell, USA Today)
- President Trump hosts N.K. defectors including Ji Seung-ho and HRNK Fellow Kim Kwang-jin at the White House as tensions with KJU continue to rise. (Brian Todd, CNN)
- Though Trump has made news repeatedly with bellicose language threatening war with N.K., his SOTU address advanced another offensive against Pyongyang — raising the issue of human rights. (Alex Lockie, Business Insider)

- HRNK Executive Director Greg Scarlatoiu shares his thought on a potential N.K. attack during the Olympics. (Leslie Young, Global News)

In North Korea:

- N.K. residents have been voicing their opinions after the state-run newspaper Rodong Sinmun published photos of Samjiyon Orchestra leader Hyon Song Wol's visit to S.K. on January 23. (Seol Song Ah, DailyNK)
- N.K. has defended plans for a large-scale military parade scheduled for the day before the Winter Olympics in S.K. (BBC)

In South Korea:

- Coming from a reclusive nation, N.K. athletes have remained guarded in their preparations for the upcoming Winter Olympics in S.K. (Yonhap)
- More than 150,000 people have applied for free tickets to a N.K. art troupe's performances slated for next week in Seoul and Gangneung to celebrate the opening of the PyeongChang Winter Olympics. (Yonhap)
- The head of the N.K. delegation to the PyeongChang Winter Olympics attended his athletes' practice for the first time. (Yonhap)
- Conservative civic groups held a massive rally against N.K.'s participation in the Winter Olympics, with some members burning N.K.'s flag and photos of KJU. (Yonhap)
- A pair of smiling N.K. skaters carried out lifts, death spirals and other difficult moves during practices ahead of the Winter Olympics, drawing applause from S.K. spectators. (Hyung-Jin Kim, AP)
- Hwangbo Young, a N.K. ice hockey player who defected to S.K. in 1997, says the first time she played in the South “it felt like a joke”. (Jane Chung, Reuters)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- N.K. on Saturday defended its plan to celebrate the country's army anniversary with a military parade next week, refuting outside speculations that the military parade set for the day before the opening of the Olympics may involve military provocations. (Yonhap)

International:

- Moon and Trump spoke by phone Friday and resolved to work together to address human rights abuses in N.K., the White House said. (Yonhap)
- N.K. violated UN sanctions to earn nearly $200 million in 2017 from banned commodity exports, according to a confidential report by independent UN monitors, which also accused N.K. of supplying weapons to Syria and Myanmar. (Michelle Nichols, Reuters)
- The head of Germany's domestic intelligence agency says N.K. has used its embassy in Berlin to acquire equipment apparently intended for its missile or nuclear programs. (AP)

- Pyongyang's interest in a couple of aging African trawlers may seem odd at first. But fishing is big business in Mozambique. N.K. seems to want a slice of that much-needed cash, and boats are easy to move and conceal. (David McKenzie, CNN)
- N.K. earned nearly $200m (£141m) last year by exporting banned commodities in breach of international sanctions, a UN report says. (BBC)
- N.K. is flouting UN sanctions on oil and gas, engaging in prohibited ballistic missile cooperation with Syria and Burma, and illegally exporting commodities that brought in nearly $200 million in just nine months last year, according to UN experts. (AP)
- N.K. has supplied weapons to Syria and Myanmar, according to a confidential report by independent UN monitors which also said Pyongyang violated UN sanctions to earn nearly $200m in 2017. (Guardian)
- After phone calls with the leaders of Japan and S.K., Trump spoke Friday in the Oval Office with a group of N.K. escapees. (Steve Herman, VOA)
- The Pentagon has released its 2018 Nuclear Posture Review, adding nuclear capabilities and updating the US current arsenal in order to deter nuclear attacks. (Carla Babb, VOA)
- Trump expressed hope that "something good" could come from N.K.'s participation in the Winter Olympics in S.K., even after N.K. warned it would not "sit idle" if US and S.K. resumed military exercises after the Games. (Steve Holland, Christine Kim, Reuters)
- Trump met with a group of N.K. defectors at the White House Friday, drawing further attention to the human rights abuses of the communist regime. (Yonhap)
- The Trump administration on Friday announced it will continue much of the Obama administration's nuclear weapons policy, but take a more aggressive stance toward Russia. (Robert Burns, AP)
- UN Secretary-General Antonio Guterres told Friday he is pleased that relations have improved between two Koreas, but the key challenge continues to be achieving the denuclearization of the Korean peninsula. (Richard Roth, CNN)
- N.K. is flouting UN sanctions on oil and gas, engaging in prohibited ballistic missile cooperation with Syria and Myanmar, and illegally exporting commodities that brought in nearly $200 million last year, according to U.N. experts. (Edith M. Lederer, AP)
- N.K. earned nearly $200 million from exporting coal and other banned commodities last year in violation of UN sanctions, according to a new UN report. (Richard Roth, CNN)
- US denied Friday that it has considered a so-called "bloody nose" strategy to deliver a limited military strike on N.K. over its nuclear weapons program. (Yonhap)
- The US vowed Friday to bring an end to N.K.'s regime if it launches a nuclear attack on the U.S. or its allies. (Yonhap)
- Concerned about Russia's growing tactical nuclear weapons, the US will expand its nuclear capabilities, a policy document released on Friday said, a move some critics say could increase the risk of miscalculation between the two countries. (Idrees Ali, Reuters)

Prepared by James Park, HRNK Research Intern

Sunday, February 4, 2018

North Korea's ceremonial leader to visit South Korea for Winter Olympics on February 9-11: Seoul; (LEAD) (Olympics) Joint Korean women's hockey team loses to Sweden 3-1 in pre-Olympic tuneup

In North Korea:
Defectors speak on freezing reality of North Korea's winter (Korea Times, 02/04/2018)
KJU and RSJ Participate in a Test Drive of a Trolley Bus (NK Leadership Watch, 02/04/2018)
Ri Yong Ho Sends Letter to UNSG (NK Leadership Watch, 02/04/2018)

In South Korea:
South Korea city celebrates Winter Olympics as views clash on North Korea (UPI, 02/03/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
150,000 apply to see Samjiyon Orchestra (Joongang Ilbo, 02/04/2018)
(Olympics) Captain says joint Korean hockey team coming together (Yonhap, 02/04/2018)
Fans flock to cheer joint Korean ice hockey team (Reuters, 02/04/2018)
(Olympics) Four N. Koreans to play in 1st game for joint women's hockey team (Yonhap, 02/04/2018)
(Olympics) Joint hockey team head coach 'proud' of N. Koreans (Yonhap, 02/04/2018)
(LEAD) (Olympics) Joint Korean women's hockey team loses to Sweden 3-1 in pre-Olympic tuneup (Yonhap, 02/04/2018)
Koreas' combined women's hockey team debuts in friendly (Washington Post, 02/04/2018)
N. Korea art troupe, cheering squad to visit South this week (Yonhap, 02/04/2018)
North Korea derides South's criticism over military parade before Olympics (CNN, 02/04/2018)
North Korea's ceremonial leader to visit South Korea for Winter Olympics on February 9-11: Seoul (Reuters, 02/04/2018)
North Korea threatens inter-Korean relations could suffer amid criticism (UPI, 02/04/2018)
(Olympics) N. Korean coach, player have faith in power of joint hockey team (Yonhap, 02/04/2018)
(2nd LD) (Olympics) N. Korean IOC member arrives in S. Korea (Yonhap, 02/04/2018)
N.K.'s ceremonial leader to lead high-level delegation to S. Korea (Yonhap, 02/04/2018)
(Olympics) N. Koreans make little impact in joint women's hockey team debut (Yonhap, 02/04/2018)
(LEAD) Seoul hopes N. Korea will send 'highest-level' officials to PyeongChang (Yonhap, 02/04/2018)
(Olympics) Supporters, opponents of joint Korean hockey team assemble before 1st game (Yonhap, 02/04/2018)
(Olympics) Two Koreas' figure skaters may practice together (Yonhap, 02/04/2018)

International:
A critical week (Joongang Ilbo, 02/04/2018)
China criticizes US for nuclear adversary claims (Washington Post, 02/04/2018)
Exclusive: North Korea earned $200 million from banned exports, sends arms to Syria, Myanmar - U.N. report (Reuters, 02/04/2018)
Kim regime will be over if it launches nuclear attack: U.S. (Joongang Ilbo, 02/04/2018)
Moon, Trump agree to resolve North Korea's human rights abuses (Korea Times, 02/03/2018)
Nordpolitik 2.0 (Joongang Ilbo, 02/04/2018)
N. Korea denounces Trump's 'arrogant' address (Yonhap, 02/04/2018)

North Korea 'uses Berlin embassy to get missile parts' (BBC, 02/04/2018)
North Korea slams Trump's State of the Union address (Washington Post, 02/04/2018)
North Koreans have tasted freedom through the markets. Sanctions could put that at risk. (Washington Post, 02/04/2018)
Pence Intent to Counter North Korea's Olympic Charm Offensive (VOA, 02/04/2018)
Trump blesses Games, remains stern on North (Joongang Ilbo, 02/04/2018)
U.N. report: China, Russia not abiding by sanctions against N. Korea (UPI, 02/04/2018)
(News Focus) U.S. nuclear posture document sends stern warning to N. Korea: experts(Yonhap, 02/04/2018)
U.S. nuclear review reaffirms commitment to extended deterrence for allies: Seoul official (Yonhap, 02/04/2018)

In North Korea:

- Three female N. Korean defectors recount their lives in NK during the freezing winter. (Casey Lartigue Jr, Korea Times)
- DPRK state media reported on Feb 4 that KJU and his wife Ri Sol-ju rode around Pyongyang on a newly manufactured trolley bus. (NK Leadership Watch)
- DPRK Foreign Minister Ri Yong-ho sent a letter to UN Secretary General Antonio Guterres condemning the US for coming in between peaceful Korean reconciliation talks. (NK Leadership Watch)

In South Korea:

- Opinions on NK differ between older and younger S.Koreans in Gangneung, one of the two cities hosting the Olympic Games. Some older S. Koreans hold more hostile views while younger S. Koreans are more welcoming. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- More than 150,000 people applied for free tickets to the N. Korean Samjiyon Orchestra concert this week in Seoul and Gangneung. A massive turnout after the Unification Ministry announced it would select 530 audience members from the public through an online lottery system, offering two tickets to each winner. (Lee Sung-eun, Joongang Ilbo)
- They may all come from different backgrounds, but players from SK and NK are coming together nicely on their joint Olympic women's hockey team, its captain said Sun. (Yonhap)
- S. Korean fans chanting, "We are one" and wearing shirts with the unification flag emblazoned on the front packed into a freezing ice hockey arena on Sun to cheer on the joint Korean women's team in a tune-up for this month's Olympics. (Jin Hyun-joo, Reuters)
- Four North Koreans will play in the first game for the joint women's hockey team on Sunday. (Yonhap)
- Even though they didn't really make their presence felt on the joint Korean women's hockey team on Sun, head coach Sarah Murray said she was still proud of her N. Korean players. (Yonhap)
- The joint Korean women's hockey team fell to Sweden 3-1 in its only tuneup game before the Olympics on Sun. (Yonhap)

- Wearing a powder-blue logo of a map symbolizing peace between the Koreas, the most talked-about team at this year's Olympics finally saw game action Sun in a friendly match that drew thousands of spectators in a country that never previously showed much passion for ice hockey. (Kim Tong-hyung, AP)
- NK's art troupe and cheering squad for the upcoming Olympics will travel to SK this week, with details about its high-level delegation yet to be confirmed, officials here said Sun. (Yonhap)
- NK dismissed SK's "improper remarks" over the country's plans to hold a military parade before the Olympics begin this week, N. Korean state newspaper Rodong Sinmun reported. (Sophie Jeong, Nicole Chavez, CNN)
- NK's ceremonial leader Kim Yong-nam will visit SK this week as the head of the country's high-level delegation for the Olympics, Seoul's Unification Ministry said on Sun. (Reuters)
- N. Korean media has warned its relations with the South could suffer, heavily criticizing Seoul's position on denuclearizing the Korean peninsula. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- When it comes to competing in the women's hockey tournament at the upcoming Olympics, two hearts will always be better than one, N. Korean members of a historic joint Korean team said on Sun. (Yonhap)
- Chang Ung, NK's representative to the International Olympic Committee, expressed his wish for the success of the Olympics as he arrived in SK on Sun, five days before the games' opening. (Yonhap)
- NK's ceremonial leader Kim Yong-nam will travel to SK this week as the head of NK's high-level delegation for the Olympics, Seoul officials said Sun. (Yonhap)
- The historic joint Korean women's hockey team made its much-anticipated debut against Sweden on Sun, with 18 S. Koreans joined by four N. Koreans in their only tuneup game before the PyeongChang Winter Olympics. None of those four players made much of an impact, as Sweden prevailed 3-1. (Yonhap)
- An anonymous S.Korean presidential aide expressed hope Sun that NK will send its "highest-level" officials to lead its delegation at the upcoming Olympics. (Yonhap)
- Supporters and Conservative opponents of the joint Korean women's ice hockey team both assembled outside the venue for the squad's first game on Sun. (Yonhap)
- SK's figure skating duo of Kim Kyu-eun and Kam Kang-chan may share the ice with their N. Korean counterparts Ryom Tae-ok and Kim Ju-sik in an official practice session for the upcoming 2018 Olympic Games, officials said Sun. (Kim Bo-ram,Yonhap)

International:

- With five days left before the opening of the Olympics, the Korean Peninsula is heading to a watershed moment. What kind of diplomacy will Moon play out in his meetings with leaders of 14 nations, including the US, China and Japan, to address the unstoppable nuclear threats from NK? (Joongang Ilbo)
- China on Sun criticized a US government report that cast Beijing as a potential nuclear adversary and called on Washington to reduce its own much larger arsenal and join in promoting regional stability. (Joe McDonald, AP)
- NK violated UN sanctions to earn nearly $200 million in 2017 from banned commodity exports, according to a confidential report by independent U.N. monitors, which also accused Pyongyang of supplying weapons to Syria and Myanmar. (Michelle Nichols, Reuters)

- In the latest Nuclear Posture Review, the US vowed to bring an end to NK's regime if it launches a nuclear attack on the US or its allies. (Yonhap)
- Moon and Trump agreed to work together to address human rights abuses in NK during a phone conversation on Fri, according to the White House. (Park Si-soo, Korea Times)
- Moon has taken significant flak both in the US and SK for his effort to reopen the long-closed North-South channel.While a majority still view his administration favorably, his poll numbers have fallen. We should allow the president's effort to play out before reaching premature conclusions. (Stephan Haggard, Joongang Ilbo)
- NK has denounced Trump's recent State of the Union speech as the "height of arrogance" and "arbitrariness," its state media said Sun. (Yonhap)
- NK has been acquiring technology for its nuclear and weapons programs through its Berlin embassy, Germany's head of intelligence says. (BBC)
- NK on Sun slammed Trump's State of the Union address and said its nuclear capabilities would "deter Trump and his lackeys from showing off on the Korean peninsula." (AP)
- International sanctions will set back the development of markets and make it harder for money to flow within the private economy and as markets contract it will also make it harder for isolated N. Koreans to get information from the outside world. (Anna Fifield, Washington Post)
- US VP Mike Pence embarks on a trip this week to Northeast Asia meant to enhance his profile and to help counter NK's charm offensive at the Winter Olympics. (Steve Herman, VOA)
- In a phone conversation with Trump one week before the Olympics on Fri, Moon emphasized hope for improved relations with NK, while Trump indicated more caution. (Sarah Kim, Joongang Ilbo)
- China, Russia, Malaysia and other nations are failing to curb sanctioned financial dealings and trade conducted by NK in their countries, according to a UN report. (Allen Cone, UPI)
- The latest US nuclear posture document has sent a clear warning to NK that Washington could opt for preventive strike options with more easily usable nuclear weapons, experts said Sun. (Yonhap)
- SK sees the US' latest review of its nuclear posture as a reaffirmation of its commitment to providing extended nuclear deterrence for its allies in the face of increasing threats from NK, a foreign ministry official said Sun. (Yonhap)

Prepared by Emma Stubblefield, HRNK Research Intern

——————————————————

Monday, February 5, 2018

NK appoints top defense official to lead its military's General Political Bureau; NK sends Winter Olympics propaganda fliers to

Seoul: website; Pence to stop North Korea 'hijacking' Winter Olympics, aide says

In North Korea:
(2nd LD) N. Korea appoints top defense official to lead its military's General Political Bureau (Yonhap, 02/05/2018)
(Olympics) North Korean IOC member wishes country's Olympians to 'do their best' (Yonhap, 02/05/2018)
Authorities focus on Kangwon Province in push to prevent defections by sea (DailyNK, 02/05/2018)
Cabinet Plenary Meeting 2018 (NK Leadership Watch, 02/05/2018)
Delegation from North to be led by its head of state (Joongang Daily, 02/06/2018)
Kim Jong-un's luxury ski resort appears unaffected by UN sanctions (Korea Times, 02/04/2018)
N. Korea steps up events for Armed Forces Day (Korea Times, 02/04/2018)
N. Korean military tightens defection surveillance (Korea Times, 02/04/2018)
North Korea's Would-Be Olympics: A Tale of a Cold War Boondoggle (NY Times, 02/04/2018)
North Korean market update (NK Econ Watch, 02/05/2018)
Swine flu sweeps N. Korea (Korea Times, 02/04/2018)
Tenants bear up-front costs for apartment construction in Pyongyang (Korea Times, 02/04/2018)
Veteran diplomat Kim Yong-nam ceremonial N.K. leader (Yonhap, 02/05/2018)

In South Korea:
Ex-U.S. army base Camp Page begins new South Korea chapter (UPI, 02/05/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
(3rd LD) N.K. offers to send art troupe to S. Korea by ferry this week (Yonhap, 02/05/2018)
(LEAD) Cheong Wa Dae welcomes planned visit by N. Korea's titular head of state (Yonhap, 02/05/2018)
(LEAD) Moon considering meeting one-on-one with N. Korea's ceremonial leader: Cheong Wa Dae (Yonhap, 02/05/2018)
[Olympics] N. Korea may send high-level delegation (Korea Times, 02/04/2018)
Chang Ung hopes for a successful Games (Joongang Daily, 02/06/2018)
Hopes for talks grow with North Korea's ceremonial leader to visit South Korea for Olympics (Reuters, 02/04/2018)
Linguistic Divide Poses Problem to Korea Olympic Hockey Team (VOA, 02/05/2018)
N. Korean official unlikely to oversee Olympic breakthrough (Washington Post, 02/05/2018)
'NK hacked cryptocurrency trading system in South' (Korea Times, 02/05/2018)
North Korea head of state Kim Yong-nam to visit South for first time (Telegraph, 02/05/2018)
North Korea sends Winter Olympics propaganda fliers to Seoul: website (Reuters, 02/05/2018)
North Korea to send head of state to Seoul for first time in years (The Guardian, 02/04/2018)
North Korea to send highest level official ever to South Korea (BBC, 02/05/2018)
North Korean art troupe to perform at Olympics under sanctions exemption: South Korea (Reuters, 02/04/2018)
North Korean technicians cross into South for Olympics prep (Washington Post, 02/05/2018)
North Korean Troupe Is Cleared to Enter South's Waters Before Games (NY Times, 02/05/2018)
Olympics: Bach hails North, South Korea for harnessing Olympic spirit (Reuters, 02/05/2018)
PyeongChang Olympics Puts Spotlight on North Korea (VOA, 02/05/2018)

S. Korea seeks to arrange high-level talks with with N. Korean delegates: ministry (Yonhap, 02/05/2018)
South Korea says North stole cryptocurrency worth billions of won last year (Reuters, 02/05/2018)
Top North Korean Official Will Visit South Korea During Olympics (NY Times, 02/04/2018)
Unified Korean women's ice hockey team play debut match (02/04/2018)

International:
(3rd LD) S. Korean, U.S. nuke envoys discuss ways to resume denuclearization talks (Yonhap, 02/05/2018)
(News Focus) Will PyeongChang Olympics pave way for N.K.-U.S. talks? (Yonhap, 02/05/2018)
[Olympics] Olympics to set stage for North Korea-US talks: experts (Korea Times, 02/05/2018)
A hole in sanctions (Joongang Daily, 02/06/2018)
Axios: Pence will try to disrupt normalization of North Korea at the Olympics (CNN, 02/05/2018)
China says to ban export of more dual-use goods to North Korea (Reuters, 02/05/2018)
Dad of North Korea detainee to be guest of Pence at Olympics (Washington Post, 02/05/2018)
Democratic senators: Trump lacks 'legal authority' for preemptive, 'bloody nose' strike on North Korea (Washington Post, 02/05/2018)
Father of Otto Warmbier will attend Olympic Opening Ceremony with Pence (CNN, 02/04/2018)
Free from int'l sanctions, N. Korean ferry needs nod from Seoul to sail to South: officials (Yonhap, 02/05/2018)
Mike Pence to stop North Korea 'hijacking' Winter Olympics, aide says (The Guardian, 02/4/2018)
North Korea criticises Trump's 'sinister' State of the Union address (The Guardian, 02/04/2018)
North Korea is using its Berlin embassy to acquire nuclear tech, intel chief says (CNN, 02/05/2018)
North Korea to Send High-level Delegation to Winter Olympics in South Korea (VOA, 02/04/2018)
Sanctioned NK ferry to bring troupe to South (Korea Times, 02/05/2018)
Pence leaves for Asia, focused on increasing pressure on North Korea (Washington Post, 02/05/2018)
Pence wants to 'control the message' at PyeongChang (Joongang Daily, 02/06/2018)
S. Korean, U.S. nuke envoys to meet to discuss N.K. (Yonhap, 02/05/2018)
Taiwan calls on its firms not to break North Korea sanctions (Reuters, 02/05/2018)
The dangers of a 'bloody nose' for North Korea (Washington Post, 02/04/2018)
Trump's rhetoric threatens peace-making in Korean peninsula (The Guardian, 02/05/2018)
US and North Korea's political games threaten to overshadow the Olympics (CNN, 02/05/2018)

In North Korea:

- NK has appointed a senior defense official to lead the military's powerful General Political Bureau after dismissing its former head following an inspection, Seoul's spy agency said Mon. (Yonhap)
- Chang Ung, the lone N.Korean member of the International Olympics Committee (IOC), said Mon. he wishes athletes from his country to "do their best" at the PyeongChang Winter Olympics. (Chang Dong-woo, Yonhap)
- As NK continues its charm offensive coinciding with the Pyeongchang Olympics, sources inside the country are reporting that the authorities have initiated yet another crackdown on defections. The dramatic escape of a N.Korean soldier through the DMZ late last year, caught on camera and broadcast around the world, served as a wake-up call to the authorities for their inability to prevent defections. (Lee Sang Yong, DailyNK)

- An expanded plenary meeting of the DPRK Cabinet was held on or around January 19, 2018. The agenda item was "measures to carry out the programmatic tasks set forth by respected and beloved supreme leader Comrade KJU in his 2018 New Year's Address" while also emphasizing "priority issues and putting forth methodological issues." (NK Leadership Watch)
- NK has chosen Kim Yong-nam—president of the Presidium of the Supreme People's Assembly, NK's rubber-stamp legislature—to lead a high-level delegation to the PyeongChang Winter Games this week, a sign that the regime is emphasizing pomp and ceremony at the international gathering instead of sending a nitty-gritty negotiator. (Lee Sung-eun, Jeong Yong-soo, Joongang Daily)
- The Masikryong Ski Resort near NK's east coast city of Wonsan in (North) Gangwon Province appears unaffected by UN Security Council (UNSC) sanctions on the repressive state. (Yi Whan-woo, Joint Press Corps, Korea Times)
- NK appears to be trying to enliven the mood for the 70th anniversary of its armed forces, Feb. 8, the day before the opening of the PyeongChang Winter Olympics. (Yi Whan-woo, Korea Times)
- NK is tightening surveillance of its soldiers to prevent them from fleeing to SK in the lead-up to the PyeongChang Winter Olympics, according to sources familiar with Pyongyang (Yi Whan-woo, Korea Times)
- After SK hosted the Summer Olympics in 1988, NK, which has been "interlocked with an invisible rope with one side's victory meaning the other's failure," tried to do SK one better in 1989. It spent $4 billion on the World Festival of Youth and Students, a kind of socialist quasi-Olympics and cultural extravaganza, which—according to analysts and N.Korean defectors—played a part in the economic catastrophe that engulfed the country. (Choe Sang-hun, NY Times)
- This post is a quick, English version of the update of information provided to Radio Free Asia (in Korean) regarding the changes in formal N.Korean markets under the KJU regime. These changes include two-dozen newly established markets, as well as the relocation, renovations, and expansions of hundreds more. (NK Econ Watch)
- Over 110,000 N.Koreans are infected with a potentially deadly strain of flu, raising concerns that it my have spread to SK following cross-border visits of the delegations in preparation for the PyeongChang Olympics that start this week. (Yi Whan-woo, Korea Times)
- State-run real estate developers in Pyongyang are asking prospective tenants to bear a part of the costs of a new apartment building even before construction begins, according to sources familiar with the matter. (Yi Whan-woo, Korea Times)
- NK's nominal head of state Kim Yong-nam is an elite veteran diplomat who has represented the North according to its constitution for two decades as the head of the parliament's presidium. (Yonhap)

In South Korea:

- A US military base that once sat 60 miles from the NK border is one step closer to being converted into an ambitious park, and for one of its S.Korean planners, the transformation holds personal significance. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- NK has proposed sending its art troupe to SK on a ferry this week for performances to mark the PyeongChang Winter Olympics, Seoul officials said Mon.The S.Korean government also said that it will consider exempting their trip from SK's 2010 sanctions that ban N.Korean ships from making a port call in SK. (Yonhap)
- SK's presidential office Cheong Wa Dae on Mon. welcomed NK's plan to send its nominal head of state as leader of a high-level delegation to the PyeongChang Winter Olympic Games, saying it shows the communist state's sincere efforts to improve inter-Korean ties. (Yonhap)
- Moon is considering holding a one-on-one meeting with NK's ceremonial head of state set to visit SK this week to attend the PyeongChang Winter Olympics, officials said Mon. (Yonhap)
- A Cheong Wa Dae official expressed hope, Sun., that NK will send its "highest-level" officials to lead its delegation at the PyeongChang Winter Olympics. (Yi Whan-woo, Korea Times)
- NK's International Olympic Committee (IOC) member Chang Ung landed in SK Sun. to attend an IOC meeting later this week in Pyeongchang County, Gangwon, saying he hoped for a successful Winter Games. (Lee Sung-eun, Joongang Daily)
- NK's ceremonial leader will make an unprecedented visit to SK this week, officials said on Mon., as hopes grow for high-level inter-Korean talks during the Winter Olympics that begin in four days. (Hyonhee Shin, Reuters)
- NK and SK face a widening linguistic divide after 70 years of division, and that is a challenge for the rivals' first-ever joint Olympic team as it prepares for the Pyeongchang Winter Games. (AP)
- NK's head of state is coming to archrival SK, but it's the wrong one—at least if the goal is peace on the volatile Korean Peninsula. (Foster Klug, AP)
- NK has hacked one of the online virtual currency trading systems in SK, the National Intelligence Service (NIS) claimed Mon., without revealing the name of the system. Through the cyberattack, tens of billions of won were stolen and transferred to NK, the spy agency told the National Assembly Intelligence committee. (Choi Ha-young, Korea Times)
- NK is to send its highest ranking official ever to the SK, amid an ongoing thaw in relations over the Winter Olympic Games. (Nicola Smith, Danielle Demetriou, Telegraph)
- Propaganda leaflets from NK marking the start of the 2018 Winter Olympics have been found in mountains in the S.Korean capital, Seoul, a NK specialist news website reported on Mon. (Reuters Staff, Reuters)
- NK will send its nominal head of state and other senior officials to SK this week. Kim Yong-nam, the head of the NK's parliament, will be the highest-level N.Korean official to visit SK since the North sent then-No. 2 Hwang Pyong So at the close of the 2014 Asian Games in Incheon, SK. (Reuters)
- NK confirmed Kim Yong-nam's attendance at the opening ceremony, set for Fri. Although this signals a thaw in relations between the Koreas, experts say it is unlikely to have any impact on the North's nuclear ambitions. (BBC)
- A N.Korean art troupe will likely travel by ship to stage a performance in SK for this week's Winter Olympics under an exemption from bilateral sanctions, SK's Unification Ministry said on Mon.. (Reuters Staff, Reuters)
- A 23-member advance team of N.Koreans arrived in SK on Mon. to prepare for the North's participation in the Pyeongchang Olympics, S.Korean officials said. (AP)

- A 140-member arts troupe from NK plans to travel to SK this week by ferry, forcing the SK to temporarily lift its ban on all N.Korean ships entering its waters, officials said on Mon. (Choe Sang-hun, NY Times)
- NK and SK will send a "powerful message of peace" to the world when they march together under one flag at the opening ceremony of the Pyeongchang Winter Games, International Olympic Committee (IOC) President Thomas Bach said on Mon. (Peter Rutherford, Reuters)
- The announcement on Mon. that one of the highest-ranking officials in NK will attend the PyeongChang Olympics in SK is raising expectations for a diplomatic breakthrough at the games. (Brian Padden, VOA)
- SK will strive to arrange high-level inter-Korean talks during a N.Korean government delegation's visit later this week to attend the Olympic opening ceremony, the Unification Ministry said Mon. (Yonhap)
- SK said on Mon. that NK last year stole cryptocurrency from SK worth billions of won and that it was still trying to hack into its exchanges. (Reuters Staff, Reuters)
- NK plans to send a high-level government delegation to SK to attend the opening ceremony of the Winter Olympics this week, S.Korean officials said on Sun. (Choe Sang-hun, NY Times)
- Wearing a blue logo of a map symbolising peace between NK and SK, the most talked-about team at the Winter Olympics was in action on Sunday in a friendly that drew thousands of spectators. (AP)

International:

- The top nuclear envoys of SK and the US discussed ways to channel the reconciliatory mood created by NK's participation in the upcoming Winter Olympics into resumption of talks aimed at "peacefully" resolving the nuclear stalemate, the foreign ministry said Mon. (Yonhap)
- NK's plan to send its titular head of state to SK for the upcoming Winter Olympics has drawn fresh attention to whether the sports event will set the stage for direct contact between Pyongyang and Washington. (Koh Byung-joon,Yonhap)
- There is a possibility that the PyeongChang Winter Olympics will set the stage for direct talks between the US and NK. (Lee Min-hyung, Korea Times)
- The Winter Games are a critical moment for NK as well. The recalcitrant regime faces two choices: whether to confront even-tougher international sanctions through more provocations after the Olympics or find a breakthrough in its tense relations with the US through dialogue. (Joongang Daily)
- Vice President Mike Pence will deride any notion of normalizing NK's relationships with the outside world while he leads the US delegation at the Winter Olympics in Pyeongchang, SK, this week, a Pence aide told Axios on Sun. (Maegan Vazquez, CNN)
- China released a further list of goods banned for export to NK on Mon., saying the items could be used to build weapons of mass destruction, amid a standoff between NK and the US over its weapons programs. (Reuters Staff, Reuters)
- The father of the US college student who died after being jailed in NK will visit SK this week to attend the opening ceremonies of the Olympics as a guest of Vice President Mike Pence. (AP)
- A group of Democratic senators is warning President Trump that he lacks the "legal authority" to carry out a preemptive strike on NK, amid questions over whether the White House is considering a risky "bloody nose" attack. (David Nakamura, Washington Post)

- The father of the late Otto Warmbier, an American student who was jailed in NK, will attend the Olympic opening ceremony in Pyeongchang, SK. (Aileen Graef, CNN)
- The 9,700-ton N.Korean ferry Mangyongbong-92 is set to carry a N.Korean art troupe across the inter-Korean border for the 2018 Winter Olympics in SK, having been cleared of questions over whether it would violate international sanctions. But it needs an exemption from S.Korean sanctions in order to enter a S.Korean port, while Seoul said it is ready to approve. (Yonhap)
- The US vice-president, Mike Pence, will stop NK "hijacking" the Winter Olympics, an aide said on Sun., by using his own presence at the Games to remind the world that "everything the N.Koreans do at the Olympics is a charade to cover up the fact that they are the most tyrannical and oppressive regime on the planet." (Martin Pengelly, The Guardian)
- NK has hit back at Donald Trump after he criticised the regime for its human rights abuses in his State of the Union address, with Pyongyang describing the speech as the "screams of Trump" who was "terrified" by its power. (Agence France-Presse, The Guardian)
- NK has been acquiring technology for its nuclear weapons program through its Berlin embassy, according to Germany's intelligence chief. (Susanna Capelouto, Sara Mazloumsaki, and Sheena McKenzie, CNN)
- NK's ceremonial head of state will lead a high-level Pyongyang delegation to the Winter Olympics in SK later this week, officials in Seoul said Sun. (Ken Bredemeier, VOA)
- NK informed SK that it could send a large-scale artistic troupe to the South for performances ahead of the PyeongChang Olympics via the sanctioned ferry Mangyongbong-92, Tues. (Kim Bo-eun, Korea Times)
- Vice President Pence departs Mon. for a five-day trip to Japan and SK, a visit to Asia intended to focus almost entirely on rallying allies to ratchet up their pressure on KJU's repressive regime, as well as directly pressing NK to stop its nuclear ambitions. (Ashley Parker, Washington Post)
- US Vice President Mike Pence is expected to use his presence at the PyeongChang Winter Games to prevent NK from "hijacking" the message of the Olympics, his aide was reported as saying on Sun. (Sarah Kim, Joongang Daily)
- Top nuclear envoys of SK and the US will meet in Seoul on Mon. to discuss NK's nuclear and missile problems, the S.Korean foreign ministry said. (Yonhap)
- Taiwan on Mon. called on its companies not to carry out any trade with NK in violation of UN sanctions and said it was keeping a close watch, after a report found a network of ships supplying petroleum products based in Taiwan. (Reuters Staff, Reuters)
- The argument for preemptive action is that the US cannot suppose that it can deter the KJU regime from using its weapons, because it is irrational. It follows that allowing the dictator to acquire the capacity to strike the homeland is intolerable and the infliction of a "bloody nose" would convince him that the US is serious about preventing it. But, Mr. Cha asks, "if we believe that Kim is undeterrable without such a strike, how can we also believe that a strike will deter him from responding in kind?" (Editorial Board, Washington Post)
- Despite the painstaking efforts of Moon to use this week's opening of the Winter Olympics to build bridges with NK, Donald Trump remains locked on a dangerous collision course with what he calls KJU's "depraved regime." (Simon Tisdall, The Guardian)
- SK may be touting the Winter Games as the "Peace Olympics," but that hasn't stopped the US and NK seeking to score political points against each other. (James Griffiths, CNN)

Prepared by Jinny Ahn, HRNK Research Intern

———————————————

Tuesday, February 6, 2018

UN Committee Blocks Qualified American NGOs, Protects Iran and North Korea Human Rights Abuses; (4th LD) N.K. art troupe arrives in S. Korea for Olympic celebrations

Top News:
Press Release: UN Committee Blocks Qualified American NGOs, Protects Iran and North Korea Human Rights Abuses (US Mission to the UN, 02/05/2018)

In North Korea:
2.6-magnitude quake detected in N. Korea in aftermath of September nuke test (Yonhap, 02/06/2018)
Advance payments in the Pyongyang housing market (NK Econ Watch, 02/05/2018)
More Troops Practice for Upcoming Military Parade (38 North, 02/05/2018)
North Korea launches 'exclusive' new beer (BBC, 02/06/2018)
North Koreans Venting Over Forced 'Donations' For National Projects (RFA, 02/05/2018)
North nixes plan to invite foreign press to military parade (Joongang Ilbo, 02/06/2018)
Real estate companies in Pyongyang use advance payments to fund construction (Daily NK, 02/06/2018)
Report: Kim Jong Un ordering officials to attract foreign investment (UPI, 02/06/2018)
Renewed grievances over forced labor for Masik Pass Ski Resort construction (Daily NK, 02/06/2018)

In South Korea:
Main opposition party rebukes gov't for allowing N.K. ferry entry (Yonhap, 02/05/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
(Yonhap Feature) Joint Korean hockey team coming together before PyeongChang Olympics(Yonhap, 02/05/2018)
(LEAD) N.K.'s 280-member delegation to travel to S. Korea this week ahead of Olympics (Yonhap, 02/06/2018)
(4th LD) N.K. art troupe arrives in S. Korea for Olympic celebrations (Yonhap, 02/06/2018)
N. Korea dominates pre-Olympic media coverage at Pyeongchang (Washington Post, 02/06/2018)
North Korean orchestra steals the limelight as fans shun Winter Olympics (Telegraph, 02/06/2018)
North stealing cryptocurrency via hacks: NIS (Joongang Ilbo, 02/06/2018)
(Olympics) Competition for ice time in full swing on joint Korean hockey team (Yonhap, 02/05/2018)
(Olympics) Head of N. Korean delegation hails good weather for PyeongChang (Yonhap, 02/06/2018)
(Olympics) N. Korean participation in PyeongChang 2018 to lay foundation for improving inter-Korean relations: top organizer (Yonhap, 02/05/2018)
(2nd LD) (Olympics) Regulars return to practice for joint Korean hockey team (Yonhap, 02/06/2018)

(Olympics) South, North Korean figure skating pair teams hold practice session together (Yonhap, 02/05/2018)
(Olympics) Two N.K. taekwondo athletes part of North's women's hockey staff (Yonhap, 02/06/2018)
(Olympics) Uncertainty hangs over joint Korean hockey team as Olympic roster takes shape(Yonhap, 02/06/2018)
(Olympics) Won Yun-jong to bear Korean Unification Flag during PyeongChang opener (Yonhap, 02/06/2018)
Olympic truce is not everything (Joongang Ilbo, 02/06/2018)
Orchestral maneuvers: South Korean protesters greet North Korean Olympics ferry (Reuters, 02/06/2018)
Pyongyang's orchestra arrives on ferry (Joongang Ilbo, 02/06/2018)
Satellite images reveal new North Korean bases for fleet of assault hovercraft (Telegraph, 02/06/2018)
She killed 115 people before the last Korean Olympics. Now she wonders: 'Can my sins be pardoned?' (Washington Post, 02/06/2018)
The Olympic Moment When South Korea Left the North Behind (NYT, 02/06/2018)

International:
Alpine skiing: Ligety pleased to see North Koreans compete in Pyeongchang (Reuters, 02/06/2018)
Between Kim and hard-line Trump (Joongang Ilbo, 02/06/2018)
China says mid-course missile interceptor test successful (Washington Post, 02/06/2018)
China says senior foreign policy adviser to meet Tillerson (Washington Post, 02/06/2018)
Danger of a 'bloody nose' (Joongang Ilbo, 02/06/2018)
(LEAD) Leaders of S. Korea, Estonia agree to boost ties, cooperation (Yonhap, 02/06/2018)
(LEAD) Moon says PyeongChang Olympics will mark start of building peace in Asia (Yonhap, 02/05/2018)
North Korea 'months away' from ability to hit U.S. with nuclear weapon: U.S. envoy (Reuters, 02/06/2018)
N. Korea on track to complete new hovercraft base: U.S. expert (Yonhap, 02/05/2018)
North Korea says U.S. considering limited pre-emptive strike (Reuters, 02/06/2018)
N. Korea warns South, U.S. against resumption of joint military drill (Yonhap, 02/06/2018)
Pence heads to Olympics leaving open chance of talks with North Korea officials (Reuters, 02/05/2018)
Pence leaves for Asia with stern message on North Korea (Reuters, 02/05/2018)
Pence won't rule out NKorea meeting, will 'see what happens' (Washington Post, 02/06/2018)
South Korean intelligence says N. Korean hackers possibly behind Coincheck heist - sources(Reuters, 02/06/2018)
The Latest: Pence in Japan to boost pressure on North Korea (Washington Post, 02/06/2018)
Tillerson says 'we'll see what happens' on potential North Korea meeting (Reuters, 02/05/2018)
U.S. senators ask Trump to explain Cha's withdrawal (Yonhap, 02/05/2018)
U.S. Vice President Pence leaves for PyeongChang Olympics (Yonhap, 02/05/2018)
USS Pueblo: Crew of US Navy ship seized by North Korea sues Pyongyang (CNN, 02/06/2018)
Washington sends message to North Korea as Pence heads to Winter Olympics (Telegraph, 02/06/2018)

Top News:

- The UN Committee on Non-Governmental Organizations (NGOs) voted against granting consultative status to HRNK despite having a long track record of success and having amply demonstrated that they would add value to the UN system. US Ambassador Nikki Haley and the US stand behind HRNK however, and the decision could be reversed by a vote in the entire UN Economic and Social Council in April 2018. (US Mission to the UN)

In North Korea:

- A 2.6-magnitude earthquake shook NK's northern area on Tues in the aftermath of the communist country's latest nuclear test, in Sept last year, the S. Korean weather agency said. (Yonhap)
- Daily NK reports an interesting trend on the Pyongyang real estate market of construction companies selling apartment units before construction is finished, requiring what sounds like a regular deposit. (Benjamin Katzeff Silberstein, NK Econ Watch)
- A new Planet image of NK's Mirim Parade Training Facility shows expanded preparations for the military parade expected to be held on Feb 8 to celebrate the foundation of the KPA. (38 North)
- NK has launched a new beer made using an "exclusive" new brewing technique. (BBC)
- Residents of two cities in NK's North Hamgyong province are grumbling over a government directive requiring them to provide funds and supplies to aid the construction of the latest historic site to memorialize the country's founder Kim Il-sung. (RFA)
- NK aborted plans to invite foreign journalists and envoys to a military parade that is intended to highlight the 70th anniversary of its army founding day this Thurs, saying it will celebrate the event on its own. (Yeh Young-june, Lee Sung-eun, Joongang Ilbo)
- Real estate companies in Pyongyang are pushing ahead with construction projects in the new year after receiving permission from the N.Korean authorities. These companies are reportedly securing construction funds by demanding upfront payments for spaces in the buildings. (Seol Song-ah, Daily NK)
- KJU may be strapped for cash and could be ordering his subordinates to seek out investors, using the momentum on the peninsula that is building before the Winter Games. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- Joint ski training events held at NK's Masik Pass ski resort this week have received coverage by the international press. According to inside sources there have been complaints about the forced labor mobilization that soldiers were subjected to by the regime to construct the ski facilities. (Kang Mi-jin, Daily NK)

In South Korea:

- The main opposition Liberty Korea Party (LKP) on Tues decried the government's decision to allow the entry of a N. Korean ferry carrying an art troupe, warning it could weaken Seoul's sanctions for Pyongyang's past provocations. (Yonhap)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- It's difficult to tell how well the joint team, first of its kind, hastily assembled only two weeks ago, will perform at the Olympics. But at the very least, its 35 players have shown signs of coming together in time for the games. (Yoo Jee-ho, Yonhap)
- A 280-member N. Korean delegation including cheerleaders and taekwondo demonstrators will travel to SK this week ahead of the Olympics. (Yonhap)
  NK's art troupe arrived in SK by ferry Tues to perform in celebration of the Olympics as Seoul temporarily lifted its ban on N. Korean ships' travel. (Yonhap)
- NK is again stealing the show in pre-Olympic media coverage, although none of its 22 athletes is expected to win a medal at the Winter Games. (Kim Hyung-jin, AP)
- While there has been a rush of enthusiasm for the new star attraction of the Olympics, the N. Korean Orchestra, it has not been matched for actual sports events at the Games, where despondent officials for months have urged the public to boost sluggish ticket sales. (Nicola Smith, Telegraph)
- Suh Hoon, director of the National Intelligence Service (NIS) blamed Pyongyang for hacking attacks on local cryptocurrency exchanges that stole tens of billions of won. (Kim Min-seok, Sarah Kim, Joongang Ilbo)
- 35 players (23 from SK, 12 from NK) on the joint hockey team are competing for 22 spots. And under the IOC's terms, head coach Sarah Murray must use at least three N. Koreans in each game at the Olympics. (Yoo Jee-ho, Yonhap)
- The head of the N. Korean delegation to the Olympics said Tues that the cold but sunny weather is likely to support the South as it hosts the world's biggest winter sporting event. (Kim Boram, Yonhap)
- NK's participation in the 2018 Olympics will "lay the foundation for improving inter-Korean relations," Lee Hee-beom, head of the PyeongChang Organizing Committee for the 2018 Olympic & Paralympic Games said Tues. (Yoo Jee-ho, Yonhap).
- Regular members of the Korean women's hockey team returned to practice Tues, with the squad's first game at the Olympics only four days away. (Yoo Jee-ho, Yonhap)
- The figure skating pair teams of the two Koreas -- Kim Kyu-eun and Kam Kang-chan from the South and Ryom Tae-ok and Kim Ju-sik from the North -- had their first joint practice session in a "good atmosphere" on Mon ahead of the Olympics. (Kim Boram, Yonhap)
- Two members of NK's taekwondo squad that will perform in the South during the Olympics were found to have made their way across the border earlier than initially expected, as supporting members of the country's women's hockey team, officials said Tues. (Yonhap)
- The Olympic roster for the joint Korean women's hockey team appears to be taking shape, as a shroud of mystery came over the 35-deep squad on Tues. (Yoo Jee-ho, Yonhap)
- Olympic athletes of the two Koreas will march together behind a Korean Unification Flag carried by Won Yun-jong, a bobsledder from the South, at the opening ceremony of the Olympics this week, but his northern counterpart has yet to be chosen. (Yonhap)
- In a supposed Olympic Truce, NK continues to perform nuclear tests, stage military parades, use the Olympics for the propaganda of the North Korean regime and its leader Kim Jong-un. with performances of the North Korean art troupe and cheering squad. (Park Sung-soo, Joongang Ilbo)
- A N. Korean ferry arrived in SK on Tues carrying a 140-strong orchestra to perform during the Olympics, taking advantage of a rare sanctions exemption from Seoul 16 years after its previous visit but greeted by angry protests. (Shin Hyon-hee, Elaine Lies, Reuters)

- Members of NK's Samjiyon Orchestra arrived in SK Tues afternoon on a passenger ship after Seoul lifted unilateral sanctions banning any N. Korean vessels from sailing in domestic waters. (Lee Sung-eun, Jeong Yong-soo, Joongang Ilbo)
- NK is developing bases for its fleet of assault hovercraft that will be able to deploy elite special forces troops on S. Korean soil in half an hour. (Julian Ryall, Telegraph)
- The reminders of Kim Hyon-hui's role in the bombing of Korean Air Lines Flight 858 seem to be everywhere. SK is hosting the Winter Olympics this month, and even seeing the Olympic rings gives her flashbacks to 30 years ago, the other time this country was preparing to host the Games. (Chico Harlan, Washington Post)
- The Olympics in Seoul in 1988 ended up being a turning point. Over the past 30 years, the two Koreas have diverged sharply — economically, politically and culturally. (Mokoto Rich, Choe Sang-hun, Audrey Carlsen, Megan Specia, NYT)

International:

- US ski racer Ted Ligety is all in favor of N. Korean athletes competing at this month's Winter Games and says one of the key goals of the Olympics is to help countries overcome their differences through sport. (Peter Rutherford, Reuters)
- SK must strengthen its diplomacy following US's hard-line stance and NK's potential provocations. Seoul should make efforts to facilitate talks between the US and NK before the start of the Olympics on Fri. (Kim Hyun-wook, Joongang Ilbo)
- China said Tues it successfully tested a mid-course anti-missile defense system within its own territory, a move that comes amid tensions over NK's nuclear weapons program and China's own military developments in disputed regional waters. (Christopher Bodeen, AP)
- China's senior foreign policy adviser will meet with Secretary of State Rex Tillerson later this week, state media reported, amid concerns over NK and growing trade tensions. (AP)
- SK must give Trump the strong conviction that SK remains a reliable ally of the US. If Seoul continues to kowtow to Pyongyang with blind hopes for improving inter-Korean relations, like with the Olympics, it will only push the US closer to the "bloody nose" option. (Nam Jeong-ho, Joongang Ilbo)
- President Moon and Estonian President Kersti Kaljulaid agreed Tues to enhance the countries' bilateral cooperation in various areas, including cyber defense and fostering startup businesses, Seoul's presidential office Cheong Wa Dae said. (Yonhap)
- Moon reaffirmed his efforts Mon to make the upcoming Olympic Games a success, saying the event will mark the start of establishing peace in the region. (Yonhap)
- NK is only months away from obtaining the capability to hit US territory with a nuclear weapon and must be disarmed, a US envoy said on Tues, dismissing Pyonyang's diplomatic thaw with SK as a "charm offensive" that fooled no one. (Stephaine Nebehay, Reuters)
- NK appears to be on track to complete a new hovercraft base, with some of the key facilities being constructed next year, Joseph Bermudez, a NK defense analyst said Mon. (Yonhap)
- NK accused the US on Tues of seeking to aggravate the situation on the divided Korean peninsula by "deploying large nuclear assets" nearby and lay the ground for a possible pre-emptive strike against it. (Reuters)
- NK warned Tues that a resumption of SK and the US' annual joint military exercises will throw the Korean Peninsula back into a state of confrontation. (Yonhap)

- US VP Mike Pence arrived in Japan on Tues at the start of an Asia trip that takes him to the Winter Olympics in SK, saying he had no plans to talk to N. Korean officials but leaving open the chance of a meeting. (Tim Kelly, Shin Hyonhee, Reuters)
- Pence departed for a trip to Japan and SK on Mon with a stark message that countries should not be fooled by what the White House sees as a N. Korean attempt to overshadow the 2018 Olympics with propaganda. (Jeff Mason, Reuters)
- Pence said he has not ruled out the possibility of meeting with N. Korean officials at the upcoming Olympics in SK. (Zeke Miller, AP)
- SK's intelligence agency told lawmakers N. Korean hackers could have been behind the $530 million theft of virtual coins from a Japanese cryptocurrency exchange last month. (Reuters)
- Pence has arrived in Japan on the second stop of his Asia swing that he says will boost pressure on NK over its nuclear program during the Winter Olympic games in the South. (AP)
- US Secretary of State Rex Tillerson said on Mon "we'll have to see what happens" when asked whethere Pence or other officials would meet N. Koreans at the Winter Olympic Games next week. (Reuters)
- A group of 17 independent and democrat US senators asked Trump Mon to explain his withdrawal of Victor Cha from consideration for ambassador to SK, saying it is "shocking" that the post remains vacant. (Yonhap)
- US VP Pence left Mon to visit Japan and SK, where he will attend the Olympics and deliver a message of resolve against NKs nuclear weapons. (Yonhap)
- Survivors of the USS Pueblo are suing NK, 50 years after the American spy ship was seized off the Korean Peninsula and its crew held hostage and tortured for 11 months. (James Griffiths, CNN)
- Pence will arrive in SK for the opening of the Winter Olympic Games accompanied by Fred Warmbier, his presence is being seen as a signal to Pyongyang that Washington has no intention of easing the pressure on the KJU regime over its human rights record. (Telegraph)

Prepared by Emma Stubblefield, HRNK Research Intern

————————————————

Wednesday, February 7, 2018

Who is the heroic Ji Seong-ho of the SOTU moment of waving crutches?; NK Human Rights, 4 Years After the UN Inquiry; NK to send KJU's sister to S. Korea for Olympics; Pence says US to unveil 'toughest' sanctions on NK

Top News:

Who is the heroic Ji Seong-ho of the SOTU moment of waving crutches? Greg Scarlatoiu, executive director of the Committee for Human Rights in North Korea. @GordonGChang @TheDailyBeast (The John Batchelor Show, 01/31/2018)
North Korea Human Rights, 4 Years After the UN Inquiry (The Diplomat, 02/06/2018)

In North Korea:
Curious About the Lives of North Korea's Isolated Athletes? Here's a Glimpse (NY Times, 02/07/2018)
Foreign Ministry Institute for American Studies Issues Spox Statement on Nuclear Posture Review (NK Leadership Watch, 02/07/2018)
Keeping up with the Kims: North Korea's elusive first family (BBC, 02/07/2018)
Kim Jong-un's Influential Sister to Visit South Korea for Olympic Ceremony (NY Times, 02/07/2018)
Kim Jong-un's sister is coming for Olympics opening ceremony (Joongang Daily, 02/07/2018)
Kim Jong Un's younger sister, a gatekeeper on charm offensive (CNN, 02/07/2018)
Kim Yo Jong Sees Off Samjyo'n Orchestra as it Heads for ROK (NK Leadership Watch, 02/07/2018)
N. Korea university learns to cope under U.S. travel ban, sanctions (Yonhap, 02/07/2018)
North Korea Prohibits Travel Amid Military Anniversary Preparations (RFA, 02/06/2018)
North Korea's winter military parade full of cold, beatings, and exhaustion (Daily NK, 02/07/2018)
North Korean merchant says trade and smuggling slashed by sanctions (Daily NK, 02/07/2018)
Parade Drills Continue, No Signs of Missile Launchers Yet (38North, 02/06/2018)
Powerful sister likely to relay Kim Jong-un's views to Seoul (Yonhap, 02/07/2018)
KJU's sister, Kim Yo-jong, is set to become the first member of NK's ruling dynasty to set foot in SK this week. The Unification Ministry in Seoul announced Wed. that Kim Yo-jong will be part of a high-ranking government delegation attending the Winter Olympic opening ceremony slated for Fri. (Yonhap)
PPJ Visits Dental Hygiene Products Factory (NK Leadership Watch, 02/07/2018)
DPRK state media reported on Feb. 2 (Fri.) that Premier and State Affairs Commission Vice Chairman Pak Pong Ju inspected the Pyongyang Dental Hygiene Products Factory. (NK Leadership Watch)
Why North Korean hackers are targeting Bitcoin and other cryptocurrencies (Telegraph, 02/07/2018)

In South Korea:
(LEAD) Seoul welcomes planned visit of N. Korean leader's sister (Yonhap, 02/07/2018)
At the DMZ, Korean reunification seems an impossible task for these 'Peace Olympics' (Washington Post, 02/07/2018)
South Mulls Meeting N. Korean Request to Fuel Artists' Ship (NY Times, 02/06/2018)
To give or not Samsung phone to North Korean Olympians (Washington Post, 02/07/2018)
VIP seating plan a headache for Pyeongchang's opening party (Reuters, 02/07/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
(3rd LD) N.K. to send leader Kim Jong-un's sister to S. Korea for Olympics (Yonhap, 02/07/2018)
(4th LD) N.K. cheerleaders travel to S. Korea ahead of Olympics (Yonhap, 02/07/2018)
(LEAD) N.K. asks S. Korea to offer fuel for ship that carried art troupe (Yonhap, 02/07/2018)
(Olympics) Head of N. Korean delegation hails good weather for PyeongChang (Yonhap, 02/06/2018)
(Olympics) Officials of N. Korean taekwondo body arrive in Seoul (Yonhap, 02/07/2018)
A rare visitor (Joongang Daily, 02/07/2018)
Can Korea ever truly find peace? (Joongang Daily, 02/07/2018)
Commentary: Winter Olympics thaw won't warm young South Koreans to unity (Reuters, 02/06/2018)

Figure skaters rekindle friendship (Joongang Daily, 02/07/2018)
Inter-Korean Olympic Sports Exchange Could Undermine 'Spirit of Sanctions' (VOA, 02/06/2018)
Kim Jong Un to send his sister to South Korea as part of Olympic delegation (Washington Post, 02/07/2018)
Kim Jong-un's sister to attend the Winter Olympics: what Kim Yo-jong's visit means for Korean relations (Telegraph, 02/07/2018)
NK artistic troupe arrives in South (Korea Times, 02/07/2018)
North Korea cheer squad arrives for Olympic games in South (Washington Post, 02/07/2018)
North Korea leader's sister to come to PyeongChang Friday (Korea Times, 02/07/2018)
North Korea leader's sister to make landmark visit to South for Olympics (BBC, 02/07/2018)
Olympic peace unlikely to result in denuclearization, says head of unification research center (Daily NK, 02/07/2018)
Pyongyang slams S. Korean conservatives' rally against N.K. art troupe (Yonhap, 02/07/2018)
Sister of North Korean leader to come to South for Olympics (Washington Post, 02/07/2018)

International:
(LEAD) Pence: U.S. soon to unveil toughest-yet sanctions on N. Korea (Yonhap, 02/07/2018)
(Olympics) Pro-Pyongyang body's cheering squad not allowed to join N.K. cheerleaders: report (Yonhap, 02/07/2018)
A dangerous encounter (Joongang Daily, 02/07/2018)
A Korean Olympic Dilemma: Do Hockey Sticks Violate U.N. Sanctions? (NY Times, 02/07/2018)
Family of American Held in North Korea Speaks Out (VOA, 02/07/2018)
In Asia, Pence pressures North Korea ahead of Olympics (CNN, 02/07/2018)
Kim Jong Un's sister joins North Korean Winter Olympics delegation (CNN, 02/07/2018)
Kim Jong-un's sister to attend Winter Olympics opening ceremony (Guardian, 02/07/2018)
Mattis vows to bolster Guam defense against N.K. threat (Yonhap, 02/07/2018)
Mike Pence announces 'toughest sanctions ever' on North Korea and vows not to let Pyongyang hijack Winter Olympics (Telegraph, 02/07/2018)
Mongolia lawmakers to consider strict immigration cap (Reuters, 02/07/2018)
Mozambique Denies Doing Business with North Korea (VOA, 02/07/2018)
North Korea at the Winter Olympics: All you need to know (BBC, 02/07/2018)
North Korea leader's sister takes 'real power' south to Olympics (BBC, 02/07/2018)
North Korea to face harshest U.S. sanctions yet, Pence vows (Washington Post, 02/07/2018)
North Korean Defector Aims to 'Wake Up' Compatriots (VOA, 02/06/2018)
North Korean leader's sister to visit South Korea for winter Olympics (Reuters, 02/06/2018)
Pence, Abe stand strong against North (Joongang Daily, 02/07/2018)
Pence Announces US to Issue 'Toughest, Most Aggressive' North Korea Sanctions (VOA, 02/07/2018)
Pence promises 'toughest' economic sanctions ever for North Korea (UPI, 02/07/2018)
Pence says U.S. will work closely with allies to denuclearize N.K. (Yonhap, 02/07/2018)
Pence says US to unveil 'toughest' sanctions on N. Korea (Washington Post, 02/07/2018)
Pence's fateful choice at the Olympics (CNN, 02/07/2018)
Pope praises joint Korean Olympic teams, Vatican willing to back peace initiatives (Reuters, 02/07/2018)
Pope Francis praises Koreas' Olympic cooperation (Washington Post, 02/07/2018)
Russian, North Korean diplomats discussed Korean peninsula at a Moscow meeting: Ifx (Reuters, 02/07/2018)
S. Korea in consultations with U.S on planned trips by N.K. leader's sister (Yonhap, 02/07/2018)
Sanctions Test Limits of North Korea Olympic Participation (VOA, 02/06/2018)

Showdown in PyeongChang? Kim Jong Un's sister and VP Pence both head to Olympics.(Washington Post, 02/07/2018)
South Korea's ultimate goal: U.S., North Korea dialogue (UPI, 02/07/2018)
Trump, Britain's May discuss North Korea by phone: White House (Reuters, 02/07/2018)
U.S. vows new North Korea sanctions ahead of Olympics face-off (Reuters, 02/07/2018)
Unified Korea hockey team is not just window dressing: Bach (Reuters, 02/07/2018)
US to impose 'toughest ever' sanctions on North Korea, Pence warns (CNN, 02/07/2018)
Winter Olympics bring peace to Korean peninsula – for now (Guardian, 02/06/2018)

Top News:

- In this segment on The John Batchelor Show with John Batchelor and Gordon Chang of the Daily Beast, HRNK Executive Director Greg Scarlatoiu discusses Ji Seong-ho's appearance at the State of the Union, Ji's work in SK, and what it means for the people who are left behind in NK who cannot escape the country easily. (John Batchelor, Gordon Chang, Greg Scarlatoiu, The John Batchelor Show)
- In this new op-ed on The Diplomat following the launch of CSW's new report, Benedict Rogers concludes— after surveying more than 100 respondents that include recent N.Korean escapees, UN officials, and human rights experts—that in the past decade, the people of NK have changed, while the nature of the regime has not. NK has changed in three ways: the economy, human rights, and flow of information, all of which are interconnected. (Benedict Rogers, The Diplomat)

In North Korea:

- NK's state athletic program is obscured by propaganda and limited access. But cobbling together information from the country's state news media, analysts, defectors and athletes who have competed alongside N.Koreans has given the NY Times some insights. (Motoko Rich, NY Times)
- The American Studies Institute of the DPRK Ministry of Foreign Affairs issued a spokesman's statement on Feb. 6 (Tues.) on the US Nuclear Posture Review. (NK Leadership Watch)
- This piece from BBC explores the elusive nature of the Kim family. Members mentioned in this article include, KJU, his wife, and other members of his immediate family. (BBC)
- The only sister of the N.Korean leader, KJU, will visit SK this week, the first immediate member of the North's ruling family ever to set foot in the South, officials said on Wed. (Choe Sang-hun, NY Times)
- N.Korean leader KJU's younger sister, Kim Yo-jong, will visit SK on Fri. for the PyeongChang Winter Olympics opening ceremony. The younger Kim will be part of a 23-member high-level delegation led by Kim Yong-nam, president of the Presidium of the Supreme People's Assembly, NK's rubber-stamp legislature. (Lee Sung-eun, Joongang Daily)
- While she is often seen in the background of her powerful brother's public inspections, silently taking notes, holding bouquets of flowers from admirers or removing herself from the camera's gaze altogether, N.Korean leader KJU's younger sister Kim Yo Jong will not be able to avoid the flashing lights of the cameras as she to the Olympics in SK this month. (Sheena McKenzie, CNN)
- Musicians and singers in a delegation headed by Ministry of Culture Department Director Kwon Hak Byong were seen off on the train platform by officials including Kim Yo Jong, as well as other senior DPRK arts functionaries and officials as they headed to the 2018 Pyeongchang Winter Olympics on Feb. 5th. (NK Leadership Watch)

- NK's only private university has been learning to cope with a travel ban and sanctions imposed by the US but could face an uncertain future if the restrictions continue, its president said Tues. (Yonhap)
- NK's regime has issued a directive limiting long-distance travel for the entire month of Feb. to prevent any "incidents" that could overshadow an anniversary marking the foundation of the country's military, according to sources. (Jieun Kim, Leejin Jun, Joshua Lipes, RFA)
- Daily NK recently spoke with Kim Jong Ah, a defector with past experience participating in N.Korean military parades who commented that the Feb.8 parade will be the first time in NK's history that it has conducted a military parade in the winter. She imagines that the KPA soldiers are now at the Mirim Airfield practicing for the performance and suffering in the cold. (Jang Seul Gi, Daily NK)
- Daily NK recently spoke with a N.Korean merchant in the border city of Dandong to understand what sort of impact the international sanctions campaign is having on business. The interviewee noted that the damage to trade has been significant, and N.Koreans who are doing business in China are all worried about their future. (Kim Sung Il, Daily NK)
- In an analysis by Joseph S. Bermudez, Jr., satellite images from NK's Mirim Parade Training Facility on Feb. 6 indicates that NK has continued practice drills for an upcoming military parade expected to be held Feb. 8. (38North)
- DPRK state media reported on Feb. 2 (Fri.) that Premier and State Affairs Commission Vice Chairman Pak Pong Ju inspected the Pyongyang Dental Hygiene Products Factory. (NK Leadership Watch)
- Accusations from SK intelligence that N.Korean hackers may be guilty of the theft of $530 million of virtual coins from a Japanese cryptocurrency exchange last month have added to fears that Pyongyang may be shifting its formidable cyber prowess towards digital currency markets. (Nicola Smith, Telegraph)

In South Korea:

- SK's presidential office Cheong Wa Dae on Wed. welcomed the planned visit of N.Korean leader KJU's sister, noting it reflects the communist state's willingness to reduce tension on the Korean Peninsula. (Yonhap)
- The PyeongChang Winter Olympics will start Fri. in SK. These Olympics are being promoted by the organizers as the "Peace Olympics." However, this is an oversimplified sentiment; while the Olympics could well be an athletic, commercial and even cultural success, by themselves, they are not going to bring peace between NK and SK—countries that have been divided, initially against their will, since the end of World War II. (Barry Svrluga, Washington Post)
- SK said Wed. its reviewing whether to meet NK request to provide fuel to the ferry that transported more than 100 N.Korean artists for performances at the Pyeongchang Olympics. (AP)
- Olympic Partner Samsung Electronics has donated some 4,000 Galaxy Note 8 phones for athletes and officials at the International Olympic Committee so that they can document every moment and share their memories with the world. However, the SK is in limbo whether giving the device that costs at least $1,000 to N.Koreans would violate global sanctions designed to punish their government's nuclear ambitions. It's also unclear if the phones would work on networks inside NK. (Youkyung Lee, AP)

- SK wants to use the Games to re-engage with NK and encourage friendly encounters between Pyongyang and Washington, but is also anxious to avoid any awkward moments, which complicates the planning of VIP seating arrangements for the opening ceremony for the Pyeongchang Winter Olympic Games. (Soyoung Kim, James Pearson, Reuters)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- NK has offered to send the younger sister of leader KJU as a member of its high-level delegation for the PyeongChang Winter Olympics, Seoul officials said Wed. (Yonhap)
- Hundreds of N.Korean female cheerleaders arrived in SK on Wed. for a trip that will mark their first appearance in 13 years at an international sports event hosted by the SK. (Yonhap)
- NK has asked SK to supply fuel to its ship that carried NK's art troupe to SK a day earlier as the ferry will be used for its lodging, Seoul's unification ministry said Wed. (Yonhap)
- The head of the N.Korean delegation to the PyeongChang Olympics said Tues. that the cold but sunny weather is likely to support SK as it hosts the world's biggest winter sporting event. (Yonhap)
- High-ranking officials from Pyongyang's taekwondo governing body arrived in SK on Wed., as two Koreas prepare for joint taekwondo demonstrations to celebrate the PyeongChang Winter Olympics. (Yonhap)
- NK has decided to send its leader KJU's younger sister Kim Yo-jong to SK as a member of its high-level delegation to the PyeongChang Winter Olympics. According to security experts, the reasons for her selection may include KJU's view of the Olympics as the last opportunity to break the ice with the US, not to mention improving inter-Korean relations, especially as the Trump administration's NK policy is tougher than that of any past US administration. (Joongang Daily)
- If Washington affairs are unpredictable, the same can be said about the entirety of the Korean Peninsula. As such, there are various ideas and theories of what is the fundamental thinking and strategy of NK, although the wedge theory—supported by hostile undercurrents that still flow below the surface as concerned nations pursue long-term, competing geopolitical goals—is the most plausible. (Tom Coyner, Joongang Daily)
- The long-lasting effect of the Winter Olympics that start in SK on Feb. 9 may bring that message home to her compatriots in NK – and those on the S.Korean left. Pyongyang's charm offensives on SK will longer work; younger S.Koreans just don't care that much about unification. (Andray Abrahamian, Reuters)
- The N.Korean and S.Korean figure skating pairs promised each other they'd meet up at the 2018 PyeongChang Olympics. After a few months of uncertainty, they were finally reunited at Gangneung Ice Arena in Gangwon on Mon. (Park So-young, Joongang Daily)
- With just days before the opening ceremony for the 2018 PyeongChang Winter Olympics, some US experts are voicing concern that the highly publicized inter-Korean sports exchanges could undermine international sanctions intended to tighten the flow of cash into NK and pressure it to renounce its nuclear weapons and missiles programs. (Jiha Ham, VOA)
- SK dream of making the Winter Olympics the "peace games" began taking shape Wed., with bus loads of N.Koreans arriving and an announcement that KJU's sister would follow soon. (Anna Fifield, Washington Post)

- Kim Yo-jong will the first member of NK's ruling family to visit SK since the end of the 1950-53 Korean War. Analysts say that her inclusion in the Olympics delegation shows NK's ambition to use the Olympics to break out from diplomatic isolation by improving relations with SK, which could then be used as a bride for approaching the US. (Neil Connor, Telegraph)
- A N.Korean artistic troupe arrived in SK on the ferry Mangyongbong-92, Tues. for performances ahead of the PyeongChang Winter Olympics. (Kim Bo-eun, Korea Times)
- A 229-member strong, all-female cheering section arrived from NK on Wed. for the Pyeongchang Winter Olympics. (Eric Talmadge, AP)
- N.Korean leader KJU's sister, Kim Yo-jong, will be a member of the high-level delegation that will arrive in the South, Fri., for the PyeongChang Winter Olympics, the unification ministry said Wed. (Kim Bo-eun, Joint Press Corps, Korea Times)
- Kim Yo-jong, a senior Workers' Party official promoted to the politburo last year, will be the first immediate Kim family member to cross the border.It is being seen as a sign that KJU is serious about improving ties with SK. Kim Yo-jong is one of KJU's closest aides and some are speculating that she might be bringing a message from her brother. (BBC)
- Despite the current thaw in NK-SK tensions through diplomatic activity surrounding the Pyeongchang Olympic Games and the participation of N.Korean athletes, analysts are cautioning against over-expectations They caution that as the games draw to a close and the US-ROK military exercises kick back into gear, there is a chance that tensions will flare up again. (Jang Seul Gi, Daily NK)
- NK slammed anti-NK activists Wed. for having held a rally against NK's participation in the PyeongChang Winter Olympics when its art troupe arrived in SK a day earlier for performances. (Yonhap)
- N.Korean leader KJU's sister, an increasingly prominent figure in the country's leadership, will be part of the NK's delegation to the S.Korean Winter Olympics, officials said Wed. (Kim Tong-Hyung, AP)

International:

- US Vice President Mike Pence said Wed. that the US will soon unveil its toughest-ever economic sanctions on NK in a bid to spur the country's denuclearization. (Yonhap)
- A cheering group from a pro-Pyongyang organization in Japan has not been allowed to join cheerleaders from NK at the opening ceremony of the PyeongChang Winter Olympics this week, a US broadcaster reported Wed. (Yonhap)
- The weeks after the Games could be pivotal. SK has made too many concessions and may have pushed Washington's patience to its limits by weakening hard-won sanctions. It must not take lightly Washington's rejection of Cha and President Trump's introduction of N.Korean defector Ji Seong-ho to underscore the cruelties of Pyongyang's regime in his first State of the Union address. It must not become an imposing and insensitive host; otherwise, it may have to pay a dear or humiliating price after the Games. The N.Korean threat is too grave to be solved through a pretentious handshake. (Kim Hyun-ki, Joongang Daily)
- One question that has been tormenting S.Korean officials is the question of whether to give or not to give. S.Korean officials are struggling to be good Olympic hosts for the N.Korean delegation without violating the international sanctions punishing the NK for its nuclear weapons program. (Choe Sang-hun, NY Times)

- The family of Tony Kim (Sang-duk Kim), and American held by NK, is going public with its appeal for help. (Steve Redisch, VOA)
- Vice President Mike Pence kicked off his swing through Asia Wed. by vowing to intensify pressure on NK over its growing nuclear threat and show solidarity with US allies in the region. (Elise Labott, CNN)
- KJU is sending his younger sister to SK for the Winter Olympics, the first time any member of the Kim dynasty has visited the country. (James Griffiths, Sophie Jeong, CNN)
- The sister of the N.Korean leader, KJU, will attend the opening ceremony of the Winter Olympics in SK on Fri., becoming the first member of Kim's immediate family to cross the border. (Benjamin Haas, Guardian)
- US Defense Secretary Jim Mattis vowed Tues. to bolster the defense of Guam against NK's ballistic missile threats, stating that the Pentagon was looking at "all the systems," including the land-based component, Aegis Ashore, as well as the reinforcement of the existing THAAD system and the Aegis Ballistic Missile Defense US Navy warship to ensure future protection of the Pacific area. (Yonhap)
- US Vice President Mike Pence said Wed. Washington would soon unveil its "toughest sanctions ever" on NK, adding that the regime in Pyongyang would not be allowed to "hijack" the upcoming Olympics. (Telegraph Foreign Staff, Telegraph)
- Mongolian lawmakers have proposed a new immigration cap, looking to protect domestic workers, even as citizens increasingly seek opportunities abroad, following last year's decision to cut its foreign workforce in half, and sending home about 1,200 N.Korean workers to comply with the sanctions. (Reuters Staff, Reuters)
- Mozambique is denying allegations that it continues to do business with NK in violation of U.N. sanctions. (Salem Solomon, VOA)
- This BBC piece discusses the significance and impact of NK's presence in the Pyeongchang Games, from the diplomatic aspect to athlete performance. (BBC)
- By dispatching his sister Kim Yo-jong as part of the delegation, KJU is demonstrating a high degree of confidence in his position in NK and that that whomever the DPRK delegation interacts with can rest assured that their message, or even proposal, will be taken directly to KJU. Kim Yo-jong's visit to SK gives her valuable experience representing NK publicly in another country. (Michael Madden, BBC)
- Vice President Pence said Wed. that the Trump administration plans to roll out its harshest sanctions yet against NK. (Ashley Parker, Anna Fifield, Washington Post)
- Kim Joo Il, a former captain in the N.Korean army before he defected, now edits the newspaper Free NK from London, through which he aims to expose the reality of life in the isolated state and the abuses carried out by its government. (Jason Godman, VOA)
- N.Korean leader KJU's 28-year-old sister will make her debut on the world stage when she visits SK to attend the opening ceremony of the Winter Olympics on Fri., Seoul's Unification Ministry said. (Hyonhee Shin, Christine Kim, Reuters)
- Vice President Mike Pence and Japanese Prime Minister Shinzo Abe emphasized maximizing pressure on NK over its nuclear and missile programs during their meeting Wed. in Tokyo, before heading to the PyeongChang Winter Olympics. (Sarah Kim, Joongang Daily)
- Vice President Mike Pence said Wed. the US will soon announce its "the toughest and most aggressive" economic sanctions ever against NK. (Steve Herman, VOA)
- US Vice President Mike Pence visited Japan's defense ministry Wed. While there, he also pledged that the Trump administration is committed to aiding Japan handle any future threats from Pyongyang. (Sarah Shayanian, UPI)

- US Vice President Mike Pence said Wed. the US will "stand shoulder to shoulder" with its allies, including Japan and SK, to achieve its goal of denuclearizing NK, foreign media reported. (Yonhap)
- Vice President Mike Pence said the US is preparing to announce the "toughest and most aggressive" economic sanctions against NK in the coming days, boosting pressure on the bellicose government during the Winter Olympics. (Zeke Miller, AP)
- Vice President Mike Pence is on his way to the Winter Olympics in Pyeongchang, SK. But he's not just going to cut ribbons and watch sports. The fateful question is whether he's going there to improve the chances of a diplomatic solution to the confrontation between the US and NK—or essentially to give KJU the finger. (John Kirby, CNN)
- Pope Francis said on Wed. the participation of N.Korean athletes in the Olympics raised hopes for reconciliation on the Korean peninsula and that the Vatican was ready to back any peace initiative. (Philip Pullella, Reuters)
- Pope Francis is praising the decision of NK and SK to compete alongside each other at the Winter Olympics, saying it shows that conflicts can be resolved peacefully through dialogue and mutual respect. (AP)
- Diplomats from Russia and NK discussed their relationship as well as the situation on the Korean peninsula at a meeting in Moscow, the Interfax news agency reported on Wed, citing a source at Russia's Foreign Ministry. (Reuters)
- SK is having consultations with the US to allow ranking officials, including the younger sister of the N.Korean leader, to travel to the SK in time for the opening of the upcoming PyeongChang Winter Olympics, a government official said Wed. (Yonhap)
- The S.Korean Foreign Ministry is in close consultation with the international community, including the US, to uphold the basic principle that NK's participation in the PyeongChang Winter Olympic Games should not cause controversy related to international sanctions against NK. (Brian Padden, VOA)
- Kim Yo Jong will become the first member of NK's ruling Kim family to visit SK in any capacity, and her presence is likely to draw great attention during the Olympic Games being held there at a time of heightened tension between Pyongyang and Washington. (Jason Rezaian, Washington Post)
- Facilitating dialogue between the US and NK is the ultimate goal of the inter-Korea détente being pursued in Seoul, a S.Korean foreign ministry official said Wed. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- US President Donald Trump and British Prime Minister Theresa May, in a telephone conversation on Tues., agreed that "all responsible nations must increase pressure on NK until it turns to the path of denuclearization," the White House said. (Reuters Staff, Reuters)
- US Vice President Mike Pence vowed tough new sanctions against NK and called it the world's most tyrannical regime on Wed., two days before he is due to attend the winter Olympics, along with two of the NK's most senior officials. (Hyonhee Shin, Tim Kelly, Reuters)
- A unified women's ice hockey team from NK and SK at the Pyeongchang Winter Olympics is not just political window-dressing, International Olympic Committee President Thomas Bach said on Wed. (Karolos Grohmann, Reuters)
- US Vice President Mike Pence says the US plans to unveil the "toughest and most aggressive" sanctions yet against NK. (Joshua Berlinger, CNN)
- Pyeongchang's underground evacuation centres symbolise fears felt by S.Korean officials as they worked on the site of the Games, just 50 miles (80km) from the N.Korean border. However, a surprise announcement during N.Korean leader KJU's New Year's address set the stage for a significant cooling of tensions, and now the focus has shifted from potential doom to maintaining the first signs of dialogue in years. (Benjamin Haas, Guardian)

Prepared by Jinny Ahn, HRNK Research Intern

——————————————————

Thursday, February 8, 2018

Pyongyang holds parade but keeps it low-key; Diplomacy or mere decorum for Kim Yong Nam-led Olympic delegation?; NK says it has no willingness to meet with US at Olympics

In North Korea:
(5th LD) N. Korea displays ICBMs during low-key military parade (Yonhap, 02/08/2018)
2.7-magnitude quake occurs in N. Korea in aftermath of September nuke test (Yonhap, 02/08/2018)
A guide to North Korea's Olympic concert, playlist version (Washington Post, 02/08/2018)
As Kim Jong-un stages a purge within his 'unruly' military, could the North Korean leader face a coup threat? (Telegraph, 02/08/2018)
Kim Jong Un watches parade of North Korean tanks, missiles and troops (CNN, 02/08/2018)
N.K. first lady, top military, party grandees attend military parade (Yonhap, 02/08/2018)
N. Korea apparently holds military parade: gov't source (Yonhap, 02/08/2018)
N. Korea set to hold military parade on eve of PyeongChang Olympics' opening (Yonhap, 02/08/2018)
North Korea holds low-key military parade (Korea Times, 02/08/2018)
North Korea holds military parade ahead of Winter Olympics (BBC, 02/08/2018)
North Korea Holds Military Parade on Eve of South Korean Winter Olympics (VOA, 02/08/2018)
North Korea's parade held without live television coverage (UPI, 02/08/2018)
Ordinary residents ordered to provide ingredients for use in Kim Jong Il birthday snack manufacturing (Daily NK, 02/08/2018)
Pyongyang holds parade but keeps it low-key (Joongang Daily, 02/08/2018)
Report: North Korea's military parade to include fighter jets, artillery (UPI, 02/07/2018)
Who is Kim Yo Jong? Here's what we know about the North Korean 'princess.' (Washington Post, 02/08/2018)

In South Korea:
Along fortified Korean border, Olympics bring more VIPs, tourists (Reuters, 02/08/2018)
South Korea conservatives planning boycott over North Korea (UPI, 02/07/2018)
What South Koreans Really Think of the Olympic Thaw (NY Times, 02/08/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
(2nd LD) N.K.'s high-level delegation to fly to S. Korea (Yonhap, 02/08/2018)
(LEAD) (Olympics) Two Koreas conduct joint short track training ahead of Olympics (Yonhap, 02/08/2018)

(LEAD) Moon to meet N. Korean delegates to PyeongChang on Saturday: Cheong Wa Dae(Yonhap, 02/08/2018)
(LEAD) N. Korean art troupe expected to perform popular S. Korean songs (Yonhap, 02/08/2018)
(Olympics) N. Korea declines to accept conditional handout of Samsung phone (Yonhap, 02/08/2018)
Analysis: As Olympics begin, 2 Koreas navigate an odd moment (Washington Post, 02/08/2018)
Diplomacy or mere decorum for Kim Yong Nam-led Olympic delegation? (Daily NK, 02/07/2018)
Fragile peace on the Korean peninsula - can it last? (Daily NK, 02/07/2018)
Gov't mulls special envoy to North (Joongang Daily, 02/08/2018)
In small interactions before Olympics, Korean unity emerges (Washington Post, 02/08/2018)
Kim Jong Un's sister to arrive in Incheon airport on Friday: South Korea government (Reuters, 02/08/2018)
Moon will meet Kim Yo-jong on Saturday (Korea Times, 02/08/2018)
N.K. art troupe charms South Koreans on eve of PyeongChang Olympics (Yonhap, 02/08/2018)
North's delegates fly in today on a private plane (Joongang Daily, 02/08/2018)
North Korea sends clear message with missile parade on eve of Olympics (CNN, 02/07/2018)
North Korean cheerleaders travel to South Korea ahead of Olympics (Korea Times, 02/08/2018)
North Korean delegation, including Kim Jong-un's sister, will lunch with President Moon(Joongang Daily, 02/08/2018)
North Korean leader's sister, No. 2 man to arrive in Seoul on chartered flight Friday (Korea Times, 02/08/2018)
S. Korea offers drinking water to those aboard N.K. ferry (Yonhap, 02/08/2018)
Sea change in Korean relations? Not at this beachside villa (Reuters, 02/07/2018)
South Korea says can discuss resuming tourism to the North when nuclear, other conditions met (Reuters, 02/08/2018)
South Korea's Moon to Meet Sister of North Korea's Kim (VOA, 02/08/2018)
South Korea's president to host North Korean officials, including Kim Jong Un's sister (Washington Post, 02/08/2018)
South Korea's President Moon to meet Kim Jong Un's sister at Olympics (CNN, 02/08/2018)
South Korean Leader to Meet Kim Jong-un's Sister in Highest-Level Contact in Years (NY Times, 02/08/2018)
Two Koreas, Split by War, Use Olympics to Make Rare Shows of Unity (NY Times, 02/08/2018)
Two sticking points in inter-Korean ties (Korea Times, 02/07/2018)
We Need to Go Back'-South Korean Firms Dream of Returning North (NY Times, 02/08/2018)

International:
'Protocol headache' for Winter Olympics as Mike Pence and Kim Jong-un's sister arrive (Guardian, 02/08/2018)
(2nd LD) N.K. says it has no willingness to meet with U.S. at Olympics (Yonhap, 02/08/2018)
(2nd LD) UNSC may permit exemption on N.K. official's visit to South for Winter Olympics: AP(Yonhap, 02/08/2018)
(3rd LD) S. Korea says exemptions to N.K. sanctions temporary during Olympics (Yonhap, 02/08/2018)
(LEAD) Moon, Pence reaffirm 'maximum pressure' approach to bring N.K. to denuclearization talks (Yonhap, 02/08/2018)
(Olympics) Cheering squad of Japan-based pro-Pyongyang body arrives in S. Korea (Yonhap, 02/08/2018)

(Olympics) N.K. team, cheering band draw intense coverage at village welcome event (Yonhap, 02/08/2018)
(Olympics) N. Korean charm offensive goes operational at PyeongChang Olympics (Yonhap, 02/08/2018)
(Yonhap Interview) Dutch PM says exemptions to N.K. sanctions possible if they further intended objective (Yonhap, 02/08/2018)
Dangers of a 'bloody nose' (Joongang Daily, 02/08/2018)
The reality is that despite the generally successful expansion of sanctions and application of "maximum pressure," the US and SK are very likely to face a NK that continues arming itself with nuclear and ballistic missile capabilities. That will require a joint strategy of containment and deterrence. (Michael Green, Joongang Daily)
Experts question whether Yo-jong will meet Pence (Joongang Daily, 02/08/2018)
Mattis: N. Korea efforts remain 'firmly in diplomatic lane' (Yonhap, 02/08/2018)
Moon, Pence reaffirm strong alliance, joint efforts to denuclearize N. Korea (Yonhap, 02/08/2018)
N. Korea's star skaters (Korea Times, 02/07/2018)
North scoffs at meetings with Americans in PyeongChang (Joongang Daily, 02/08/2018)
North Korea does not intend to meet U.S. officials during Olympics: KCNA (Reuters, 02/08/2018)
North Korea says no U.S. talks planned at Olympics, Pence vows continued pressure (Reuters, 02/08/2018)
North Korea says it's not interested in meeting US VP Pence (Washington Post, 02/08/2018)
North Korean official facing sanctions may get exemption (Washington Post, 02/07/2018)
Pence, Moon play down differences over North Korea on eve of Games (CNN, 02/08/2018)
Pence, Returning to Tough Stance on North Korea, Announces New Sanctions (NY Times, 02/07/2018)
Pence Counters South Korea's Olympic Engagement Efforts with North Korea (VOA, 02/08/2018)
Pence Pledges Vigilance, Resolve Against North Korea Threats (VOA, 02/08/2018)
Pence pouring cold water on warming ties between 2 Koreas (Washington Post, 02/08/2018)
Pence pushes S. Korea toward more hawkish N. Korea policy (Washington Post, 02/08/2018)
Pence says U.S. wants peaceful solution to North Korea crisis, but warns not to underestimate U.S. (Reuters, 02/08/2018)
Pence steps into a more prominent role on the world stage (Washington Post, 02/07/2018)
Prevention is the best medicine (Joongang Daily, 02/08/2018)
ROK-US joint drills could be delayed further after Olympics (Korea Times, 02/07/2018)
Russia sends North Korean 'slave' labourers home (Telegraph, 02/07/2018)
Seoul officials tackle 'protocol headache' as North Korea rules out meeting Mike Pence at Olympics ceremony (Telegraph, 02/08/2018)
S. Korea gets flexible with N. Korea sanctions for Olympics (Washington Post, 02/08/2018)
South Korea, Canada vow cooperation on North Korea issue, trade (Korea Times, 02/07/2018)
South Korea asks U.N. to allow sanctioned North Korea official to attend Olympics (Reuters, 02/08/2018)
Tillerson says N. Korea an equal player at PyeongChang Olympics (Yonhap, 02/08/2018)
The United States and South Korea now openly disagree on North Korea (Washington Post, 02/08/2018)
U.N. chief Guterres: N. Korea-U.S. talks 'absolutely necessary, urgent' (Yonhap, 02/08/2018)
US asks Korea to block cryptocurrency theft by North (Korea Times, 02/07/2018)
Why, despite America's might, Trump's military parade can't compare to North Korea's (Washington Post, 02/08/2018)
With military parade, Kim Jong Un thumbs nose at US (Washington Post, 02/08/2018)

In North Korea:

- NK showed off its latest long-range missile during a military parade in Pyongyang on Thurs., a day before the opening of the Winter Olympics in SK. A trailer carrying the Hwasong-15 intercontinental ballistic missile (ICBM), which NK claims is capable of reaching the mainland US, rolled through Kim Il-sung Square in front of leader KJU, while other weapons on display also included the Hwasong-12 and Hwasong-14 ballistic missiles, various types of artilleries, tanks and armored vehicles. (Lee Chi-dong, Song Sang-ho Dong-woo, Yonhap)
- A 2.7-magnitude earthquake occurred near NK's nuclear test site, apparently caused by the communist nation's last nuclear explosion in Sept, SK's state weather agency said Thurs. (Yonhap)
- As media access to the Moranbong-Samjiyon concert is sharply restricted, broadcast and clips won't be broadcast until Fri. However, the following is a line-up of songs they performed so that readers can make their own Moranbong-Samjiyon concert at home. (Yoonjung Seo, Washington Post)
- As sanctions feed public disillusionment and KJU battles a growing resentment within the military, cracks may be appearing in the N.Korean leader's footing, as the head of the N.Korean army's politburo has been purged and three other senior officers have been either removed from office and are undergoing "re-revolutionisation education." Analysts suggest that such a wide-ranging clear-out of its top ranks could harden the army's resistance to Kim's leadership. (Julian Ryall, Telegraph)
- Troops, missiles and tanks rolled into NK's historic Kim Il Sung Square Thurs. in a highly anticipated parade of military might on the eve of SK's Winter Olympics. (Joshua Berlinger, CNN)
- A military parade in Pyongyang on Thurs. offered a rare glimpse into KJU's inner circles in the military and party, with high-ranking officials flanking the N.Korean leader on the podium. (Yonhap)
- NK appears to have staged a military parade in Pyongyang on Thurs. to mark the founding day of its armed forces, the day before the Winter Olympics begin in SK, a government source here said. (Yonhap)
- NK is set to hold a military parade to mark the 70th anniversary of its armed forces' foundation Thurs., one day before the PyeongChang Winter Olympics' opening. (Yonhap)
- NK staged a military parade in Pyongyang Thurs. to mark the founding day of its armed forces, a government source in SK said. (Jung Min-ho, Park Si-soo, Korea Times)
- This year's military parade in NK, which consisted of the traditional goose-steeping and show of heavy weapons, was held on Thurs. and was reportedly smaller than recent years. Rather than a live broadcast of the event, delayed and unscheduled footage of the event only appeared on NK state TV at 8:30 GMT, with the footage showing KJU inspecting troops, alongside his wife Ri Sol-ju. (BBC)
- NK staged a military parade in Pyongyang Thurs., one day before the opening ceremonies of the Winter Olympics in rival SK. (VOA)
- NK's military parade on Thurs. took place without live state broadcasts of the event, but no one outside the regime could confirm why Pyongyang never aired live footage of the military procession on state television. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- As NK prepares traditional snack packages for children in celebration of Kim Jong Il's birthday on Feb. 16, sources in Ryanggang Province has revealed that the authorities are demanding local residents provide the ingredients needed to manufacture these snacks. (Kang Mi Jin, Daily NK)

- NK held a military parade Thurs. on the eve of the PyeongChang Winter Olympics to mark its 70th army founding day, but S.Korean military officials thought the regime made efforts to keep it low-key—and no new weapons were rolled out. (Lee Sung-eun, Joongang Daily)
- The easing of tensions that has come with détente between NK and SK may hit a bump in the road on Thurs., when Pyongyang holds a large-scale military parade. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- KJU's younger sister, Kim Yo Jong, will be coming to the PyeongChang Winter Olympics on Fri., making her the first member of the ruling Kim family to ever cross into SK. Although we know very little about Kim Yo Jong, in this article from the Washington Post, Anna Fifield discusses what we do know about N.Korean leader KJU's younger sister. (Anna Fifield, Washington Post)

In South Korea:

- S.Korean tour operators say tours of the JSA and DMZ are up to 20 to 30 percent above average for this icy time of year, a spike they attribute to the surge of Olympic visitors and the thaw in tensions. (Josh Smith, Reuters)
- SK's political opposition is objecting to the rapidly evolving détente between Seoul and Pyongyang and could stage a boycott on Thurs. ahead of the first performance of NK's Samjiyon Orchestra. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- In this NY Times article, 700 readers give their perspectives (in both Korean and English; all responses translated, condensed and edited by the Times for clarity) on their view of thaw of inter-Korean relations and how it is affected their ambitions to host and successfully compete in the Olympics. (Kelly Virella, NY Times)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- NK will send its high-level delegation by plane to SK this week for the PyeongChang Winter Olympics, Seoul's unification ministry said Thurs. (Yonhap)
- Short track speed skaters from the two Koreas conducted joint training on Thurs. at Gangneung Ice Arena, the first time the athletes have warmed up together. (Kang Yoon-seung, Yonhap)
- S.Korean President Moon will meet N.Korean government delegates to the PyeongChang Olympic Games this week, his office Cheong Wa Dae said Thurs., highlighting the recent rapprochement between the two Koreas facilitated by NK's participation in the Winter Olympic Games. (Yonhap)
- Popular S.Korean songs are said to be included in the set list for a N.Korean art troupe's performance in SK on Thurs. in celebration of the PyeongChang Winter Games. (Yonhap)
- N.Korean athletes participating in the PyeongChang Winter Olympics declined to accept Samsung smartphones, which were offered under condition of returning them after the competition, a source said Thurs. (Kang Yoon-seung, Yonhap)
- Two of The Associated Press' top Koreas journalists — Seoul bureau chief Foster Klug and Pyongyang bureau chief Eric Talmadge — are in Pyeongchang to cover the political maneuverings around the Olympics. On Thurs. evening, they sat at a table across from each other and considered how the Olympics-related political maneuverings are playing in their areas of responsibility. (Foster Klug, Eric Talmadge, AP)

- NK has announced that Kim Yong Nam, President of the Supreme People's Assembly, will lead a high-level delegation set to attend the Feb. 9 Pyeongchang Winter Olympics opening ceremony. While Kim is officially the country's second-most powerful figure behind KJU, it is widely believed that he wields less power than Vice Chairman of the Workers' Party Choe Ryong Hae and KJU's younger sister Kim Yo Jong, for example, and has little influence over the country's politics. (Ha Yoon Ah, Daily NK)
- Tensions on the Korean peninsula have simmered in the midst of a flurry of diplomatic engagement after NK accepted a S.Korean government invitation to participate in the Pyeongchang Winter Olympic Games, which begin this week. However, despite the improvements, the possibility remains that the NK could engage in further provocative behavior. (Ha Yoon Ah, Daily NK)
- The Blue House is considering possibly dispatching a special envoy to NK if Pyongyang sends a letter from N.Korean leader KJU through its delegation for the PyeongChang Winter Olympic Games, a senior presidential aide told the JoongAng Ilbo on Wed. (Wi Moon-hee, Joongang Daily)
- A selfie taken by smiling N.Korean and S.Korean skaters and posted on Instagram illustrates yet another moment of reconciliation between the rivals, whose decades-long animosities could easily erupt again after the Pyeongchang Olympics. (Hyung-Jin Kim, AP)
- The sister of N.Korean leader KJU will arrive at Incheon International Airport on Fri. afternoon, becoming the first member of NK's ruling family to visit SK since the end of the Korean War, the government in Seoul said. (Reuters Staff, Reuters)
- Moon will have talks with N.Korean leader KJU's sister, Kim Yo-jong, and other high-level N.Korean delegates Sat. on the sidelines of the PyeongChang Winter Olympics. (Kim Rahn, Korea Times)
- A N.Korean art troupe staged a rare performance in front of hundreds of S.Koreans on Thurs. night to celebrate the PyeongChang Winter Olympics. (Woo Jae-yeon, Joint Press Corps, Yonhap)
- The high-level delegation coming from NK, including KJU's younger sister, will take a private plane today from Pyongyang to Incheon International Airport and arrive at 1:30 p.m. (Lee Sung-eun, Joongang Daily)
- NK is expected to put on a show to rival SK's Olympic spectacle when it parades hundreds of missiles through the streets of Pyongyang Thurs., despite the arrival of hundreds of N.Koreans in SK to take part in the 2018 PyeongChang Games, billed as the "Peace Olympics." (Joshua Berlinger, CNN)
- Hundreds of N.Korean female cheerleaders arrived SK on Wed. for a trip that will mark their first appearance in 13 years at an international sports event hosted by SK. (Korea Times)
- The high-level delegation coming from NK, including KJU's younger sister, will take a private plane tomorrow from Pyongyang to Incheon International Airport and arrive at 1:30 p.m., the South's Unification Ministry announced Thurs. After participating in the PyeongChang Winter Olympics opening ceremony Fri. night, the delegation will have a lunch with Moon on Sat., said the Blue House. (Lee Sung-eun, Joongang Daily)
- NK's high-level delegation, including KJU's younger sister and the regime's No.2 man Kim Yong-nam will arrive in SK on a chartered flight on Fri., Seoul's unification ministry said. (Park Si-soo, Korea Times)
- SK has provided drinking water to those aboard the N.Korean ship that carried NK's art troupe to SK earlier this week, a Seoul official said Thurs. (Yonhap)

- Local officials of Gosong County in SK, proposed that Seoul invite a visiting N.Korean Olympics delegations to pay a visit to a villa this month as a gesture of peace. Built in the 1930s, the villa was used as a coastal getaway before the outbreak of the Korean war in 1950 by N.Korean leader Kim Jong Un's grandfather and father who both spent holidays there with the families of Soviet commanders. It is now in SK as a result of the war and is a tourist attraction of Goseong County. (James Pearson, Hyunjoo Jin, Reuters)
- SK's unification ministry said on Thurs. it would be open to discuss resuming tours to NK's Mt Kumgang once the security of tourists was guaranteed and conditions relating to NK's nuclear program are met. (Reuters Staff, Reuters)
- S.Korean President Moon plans to meet N.Korean leader KJU's sister and other senior N.Korean officials who are coming to SK on Fri. for the Winter Olympics in Pyeongchang. (AP)
- S.Korean President Moon will meet N.Korean leader KJU's sister on Sat., following the opening of the PyeongChang Winter Olympics and amid a growing detente between the estranged neighbors.
  (Anna Fifield, Washington Post)
- S.Korean President Moon will lunch with the sister of N.Korean leader KJU when he meets NK's Olympic delegation on Sat., his spokesman announced. (Will Ripley, James Griffiths, Sophie Jeong, CNN)
- In the highest-level contact between the two Koreas in years, President Moon of SK plans to meet Sat. with the sister of the N.Korean leader, KJU, and the North's nominal head of state, officials said on Thurs. (Choe Sang-hun, NY Times)
  For years, the rival Koreas used the Games to showcase their competing claims to represent the Korean people, and try to one up each other. More recently, however, NK and SK have come to see international sporting events as a chance to defuse tensions, including the current standoff over NK's nuclear weapons and ballistic missile programs. They have also learned to use Olympic diplomacy to achieve in a small, symbolic way a much bigger goal that eludes them in the real world: a show of unity across the divided Korean Peninsula. Choe Sang-hun, NY Times)
- The key to any progress on Korea has always been to first address sanctions and military exercises. Now that KJU has begun to talk with his S.Korean counterpart, Moon must decide how much he wants to impact SK-NK relations. If he wants to have some real impact on the peninsula's security and economic development, then he will have to confront and squarely address the two sticking points. (Stephen Costello, Korea Times)
- The Kaesong complex, funded by S.Korean firms and manned by workers from NK, shut in 2016 after SK accused NK of taking workers' wages to fund its arms programme. But now SK is in the mood to re-engage with its old enemy, using its first Winter Olympics this month to attempt a thaw in relations—giving former investors in Kaesong some hope that the industrial park can be revived. (Reuters)

International:

- US and senior N.Korean officials say they have no intention of meeting each other at the Winter Olympics – even though vice-president Mike Pence and KJU's younger sister will be seated just metres apart at the opening ceremony. Fri.'s VIP seating arrangements are seen as a "protocol headache" for the S.Korean hosts, who have been pushing for the Games in Pyeongchang to be known as a "peace Olympics". (Daniel Hurst, Guardian)

- NK's high-level delegation for the PyeongChang Winter Olympics has no willingness to meet with its US counterpart when it travels to SK this week, the North's state media said Thurs. (Yonhap)
- The head of the U.N. committee monitoring sanctions on NK has proposed permitting a blacklisted N.Korean official to visit SK to attend the upcoming PyeongChang Winter Olympics, the Associated Press reported Thurs. (Yonhap)
- Exemptions to global sanctions imposed on NK will be temporary and only during the PyeongChang Winter Olympics, the foreign ministry said Thurs. (Yonhap)
- S.Korean President Moon and US Vice President Mike Pence on Thurs. reasserted the "stronger than ever" alliance between the two countries and their unity in bringing NK to denuclearization talks through "maximum pressure." (Yonhap)
- A cheering group from a pro-Pyongyang organization in Japan arrived in SK on Thurs. to support the Olympic teams of SK and NK in the PyeongChang Winter Games. (Yonhap)
- A welcome event for NK's Olympic team was held Thurs. at the athlete's village for the PyeongChang Winter Olympics, one day before the opening of the first Winter Games in SK. (Chang Dong-woo, Yonhap)
- Many came to get a glimpse of the closely guarded athletes of the N.Korean Olympic team. What they got instead was their first taste of NK's charm offensive at the imminent Winter Games as an all-female N.Korean cheerleader contingent that arrived in SK for the Games Olympics officially launched its charm offensive campaign Thurs., performing in front of the international media at Gangneung Olympic Village (Chang Dong-woo, Yonhap)
- Dutch Prime Minister Mark Rutte said Thurs. that exemptions to UUN Security Council sanctions on NK would be possible if they help further the resolutions' intended objective. (Koh Byung-joon, Yonhap)
- Chinese FM hopes two Koreas can open door to peace (Korea Times, 02/08/2018)
  China's foreign minister Wang Yi said on Thurs. Beijing hopes NK and SK can keep the momentum of interaction going and gradually open the door to peace on the peninsula. (Park Si-soo, Korea Times)
- Washington has not openly objected to Kim Yo-jong, a member of the N.Korean dynasty, attending the PyeongChang Winter Olympics, but experts are divided as to whether it suggests a possibility of high-level dialogue between N.Korean and US officials. (Sarah Kim, Joongang Daily)
- US Defense Secretary Jim Mattis said Wed. that efforts to denuclearize NK remain "firmly in the diplomatic lane," with military options as a backup. (Yonhap)
- S.Korean President Moon reaffirmed his commitment to the alliance with the US as the pillar for denuclearizing NK during his meeting with US Vice President Mike Pence on Thurs. (Yonhap)
- The N.Korean figure skating pair of Ryom Tae-ok and Kim Ju-sik, who arrived in SK last week as part of their country's Olympic delegation, are emerging as the stars of PyeongChang 2018, even though they are unlikely to medal in the Games. (Do Je-hae, Korea Times)
- NK said Thurs. it has no intention to engage in talks with the US on the sidelines of the Winter Olympics as Moon started an aggressive diplomatic campaign to broker dialogue between Pyongyang and Washington. (Ser Myo-ja, Joongang Daily)
- NK has no intention of meeting US officials during the Winter Olympics that begin on Fri., the official KCNA news agency quoted a senior N.Korean official as saying. (Hyonhee Shin, Christine Kim, Reuters)

- NK has no intention of meeting US officials during the Winter Olympics that start in SK on Fri., state media said, dampening hopes the Games will help resolve a tense standoff over NK's nuclear weapons program. (Christine Kim, Hyonhee Shin, Reuters)
- NK says it is not interested in meeting US Vice President Mike Pence while he is in SK for the Pyeongchang Olympics. (Eric Talmadge, AP)
- The head of the UN committee monitoring sanctions against NK on Wed. proposed granting an exemption for a senior official from Pyongyang to attend the Winter Olympics in SK with his country's high-level delegation though he is subject to a travel ban and asset freeze. (Edith M. Lederer, AP)
- Vice President Mike Pence on Thurs. sought to tamp down SK's conciliatory stance toward NK on the eve of the Olympic Games but papered over differences between the two allies on their approach toward Pyongyang. (Elise Labott, CNN)
- Vice President Mike Pence, dispatched to Asia to blunt a N.Korean charm offensive at SK's Olympic Games, said Wed. that the US planned to levy the toughest sanctions yet on NK over its nuclear and missile programs. (Mark Landler, NY Times)
- U.S. Vice President Mike Pence assured SK the US will stand shoulder to shoulder with its allies to bring "maximum pressure" on NK to end its nuclear and ballistic missile program. (Brian Padden, Steve Herman, VOA)
- Vice President Mike Pence said Thurs. the US will act with "vigilance and resolve" in the face of NK's nuclear and ballistic missile threats, and he reiterated the Trump administration's warning that while it seeks peace, "all options are on the table." (Steve Herman, VOA)
- US Vice President Mike Pence is pouring cold water on the warming ties between NK and SK just as the two still-warring countries are joining up to compete together in the Winter Olympics. (Zeke Miller, AP)
- US Vice President Mike Pence is pushing SK to adopt a more hawkish stance toward NK, as he arrived in the country Thurs. ahead of the Winter Olympics. (Zeke Miller, AP)
- US Vice President Mike Pence said on Thurs. the US wants to peacefully dismantle NK's nuclear program but warned Pyongyang not to underestimate US military strength or resolve. (Reuters Staff, Reuters)
- During his first year in President Trump's administration, Pence primarily took on a behind-the-scenes, supporting role. But now, the vice president is taking a more prominent posture, at home and abroad, and is using this Asia trip to help drive the administration's hard-line policy on NK. (Ashley Parker, Washington Post)
- Cyberattackers such as NK may have already infiltrated their targeted systems, allowing them to possibly access government or corporate networks and steal datasets. Government and business networks that could be targets for NK must implement a system to trace and monitor attackers preemptively. (Chun Soo-hong, Joongang Daily)
- Speculation is growing that joint military drills between SK and the US could face further delays after the Olympics to extend the ongoing inter-Korean peace momentum (Lee Min-hyung, Korea Times)
- Russia has begun sending home thousands of N.Korean labourers who have worked in "slave-like" conditions to fund KJU's regime. (Alec Luhn, Telegraph)
- NK has no intention of meeting US officials during the Winter Olympics that start on Fri., the KCNA news agency reported, presenting a "protocol headache" for those planning seating arrangements for the opening ceremony. (Telegraph Foreign Staff, Telegraph)
- The international community has been imposing tougher sanctions designed to punish NK's economy in an effort to rein in its nuclear program. But SK has been flexible with these rules as it accommodates the N.Koreans to the Pyeongchang Games as a result of its desire to show the Olympic spirit as it welcomes hundreds of N.Koreans for the Winter Games. (Kim Tong-Hyung, Youkyung Lee, AP)

- Moon expressed gratitude to Canadian Governor General Julie Payette for supporting SK's efforts to peacefully resolve the issues of NK's nuclear and missile programs, Cheong Wa Dae said Wed. (Kim Rahn, Korea Times)
- SK asked the United Nations on Wed. for an exemption to allow a sanctioned N.Korean official to attend the opening ceremony of the Winter Olympics on Fri. with N.Korean leader KJU's younger sister Kim Yo Jong. (Michelle Nichols, Reuters)
- NK will be participating in the Winter Olympics as an equal player, not to win concessions from the S.Korean government, US Secretary of State Rex Tillerson has said. (Yonhap)
- The behind-the-scenes break between Washington and Seoul over NK has now spilled into public view. One day ahead of the Winter Olympics Opening Ceremonies, the two governments are sending out contradictory messages about whether the Games are the beginning or the end of engagement with Pyongyang. (Josh Rogin, Washington Post)
- United Nations Secretary-General Antonio Guterres said Thurs. dialogue between NK and the US is "absolutely necessary" and "urgent" to fend off any possibility of tensions escalating into a sudden crisis on the Korean Peninsula. (Yonhap)
- A senior US government official asked SK's financial authorities to take measures to block attempts by NK to steal crypto-assets, sources as the Financial Services Commission (FSC) said. (Kim Yoo-chul, Korea Times)
- The problem with US President Donald Trump's desired military parade is that an American military parade will not really compete well with classic examples seen around the world, such as parades in China, Russia and NK. NK had another parade Wed., with all of the pomp and circumstance that we've come to expect from such affairs. (Philip Bump, Washington Post)
- N.Korean leader KJU presided over an extravagant military parade in Pyongyang's Kim Il Sung Square on Thurs., grabbing the spotlight on the eve of the Pyeongchang Winter Olympics in SK to thumb his nose at Washington while making a point of showing off his new-found restraint toward Seoul. (Eric Talmadge, AP)

Prepared by Jinny Ahn, HRNK Research Intern

——————————————————

Friday, February 9, 2018

Haley: UN Committee 'Steamrolled by Countries With Terrible Human Rights Records'; What S.K. and the U.S. Need To Understand About N.K.; Pence Avoids 'Interaction' with N.K. Officials at Olympics

Top News:
Haley: UN Committee 'Steamrolled by Countries With Terrible Human Rights Records' (CNS, 02/07/2018)
What South Korea And The US Need To Understand About North Korea (Task&Purpose, 02/08/2018)

In North Korea:
Ideological purity demanded for embedded agents in Olympic group, but bribes remain key factor (*Daily*NK, 02/09/2018)
Kim Jong Un sees propaganda opportunity in sending sister to Olympics (*Daily*NK, 02/09/2018)
Kim Jong-un's new model farms (nkeconwatch, 02/08/2018)
N. Korea says won't beg for talks with US (Korea Times, 02/09/2018)
North Korea got what it wanted from the Winter Olympics (BBC, 02/09/2018)
North Korea sends message with symbolic red outfits for Olympic orchestra (*Daily*NK, 02/09/2018)
North's parade seating decoded (Joongang Ilbo, 02/09/2018)
State companies irked by Kim Jong Un order to find foreign investors amid 'Peace Olympics' (*Daily*NK, 02/09/2018)

In South Korea:
(LEAD) Moon makes first encounter with N. Korean leader's sister (Yonhap, 02/09/2018)
(LEAD) S. Korea completes consultation with int'l community over fuel supply to N.K. ship (Yonhap, 02/09/2018)
(2nd LD) Chief delegates of U.S., N. Korea meet briefly at Olympic reception (Yonhap, 02/09/2018)
(2nd LD) Pence meets defectors to underscore brutality of North Korean regime (Yonhap, 02/09/2018)
(3rd LD) Pence avoids encountering N.K. nominal head of state (Yonhap, 02/09/2018)
After the Olympics, the real games with North Korea begin (Washington Post, 02/09/2018)
Art troupe leader likely to emerge as key player in N.K. charm offensive (Yonhap, 02/09/2018)
As North Koreans arrive at Olympics, Pence points to defectors to counter regime (CNN, 02/09/2018)
At Olympic Games, Kim Jong Un's sister takes VIP seat (Washington Post, 02/09/2018)
Awkward diplomacy on show as 'peace' Games begin (Reuters, 02/09/2018)
Japan Wants to Avert New 'Comfort Women' Controversy (VOA, 02/09/2018)
Kim's Sister, North Korean Delegation Arrive for Olympics (VOA, 02/09/2018)
Kim Jong-un's sister in South for historic 3-day trip (Korea Times, 02/09/2018)
Mike Pence avoids North Korean official at Olympic reception (UPI, 02/09/2018)
Moon fails to bring Pence, Kim together at reception (Joongang Ilbo, 02/09/2018)
N.K. leader's sister sits among world leaders at Olympic opening ceremony (Yonhap, 02/09/2018)
Olympics Open With Koreas Marchng Together, Offering Hope for Peace (NYT, 02/09/2018)
Opposition party urges gov't to be wary of N. Korea's intentions (Yonhap, 02/09/2018)
Pence avoids Olympics encounter with North Korean official as Korean athletes march together (Reuters, 02/09/2018)
Pence Avoids 'Interaction' with North Korean Officials at Olympics (VOA, 02/09/2018)
Pence condemns NK brutality in meeting with defectors (Korea Times, 02/09/2018)
Pence, Kim Jong Un's sister sat feet away from each other at Games' opening ceremony (CNN, 02/09/2018)
Pence skips Olympics dinner in snub to North Korean officials (Guardian, 02/09/2018)
Pence, Warmbier's father meet with North Korean defectors (UPI, 02/09/2018)
Pyeongchang Winter Olympics open with theme of peace (UPI, 02/09/2018)

Ruling party calls for effective use of Olympics to promote peace with N. Korea (Yonhap, 02/09/2018)
Samjiyon Orchestra woos audience with gala performance (Joongang Ilbo, 02/09/2018)
Visitors React to 'Peace Games' on Olympics Opening Day (VOA, 02/09/2018)
Winter Games Highlight Different Strategies on North Korea for US, South Korea (RFA, 02/09/2018)
Winter Olympics begin with powerful message of peace (Guardian, 02/09/2018)
With Extraordinary Political Optics, Winter Olympics Begin (VOA, 02/09/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
(LEAD) N. Korea's high-level Olympic delegation arrives in S. Korea (Yonhap, 02/09/2018)
(LEAD) N. Korean leader's sister highlights 'charm offensive' (Yonhap, 02/09/2018)
(2nd LD) N.Korea rescinds fuel request for ferry (Yonhap, 02/09/2018)
(2nd LD) N.K. leader's sister embarks on peace offensive on rare trip to S. Korea (Yonhap, 02/09/2018)
A cornerstone for peace (Joongang Ilbo, 02/09/2018)
A military parade nevertheless (Joongang Ilbo, 02/09/2018)
Avoiding a trap (Joongang Ilbo, 02/09/2018)
Foreign Ministry Issues Statement about DPRK-US Interaction at Pyeongchang Olympics (38 North, 02/09/2018)
'Good chance' South Korean President will be invited to North Korea (CNN, 02/09/2018)
Koreas Share Historic Handshake at Opympic Opening Ceremony (NYT, 02/09/2018)
N. Korean cheering squad chants slogans symbolic of unification (Yonhap, 02/09/2018)
Questions over lasting effect of 'Peace Olympics' on Korean Peninsula (DailyNK, 02/09/2018)
This selfie of North and South Korean athletes is one for the ages (CNN, 02/09/2018)
Younger sister of North Korea's leader flies into South (Joongang Ilbo, 02/09/2018)
Winter Olympics opening ceremony sees historic handshake (CNN, 02/09/2018)

International:
(LEAD) German president calls for dialogue, pressure to build peace with N. Korea (Yonhap, 02/09/2018)
(LEAD) U.N. clears N.K. official's visit to S. Korea (Yonhap, 02/09/2018)
Chinese FM hopes two Koreas can open door to peace (Korea Times, 02/08/2018)
Former U.S. ambassador calls for U.S. to open dialogue with N.K. after Olympics (Yonhap, 02/09/2018)
Olympic phone snub angers Iran (Joongang Ilbo, 02/09/2018)
Pence's Olympic mission — rebuff North Korea's propaganda (Washington Post, 02/09/2018)
Pence still open to meeting with N. Koreans (Yonhap, 02/09/2018)
Pence uses Olympics to push tougher stance on N. Korea (Washington Post, 02/09/2018)
State Dept: No One Drives a Wedge Between US, South Korea (VOA, 02/08/2018)
The Latest: UN chief urges denuclearization to North Korea (Washington Post, 02/09/2018)
Trump again cites N. Korean defector story (Yonhap, 02/09/2018)
UN chief: North Korea-US talks 'absolutely necessary, urgent' (Korea Times, 02/08/2018)
UN Permits North Korean Officials to Visit South Korea (VOA, 02/09/2018)

]Top News:

- Haley criticized the UN NGO Committee's rejection of HRNK's recent application to obtain "consultative status" at the UN, saying HRNK has a long track record of success and demonstrated that they would add value to the U.N. system. (Patrick Goodenough, CNS)
- HRNK author Robert Collins discusses what the ROK and the U.S. need to understand in order to deal with N.K. successfully; the collapse of Kim regime takes a lot more than the death of KJU. (Robert Collins, Task&Purpose)

In North Korea:

- Curiosity is growing over the presence of N.K. state security agents embedded within the groups of athletes and supporting staff visiting S.K. this month. (Kang Mi Jin, DailyNK)
- KJU's younger sister would be visiting the Pyeongchang Olympics as part of the planned high-level delegation, and analysts are calling the move an overt sign that the North is planning to use the occasion for propaganda purposes. (Ha Yoon Ah; Jang Seul Gi, DailyNK)
- The most recent issue of Kumsugangsan highlighted the renovation work of Poman-ri. A satellite imagery indicates that there was a new health complex built, new apartment buildings constructed, and a school appears to have been renovated. (nkeconwatch)
- N.K. is not interested in talks with the US during the Winter Olympics that kicks off Friday in PyeongChang, S.K., a ranking North Korean diplomat said Wednesday. (Choi Ha-young, Korea Times)
- The Pyeongchang 2018 Winter Olympics is getting underway and already the state of relations between two Koreas is dominating the narrative about the Games. That in itself is a small victory for Pyongyang. (BBC)
- An image of the country's art troupe and Samjiyon Orchestra lining up to board a train on their way to S.K. shows the black scarves and long red coats worn by the group, which has invoked comparisons to attire worn by communist armies. (Seol Song Ah, DailyNK)
- The seating of a high podium at Kim Il Sung Square, when N.K.'s military held a sprawling parade to celebrate its 70th army founding day, showed several changes in the rise and fall of KJU's inner orbit. (Joongang Ilbo)
- To ease sanctions and attain recognition as a normal member of the global community, N.K. has recently ordered high-level organs to use the Olympics as a basis to identify foreign investors and establish new foreign currency-earning operations. (Kang Mi Jin, DailyNK)

In South Korea:

- S.K. President Moon briefly encountered N.K. leader KJU's sister on Friday at the opening of the Winter Olympic Games in PyeongChang. (Yonhap)
- S.K. has completed its consultation with the international community over whether to provide fuel to a N.K. ship that carried its art troupe earlier this week. (Yonhap)
- U.S. Vice President Mike Pence briefly encountered N.K.'s ceremonial head of state, Kim Yong-nam, Friday at a reception dinner hosted by S.K. President Moon ahead of the opening of the PyeongChang Winter Olympics. (Yonhap)
- U.S. Vice President Mike Pence on Friday met a group of N.K. defectors in an apparent effort to highlight the brutality of the repressive regime and abject human rights conditions in the reclusive state. (Yonhap)

- U.S. Vice President Mike Pence avoided encountering N.K.'s ceremonial leader Kim Young-nam during a reception dinner ahead of the opening ceremony of the Winter Olympics, underscoring chilly relations between Washington and Pyongyang. (Yonhap)
- While Pence has been trying to beat back N.K.'s charm offensive while working to repair the break between the U.S. government and S.K., that challenge is set to intensify when the Olympics end. (Josh Rogin, Washington Post)
- As a N.K. art troupe staged a performance on Thursday, receiving favorable responses from S.K. audiences, the spotlight is now being shifted to Hyon Song-wol, who has been behind all the related preparations and planning. (Yonhap)
- As S.K. President Moon prepared to host the N.K. delegation, including KJU's sister Kim Yo Jong, Pence and his wife met with four N.K. defectors who shared heartbreaking stories of famine, torture and hardship. (Elise Labott, CNN)
- KJU's younger sister took her place among dignitaries from around the world, including U.S. Vice President Mike Pence, at the opening ceremony of the Pyeongchang Winter Olympics on Friday in an unprecedented visit to S.K. (AP)
- The Winter Olympics sparked to life in a vivid, colorful ceremony of fire and ice in S.K. on Friday, though the diplomacy was tougher to choreograph in the stadium where leaders from nations that are sworn enemies sat close together. (James Pearson, Hyunjoo Jin, Reuters)
- Moon met with Abe on Friday to discuss renewed criticism of the "comfort women" agreement, which aimed to settle grievances for atrocities committed during World War II. Abe is in S.K. to attend the opening ceremony of the Pyeongchang Winter Olympics. (Brian Padden, VOA)
- The sister of KJU became the first member of her family to visit S.K. since the 1950-53 Korean War as part of a high-level delegation attending the opening ceremony of the Pyeongchang Winter Olympics. (AP)
- A private jet carrying N.K.'s high-level delegates for the PyeongChang Winter Olympics, including leader KJU's younger sister and the reclusive state's nominal president Kim Young-nam, landed Friday in S.K. (Park Si-soo, Korea Times)
- U.S. Vice President Mike Pence avoided encountering North Korea's ceremonial leader Kim Yong Nam during a reception dinner ahead of the opening ceremony of the Pyeongchang Winter Olympics, underscoring chilly relations between N.K. and U.S. (UPI)
- President Moon's ambitious attempt to stage an encounter between top leaders of N.K. and the U.S. on the sidelines of the Winter Olympics fell through Friday after U.S. Vice President Mike Pence walked out of an event. (Ser Myo-ja, Joongang Ilbo)
- KJU's younger sister sat among world leaders, including those from the U.S. and Japan, during the opening ceremony of the PyeongChang Winter Olympics on Friday. (Yonhap)
- The opening ceremony of the Winter Olympics unfurled in frigid temperatures and high spirits on Friday, as athletes from two Koreas marched into the stadium together. (Motoko Rich, NYT)
- The main opposition Liberty Korea Party stepped up accusations Friday that N.K. is attempting to blunt international sanctions with its peace overtures, as a high-level delegation from Pyongyang, including KJU's sister, began an unprecedented trip to the South. (Yonhap)
- U.S. Vice President Mike Pence made only a brief appearance at a reception marking the start of the Winter Olympics on Friday, avoiding a potentially awkward encounter with the ceremonial leader of N.K. attending the same event (Christine Kim, Hyunjoo Jin, Reuters)

- U.S. Vice President Mike Pence, the leader of S.K., and top representatives from N.K. shared a VIP box at Friday's opening of the 2018 Winter Olympics, although Pence avoided interaction with the N.K. officials. (Steve Herman, VOA)
- U.S. Vice President Mike Pence denounced the oppressive state of N.K. in a meeting with four N.K. defectors, Friday, on his visit to S.K. for the PyeongChang Winter Olympics. (Kim Bo-eun, Korea Times)
- U.S. Vice President Mike Pence, who has been vocal in his criticism of N.K. in the run-up to the Games, sat in close proximity to the sister of KJU at the opening ceremony of the PyeongChang Games. (Saeed Ahmed and Jake Tapper, CNN)
- Pence has skipped a dinner before the Winter Olympics opening ceremony, where he was expected to share a table with N.K.'s head of state, in a sign of Washington's intention to snub Pyongyang's officials at the Games. (Benjamin Haas, Guardian)
- U.S. Vice President Mike Pence met with N.K. defectors-- accompanied by the father of Otto Warmbier, an American who died after his release from captivity there last year. (Sara Shayanian, UPI)
- The 2018 Winter Olympic Games in Pyeongchang started Friday with a theme of peace, as nations from around the world were introduced in a grand opening ceremony that kicked off the peninsula's first Olympics in 30 years. (Susan McFarland, UPI)
- The ruling Democratic Party called for using the PyeongChang Winter Olympics as effectively as possible to promote peace with N.K. as a high-level delegation from the communist nation, including KJU's sister, was due in the South on Friday. (Yonhap)
- After days of wrangling with Seoul over its playlist, N.K.'s Samjiyon Orchestra held the first of two planned concerts in S.K. on Thursday night at the Gangneung Arts Center in Gangwon, assuaging local jitters that it might blast propaganda music. (Joongang Ilbo)
- A sense of détente, at least for the time being, prevailed in and around the Pyeongchang Olympic Stadium Friday as the Winter Games opened in a ceremony where N.K. and S.K. Korean athletes marched under a unified flag. (Bruce Harrison, VOA)
- On the eve of the Winter Olympics, U.S. and S.K. vowed to work in tandem towards denuclearization of N.K., but delivered messages suggesting very different approaches in dealing with the threat of N.K. and its weapons development program. (Joshua Lipes, RFA)
- Opening ceremony full of symbolism brings strong emotions in Pyeongchang, and an even more important gesture was taking place in the stands, with Moon turning round to shake hands with N.K. delegates Kim Yong-nam and Kim Yo-jong. (Sean Ingle, Guardian)
- In an extraordinary show of unexpected unity, N.K. and S.K. sat side by side under exploding fireworks that represented peace, not destruction, as the 2018 Winter Olympics opened on a Korean Peninsula riven by generations of anger and suspicion. (AP)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- The powerful sister of KJU and other senior officials arrived in S.K. on Friday for the opening of the PyeongChang Winter Olympic Games and a meeting with President Moon. (Yonhap)
- The influential sister of N.K. leader KJU on Friday stepped into the spotlight at the Winter Olympics taking place in S.K., becoming the first member of N.K.'s ruling dynasty to cross the border since the 1950-53 Korean War. (Yonhap)
- A N.K. ship, which carried its art troupe to the South, will return home over the weekend without Seoul's fuel supply. (Yonhap)

- Kim Yo-jong, the younger sister of KJU, made a rare visit to S.K. Friday, drawing attention to what message she would bring from her brother over inter-Korean ties. (Yonhap)
- As all eyes are on the 23rd Olympic Winter Games and 12th Paralympic Winter Games in Pyeongchang this February, sports diplomacy may lower tensions on the Korean Peninsula itself. (Shamshad Akhtar, Joongang Ilbo)
- N.K. held a massive military parade to celebrate the founding of its armed forces on the eve of the opening of the Winter Olympics. With the event, N.K. threw cold water on S.K.'s expectation for a peaceful Olympics. (Joongang Ilbo)
- Holding an inter-Korean summit could be important for peace. But S.K. must be careful not to be tricked. Pence on Friday toured the Cheonan warship destroyed in a N.K. attack and talked with N.K. defectors. The government must read his message. (Joongang Ilbo)
- DPRK Ministry of Foreign Affairs Department Director-General Jo Yong Sam issued a statement about potential interactions between US government officials and the DPRK's high-level delegation on the sidelines of the opening ceremonies of the Winter Olympics (38 North)
- There is a "good chance" Kim Yo Jong, the sister of N.K. leader KJU, will invite S.K. President Moon to visit Pyongyang "sometime this year." (CNN)
- As Moon and his wife greeted VIPs in their dignitary vox to watch the opening ceremony, they turned to shake hands with KJU's sister. (AP)
- An hour before the opening ceremony of the PyeongChang Winter Olympics, a group of N.K. cheerleaders drew the attention of S.K. spectators with a short yet impactful chant: "We are one." (Yonhap)
- Despite the appearance of peace surrounding N.K.'s participation in the Pyeongchang Winter Olympics, the war of nerves with the U.S. continues. (Ha Yoon Ah, DailyNK)
- The selfie of N.K. and S.K. athletes shows the two country's athletes sporting identical blue hats and white coats, emblazoned with a Korean unification badge, similar to the Korean unification flag they marched in under. (Doug Criss, CNN)
- Kim Yo-jong, the younger sister of KJU, landed in S.K. Friday afternoon as a member of a high-level delegation to the Winter Olympic Games. (Ser Myo-ja, Joongang Ilbo)
- In a ceremony infused with themes of peace and harmony, S.K. President Moon twice shook hands with the sister of KJU. US Vice President Mike Pence, sitting a few seats away, looked stony faced as the extraordinary scenes unfolded. (James Masters and Aimee Lewis, CNN)

International:

- German President Frank-Walter Steinmeier said Friday that dialogue is the only way to ease tensions and seek peace and reunification between the two Koreas. (Yonhap)
- A UN committee on Thursday cleared a blacklisted N.K. official to visit S.K. for the PyeongChang Winter Olympics. (Yonhap)
- China's foreign minister Wang Yi said on Thursday Beijing hopes two Koreas can keep the momentum of interaction going and gradually open the door to peace on the peninsula. (Park Si-soo, Korea Times)
- Former U.S. Ambassador to S.K. Alexander Vershbow has called on Washington to smartly cope with N.K.'s charm offensive and open its door for denuclearization talks beyond the PyeongChang Olympic Games. (Yonhap)

- Iran has rejected the IOC's decision to allow its athletes to take away the Olympic edition of the Samsung Galaxy Note8, the latest escalation in a diplomatic row over the IOC's earlier decision to block the Iranian team from receiving the limited edition phone. (Joongang Ilbo)
- Nearly every one of Pence's actions during his five-day trip to Japan and S.K. this week — his public declarations, private murmurings and scripted meetings and visits — have been aimed at combating N.K.'s shiny propaganda with gritty talk of his own. (Washington Post)
- U.S. Vice President Mike Pence said Thursday he would be open to meeting with N.K. officials in S.K., although he would have to "wait and see." (Yonhap)
- After meetings with Moon and Abe, Pence said there should be no consideration of using the Games as an opening for substantive talks with the North until its nuclear program is up for negotiations. (Zeke Miller, AP)
- With the launch of the 2018 Winter Olympics in Pyeongchang, S.K., State Department spokeswoman Heather Nauert is dismissing any concerns that U.S. efforts to counter N.K.'s "charm offensive" could create a rift with S.K. (Cindy Saine, VOA)
- The U.N. says Secretary-General Antonio Guterres had a brief exchange with N.K.'s nominal head of state and "reiterated his expectation and hope that all parties will use dialogue to achieve the denuclearization of the Korean Peninsula." (AP)
- Trump again talked about the plight of North Koreans Thursday as he referenced the story of a defector who suffered abuse under the totalitarian regime. (Yonhap)
- UN Secretary-General Antonio Guterres said Thursday dialogue between N.K. and the US is "absolutely necessary" and "urgent" to fend off any possibility of tensions escalating into a sudden crisis on the Korean Peninsula. (Korea Times)
- The UN has given approval for a high-level N.K. delegation to travel to S.K. for the Olympics, granting an exemption on sanctions against the repressive regime. (Smita Nordwall, VOA)

Prepared by James Park, HRNK Research Intern

————————————————

Saturday, February 10, 2018

North Korean leader invites South Korea's Moon to the North: president's office; Joint Korean hockey team routed by Switzerland in 1st Olympic game

In North Korea:
"Key Vulnerability" in North Korea's ICBM Force? What We Can and Can't Learn from a North Korean Military Parade (38 North, 02/09/2018)
(News Focus) N.K.'s bold summit proposal seen as strategy to weaken sanctions (Yonhap, 02/10/2018)
North Korea is winning the Olympics - and it's not because of sports (CNN, 02/10/2018)
(2nd LD) N. Korean leader's sister says Seoul feels familiar (Yonhap, 02/10/2018)
(LEAD) N. Korean media report on PyeongChang Olympics opening ceremony (Yonhap, 02/10/2018)

(Olympics) 3 N. Koreans dress for joint team's 1st game vs. Switzerland (Yonhap, 02/10/2018)
Parade Held to Mark the 70th Anniversary of the KPA's Foundation (NK Leadership Watch, 02/10/2018)
Wreath Laying Ceremonies Held for KPA Foundation Day (NK Leadership Watch, 02/10/2018)

In South Korea:
Don't mention nukes: South Koreans learn how to talk to the enemy (Reuters, 02/10/2018)
(LEAD) Parties show mixed reactions to North Korean leader's summit proposal (Yonhap, 02/10/2018)
Protesters tear N. Korean flags, leader's photos in Seoul (Yonhap, 02/10/2018)
The 'Ivanka Trump of North Korea' captivates people in the South (Washington Post, 02/10/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
Awkward diplomacy on show as 'peace' Games begin (Reuters, 02/09/2018)
Kim Jong Un invites South Korean president for summit: South Korea (Reuters, 02/10/2018)
Kim Yo-jong - weapon of choice in North Korea's charm offensive (Korea Times, 02/10/2018)
Korea's united Olympic squad: symbol of hope or mere political stunt? (Guardian, 02/10/2018)
Moon holds near 3-hour meeting with N. Korean delegates (Yonhap, 02/10/2018)
(3rd LD) Moon holds rare meeting with N. Korea's titular head of state, leader's sister (Yonhap, 02/10/2018)
More Than Just a Game, Koreans Win in Lopsided Olympic Loss (NYT, 02/10/2018)
North Korean Cheerleaders Sing 'We Are One!' in Games Culture Clash (NYT, 02/10/2018)
North Korean leader invites South Korea's Moon to the North: president's office (Reuters, 02/10/2018)
N.K. leader's sister wishes for closer ties with S. Korea in guest book memo (Yonhap, 02/10/2018)
(News Focus) N.K. summit offer heralds strides in inter-Korean ties but nuclear impasse clouds prospects (Yonhap, 02/10/2018)
(4th LD) N. Korean leader proposes inter-Korean summit with Moon (Yonhap, 02/10/2018)
(Olympics) Final flame event before Kim Yu-na's cauldron lighting unrehearsed: director (Yonhap, 02/10/2018)
(Olympics) Joint Korean hockey coach wishes team came together sooner (Yonhap, 02/10/2018)
(LEAD) (Olympics) Joint Korean women's hockey team embarrassed before dignitaries (Yonhap, 02/10/2018)
(LEAD) (Olympics) Joint Korean hockey team routed by Switzerland in 1st Olympic game (Yonhap, 02/10/2018)
(Olympics) Moon watches joint hockey team game with N.K. leader's sister, nominal head of state (Yonhap, 02/10/2018)
(Olympics) N.K. cheerleaders heat up hockey arena rooting for joint Korean team (Yonhap, 02/10/2018)
(Olympics) N. Korean cheerleaders root for speed skaters from both Koreas (Yonhap, 02/10/2018)
(Olympics) N. Korean taekwondo head touched by joint demonstration (Yonhap, 02/10/2018)
Olympics unite Koreas after 65 years, but will it spark real change? (UPI, 02/10/2018)
The Latest: Kim's sister says hopes to see Moon in N. Korea (Washington Post, 02/10/2018)
These displays of unity at the Olympics fill us with hope (CNN, 02/10/2018)
Unification minister to host dinner with N.K. high-level delegation (Yonhap, 02/10/2018)
Unified Korean ice hockey team proves that 'winning isn't everything' (CNN, 02/10/2018)

International:

American fans calm in Korea with worried relatives back home (Washington Post, 02/10/2018)
China's top diplomat tells Trump hopes to increase coordination on North Korea (Reuters, 02/09/2018)
Heading home, Pence insists 'no daylight' on North Korea (Washington Post, 02/10/2018)
Joint Korean march gave me goosebumps, says IOC boss (Reuters, 02/10/2018)
(LEAD) Moon rejects Abe's call to resume Korea-U.S. military drills (Yonhap, 02/10/2018)
NBC mistakenly calls North Korea host of PyeongChang Games (Korea Times, 02/10/2018)
No Olympic truce for US, North Korea in Pyeongchang (Washington Post, 02/10/2018)
North Korea Says Unable to Pay U.N. Dues, Blames Sanctions (NYT, 02/10/2018)
N. Korea vows to step up nuclear posture against U.S. (Yonhap, 02/10/2018)
(Olympics) IOC hails two Koreas' handshakes at opening ceremony as 'historic moment'(Yonhap, 02/10/2018)
(Olympics) 'Politics will continue,' IOC reacts to Pence's apparent ignoring of joint march (Yonhap, 02/10/2018)
Pence avoids Olympics encounter with North Korean official as Korean athletes march together (Reuters, 02/10/2018)
Pence didn't snub North Koreans deliberately, officials say (Yonhap, 02/10/2018)
Pence leaves S. Korea after three-day visit (Yonhap, 02/10/2018)
Pence upstaged by 2 Koreas' efforts to warm ties (Washington Post, 02/10/2018)
Pence: US, Allies to 'Intensify' Campaign to End North Korea's Nuclear Program (VOA, 02/10/2018)
Pence, Warmbier's father meet with North Korean defectors (UPI, 02/09/2018)
Tensions barely concealed as North and South Korea march under one flag (Telegraph, 02/09/2018)

In North Korea:

- A recent article on CNBC concerning the Feb. 8 military parade in Pyongyang describes what appears to be a "key vulnerability" in NK's intercontinental ballistic missile force. While the article provides a reasonable overview of the subject it does, however, mischaracterize a number of critical points, leaving readers with an inaccurate understanding of the issue. (Joseph S. Bermudez Jr., 38 North)
- KJU has taken a huge diplomatic gamble by proposing an inter-Korean summit, which analysts view as aimed at using ties with Seoul to come break of its isolation and weaken international sanctions. (Kim Soo-yeon, Yonhap)
- It might be SK's Games, but Pyongyang has ensured it is commanding the spotlight. Every snippet of news crossing the de-militarized zone, every glimpse of a N. Korean athlete in Pyeongchang, or the arrival of a glamorous pop star, has captured the attention of a world hungry for details about life in the Hermit Kingdom. (Jamie Tarabay, CNN)
- Kim Yo-jong, KJU's sister, said Seoul felt familiar even though it was her first-ever visit to the South, at an official dinner Sat., according to a pool report. (Yonhap)
- NK's official media on Sat. carried reports on the opening of the PyeongChang Olympics in SK on Fri. and the North's ceremonial head of state Kim Yong-nam's meeting with Moon during the opening events. (Yonhap)
- Three N. Koreans dressed for the joint Korean female team's first game against Switzerland at the Winter Olympics on Sat. (Yoo Jee-ho, Yonhap)
- A fabulous military parade was held in Kim Il-sung Square in central Pyongyang during the late morning of Feb. 8 to mark the 70 anniversary of the foundation of the Korean People's Army [KPA]. (NK Leadership Watch)

- Floral wreath-laying ceremonies were held at the Revolutionary Martyrs' Cemetery, the Patriotic Martyrs' Ceremony and the Fatherland Liberation War Martyrs' Cemetery in Pyongyang on Feb. 7. (NK Leadership Watch)

In South Korea:

- When a hotel on SK's east coast was asked at short notice to host nearly 280 N. Korean visitors, the problem wasn't finding enough rooms. It was to learn how not to offend them. (Jin Hyunjoo, Kim Soyoung, Reuters)
- SK's political parties showed mixed reactions Sat. to KJU's proposal to hold an inter-Korean summit in Pyongyang at an early date. (Yonhap)
- Conservative activists tore photos of KJU and attempted to burn its national flags in demonstrations in Seoul on Sat. against Pyongyang's participation in the Olympics. (Yonhap)
- Kim Yo Jong was an enigma. A woman with a sphinx-like smile who gave nothing away during her three-day Olympic-related visit to SK as her brother KJU's special envoy. She's "the Ivanka Trump of North Korea" because of her family connections and her ability to be a compelling saleswoman. (Anna Fifield, Washington Post)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- The Winter Olympics sparked to life in a vivid, colorful ceremony of fire and ice in SK on Fri., though the diplomacy was tougher to choreograph in the stadium where leaders from nations that are sworn enemies sat close together. (James Pearson, Jin Hyunjoo, Reuters)
- KJU invited Moon for talks in Pyongyang, S. Korean officials said on Sat., setting the stage for the first meeting of Korean leaders in more than 10 years. (Shin Hyonhee, Kim Soyoung, Reuters)
- Kim Yo-jong, the younger sister KJU, has hijacked the media's attention after the PyeongChang Winter Olympics started Friday. (Oh Young-jin, Korea Times)
- It was supposed to be a moment of celebration – the first time in history that athletes from NK and SK had played together in an Olympics. But as the loss deepened – Korea finally lost to Switzerland 8-0 – it was hard to find a silver lining. (Benjamin Haas, Guardian)
- Moon held a near three-hour meeting Sat. with high-level N. Korean officials, including KJU's sister, who was widely believed to carrying a letter for Moon from the N. Korean leader. (Yonhap)
- Moon held a meeting Sat. with a group of high-profile N. Korean officials including the country's ceremonial head of state and a younger sister of KJU. (Yonhap)
- For a few hours N. Korean cheerleaders chanted and sang, S. Korean fans waved unification flags and the team from Korea played like it was united even though the two countries are far from it. (AP)
- As Switzerland demolished a unified Korean hockey team at the Pyeongchang winter Olympics on Saturday, despondent home fans at least had another contest to distract them; a clash of cultures featuring N. Korean and S. Korean cheerleaders. (Reuters)
- KJU invited Moon to Pyongyang "at an early date", the presidential Blue House in Seoul said on Sat., potentially setting up the first meeting of Korean leaders in more than 10 years.(Reuters)

- N. Korean leader KJU's sister expressed a wish for closer inter-Korean relations in her writing in the visitor's book at SK's presidential office prior to her meeting with Moon there on Saturday. (Yonhap)
- NK's surprise proposal for an inter-Korean summit will pave the way for a dramatic advancement in bilateral ties, but its prospects hinge on future progress in the nuclear stand-off and an improvement in relations with the US, experts said. (Koh Byung-joon, Yonhap)
- NK's reclusive leader KJU has asked Moon to visit Pyongyang at the "earliest date" possible for what will be a third inter-Korean summit, Kim's sister told the S. Korean leader Sat. (Byun Duk-kun, Yonhap)
- The final torch-carrying event right before the climactic Olympic cauldron lighting at the Winter Olympics' opening went ahead without a single rehearsal, according to organizers Sat. (Chang Doo-woo, Yonhap)
- She only had about two weeks to work with the hastily-assembled joint Korean women's hockey team, and head coach Sarah Murray now wishes the team would have been put together much sooner. (Yoo Jee-ho, Yonhap)
- Perhaps no other athletes or team received as much time in the spotlight on Sat. at the Olympics as the joint Korean women's hockey team. But the players on the ice melted under that spotlight. (Yoo Jee-ho, Yonhap)
- The joint Korean women's hockey team was routed by Switzerland 8-0 in its historic first game at the Olympics on Sat., a disastrous performance before a packed house that included a few dignitaries. (Yoo Jee-ho, Yonhap)
- Moon watched the joint Korean women's ice hockey team's opening match at the Winter Olympics on Sat. along with high-ranking N. Korean officials, including leader KJU's sister, Kim Yo-jong. (Joo Kyung-don, Yonhap)
- Spicing up political rapprochement, N. Korean cheerleaders and S. Korean spectators rooted together for the joint women's ice hockey team in its first match at the PyeongChang Winter Olympic Games on Sat. (Joo Kyung-don, Yonhap)
- N. Korean cheerleaders made their first appearance at an Olympic competition on Sat, rooting for short track speed skaters from both SK and NK. (Kim Boram, Kang Yoon-seung, Yonhap)
- The head of NK's taekwondo governing body said Sat. he was touched by the joint demonstration by the two Koreas' athletes ahead of the opening ceremony of the Olympics a day earlier. (Yonhap)
- The show of unity between the two Koreas reflects the recent change of atmosphere in cross-border relations, with the Moon administration eagerly accommodating NK's participation in the Games. However, public opinion in SK is divided on whether relations with NK will actually improve once the Olympics are over. (Jennie Oh, Danielle Haynes, UPI)
- The sister of KJU says a summit between her brother and Moon would pave the way for a fast improvement in ties that would make “yesterday seem like a long time ago.” (AP)
- In this year's Games, the two rival Koreas joined to form a united team, leaving many dreaming of a world where they are not feuding. A series of photos are rare displays of unity have been a welcome relief from the tensions between the two Koreas. (Faith Karimi, CNN)
- Unification Minister Cho Myoung-gyon is set to host a dinner for NK's high-level delegation on Sat. in the sub-host city of the PyeongChang Winter Olympics, Seoul officials said. (Yonhap)

- The unified Korean ice hockey team made its Olympic debut and in comprehensive defeat sent a message to the world that winning is not always the be all and end all. (Aimee Lewis, CNN)

International:

- Many American tourists are arriving in Pyeongchang calm and excited for the games, but with stories of family and friends so frightened by the ratcheting tension between the US and NK they had warned them to stay at home. (Claire Galofaro, AP)
- China hopes both it and the US can increase their coordination on the NK issue, China's top diplomat Yang Jiechi told Trump during a meeting in Washington, China's Foreign Ministry said on Sat. (Reuters)
- As SK appeared to look favorably on warming ties on the Korean Peninsula, Pence insisted Saturday "there is no daylight" among the US and allies SK and Japan in intensifying pressure on NK over its nuclear and missile programs. (Zeke Miller, AP)
- N. and S. Koreans marching together under a unified peninsula flag gave Thomas Bach goosebumps, the International Olympic Committee president told Reuters on Sat. (Iain Axon, Reuters)
- Moon has dismissed a call from Japanese Prime Minister Shinzo Abe to quickly resume SK's joint military drills with the US, calling it a violation of his country's sovereignty, an official from Seoul's presidential office said Sat. (Yonhap)
- The US television network NBC identified PyeongChang as being in NK in a subtitle during its broadcast of the Olympic opening ceremony. (Oh Young-jin, Korea Times)
- Forget an Olympic truce. The rhetoric war between NK and the Trump administration hasn't skipped a beat in Pyeongchang. (Eric Talmadge, AP)
- NK is unable to pay its share of the 2018 UN budgets because of international sanctions on its foreign exchange bank and has asked a senior UN official for help, the country's UN mission said in a statement. (Reuters)
- NK said Sat. that it will further reinforce its nuclear deterrence against the US in response to Washington's renewed nuclear commitment to its allies. (Yonhap)
- The International Olympic Committee (IOC) said Sat. that representatives of the two Koreas shaking hands at the opening ceremony of the PyeongChang Winter Olympics was a "historic moment." (Joo Kyung- don, Yonhap)
- Despite efforts toward peace through sport, politics will always continue, the IOC commented Sat., in reaction to VP Pence's apparent ignoring of a historic joint march by the two Koreas at the Olympics. (Chang Dong-woo, Yonhap)
- Pence made only a brief appearance at a reception marking the start of the Winter Olympics on Fri., avoiding a potentially awkward encounter with the ceremonial leader of NK attending the same event. (Christine Kim, Jin Hyunjoo, Reuters)
- Pence did not deliberately snub N. Koreans at an Olympic reception, according to US officials who pushed back on S. Korean reports that Pence deliberately came late to a VIP gathering Fri. evening and then snubbed officials from Pyongyang. (Elise Labott, CNN)
- Pence wrapped up his three-day visit to SK late Sat., dashing expectations that there could be some high-level interactions between Washington and Pyongyang on the sidelines of the Olympics. (Yonhap)
- Pence's efforts to keep NK from stealing the show at the Olympics proved to be short-lived, quickly drowned out by the images of the two Koreas marching and competing together, as

SK appeared to look favorably on warming ties on the Korean Peninsula. (Zekke Miller, Matthew Pennington, AP)
- Pence left SK Sat. saying the US and its allies are more committed than ever to dismantle NK's nuclear and missile development programs. (Steve Herman, VOA)
- In SK for the start of the Olympics Fri, Pence met with defectors from NK accompanied by the father of Otto Warmbier, an American who died after his release from captivity there last year. (Sara Shayanian, UPI)
- Beneath outward celebrations of the two Koreas marching together, the complex international fault-lines underpinning the Olympic détente were beginning to show. Before the ceremony, Mike Pence, had already skipped a dinner reception with the N. Korean delegation. (Nicola Smith, Telegraph)

Prepared by Emma Stubblefield, HRNK Research Intern

——————————————————

Sunday, February 11, 2018

N.K. leader's sister, delegation head back to Pyongyang after rare S.K. trip; Pence says he and his 'friend' Moon reaffirmed commitment against N.K. nukes; U.S. IOC Member Suggests Joint Korean Team for Nobel Peace Prize

In North Korea:
N.K. media carries detailed report about meeting between Moon, N.K. delegation (Yonhap, 02/11/2018)
North Korea says unable to pay U.N. dues, blames sanctions (Reuters, 02/10/2018)

In South Korea:
(LEAD) PM hosts lunch for high-level N. Korean delegation (Yonhap, 02/11/2018)
(4th LD) PM calls for Koreas to work together to create right conditions for inter-Korean summit (Yonhap, 02/11/2018)
Kim Yo-jong's historic 3-day stay here (Korea Times, 02/11/2018)
North Korean cheer masks spark outrage (Joongang Ilbo, 02/11/2018)
Seoul to work for continued inter-Korean dialogue: unification ministry (Yonhap, 02/11/2018)
Unification ministry denies report about mask worn by N.K. cheerleaders (Yonhap, 02/11/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
(LEAD) N. Korean leader's sister, delegation head back to Pyongyang after rare S. Korea trip (Yonhap, 02/11/2018)
(LEAD) Moon, N. Korean leader's sister attend N.K. art troupe's performance (Yonhap, 02/11/2018)
Don't get fooled again (Joongang Ilbo, 02/11/2018)

'Humble' Kim Yo-jong has charmed the media, but the glow is unlikely to last (Guardian, 02/11/2018)
Kim Jong Un invites South Korean president for summit: South Korea (Reuters, 02/11/2018)
Kim Jong Un's sister heads home after whirlwind SKorea visit (Washington Post, 02/11/2018)
Kim's summit invite puts Moon in a tough spot (Joongang Ilbo, 02/11/2018)
North and South Korea celebrate peace through taekwondo show (Reuters, 02/10/2018)
North Korea judged winner of diplomatic gold at Olympics (Reuters, 02/11/2018)
North Korea keeps mum on summit invite as its delegation completes South visit (Reuters, 02/11/2018)
North Korea's Summit Offer Could Test US-South Korea's United Nuclear Front (VOA, 02/11/2018)
South Korea's Moon May Be on Brink of Legacy-Defining Moment (NYT, 02/11/2018)
South Korean president invited to North Korea (Korea Times, 02/10/2018)
The Olympics could help solve the Korean crisis — if South Korea allows it (Washington Post, 02/11/2018)

International:
A hypocrite on human rights (Joongang Ilbo, 02/11/2018)
Exclusive: U.S. IOC Member Suggests Joint Korean Team for Nobel Peace Prize (NYT, 02/11/2018)
Mike Pence insists 'no daylight' between US and South Korea over talks (Telegraph, 02/11/2018)
NBC apologizes to Koreans for Olympics coverage that praised Japan's brutal occupation (Washington Post, 02/11/2018)
North Korea: US says 'no daylight' between allies despite warmer ties (BBC, 02/11/2018)
Pence says he and his 'friend' Moon reaffirmed commitment against N.K. nukes (Yonhap, 02/11/2018)

In North Korea:

- N.K.'s state media reported in detail Sunday on a meeting between the country's high-level delegation and S.K.President Moon, saying the two sides had "a frank and candid talk about improving inter-Korean relations in "a sincere and cordial atmosphere." (Yonhap)
- N.K. is unable to pay its share of the 2018 U.N. budgets because of international sanctions on its foreign exchange bank and has asked a senior U.N. official for help. (Reuters)

In South Korea:

- Prime Minister Lee Nak-yon hosted lunch Sunday for a high-level N.K. delegation, including the sister of leader KJU and the country's ceremonial head of state. (Yonhap)
- Prime Minister Lee Nak-yon said Sunday that S.K. and N.K. should work actively together to create the right conditions for a meeting between President Moon and KJU. (Yonhap)
- KJU's sister stole the limelight at the PyeongChang Winter Olympic during her historic three-day stay in S.K. Her presence in S.K. was enough to draw much attention from both South Koreans and the international community. (Kim Rahn, Korea Times)
- N.K.s cheerleading squad sparked a fracas between opposing S.K. lawmakers when the cheerleaders used masks depicting a Korean man that resembled young Kim Il-sung. It later turned out to be a false assumption by S.K. lawmakers. (Esther Chung, Joongang Ilbo)
- S.K.'s unification ministry said Sunday that the government will make efforts to help continue inter-Korean dialogue sparked by the North's high-level delegation visit, expecting relations to take a drastic turn if certain conditions are created. (Yonhap)

- The unification ministry on Sunday denied a local news report that the image of N.K.'s late founding leader Kim Il-sung appeared on the mask worn by N.K. cheerleaders during an ice hockey match involving the unified team of the two Koreas. (Yonhap)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- Kim Yo-jong, the younger sister of KJU and a high level delegation, wrapped up a rare three-day trip to S.K. on Sunday, which Seoul describes a sign of improving bilateral relations despite skepticism expressed by the U.S. (Yonhap)
- President Moon attended a N.K. art troupe's concert in Seoul on Sunday, expressing hopes that the reconciliatory mood for inter-Korean dialogue would be maintained going forward. (Yonhap)
- Pyongyang's about-face shows that international sanctions are working. Seoul must not deviate from the sanctions front. Otherwise, it cannot take the driver's seat in the peninsula issue. (Joongang Ilbo)
- With her 'deadly side-eye' and 'nimble' ways, the sister of KJU has been the centre of attention since she arrived at the Winter Games. As her brother's envoy, she has been deployed to show a softer side of N.K. Did this strategy work? (Benjamin Haas, Guardian)
- KJU invited Moon for talks in Pyongyang, setting the stage for the first meeting of Korean leaders in more than 10 years. (Hyonhee Shin, Soyoung Kim, Reuters)
- KJU's sister headed home Sunday night after a whirlwind three days in S.K., where she sat among world dignitaries at the Olympics and tossed a diplomatic offer to the South aimed at ending seven decades of hostility. (Kim Tong-Hyung, AP)
- KJU's summit invite will test Moon's arbitration ability as he's caught between his desire to engage with KJU and the U.S.' continued stance that N.K. ought to face tougher pressure and harsher sanctions. (Joongang Ilbo)
- Taekwondo athletes from N.K. and S.K. produced a stunning demonstration in Gangwon as sporting diplomacy took center stage alongside kicking, screaming and flying planks of wood on Saturday. (Reuters)
- N.K. has emerged as the early favorite to grab one of the Winter Olympics' most important medals: the diplomatic gold. N.K. has used the Games to drive a wedge between S.K. and the U.S. and to potentially ease pressure on its sanctions-crippled state. (Reuters)
- N.K.'s delegation sent to the Winter Olympics held "frank and candid" talks with Moon, but it made no mention of the North's invitation to Moon to Pyongyang for a summit. (Christine Kim, Reuters)
- KJU's invitation to Moon to visit Pyongyang could complicate the Trump administration's diplomatic efforts to pressure the reclusive communist state to abandon its nuclear weapons program. (Jong Su Oh, VOA)
- With an invitation to meet KJU in Pyongyang, personally delivered by KJU's sister during the first-ever peacetime visit to S.K. by a member of the N.K. ruling family, Moon may be on the brink of a legacy-defining moment. (AP)
- KJU has invited S.K. President Moon Jae-in to visit Pyongyang. The invitation was delivered via a verbal message from Kim's sister, Kim Yo-jong. (Kim Rahn, Korea Times)
- The N.K. delegation extended an invitation for Moon to visit Pyongyang — as fortuitous an opportunity for dialogue as one might hope for under the circumstances. (Sergey Radchenko, Washington Post)

International:

- Is Trump really qualified to discuss human rights when his immigration policy separates so many families and causes such great pain to so many immigrants in the U.S.? (Shim Jae-woo, Joongang Ilbo)
- A senior American member of the IOC called on Sunday for N.K. and S.K.'s joint women's ice hockey team to be nominated for the Nobel Peace Prize. (Reuters)
- Mike Pence has insisted "there is no daylight" among the U.S. and allies S.K. and Japan over their stance on Pyongyang. (Telegraph)
- NBC apologized to Koreans for its comment “every Korean will tell you that Japan as a cultural and technological and economic example has been so important to their own transformation.” (Avi Selk, Washington Post)
- US Vice-President Mike Pence has said his country and S.K. are in complete agreement on the need to maintain pressure on N.K. (BBC)
- U.S. Vice President Mike Pence said he and his "friend," S.K. President Moon Jae-in, reaffirmed their commitment to denuclearizing N.K. (Yonhap)

Prepared by James Park, HRNK Research Intern

——————————————————

Monday, February 12, 2018

Most N.Koreans think unification is necessary: U.S. study; Kang eyes creative post-Olympics diplomacy following N.K. summit proposal; Pence says talks with Pyongyang could be possible

In North Korea:
How Kim Yo Jong signals a change in North Korea's strategy (Daily NK, 02/12/2018)
Most N. Koreans think unification is necessary: U.S. study (Yonhap, 02/12/2018)
North Korean army oil embezzler sentenced to execution (Daily NK, 02/12/2018)
North Koreans finally hear about defector soldier's dash across DMZ (Daily NK, 02/12/2018)

In South Korea:
Kang eyes creative post-Olympics diplomacy following N.K. summit proposal (Yonhap, 02/12/2018)
Parties divided over inter-Korean summit (Yonhap, 02/12/2018)
President wobbling on tightrope (Joongang Daily, 02/13/2018)
Younger South Koreans are deeply skeptical of North Korea’s diplomatic offensive (Washington Post, 02/12/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
(LEAD) N.K. art troupe returns home after holding Olympic performances (Yonhap, 02/12/2018)

(LEAD) N.K. says high-level delegation made 'meaningful' S. Korea trip for better ties (Yonhap, 02/12/2018)
(LEAD) Two Koreas united in taekwondo demonstration in Seoul (Yonhap, 02/12/2018)
Moon mulls envoy to Pyongyang (Joongang Daily, 02/13/2018)
North Korea's Olympic Offensive Opens Door for Diplomacy (VOA, 02/12/2018)
North Korean media shows optimism for inter-Korean ties (UPI, 02/12/2018)
Seohyun sings with North Korean orchestra (Joongang Daily, 02/13/2018)
Seoul expresses optimism amid possibility of holding inter-Korean summit (UPI, 02/12/2018)
UPDATE 1-Seoul seeks communication, lower military tension ahead of possible N.Korea summit (Reuters, 02/11/2018)
What Moon should have said (Joongang Daily, 02/13/2018)

International:
Bach on Koreas: 'Now it's for politics to take over' (Washington Post, 02/12/2018)
China's envoy met with N. Korean delegation during Olympic visit: Beijing (Yonhap, 02/12/2018)
Disconnect between US and South Korea grows amid rapprochement with North (Guardian, 02/12/2018)
Exclusive: IOC boss to visit North Korea after winter Games (Reuters, 02/12/2018)
Exclusive: U.S. IOC member suggests joint Korean team for Nobel Peace Prize (Reuters, 02/11/2018)
Head held high, Kim's sister returns to North Korea (Reuters, 02/12/2018)
In Olympic corner of Asia, web of relationships is complex (Washington Post, 02/12/2018)
Is North Korea really winning the soft power Olympics? (Washington Post, 02/12/2018)
It's not Olympics but Polympics (Korea Times, 02/12/2018)
Mattis: North Korea cannot drive wedge between the US and South Korea (CNN, 02/11/2018)
Mattis says too early to tell if Olympic thaw between Koreas will lead to results (Reuters, 02/11/2018)
Mike Pence says US is willing to talk to North Korea as Japan warns against 'smile diplomacy' (Telegraph, 02/12/2018)
Moon, Abe clash over military drill, comfort women (Korea Times, 02/11/2018)
NK-US dialogue essential for inter-Korean summit (Korea Times, 02/11/2018)
North Korea's Olympics delegation leaves thorny questions behind (CNN, 02/12/2018)
North Korea heads for diplomacy gold medal at Olympics: analysts (Reuters, 02/11/2018)
North Korea won Pyeongchang political gold, but what's next? (Washington Post, 02/12/2018)
Nukes can't win peace (Joongang Daily, 02/13/2018)
Pence: U.S. ready for talks with North Korea (UPI, 02/12/2018)
Pence's Olympic trip a 'missed opportunity' for North Korea diplomacy, source says (CNN, 02/12/2018)
Pence could have done better (Korea Times, 02/11/2018)
Pence raises prospect of talks with North Korea alongside 'intensified' pressure (Reuters, 02/12/2018)
Pence raises prospect of U.S. talks with North Korea: Washington Post (Reuters, 02/11/2018)
Pence says he and his 'friend' Moon reaffirmed commitment against N.K. nukes (Korea Times, 02/12/2018)
Pence says talks with Pyongyang could be possible (Joongang Daily, 02/13/2018)
Real challenge after PyeongChang (Korea Times, 02/11/2018)
Rushing headlong (Joongang Daily, 02/13/2018)
Tillerson says it's 'up to North Korea' to engage in talks with US (CNN, 02/12/2018)
US's Tillerson: 'too early to tell' if Koreas really talking (Washington Post, 02/12/2018)

In North Korea:

- While Kim Yo Jong may not technically hold the same power as her great uncle, Kim Yong Ju did in 1972, some experts believe that KJU relies heavily on her for advice and that her visit should thus be considered significant. Furthermore, undertaking a potential risk to her personal safety in traveling to the SK, among other logistical issues, is a sign of a breakthrough in NK-SK relations. (Daily NK)
- Most N.Koreans think reunification with SK is necessary, with many of them citing shared ethnicity as the main reason, according to a recent US study. (Yonhap)
- A N.Korean military officer has been sentenced to execution on charges of embezzling state property. The officer, a rear guard supply head in the Second Division of the First Corps, was stationed in Ipo-ri, Kumgang County, Kangwon Province. (Kim Chae-Hwan, Daily NK)
- News of the N.Korean soldier who made a daring escape across the heavily militarized Korean border has just broken in NK and is captivating residents, reports an inside source. (Kang Mi Jin, Daily NK)

In South Korea:

- SK's top diplomat promised to pull through new diplomatic challenges actively and creatively Mon. after NK invited the SK's president to an inter-Korean summit. (Yonhap)
- The leader of the ruling Democratic Party said Mon. that a summit between Moon and N.Korean leader KJU would serve as a meaningful first step toward denuclearizing the Korean Peninsula. But conservative parties voiced opposition to a summit unless denuclearization is agreed. (Yonhap)
- S.Korean President Moon was involved in a lot of diplomacy on the sidelines of the Winter Olympic Games, but concerns are being raised that he failed to achieve a balance in his dealing with NK and the US. (Yoo Jee-hye, Ser Myo-ja, Joongang Daily)
- There has been a pronounced shift in attitudes in SK. Unlike their parents and grandparents, younger S.Koreans don't see unification as a clear national goal—despite a national education curriculum that presents it as such. Instead, they worry about what will happen to their own standards of living if SK is suddenly tethered to one of the world's economic weaklings. (Chico Harlan, Yoonjung Seo, Washington Post)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- A N.Korean art troupe returned home Mon. after holding two rare performances in SK in celebration of the PyeongChang Winter Olympics. (Yonhap)
- NK's state media said Mon. its high-level delegation has made a "meaningful" trip to SK that improved stalled inter-Korean relations. (Yonhap)
- S.Korean and N.Korean taekwondo teams jointly demonstrated the traditional martial art in Seoul on Mon. as part of a celebration for the PyeongChang Winter Olympics. (Yonhap)
- Now that N.Korean leader KJU has invited President Moon to Pyongyang for a summit, sources in the Blue House said they are contemplating how, and in what format, Seoul is going to formally respond. (Wi Moon-hee, Kim Hyoung-gu, Joongang Daily)
- NK's Olympic charm offensive has worked to improve its image among many S.Koreans, while the US indicates new openness to dialogue. (Brian Padden, VOA)

- N.Korean media says the visit of Pyongyang officials to SK proved to be a "meaningful momentum in improving inter-Korean relations." (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- The S.Korean singer Seohyun of pop group Girls' Generation made a surprise appearance during NK's Samjiyon Orchestra's performance, singing "Our Hope," which expresses hopes for reunification, and the N.Korean song "Until We Meet Again" in a collaboration that was decided the day of the performance after persuasion from officials at the Blue House. (Hong You-kyoung, Joongang Daily)
- The S.Korean government says it will cooperate with NK to arrange President Moon's trip to Pyongyang, expressing hope for continued progress in improving inter-Korean relations. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- SK said on Mon. it will try to arrange more reunions for families divided by the Korean War and seek to lower military tensions with NK as the first steps towards establishing grounds for a rare summit between the two Koreas. (Reuters Staff, Reuters)
- Moon's response of "Let's create the environment to make that happen" and request to NK to "more actively seek dialogue with the US" was an ambiguous answer to KJU's summit proposal. The author, Chun Young-gi argues that Moon should have been more firm and active when accepting the summit proposal. (Chun Young-gi, Joongang Daily)

International:

- President Thomas Bach believes the IOC has done its part in getting North Korea and South Korea together at the Pyeongchang Olympics. The ball's now in the court of the divided nation. (Stephen Wade, AP)
- A high-ranking Chinese official met with Kim Yong-nam, the president of the Presidium of the N.Korean assembly, during their visits to SK last week, China's foreign ministry confirmed Mon. (Yonhap)
- SK has announced it will press ahead with improving ties with NK, arranging family reunions between those divided by the Korean war and seeking to cool military tensions–despite the US's commitment to a policy of "maximum pressure" on KJU. (Guardian)
- International Olympic Committee (IOC) President Thomas Bach plans to visit NK after the Pyeongchang Winter Olympics, cementing ties with the reclusive state which used the event to restart political dialogue with SK. (Karolos Grohmann, Reuters)
- A senior American member of the International Olympic Committee (IOC) called on Sun for NK and SK's joint women's ice hockey team to be nominated for the Nobel Peace Prize. (Karolos Grohmann, Reuters)
- In her first appearance on the global stage, Kim Yo Jong, the sister of N.Korean leader KJU, had her every move closely scrutinized. Crowds applauded as she stood for the S.Korean anthem during the opening ceremony for the start of the Winter Olympic Games, while her big smiles and relaxed manner left a largely positive impression on the S.Korean public. But her sometimes aloof expression and high-tilted chin also spoke of someone who sees herself "of royalty" and "above anyone else", leadership experts and some critics said. (Christine Kim, Reuters)
- The political relationships between the two Koreas, China, Japan, along with the US are complex and fraught with the weight of history. The Associated Press' experts prepared a background briefing of the percolating politics in this region where the Olympics are unfolding. (The Associated Press)

- While in SK, the DPRK delegation participated in diplomatic niceties with the S.Korean government, most notably by extending an invitation to S.Korean President Pyongyang for a summit with N.Korean despot KJU while Pence made headlines for doing three things: warning about the horrors of the NK regime, not standing when the unified Korean team entered the Olympic Stadium for the Opening Ceremonies and largely snubbing the main reception dinner. (Daniel W. Dresser, Washington Post)
- The PyeongChang Olympics deserves to be called "Polympics" with a capital P standing for politics of a complicated brand — with fierce, divisive, unifying and confusing elements — which may reset the existing order on the Korean Peninsula and affect the global one, as well. (Oh Young-jin, Korea Times)
- Secretary of Defense James Mattis says "there's no wedge" between the US and SK, despite recent overtures between SK and NK. (Aileen Graef, CNN)
- US Defense Secretary Jim Mattis said on Sun. it was too early to tell whether a diplomatic detente between the two Koreas at the Winter Olympics would lead to results, but the move had not driven a wedge between Washington and Seoul. (Idrees Ali, Reuters)
- US vice president Mike Pence has raised the prospect of direct talks between Washington and NK, outlining a stance of "maximum pressure and engagement at the same time." (Danielle Demetriou, Telegraph)
- Longstanding tension between Korea and Japan is unlikely to ease, with President Moon and Japanese Prime Minister Shinzo Abe clashing over serious diplomatic and historic issues—again. (Choi Ha-young, Korea Times)
- NK has invited President Moon to visit there, but it may not happen unless Pyongyang shows willingness toward denuclearization in talks with Washington. (Kim Bo-eun, Korea Times)
- NK's delegation to the Winter Olympics returned to Pyongyang on Sun., ending a three-day visit that amounted to a remarkable diplomatic breakthrough for the S.Korean government but left big questions about whether it could lead to a solution to the decades-long military standoff between the two nations. (Sheen McKenzie, Joshua Berlinger, CNN)
- An assessment of a former S.Korean government minister and political experts who say NK has used the Games to drive a wedge between SK and the US and to potentially ease pressure on its sanctions states that NK has emerged as the early favorite to grab one of the Winter Olympics' most important medals: the diplomatic gold. (Soyoung Kim, James Pearson, Reuters)
- NK won the political gold medal at Pyeongchang just by showing up as KJU scored some badly needed publicity points by sending his little sister to the games and extending an invitation to S.Korean President Moon to come to Pyongyang in the near future. (Eric Talmadge, AP)
- The world's attention is now on the two Koreas after Kim Yo-jong delivered her brother's written invitation to Moon to attend a summit in Pyongyang, to which the S.Korean leader politely suggested would be possible when conditions are right. Seoul, Pyongyang and Washington have all laid down their cards as the peninsula once again enters a testing time at the crossroads of peace and war. (Lee Ha-kyung, Joongang Daily)
- Amid SK's efforts to promote dialogue between the US and NK, US Vice President Mike Pence reportedly signaled that Washington is ready for talks, marking a notable change of stance. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- US Vice President Mike Pence's trip to SK for the PyeongChang Winter Olympics has been called "a missed opportunity" by a senior diplomatic source close to NK. (Will Ripley, CNN)

- US Vice President Mike Pence snubbing Kim Yo-jong, sister of NK's leader KJU, and the nominal head of NK, Kim Yong-nam—for whatever Pence's reasons—does not reflect well on him or on the US. (Lyman McLallen, Korea Times)
- Comments by US Vice President Mike Pence suggest the US may be looking more favorably at diplomatic engagement with NK as SK considers a rare summit with its neighbor and long-time foe. (Christine Kim, Matt Spetalnick, Reuters)
- The US and SK have agreed on terms for further diplomatic engagement with NK, first with Seoul and then possibly leading to direct talks with Washington without pre-conditions, Vice President Mike Pence said in a newspaper interview published on Sun. (Reuters Staff, Reuters)
- US Vice President Mike Pence said he and his "friend," S.Korean President Moon, reaffirmed their commitment to denuclearizing NK. (Korea Times)
- US Vice President Mike Pence indicated that he and President Moon came to some agreement behind the scenes that could lead to direct talks without preconditions between Washington and Pyongyang after the Winter Olympics. (Joongang Daily)
- The real challenge for the alliance will follow the closure of the Olympics. The first test will begin with discussions to resume joint military exercises suspended until after the Olympics. The discussions could deal with the timing, scale, or duration of resumed joint drills. KJU has already demanded an end to them. (Tong Kim, Korea Times)
- This time, a summit must achieve the goal of denuclearization. In that sense, what is more important for the Moon administration is sending an envoy to Washington, not Pyongyang. SK's diplomacy with the US does not seem to follow the remarkable pace of inter-Korean contacts. Washington harbors strong suspicions about the Moon administration being dragged into NK's peace offensives. Without progress in Washington-Pyongyang relations, inter-Korean summits cannot achieve much. (Joongang Daily)
- Secretary of State Rex Tillerson said Mon. it will be "up to NK" to decide when it is ready to engage in serious and meaningful diplomatic talks with the US. (Michelle Kosinski, Maegan Vazquez, CNN)
- US Secretary of State Rex Tillerson says "it's too early to tell" if recent signs of overture between NK and SK at the Olympics mean that a genuine political process is beginning. (Associated Press)

Prepared by Jinny Ahn, HRNK Research Intern

——————————————————

Tuesday, February 13, 2018

N.K. slams U.N. sanctions days after attempted Olympics charm offensive; Kim Jong Un 'impressed' with South Korea's efforts; Pence raises prospect of talks with N.K. while applying 'maximum pressure'

Top News:
North Korea slams U.N. sanctions days after attempted Olympics charm offensive (CBS News, 02/12/2018)
North Korea: US criticism of its rights shows fear of nukes (Washington Post, 02/12/2018)

In North Korea:
Corruption blamed for poor quality of snacks distributed to children for leader's birthday (DailyNK, 02/13/2018)
How Kim Jong Un's sister fueled Trump's war on the media (Washington Post, 02/13/2018)
Kim Jong-un is 'impressed' by recent trip: KCNA (Joongang Ilbo, 02/13/2018)
Kim Jong Un 'impressed' with South Korea's efforts, state media says (CNN, 02/13/2018)
Kim Jong Un Meets High-Level Delegation (nkleadershipwatch, 02/13/2018)
Kim Jong-un praises South Korea's warm welcome for Winter Olympics after sister's visit (Telegraph, 02/13/2018)
Kim Jong-un praises 'sincere, impressive' South Korea (Guardian, 02/12/2018)
Kim Yo-jong and North Korea's secret weapon (BBC, 02/13/2018)
KJU Attends Photo-op with Samjiyo'n Orchestra (nkleadershipwatch, 02/13/2018)
North Korea dials down border propaganda after Games open (Reuters, 02/13/2018)
North Koreans 'lap up reports of soldier's daring defection' (Telegraph, 02/13/2018)
PPJ Visits Construction of Wo'nsan Tourist Zone (nkleadershipwatch, 02/13/2018)
What Kim Jong-un's new photo tells us about North Korea (BBC, 02/13/2018)
Year after Kim's killing, suspected masterminds evade trial (Washington Post, 02/13/2018)

In South Korea:
Confidante of disgraced South Korean president sentenced to 20 years in prison (Washington Post, 02/13/2018)
Human rights activists defy North Korea's Olympics charm offensive (UPI, 02/13/2018)
Olympic uniforms combine form and function (Joongang Ilbo, 02/13/2018)
N.K. cheering squad stages surprise performance during trip to tourist attraction (Yonhap, 02/13/2018)
North Korea's cheerleaders amaze and appeal at Winter Olympics (Guardian, 02/12/2018)
North Korean defector at State of Union speech touts Trump (Washington Post, 02/13/2018)
Ruling party calls for reunions of separated families amid warming inter-Korean ties (Yonhap, 02/13/2018)
Seoul to review plan to bankroll N. Korea's Olympic participation (Yonhap, 02/13/2018)
South Korea's Olympic Diplomacy Makes Slow but Steady Progress (VOA, 02/13/2018)
Sweden eliminates inter-Korean team (Joongang Ilbo, 02/13/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
(LEAD) Kim Jong-un vows to continue reconciliation between Koreas (Yonhap, 02/13/2018)
(News Focus) N. Korea's summit offer builds pressure on Moon (Yonhap, 02/13/2018)
A double-edged sword (Joongang Ilbo, 02/13/2018)
Military talks likely to be first inter-Korean dialogue following visit by N.K. leader's sister: official (Yonhap, 02/13/2018)
Moon in dilemma over joint drills (Korea Times, 02/13/2018)
North and South Koreans develop friendships on the ice (Joongang Ilbo, 02/13/2018)
North and South Korea must remember that Trump is watching them (CNN, 02/13/2018)
North Korean leader bolsters peace offensive (Korea Times, 02/13/2018)

Never Mind the Minders: United Korea Team Bonds to K-pop (Reuters, 02/13/2018)
S. Korea: N. Korea holds key to military talks (Yonhap, 02/13/2018)
The prodigal Kim (Joongang Ilbo, 02/13/2018)

International:
(Olympics) (Yonhap Interview) IOC boss discussed N. Korean sports with Pyongyang's top Olympic delegation (Yonhap, 02/13/2018)
IOC President to Visit North Korea After Games (VOA, 02/12/2018)
Japan PM Abe: Confirmed with Moon need for maximum pressure on North Korea (Reuters, 02/12/2018)
Mattis: Too early to judge inter-Korean talks (Yonhap, 02/13/2018)
Pence raises prospect of talks with North Korea while applying 'maximum pressure' (Reuters, 02/13/2018)
State Dept., NSC say U.S. open to engagement (Joongang Ilbo, 02/13/2018)
The Latest: Intel chief testifies about North Korean nukes (Washington Post, 02/13/2018)
Tillerson: Up to N. Korea to choose talks with U.S. (Yonhap, 02/13/2018)
Tillerson: Up to North Korea to Engage in Talks (VOA, 02/12/2018)
Trump tells Putin more steps needed to scrap North Korea nuclear program (Reuters, 02/13/2018)
U.S. intelligence chief says North Korea 'decision time' is near (Reuters, 02/13/2018)
US intel chief says risk of global conflict highest since Cold War (CNN, 02/13/2018)

Top News:

- N.K.'s U.N. mission expressed displeasure with Trump's invitation of Ji Seung-ho, a N.K. defector, to the STOU address and Nikki Haley's critique of a U.N. committee that rejected non-government status to HRNK. (Pamela Falk, CBS News)
- The DPRK's U.N. Mission criticized Trump for inviting a N.K. defector to the STOU address and Nikki Haley for trying to reverse a U.N. committee's denial of accreditation to HRNK. (Edith M. Lederer, AP)

In North Korea:

- The tradition of giving snacks and clothes to children has continued since 1977 in N.K. However, as the economy ran into difficulties, mostly due to corruption, the quality of snacks and clothes have been increasingly poor. (Seol Song Ah, DailyNK)
- Kim Yo Jong went to the Olympics on a propaganda mission for her brother KJU, but her trip also helped advance a favorite narrative of President Trump's — that the media is his enemy. (Callum Borchers, Washington Post)
- N.K.s state-run media said that KJU expressed "satisfaction" over the outcome of his sister's recent visit to the South and that he gave "important instructions" for the improvement of inter-Korean relations. (Lee Sung-eun, Joongang Ilbo)
- KJU has praised S.K. for its "very impressive" and "sincere" efforts in hosting the North's high-level delegation during the opening of the Winter Olympics. (Steve George, CNN)
- KJU held a meeting in central Pyongyang on Monday with members of the high-level DPRK delegation that visited ROK to attend the opening of the Pyeongchang Winter Olympics. (nkleadershipwatch)

- KJU has praised the welcome the South gave his sister and said it was important to build on the Olympics-driven momentum for dialogue on the divided peninsula. (Agence France-Presse, Telegraph)
- KJU has praised the "warm climate of reconciliation and dialogue" after a delegation returned from their three-day visit to the South for the Winter Olympics. (Benjamin Haas, Guardian)
- It turns out KJU doesn't need to fire off a missile to get the world's attention. He has a number of far more powerful weapons in his arsenal: his female envoys. (BBC)
- KJU's last observed appearance was a commemorative photo-op on February 12 with the high-level delegation that attended the Winter Olympics Opening Ceremony. (nkleadershipwatch)
- N.K. has lowered the volume of its border propaganda broadcasts at the inter-Korean Demilitarized Zone (DMZ) since Friday's Winter Olympics opening ceremony. (James Pearson, Reuters)
- North Koreans have been "captivated" after finally learning of the daring defection of a soldier through the Joint Security Area at Panmunjom in November. (Julian Ryall, Telegraph)
- DPRK state media reported that Premier and State Affairs Commission Vice Chairman Pak Pong-chun visited the construction of the Wo'nsan-Kalma tourist zone. (nkleadershipwatch)
- N.K.'s state media indicated that KJU was delighted with the outcome of his country's attendance at the Winter Olympics. Accompanying the report was an unusually relaxed picture of KJU with his sister and the head of state. (BBC)
- Two women stand accused of a crime that could send them to the gallows — the stunning assassination of KJU's estranged half-brother. (Eileen Ng and Eric Talmadge, AP)

In South Korea:

- Choi Soon-sil, the confidante of former S.K. president Park Geun-hye was sentenced to 20 years in prison and fined almost $17 million for her role in a huge corruption scandal that led to Park's impeachment. (Anna Fifield, Washington Post)
- The visit from a high-profile N.K. delegation during the 2018 Pyeongchang Winter Olympics is not a sign of progress on the peninsula, human rights activists and S.K. politicians said Tuesday. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- Uniforms are not a core part of the Games, but their designs representing each country offer a bit of color to the event. (Song Kyoung-son, Joongang Ilbo)
- N.K.'s cheerleaders visiting S.K. for the PyeongChang Winter Olympics staged a surprise performance Tuesday during their trip to a tourist attraction in Gangneung, a sub-host city of the Olympics. (Yonhap)
- N.K. outnumber the North's athletes and captured global attention at Winter Olympics but a cultural chasm remains. (Benjamin Haas, Guardian)
- Ji Seong-ho, who was singled out by Trump as a living example of the North's atrocities said Tuesday that Trump had set a milestone in international efforts to improve N.K.'s human rights situation when he invited him and other defectors to his office. (Youkyung Lee, AP)
- The floor leader of the ruling Democratic Party called for reunions of separated families between two Koreas, saying it is the most urgent issue to address in expanding cooperation and exchanges between the two sides. (Yonhap)
- S.K. will this week review a motion to bankroll N.K.'s ongoing participation in the 2018 PyeongChang Winter Olympic Games. (Yonhap)

- Moon's persistent outreach effort to reduce tensions with N.K. helped bring about the North's participation in the PyeongChang Winter Olympics, and a pause in Pyongyang's provocative missile and nuclear tests. (Brian Padden, VOA)
- The inter-Korean women's hockey team was eliminated in the preliminary round at the PyeongChang Winter Olympics on Monday, following its 0-8 loss to Sweden. (Joongang Ilbo)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- KJU pledged efforts to continue the reconciliatory mood with S.K. as he welcomed back a high-ranking N.K. delegation from their trip to the PyeongChang Winter Olympics in S.K. (Yonhap)
- KJU's surprise invitation to S.K. President Moon to visit Pyongyang has created additional pressure for the South to be tough with the provocative regime. (Yonhap)
- The conciliatory mood between the two Koreas through the momentum of the Olympics is a double-edged sword for Moon. The question is whether Moon and his team have the diplomatic capabilities to use the double-edged sword in S.K.'s favor. (Joongang Ilbo)
- Military talks are expected to be the first formal dialogue between S.K. and N.K. following an unprecedented visit to the South by a high-level delegation that included the sister of KJU. (Yonhap)
- Moon is facing a growing dilemma over S.K.'s planned military exercises with the U.S., with N.K. offering a rare gesture for warmer inter-Korean relations. (Lee Min-hyung, Korea Times)
- The Olympic rapprochement between two Koreas came so suddenly last month that women's hockey players on both sides barely had time to get to know each other when they had to hit the ice last week for their first match against Switzerland. (Park Rin, Joongang Ilbo)
- KJU's invitation of Moon to N.K. could not have been unanticipated, but it nevertheless puts S.K. in a difficult position. It is likely impossible for Moon to decline, but there are major risks involved in any talks with N.K. (Jonathan Cristol, CNN)
- KJU's peace offensive is raising speculation of further progress in inter-Korean relations. KJU is known to provide a detailed plan on developing inter-Korean relations after being briefed by his high-level delegation that visited S.K. recently. (Kim Bo-eun, Korea Times)
- They sleep in separate dorms, travel in different buses and government minders watch over them, but N.K. members of the united Korean women's ice hockey team are bonding with their team-mates from the South, thanks partly to K-pop. (Hyunjoo Jin, Dan Burns, Reuters)
- S.K.'s defense ministry said Tuesday it's still waiting for N.K.'s response to its months-old offer of military talks, maintaining its strategic ambiguity about the future of joint war games with the US. (Yonhap)
- An inter-Korean summit without understanding and cooperation from the US will be a one-time stunt at best. That is why Moon said "conditions should be met" before accepting Kim's invitation and urging N.K. to talk with the US. (Lee Hoon-beom, Joongang Ilbo)

International:

- Thomas Bach, president of the International Olympic Committee (IOC), said he discussed the state of sports in N.K. with a top delegation from Pyongyang, which included KJU's sister, at the PyeongChang Winter Games in S.K. (Yonhap)

- Olympics chief Thomas Bach will visit N.K. after the PyeongChang Winter Olympics, the International Olympic Committee said in a statement Monday. (VOA)
- Abe said on Tuesday that he and Moon had agreed that it was necessary to keep up maximum pressure on N.K. (Reuters)
- U.S. Defense Secretary Jim Mattis expressed reservations about recent talks between two Koreas, saying it's "too early" to say whether the talks are a positive sign from Pyongyang. (Yonhap)
- The US has appeared to endorse deeper post-Olympics engagement between two Koreas that could lead to direct U.S. talks, but has agreed with Seoul that sanctions must be intensified to push N.K. to denuclearize. (Christine Kim, Matt Spetalnick, Reuters)
- U.S. Vice President Mike Pence, the National Security Council (NSC) and the Department of State have been signaling a N.K. approach that combines maximum pressure alongside engagement, a slight shift in tone from before. (Sarah Kim, Joongang Ilbo)
- The Trump administration's intelligence chief says N.K.'s development of nuclear weapons poses a potentially existential threat to the US. (AP)
- U.S. Secretary of State Rex Tillerson on Monday left open the door to dialogue with N.K., saying it will be up to Pyongyang to decide when they are ready. (Yonhap)
- U.S. Secretary of State Rex Tillerson said Monday any possible negotiations with N.K. over its nuclear and ballistic missile programs can only happen if N.K. shows it is ready to engage in meaningful talks. (VOA)
- Trump, who complained last month that Moscow was "not helping us at all with N.K.," told Putin on Monday that more needs to be done to scrap Pyongyang's nuclear program. (Reuters)
- The U.S. director of national intelligence warned on Tuesday that time was running out for the US to act on the threat posed by N.K.'s nuclear weapons program. (Patricia Zengerle, Doina Chiacu, Reuters)
- US Director of National Intelligence Dan Coats warned Tuesday that the current risk of a global conflict is higher than at any time since the end of the Cold War. (Zachary Cohen, CNN)

Prepared by James Park, HRNK Research Intern

——————————————————

Wednesday, February 14, 2018

Korean Kontext: President Trump and North Korean Human Rights; South Korea approves record $2.6 million budget for North Koreans' Olympic visit

Top News:
Korean Kontext: President Trump and North Korean Human Rights (KEI, 02/13/2018)

In North Korea:

Choe Ryong Hae Visits South Hwanghae (NK Leadership Watch, 02/14/2018)
Jang Song-thaek photo-shopped out of guidance picture (NK Econ Watch, 02/13/2018)
Kim Jong Un taking cues from Hitler's 1936 Olympic strategy (Daily NK, 02/14/2018)
Loyalty Oath Meeting at Mt. Paektu (NK Leadership Watch, 02/14/2018)
N. Korea prepares for modest celebration of late leader's birthday this week: Seoul (Yonhap, 02/14/2018)
North Korean Border Guards Rotated Every Half Hour in New Security Push (RFA, 02/14/2018)
N. Korean Cheerleaders Are Tightly Controlled to Prevent Defections (VOA, 02/14/2018)
North Korean figure skaters revel in starring role on Olympic ice (CNN, 02/14/2018)
North Korean pair given warm welcome on Pyeongchang debut (Reuters, 02/13/2018)
Olympics inspire hope for increased access to South Korean goods (Daily NK, 02/14/2018)
What North Korea's Olympic delegation saw for the first time (CNN, 02/14/2018)

In South Korea:
(LEAD) Leaders of new centrist party show differences over N. Korea (Yonhap, 02/14/2018)
Leader of new party calls for sending special envoy to U.S. before N. Korea (Yonhap, 02/14/2018)
LKP leader: Ex-President Lee rejected N. Korea's summit proposal (Yonhap, 02/14/2018)
South Korea cuts down screening period for North Korean defectors (UPI, 02/13/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
(LEAD) (Olympics) Joint Korean hockey team shows signs of life in loss to Japan (Yonhap, 02/14/2018)
(LEAD) (Olympics) Joint Korean team loses to Japan in women's hockey (Yonhap, 02/14/2018)
Bill for North's participation in Games mounts (Joongang Ilbo, 02/14/2018)
Ice Hockey: Do you believe in Miracles? Korea score a goal (Reuters, 02/14/2018)
Ice Hockey: Japan win as unified Korea enjoy special moment (Reuters, 02/14/2018)
Ice hockey: Korea scores political win but loses on ice (Reuters, 02/14/2018)
Japan preparing schools for North Korea missiles (UPI, 02/14/2018)
Japan's worries about North Korea's 'charm offensive' (BBC, 02/14/2018)
N.K. cheering squad stages surprise performance during trip to tourist attraction (Yonhap, 02/13/2018)
North Korean cheerleaders caught off guard by fake Kim Jong Un (Reuters, 02/14/2018)
(Olympics) Joint Korean hockey coach calls hard-fought loss to Japan 'best game we've played in the Olympics' (Yonhap, 02/14/2018)
(Olympics) N. Korean cheerleaders make trip to alpine venue in PyeongChang (Yonhap, 02/14/2018)
(Olympics) N. Korean forward back in lineup for joint hockey team vs. Japan (Yonhap, 02/14/2018)
(Olympics) Women's hockey forward has mixed emotions after scoring momentous goal in loss (Yonhap, 02/14/2018)
Seoul approves fund to pay N. Korea's Olympic bills (Yonhap, 02/14/2018)
'So proud': Parents' views on joint Korea hockey team evolve (Washington Post, 02/14/2018)
South Korea approves record $2.6 million budget for North Koreans' Olympic visit (Reuters, 02/13/2018)
The AP Asks: What would South Koreans ask a North Korean?(Washington Post, 02/13/2018)
'We are one!' - Korean chanting is only show at the slalom (Reuters, 02/13/2018)
You know those North Korean cheering squads? South Korea will pay their bills. (Washington Post, 02/14/2018)

International:

(LEAD) Investigation underway into Latvian bank suspected of illegal dealing with N. Korea(Yonhap, 02/14/2018)
(LEAD) Ministry briefs Chinese envoy on inter-Korean ties (Yonhap, 02/14/2018)
(LEAD) Moon: U.S. expresses willingness to talk to N. Korea (Yonhap, 02/13/2018)
Admiral Says North Korea Aiming to Reunify Korean Peninsula (NYT, 02/14/2018)
A Trojan horse (Joongang Ilbo, 02/14/2018)
'Deep Down': Rivalry Between Koreas, Japan Transcends Sports (NYT, 02/14/2018)
Don't push Washington (Joongang Ilbo, 02/14/2018)
Facing US Pressure, North Korea Turns to Sports Diplomacy (VOA, 02/14/2018)
Goals on the Ice and Politics in the Air as Japan Beats Unified Korean Team (NYT, 02/14/2018)
Has North Korea's week at the Winter Olympics diminished the nuclear threat? (Guardian, 02/14/2018)
Newest target of U.S. sanctions is Latvian bank (Joongang Ilbo, 02/14/2018)
North Korean cheerleaders baffle IOC (Korea Times, 02/14/2018)
(Olympics) Japanese coach 'surprised' with joint Korean hockey team's struggles (Yonhap, 02/13/2018)
(Olympics) Ex-U.N. chief says unified Korean team can play a big role in easing tension (Yonhap, 02/13/2018)
S.Korea, Estonia agree to increase cooperation in cybersecurity (Yonhap, 02/14/2018)
S. Korean, Swedish foreign ministers to discuss ties, N. Korean nuclear issue (Yonhap, 02/14/2018)
S. Korea's top diplomat considers attending U.N. rights council meeting (Yonhap, 02/14/2018)
U.S. experts assess Pyongyang's invitation (Joongang Ilbo, 02/14/2018)
U.S. intel chief says decision time on N.K. 'ever closer' (Yonhap, 02/13/2018)
US Official: N. Korea Will Be 'Most Confrontational' Mass Destruction Threat to US, Allies (VOA, 02/13/2018)
White House: U.S. open to engaging N. Korea on denuclearization (Yonhap, 02/13/2018)

Top News:

- HRNK's Director of Programs and Editor Rosa Park, joins the Korean Economic Institute's podcast Korean Kontext to discuss HRNK's recent work and Trump's focus on North Korean human rights. (KEI)

In North Korea:

- Workers' Party of Korea [WPK]Vice Chairman, State Affairs Commission Vice Chairman and WPK Organization Guidance Department Director Choe Ryong Hae visited sites in South Hwanghae Province. (NK Leadership Watch)
- A photo from Kim Jong-il's and KJU's guidance trip to the Jagang Machine Plant on 2011-4-8 on display in a N. Korean apartment had Jang Song-thaek photoshopped out. (NK Econ Watch)
- 1936 Olympics, Nazi Germany forced the world to question whether Hitler's intentions had been misinterpreted. But just 3 years later, Hitler plunged Europe and eventually the world into World War II. The international community may therefore be more wary of despots trying to take advantage of international sporting events to spread deceptive propaganda. (Daily NK)
- Members of the DPRK central leadership traveled up to Samjiyo'n and to Mt. Paektu on February 12 (Monday).During the day, senior officials delivered flowers to the statues and monuments overlooking Lake Samji. At the night there was a loyalty oath meeting. (NK Leadership Watch)

- NK appears to be preparing modest celebratory events for late leader Kim Jong-il's birthday this week, the unification ministry said Wednesday. (Yonhap)
- N. Korean security measures along the border with China have been further tightened in recent days, following authorities' failure to stop smuggling and defections during a previously declared period of special vigilance. (Jieun Kim, RFA)
- The cheering faces of NK's Olympic charm offensive are carefully groomed and under constant surveillance to ensure they present an engaging image to the world, and to prevent any of them from trying to defect. (Brian Padden, VOA)
- Skating to "A Day in the Life" by The Beatles, N. Korea's figure skaters received huge cheers as they took to the ice at the Gangneung Ice Arena at the Winter Olympics in South Korea. (James Griffiths, Euan McKirdy, CNN)
- N. Korean pair skaters Ryom Tae-ok and Kim Ju-sik made their long-awaited debut at the Olympics on Wed. in front of a crowd of euphoric spectators cheering on every jump and lift. (Gabrielle Tetrault-Farber, Reuters)
- Residents in the North had expressed limited interest in the events of weeks past, but it appears that Kim Yo-jong's visit and her delivery of a handwritten note from KJU to Moon has sparked the public's curiosity. Ordinary people in NK are interested in the potential for improving inter-Korean relations if it brings an end to the current crackdown on S. Korean products in the markets as well as harsh punishment for viewing S. Korean movies and dramas. (Kang Mi Jin, Daily NK)
- Some of North Korea's delegation to the PyeongChang Olympics stepped into a very different world from the sheltered and tightly controlled version of reality they're accustomed to at home. (Paul P. Murphy, Will Ripley, Sophie Jeong, CNN)

In South Korea:

- Differences over NK, one of the most divisive issues in SK, have been cited as a key challenge facing the new Bareun Future party that was created Tues. through the merger of the center-left People's Party and the center-right Bareun Party. (Yonhap)
- A leader of the newly created minor opposition Bareun Future Party said Wed. the government should send a special envoy to the US first to further solidify the alliance with Washington before sending one to NK. (Yonhap)
- Kim Jong-il proposed holding a summit with then-S. Korean President Lee Myung-bak on condition that SK recognize the NK's nuclear weapons, but Lee rejected the proposal, the leader of the main opposition Liberty Korea Party said Wed. Hong Joon-pyo disclosed the alleged proposal, which was not mentioned even in Lee's memoir, published in January 2015, as part of efforts to underscore his point that Moon should not pursue a summit with NK without discussion on denuclearization. (Yonhap)
- The S. Korean government will reduce the screening period for N. Korean defectors from 180 days to a maximum of 90 days after entry to the South. (Jennie Oh, UPI)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- Another game, another loss for the joint Korean women's hockey team at the Olympics. But in falling to Japan 4-1 to close out Group B play on Wed., Korea showed some signs of life. And that's encouraging because the team still has two more games left to play. (Yoo Jee-ho,Yonhap)
- The joint Korean women's hockey team suffered its third straight loss at the Olympics on Wed, falling to Japan 4-1. (Yoo Jee-ho, Yonhap)
- In addition to the 2.86 billion won, the Unification Ministry already approved money for the N. Korean advance teams' visits last month. The ministry approved 27 million won on Jan. 26 to cover the trip of Hyon Song-wol, leader of North Korea's Samjiyon Orchestra, on Jan. 21 and 22, and an advance team of athletes who visited the South from Jan. 25 to 27. More money will later be approved and spent to accommodate 150 N. Korean athletes who will participate in the Paralympic Games from March 9 to 18. (Chun Su-jin, Jeong Yong-soo, Joongang Ilbo)
- It is rare the US and NK have reason to celebrate together but Randi Heesoo Griffin gave them one on Wed when she scored the united Korean women's ice hockey team's first and only Olympic goal in a 4-1 loss to Japan. (Steve Keating, Reuters)
- Japan carried the day on Wed. when the long-time national rivalry with North Asian neighbors NK and SKspilled on to Olympic ice, beating Korea's unified women's ice hockey team 4-1 in a game of firsts for both teams. (Dan Burns, Steve Keating, Reuters)
- With talk of a gold medal in diplomacy and a Nobel Peace Prize the united Korean women's ice hockey team bowed out of the Olympics proper on Wed. with a handshake and a sense of achievement but without a win. (Steve Keating, Reuters)
- The Japanese government has decided to add guidelines on missile evacuation for schools in a move that signals ongoing wariness about NK despite an inter-Korea detente on the peninsula. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- Japanese Prime Minister Shinzo Abe's foreign minister, Taro Kono, told BBC he was worried S. Koreans could be taken in by the North's "charm offensive". (Rupert Wingfield-Hayes, BBC)
- NK's cheerleaders visiting the South for the Olympics staged a surprise performance Tues. during their trip to a tourist attraction in Gangneung, a sub-host city of the Olympics. (Yonhap)
- A group of N. Korean cheerleaders were briefly wowed by the apparent, sudden arrival of their leader, KJU at an Olympic ice hockey game on Wed. But it was just an impersonator named Howard who smiled and waved to crowds that came to watch a unified Korean team play Japan. (James Pearson, Jin Hyon-joo, Reuters)
- The joint Korean women's hockey team played so well in a loss to Japan at the Winter Games on Wed. that its coach called it "the best game we've played in the Olympics." (Yoo Jee-ho, Yonhap)
- N. Korean cheerleaders on Wed. made their way to an alpine skiing venue at the Olympics in SK, though they didn't get to watch their compatriot's performance due to the event being rescheduled. (Joo Kyung-don, Yonhap)
- N. Korean forward Jong Su-hyon returned to the lineup of the joint Korean women's hockey team at the Olympics on Wednesday. (Yoo Jee-ho, Yonhap)
- After scoring a momentous goal in a loss, joint Korean women's hockey team forward Randi Heesoo Griffin was feeling a mixed bag of emotions on Wed. It was the first goal by a Korean hockey team, male or female, in the Olympics. (Yoo Jee-ho, Yonhap)

- SK on Wed. approved a plan to use a government fund to support NK's participation in the Olympics. 2.86 billion won (US$2.64 million) in spending from the government budget for inter-Korean cooperation to pay the Olympic bills was passed.(Yonhap)
- When the Koreas suddenly began the push to form a joint Olympic team in women's hockey, angry parents of S. Korean players considered public demonstrations against the notion. Once the Olympics opened, though, attitudes started changing with the amount of attention the team was getting. (Kim Hyung-jin, AP)
- SK approved on Wed. the use of a record 2.86 billion won ($2.64 million) to bankroll the cost of hosting hundreds of visiting N. Koreans during the Olympics. (Reuters)
- Embedded in a crowd of excited South Korean Olympic fans waiting to get into a united Korea women's ice hockey match, The Associated Press posed a question:If you had the chance, what would you ask a North Korean? (Eric Talmadge, Kim Tong-hyun, AP)
- A friendly chanting exchange between N. Korean cheerleaders and S. Korean fans was the only show on offer at the women's slalom on Wed. as high winds wreaked more havoc on the Alpine skiing schedule. (Mark Trevelyan, Reuters)
- The S. Korean government will pick up the $2.6 million tab for NK's participation at the Olympics, agreeing Wed. to cover the costs accrued by the 500 cheerleaders, musicians, taekwondo performers and journalists. (Anna Fifield, Washington Post)

International:

- Latvia is investigating a local bank suspected of illegal trading related to NK's weapons system, the Latvian top diplomat said Wed. (Yonhap)
- A senior S. Korean official in charge of NK affairs met Wed. with the top Chinese envoy here to update him on inter-Korean relations amid an Olympics-led thaw. (Yonhap)
- Moon said Tues. the US has expressed a willingness to talk to NK. (Yonhap)
- The senior US Navy officer overseeing military operations in the Pacific says N. Korean leader KJU's long-term goal is to reunify the divided Korean Peninsula under his totalitarian regime. (AP)
- Unless the nuclear issue nears resolution, the post-PyeongChang situation won't be any different. We need to look at the bare face of KJU, not his mask. (Kim Byung-yeon, Joongang Ilbo)
- The fierce grudges over historical persecution and a thousand perceived national and cultural slights cannot be untwined from the sports for many Koreans. These swirling emotions were front and center Wed. as a combined team of N. and S.Koreans played regional power Japan in women's hockey. (AP)
- Seoul must not nag at Washington. We must not forget that NK is the source of the problem. If Pyongyang insists it cannot yield, Seoul must demand it come up with a third option. That is the only way to get US. officials to sit across from N. Koreans.(Kim Hyun-ki, Joongang Ilbo)
- The North's decision to participate in the Olympics came amid increasing international sanctions, which called for Seoul to engage in a flurry of diplomatic maneuvers to seek a temporary lifting of sanctions against Pyongyang, raising concern in Washington that Seoul was playing into the North's ploy to use the Olympics to ease sanctions. (Christy Lee, VOA)
- But for the only team to compete here with athletes from both N. and S. Korea, a 4-1 loss against Japan on Wed. night was the most painful defeat. In what has been an Olympics rife with geopolitical undertones, the game between Japan and Korea was the most political of all, pitting the unified Korean team's players against rivals from the country of their former colonial occupiers. (Mokoto Rich, AP)

- KJU's decision to send his sister Kim Yo-jong and 200 -strong cheerleading squad to the winter Olympics has has been seized upon by some as a sign of NK coming in from the cold to seek peace and even reunification. But are there really grounds for such optimism? (Tania Branigan, Guardian)
- Washington is putting sanctions on Latvia's ABLV Bank for money laundering and activities linked to NK's nuclear and missile programs, announced the US Treasury Department's Financial Crimes Enforcement Network (FinCEN) on Tues. (Sarah Kim, Joongang Ilbo)
- N. Korean cheerleaders have embarrassed the International Olympic Committee (IOC) as they turned a deaf ear to a recommendation to stop using flags that the Olympic governing body believes carries political statements. (Kang Hyun-kyung, Korea Times)
- On the eve of his team's showdown against the joint Korean team in women's hockey tournament at the Olympics, Japanese assistant coach Yuji Iizuka said Tues. he has been "surprised" with Korea's struggles so far. (Yoo Jee-ho, Yonhap)
- Former United Nations Secretary-General Ban Ki-moon said Tues. that the unified Korean women's ice hockey team and the two Koreas' joint parade at the Olympics will play a big role in easing tension on the Korean Peninsula. (Joo Kyung-don, Yonhap)
- Prime Minister Lee Nak-yon agreed Wed. to increase cooperation with Estonia in cyber security and other areas during talks with his Estonian counterpart, Juri Ratas. (Yonhap)
- S. Korean and Swedish foreign ministers will hold a meeting next week to discuss bilateral ties and cooperation on security issues, including NK's nuclear threats. (Yonhap)
- SK's top diplomat may attend a meeting of the UN Human Rights Council this month where she is expected to touch on the issues of the N. Korean human rights situation and Japan's wartime sexual slavery, informed sources said Wed. (Yonhap)
- American experts weighed in on N. Korean leader KJU's invitation for a summit with Moon, delivered by his younger sister and special envoy, Kim Yo-jong, with many expressing skepticism over whether it could lead to talks between Pyongyang and Washington. (Kim Hyun-ki, Jung Hyo-sik, Joongang Ilbo)
- US intelligence chief Dan Coats said Tues. that the time for a decision on Washington's response to NK's nuclear and ballistic missile programs is drawing "ever closer." (Yonhap)
- US National Intelligence Director Dan Coats told the Senate Intelligence Committee Tues. during its annual worldwide threats hearing that NK's weapons of mass destruction will pose a significant danger to the US and its allies in the near future. (VOA)
- The US is willing to engage NK to make clear the regime must give up its nuclear weapons, a White House National Security Council spokesperson said Tues. (Yonhap)

Prepared by Emma Stubblefield, HRNK Research Intern

Thursday, February 15, 2018

Kim Yo Jong is a Twisted Sister; The Pyeongchang Olympics is N.K.'s Winter Offensive; Pence: Any U.S. talks with N.K. would press denuclearization demand

Top News:
Kim Yo Jong is a Twisted Sister (WSJ, 02/13/2018)
The Pyeongchang Olympics is North Korea's Winter Offensive (The National Interest, 02/13/2018)
Some suggested reading following North Korea's 'PR triumph' at the Olympics (Washington Post, 02/14/2018)

In North Korea:
(LEAD) N. Korean taekwondo team returns home after four-show tour in S. Korea (Yonhap, 02/15/2018)
FinCEN designates Latvian Bank for North Korea links (nkeconwatch, 02/14/2018)
Ideological lectures say nuclear power brought together two Koreas at Olympics (DailyNK, 02/15/2018)
KPA Promotions Order Issued for the Day of the Shining Star (nkleadershipwatch, 02/15/2018)
N.K. leader fears U.S. preventative strike: defector (Yonhap, 02/15/2018)
North Korea cheerleader: 'We were on the frontline' (BBC, 02/15/2018)
North Korean ship spotted likely violating sanctions a third time (CNN, 02/14/2018)
TV footage suggests possible comeback of senior N. Korean official (Yonhap, 02/15/2018)

In South Korea:
(LEAD) Over 60 pct of S. Koreans support proposed inter-Korean summit: poll (Yonhap, 02/15/2018)
(LEAD) Moon calls for international support for N. Korea-U.S. dialogue (Yonhap, 02/15/2018)
Government approves $2.6 million spending for North Koreans' stay (Korea Times, 02/14/2018)
North Korean pair charm the South in Games adventure (Reuters, 02/15/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
'Denuclearization' should be top of agenda (Korea Times, 02/14/2018)
North Korean Cheerleaders Appear at South Korean Men's Game (NYT, 02/15/2018)

International:
(LEAD) U.S. commander: N.K. seeks reunification under communist system (Yonhap, 02/15/2018)
Admiral says North Korea aiming to reunify Korean Peninsula (Washington Post, 02/14/2018)
Any U.S. talks with North Korea would press denuclearization demand: Pence (Reuters, 02/14/2018)
At Olympics, North Korean Atrocities Overlooked by South, Overplayed by US (VOA, 02/15/2018)
Japan's Abe, Trump Agree to Keep Up Pressure on North Korea (NYT, 02/15/2018)
Mike Pence says he 'ignored' Kim Jong-un's sister at Olympics to send a message (Telegraph, 02/14/2018)
North Korean threat could require new missile defenses for western U.S. (Washington Post, 02/14/2018)
Pence draws line between talks, negotiations with N. Korea (Yonhap, 02/15/2018)
Trump Administration Denies Plan for Strike on North Korea (NYT, 02/15/2018)
US may talk with N. Korea (Korea Times, 02/14/2018)
US Vice President Mike Pence says he ignored Kim Jong Un's sister (CNN, 02/14/2018)

VOA Interview: UN Chief Antonio Guterres (VOA, 02/14/2018)

Top News:

- HRNK's latest publication From Cradle to Grave: The Path of North Korean Innocents stated that N.K.'s Propaganda and Agitation Department, where KJU's sister has served as a deputy director, plays a key role in justifying Kim family rule through propaganda and controlling the public at all levels. (Claudia Rosett, WSJ)
- HRNK Board Member Nicholas Eberstadt argues that N.K. sent a high-level delegation to S.K. with a purpose to entice S.K. to break ranks on sanctions, weaken the U.S.-ROK alliance, and earn the "breathing space" it needs to complete its nuke-missile quest. (Nicholas Eberstadt, The National Interest)
- HRNK Executive Director Greg Scarlatoiu commented on a N.K. defector Shin Dong-hyuk's admission of altering some parts of his escaping story that what truly matters is that he is a political prison camp survivor, regardless of the details of his story. (Sonny Bunch, Washington Post)

In North Korea:

- More than two dozen N.K. taekwondo performers returned home Thursday following a rare show tour in S.K. organized to mark the PyeongChang Winter Olympics. (Yonhap)
- The U.S. Department of the Treasury's Financial Crimes Enforcement Network (FinCEN) issued a finding and notice of ABLV Bank's illegal dealing with N.K. (nkeconwatch)
- The N.K. regime has recently ordered ideological training for its citizens emphasizing that the unified Korean team is a result of N.K.'s nuclear capabilities. Sources inside the country say that the training sessions are already underway. (Seol Song Ah, DailyNK)
- KJU issued a military promotions order for the occasion of the birthday of his father, late DPRK leader Kim Jong Il on February 13. (nkleadershipwatch)
- KJU has been reaching out to S.K. out of fear the U.S. will launch a preventative strike on his country, a N.K. defector who worked for the regime said Wednesday. (Yonhap)
- Former N.K. cheerleader Han Seo-hee, who defected to S.K. several years ago, describes what it was like being in the "army of beauties". (BBC)
- A N.K. tanker has likely violated UN sanctions for the third time in recent months, according to authorities in Japan. (Joshua Berlinger and Yoko Wakatsuki, CNN)
- A former N.K. top military officer, who appears to be Hwang Pyong-so, was seen standing and clapping along with key officials at the ceremony in Pyongyang, a possible sign that he has made a political comeback. (Yonhap)

In South Korea:

- Six out of ten South Koreans think the two Koreas should hold another round of bilateral summit talks amid an inter-Korean rapprochement driven by the Olympic Games currently under way in PyeongChang. (Yonhap)
- Moon called for international support to possible talks between N.K. and the U.S. as he expressed hopes that inter-Korean dialogue forged by the Winter Olympics could help set the stage for talks between the two nations. (Yonhap)

- The S.K. government decided to use the Inter-Korean Cooperation Fund to cover the cost of the North Koreans' stay in the South during the PyeongChang Winter Olympics. (Choi Ha-young, Korea Times)
- N.K. pair Ryom Tae Ok and Kim Ju Sik ended their Olympic adventure in S.K. on Thursday, winning over the home crowd's hearts even if they fell well short of a medal. (Hyunjoo Jin, Gabrielle Tetrault-Farber, Reuters)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- S.K. President Moon should make it clear that N.K. should place denuclearization on the agenda if it really wants an inter-Korean summit, according to a former high-ranking U.S. diplomat. (Kim Jae-kyoung, Korea Times)
- N.K.'s cheerleading squad made an unexpected appearance at the S.K. men's hockey game against the Czech Republic, marking their first attendance at an Olympic event not featuring a N.K. athlete. (Reuters)

International:

- A top U.S. military commander said Wednesday he believes KJU is intent on reunifying the Korean Peninsula under a single, communist system. (Yonhap)
- KJU's long-term goal is to reunify the divided Korean Peninsula under his totalitarian government, the senior U.S. Navy officer overseeing military operations in the Pacific told lawmakers Wednesday. (Richard Lardner, AP)
- The U.S. is open to talks with N.K., but only to convey the U.S. stance that "the most tyrannical and oppressive regime on the planet" must give up its nuclear weapons, U.S. Vice President Mike Pence said. (Roberta Rampton, Reuters)
- S.K.'s Olympic outreach to N.K. has raised concerns that Seoul is willing to overlook N.K. human rights abuses, while the U.S. focus on N.K. atrocities could mean to justify increased sanctions or even military action to end the N.K. nuclear threat. (VOA)
- Abe and Trump agreed to keep up pressure on N.K. until Pyongyang abandons its nuclear and missile programs, Japan's foreign ministry said. (Reuters)
- Mike Pence, the US vice president, said he deliberately "ignored" the sister of KJU at the Winter Olympics in S.K. and it would not have been proper for him to acknowledge her. (Nick Allen, Telegraph)
- N.K.'s growing missile and nuclear capability may require new U.S. investments in missile defense for the western-most U.S., the top U.S. military official for the Pacific said. (Missy Ryan, Washington Post)
- U.S. Vice President Mike Pence on Wednesday drew the line between talks and negotiations with N.K., saying President Trump "believes in" the former. (Yonhap)
- The Trump administration doesn't have a "bloody nose" strategy focused on a military strike against N.K.'s nuclear program without provoking a full-scale war. (AP)
- The U.S. appears to be cautiously considering dialogue with N.K. over denuclearization as Pyongyang has stepped up a peace offensive including a proposal for an inter-Korean summit. (Kim Jae-kyung, Kim Bo-eun, Korea Times)
- US Vice President Mike Pence said he actively chose to ignore KJU's sister at the Opening Ceremony for the PyeongChang Winter Olympics. (Joshua Berlinger, CNN)

- UN Chief Antonia Guterres: "N.K. must understand that they have to accept denuclearization, but the others must understand that denuclearization needs to be accompanied by the security guarantees that allow for it to be acceptable for N.K." (Margaret Besheer, VOA)

Prepared by James Park, HRNK Research Intern

Friday, February 16, 2018

Kim Yo Jong does not accurately represent North Korea. Here is the reality; KJU visits mausoleum of late leader to mark birthday; NK says US to pay dear price for raising human rights issue

Top News:
Kim Yo Jong does not accurately represent North Korea. Here is the reality. (Washington Post, 02/16/2018)

In North Korea:
(LEAD) Kim Jong-un visits mausoleum of late leader to mark birthday (Yonhap, 02/16/2018)
[Photos] More North Korean overseas workers return home (Daily NK, 02/16/2018)
Central Report Meeting Marking KJI's Birthday (NK Leadership Watch, 02/16/2018)
Did Kim Jong Un's 'historic' missile get a boost from old Soviet weapons? (Washington Post, 02/16/2018)
Hwang Pyong So Back after Four Month Public Absence (NK Leadership Watch, 02/16/2018)
Ideological lectures say nuclear power brought together two Koreas at Olympics (Daily NK, 02/16/2018)
KJU Visits Ku'msusan on the Day of the Shining Star (NK Leadership Watch, 02/16/2018)
Most North Koreans Can't Actually Watch the Olympic Games (NY Times, 02/15/2018)
North Korea's Kim Jong Un pays tribute on father's birth anniversary (UPI, 02/15/2018)
TV footage suggests possible comeback of senior N. Korean official (Yonhap, 02/16/2018)

In South Korea:
Majority of South Koreans back summit with North Korea (Korea Times, 02/15/2018)
Moon's chief of staff takes center stage in inter-Korean detente (Reuters, 02/15/2018)
Nearly 3,800 S. Koreans died of old age last year without reuniting with families in the North (Yonhap, 02/16/2018)
Seoul footing record tab for North Korea at 2018 Olympics (Washington Post, 02/16/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
(LEAD) N. Korean taekwondo team returns home after four-show tour in S. Korea (Yonhap, 02/16/2018)

(LEAD) Unification minister presses N. Korea to hold reunion of separated families (Yonhap, 02/16/2018)
(Olympics) Korean Olympic athletes mark Lunar New Year with joint traditional ceremony (Yonhap, 02/16/2018)
Red Cross on Korean Peninsula could be preparing for reunions (UPI, 02/16/2018)
The leaders of both Koreas feel like they won gold medals this week (Washington Post, 02/16/2018)
Winter Olympics: North Korea cheerleaders support South's ice hockey team (BBC, 02/15/2018)
With Koreas Olympic thaw, war-split families want reunions (Washington Post, 02/16/2018)

International:
(LEAD) U.S. will achieve N.K. denuclearization 'one way or another': top diplomat (Yonhap, 02/16/2018)
N. Korea says U.S. to pay dear price for raising human rights issue (Yonhap, 02/16/2018)
No 'bloody nose' plan for North Korea: U.S. official, senators (Reuters, 02/15/2018)
North Korea denounces 'Trump group' for bringing up Otto Warmbier during Olympics charm offensive (Washington Post, 02/16/2018)
Report: Ship making illicit North Korea transfer is of Chinese origin (UPI, 02/16/2018)
Seeing Bounty Abroad, Will North Koreans Change Their Homeland? (NY Times, 02/16/2018)
Sweet Distraction? North Korea's feminine touch at Olympics (Washington Post, 02/16/2018)
The Latest: Guterres urges peaceful solution on North Korea (Washington Post, 02/16/2018)
U.S. planning radars in Hawaii to deter North Korea missile (UPI, 02/15/2018)
U.S. says S. Korea followed proper procedure to pay N. Korea's Olympic bills (Yonhap, 02/16/2018)

Top News:

- Kim Yo Jong, a sister of KJU, is not the "N.Korean Ivanka." She is the deputy director of the Propaganda and Agitation Department, a senior leader of the most brutal repressive totalitarian regime on the face of the Earth. She represents the brutality of the Kim regime, yet despite this cruel reality, media outlets could not help fawning over the N.Korean delegation. (Marc A. Thiessen, Washington Post)

In North Korea:

- N.Korean leader KJU visited the Kumsusan Palace of the Sun, a national mausoleum, as the country marks the birthday of Kim's father and former leader, NK's state-run news agency reported Fri. (Yonhap)
- Ahead of the Lunar New Year holiday, Daily NK obtained photos of employees of a recently-closed N.Korean restaurant called Pyongyang Koryo Pavilion in the Chinese border city of Dandong returning home to NK. (Seol Song Ah, Daily NK)
- A central report meeting commemorating the birth anniversary of the late DPRK leader Kim Jong Il, the Day of the Shining Star, was held on the afternoon of Feb. 15 (Thurs.) at Pyongyang Indoor Stadium in central Pyongyang. Similar report meetings were held in provincial capitals, cities, county seats and at large industrial factories throughout the country. (NK Leadership Watch)
- The powerful intercontinental missile tested by NK late last year is "highly likely" to have been built with foreign blueprints or parts, according to a new technical analysis that describes multiple similarities between Pyongyang's new missile and ones built by the Soviet Union decades ago. (Joby Warrick, Washington Post)

- Hwang Pyong So has returned to an unknown position in the Workers' Party of Korea Central Committee, as he was observed in the front row at a Feb. 15 central report meeting marking KJI's birth anniversary and later joined other WPK Central Committee officials accompanying KJU on a midnight visit to Ku'msusan to pay their respects to Kim Jong Il. Hwang's last public appearance was in mid-Oct. when he attended a central report meeting marking the foundation anniversary of the DPRK's revolutionary high schools. (NK Leadership Watch)
- The N.Korean regime has recently ordered ideological training for its citizens emphasizing that the unified Korean team is a result of NK's nuclear capabilities. Sources inside the country say that the training sessions, led by the Organization and Guidance Department of the Korean Workers' Party, are already underway. (Seol Song Ah, Daily NK)
- KJU visited the Ku'msusan Memorial Palace of the Sun at midnight (NKST) on Feb. 16 (Fri.), the birth anniversary of his father, late DPRK leader Kim Jong Il. (NK Leadership Watch)
- While NK technically has free access to Olympic broadcasts, its isolated people are unlikely to watch any broadcasts from Pyeongchang, said officials and N.Korean defectors in SK. (Choe Sang-Hun, NY Times)
- NK's KJU made a public appearance on state television on Fri., to mark the birth anniversary of father Kim Jong Il, who passed away in Dec. 2011. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- A man who appears to be a disgraced former N.Korean top military officer attended a party ceremony to commemorate the birthday of late leader Kim Jong-il, footage from NK's state broadcaster indicated Thurs. (Yonhap)

In South Korea:

- Six in 10 S.Koreans favored holding an inter-Korean summit, a recent opinion poll showed. The survey of 500 people by pollster Realmeter for tbs radio Wed. showed 61.5 percent approved of the summit as a starting point for establishing peace on the Korean Peninsula. (Oh Young-jin, Korea Times)
- The liberal S.Korean president is banking on Im Jong-Seok, his Chief of Staff, and a handful of other key players, to rebuild inter-Korean ties strained by nearly a decade of conservative rule in the South and the North's accelerating nuclear and missile programs. (Hyonhee Shin, Reuters)
- Nearly 3,800 S.Koreans died of old age last year without a chance to reunite with their separated families in NK, government data showed Fri. (Yonhap)
- According to SK's Unification Ministry, that's the record amount the country has allotted to pay the bills of more than 400 N.Koreans, only 22 of whom were athletes, at the Pyeongchang Games. (Eric Talmadge, AP)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- More than two dozen N.Korean taekwondo performers returned home Thurs. following a rare show tour in SK organized to mark the PyeongChang Winter Olympics, the authorities in Seoul said. (Yonhap)

- Unification Minister Cho Myoung-gyon on Fri. called on NK to accept SK's proposal to arrange a reunion event for families separated by the 1950-53 Korean War. (Yonhap)
- S.Korean Olympic athletes took part in a joint ceremony on Fri. to mark the Lunar New Year, when Koreans pay respects to their ancestors and eat a family meal with traditional soup. (Yonhap)
- The N.Korean and S.Korean Red Cross have been in regular contact since fall, and the organizations have been confirming the status of separated family members, according to Japanese news services. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- The leaders of both Koreas have reason to celebrate as they mark the start of the Lunar New Year holiday. (Anna Fifield, Washington Post)
- NK's cheerleading squad made an unexpected appearance at SK men's ice hockey game against the Czech Republic on Thurs. It was their first attendance at an Olympic event in Pyeongchang not featuring a N.Korean athlete. (BBC)
- SK wants full-fledged, regular reunions, but NK has used the programs in the past as a way to win aid and concessions from SK. Experts say NK also worries expanded reunions would expose its citizens to influence from the more affluent South. (Hyung-jin Kim, AP)

International:

- The US will achieve the denuclearization of NK "one way or another" even though it prefers a diplomatic solution, a top US diplomat said Thurs. (Yonhap)
- NK has warned that the US will pay dearly for bringing up the topic of its human rights record, as it accused the US of kicking up a defamation campaign against Pyongyang by attributing the death of Otto Warmbier to NK. (Yonhap)
- The senior US diplomat for Asia, Susan Thornton, said on Thurs. she understood the Trump administration had no strategy for a so-called bloody nose strike on NK, but Pyongyang would be forced to give up its nuclear weapons “one way or another.” (David Brunnstrom, Reuters)
- NK clearly did not appreciate Warmbier’s efforts, or the broader efforts by the Trump administration, to remind the world of its rampant human rights abuses just as it was trying to paper over them. The Trump administration was “kicking up a fuss” about NK and trying to “tarnish” its international image by talking about Otto Warmbier’s death, the unnamed official said in the statement, published by the NK's Korean Central News Agency Fri. (Anna Fifield, Washington Post)
- A Chinese firm is the proprietor of the Belize-registered tanker seen transferring cargo to a N.Korean ship in the East China Sea on Tues., according to a recent press report. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- With 22 athletes and an entourage of around 500 cheerleaders, arts performers, journalists and security minders at the Winter Games, the N.Koreans have been subjected to endless scrutiny about what they are seeing here, and whether it is, well, blowing their minds. More broadly, analysts and officials wonder if engaging with the outside world could have a political effect back home. (Motoko Rich, NY Times)
- To pour on the charm at the Pyeongchang Olympics, NK has turned to ball-gown clad singers, pompom-waving cheerleaders and two of its most influential women. And the media, the S.Korean public and the Olympic audience worldwide seem to be thoroughly enjoying the spectacle. (Eric Talmadge, Youkyung Lee, AP)

- U.N. Secretary-General Antonio Guterres is urging policymakers "not to miss the opportunity of a peaceful resolution" to the standoff over NK's nuclear program, saying a military solution would have "catastrophic consequences." (Associated Press)
- The US is to deploy radars in Hawaii by 2023 that could enhance efforts to deter NK missiles, a Japanese newspaper reported Thurs. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- SK followed due process to pay for NK's participation in the PyeongChang Olympics despite sanctions against the regime, the US State Department said Thurs. (Yonhap)

Prepared by Jinny Ahn, HRNK Research Intern

——————————————————

Saturday, February 17, 2018

Moon says mood for inter-Korean summit not yet ripe; Lost in translation? GM plant shutdown shocks S.Korea; S.Korea joins US, Thailand in military landing drill

In North Korea:
N. Korean art troupe plays South Korean songs in Pyongyang: N. Korean media (Yonhap, 02/17/2018)
N. Korea newspaper says Pyongyang 'not thirsty' for dialogue with U.S. (Yonhap, 02/17/2018)
North Korean Holidays Drive Prices Up in Local Markets (RFA, 02/16/2018)
North Korea's largest overseas restaurant closed down (nkeconwatch, 02/16/2018)
The Myth of North Korea, the USS Pueblo, and Nuclear War (38 North, 02/16/2018)

In South Korea:
(LEAD) (Olympics) N. Korean cheerleaders visit exhibition, perform in PyeongChang(Yonhap, 02/17/2018)
INTERVIEW: Governor Choi explains how Olympic diplomacy works (Korea Times, 02/17/2018)
Lost in translation? GM plant shutdown shocks South Korea (Reuters, 02/16/2018)
South Korea joins US, Thailand in military landing drill (Washington Post, 02/17/2018)
South Korea's Choi Min-Jeong wins women's 1,500m short track speed skating (UPI, 02/17/2018)
South Korean Official Floats Idea of Co-Hosting Asian Games With North (NYT, 02/17/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
(2nd LD) Moon says mood for inter-Korean summit not yet ripe (Yonhap, 02/17/2018)
Moon won't discuss possible summit with North Korea's Kim (Washington Post, 02/17/2018)
South Korean president says Olympics have lowered tensions with North (Washington Post, 02/17/2018)
South Korea's Moon puts brakes on hopes for quick talks with North (CNN, 02/17/2018)

International:
As US Signals Openness to Talks With North Korea, Uncertainties Loom (VOA, 02/17/2018)
NATO Chief Warns of Growing Nuclear Threat From North Korea, Russia (VOA, 02/17/2018)

In North Korea:

- A N.K. art troupe, which held rare concerts in S.K. last week in commemoration of the PyeongChang Winter Olympics, performed in Pyongyang this week. (Yonhap)
- N.K. media said it is "not thirsty" for talks with the U.S., vilifying Vice President Mike Pence who showed skepticism toward an inter-Korean thaw during his visit to the PyeongChang Winter Olympics. (Yonhap)
- The price of food products sold at local markets in N.K. has risen in recent weeks as rice, corn, and fruit are being requisitioned for gifts made to children and ruling party executives during state-ordered holiday celebrations. (RFA)
- The largest of N.K.'s overseas restaurants has closed, and its workers have been returning home in stages since sanctions passed by the UNSC last September forbade joint ventures with N.K. (Benjamin Katzeff Silberstein, nkeconwatch)
- While the notion that the Pueblo seizure almost sparked a nuclear war, a close look at the internal deliberations within the Johnson White House demonstrates quite clearly that the administration never seriously considered a nuclear response. (Mitchell Lerner, 38 North)

In South Korea:

- N.K. cheerleaders toured an exhibition on a historic royal palace and staged a woodwind and brass band performance in PyeongChang. The cheer squad is currently staying in South Korea to support N.K. athletes. (Yonhap)
- S.Korea's Gangwon Province Governor Choi Moon-soon eases worries about inter-Korean relations at the expense of South Korea's US, Japan ties. (Korea Times)
- Following GM's shutdown of its Gunsan plant, the government seeks to prevent further job losses and provide support for the manufacturing sector. There is also a concerning voice that this could potentially have a negative impact on the US-ROK relationship. (Reuters)
- Troops from S.K. joined their Thai and U.S counterparts on Saturday in an amphibious vehicle landing drill as part of Southeast Asia's largest multinational military exercise. (Tassanee Vejpongsa, AP)
- S.K.'s Choi Min-jeong claimed her first Olympic title Saturday in women's 1,500 meter short track speed skating at the Pyeongchang Games. (Yonhap)
- A South Korean province is considering a proposal to co-host the 2021 Asian Winter Games with N.K. in a bid to strengthen inter-Korean ties. (Reuters)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- President Moon said Saturday that it may be too early to discuss when or if he may hold a summit with KJU. (Yonhap)
- S.K. President Moon avoided answering questions regarding a potential Inter-Korean summit, saying "let's not get too far ahead." (AP)
- S.K. President Moon said that the Games have helped to lower tensions on the Korean Peninsula, and he expressed hope that the rapprochement would "lead to dialogue between the U.S. and N.K." (Chico Harlan, Washington Post)

- S.K. President Moon said Saturday it was too early to talk about hosting a summit with KJU, hinting he would not rush the matter. (Taehoon Lee and Laura Smith-Spark, CNN)

International:

- Despite recent inter-Korean engagement at the Winter Olympics that has created a thaw in diplomacy between the U.S. and N.K., the resumption of talks between the two sides remains elusive, former U.S. officials and analysts say. (Christy Lee, VOA)
- The head of NATO has said the alliance is determined to avoid a new arms race with Russia, but he warned that Moscow is developing new nuclear weapons that pose a threat to the West. (Henry Ridgwell, VOA)

Prepared by James Park, HRNK Research Intern

——————————————————

Monday, February 19, 2018

Despite the Olympic glow, half of Korea remains in darkness; N.K. warns against resumption of S.K.-U.S. drills; US Open to Discussing Talks With N.K.

Top News:
Despite the Olympic glow, half of Korea remains in darkness (ocregister, 02/18/2018)
Realities of life in North Korea should be focus (abqjournal, 02/19/2018)

In North Korea:
As Athletes Struggle, Kim Jong Un Dreams of Olympic Glory (NYT, 02/19/2018)
DPRK Government Officials Visit Ku'msusan on DOTSS (nkleadershipwatch, 02/19/2018)
Events Held for Day of the Shining Star (nkleadershipwatch, 02/19/2018)
Former North Korean cheerleader describes orders to penetrate 'heart of the enemy' (Telegraph, 02/19/2018)
N. Korea offers condolences to Iranian leader over deadly plane crash (Yonhap, 02/19/2018)
North Korean authorities use trolleys to recapture transport market share (DailyNK, 02/19/2018)

In South Korea:
A sacrifice for Detroit (Joongang Ilbo, 02/19/2018)
Blue House denies it had secret talks in Pyongyang (Joongang Ilbo, 02/19/2018)
How a plot to kill Kim Il Sung ended in mutiny and murder (CNN, 02/19/2018)
Inter-Korean ties still precarious ahead of military talks, N. Korea blames U.S. (UPI, 02/19/2018)
Moon scrambles over GM plan (Joongang Ilbo, 02/19/2018)
Seoul denies report on inter-Korean contacts in Pyongyang (Korea Times, 02/19/2018)
South Korea army division to conduct exercises near DMZ (UPI, 02/19/2018)

South Korea's Moon bemoans GM plant closure move, calls on government to help workers (Reuters, 02/19/2018)
S. Korea, five central American countries to discuss cooperation (Yonhap, 02/19/2018)
S. Korea's top diplomat calls for Sweden's cooperation in resolving N.K. nuke issue (Yonhap, 02/19/2018)
S. Korean president calls for urgent measures to respond to GM factory closure (UPI, 02/19/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
Head in the sand (Joongang Ilbo, 02/19/2018)
Ice Hockey: Unified Korean Team Could Be Beijing-Bound (NYT, 02/19/2018)
Latvia's banking sector rocked by U.S. probe, central bank chief's detention (Reuters, 02/19/2018)
N.K. warns against resumption of S. Korea-U.S. drills (Yonhap, 02/19/2018)
The EU and the 'Peace Olympics' (Joongang Ilbo, 02/19/2018)

International:
150 North Koreans in Canada face deportation (Korea Times, 02/19/2018)
'Bad guy' Russia emerges as central player in Western diplomacy (Reuters, 02/18/2018)
Clash with North will be 'biblical': Risch (Joongang Ilbo, 02/19/2018)
ECB stops all ABLV Bank payments amid U.S. corruption probe (Reuters, 02/19/2018)
Freeing 3 detainees could lead to U.S.-North Korea talks (Joongang Ilbo, 02/19/2018)
Tillerson says he is listening for N.K. to tell him if it is ready to talk (Yonhap, 02/19/2018)
Top U.S. officials tell the world to ignore Trump's tweets (Washington Post, 02/18/2018)
US Open to Discussing Talks With North Korea (VOA, 02/19/2018)
Why Alleged North Korean Links Froze a Baltic Bank: QuickTake (Washington Post, 02/19/2018)

Top News:

- N.K.'s system of "re-education" camps, recently mapped by satellite by HRNK, is the most extensive in the world. Under three generations of Kims, hundreds of thousands, if not millions, have been imprisoned and killed in these camps. (Marc Thiessen, ocregister)
- N.K.'s "re-education" camps, where not just the offender, but three generations of his or her relatives would be sent, are mapped in The Parallel Gulag: North Korea's "An-Jeon-Bu" Prison Camps, one of HRNK's recent publications. (Marc Thiessen, abqjournal)

In North Korea:

- KJU wants to turn his country into an international sports power. He is pouring resources into training and infrastructure. N.K. athletes are getting more recognition than ever and the country now even has an all-sports TV channel. (AP)
- Senior DPRK Government officials visited Ku'msusan Palace of the Sun to mark the birth anniversary of late leader Kim Jong Il. Their visit began a series of similar visits by Korean People's Army service members and other DPRK citizens. (nkleadershipwatch)
- A variety of meetings and cultural events were held to mark the birth anniversary of the late DPRK leader Kim Jong Il, the Day of the Shining Star. (nkleadershipwatch)
- Revelations by Han Seo-hee, a defector living in S.K., that she was psychologically trained to promote N.K.'s 'Juche' ideology will fuel criticisms that the cheering squad has been deployed by Pyongyang as a tool for political manipulation. (Nicola Smith, Telegraph)

- N.K.'s ceremonial head of state has expressed deep condolences to Iranian president Hassan Rouhani over a deadly plane crash in Iran. (Yonhap)
- The number of trolley cars and their hours of operation have expanded in N.K.. While it represents an improvement for N.K.'s public transport, some residents are seeing it as a way for the authorities to make more money from the people. (Seol Song Ah, DailyNK)

In South Korea:

- Trump is planning to make GM dump Gunsan and give the jobs to Detroit. In addition, the U.S. has announced measures to block Korean steel imports, Moon must get his priorities straight and pay more attention to solving economic problems. (Joongang Ilbo)
- The Blue House issued an unusually lengthy and emotional denial on Monday against a Japanese newspaper's report that the South had two secret contacts with the North in Pyongyang at the end of last year. (Ser Myo-ja, Joongang Ilbo)
- S.K.'s "Unit 684," created in 1968 as a team of would-be assassins, ended in disaster. This story resonates today as S.K. embarks on the creation of a new decapitation unit, which could be a much-needed defense against N.K. (Ivan Watson and Jake Kwon, CNN)
- N.K. says U.S. is to blame if anything dampens the mood for improving inter-Korean relations, while observers voice concern that cross-border military talks may generate sparks. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- President Moon urged government departments including the Finance Ministry and Industry and Energy Ministry to come up with measures to help the economy of Gunsan, when GM Korea closes a factory there. (Jin Eun-soo, Joongang Ilbo)
- Cheong Wa Dae has denied a Japanese media report that S.K. intelligence officials visited Pyongyang at least twice at the end of last year to discuss N.K.'s participation in the PyeongChang Winter Olympic Games. (Kim Rahn, Korea Times)
- S.K.'s military is planning to conduct tactical training drills near the DMZ, in border towns of Paju, Yangju, and Yeoncheon, on Tuesday and Wednesday. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- S.K. President Moon said on Monday that GM's decision to shut down a factory south of Seoul will hurt that region, and called upon his administration to take measures to boost economic activity there. (Christine Kim, Reuters)
- S.K. Vice Foreign Minister Cho Hyun will have a lunch meeting this week with top trade negotiators from five central American countries when they visit Seoul to sign a free trade agreement. (Yonhap)
- S.K.'s top diplomat called on Sweden for joint efforts to resolve N.K.'s nuclear issue, as she held talks with her Swedish counterpart on Monday. (Yonhap)
- S.K. President Moon has urged the government to actively respond to General Motors' decision to close down a plant in a southern city, which will impact thousands of local jobs. (Jennie Oh, UPI)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- S.K.'s absence at the 2018 Munich Security Conference shows the government is burying its head in the sand. As the US is reacting to the nuclear threat more sensitively than ever, S.K. must focus on denuclearization along with the global community. (Joongang Ilbo)

- The prospect of seeing a unified Korean women's ice hockey team return to action at the 2022 Olympics would be welcomed by International Ice Hockey Federation, who believe it would keep alive the message of peace and hope. (Reuters)
- Latvia's third-biggest bank sought emergency financial support on Monday after U.S. officials accused it of helping breach N.K. sanctions, hours after the central bank governor was arrested over separate bribery allegations. (Gederts Gelzis, Reuters)
- N.K. warned the U.S. on Monday against resuming joint military drills with Seoul, which have been postponed until after the PyeongChang Winter Games. (Yonhap)
- The EU sees this year's Olympics as a promotion of peace and universal values, such as non-discrimination, solidarity, gender equality and cultural diversity, through sport, a path S.K. has chosen as its engagement strategy with N.K. (Michael Reiterer, Joongang Ilbo)

International:

- About 150 N.K. defectors in Canada are under imminent threat of deportation due to false statements in their asylum application forms, Al Jazeera reported Monday. (Jung Min-ho, Korea Times)
- Despite the transatlantic show of anger at Russia during the Munich Security Conference, Western officials and diplomats also acknowledged an uncomfortable truth: that Russia is critical to resolving many of the world's worst conflicts. (Reuters)
- Rather than a "bloody nose" preventive military strike on N.K., any conflict between the U.S. and N.K. will be of "biblical proportions," a U.S. senator warned at an annual international security conference in Munich. (Sarah Kim, Joongang Ilbo)
- The European Central Bank stopped all payments by Latvian lender ABLV Bank on Monday as its liquidity position has deteriorated after accusations by U.S. authorities of breaching sanctions against N.K. (Reuters)
- N.K.'s release of three Americans it has detained could play a crucial role in facilitating talks between Washington and Pyongyang. (Kang Tae-hwa, Ser Myo-ja, Joongang Ilbo)
- U.S. Secretary of State Rex Tillerson has reiterated the U.S.' willingness to engage N.K. diplomatically, saying he is listening for Pyongyang to tell him if it is ready to talk. (Yonhap)
- Amid global anxiety about Trump's approach to world affairs, U.S. officials had a message for a gathering of Europe's foreign policy elite this weekend: Pay no attention to the man tweeting behind the curtain. (Michael Birnbaum and Griff Witte, Washington Post)
- The U.S. is indicating a new willingness to talk with N.K., but it is still difficult to see a peaceful resolution to the nuclear crisis on the Korean peninsula in the near future. (Brian Padden, VOA)
- ABLV has been plunged into crisis after the U.S. accused it of money laundering for N.K., leading the ECB urged Latvia to freeze payments by ABLV after some of the bank's clients fled. How has such incident happened? (Nicholas Comfort and John Glover, Bloomberg)

Prepared by James Park, HRNK Research Intern

Sunday, February 18, 2018

U.S. is ‘listening’ for signs North is ready to talk: Tillerson; Joint Korean hockey team still 'hungry for win' after another hard-fought loss

In North Korea:
(LEAD) (Olympics) N. Korean skiers thank cheerleaders, look forward to next Olympics (Yonhap, 02/18/2018)
Hwang Pyong-so comes back from being purged (Joongang Ilbo, 02/18/2018)

In South Korea:
Ruling party chief urges N. Korea to show will to denuclearize (Yonhap, 02/18/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
(LEAD) (Olympics) N. Korean IOC member leaves PyeongChang for health reasons (Yonhap, 02/18/2018)
North Korea likely to seek weakening of global sanctions amid fuel crisis (UPI, 02/18/2018)
N. Korean defector arrested for sending rice to Pyongyang (Yonhap, 02/18/2018)
(Olympics) 3 N. Koreans dress for joint hockey team's classification match (Yonhap, 02/18/2018)
(Olympics) Joint Korean hockey team still 'hungry for win' after another hard-fought loss: coach (Yonhap, 02/18/2018)
Seoul said to have softened anti-North loudspeaker broadcasts during Olympics (Yonhap, 02/18/2018)
South Korean filmmaker hopeful Olympics will improve ties with North (Reuters, 02/17/2018)
Swiss women beats Korea, Japan wins 1st OT game of Olympics (Washington Post, 02/17/2018)
The frame of Kim’s masks (Joongang Ilbo, 02/18/2018)

International:
Anticipation for inter-Korean talks, U.S.-North Korea dialogue builds (UPI, 02/18/2018)
Maximum pressure means peace (Joongang Ilbo, 02/18/2018)
Moon urges U.S., North to talk (Joongang Ilbo, 02/18/2018)
U.S. commander '100 pct' confident in defeating N.K. missile threat: report (Yonhap, 02/18/2018)
U.S. is ‘listening’ for signs North is ready to talk: Tillerson (Yonhap, 02/18/2018)
US Warns of ‘Critical Time for Humanity’ at Tense Security Conference (VOA, 02/18/2018)

In North Korea:

- Two N. Korean alpine skiers who competed in the men's giant slalom at the Olympics said Sun. they received a big boost from their compatriots' avid support. (Joo Kyung-don, Yonhap)
- Hwang Pyong-so, former director of the N. Korean Army’s General Political Bureau, whom SK’s spy agency believed was fired from his post for “impure attitudes” toward leader KJU, reemerged in NK media last week attending state events with other officials, fanning speculation he is back in the power circle, though with a lower rank. (Jeong Yong-soo, Lee Sung-eun, Joongang Ilbo)

In South Korea:

- The chief of SK's ruling Democratic Party has said that inter-Korean relations will improve on the premise that NK ceases its provocations and shows its will to denuclearize, her office said Sun. (Yonhap)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- Chang Ung, the lone N. Korean member of the International Olympics Committee (IOC), returned home Sun. a week before the closing of the ongoing Winter Olympics due to health reasons. (Yonhap)
- NK will aim to cushion the impact of global sanctions by strengthening ties with SK, a NK expert told News 1 on Sun. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- A N. Korean defector has been arrested and indicted on charges of supporting the North and preparing to defect back to Pyongyang in violation of the National Security Law. (Yonhap)
- Three N. Koreans, including one new face, will dress for the joint Korean female hockey team's first classification match against Switzerland at the Winter Olympics on Sunday. (Yoo Jee-ho, Yonhap)
- The unified Korean women's hockey team had another hard-fought loss in the Olympic tournament Sun., falling to Switzerland 2-0 in the first classification match. (Yoo Jee-ho, Yonhap)
- SK appears to be toning down its loudspeaker-based propaganda broadcasts against NK in light of cross-border relations improved on the occasion of the Olympics, informed lawmakers and officials said Sun. (Yonhap)
- S. Korean filmmaker Kim Ki-duk said on Sat. he hoped for an improvement in relations between NK and SK given both countries were taking part in the Olympics on the southern part of the peninsula. (Reuters)
- Switzerland was better in its 2-0 win against Korea on Sunday, but the gap was nowhere near as wide as it was the first time the teams met at the Pyeongchang Games — an 8-0 rout in an Olympic opener that had everyone's attention one day after the opening ceremony. (Teresa M. Walker, AP)
- The "Kim Il-sung" masks that the N. Korean cheerleaders were wearing is a frame that offers insights into how many S. Korean young people view NK. (Ko Jung-ae, Joongang Ilbo)

International:

- Inter-Korean relations will improve on the condition that NK halts its nuclear and missile provocations and shows intentions of denuclearizing, according to Choo Mi-ae, Chairwoman of SK's ruling Democratic Party on Sun. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- SK cannot live with a nuclear presence in the North. Peace will come when you are resolved for war. Maximum pressure on NK means peace. (Kang Won-sik, Joongang Ilbo)
- President Moon said Sat. it is premature to talk about an inter-Korean summit, making clear that Washington and Pyongyang have to get closer to talking before that can take place. (Ser Myo-ja, Wi Moon-hee, Joongang Ilbo)

- Gen. Lori J. Robinson, the commander of the US Northern Command has said that she is "100 percent confident" in defending the US against a N. Korean missile attack, a media outlet reported Sunday. (Yonhap)
- US Secretary of State Rex Tillerson said he was "listening" for cues from NK that it was ready to engage in direct talks with the US, adding no incentives will be used to bring the regime back to the discussion table. (Lee Sung-eun, Joongang Ilbo)
- NK's nuclear weapons program has featured throughout the Munich Security Conference. In a thinly veiled warning to China, the United States' National Security Adviser H.R. McMaster called on those countries that continue to offer an economic lifeline to Pyongyang to respect global sanctions. (Henry Ridgwell, VOA)

Prepared by Emma Stubblefield, HRNK Research Intern

——————————————————

Tuesday, February 20, 2018

One Kim to rule them all; South Korea to announce joint military drill plan with U.S. before April;(LEAD) N.K. IOC member says 'possible' to co-host Asian Winter Games with S. Korea

Top News:
One Kim to rule them all (AEI, 02/18/2018)

In North Korea:
Calls mounting to focus on North Korea's crimes against humanity amidst charm offensive(Daily NK, 02/20/2018)
Here's a new North Korean hacking threat to worry about (CNN, 02/20/2018)
Holiday cheer in low supply despite North Korean double holiday (Daily NK, 02/20/2018)
Kim Jong Un's sports focus scores points for regime at home and abroad (Daily NK, 02/20/2018)
North Korea poised to launch large-scale cyberattacks, says new report (Washington Post, 02/20/2018)
North Korean journalists to join world sports press (Korea Times, 02/20/2018)
Progress at North Korea's Experimental Light Water Reactor at Yongbyon (38 North, 02/19/2018)
Power and water supply in North Korea worsens in winter (NK Econ Watch, 02/19/2018)
Speculation grows over N.K. leader's sister's pregnancy (Yonhap, 02/20/2018)
Study reveals North Korean cyber-espionage has reached new heights (Guardian, 02/20/2018)

In South Korea:
FM Kang mulls attending UN human rights meeting (Yonhap, 02/20/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
(LEAD) N.K. IOC member says 'possible' to co-host Asian Winter Games with S. Korea(Yonhap, 02/20/2018)

(LEAD) (Olympics) Hockey players from two Koreas burst into tears after final match (Yonhap, 02/20/2018)
(LEAD) (Olympics) Joint Korean women's hockey team loses final match to Sweden (Yonhap, 02/20/2018)
Have the Winter Olympics repaired North-South Korea relations? (BBC, 02/20/2018)
Joint Koreas hockey team ends historic Olympic run (Washington Post, 02/20/2018)
(Olympics) Even with losses piling up, unified Korean hockey team hailed as symbol of peace (Yonhap, 02/20/2018)
(Olympics) Joint Korean hockey team coach 'proud' of players for making it all work (Yonhap, 02/20/2018)
(Olympics) N.K. athletes, cheerleaders to return home after Olympics closing ceremony(Yonhap, 02/20/2018)
Unified Korean Hockey Team Finishes Winless. So Why All the Cheering? (NYT, 02/20/2018)

International:
(LEAD) Leaders of S. Korea, Slovenia agree to boost bilateral cooperation (Yonhap, 02/20/2018)
Defense minister promises joint drills but gives no dates (Joongang Ilbo, 02/20/2018)
Former US military commander warns against 'bloody nose' strike on North Korea (Guardian,02/20/2018)
Latvian central bank chief says victim of smear campaign after detention (Reuters, 02/20/2018)
Lessons from Helmut Kohl (Joongang Ilbo, 02/20/2018)
MP accuses British overseas territories of undermining US North Korea sanctions (Guardian, 02/20/2018)
S. Korea Opposes US Tariff Hikes, But Military Alliance Remains United (VOA, 02/20/2018)
S. Korea, U.S. to announce timing of joint military exercises by end of March: defense minister (Yonhap, 02/20/2018)
(2nd LD) S. Korean military to press ahead with joint drills with U.S. this year (Yonhap, 02/20/2018)
Scale down the drills (Joongang Ilbo, 02/20/2018)
Seoul preps for Ivanka's trip to Games this week (Joongang Ilbo, 02/20/2018)
South Korea to announce joint military drill plan with U.S. before April (Reuters, 02/20/2018)
The world has a right to know about Trump's war powers (CNN, 02/20/2018)
Time for dialogue (Joongang Ilbo, 02/20/2018)
U.S. could ask to use troop upkeep fund to pay for maintaining THAAD unit (Yonhap, 02/20/2018)
U.S.-N. Korea talks can be part of discussion during Ivanka's visit to S. Korea: ministry (Yonhap, 02/20/2018)
US preparing 'bloody nose' cyber attacks on North Korea (Telegraph 02/20/2018)

Top News:

- We underestimate the North Korean regime at our peril. The DPRK is very difficult for us to understand, not least because three generations of dictators have so very successfully managed to close the country off from the world. But catastrophic events quite possibly await us if we do not make the effort. (Nicholas Eberstadt, AEI)

In North Korea:

- Leaders from the human rights community in Seoul have been calling attention to continued human rights violations being committed by the Kim regime, pushing back against NK's latest "peace offensive" surrounding the Olympics and the S. Korean government's warming attitude towards NK. (Jang Seul-gi, Daily NK)
- Another group of N. Korean hackers is now targeting major international companies, according to a new report. The group, dubbed Reaper, stepped up its efforts to spy on big S. Korean conglomerates last year, cybersecurity research firm FireEye said in a report published Tues. (Sherisse Pham, CNN)
- Despite both the Lunar New Year and Kim Jong Il's birthday falling on the same day this year, celebrations are more difficult due to international sanctions targeting the country and increased propaganda. (Kang Mi-jin, Daily NK)
- Although NK's economy is reeling under targeted international sanctions, KJU continues to pour resources into the training of the nation's athletes and the development of facilities, creating domestic and international benefits. (Ha Yoon-ah, Daily NK)
- NK is quietly expanding both the scope and sophistication of its cyberweaponry, laying the groundwork for more devastating attacks. (Anna Fifield, Washington Post)
- NK's sports journalists, having come to SK to monitor the PyeongChang Winter Olympic Games, will soon join the world's sports press group.(Ko Dong-hwan, Korea Times)
- Commercial satellite imagery from 2017 through February 11, 2018 indicates steady progress has been made towards the operationalization of the Experimental Light Water Reactor (ELWR) at NK's Yongbyon Nuclear Scientific Research Center. (Frank V. Pabian, Joseph S. Bermudez Jr., Jack Liu, 38 North)
- Reportedly, NK's electricity and water supply have sharply deteriorated since mid-January this year. (NK Econ Watch)
- SK's unification ministry said Tues. that it has no information about speculation that N. Korean leader KJU's younger sister is pregnant with her second child.(Yonhap)
- An increasingly sophisticated N. Korean cyber-espionage unit is using its skills to widen spying operations to aerospace and defence industries, a new study has revealed. (David Taylor, Guardian)

In South Korea:

- S. Korean Foreign Minister Kang Kung-wha is considering attending a meeting of the UN Human Rights Council to be held this month, her spokesman said Tues. (Yonhap)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- Chang Ung, the N. Korean member of the International Olympic Committee (IOC), said Tues. that it is "possible" for the two Koreas to jointly hold the 2021 Asian Winter Games. (Yonhap)
- The joint women's ice hockey team of the two Koreas completed its matches at the Olympics by losing against Sweden in the seventh-place classification event on Tues. with players bursting into tears as their farewell approached closer. (Kang Yoon-seung, Yonhap)
- The joint Korean hockey team lost its final game at the Olympics on Tuesday, falling to Sweden 6-1 in the seventh place match. (Yoo Jee-ho, Yonhap)

- A sporting event is unlikely to have much bearing on the deep political divides between NK and SK. Decades of talks have not yet brought reconciliation and the likelihood is that relations will return to form - tense, uncomfortable and worrisome, but also stable. (Prof Robert Kelly, BBC)
- The Korean women's hockey team, which included players from both North and South, ended its historic Olympic run on Tues. with a fifth straight loss but a host of unforgettable feel-good sparks. (Hyung-jin Kim, Kim Tong-hyung, AP)
- The once-improbable Olympic journey has come to an end for the unified Korean women's hockey team, which, even with losses piling up, has been hailed in many corners as a symbol of peace. (Yoo Jee-ho, Yonhap)
- Politicians may have made the decision to combine women's ice hockey teams from the two Koreas, but it's the players that actually made it work on and off the ice, their head coach said Tues. (Yoo Jee-ho, Yonhap)
- N. Korean athletes and cheerleaders will return home after the closing ceremony of the Olympics, a government official said Tues. (Yonhap)
- The unified Korean women's hockey team skated onto the ice for the last time and losing, 6-1 to Sweden and closing out its Olympic run without winning a single matchup. But for the hordes of cheering fans, the score was beside the point. (Mokoto Rich, NYT)

International:

- Moon and Slovenian President Borut Pahor agreed Tues. to enhance their countries' bilateral cooperation in various areas, including global efforts to denuclearize NK. (Yonhap)
- SK and US will jointly announce a new schedule for annual military exercises, which were postponed for the Olympics, soon after the Games end in March, said S. Korean Minister of National Defense Song Young-moo Tuesday. (Sarah Kim, Joongang Ilbo)
- Retired Admiral Dennis Blair said Washington needed to be ready to respond militarily if NK attacked the US or its allies in the region, but not to strike pre-emptivley. (Daniel Hurst, Guardian)
- Latvia's central bank chief, who was held in custody over the weekend on suspicion that he solicited a bribe, said on Tues. he was the victim of a smear campaign because he has been leading a drive to stamp out corruption. (Gederts Gelzis, Reuters)
- The success of inter-Korean meetings may not be feasible without the support and agreement of the US and Japan. (Lee Sang-ryeol, Joongang Ilbo)
- A prominent Labour MP has accused British overseas territories of undermining the security services by helping North Korea breach US sanctions. (David Pegg, Guardian)
- A looming trade dispute could cause friction in the US-SK military alliance, but leaders in Washington and Seoul maintain their economic disagreements will not impact their continued security cooperation to deal with the N. Korean nuclear threat. (Brian Padden, VOA)
- SK and the US will announce by the end of March when they will hold annual joint military exercises that have been postponed to avoid coinciding with the Olympics, Seoul's defense chief said Tues. (Yonhap)
- SK's defense ministry affirmed Tues. that the country's troops will conduct combined command-post drills with the US this year despite Olympics-driven rapprochement with NK. (Yonhap)

- US and SK joint military exercises can take place without provoking Pyongyang. (Nam Jeong-ho, Joongang Ilbo)
- Korea will receive another important guest later this week as part of Moon's Olympics diplomacy, with Ivanka Trump, the daughter of Donald Trump, scheduled to attend the closing ceremony of the international sports event. (Ser Myo-ja, Wi Moon-hee, Joongang Ilbo)
- SK and the US will announce plans before April for a postponed joint military drill, SK's defense minister said on Tues. (Christine Kim, Hyonhee Shin, Reuters)
- Since 9/11, American presidents have been operating under the assumption that they could effectively take the nation to war with virtual impunity. Now, Trump has tried to enshrine this concept in a secret memo without any approval by Congress. There are concerns that this could turn into a "bloody nose" option against NK. (David A. Andelman, CNN)
- NK is only inviting harsher sanctions and tougher lives with such a belligerent attitude. Instead of waging a war of nerves with the US, NK should stop circling the well and instead go to the right place to get hot water. (Joongang Ilbo)
- The US could ask to pay for the cost of maintaining a THAAD missile defense battery in SK with money to be raised by the two countries for the upkeep of American troops stationed here, Seoul's defense minister said Tues. (Yonhap)
- Diplomatic efforts to arrange rare talks between the US and NK could be part of the topics of discussion when Ivanka Trump visits SK and talks with officials this week, the foreign ministry hinted Tues. (Yonhap)
- The US is drawing up plans for cyber attacks on NK in an effort to bring the regime of KJU to heel, according to intelligence sources, as NK says it is ready for "both dialogue and war" as the Winter Olympics draws to a close. (Julian Ryall, Danielle Demetriou, Telegraph)

Prepared by Emma Stubblefield, HRNK Research Intern

——————————————————

Wednesday, February 21, 2018

Exemption from forced labor offered as incentive to have more children; S. Korea sees inter-Korean talks as key to North's denuclearization; North Korea cancelled Mike Pence meeting last minute, White House says

In North Korea:

Exemption from forced labor offered as incentive to have more children (Daily NK, 02/21/2018)
Kim Jong Un eyes harsh punishment for soldier accused of attacking high-level cadre (Daily NK, 02/21/2018)
N. Korea's hard currency reserves expected to dry up by October: lawmaker (Yonhap, 02/21/2018)
North Korea steps up cyber powers with shadowy 'Reaper' hacker group (Telegraph, 02/20/2018)
North Korea's state factories plagued by theft from workers, managers (Daily NK, 02/20/2018)

North Korean media slams Pence amid reports of canceled secret meeting (UPI, 02/21/2018)
North Koreans appear more relaxed at Pyeongchang Olympics, but caveats remain (Daily NK, 02/21/2018)
North Korean leader's sister pregnant, reports say (Korea Times, 02/21/2018)
PPJ Visits Ch'o'llima Iron Works (NK Leadership Watch, 02/21/2018)
Report: North Korea mine struggling as sanctions squeeze regime (UPI, 02/21/2018)

In South Korea:
North Korea's Kim Yo-jong baby rumours fascinate South (BBC, 02/21/2018)
S. Korea spends 240 mil. won for high-level N.K. delegation (Yonhap, 02/21/2018)
South Korean politicians bicker over 'pro-North Korea' policy, U.S. trade relations (UPI, 02/21/2018)
South Korean presidential adviser: Many hurdles ahead to resolving North Korea issue (UPI, 02/21/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
(2nd LD) S. Korea sees inter-Korean talks as key to North's denuclearization (Yonhap, 02/21/2018)
(LEAD) S. Korea to work actively to realize 'constructive' talks between U.S., N. Korea: official (Yonhap, 02/21/2018)
NK remains silent over inter-Korean military talks (Korea Times, 02/20/2018)
S. Korea can do more to address NK human rights, says NGO leader (Daily NK, 02/21/2018)
The next 'Korea problem' may be about the growing identity divide on the peninsula (Washington Post, 02/21/2018)

International:
(Yonhap Interview) Slovenian president strongly supports S. Korea's push for dialogue with N.K. (Yonhap, 02/21/2018)
After Kim Jong-un's sister, South Korea prepares for Ivanka Trump visit (Guardian, 02/21/2018)
China's opportunism with North Korea (Korea Times, 02/20/2018)
Getting closer (Joongang Daily, 02/22/2018)
Japan Says China Illegally Transferred Cargo to North Korea (VOA, 02/21/2018)
Japan sees transfer at sea that may violate NKorea sanctions (Washington Post, 02/20/2018)
North Korea cancelled Mike Pence meeting last minute, White House says (Guardian, 02/20/2018)
North Korea canceled planned meeting with Pence (Reuters, 02/20/2018)
North Korea canceled planned meeting with US Vice President, Mike Pence (Telegraph, 02/21/2018)
North Korea Dropped Out of Meeting With Pence at Last Minute, U.S. Says (NY Times, 02/20/2018)
North Korean journalists to join world sports press (Korea Times, 02/20/2018)
Pence almost met Kim, says Post (Joongang Daily, 02/22/2018)
Pence was set to meet with North Korean officials during the Olympics before last-minute cancellation (Washington Post, 02/20/2018)
Pentagon to release details on resumption of allied drills after Olympics (Yonhap, 02/21/2018)
State Department says NKorea passed up meeting with Pence (Washington Post, 02/21/2018)
Trump Admin Says North Korea Scrapped Meeting with Pence (VOA, 02/21/2018)
Trump's 'hard line' on North Korea is soft symbolism (Korea Times, 02/20/2018)
U.S.-N. Korea talks can be part of discussion during Ivanka's visit to S. Korea: ministry (Yonhap, 02/20/2018)
US Vice President Mike Pence was set to meet with North Korean officials, but they canceled (CNN, 02/21/2018)

In North Korea:

- Like SK and Japan, NK is also grappling with a low birthrate problem, which the N.Korean government fears could lead to a weakening of the party and military. To address this problem, authorities have introduced new incentive measures for families to have more children in exchange for honorary titles, inclusion in special distribution lists, and exemptions from mass mobilizations and other mandatory collection assignments. (Kang Mi Jin, Daily NK)
- Sources inside NK's capital city have revealed details of an incident involving an assault on a high-level cadre by a senior-ranked soldier belonging to KJU's Supreme Guard Command (SGC). It is expected that the military authorities will make an example out of the soldier to reign in military discipline more broadly. (Kim Chae Hwan, Daily NK)
- NK's hard currency reserves are expected to dry up around Oct. if international sanctions on the communist nation hold, the chairman of the parliamentary intelligence committee said Wed. (Yonhap)
- NK is stepping up its cyber capabilities to target international aerospace and defence industries through a shadowy and sophisticated hackers group called Reaper, a new report revealed on Tues. (Nicola Smith, Telegraph)
- Due to labor shortages, some N.Korean workers are being forced to do both the day and night shifts. However, N.Korean laborers being forced to work the double shifts aren't even complaining. The extra shifts give them the chance to steal more raw materials from the factory, an opportunity they do not want to squander. (Unification Media Group, Daily NK)
- N.Korean media Wed. criticized US Vice President Mike Pence's visit to South Korea for the Pyeongchang Winter Olympics amid reports that the North had canceled a meeting with him. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- Outside of NK's participation in various performances and Olympic competitions, the activities of the N.Korean athletes, cheer squad, arts troupe, and other participants have remained challenging for the media to cover. Despite this, some are pointing out that the facial expressions and actions of the N.Koreans at these Games appear to be more relaxed than during past trips abroad. (Jang Seul Gi, Daily NK)
- The N.Korean leader's sister, Kim Yo-jong, 30, was rumored to be pregnant when she visited SK for the opening ceremony of the PyeongChang Winter Olympics. The rumor was sparked by her enlarged stomach, seen in the silhouette of her winter coat. (Cho Se-yong, Park Si-soo, Korea Times)
- DPRK Premier and State Affairs Commission Vice Chairman Pak Pong Ju visited the Ch'ŏllima Steel Complex near Namp'o, the Pot'onggang Organic Compound Fertilizer Factory and Pyongyang Automation Appliances Factory. (NK Leadership Watch)
- N.Korean laborers at a large mine in northeastern NK have given up hope the regime will deliver on promises of trade revitalization owing to ongoing corruption and "smuggling" activities as UN Security Council sanctions resolutions have hit Musan mine, one of the largest iron ore reserves in the country, Daily NK reported Wed. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)

In South Korea:

- There has been no confirmation from SK of Kim Yo-jong's reported comments, which are attributed to unnamed government sources. But the intense speculation highlights the fascination with NK's opaque power structures and whether or not Ms. Kim is indeed expecting shows just how little is known about NK's ruling dynasty. (Andreas Illmer, BBC)

- SK has spent some 240 million won (US$223,048) for NK's high-level delegation during their recent three-day visit for the PyeongChang Winter Olympics, Seoul's unification ministry said Wed. (Yonhap)
- Rival party lawmakers in SK clashed sharply over the Moon administration's coordination of its NK policy and trade relations with the US, News 1 reported. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- A S.Korean presidential security adviser has cautioned there is a long road ahead to resolving the NK crisis, amid optimism that inter-Korean relations have improved, Maeil Business Daily reported. (Jennie Oh, UPI)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- SK's foreign ministry said Wed. that it sees inter-Korean and US-NK talks as "major pillars" of any dialogue aimed at denuclearizing the Korean Peninsula. (Yonhap)
- SK will work actively to help realize talks between the US and NK while strengthening cooperation with the international community based on the strong alliance with Washington, a top security official said Wed. (Yonhap)
- NK remains silent over resuming inter-Korean military talks, S.Korean officials said Tues. Last month, Seoul and Pyongyang agreed to resume such talks during a high-level dialogue. But no meaningful progress has since been made, with the North maintaining its taciturn posture. (Lee Min-hyung, Korea Times)
- Lee Young Hwan, president of a non-profit group called Transitional Justice Working Group (TWJG) sat down with Unification Media Group studio for an in-person interview to talk about the Trump administration's approach to NK's human rights abuses. (Daily NK)
- Behind the images of N.Korean cheerleaders and the united flag in the 2018 Winter Olympics, there is a growing identity divide on the Korean Peninsula—and a different kind of "NK problem." How N.Koreans and S.Koreans come to see each other — as one of "us" or "them" — is going to matter a great deal in whether and how democracy ultimately shakes out on the peninsula. (Aram Hur, Washington Post)

International:

- Slovenian President Borut Pahor has expressed strong support for SK's push for dialogue aimed at resolving NK's nuclear stalemate. He, however, worried that NK might not easily give up its nuclear weapons, which must be its "only leverage," saying global cooperation is very important to put more pressure on the reclusive state to abandon its nuclear ambitions. (Yonhap)
- The S.Korean president, Moon, will welcome Ivanka Trump, daughter of the US president, to SK for the Winter Olympics closing ceremony on Sun.–a trip that analysts have likened to an appearance by KJU's sister earlier this month. (Benjamin Haas, Guardian)
- Ever since China's intervention in the Korean War, both Chinese and N.Korean leaders called the two countries' relationship "chun chi xiang yi (as close as lips and teeth)" and "chun wang chi han (if the lips are gone, the teeth will be cold)," and defined Sino-N.Korean relations as such for the ensuing decades. These maxims symbolized NK's strategic importance for the security of China, implying that China would protect NK at all costs whenever the latter's security would be in grave peril. (Lee Seong-hyon, Korea Times)

- The Washington Post reported Tues. that a meeting between US Vice President Mike Pence and N.Korean leader KJU's sister Kim Yo-jong, which was arranged by the Moon administration, was not held after the N.Koreans backed out at the last minute. The paper said that discussions about the meeting began after the CIA in late Jan. received information that NK wanted to meet with Pence. The Post also reported that only a few people—including President Donald Trump and National Security Adviser H.R. McMaster—decided to approve contact with NK. (Joongang Daily)
- Japan says its military has witnessed a cargo transfer between China and NK on the high seas that it suspects violates United Nations economic sanctions on Pyongyang. (VOA)
- Japan's military has witnessed a ship-to-ship transfer on the high seas that it "strongly suspects" violates U.N. sanctions on NK, in the third such incident reported by Japan in the past month. (AP)
- N.Korean officials "dangled" a historic meeting with the US vice-president Mike Pence during the Winter Olympics but pulled out at the last minute, the White House claimed on Tues. (David Smith, Guardian)
- US Vice President Mike Pence was scheduled to meet with N.Korean officials, including leader KKJU's sister, while in SK for the Winter Olympics this month but the N.Koreans canceled at the last minute, US officials said on Tues. (Matt Spetalnick, Christine Kim, Reuters)
- Mike Pence and N.Korean officials had planned to meet secretly during the 2018 Winter Olympic Games, but Pyongyang scrapped the talks after the US vice president denounced abuses from the "murderous regime," US officials said Tues. (Telegraph Reporters, Telegraph)
- Vice President Mike Pence had planned to secretly meet with a high-level delegation of N.Korean leaders while he was at the Winter Olympics in SK this month, but the N.Koreans canceled at the last minute, according to the State Department. (Gardiner Harris, Choe Sang-hun, NY Times)
- Pyongyang is hoping that its sports journalists, having come to SK to monitor the PyeongChang Winter Olympic Games, will soon join the world's sports press group, according to the International Sports Press Association (AIPS). (Ko Dong-hwan, Korea Times)
- The Blue House declined to confirm a media report Wed. that it mediated a meeting between US Vice President Mike Pence and Kim Yo-jong, sister of N.Korean leader KJU, after the opening ceremony of the Olympics, which collapsed after the N.Koreans pulled out at the last minute. (Ser Myo-ja, Kang Tae-hwa, Joongang Daily)
- Vice President Pence departed for a five-day, two-country swing through Asia earlier this month having agreed to a secret meeting with N.Korean officials while in SK at the 2018 Winter Olympic Games. But on Feb. 10, less than two hours before Pence and his team were to meet with Kim Yo Jong, the younger sister of KJU, and Kim Yong Nam, North Korea's nominal head of state, the N.Koreans pulled out of the scheduled meeting, according to Pence's office. (Ashley Parker, Washington Post)
- The Pentagon said Tues. that details on currently suspended SK-US military exercises will be released after the Olympics end next month. (Yonhap)
- Vice President Mike Pence was all set to hold a history-making meeting with N.Korean officials during the Winter Olympics in SK, but KJU's government canceled at the last minute, the Trump administration said Tues. (Joshua Lederman, AP)
- US officials say Vice President Mike Pence was scheduled to meet with officials from NK earlier this month, but NK canceled the meeting at the last minute. (VOA)

- Although one could be forgiven for thinking the symbolism at the Olympics signaled a hard line from the Donald Trump administration on NK, the symbols masked an important concession that was made to avert a break with the Moon government in SK, which wants to turn the Olympic thaw into more substantive negotiations with the KJU regime. (Eli Lake, Korea Times)
- Diplomatic efforts to arrange rare talks between the US and NK could be part of the topics of discussion when Ivanka Trump visits SK and talks with officials this week, the foreign ministry hinted Tues. (Yonhap)
- US Vice President Mike Pence was set to meet with N.Korean officials, including KJU's sister, during his politically charged visit to the Winter Olympics in SK earlier this month, his office confirmed on Tues. (Kevin Liptak, Joshua Berlinger, CNN)

Prepared by Jinny Ahn, HRNK Research Intern

——————————————————

Thursday, February 22, 2018

North Korea sends university students to work in China via sanctions loophole; Figure behind Cheonan attack leads delegation; Ivanka won't meet North Koreans on trip

In North Korea:
[Photos] North Korea sends university students to work in China via sanctions loophole (Daily NK, 02/22/2018)
Despite charm offensive, potential for North Korean Olympics cyber attack (Daily NK, 02/22/2018)
North Korea slams U.S.-Japan joint drill (Yonhap, 02/22/2018)
US Dollars Become Currency of Choice Among Well-Heeled North Koreans (RFA, 02/21/2018)

In South Korea:
(2nd LD) Main opposition protests N.K. official's planned visit to South (Yonhap, 02/22/2018)
Lawmakers bicker over North Korea (Korea Times, 02/21/2018)
Minor opposition party calls for Ivanka Trump's visit to be turning point in U.S.-N.K. relations (Yonhap, 02/22/2018)
My goal is to resolve NK nuclear crisis': Moon (Korea Times, 02/22/2018)
On Ivanka's wavelength (Joongang Ilbo, 02/22/2018)
Roh's vs. Moon's formula (Joongang Ilbo, 02/22/2018)
S. Korean, Finnish foreign ministers discuss cooperation on N. Korean nukes (Yonhap, 02/22/2018)
South Korea's Moon says relations with U.S. are 'rock solid': media (Reuters, 02/22/2018)
South Korea splurges on sister of Kim Jong Un; drops his name from border broadcasts (Reuters, 02/22/2018)

South Koreans: Humanitarian aid to North Korea key to fighting rights abuses (UPI, 02/22/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
(2nd LD) Moon likely to meet N. Korean delegation to Olympics: official (Yonhap, 02/22/2018)
(4th LD) N.K. to send high-level delegation to Olympics' closing ceremony (Yonhap, 02/22/2018)
Figure behind Cheonan attack leads delegation (Joongang Daily, 02/22/2018)
Mastermind of attacks on the South to head North Korean delegation to Olympic closing ceremony (Telegraph, 02/22/2018)
NK at PyeongChang - politics overshadow sports (Korea Times, 02/22/2018)
North to send another senior delegation for Olympic closer (Washington Post, 02/22/2018)
North Korea's new Olympics delegation to be led by man blamed for deadly ship attack (CNN, 02/22/2018)
North Korea to send delegation to Olympics closing ceremony, meet South Korea's Moon (Reuters, 02/22/2018)
North Korean closing Olympics delegation includes man blamed for deadly sinking (Reuters, 02/22/2018)
S. Korea's military ditches N. Korean leader's name in border propaganda broadcasts (Yonhap, 02/22/2018)
US, S. Korea Military Exercises Could End Outreach to Nuclear North (VOA, 02/22/2018)
Winter Olympics 2018: North Korea's General Kim Yong-chol to attend (BBC, 02/22/2018)

International:
(2nd LD) Too early to predict U.S.-N.K. contact at Olympics: Seoul minister (Yonhap, 02/22/2018)
An Envoy Who Can Rival 'North Korea's Ivanka' (NY Times, 02/21/2018)
China probes report of possible North Korea sanctions breach at sea (Reuters, 02/22/2018)
China probing possible violation of UN sanctions on N. Korea (Washington Post, 02/22/2018)
Commentary: At Olympics, U.S. and Korean leaders revive familiar roles (Reuters, 02/21/2018)
Commentary: South Korea's Olympic gambit traps both Kim and Trump (Reuters, 02/21/2018)
Defectors tell all on special YouTube program (Joongang Daily, 02/22/2018)
First Person: How Pyeongchang might feel to a North Korean (Washington Post, 02/22/2018)
Five reasons the Olympics haven't solved the North Korea problem (Washington Post, 02/22/2018)
Former Spymaster to Lead North Korea's Olympic Ceremony Delegation (NY Times, 02/21/2018)
Former UN chief says Koreas dialogue must be kept alive (Washington Post, 02/21/2018)
Ivanka rekindles hopes for US-North Korea talks (Korea Times, 02/22/2018)
Ivanka won't meet North Koreans on trip (Joongang Daily, 02/22/2018)
Ivanka Trump plans to focus on U.S. athletes, not North Korea, during trip to Winter Olympics(Washington Post, 02/21/2018)
Joint drill to complicate US-North Korea dialogue (Korea Times, 02/22/2018)
Moves on the chessboard (Korea Times, 02/22/2018)
N. Korea seeks nukes to reunify peninsula under its control: Bolton (Yonhap, 02/22/2018)
North Korea's propaganda victory at the Winter Olympics (Washington Post, 02/21/2018)
Point man on N. Korean nukes discusses 'dialogue momentum' with China envoy (Yonhap, 02/22/2018)
Police: No video showing Indonesian attacking Kim Jong Nam (Washington Post, 02/22/2018)
S. Korea in close consultation with U.S. on N.K delegation's trip (Yonhap, 02/22/2018)
Slovenian leader praises Moon's NK approach (Korea Times, 02/21/2018)
Trying to make sense of our North Korea policy may be fruitless (Washington Post, 02/22/2018)
Unprepared and outclassed, North Korea wraps up Olympics (Washington Post, 02/22/2018)

In North Korea:

- Daily NK has learned that the N.Korean regime is now sending female students from Pyongyang's Jang Chol Gu University of Commerce to earn foreign currency in restaurants in the Chinese border city of Dandong. (Daily NK)
  Daily NK recent spoke with Senior Security Research Choi Sang Myung from Hauri Inc.'s Security Research Intelligence Team for an expert opinion on the cyberattack on the organizing committee for this year's Olympics on Feb. 9, as the IOC did not provide information as to the suspected culprit when it confirmed the cyberattacks. Choi said that "while many suspect the attack on the Olympic organizations to be the work of Russian hackers or some third-party group, we cannot exclude the possibility of NK's involvement." (Jang Seul Gi, Daily NK)
- A NK committee on Thurs. blasted the US and Japan for conducting a joint missile drill, branding it as a "ferocious gangster-like act." (Yonhap)
- Wealthy N.Koreans and high-ranking regime officials in Pyongyang are quickly exchanging Chinese yuan they have acquired into much-coveted US dollars or euros, because the two Western currencies are giving them a bigger bang for their buck, sources inside the country said. (Jieun Kim, Leejin Jun, Roseanne Gerin, RFA)

In South Korea:

- The main opposition Liberty Korea Party (LKP) strongly protested a planned visit to SK by a senior N.Korean official accused of masterminding the communist regime's two deadly attacks on SKK in 2010, which claimed the lives of a total of 50 people. (Yonhap)
- Rival parties clashed over the government's handling of NK during the National Assembly House Steering Committee, Wed. (Choi Ha-young, Korea Times)
- President Moon's goal while in office is to resolve the NK nuclear issue peacefully, he said in an interview with the Monocle, a UK global affairs magazine, published Thurs. (Kim Bo-eun, Korea Times)
- Even if Ivanka does not carry messages from Trump, her remarks can give a clue to grasping what Trump really thinks. If the S.Korean government helps her understand SK's situation on the peninsula, it could help improve Seoul-Washington ties. (Joongang Ilbo)
- Moon has been capitalizing on the PyeongChang Olympics momentum with his administration hoping to ease tensions on the Korean Peninsula and find a breakthrough in the deadlock by mediating between Washington and Pyongyang and improving inter-Korean relations. However, he seems to be changing his gear in the driver's seat of inter-Korean affairs, saying that that talking of an inter-Korean summit at the current stage was like "looking for hot water around a well." (Park Bo-gyoon, Joongang Ilbo)
- The head of the minor opposition Justice Party said Thurs. she hopes an upcoming visit to SK by US President Donald Trump's daughter will serve as a turning point in relations between the US and NK. (Yonhap)
- Finland's foreign minister reaffirmed his support for SK's policy on NK in a meeting with his S.Korean counterpart in Seoul on Thurs. (Yonhap)
- S.Korean President Moon said relations with the US are "rock solid" and "as strong and robust as ever" in a media interview, as his administration gears up for a possible summit with N.Korean leader KJU. (Reuters Staff, Reuters)

- SK spent around 240 million won ($223,237) on the younger sister of North Korean leader Kim Jong Un and her entourage during their three-day visit for the Pyeongchang Winter Olympics, a government official said on Thursday. (Christine Kim, Reuters)
- NK's nuclear weapons provocations have often been blamed for stealing attention from human rights and responsible for decisions to cut off international food aid. But S.Koreans who are no strangers to N.Korean belligerence told UPI on Thurs. they still favor providing humanitarian assistance to N.Koreans as a way to alleviate some of the regime's gravest human rights abuses. (Elizabeth Shim, Jennie Oh, UPI)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- President Moon will likely hold a meeting with NK's delegation to the closing ceremony of the PyeongChang Winter Olympic Games, an official from the presidential office Cheong Wa Dae said Thurs. (Yonhap)
- NK said Thurs. it will send a high-level delegation to the PyeongChang Winter Olympics' closing ceremony, Seoul officials said. Kim Yong-chol, head of the ruling party's United Front Department, will lead the eight-member delegation that includes Ri Son-gwon, the head of the North's agency in charge of inter-Korean affairs, for a three-day trip that will start Sun. (Yonhap)
- Pyongyang told Seoul Thurs. that it would send its second high-level delegation to the PyeongChang Winter Olympics to participate in the closing ceremony Sun. and it will be led by the figure blamed by past administrations for masterminding the 2010 torpedoing of SK's Cheonan warship, killing 46 sailors. (Lee Sung-eun, Joongang Daily)
- Pyongyang has announced that a hawkish general who is widely considered to have orchestrated a number of attacks on SK will lead the N.Korean delegation to the closing ceremony of the Pyeonchang Winter Olympic Games on Sun. (Julian Ryall, Telegraph)
- The N.Korean athletes at the PyeongChang Winter Olympics have finished their scheduled events, while political issues are getting more attention than their athleticism during their visit to SK. (Nam Hyun-woo, Korea Times)
- SK's Unification Ministry says NK will send a high-level delegation led by Kim Yong Chol, a senior party official suspected of leading two deadly attacks on SK in 2010, to the closing ceremony of the Pyeongchang Winter Olympics. (Eric Talmadge, AP)
- NK is sending another high-level delegation to SK for the Winter Olympics Closing Ceremony this Sun., led by a man widely believed to have masterminded the sinking of a S.Korean navy ship that killed 46 sailors. (Taehoon Lee, CNN)
- NK will send another high-level delegation to SK in time for the closing ceremony of the Pyeongchang Winter Olympics, SK's Ministry of Unification said on Thurs. (Reuters Staff, Reuters)
- NK will send a high-level delegation to SK for the Winter Olympics closing ceremony, officials said on Thurs, including the man blamed for the 2010 sinking of a S.Korean navy ship that killed 46 sailors. (Christine Kim, Hyonhee Shin, Reuters)
- The S.Korean Joint Chiefs of Staff (JCS) instructed its psychological warfare unit last year to discontinue the use of N.Korean leader KJU by name in its cross-border propaganda broadcasts using high-decibel loudspeakers, an opposition lawmaker said Thurs. (Yonhap)
- The resumption of US-SK joint military exercises, which were postponed until after the PyeongChang Olympics and Paralympics end in late Mar., could also mark the end of the current diplomatic outreach to NK. (Brian Padden, VOA)

- NK will send one of its highest ranking figures, General Kim Yong-chol, to the closing ceremony of the Winter Olympics in Pyeongchang. His delegation will stay in SK for three days and is expected to meet S.Korean President Moon. (BBC)

International:

- SK's unification minister said Thurs. that it is too early to say whether officials from the US and NK will meet on the sidelines of the PyeongChang Winter Olympics' closing ceremony. (Yonhap)
- When the sister of KJU made her historic visit to the Winter Olympics in SK two weeks ago, saying nothing but commanding noisy press coverage, the S.Korean news media quickly called her "NK's Ivanka." Now, US President Trump is sending the real Ivanka. (Mark Landler, NY Times)
- China said on Thurs. it is investigating a Japanese report that a Chinese ship may have carried out a ship-to-ship transfer with a N.Korean vessel in breach of UN sanctions. (Reuters Staff, Reuters)
- China is "highly concerned" about a reported ship-to-ship transfer on the high seas that could violate UN. sanctions on NK and has launched an investigation, the foreign ministry said Thurs. (Christopher Bodeen, AP)
- KJU is not so much trying to divide SK from the US as he is seeking to influence Washington through Seoul. For their part, today's S.Korean and American leaders are acting out familiar good cop, bad cop parts, perhaps best exemplified by S.Korean President Moon's hospitality to the visiting N.Korean delegation, and by Vice President Pence's passive-aggressive stance, sitting next to but not looking at Kim's sister while refusing to cheer when the all-Korean women's hockey team entered the arena. (James Dobbins, Reuters)
- By taking part in the Winter Olympics so visibly alongside South Korea, Pyongyang has been able to present itself as a credible global and regional power in a way that has eluded N.Korean leaders since the war that divided the peninsula. The real strategic winner, however, is the S.Korean government, which has shrewdly used the games to reshape the diplomatic landscape. (Peter Apps, Reuters)
- BeNaMu is a non-profit organization for multi-ethnic families in Korea started by Jang Won-jae. Based in Seoul's cultural hub of Hyehwa-dong, central Seoul, BeNa TV is a YouTube channel (with the username "bnatv1004") that introduces immigrants to Korea to local viewers in a talk show format. The most popular program on the channel is "Tal-Tal-Tal," in which a defector from NK gets a full two hours to tell his or her story, with the host being defectors themselves. (Lee Sung-eun, Joongang Daily)
- The AP's Pyongyang Bureau chief gives his take on how a N.Korean might feel about their experience in Pyeongchang. These observations are based off of his back-to-back trips from NK to SK—which gives him the rare chance to experience SK with his "still-fresh-out-of Pyongyang eyes," as well as his experience in examining how elite N.Koreans have been dealing with a massive dose of the "other" Korea. (Eric Talmadge, AP)
- Both during the run-up to the PyeongChang Olympics and during the Winter Games, the tensions over NK's nuclear weapons have appeared to relax significantly. Reports that Vice President Pence's bellicose rhetoric derailed diplomacy with the North, however, reveal a harsher reality. After the Olympics are over, there are five reasons why the temperature between Washington and Pyongyang will almost certainly spike again. (Mira Rapp-Hooper, Washington Post)

- NK said on Thurs. that a high-ranking official, who many in the South believe orchestrated a deadly attack in 2010, would lead a delegation to Sun.'s Winter Olympics closing ceremony in the South, another sign the two Koreas are trying to work out a road map toward improving ties. (Choe Sang-hun, NY Times)
- Former UN secretary-general Ban Ki-moon said Wed. the dialogue between the two Koreas that began during the Winter Olympics must be kept alive so it can hopefully lead to reconciliation, peace and the denuclearization of NK. (Edith M. Lederer, AP)
- The chances of Washington-Pyongyang talks over the latter's nuclear program seem to be growing, with high-level officials from the two countries coming to SK for the closing ceremony of the PyeongChang Winter Olympics. (Kim Rahn, Korea Times)
- Ivanka Trump, who will lead a US delegation to the closing ceremony of the Winter Olympics in SK, has no plan to have any contact with N.Korean delegates, officials from the White House and the Blue House said Thurs. (See Myo-ja, Jung Hyo-sik, Joongang Daily)
- As Ivanka Trump prepares to travel with a presidential delegation to the Winter Olympics in SK this week, White House officials are making clear that the senior aide to the president does not plan to focus any of her attention on NK. (Jenna Johnson, Washington Post)
- SK remains in a dilemma over when and how to resume the joint military drill with the US, as its proper handling can lead to a possible resumption of the long-suspended dialogue between Washington and Pyongyang. (Lee Min-hyung, Korea Times)
- With the 2018 PyeongChang Olympics coming to a close, the real games— the interplay between North and South Korea and between the U.S. and both Koreas—begin. Although the players may have shifted some of the pieces around the chessboard during these most political of Winter Olympics, it is much too early to know what happens next, much less the final moves. (Donald Kirk, Korea Times)
- NK is pursuing nuclear weapons as a means to reunify the Korean Peninsula under its control, not just for self-defense, John Bolton, former US ambassador to the United Nations, said Wed. (Yonhap)
- The Olympics has been a PR dream come true for the murderous Kim dictatorship. SK's Moon administration claims to be using the games to foster goodwill, but the reality is that NK has taken this opportunity to stage one of history's great whitewashing operations, where the breathless focus is on the fashion style of the Dear Leader's sister instead of his forced labor camps and police state. (Garry Kasparov, Thor Halvorssen, Washington Post)
- SK's top negotiator on N.Korean nuclear issues met with the Chinese ambassador to Seoul on Thurs. to discuss a growing momentum for engagement with NK following its participation in the PyeongChang Winter Olympics, the foreign ministry said. (Yonhap)
- A police witness told a Malaysian court Thurs. that there is no video evidence that shows an Indonesian woman smearing a nerve agent on the face of the estranged half-brother of NK's leader as part of an airport attack that killed him. (Eileen Ng, AP)
- SK is in close consultation with the US on whether to allow a blacklisted N.Korean official to travel to SK for the closing ceremony of the PyeongChang Olympics, the foreign ministry said Thurs. (Yonhap)
- Slovenian President Borut Pahor praised SK for its dialogue-oriented NK policy, calling the move "worthy enough to inspire the world." (Lee Min-hyung, Korea Times)
- if our own people cannot figure out what we are trying to accomplish and how we are going to get there, how do we think the S.Koreans, the Japanese or, for that matter, the N.Koreans will? (Jennifer Rubin, Washington Post)

- Unprepared and outclassed, NK's 22 athletes wrapped up their competition at the Pyeongchang Winter Olympics on Thurs. without a finish higher than 13th. (Eric Talmadge, AP)

Prepared by Jinny Ahn, HRNK Research Intern

——————————————————

Friday, February 23, 2018

Trump says launching 'largest-ever' package of sanctions against North Korea; Ivanka Trump, in South Korea, Calls for Pressure on the North

In North Korea:
Authorities demand money from residents for Musan Mine operation (Daily NK, 02/23/2018)
DPRK-Cuba Solidarity Committee Meets (NK Leadership Watch, 02/23/2018)
Entry ban, sanctions interrupt running of only int'l university in North Korea (Yonhap, 02/23/2018)
Forestry and Environmental Officials Meet (NK Leadership Watch, 02/23/2018)
From paper to fuel, North Koreans endure widespread shortages as sanctions take their toll (Telegraph, 02/23/2018)
North Korean agents demanding more bribes from defector networks (UPI, 02/23/2018)
Quick Takes: New Structure at Sohae's Launch Pad Gets a Roof or Second Floor (38 North, 02/22/2018)

In South Korea:
(2nd LD) Main opposition party rallies against planned visit by N.K. official accused of sinking Cheonan (Yonhap, 02/23/2018)
Moon's approval rating rebounds to 68 pct (Yonhap, 02/23/2018)
Moon slammed for accepting North's visitor (Joongang Ilbo, 02/23/2018)
NSC convenes to discuss N. Korean delegation's visit (Yonhap, 02/22/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
(2nd LD) Koreas to hold talks next week on N.K's participation in Paralympics (Yonhap, 02/23/2018)
(2nd LD) Seoul says it is difficult to pinpoint mastermind of North's 2010 naval attack (Yonhap, 02/23/2018)
Kim's cheer squad 'charm offensive' (Reuters, 02/23/2018)
Nauert: North Korea's Kim Yong Chol should visit warship memorial (UPI, 02/22/2018)
North and South Korea to meet to discuss taking part in Paralympics (CNN, 02/23/2018)
North Korea's Kim Yong Chol 'right person' for inter-Korean, denuclearisation talks: Yonhap citing spy agency (Reuters, 02/22/2018)
Nukes can't win peace (Joongang Ilbo, 02/23/2018)
S. Korean firms to seek visit to joint factory park in N. Korea (Yonhap, 02/23/2018)

South Korea's Moon says Seoul cannot acknowledge North Korea as nuclear state: Blue House (Reuters, 02/23/2018)
S.Korea says approved visit by sanctioned North Korean to pursue peace on peninsula (Reuters, 02/23/2018)
U.S. hopes N.K. official pays tribute to slain S. Korean sailors (Yonhap, 02/22/2018)

International:
(LEAD) Moon, Ivanka stress need for peace, but differ on how to achieve goal (Yonhap, 02/23/2018)
(LEAD) S. Korea to deepen military ties with Switzerland, Latvia (Yonhap, 02/23/2018)
2 Trump Children in Asia; 2 Approaches to the World (NYT, 02/23/2018)
(3rd LD) Ivanka Trump says visit to Korea is to reaffirm 'commitment' to ally (Yonhap, 02/23/2018)
AP EXPLAINS: What's N. Korea Up to With Provocative Visit? (NYT, 02/23/2018)
China January trade with North Korea falls to lowest since at least June 2014 (Reuters, 02/22/2018)
Ivanka Trump arrives in South Korea, but Seoul says no meeting with North planned (Washington Post, 02/23/2018)
Ivanka Trump Brings Star Power to Olympics (VOA, 02/23/2018)
Ivanka Trump gets red-carpet welcome for Winter Olympics visit (Guardian, 02/23/2018)
Ivanka Trump heads to S. Korea amid speculation over N.K. contact (Yonhap, 02/22/2018)
Ivanka Trump, in South Korea, Calls for Pressure on the North (NYT, 02/23/2018)
Ivanka Trump reaffirms U.S. commitment to 'maximum pressure' on North (Joongang Ilbo, 02/23/2018)
Japanese Men Nabbed in Shooting at De Facto N. Korea Embassy (NYT, 02/23/2018)
North Korea Criticizes UN Chief Over Support for Sanctions (NYT, 02/23/2018)
North Korea sanctions: Donald Trump announces 'largest ever' package (Guardian, 02/23/2018)
North Korea slams U.S.-Japan joint drill (Yonhap, 02/22/2018)
Pence almost met Kim, says Post (Joongang Ilbo, 02/23/2018)
Pence: N.K. leader's sister is a 'central pillar' of oppressive regime (Yonhap, 02/22/2018)
S. Korean, Finnish foreign ministers discuss cooperation on N. Korean nukes (Yonhap, 02/22/2018)
S. Korean president to host Ivanka, U.S. delegates in welcome dinner (Yonhap, 02/23/2018)
Shots fired at North Korea-linked group HQ in Japan (Reuters, 02/23/2018)
Trump administration to impose 'largest ever' set of sanctions against North Korea(Washington Post, 02/23/2018)
Trump says launching 'largest-ever' package of sanctions against North Korea (Reuters, 02/23/2018)
Trump to Announce Harsh New Sanctions Against North Korea (NYT, 02/23/2018)
While Korean tensions ease, 3 Americans remain 'prisoners of war' in the North (Washington Post, 02/23/2018)

In North Korea:

- The N. Korean authorities are attempting to collect money from locals to inject some life back into the Musan iron mine after it took a major hit from international sanctions recently. But residents are reportedly pushing back against the order, according to sources in the region. (Kang Mi-jin, Daily NK)
- The DPRK Committee for Solidarity with Cuba held its annual meeting. The committee supports the Cuban people struggling for independence against imperialism and for socialism under the leadership of the Communist Party of Cuba. (NK Leadership Watch)

- The US government ban on the entry of Americans into NK, coupled with international sanctions, is disrupting the only foreign-operated university in NK, Pyongyang University of Science and Technology. (Yonhap)
- A meeting of environmental protection and forestry officials was held in Pyongyang.The meeting "analyzed and reviewed the results in carrying out the first-phase tasks for the forest restoration campaign and the successes and lessons gained in last year's general mobilization for land management." (NK Leadership Watch)
- There are growing indications that international sanctions are taking a toll in NK, with even paper for the country's main publication running short. (Julian Ryall, Telegraph)
- NK state security agents are increasingly profiting from money defectors in the South are wiring to their families, a sign bribery and corruption is rising among state authorities. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- Recent commercial satellite imagery indicates notable progress has been made on a new structure approximately 50 meters southeast of the launch pad at NK's Sohae Satellite Launching Station. While it is too early to determine the purpose of this new structure, its close proximity to the launch pad strongly suggests that it is related to launch operations support.(Joseph S. Bermudez Jr., 38 North)

In South Korea:

- Members of the Liberty Korea Party held a protest rally in front of the presidential office on Fri. to oppose a planned visit to SK by a top N. Korean official accused of masterminding the deadly 2010 sinking of a S. Korean warship. (Yonhap)
- President Moon's approval rating sharply increased to a six-week high this week, a poll showed Fri., amid continued dialogue and reconciliation with NK over the Olympics. (Yonhap)
- The Moon administration is fighting snowballing criticism that it has agreed to welcome NK's Kim Yong-chol to the closing ceremony of the Olympics despite his reputation of having masterminded the 2010 torpedoing of SK's Cheonan warship that killed 46 sailors. (Yonhap)
- SK's presidential office on Thurs. convened a National Security Council session to discuss preparations for the upcoming visit by senior N. Korean officials for the closing ceremony of the Olympics. (Yonhap)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- SK and NK agreed Fri. to hold working-level talks next week to discuss NK's participation in the 2018 Winter Paralympics, which will be held in the South next month. (Yonhap)
- SK government said Fri. that it is difficult to pinpoint who led NK's deadly sinking of the warship Cheonan in 2010, amid controversy surrounding a planned visit by a senior Pyongyang official widely suspected of masterminding the attack. (Yonhap)
- NK's "Army of Beauties", an all-female cheerleading team, have fascinated and perplexed S. Koreans since the squad arrived at the Olympics in Pyeongchang. (Reuters)
- U.S. State Department spokeswoman Heather Nauert said Kim Yong-chul, who may have ordered an attack on a South Korean warship in 2010, should visit the memorial in the South built for the victims of the torpedo attack. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)

- Representatives from NK and SK will meet Mon. to discuss NK's participation in the upcoming Pyeongchang Paralympic Games, according to Seoul. (Will Ripley, James Griffiths, CNN)
- The official NK is sending to SK's Olympics closing ceremony, Kim Yong Chol, is the "right person" for inter-Korean and denuclearization talks, the South's Yonhap news agency reported on Friday citing a lawmaker briefed by the country's spy agency. (Reuters)
- If Pyongyang is really serious about summit talks with Seoul, it must make sincere move towards denuclearization. Otherwise the truce ends with the Olympics. Nuclear armaments cannot buy peace. (Lee Ha-kyung, Joongang Ilbo)
- S. Korean companies that operated factories at the now-shuttered joint industrial park in NK will ask the SK government next week to travel to the border city of Kaesong to inspect their facilities, a private task force representing the firms said Fri. (Yonhap)
- SK cannot acknowledge NK as a nuclear state and talks with NK on denuclearization and improving inter-Korean relations must go hand in hand, Moon Jae-in said on Fri. (Reuters)
- SK said it had approved the Winter Olympic visit by a sanctioned N. Korean official, blamed for the 2010 sinking of a S. Korean ship that killed 46 sailors, in the pursuit of peace and asked for public understanding. (Reuters)
- The US said Thurs. that a ranking N.Korean official should use his planned visit to US to pay tribute to the victims of 2010 attacks that he is said to have masterminded. (Yonhap)

International:

- Moon reiterated the need to maintain the ongoing mood of dialogue and reconciliation between SK and NK on Fri. while Ivanka Trump, daughter of US President Trump, currently leading a US delegation to the closing of the Olympics, stressed the need to continue putting maximum pressure on NK. (Yonhap)
- SK agreed Fri. to strengthen military cooperation with Switzerland and Latvia as the countries' defense chiefs met in Seoul. (Yonhap)
- Ivanka Trump's appearance at this weekend's closing ceremony of the Olympics on behalf of the White House and the US is a softer bookend to US VP Pence's awkward visit during the opening ceremony. (AP)
- Ivanka Trump said Fri. that she came to SK to reaffirm the "strong and enduring commitment" to the people of the US' ally. (Yonhap)
- As SK's liberal president seeks to use the Olympics to improve ties, NK has chosen to send the alleged mastermind of two attacks that killed 50 S. Koreans in 2010 to the games' closing ceremony, a rather strange move on their part. (AP)
- China's Jan. trade with NK fell to the lowest level since at least June 2014, the latest sign that China has kept up pressure on its isolated neighbor in line with UN trade sanctions. (Reuters)
- Even with Ivanka Trump now in SK, the Blue House said that there were no plans for a meeting or even an encounter between the US and NK delegations while they overlap in PyeongChang. (Anna Fifield, Washington Post)
- Ivanka Trump, daughter and senior White House advisor arrived in Seoul on Fri. on a commercial flight. Apart from attending a formal dinner hosted by Moon, Trump is expected to stay away from politics, and will instead spend her time attending Olympic events. (Brian Padden, VOA)

- Ivanka Trump has received a red-carpet welcome on arrival in SK for a visit that will seek to reaffirm the US' "strong and enduring commitment" to SK, amid deep uncertainty over relations with NK after the Winter Olympics. (Benjamin Haas, Guardian)
- Ivanka Trump departed for SK Thurs. to attend the closing of the Olympics as speculation swirled over her possible contact with N. Korean officials during the trip. (Yonhap)
- Ivanka Trump channeled her father's call for "maximum pressure" on NK on Fri., as she started a highly anticipated trip to SK, two weeks after KJU sent his sister here on a mission seen as an attempt to undermine SK's alliance with the US. (Choe Sang-hun, NYT)
- During her meeting with Moon on Fri., Ivanka Trump, the elder daughter of U.S. President Donald Trump and a presidential assistant and advisor, reaffirmed the US' determination to step up pressure on NK to end its nuclear arms program. (Ser Myo-ja, Joongang Ilbo)
- Police said they arrested two Japanese men believed to be right-wing activists for shooting early Fri. at NK's de facto embassy in Tokyo. (AP)
- NK sharply criticized UN Secretary-General Antonio Guterres on Thurs. for supporting sanctions to pressure the country into negotiations with the US on denuclearization, saying he appears to be acting as a "henchman" representing the US. (AP)
- Trump announced on Fri. a new package of sanctions against NK aimed at cutting off the smuggling routes the regime is using to evade a UN embargo and fund its nuclear weapons program. (Julian Borger, Guardian)
- A N. Korean committee on Thurs. blasted the US and Japan for conducting a joint missile drill, branding it as a "ferocious gangster-like act." (Yonhap)
- The Blue House declined to confirm a media report Wed. that it mediated a meeting between Pence and Kim Yo-jong, sister of KJU, after the opening ceremony of the Olympics, which collapsed after the N. Koreans pulled out at the last minute. (Lee Moo-young, Joongang Ilbo)
- Pence blasted the sister of KJU on Thurs., calling her a "central pillar" of a regime accused of serious human rights abuses. (Yonhap)
- Finland's foreign minister reaffirmed his support for SK's policy on NK in a meeting with his S. Korean counterpart in Seoul on Thurs. (Yonhap)
- Moon is set to meet Ivanka Trump as well as other U.S delegates to the PyeongChang Olympic Games on Fri. (Yonhap)
- Japanese police arrested two men on Fri. after several bullets were fired at the Tokyo headquarters of a group linked to NK, a spokesman and media said. (Reuters)
- Trump on Fri. plans to announce the "largest ever" set of sanctions on NK as his administration intensifies efforts to starve Pyongyang of resources it can use for its nuclear program. (Missy Ryan, Washington Post)
- Trump said on Fri. the US would launch the "largest-ever" package of sanctions against NK, intensifying pressure on the reclusive country to giving up its nuclear and missile programs. (Christine Kim, Steve Holland, Reuters)
- Trump announced harsh new shipping sanctions against NK on Fri., a clear signal, coming near the end of an Olympic Games marked by a rapprochement on the Korean Peninsula, that his pressure campaign against NK would not relent. (Mark Landler, NYT)
- For the families of 3 Americans being held in NK, there has been no Olympics-related breakthrough. They don't know when they'll see their father or brother or husband again. (Anna Fifield, Washington Post)

Prepared by Emma Stubblefield, HRNK Research Intern

———————————————

Saturday, February 24, 2018

South Korea says U.S. sanctions on North will bolster U.N. resolutions; N.K. high-level delegation to arrive in S. Korea Sunday morning

In North Korea:
As Olympics Wrap Up, Still No Coverage in North Korea (NYT, 02/23/2018)
Design and dictatorship: exhibition celebrates North Korean graphics (Reuters, 02/23/2018)
Kim Yong-chol: North Korea's controversial Olympics delegate (BBC, 02/23/2018)
N.K. delegation includes diplomats in charge of nuclear issue, diplomacy with U.S.: source (Yonhap, 02/24/2018)
North Koreans Working in China Hustle For Extra Yuan Before Returning Home (RFA,02/23/2018)

In South Korea:
(2nd LD) Ruling party hopes Ivanka's visit will help reduce military tensions in Korea (Yonhap, 02/24/2018)
Lawmakers stage sit-in near border over visit by N. Korean general blamed for warship sinking(Yonhap, 02/24/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
(LEAD) N.K. high-level delegation to arrive in S. Korea Sunday morning (Yonhap, 02/24/2018)
(Olympics) (Yonhap Interview) Everyone gained something from joint Korean hockey team: head coach (Yonhap, 02/24/2018)
'Peace Games' are no game-changer for South Koreans (Reuters, 02/24/2018)
Two Koreas continue consultations over N.K. high-level delegation's visit (Yonhap, 02/24/2018)

International:
(2nd LD) U.S. will continue 'campaign of maximum pressure' on N. Korea: White House(Yonhap, 02/23/2018)
(3rd LD) Trump announces 'heaviest ever' sanctions on N. Korea (Yonhap, 02/23/2018)
AP Fact Check: Toughest Sanctions on North Korea Ever? Not Likely (VOA, 02/23/2018)
China exports barely any fuel to North Korea in January: customs (Reuters, 02/24/2018)
China Says New U.S. Sanctions Threaten Cooperation Over North Korea (NYT, 02/24/2018)
Dispatches From the DMZ: My Three Trips to the Last Cold War Frontier (NYT, 02/24/2018)
Donald Trump announces 'largest ever' North Korea sanctions (Telegraph, 02/23/2018)
European Central Bank says Latvia's ABLV failing, to wind up (Washington Post, 02/24/2018)
Exclusive: U.S. prepares high-seas crackdown on North Korea sanctions evaders - sources(Reuters, 02/23/2018)
Ivanka Trump calls for 'maximum pressure' on North Korea (Guardian, 02/24/2018)
Ivanka Trump practices diplomacy on South Korea Olympics trip (CNN, 02/24/2018)
Money-laundering watchdog: Close North Korean banks (Washington Post, 02/23/2018)

N. Korea attacks reported U.S. preparations for cyberattacks (Yonhap, 02/24/2018)
N. Korean media says nuke arsenal only aimed at U.S. (Yonhap, 02/24/2018)
New U.S. sanctions target virtually all ships North Korea is using: Mnuchin (Reuters, 02/23/2018)
Rescued from Korean War by US ship, now Olympic volunteers (Washington Post, 02/24/2018)
Russia calls for talks with U.S. on North Korea - TASS (Reuters, 02/24/2018)
Seoul sees new U.S. sanctions on N.K. as part of ongoing effort to peacefully settle nuke standoff (Yonhap, 02/24/2018)
South Korea says U.S. sanctions on North will bolster U.N. resolutions (Reuters, 02/23/2018)
U.S. imposes more North Korea sanctions, Trump warns of 'phase two' (Reuters, 02/23/2018)
U.S. levies heaviest-ever sanctions on the North (Joongang Ilbo, 02/24/2018)
U.S. pushes more U.N. sanctions targeting North Korea oil, coal smuggling (Reuters, 02/23/2018)
US tightens sanctions on North Korean shipping (Washington Post, 02/23/2018)

In North Korea:

- The only reports in North Korea from the Winter Olympics as of Saturday afternoon were about the visit of Kim's younger sister and North Korea's nominal head of state to attend the opening ceremony. This blackout is a bit mysterious. (AP)
- NK makes headlines with its military parades and nuclear program but a new London exhibition puts a spotlight on graphic design in the country. (Reuters)
- General Kim Yong-chol will head NK's delegation to the Winter Olympics closing ceremony on Feb 25. He is a controversial figure and his upcoming visit has been met with hostility in SK. (BBC)
- NK's high-level delegation to the closing ceremony of the Olympics includes multiple officials in charge of nuclear issues and diplomacy with the US. (Yonhap)
- N. Korean workers in China are trying to earn extra income before they are forced to return home under tough international sanctions imposed on their nation for recent nuclear tests and missile launches. (Kim Joon-ho, Jun Lee-jin, Roseanne Gerin, RFA)

In South Korea:

- SK's ruling Democratic Party voiced hopes Sat. that the visit by Ivanka Trump, the US president's daughter and senior advisor, will help improve inter-Korean relations and reduce tensions on the Korean Peninsula. (Yonhap)
- 6 lawmakers of the main opposition Liberty Korea Party (LKP) are staging an all-night sit-in on Sat. near the border with NK to protest a planned visit to SK by a top Pyongyang official accused of masterminding the deadly 2010 sinking of a Navy warship. (Yonhap)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- NK's high-level delegation will arrive in SK as scheduled to attend the closing ceremony of the Winter Olympics, the S. Korean government said Sat. (Yonhap)
- It wasn't easy at first to bring the women's hockey teams from the two Koreas together only days before the start of the Olympics, but in the end, everyone involved gained something from the experience, the team's head coach said. (Yoo Jee-ho, Yonhap)

- SK's self-styled "Peace Games" have been a sporting success but public reaction suggests it may have failed its bigger test to generate the support its president needs to make bold moves to improve ties with old enemy NK. (Soyoung Kim, Josh Smith, Reuters)
- SK's unification ministry said Sat. that it is continuing consultations with NK to fine-tune the details of a visit by NK's high-level delegation to the upcoming closing ceremony of the Olympics. (Yonhap)

International:

- The US will continue to put pressure on NK to give up its nuclear weapons program despite a growing mood of reconciliation between the two Koreas, the White House said Sat. (Chang Dong-woo, Yonhap)
- Trump announced the "heaviest ever" sanctions on NK Fri., ratcheting up pressure on the regime to give up its nuclear weapons program despite a growing mood of reconciliation between the Koreas. (Yonhap)
- The Trump administration used "heaviest" to describe its latest sanctions against NK. But were the Treasury Department designations of more than 50 companies and ships accused of illicit trading with the pariah nation really the toughest action yet by the US and the wider world? Probably not. (AP)
- China exported barely any fuel to NK in Jan., data showed on Sat., deepening months-long cuts in trade with its isolated neighbor amid growing tensions over NK's nuclear and missile program. (Reuters)
- China reacted with anger on Sat. to new US sanctions aimed at increasing pressure on nuclear-equipped NK, saying the unilateral targeting of Chinese firms and people risked harming cooperation on the problem. (Reuters)
- After 3 trips to the DMZ the experience has never lost its sense of marvel or menace. To stand at ground zero of a once and possibly future war with North Korea brings home the threat of what can otherwise seem a very distant danger. (Mark Landler, NYT)
- Trump has announced the "largest ever" sanctions against NK as the Winter Olympics truce appeared to come to an abrupt halt. (Ben Riley-Smith, Rozina Sabur, Telegraph)
- The European Central Bank said Sat. it has determined that Latvia's crisis-struck ABLV Bank is failing or likely to fail, amid U.S. accusations of money laundering and breaching sanctions on North Korea. (AP)
- The Trump administration and key Asian allies are preparing to expand interceptions of ships suspected of violating sanctions on NK, a plan that could include deploying US Coast Guard forces to stop and search vessels in Asia-Pacific waters. (Matt Spetalnick, Phil Stewart, David Burnnstrom, Reuters)
- Ivanka Trump is leading a US delegation to the Olympics in SK in an effort to show a softer side of US diplomacy on the peninsula while calling for maximum pressure to be put on NK. (Benjamin Haas, Guardian)
- Ivanka Trump is leading the US delegation to the Olympics closing ceremony, and the trip has thus far proved to be an exercise in diplomacy for the first daughter and senior adviser to the President. (Betsy Klein, CNN)
- The watchdog that monitors global and illicit misuse of funds cited NK as a top source of "ongoing and substantial" money laundering and terrorist financing in a report issued Fri. and urged countries to keep NK at arm's length and close its banks. (Elaine Ganley, AP)

- NK on Sat. denounced reported U.S. preparations for possible cyberattacks against the communist nation, saying it is ready and willing to respond to "any type of warfare." (Yonhap)
- NK's state run media said Sat. that the country's nuclear arsenal is only aimed at the US and suggestions that it will be used to reunify the Korean Peninsula by force are a ploy to disrupt efforts to improve cross-border relations. (Yonhap)
- New measures to block supplies and money from going to NK's work on developing nuclear arms target virtually all shipping that the country is currently using to evade international restrictions, US Treasury Secretary Steve Mnuchin said on Fri. (Reuters)
- Sohn Yang Young and Lee Gyeong Pil were among five babies born on an American ship that ferried 14,000 Korean refugees from NK in one of the world's largest humanitarian evacuation operations ever. Now the two are making their way around the Olympics, promoting peace and reminding younger generations of S. Koreans of their Korean War history. (Kim Hyung-jin, AP)
- Russian Deputy Foreign Minister Igor Morgulov called on Sat. for direct talks between the US and Russia on NK, according to TASS news agency. (Reuters)
- SK said Sat. that the latest package of US unilateral sanctions on NK reaffirmed the US's ongoing aim to peacefully and diplomatically resolve the long-running nuclear standoff with NK. (Yonhap)
- SK said on Sat. new US sanctions on NK will bolster international community compliance with UN resolutions aimed at pressing the isolated state to give up its development of nuclear weapons. (Reuters)
- The US said on Fri. it was imposing its largest package of sanctions to pressure NK to give up its nuclear and missile programs, and Trump warned of a "phase two" that could be "very, very unfortunate for the world" if the steps did not work. (Steve Holland, Christine Kim, Reuters)
- The US revealed its latest sweeping sanctions on NK on Friday, targeting 27 entities, 28 vessels and one individual.Trump described the package as its "heaviest" measures to isolate the regime to date. (Sarah Kim, Joongang Ilbo)
- The US proposed a list of entities on Fri. to be blacklisted under UN sanctions on NK, a move it says is "aimed at shutting down NK's illicit maritime smuggling activities to obtain oil and sell coal." (Michelle Nichlos, Reuters)
- The Trump administration escalated pressure on NK Fri. by slapping sanctions on scores of companies and ships accused of illicit trading with NK. Treasury Secretary Steven Mnuchin said the US. has now blacklisted virtually all ships being used by the NK. (Matthew Pennington, Zeke Miller, AP)

Prepared by Emma Stubblefield, HRNK Research Intern

——————————————————

Sunday, February 25, 2018

N.K.'s high-level delegation comes to S. Korea for Olympics' closing ceremony; N.Korea condemns sanctions, but seen open to talks with US; China reacts angrily to new US sanctions against N.Korea

In North Korea:
(4th LD) Chief N. Korean delegate says Pyongyang willing to hold talks with U.S. (Yonhap, 02/25/2018)
(2nd LD) N. Korea calls tougher U.S. sanctions an act of war (Yonhap, 02/25/2018)
N.K. diplomat in charge of U.S. affairs included in high-level delegation (Yonhap, 02/25/2018)
N. Korea denounces shooting at its de-facto embassy in Tokyo (Yonhap, 02/25/2018)
North Korea condemns sanctions, but seen open to talks with U.S. (Reuters, 02/25/2018)
North Korea has 'enough willingness' to talk with US, says delegation (Korea Times, 02/25/2018)
North Korea has expressed willingness to talk to the United States, South Korean presidential office says (Washington Post, 02/25/2018)
North Korea Is Willing to Talk With U.S., South's Leader Says (NYT, 02/25/2018)
North Korea Open to Talks with US According to S. Korean Presidential Office (VOA, 02/25/2018)
North Korea willing to start direct talks with US, says South Korea (Guardian, 02/25/2018)
North Korea willing to hold talks with US, says South Korea (BBC, 02/25/2018)
North Korea willing to talk to US, South Korea says (CNN, 02/25/2018)
North Korean delegation says it is willing to talk with U.S. (Joongang Ilbo, 02/25/2018)
North Korean envoy, in South, opens door to US talks (Washington Post, 02/25/2018)

In South Korea:
(2nd LD) N.K.'s high-level delegation comes to S. Korea for Olympics' closing ceremony (Yonhap, 02/25/2018)
Controversial North Korean general met with protests ahead of Olympics closing ceremony (Telegraph, 02/25/2018)
Foreign Minister Kang leaves for Geneva to attend U.N. human rights meeting (Yonhap, 02/25/2018)
High-level North Korean delegation arrives in South amid controversy (Korea Times, 02/25/2018)
Ivanka Trump may greet North Korean official at Pyeongchang closing ceremony (UPI, 02/25/2018)
Ivanka Trump stands and claps for North and South Korean Olympic Athletes (CNN, 02/25/2018)
North Korean Ice Hockey Player Who Defected Lauds Effort of Joint Women's Team (VOA, 02/25/2018)
North Koreans arrive for PyeongChang Games closing ceremony (CNN, 02/25/2018)
Protesters target North Korean VIPs heading for Games ceremony (Reuters, 02/24/2018)
PyeongChang Games end with spectacular closing ceremony -- and calls for peace (CNN, 02/25/2018)
S. Korea to focus on holding further inter-Korean talks after Olympics (Yonhap, 02/25/2018)
South Korea brings curtain down on 'Peace Games' (Reuters, 02/25/2018)
The future of our society (Joongang Ilbo, 02/25/2018)
Why did North Korean delegation choose Walkerhill Hotel? (Korea Times, 02/25/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
(LEAD) Moon meets N. Korean delegation chief in PyeongChang (Yonhap, 02/25/2018)

(LEAD) N.K. official accused of masterminding 2010 naval attack visits S. Korea amid protest (Yonhap, 02/25/2018)
A meaningful meeting (Joongang Ilbo, 02/25/2018)
Pyongyang's delegation arrives in South (Joongang Ilbo, 02/25/2018)
With Olympics Over, Team Korea Goes Back to Being 2 Countries (NYT, 02/25/2018)

International:
As Winter Games close, Olympics chief lauds diplomatic thaw between the Koreas (Washington Post, 02/25/2018)
China Reacts Angrily to New US Sanctions Against North Korea (VOA, 02/24/2018)
China Will Deal 'Seriously' With N.Korea Sanctions Breaches (NYT, 02/25/2018)
U.S. levies heaviest-ever sanctions against North Korea (Joongang Ilbo, 02/25/2018)

In North Korea:

- N.K. has "enough" willingness to hold talks with the US, a ranking N.K. official told S.K. President Moon Sunday. (Yonhap)
- N.K. accused the Trump administration Sunday of elevating a war crisis on the peninsula through a set of tougher sanctions on Pyongyang despite Olympics-driven inter-Korean exchanges. (Yonhap)
- Choe Kang-il, a senior N.K. diplomat handling affairs with the US, was included in N.K.'s high-level delegation to the PyeongChang Winter Olympics. (Yonhap)
- N.K.urged the Japanese government to be serious about protecting pro-Pyongyang people on its soil, strongly criticizing a recent shooting incident at the communist nation's de-facto diplomatic mission in Tokyo. (Yonhap)
- Senior officials from Pyongyang visiting S.K. on Sunday said N.K. was open to talks with the US, hours after it accused Washington of trying to stir up conflict on the peninsula with new sanctions. (Yuna Park, Christine Kim, Reuters)
- N.K. is willing to have a dialogue with the U.S., its delegation told President Moon in a meeting ahead of the closing ceremony of the PyeongChang Winter Olympics. (Kim Bo-eun, Korea Times)
- The N.K. delegation to the Closing Ceremonies of the Winter Olympics said that Pyongyang was "willing to have talks" with the US, S.K.'s presidential Blue House said. (Anna Fifield, Washington Post)
- President Moon said that high-ranking officials from N.K. told him their country was willing to start a dialogue with the US, a potential diplomatic victory for Moon who has been urging the two countries to talk. (Choe Sang-hun, NYT)
- The Moon administration said the meeting between President Moon and N.K. delegation led to an agreement that inter-Korean relations and N.K.-U.S. relations should go hand in hand. (VOA)
- N.K. is willing to start direct talks with the US, with the move coming as a high-level delegation from Pyongyang, headed by a controversial general, arrived for the Winter Olympics closing ceremony. (Benjamin Haas, Guardian)
- N.K. is willing to hold talks with the US. The announcement came after Kim Yong-chol met President Moon before the closing ceremony. Trump's daughter Ivanka also attended the ceremony, but US officials have ruled out meeting the N.K. delegation. (BBC)

- Moon said he'd met with the N.K. delegation in Pyeongchang before the closing ceremony of the Winter Olympic Games, and told them that N.K.-US talks should happen "as soon as possible." (Hilary Whiteman and Sophie Jeong, CNN)
- An eight-member high-level delegation from N.K. told S.K.'s President Moon Sunday afternoon before attending the Olympics closing ceremony that it was interested in talking with the US. (Lee Sung-eun, Joongang Ilbo)
- A N.K. envoy making a rare visit to S.K. said that his country was willing to open talks with the US, a rare step toward diplomacy between enemies. (Hyung-Jin Kim and Kim Tong-Hyung, AP)

In South Korea:

- N.K.'s high-level delegation led by a top official accused of having masterminded the 2010 sinking of a S.K. warship arrived in the South to attend the closing ceremony of the PyeongChang Winter Olympics. (Yonhap)
- Protesters attempted to block vehicles carrying a controversial N.K. delegation to the closing ceremony of the Pyeongchang Winter Olympic Games as they crossed the DMZ into S.K. on Sunday morning. (Julian Ryall, Telegraph)
- S.K. Foreign Minister Kang Kyung-wha left for Geneva, Switzerland, on Sunday to attend a U.N. meeting on human rights where she will likely touch on N.K. and the wartime sexual slavery of Korean women by Japan. (Yonhap)
- The N.K. delegation led by Kim Yong-chol, head of the Workers' Party of Korea's United Front Department, arrived in the South and attended the closing ceremony of the PyeongChang Winter Olympics. (Kim Bo-eun, Korea Times)
- President Trump's daughter Ivanka Trump may rub shoulders with N.K.'s former intelligence official Kim Yong-chol at the closing ceremony of the Pyeongchang Winter Olympics. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- Ivanka Trump stood up and clapped alongside S.K. President Moon and his wife as North and South Korean athletes entered the 2018 Winter Olympics' closing ceremony. (Kelly McCleary and Jennifer Hauser, CNN)
- A N.K. women's ice hockey player who defected in 1997 was flooded with memories of her tough sports training as she watched a team from two Koreas skate through their Olympic matches earlier this month. (Hyung Jin Kim, Christy Lee, VOA)
- A high-level N.K. delegation has arrived in S.K. for the closing ceremony of the PyeongChang Winter Games and scheduled talks with S.K. officials. (Taehoon Lee and Hilary Whiteman, CNN)
- S.K. protesters tried and failed on Sunday to block a motorcade carrying N.K. delegation to the Winter Games closing ceremony, accusing the delegation's leader of being behind a deadly 2010 attack on a S.K. worship. (Reuters)
- The PyeongChang Olympics have ended with a spectacular closing ceremony that once again saw athletes from both Koreas marching together. (Danielle Rossingh, CNN)
- S.K.'s unification ministry said Sunday that it will make efforts to hold further talks with N.K. as the PyeongChang Winter Olympics helped revive momentum for inter-Korean dialogue. (Yonhap)
- S.K. brought the curtain down on its "Peace Games" on Sunday, with winter sports athletes dancing and singing together at a vibrant closing ceremony, though there was little warmth between dignitaries from the US and N.K. (James Pearson, Jane Chung, Reuters)

- The PyeongChang Winter Olympics has been an exciting drama series. Will the Olympics drama end as a one-time show, or place the country on a new level toward matured democracy and lasting peace? (Jang Hoon, Joongang Ilbo)
- N.K. again chose Seoul's Walkerhill Hotel for its high-level delegation's lodgings. A question then arises: why does the North prefer the hotel out of numerous luxury five-star hotels in Seoul? (Park Si-soo, Korea Times)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- S.K. President Moon held a surprise meeting Sunday with N.K.'s chief delegate to the closing ceremony of the PyeongChang Winter Olympic Games. (Yonhap)
- A top N.K. official accused of having orchestrated the North's sinking of a S.K. warship in 2010 made a high-profile trip to the South on Sunday amid fierce opposition from conservatives here. (Yonhap)
- While Kim Yong-chol is visiting S.K., the Moon administration must persuade him to talk with the U.S. on denuclearization. Otherwise, the meeting with Kim Yong-chol will be marked as a diplomatic defeat in dealing with Pyongyang's peace charms. (Joogang Ilbo)
- N.K.'s second high-level delegation for the Olympics arrived in S.K. to attend the closing ceremony, as conservatives vehemently protested the arrival of Kim Yong-chol, who allegedly oversaw fatal attacks on the South that killed dozens. (Joongang Ilbo)
- The Winter Olympics came to a festive close on Sunday, with athletes from the two Koreas marching into the stadium together, but wearing different uniforms and waving the flags of their own countries. (Motoko Rich, NYT)

International:

- Thomas Bach, the president of the IOC, lauded the cooperation between the Koreas, saying both Koreas shared their faith in a peaceful future, as athletes from the two Koreas walked into the opening and closing ceremonies together. (Anna Fifield, Washington Post)
- China responded angrily Saturday to new sanctions the US imposed on N.K., maintaining they were counterproductive to efforts to halt Pyongyang's nuclear and long-range missile development programs. (VOA)
- China will "seriously" deal with any breaches of UNSC resolutions on N.K. should they be found, a Chinese official said, soon after the third report this month of a ship-to-ship transfer suspected of violating sanctions. (AP)
- Washington revealed its latest sanctions on N.K. on Friday, targeting 27 entities, 28 vessels and one individual. President Trump described the package as its "heaviest" measures to isolate the regime to date. (Sarah Kim, Shin Kyung-jin, Joongang Ilbo)

Prepared by James Park, HRNK Research Intern

Monday, February 26, 2018

North Korea says again it's open to talks with U.S.: South Korea's presidential office; White House: Talks with North Korea must lead to ending nuclear program

In North Korea:
(LEAD) (Olympics) N.K. athletes, cheerleaders return home as Olympics end (Yonhap, 02/26/2018)
A North Korean defector analyzes North Korea's Olympic cheerleaders (Daily NK, 02/26/2018)
In blackout North Korea, authorities export electricity to China for cash (Daily NK, 02/26/2018)
Visiting athletes less stony as they head home (Joongang Ilbo, 02/26/2018)

In South Korea:
(LEAD) Political clash escalates over controversial N.K. official's visit (Yonhap, 02/26/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
(LEAD) Gov't says no problem with N. Korean official's visit route (Yonhap, 02/26/2018)
(LEAD) Moon's top security aide holds talks with N. Korean delegates in Seoul (Yonhap, 02/26/2018)
(3rd LD) N.K. delegate reiterates door open for dialogue with U.S.: Cheong Wa Dae (Yonhap, 02/26/2018)
After North and South Korea's Olympic rapprochement, a reality check (CNN, 02/25/2018)
Beware fake peace (Joongang Ilbo, 02/26/2018)
Gov't dismisses reports of discord between Olympic athletes of two Koreas (Yonhap, 02/26/2018)
Korean Peace Olympics End on Hopeful Note (VOA, 02/26/2018)
N.K. unveils list of its delegates for talks with South on Paralympics (Yonhap, 02/26/2018)
Need for clarity (Joongang Ilbo, 02/26/2018)
(Olympics) S. Korean female hockey players bid teary farewell to N. Korean teammates (Yonhap, 02/26/2018)
Rude awakenings ahead as Pyeongchang 2018 draws to a close (Guardian, 02/26/2018)
S. Korean firms seek gov't approval to visit joint factory park in N. Korea (Yonhap, 02/26/2018)
Something's gotta give (Joongang Ilbo, 02/26/2018)
South Korea urges North to abandon nuclear weapons, allow family visits (Reuters, 02/26/2018)
The next step (Joongang Ilbo, 02/26/2018)

International:
(LEAD) Moon urges U.S. to lower bar for dialogue with N. Korea (Yonhap, 02/26/2018)
(2nd LD) U.S. 'will see' if N.K. willingness for talks is commitment to denuclearize (Yonhap, 02/26/2018)
After revelation over canceled US-NK talks, questions over purpose of talks in first place(Daily NK, 02/26/2018)
In U.N. speech, S. Korean FM calls on N. Korean regime to improve human rights (Yonhap, 02/26/2018)
Ivanka Trump had no interaction with N. Koreans: White House (Yonhap, 02/26/2018)
N. Korea, U.S. warm toward talks with North voicing willingness to talk (Yonhap, 02/26/2018)
North's delegates insist they want talks with U.S. (Joongang Ilbo, 02/26/2018)

North Korea is a bigger cyber-attack threat than Russia, says expert (Guardian, 02/26/2018)
North Korea says again it's open to talks with U.S.: South Korea's presidential office (Reuters,02/26/2018)
North Korea wants dialogue with US without preconditions (Korea Times, 02/26/2018)
North Korea willing to start direct talks with US, says South Korea (Guardian, 02/26/2018)
Russian hackers posed as North Koreans to launch cyberattack on Winter Olympics, claims US (Telegraph, 02/25/2018)
S. Korea hopes for 'constructive' dialogue between U.S. and N.K. (Yonhap, 02/26/2018)
South Korean Leader Urges U.S. and North Korea to Make Talks Possible (NYT, 02/26/2018)
South Korea's president urges both Washington and Pyongyang to be pragmatic (Washington Post, 02/26/2018)
US 'must lower the bar' for direct talks with North Korea (Telegraph, 02/26/2018)
U.S., North Korea should lower threshold for talks, says South (Reuters, 02/26/2018)
US ties any North Korea talks to nuclear arms (BBC, 02/25/2018)
US: 'We Will See' if N. Korea Willingness to Talk is Denuclearization First Step (VOA, 02/25/2018)
White House Takes Cautious Approach on North Korea Overeture (NYT, 02/26/2018)
White House: Talks with North Korea must lead to ending nuclear program (Reuters, 02/26/2018)

In North Korea:

- N. Korean athletes and cheerleaders returned home Mon. after NK sent a record size delegation to the Olympics, which ended the previous day. (Yonhap)
- A N. Korean defector analyzes the behavior, outfits, and cheers of the N. Korean cheerleaders at an Alpine Skiing event. (SeolSong-ah, Daily NK)
- The NK State Affairs Commission revealed that some of the electricity being produced by a hydroelectric dam is being sold to China. Although NK struggles with electricity shortages, the export of hydropower is seen as an attempt by the regime to maintain its financial lifelines. (Seol Song-ah, Daily NK)
- A N. Korean delegation of 299 athletes and cheerleaders headed home by road Mon. after the closing of the historic Olympics in Gangwon the previous evening. (Sarah Kim, Chun Su-jin, Joongang Ilbo)

In South Korea:

- S. Korean political parties collided Mon. over a controversial visit to Seoul by N. Korean official Kim Yong-chol, who is accused of masterminding deadly military attacks in 2010. (Yonhap)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- SK's defense ministry dismissed concerns Mon. that some border security-related information might have been leaked to NK as its top officials were allowed to use a strategically important road to visit here. (Yonhap)
- Chung Eui-yong, Moon's top security aide held talks Mon. with high-level N. Korean delegates to the Olympic Games. (Yonhap)

- A senior N. Korean official, Kim Yong-chol, said Mon. that the reclusive state is willing to hold talks with the US, noting the door for dialogue between the two countries remains open. (Yonhap)
- After the end of the historical, Olympic moment of unity, NK and SK are still technically at war, and there's no consensus in SK on how to deal with this issue, just as there's no real consensus in the US on how to deal with NK. (Jamie Tarabay, CNN)
- Even if Kim Yong-chol makes various arguments about peace, we cannot overlook the crimes he committed against the S. Korean people. He must feel the outrage of the S. Korean people who cannot accept fake peace supported by a nuclear program. (Chun Young-gi, Joongang Ilbo)
- The S. Korean government on Monday dismissed reports of a possible dispute with NK at the Olympic Games, which was evident to some in the separate entry of their athletes at the closing ceremony, saying there had been no plans for a joint entry in the first place. (Yonhap)
- The "Peace" Olympics has succeeded in creating diplomatic momentum toward resolving the nuclear standoff on the Korean Peninsula, but it is unclear whether it can be sustained. (Brian Padden, VOA)
- NK on Mon. unveiled a list of its three-member delegation for SK and NK's talks on NK's participation in next month's Paralympics, Seoul officials said. (Yonhap)
- We need to clarify the situation. We cannot weaken sanctions when NK does not show genuine actions towards denuclearization. (Joongang Ilbo)
- S. Korean women's ice hockey players on Mon. bid a teary farewell to their N. Korean teammates on the unified Korean team for the Olympics, a day after they marched in together at the closing ceremony. (Yoo Jee-ho, Yonhap)
- The legacy of Pyeongchang 2018 is on course to mirror many of the woes that have plagued other hosts of the Olympics, but There is another rude awakening ahead: the rapprochement between NK and SK is unlikely to last. (Benjamin Haas, Guardian)
- S. Korean companies that operated factories at the now-shuttered joint industrial park in NK asked the Seoul government Mon. to allow their trip to the border city of Kaesong to inspect their facilities, a private task force representing the firms said.(Yonhap)
- By choosing to send Kim Yong-chol we can only suspect the North is up to its old tricks of trying to stoke conflict among S. Koreans. If NK continues in its ways, public opinion will disapprove of Moon's approach. (Lee Ha-kyung, Joongang Ilbo)
- NK must heed the call by major powers to abandon its nuclear and ballistic missile programs and allow peace to take root on the divided peninsula, SK's foreign minister Kang Kyung-wha said to the UN Human Rights Council on Mon. (Reuters)
- The truce between SK and NK during the Olympics should extend to lasting peace. It could turn out to be another propaganda stunt by NK if there are no concrete moves toward easing tension and ensuring peace after the Olympics. (Joongang Ilbo)

International:

- Moon said on Mon. the US should lower its bar for bilateral talks with NK, adding that it is important to have such dialogue moving forward first. (Yonhap)
- The US "will see" if NK's stated willingness to hold talks is a commitment to abandon its nuclear weapons program, the White House said Sun.(Yonhap)
- After the canceled meeting between Kim Yo-jong and Mike Pence, it is clear that the nuclear issue remains a key obstacle. But both sides should continue to work towards establishing dialogue and establish a plan for what to do in case talks fail to materialize. (Ahn Jong-sik, Daily NK)

- Foreign Minister Kang Kyung-wha on Mon. called on the N. Korean regime to improve the human rights of its people at her key-note speech to the UN Human Rights Council in Geneva, Switzerland. (Yonhap)
- Ivanka Trump has had no interaction with N. Korean officials during her visit to SK, a White House official said Sun. amid keen interest in whether the two sides will resume dialogue. (Yonhap)
- NK and the US appear to have moved one step closer to holding much-needed bilateral talks to put a lid on NK's nuclear weapons program after Kim Yong-chol, said in Seoul last week that his country is willing enough to talk to the US. (Yonhap)
- NK repeatedly stressed that it is open to dialogue with the US, a Blue House official said Mon., Moon continued his efforts to bring NK and US together to resolve the security crisis over the KJU's regime's nuclear and missile threats. (Ser Myo-ja, Joongang Ilbo)
- NK poses a bigger threat of large-scale cyber-attacks than Russia, according to the co-founder of the information security firm that investigated the 2016 Democratic National Committee hacks, Crowdstrike. (Alex Hern, Guardian)
- Kim Yong-chol said again that NK was open to talks with the US, the South's Yonhap news agency said, citing the presidential office. (Reuters)
- A N. Korean delegation visiting SK reaffirmed that NK was willing to talk with the US, adding that there would be no preconditions in opening the dialogue. (Kim Rahn, Korea Times)
- NK has said it is willing to start direct talks with the US, with the move coming as a high-level delegation from Pyongyang, headed by a controversial general, arrived for the Olympics closing ceremony. (Benjamin Haas, Guardian)
- Russian hackers attacked S. Korean government computers during the Olympics, but made it look like the attack was carried out by the North, US intelligence agencies believe. (Harriet Alexander, Julian Ryall, Telegraph)
- SK's unification ministry expressed hope Mon. that the US and NK could open "constructive" talks as the Olympics helped create a mood for rapprochement. (Yonhap)
- Moon urged the US and NK on Mon. to soften their uncompromising stances so that talks could start on defusing the crisis prompted by NK's nuclear program and the US's threats to stop it with military force. (Choe Sang-hyun, NYT)
- The US must "lower its bar for dialogue" and NK must signal that denuclearization is on the agenda, SK's president said Mon. as he tried to keep the momentum going in an Olympics-inspired detente. (Anna Fifiled, Washington Post)
- Moon has called on the US to "lower the bar" for discussions with NK, suggesting that the US should drop its insistence that NK's nuclear arsenal must be part of any future talks. (Julian Ryall, Telegraph)
- Moon said on Mon. the US and NK should both give ground so they can sit down to talks to try to resolve a nuclear standoff, a day after Pyongyang expressed willingness for dialogue. (Christine Kim, Reuters)
- Amidst NK's requests for talks with the US, the US says any dialogue with NKmust have nuclear disarmament as the end goal. (BBC)
- The Trump administration is responding tepidly following NK's expression of willingness to hold talks with the US. (Steve Herman, VOA)
- The White House says it will wait and see whether a new overture by NK for talks with the US means it is serious about disarming, a step Trump and other world leaders agree must be the outcome of any future dialogue. (AP)

- The White House said any talks with NK must lead to an end to its nuclear program after senior officials from Pyongyang visiting SK said on Sun. their government was open to talks with the US. (Yuna Park, Roberta Rampton, Reuters)

Prepared by Emma Stubblefield, HRNK Research Intern

——————————————————

Tuesday, February 27, 2018

NK to send athletes to Paralympics next Wed.; SK says sanctions do not aim to bring down NK; State Department point man on NK, Joseph Yun, to retire Fri.

In North Korea:
(2nd LD) N.K. to send athletes to Paralympics next Wednesday (Yonhap, 02/27/2018)
(3rd LD) N.K.'s high-level delegation led by controversial official returns home (Yonhap, 02/27/2018)
(LEAD) N.K.'s high-level delegation to return home after voicing openness for talks with U.S. (Yonhap, 02/27/2018)
North's delegation returns home (Joongang Daily, 02/27/2018)
North Korea 'refuses talks with US if they come with preconditions' (Telegraph, 02/27/2018)
North Korean delegation returns home after Olympics outreach (Washington Post, 02/27/2018)
North Korean state security agents extort borderland cash brokers (Daily NK, 02/27/2018)
State Security agents blackmailing defectors in China into joining expanding informant network (Daily NK, 02/27/2018)

In South Korea:
(LEAD) In U.N. speech, S. Korean FM calls on N. Korean regime to improve human rights (Yonhap, 02/26/2018)
FM Kang urged int'l unity for peaceful resolution of N. Korean nukes in Geneva disarmament conference (Yonhap, 02/27/2018)
Kang calls on Pyongyang to abandon its nukes (Joongang Daily, 02/27/2018)
S. Korea vows efforts to broker U.S.-N. Korea talks (Yonhap, 02/27/2018)
SKorea minister: North's tests 'blatant affront' to treaty (Washington Post, 02/27/2018)
South Korea says sanctions do not aim to bring down North Korea (Reuters, 02/27/2018)
South Korea Urges US Support for North Korea Nuclear Talks (VOA, 02/27/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
(2nd LD) Koreas hold talks on N.K.'s participation in Paralympics (Yonhap, 02/27/2018)
N.K. unveils list of its delegates for talks with South on Paralympics (Yonhap, 02/26/2018)
North Korea to send athletes to next month's Paralympics in South Korea: report (Reuters, 02/27/2018)
North Korean officials return home after agreeing to continue improving ties with South Korea (UPI, 02/26/2018)

Winter Paralympics: North Korea to send team following talks (BBC, 02/27/2018)

International:

'My life is in danger,' North Korea leader's half-brother quoted as saying months before poisoning (Reuters, 02/27/2018)
(2nd LD) Trump says talks with N. Korea only under right conditions (Yonhap, 02/27/2018)
(3rd LD) N.K. delegate reiterates door open for dialogue with U.S.: Cheong Wa Dae (Yonhap, 02/26/2018)
(LEAD) Foreign Minister Kang discusses N. Korean denuclearization with Swiss, Hungarian counterparts (Yonhap, 02/27/2018)
(LEAD) Top U.S. envoy on N. Korean nukes to retire this week: report (Yonhap, 02/27/2018)
Donald Trump says he is willing to talk to North Korea only under 'right conditions' (Telegraph, 02/26/2018)
Experts cautious over prospects for NK-US talks (Korea Times, 02/26/2018)
EU steps up sanctions against N. Korea in line with U.N. resolution (Yonhap, 02/27/2018)
Japan suspects yet another North Korea sanctions breach at sea (Reuters, 02/27/2018)
Joint military drills may be delayed further as North Korea turns to dialogue (Korea Times, 02/26/2018)
Key US Diplomat on North Korea Matters to Retire (VOA, 02/27/2018)
New Zealand prime minister creates new cabinet post for disarmament (Reuters, 02/26/2018)
Police: Kim Jong Nam told friend he feared for his life (Washington Post, 02/27/2018)
Senior U.S. diplomat for North Korea to retire (Reuters, 02/26/2018)
State Department point man on North Korea, Joseph Yun, to retire Friday (Washington Post, 02/27/2018)
Top U.S. policy expert on North Korea announces retirement (UPI, 02/27/2018)
Top US negotiator to North Korea in surprise resignation (Telegraph, 02/27/2018)
Trump: U.S. would like talks with Pyongyang but 'we'll see what happens' (Reuters, 02/26/2018)
Trump: US Willing to Talk With N. Korea Under Right Conditions (VOA, 02/26/2018)
Trump calls out Bush, Obama on North Korea (CNN, 02/26/2018)
Trump sees talks with NKorea only under 'right conditions' (Washington Post, 02/26/2018)
Trump Opens Door, Just Slightly, to Talking With North Korea (NY Times, 02/27/2018)
Trump willing to talk to North (Joongang Daily, 02/27/2018)
U.S. diplomatic efforts on N.K. to continue despite envoy's retirement: State Department (Yonhap, 02/27/2018)
US envoy on North Korea policy is retiring (Washington Post, 02/27/2018)
US' top North Korea diplomat announces surprise retirement (CNN, 02/27/2018)
White House official had no contact with N. Koreans in S. Korea (Yonhap, 02/27/2018)
With N. Korean ICBMs posing direct threat, U.S. president could react unilaterally: expert (Yonhap, 02/27/2018)

In North Korea:

- NK will send athletes next week to take part in the PyeongChang Paralympics, which will be held in SK in March, Seoul's unification ministry said Tues. (Yonhap)
- NK's high-level delegation led by a controversial official returned home Tues., after a three-day visit to SK, during which it expressed the NK's willingness to hold talks with the US. (Yonhap)

- NK's high-level delegation led by a controversial official is set to return home Tues. after it expressed NK's willingness to hold talks with the US. (Yonhap)
- NK's high-level delegation to the Olympics closing ceremony returned home Tues. after meeting with authorities in the intelligence, diplomatic and inter-Korean relations sectors as the Moon administration takes on the big challenge of brokering talks between Pyongyang and Washington. (Lee Sung-eun, Kim Kyung-hee, Joongang Daily)
- NK and the US remain deadlocked over the prospect of direct peace talks as it emerged on Tues. that Pyongyang's delegation in SK has repeated that it will not consider any American preconditions. (Julian Ryall, Telegraph)
- NK's delegation to the closing ceremony of the Winter Olympics left SK on Tues. after a visit in which the former general suspected of masterminding deadly 2010 military attacks told Seoul officials the North is willing to talk with Washington. (Kim Tong-Hyung, AP)
- N.Korean Ministry of State Security officers are reportedly extorting wire-transfer brokers in the border region of North Hamgyong Province. Defectors who escape the country often try to send money back to their relatives inside NK, but such transactions are complicated and difficult. To assist with the transfers, a clandestine industry of wire-transfer brokers has emerged to facilitate the cash infusions. Ministry of State Security (MSS) officers have long understood the opportunity for personal gain by threatening these brokers, offering to look the other way in exchange for bribes. (Kang Mi Jin, Daily NK)
- Recent reports suggest that the N.Korean authorities have ramped up efforts to recruit undercover informants in China to assist in the identification and capture of defectors. (Lee Sang Yong, Daily NK)

In South Korea:

- Foreign Minister Kang Kyung-wha on Mon. called on the N.Korean regime to improve the human rights of its people during her keynote speech to the United Nations Human Rights Council in Geneva, Switzerland, her ministry said. (Yonhap)
- Foreign Minister Kang Kyung-wha called for international unity for a peaceful resolution of NK's nuclear issue at the Conference on Disarmament held in Geneva, Switzerland on Mon., her ministry said. (Yonhap)
- S.Korean Minister of Foreign Affairs Kang Kyung-wha called on Pyongyang to abandon its nuclear and missile programs and invest more of its resources in its people to protect and promote their rights at the United Nations Human Rights Council in Geneva Mon. (Sarah Kim, Joongang Daily)
- SK pledged on Tues. to continue its efforts to broker dialogue between the US and NK as the two countries still differ on the conditions for opening talks. (Yonhap)
- SK's foreign minister says NK's sixth nuclear test and 20 ballistic missile launches last year amount to a "blatant affront" to the United Nations' nuclear test ban treaty. (Associated Press)
- Sanctions on NK aim to pressure it to give up its nuclear ambitions, not to bring down the government, S.Korean Foreign Minister Kang Kyung-wha told the Conference on Disarmament at the United Nations in Geneva on Tues. (Reuters Staff, Reuters)
- S.Korean President Moon is continuing efforts to broker talks between the US and NK to reduce tensions over NK's nuclear program, despite facing reluctance from Washington and Pyongyang, and increasing concerns at home. (Brian Padden, VOA)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- SK and NK held working-level talks Tues. to discuss details of NK's participation in the Paralympics to be held in SK next month. (Yonhap)
- NK on Mon. unveiled a list of its three-member delegation for SK and NK's talks on NK's participation in next month's Paralympics, Seoul officials said. (Yonhap)
- NK plans to send athletes to compete in next month's Paralympic Games in SK, following its high profile participation in the Olympic games that wrapped up on Sun., Yonhap news agency said. (Reuters Staff, Reuters)
- S.Korean and N.Korean officials agreed to continue making efforts to improve cross-border relations and achieve peace on the peninsula, Seoul said Tues. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- NK will participate in the Winter Paralympic Games in Pyeongchang, according to SK's news agency. (BBC)

International:

- Kim Jong Nam, the poisoned half-brother of N.Korean leader KJU, told a friend in Malaysia his life was in danger six months before he was killed, a police official told a court on Tues. (Reuters Staff, Reuters)
- US President Donald Trump said Mon. that talks with NK are possible only under the right conditions. (Yonhap)
- A senior N.Korean official said Mon. that the reclusive state is willing to hold talks with the US, noting the door for dialogue between the two countries remains open, according to an official from Seoul's presidential office Cheong Wa Dae. (Yonhap)
- Foreign Minister Kang Kyung-wha has discussed ways to open denuclearization talks with NK with her Swiss and Hungarian counterparts in Geneva, Switzerland, the foreign ministry said Tues. (Yonhap)
- The top US negotiator on the N.Korean nuclear issue will retire this week, a foreign news report said Tuesday. (Yonhap)
- President Donald Trump said on Mon. that the US would like to have talks with NK, but "only under the right conditions", as he offered his first, cautious response to Pyongyang's offer of negotiations. (Julian Ryall, Rob Crilly, Telegraph)
- Analysts generally gave positive assessments on NK's softening stance toward talks with the US, but remained cautious over the prospects for their talks. (Choi Ha-young, Korea Times)
- The European Union (EU) said it has tightened its sanctions against NK in line with the latest resolution adopted by the United Nations Security Council (UNSC) over the communist country's nuclear and missile programs. (Yonhap)
- Japan has discovered another N.Korean tanker it suspects of transferring goods with a vessel in defiance of U.N. Security Council resolutions, the Foreign Ministry said on Tues. (Reuters Staff, Reuters)
- Joint military exercises between SK and the US can be postponed further amid growing signs of the resumption of the long-suspended dialogue between Washington and Pyongyang. (Lee Min-hyung, Korea Times)
- Joseph Yun, the US State Department's special representative for N.Korean policy, is leaving his post later this week. (VOA News, VOA)

- New Zealand's Prime Minister on Tues. used her first major foreign policy address to announce she is establishing a ministerial position for disarmament amid tensions in the Asia-Pacific region over NK's weapons programs. (Reuters Staff, Reuters)
- A police investigator testified Tues. that the estranged half brother of NK's leader told a friend in Malaysia that his life was in danger six months before he was killed at an airport. (Associated Press)
- The US State Department's special representative for NK policy, Joseph Yun, plans to retire on Fri., just as signs are emerging that Pyongyang may be willing to talk with Washington. (Josh Smith, David Brunnstrom, Reuters)
- The State Department's point man on NK, Joseph Yun, will leave his post on Fri., amid glimmers of hope that Pyongyang might finally be willing to sit down for talks with Washington. (Anna Fifield, Washington Post)
- Joseph Yun, the top U.S. diplomat in charge of N.Korean policy, announced his surprise retirement on Tues. (Sara Shayanian, UPI)
- One the US' top diplomats in charge of NK policy has announced his abrupt retirement, leading to fears of a dearth of expertise at a crucial time in Washington's relations with Pyongyang. (Nicola Smith, Telegraph)
- President Donald Trump said on Mon. that the US, which has been ramping up pressure on NK over its nuclear and missile programs, would like to have talks with Pyongyang but only under the right conditions. (Reuters Staff, Reuters)
- US President Donald Trump is expressing a willingness to talk with NK, but "only under the right conditions," while warning that if Pyongyang doesn't abandon its nuclear weapons and ballistic missile programs there could be a potentially tremendous "loss of lives, numbers that nobody's ever contemplated, never thought of." (Steve Herman, VOA)
- President Donald Trump on Mon. criticized Presidents George W. Bush and Barack Obama for their handling of the N.Korean threat during remarks Mon. to state governors at the White House. (Jeremy Diamond, CNN)
- President Donald Trump on Mon. responded to an overture from NK for talks with the U.S., saying that will happen only "under the right conditions." (Darlene Superville, AP)
- NK's declaration at the end of the Winter Olympics of its willingness to start a dialogue with the US offered a sliver of optimism that the political pageantry of the Games would lead to more substantial results. (Motoko Rich, NY Times)
- US President Donald Trump said Mon. he is willing to talk with NK, but "only under the right conditions," after Pyongyang relayed that it is open to dialogue with Washington. (Sarah Kim, Joongang Daily)
- The US will continue diplomatic efforts to dismantle NK's nuclear weapons program despite the retirement of its top official handling the issue, the State Department said Tues. (Yonhap)
- The senior US diplomat who has retained back-channel contacts with NK amid high tension over the pariah nation's nuclear program is retiring. (Associated Press)
- The US State Department's top diplomat in charge of NK policy is retiring at the end of the week. (Ellana Lee, Joshua Berlinger, CNN)
- A White House official in charge of Korea affairs did not meet with N.Korean officials during her trip to SK, a spokesperson said Mon. as interest mounts over whether the two sides will resume dialogue. (Yonhap)
- With NK's intercontinental ballistic missiles posing a direct threat to the US mainland, the US president could respond directly to the threat without having to consult his S.Korean counterpart in advance, an US expert on the N.Korean nuclear issue said Tues. (Yonhap)

Prepared by Jinny Ahn, HRNK Research Intern

3. MARCH

Thursday, March 1, 2018

Greg Scarlatoiu, HRNK Executive Director: "Fake passports part of plan to escape from accountability for human rights violations"; SK's Moon tells Trump of plan to send envoy to NK; Pro-American Rally in SK Denounces NK Appeasement

Top News:
Greg Scarlatoiu, HRNK Executive Director: "Fake passports part of plan to escape from accountability for human rights violations" (CNN, 02/28/2018)

In North Korea:
5 N. Korean workers found dead in container in Russia (Yonhap, 03/01/2018)
A small update on the Nampho leadership boat (NK Econ Watch, 03/01/2018)
Deadly gas leak kills five North Koreans in Russia (UPI, 03/01/2018)
North Korea and the Brazil passports: Why were they used by the Kims? (BBC, 03/01/2018)
North Korean authorities encourage ordinary people to make up for sanctions-related production losses (*Daily*NK, 03/01/2018)
Report: North Korea aims to expand illegal trade network (UPI, 03/01/2018)
Sanctions and Marketization in North Korea: Lessons from Myanmar (38*North*, 02/28/2018)

In South Korea:
Kim Yong-chol's link to Cheonan attack unproven: Defense minister (Korea Times, 02/28/2018)
Naive words (Joongang Daily, 03/02/2018)
Pro-American Rally in South Korea Denounces North Korea Appeasement (VOA, 03/01/2018)
Seek a census (Joongang Daily, 03/01/2018)
South Korea defense minister confirms Kim Yong Chol behind attack (UPI, 03/01/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
(LEAD) Moon to send special envoy to N. Korea: Cheong Wa Dae (Yonhap, 03/02/2018)
N.K. delegation repeats negative position on S. Korea-U.S. military exercises: official (Yonhap, 03/01/2018)
North 'cannot accept' joint drills (Joongang Daily, 03/02/2018)
South Korea's Moon tells Trump of plan to send envoy to North Korea (Reuters, 03/01/2018)

International:
(LEAD) Pro-N.K. newspaper: U.S. should create 'right conditions' for talks with N. Korea (Yonhap, 03/01/2018)
Between Ivanka and Kim Yo-jong, it's no draw (Korea Times, 02/28/2018)

Foreign minister will ask US to reach out to NK (Korea Times, 02/28/2018)
Hill slams Trump administration over handling of N.K. threat (Yonhap, 03/01/2018)
Maldives denies Japan's allegation that it breached North Korean sanctions (Reuters, 02/28/2018)
Moon, Trump hold talks over possible dialogue with N. Korea (Yonhap, 03/01/2018)
Pro-North Korea paper: U.S. should make the right move for dialogue (UPI, 03/01/2018)
Pyongyang sells military gear to Syria, Myanmar (Joongang Daily, 03/01/2018)
US-North Korea talks up to Kim Jong-un's decision on nukes (Korea Times, 02/28/2018)
US accuses North Korea of using talks to 'buy time' for nuclear program (Telegraph, 03/01/2018)
U.S. Banks on Diplomacy With North Korea, but Moves Ahead on Military Plans (NY Times, 02/28/2018)
Why does the U.K. deport North Korean asylum seekers? (UPI, 03/01/2018)

Top News:

- In this CNN segment, HRNK Executive Director Greg Scarlatoiu and Ken Gause, North Korean Leadership expert at CNA, analyze the rationale behind KJU and his late Kim Jong-il's acquisitions of fake Brazilian passports. According to Scarlatoiu, the fake passports were meant for an "underground escape to enable the Kims to escape danger in case the regime is on the brink of collapse and also to escape accountability and responsibility for the egregious human rights violations and crimes against humanity committed by the regime." Scarlatoiu also commented on Kim Jong-il's reaction at the time when his eldest son, Kim Jong-nam was caught with a falsified passport in Japan, noting that Kim Jong-il was "absolutely furious and banished his son [Kim Jong-nam] to Macau." (CNN)

In North Korea:

- Five N.Korean workers have been found dead in a shipping container at a construction site in Russia's southern city of Ufa, an official said Thurs. (Yonhap)
- Contemporary NK watchers first noticed the boat docked in the Nampho area in a Google Earth satellite image dated 2015-20-4. Despite only being recently "discovered" by the open source community, the boat appears to have been around for some time, and it does not appear to violate the UNSC prohibition on the export of luxury goods to NK. (NK Econ Watch)
- Five N.Korean workers may have suffocated to death during a gas leak near the Ural mountains, according to a S.Korean press report on Thurs. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- Fresh evidence emerged this week that the N.Korean leader KJU, and his father and predecessor Kim Jong-il, obtained fraudulent Brazilian passports in the 1990s. This article from the BBC explores the question of why would KJU and Kim Jong-il obtain these false passports and why passports from Brazil. (Becky Branford, BBC)
- NK's Party-run publication Rodong Sinmun launched a diatribe against international sanctions, calling the measures an "economic blockade" that is destroying the country's ability to develop, as the N.Korean authorities are squarely blaming the US and the international community for their economic difficulties and shifting the burden of the problem on to ordinary people. (Seol Song Ah, DailyNK)

- NK has been aiming to expand its illegal trade network in order to circumvent global sanctions against its nuclear and missile program, various media reports showed Thurs. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- Sanctions on NK may have started to "bite," but mainly in unintended ways. There is a risk that sanctions will hamper the creation of more diverse medium-sized enterprises and make it easier for major companies close to powerful state institutions to protect their dominant role in the DPRK economy, especially at a time when the N.Korean government is attempting to diversify the economy and introduce more market-oriented incentives. The case of Myanmar, where sanctions led to the creation of sprawling corporate empires dependent on and very close to the state, offers an instructive lesson on the unintended and often negative effects of sanctions. (Andray Abrahamian, 38North)

In South Korea:

- Defense Minister Song Young-moo said Wed. it is impossible to prove N.Korean official Kim Yong-chol's direct involvement in the torpedo attack on the Navy ship Cheonan in 2010, which claimed the lives of 46 sailors. (Choi Ha-young, Korea Times)
- In his first Independence Movement Day address, President Moon mentioned independence 23 times, the Republic of Korea 20 times, and peace 11 times. However, Moon didn't mention NK. There is a huge difference between the president and his people on the issue of NK. Many people are doubtful of that Pyongyang will ever change its spots. But the government remains idealistic and optimistic. (Joongang Daily)
- Thousands of S.Korean conservatives rallied in Seoul on Thurs. to protest President Moon's Olympic outreach to NK, and in support of impeached President Park Geun-hye, who faces a possible 30-year prison sentence for corruption charges related to the scandal that ousted her from office. (Brian Padden, VOA)
- The presence of high-profile N.Korean officials, including a blacklisted figure in SK for the PyeongChang Winter Olympics in Gangwon, has aggravated the divide in political circles. However, one important element has been absent from all the discussions and topics around NK and unification. We know little about the N.Korean demographic status quo. (Cho Young-tae, Joongang Daily)
- SK's defense ministry confirmed a visiting N.Korean official was behind the attack on the Cheonan and that NK attacked the S.Korean warship by deploying a reconnaissance submarine. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- S.Korean President Moon said that he will send a special envoy to NK during his first phone conversation with his US counterpart, Donald Trump, following rare high-level contact between the two Koreas. (Yonhap)

- A high-level N.Korean delegation reiterated the country's existing position on joint military exercises between SK and the US when they visited SK for the closing ceremony of the PyeongChang Olympics, the unification minister was quoted Thurs. as saying. (Yonhap)
- When S.Korean authorities told NK's recent high-level delegation that Seoul and Washington intend to resume their postponed military drills after the Paralympics end on Mar. 18, the officials from Pyongyang responded they "cannot accept" the exercises and forewarned heavy backlash, multiple sources from the ruling Democratic Party exclusively told the JoongAng Ilbo. (Ha Jun-ho, Jeong Yong-soo, Chun Su-jin, Joongang Daily)
- SK plans to send a special envoy to NK in response to an invitation from leader KJU, S.Korean President Moon told his US counterpart Donald Trump in a phone call on Thurs. (Reuters)

International:

- A pro-N.Korean newspaper in Japan said Thurs. that the US should create the right conditions if it wants talks with NK, claiming Pyongyang never begged for dialogue with the US. (Yonhap)
- The Ivanka Trump—Kim Yo-jong comparison should start with the fact of they cannot be compared. If the PyeongChang metaphor is borrowed, it would be like comparing skier to skater or, more subtly, between speed skater and figure skater and deciding who is the winner. (Oh Young-jin, Korea Times)
- Foreign Minister Kang Kyung-wha plans to talk with US Secretary of State Rex Tillerson to mediate possible talks between the US and NK. (Lee Min-hyung, Korea Times)
- A former senior US diplomat slammed the Donald Trump administration Wed. for what he called a lack of recognition of the SK-US alliance in the face of NK's growing nuclear threat. (Yonhap)
- Maldives on Wed. denied a Japanese foreign ministry statement that said a Maldives-flagged vessel was used to illegally transfer goods from a N.Korean-flagged tanker in defiance of U.N. Security Council resolutions. (Reuters)
- S.Korean President Moon and US President Donald Trump held a telephone conversation Thurs., Seoul's presidential office Cheong Wa Dae said. (Yonhap)
- Washington should make the right move if it wants dialogue with Pyongyang, a pro-NK newspaper based in Japan said. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- NK sent items used in ballistic missile and chemical weapons programs to Syria along with missile technicians in violation of United Nations (UN) sanctions, and sent banned ballistic missiles systems to Myanmar, UN experts said. (AP, Joongang Daily)
- The position of the US on dialogue with NK remains unchanged, despite the resignation of Washington's nuclear envoy Joseph Yun, who supported diplomatic efforts to resolve the North's pursuit of nuclear weapons, a US diplomat in Seoul said Wed. (Kim Bo-eun, Joint Press Corps, Korea Times)
- Clear differences of opinion are emerging between SK and the US over how to deal with NK, with the US accusing Pyongyang of attempting to "buy time" to further advance its nuclear weapons and ballistic missile programmes. (Julian Ryall, Telegraph)

- A classified military exercise last week examined how US troops would mobilize and strike if ordered into a potential war on the Korean Peninsula, even as diplomatic overtures between NK and the Trump administration continue. (Helene Cooper, Eric Schmitt, NY Times)
- The UK hosts one of the largest N.Korean populations outside northeast Asia. Since 2003, more than 1,300 N.Koreans have applied for asylum in the UK—and 544 have been granted asylum. The Home Office, which decides who stays and who's turned away, has rejected almost one-third of applicants (Markus Bell, UPI)

Prepared by Jinny Ahn, HRNK Research Intern

——————————————————

Friday, March 2, 2018

S.Korea to send special envoy to N.Korea; N.Korea denies chemical weapons link with Syria; U.S., S.Korea in close contact on Seoul's envoy to N.Korea

In North Korea:

'My life is in danger,' said NK leader's brother (Korea Times, 03/02/2018)
North Korea denies chemical weapons link with Syria: state media (Reuters, 03/01/2018)
N.K. denies supplying Syria with chemical weapons equipment (Yonhap, 03/02/2018)
NK estimated to have made up to US$210 mln with bitcoin: report (Yonhap, 03/02/2018)
North's delegates insist they want talks with U.S. (Joongang Ilbo, 03/02/2018)
North Korea claims reports it sent chemical weapons equipment to Syria are 'cooked up' by US (Telegraph, 03/02/2018)
North Korean Freight Carriers Suffer Growing Losses Under Sanctions (RFA, 03/01/2018)
North Koreans flock to markets for spring full moon holiday (*Daily*NK, 03/02/2018)

In South Korea:

Moon's special envoy facing tough task of persuading N.K. to hold talks with U.S. (Yonhap, 03/02/2018)
Moon to hold meeting on North (Joongang Ilbo, 03/02/2018)
Moon to meet party leaders next week over N. Korea ties (Yonhap, 03/02/2018)
Seoul to encourage thaw by sending envoy to North Korea (Guardian, 03/01/2018)
S.Korean President Lashes Japan Over Wartime Use of 'Comfort Women' (VOA, 03/01/2018)
South Korea could send special envoy to North next week (UPI, 03/02/2018)
South Korea's Moon plans to send envoy to North Korea soon (Washington Post, 03/01/2018)
South Korea Tells U.S. It Will Send Envoy to North Korea (NYT, 03/02/2018)
South Korea to send special envoy to North Korea, president tells Donald Trump (Telegraph, 03/01/2018)
South Korea to send special envoy to North Korea: Cheong Wa Dae (Korea Times, 03/02/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
Moon will send envoy to North (Joongang Ilbo, 03/02/2018)
S. Korea previously sent special envoys to N.K. for summits, nuclear issue (Yonhap, 03/02/2018)

International:
Is Rex Tillerson pivoting on human rights? (Washington Post, 03/02/2018)
U.S., S. Korea in close contact on Seoul's envoy to N.K.: State Dept. (Yonhap, 03/02/2018)
US serious about attacking North Korea: CNN (Korea Times, 03/02/2018)
When Billy Graham's North Korea legacy: From 'witch doctor' to honored guest (CNN, 03/02/2018)

In North Korea:

- Kim Jong-nam, the poisoned half-brother of KJU, told a friend in Malaysia his life was in danger six months before he was killed. (Reuters)
- N.K. denied reports it had cooperated with Syria on chemical weapons, dismissing them as a fabrication by the US to pressure the country. (Reuters)
- N.K. slammed a U.N. probe Friday that says Pyongyang has been providing Syria with materials that can be used to manufacture chemical weapons, claiming it has not developed and produced them. (Yonhap)
- N.K. is believed to have raked in more than US $200 million via digital cryptocurrency transactions last year amid international sanctions over its nuclear and missile programs. (Yonhap)
- N.K. repeatedly stressed that it is open to dialogue with the US as Moon continued his efforts to bring Pyongyang and Washington together to resolve the security crisis over the KJU regime's nuclear and missile threats. (Joongang Ilbo)
- N.K. has hit back at claims that it supplied Syria with equipment to manufacture chemical weapons, accusing the US and the UN of "cooking up" allegations as part of the effort to tighten international sanctions on Pyongyang.(Julian Ryall, Telegraph)
- N.K. freight carriers hit hard by sanctions on cross-border trade are now running empty trucks to the border with China before returning with full loads, leading to further costs for the already struggling companies. (RFA)
- Shoppers and merchants in N.K. are hitting the markets in large numbers this week in celebration of the March 2 "Daeboreum" holiday marking the first full moon of the year, according to the lunar calendar. (Seol Song Ah, DailyNK)

In South Korea:

- Moon's special envoy should focus on figuring out ways to narrow the seemingly unbridgeable gap between Washington and Pyongyang on nuclear issues and persuade N.K. to step out for talks to discuss its nuclear and missile programs. (Yonhap)
- Moon plans to hold a meeting with ruling and opposition party leaders next week to update them on recent developments in N.K. ties. (Yonhap)

- Moon plans to hold a meeting with ruling and opposition party leaders next week to update them on recent developments in N.K. ties. (Yonhap)
- S.K. plans to send a special envoy to N.K. as Moon works to encourage direct talks between Washington and Pyongyang on ending the nuclear programme of KJU regime. (Benjamin Haas, Guardian)
- Moon described Japan's wartime use of "comfort women" as "crimes against humanity" on Thursday in some of his strongest comments yet, sparking an immediate protest from his key ally in containing N.K. (Reuters)
- S.K. is ready to send a special envoy to N.K. next week, following a late-evening phone call between Trump and Moon. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- Moon plans to send a special envoy to N.K. soon to set up more meaningful dialogue between the rivals that Seoul hopes will eventually include discussions over disarming the North of nuclear weapons. (Kim Tong-Hyung, AP)
- Moon told Trump on Thursday that he planned to send a special envoy to N.K. as part of his effort to broker talks between the U.S. and N.K. on ending its nuclear weapons program. (Choe Sang-hun, NYT)
- S.K. plans to send a special envoy to N.K. in response to an invitation from KJU, Moon told his US counterpart Trump in a phone call on Thursday. (Telegraph)
- Moon will soon send a special envoy to N.K. in response to an invitation from KJU. The announcement came after Moon had a 30-minute phone conversation with Trump. (Park Si-soo, Korea Times)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- Moon will send a special envoy to N.K. possibly this month to discuss an inter-Korean summit and to confirm KJU's desire for N.K.-U.S. dialogue. (Ser Myo-ja, Joongang Ilbo)
- As Moon has unveiled a plan to send a special envoy to N.K., attention is being paid to what purposes S.K. dispatched special emissaries in the past. (Yonhap)

International:

- Tillerson has sent conflicting signals on his department's approach to human rights. If he releases the upcoming edition of the State Department's annual country reports, it could mean that he is returning to the traditional approach of U.S. foreign policy. (Sarah B. Snyder, Washington Post)
- The U.S. State Department has said that Washington and Seoul are in close contact for a "unified response" to N.K. in relation to S.K.'s plan to send a special envoy to N.K. (Yonhap)
- The U.S. government is considering military action against N.K. if the regime finishes building a nuclear missile capable of reaching the U.S. mainland. (Jung Min-ho, Korea Times)
- N.K. initial impression of Graham in 1973 was that a witch doctor from America performing a witch act. But two decades later, in 1992, the anti-communist Graham was invited to Pyongyang as an honored guest of N.K.'s late President Kim Il Sung. (Will Ripley, CNN)

Prepared by James Park, HRNK Research Intern

——————————————————

Saturday, March 3, 2018

N.Korea rejects U.S. preconditions for holding talks; N.Korea issues warning over U.S. military provocations; U.S. determines N.Korea used chemical weapons

In North Korea:
Majority of N. Koreans negative about nuclear program: U.S. survey (Yonhap, 03/03/2018)
N.K. rejects talks with U.S. 'under preconditions' (Yonhap, 03/03/2018)
N. Korea issues warning over U.S. military provocations (Yonhap, 03/03/2018)
North Korea Rejects US Preconditions for Holding Talks (NYT, 03/03/2018)
North Korea rejects US preconditions for holding talks (Washington Post, 03/03/2018)
North Korea threatens to 'counter' U.S. over military drills (Reuters, 03/03/2018)

In South Korea:
Moon to name special envoy to NK next week (Korea Times, 03/02/2018)

International:
At U.N., China delays U.S. bid to blacklist ships, companies over North Korea (Reuters, 03/02/2018)
China champions South Korean leader sending envoy to North Korea (Korea Times, 03/03/2018)
North Korea war could 'kill 10,000 US troops within days' (Telegraph, 03/02/2018)
Putin, before vote, unveils 'invincible' nuclear weapons to counter West (Reuters, 03/02/2018)
Senator: Kim Jong Un Must Realize Trump Is 'Very Different' From Obama (VOA, 03/02/2018)
Trump administration weighed sanctions against major Chinese banks tied to North Korea (Washington Post, 03/02/2018)
Trump risks more than a trade war by targeting China (CNN, 03/03/2018)
US determines North Korea used chemical weapons (Washington Post, 03/02/2018)
U.S. determines N.K. used chemical weapons: reports (Yonhap, 03/03/2018)
US official says North Korea is making progress on missile guidance (CNN, 03/02/2018)

In North Korea:

- The majority of N.Koreans are negative about their country's nuclear weapons program, with many of them saying it is not a source of national pride or prosperity, a U.S. survey showed Friday. (Yonhap)
- N.K. said Saturday there will be no talks with the US if they come with any "preconditions," reasserting that it has no intent to abandon its nuclear and missile programs in exchange for dialogue with Washington. (Yonhap)

- N.K.'s representative told the UN-sponsored Conference on Disarmament in Geneva last month that Pyongyang stands ready to fight back against any military provocation from the US. (Yonhap)
- N.K. stated that though it is willing to have talks with the U.S., it rejects preconditions and Washington's demands of first demonstrating its willingness for denuclearization. (AP)
- N.K. said Saturday it is willing to have talks with the U.S., but that it rejects preconditions and Washington's demands that it must first demonstrate its willingness to denuclearize. (AP)
- N.K. threatened on Saturday to"counter the U.S." if the U.S. holds joint military exercises with S.K., and said it would not beg for talks with Washington. (Reuters)

In South Korea:

- S.K. President Moon will name a special envoy to N.K. soon, Cheong Wa Dae said Friday. The envoy to the North is expected to call for Pyongyang to talk with Washington about denuclearization before inter-Korean talks are held. (Kim Bo-eun, Korea TImes)

International:

- China delayed a U.S. request for a United Nations Security Council committee to blacklist 33 ships, 27 shipping companies, and a Taiwan man for violating international sanctions on N.K. (Reuters)
- China is welcoming the news of S.K. President Moon's plan to send a special envoy to N.K., calling it a move that will "help ease the situation" on the Korean peninsula. (Park Si-soo, Korea Times)
- A war with N.K. could result in about 10,000 American combat-related casualties in the first few days alone, according to US military planners. (Nicola Smith, Telegraph)
- Putin announced an array of new nuclear weapons on Thursday, in one of his most bellicose speeches in years, saying they could hit almost any point in the world and evade a U.S.-built missile shield. (Andrew Osborn, Reuters)
- KJU must realize that Trump is a "very different" U.S. president with a different policy than that of the previous administration, an influential U.S. lawmaker says. (Joeun Lee, VOA)
- When Trump announced new sanctions against N.K. last week, he called them the "strongest . . . we have ever put on a country." Treasury Secretary Steven Mnuchin called them "the largest set of sanctions ever imposed" on N.K. (Peter Whoriskey, Washington Post)
- Trump's latest tough talk risks stoking an adversarial economic standoff with Beijing that could prompt geopolitical retaliation on issues ranging from N.K. to the South China Sea. (Zachary Cohen and Nicole Gaouette, CNN)
- The U.S. has determined that N.K. used chemical weapons, an apparent reference to the killing of leader KJU's half-brother last year. (Matthew Pennington, AP)
- The U.S. has determined that N.K. used chemical weapons, foreign media reported Saturday, adding it is apparently pointing to the death of the half-brother of KJU. (Yonhap)

- The latest US intelligence assessment about N.K.'s nuclear ballistic missile program judges that KJU regime has continued to make progress on improving the guidance of their missiles that would allow them to hit specific targets. (Barbara Starr, CNN)

Prepared by James Park, HRNK Research Intern

——————————————————

Sunday, March 4, 2018

Moon's special envoys to visit N.Korea this week over dialogue with U.S.; N.Korea threatens to 'counter' U.S. over military drills; N.Korea criticizes S.Korea foreign minister's remarks on human rights

In North Korea:

50 people in North asked about nuclear program (Joongang Ilbo, 03/04/2018)
'N. Korea raked in up to $200 million last year from cryptocurrencies': US expert (Korea Times, 03/04/2018)
North Korea criticizes Kang's remarks on human rights (Yonhap, 03/04/2018)
North Korea, Seeking 'Equal Footing,' Rejects Preconditions for U.S. Talks (NYT, 03/03/2018)
North Korea threatens to 'counter' U.S. over military drills (Reuters, 03/03/2018)
Pyongyang's state security ministry asks military to cooperate in government-run smuggling (Korea Times, 03/04/2018)
Pyongyang steps up campaign for coastal resort project (Korea Times, 03/04/2018)
Pyongyang Warns It Will 'Counter US' if It Holds Joint Drills With Seoul (VOA, 03/03/2018)
Why is North Korea not sending cheering squad to Paralympics? (Korea Times, 03/04/2018)

In South Korea:

(profile) Security adviser Chung known for close communication with U.S. (Yonhap, 03/04/2018)
(profile) Spy chief Suh: Secret negotiator for past inter-Korean summits (Yonhap, 03/04/2018)
Defector proud to represent South (Joongang Ilbo, 03/04/2018)
South Korea Names 2 Envoys to Meet With Kim Jong-un (NYT, 03/04/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

(3rd LD) Moon's special envoys to visit N. Korea this week over dialogue with U.S. (Yonhap, 03/04/2018)
Clear answers needed (Joongang Ilbo, 03/04/2018)
High-level Seoul officials to head to North Korea for talks (Washington Post, 03/04/2018)
High-level South Korean Delegation to Hold Discussions With the North (VOA, 03/04/2018)
Moon sends five special envoys to Pyongyang today (Joongang Ilbo, 03/04/2018)
Moon to send special envoys to North Korea on Monday (Korea Times, 03/04/2018)

Moon to send top security adviser, intelligence chief as special envoys to Pyongyang (Yonhap, 03/04/2018)
South Korea sending high-level delegation to Pyongyang (CNN, 03/04/2018)
South Korea sending envoys to North Korea as Trump suggests U.S. willing to talk (Reuters, 03/04/2018)
South Korea to send envoys to North Korea to discuss ties, talks (UPI, 03/04/2018)

International:
(News Focus) Guarded optimism rises over prospect of U.S.-N.K. dialogue (Yonhap, 03/04/2018)
At a white-tie Gridiron dinner, President Trump tries joking: 'I like chaos' (Washington Post, 03/04/2018)
At joke-filled dinner, Trump suggests U.S. will meet with North Korea (Reuters, 03/04/2018)
China says lifting term limits is about protecting authority of party (Reuters, 03/04/2018)
High seas shell game: How a North Korean shipping ruse makes a mockery of sanctions (Washington Post, 03/03/2018)
Trump says North Korea 'called up,' seeking talks with the United States (Washington Post, 03/04/2018)
Trump tells Gridiron: North Korea 'called up' and 'would like to talk' (CNN, 03/04/2018)
UN report to shed new light on Egypt's role in North Korean weapons sales (Telegraph, 03/04/2018)
Unlimited Xi presidency looms over China political gathering (Washington Post, 03/04/2018)

In North Korea:

- A poll, conducted through individual conversations with 50 N.K. citizens in summer and fall last year, found that 43 of the respondents were ambivalent to highly negative about the nuclear development. (Yonhap)
- N.K. is believed to have earned up to $200 million last year from cryptocurrencies, estimated to have obtained at least 11,000 bitcoins through mining and hacking last year. (Yi Whan-woo, Korea Times)
- N.K. has criticized South Korea's foreign minister for addressing its human rights conditions at a recent U.N. meeting. (Yonhap)
- North Korea said Saturday that it would be willing to begin a dialogue with the US on "issues of mutual concern' but that it would not accept any preconditions for starting such talks. (Choe Sang-hun, NYT)
- N.K. threatened on Saturday to"counter the U.S." if the U.S. holds joint military exercises with S.K., and said it would not beg for talks with Washington. (Reuters)
- N.K.'s Ministry of State Security has ordered military units on the North-China border to facilitate government-run smuggling, guiding to an assumption that the party has been lacking cash since China began supporting international sanctions. (Korea Times)
- North Korea is stepping up its publicity campaign for leader Kim Jong-un's luxury tourist project on its east coast amid its recent invitation to International Olympic Committee (IOC) President Thomas Bach to visit the North. (Yi Whan-woo, Korea Times)
- N.K. warned it would respond if the U.S. holds joint military drills next month with S.K., contending they would hinder a recent thaw in relations between the two Koreas. (VOA)

- Speculation is rife about why N.K. has decided not to send an art troupe or cheerleaders to the Winter Paralympics in PyeongChang this week after sending the groups to the Winter Olympics. (Yi Whan-woo, Korea Times)

In South Korea:

- National Security Office (NSO) chief Chung Eui-yong, picked as Moon's special envoy to N.K., is known for his extensive experience in multilateral diplomacy and close policy coordination with the US. (Yonhap)
- National Intelligence Service (NIS) chief Suh Hoon, picked as Moon's special envoy to N.K., is known for his role in secret negotiations with Pyongyang to arrange two inter-Korean summits in the 2000s. (Yonhap)
- Growing up in N.K., para ice hockey player Choi Kwang-hyouk was left homeless at the age of nine. But after defecting to S.K. in his teenage years, Choi will represent the host country for the 2018 PyeongChang Paralympics. (Kim Hyo-kyung, Joongang Ilbo)
- S.K. President Moon has selected two of his closest aides to go to N.K. to meet KJU, in an attempt to defuse tensions on the peninsula. (Choe Sang-hun, NYT)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- Moon on Sunday named his top security adviser and the chief of the country's spy agency as his special envoys to visit N.K. this week for talks that are widely expected to focus on resuming dialogue between N.K. and the US. (Yonhap)
- KJU should therefore provide clear answers to the S.K. envoys. Otherwise, all of the focus on him sending his sister to Seoul and the trouble over the charm offensive during the Olympics would turn out to be nothing. (Joongang Ilbo)
- S.K.'s president will send a delegation led by his national security director to N.K. this week for talks on how to ease nuclear tensions and help arrange the restart of dialogue between Pyongyang and Washington. (Hyung-Jin Kim, AP)
- S.K. President Moon will send a high-level special delegation to N.K. on Monday to discuss ways in which relations can be improved and to ease tension on the peninsula. (VOA)
- A 10-member delegation of S.K. officials will visit N.K. today and tomorrow to discuss improvement of South-North relations and the preconditions for a N.K.-U.S. dialogue. Among the delegation are five special envoys tapped by Moon. (Joongang Ilbo)
- President Moon will send envoys to Pyongyang, Monday, for talks on resuming dialogue between N.K. and the US on denuclearization. (Yi Whan-woo, Korea Times)
- Moon has picked National Intelligence Service (NIS) chief Suh Hoon and National Security Office (NSO) head Chung Eui-yong as his emissaries to N.K.. (Yonhap)
- S.K. President Moon is sending a high-level delegation for talks in Pyongyang. The delegation will focus on inter-Korean relations and establishing conditions for a US-N.K. dialogue. (Jungeun Kim and Susannah Cullinane, CNN)

- S.K. will dispatch a delegation led by senior security officials for a two-day visit to N.K. starting Monday, as President Trump hinted that he is ready to talk to Pyongyang. (Josh Smith, Reuters)
- S.K. President Moon will send a special delegation to N.K. on Monday to discuss inter-Korean relations as well as the possibility of dialogue between Washington and Pyongyang. (Jennie Oh, UPI)

International:

- Guarded optimism is emerging for possible dialogue between the US and N.K., as S.K. pushes to broker talks through a rare dispatch of special emissaries to the communist state this week. (Yonhap)
- Trump's joke about meeting with N.K. was another close-to-the-bone quip. He mused that the country's supreme leader, KJU, faced "the risk of dealing with a madman" if such a confab occurred. (Emily Heil, Washington Post)
- In the midst of a joke-filled monologue at a dinner with journalists, President Trump suggested on Saturday that the US will be meeting with N.K. but has told Pyongyang it must first "denuke." (Makini Brice, Reuters)
- Removing presidential term limits in the state constitution is about protecting the authority of the ruling Communist Party with President Xi Jinping at its center, prompting accusations that China is set to become another N.K. (Reuters)
- Kholmsk is one of the sleepiest harbors in Russia's Far East. Yet the harbor was witness to a kind of magic trick: Illicit North Korean coal was transformed into Russian coal, which can be legally sold anywhere. (Joby Warrick, Washington Post)
- President Trump said Saturday that N.K. has recently sought talks with the US and that he "won't rule out direct talks with KJU," the N.K. leader. (Anne Gearan, Washington Post)
- President Trump said in his speech to the mostly joke-filled Gridiron Club Dinner on Saturday night that N.K. had recently reached out about possible talks. (Kevin Bohn, CNN)
- A new UN report will shed renewed light on Egypt's role as the trans-shipment point for N.K. weapons throughout North Africa and the Middle East and, it is anticipated, increase pressure on Cairo to curb the trade. (Julian Ryall, Telegraph)
- China's embattled liberal intellectuals have universally panned the move. They've registered their opposition in brief postings on social media that have been heavily censored, comparing the situation to that of N.K. (Christopher Bodeen, AP)

Prepared by James Park, HRNK Research Intern

———————————————

Monday, March 5, 2018

South Koreans meet North Korean leader Kim for talks about talks; Trump suggests meeting with N. Korea if it denuclearizes

In North Korea:
N.K. sends members list for its delegation to Paralympics (Yonhap, 03/05/2018)
North Korea earned hundreds of millions through sanction-busting schemes (UPI, 03/05/2018)
North Korea may have made as much as $200 million from Bitcoin, according to expert (Telegraph, 03/05/2018)
North Korea Sanctions Impact Mitigated By Illicit Trade (VOA, 03/05/2018)

In South Korea:
Moon to meet party leaders on North Korea (Joongang Ilbo, 03/05/2018)
S. Korea starts annual training for 2.75 mln reservists (Yonhap, 03/05/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
(LEAD) S. Korean envoys arrive in Pyongyang: N. Korea (Yonhap, 03/05/2018)
(3rd LD) N. Korean leader meets with S. Korean envoys: Cheong Wa Dae (Yonhap, 03/05/2018)
Kim Jong-un in surprise move to personally host South Korean delegation as talks continue(Telegraph, 03/05/2018)
Kim Jong Un meeting South Korean officials in Pyongyang, Seoul says (CNN, 03/05/2018)
Moon envoys meet Kim Jong-un (Joongang Ilbo, 03/05/2018)
North Korean leader holds first direct talks with delegation from rival South (Washington Post, 03/05/2018)
South Korea delegation meets Kim in Pyongyang before historic talks (Guardian, 03/05/2018)
South Korea sends envoys to North Korea to discuss denuclearization, talks with Washington(UPI, 03/05/2018)
South Koreans meet North Korean leader Kim for talks about talks (Reuters, 03/05/2018)
South Korean Envoys to Meet With North Korean Leader (VOA, 03/05/2018)
The Latest: S. Korean delegation heads to N. Korea for talks (Washington Post 03/05/2018)
The other nuclear option (Joongang Ilbo, 03/05/2018)

International:
(LEAD) S. Korea's special envoys to visit N.K. to broker Pyongyang-Washington dialogue(Yonhap, 03/05/2018)
(3rd LD) Moon's envoy says trip aimed at facilitating U.S.-N.K. denuclearization talks (Yonhap, 03/05/2018)
At joke-filled dinner, Trump suggests U.S. will meet with North Korea (Reuters, 03/04/2018)
Gallup: North Korea, cyberterrorism considered top threats to U.S. (UPI, 03/05/2018)
Internal Kim Jong Un memo reveals no desire for talks with US (Daily NK, 03/05/2018)
S. Korea, Russia form consultative body for economic cooperation (Yonhap, 03/05/2018)

S. Korean special envoy hopes to explore N. Korea's intention for talks with U.S.: FM(Yonhap, 03/05/2018)
South Korea Envoys Picked With Eye on Both North Korea and U.S. (NYT, 03/05/2018)
Trump suggests meeting with N. Korea if it denuclearizes (Yonhap, 03/04/2018)
Trump talks up chance of talking with North (Joongang Ilbo, 03/05/2018)
US-North Korea talks face roadblock in continuing differences over denuclearization (Daily NK, 03/05/2018)
U.S. says denuclearization remains goal of any engagement with N.K. (Yonhap, 03/04/2018)
Why North Korea will never attack the United States (Washington Post, 03/05/2018

In North Korea:

- A vice chairman of NK's agency for protecting disabled athletes will lead NK's 20-member athletic delegation to the PyeongChang Paralympics in SK, Seoul officials said Mon. (Yonhap)
- NK has been curbing global sanctions through elaborate maritime trade operations, a Japanese daily reported Sun. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- NK may have raked in more than $200 million in digital cryptocurrency transactions last year, diluting the impact of stiff international sanctions over its nuclear and missiles program. (Nicola Smith, Telegraph)
- It is difficult to gauge the impact of the increased sanctions imposed on NK. There are reports of plummeting exports in the last year, but increasing illicit trade of banned minerals and arms. (Brian Padden, VOA)

In South Korea:

- Moon will meet with leaders of five major political parties on Wed. to discuss issues concerning national security and NK, the Blue House said Mon. (Ser Myo-ja, Joongang Ilbo)
- SK began its regular training session Mon. for the nation's 2.75 million-strong reserve forces, according to the Ministry of National Defense. (Yonhap)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- Moon's special envoys to NK arrived in Pyongyang on Mon., NK's state media reported, shortly after the 10-member delegation left for NK for a two-day visit. (Yonhap)
- KJU hosted a welcome dinner for Moon's special envoys on Monday, Seoul's presidential office said. (Yonhap)
- NK's reclusive leader KJU is hosting a dinner for a top level S. Korean delegation to Pyongyang, in an unprecedented boost to an ongoing diplomatic détente that has raised hopes of future talks over NK's nuclear program. (Nicola Smith, Telegraph)
- KJU is meeting with a high-ranking S. Korean delegation in Pyongyang Mon., according to a S. Korean government official. (Joshua Berlinger, Sophie Jeong, CNN)
- Moon's envoys met with KJU in Pyongyang on Mon., the Blue House said. (Ser Myo-ja, Joongang Ilbo)

- The reclusive KJU hosted a S. Korean presidential delegation for dinner in Pyongyang on Mon., the latest surprising development in a burst of diplomacy that both Koreas hope will stave off threats from the US. (Anna Fifield, Washington Post)
- A high-ranking S. Korean delegation has met KJU in Pyongyang on a historic visit aimed at reducing nuclear tensions and paving the way for US talks. (Daniel Hurst, Guardian)
- Moon's special envoys to NK departed for a two-day trip to Pyongyang on Mon. afternoon. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- A S. Korean delegation met KJU on Mon., a S. Korean official said, after arriving in NK on a visit aimed at encouraging NK and the US to talk. (Christine Kim, Reuters)
- Special envoys from Moon reportedly met with KJU on Monday. Media reports say Kim hosted a dinner for the S. Koreans. (VOA)
- A group of high-level S. Korean officials has left for NK for talks on NK's nuclear program and ways to help resume talks between Pyongyang and Washington. (AP)
- Moon could propose to KJU that SK could help convert nuclear facilities into safe sources of commercial fuel. (Chun Young-gi, Joongang Ilbo)

International:

- Moon's special envoys will embark on a two-day visit to NK on Mon. afternoon aimed at brokering dialogue between Washington and Pyongyang, officials here said. (Yonhap)
- SK seeks to persuade NK to resume denuclearization dialogue with the US and the international community, the chief of a S. Korean delegation to NK said of his mission Mon., hours before the five-member team left for the reclusive state. (Yonhap)
- In the midst of a joke-filled monologue at a dinner with journalists, Trump suggested on Sat. that the US will be meeting with NK but has told Pyongyang it must first "denuke." (Reuters)
- More than 80% of Americans think NK and cyber-based terrorism are the most critical threats to the US, a new Gallup Poll Mon. showed. (Ed Adamczyk, UPI)
- Communicating through the N. Korean delegation's recent visit to SK, KJU conveyed a message that his country has "enough" willingness to engage in talks with the US. Internal sources, however, report that a signed memo has been dispatched within the country saying that the regime has no intention of restarting meaningful dialogue. (Lee Sang-yong, Daily NK)
- South Korea and Russia have launched a consultative body to push for joint economic projects in various areas, including energy, shipbuilding, fishery and transportation, to create new growth drivers, a presidential committee here said Monday. (Yonhap)
- SK's special envoy who was to visit NK on Mon. hopes to further explore NK's intentions for talks with the US after both sides expressed their willingness to engage each other during the recent Olympics, Foreign Minister Kang Kyung-wha said. (Yonhap)
- The make-up of the S. Korean delegation that set off on Mon. for talks in NK underscores SK's main objective, not just to ease tension between the two Koreas but to nudge NK and the US into talks. (Reuters)
- Trump has suggested the US will meet with NK, but only if the regime first abandons its nuclear weapons program. (Yonhap)

- Trump indicated he would not rule out direct talks with KJU at an annual dinner event in Washington, adding, "we will be meeting," but only if the regime denuclearizes. (Sarah Kim, Joongang Ilbo)
- Following a period of easing tensions in NK SK relations surrounding the Olympics, the possibility of NK sitting down for talks with the US has increased. While the two countries are both making overtures towards dialogue, the potential outcome of any such talks remains unclear considering the disparate positions of the two sides over NK's nuclear program. (Ha Yoon-ah, Daily NK)
- Denuclearization will remain the goal of any engagement with NK, the US State Department said Sun., as SK prepared to send a high-level delegation to the reclusive regime. (Yonhap)
- NK has two consistent, explicitly stated goals: consolidating and protecting the regime's control in NK, and eventually unifying Korea under Kim rule. The failure to understand that NK is flexible about anything but these fundamental goals keeps people from understanding another crucial truth: NK won't attack the US unless attacked first. (Clint Work, Washington Post)

Prepared by Emma Stubblefield, HRNK Research Intern

——————————————————

Tuesday, March 6, 2018

NK leader willing to discuss denuclearization with US: Seoul; Rodong Sinmun says regime will keep nukes; NK nuclear reactor shows signs of operation: 38 North; White House: Trump did not have call with N. Koreans

In North Korea:

(LEAD) N. Korean leader, wife host Moon envoys at Workers' Party headquarters (Yonhap, 03/06/2018)
Internal Kim Jong Un memo reveals no desire for talks with US (Daily NK, 03/05/2018)
Kim Jong Un willing to talk about denuclearization (UPI, 03/06/2018)
N.K. leader expresses understanding about S. Korea-U.S. military drills: Seoul (Yonhap, 03/06/2018)
N.K. nuclear reactor shows signs of operation: 38 North (Yonhap, 03/06/2018)
N. Korea reports departure of S. Korean envoys from Pyongyang (Yonhap, 03/06/2018)
N. Korean TV airs footage of Kim's meeting with S. Korean envoys (Yonhap, 03/06/2018)
North agrees to talks with U.S. (Joongang Daily, 03/07/2018)
North Korea is willing to discuss disarmament, says South (BBC, 03/06/2018)
North Korea open to relinquishing nuclear weapons, says Seoul (Guardian, 03/06/2018)
North Korea Signals Willingness to 'Denuclearize,' South Says (NY Times, 03/06/2018)
North Korea willing to talk to US about giving up nuclear weapons, Seoul says (CNN, 03/06/2018)
North Korea's grain imports tripled in 2017 (NK Econ Watch, 03/05/2018)

North Korea's Yongbyon Nuclear Complex: 5 MWe Reactor is Likely Operating, New Military Encampment Established (38North, 03/05/2018)
Reclusive Kim Jong-un's sudden softening has left the world baffled about his next move (Telegraph, 03/06/2018)
Rodong Sinmun says regime will keep nukes (Joongang Daily, 03/06/2018)
Satellite images reveal signs North Korea has resumed producing plutonium for weapons (Telegraph, 03/06/2018)
South Korea meeting gives Kim Jong Un new role: Statesman (Washington Post, 03/06/2018)

In South Korea:
(LEAD) Moon calls for dialogue with N. Korea, increased deterrence (Yonhap, 03/06/2018)
Moon to seek bipartisan cooperation on N. Korea (Korea Times, 03/05/2018)
South Korea Races Against Time to Foster Nuclear Talks (VOA, 03/06/2018)
South Korea's Moon says Seoul must bolster defense against North (Reuters, 03/06/2018)
South Korea's Moon vows to bolster defenses while talking peace with North (CNN, 03/06/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
'Agreement' made on inter-Korean summit, says KCNA (Joongang Daily, 03/06/2018)
(2nd LD) N.K. leader reaches 'satisfactory' agreement with S. Korean envoys over summit with Moon (Yonhap, 03/06/2018)
(5th LD) Koreas agree to hold third summit in April, reaffirm resolve to denuclearize (Yonhap, 03/06/2018)
(LEAD) Moon's special envoys return home after two-day trip to N. Korea (Yonhap, 03/06/2018)
A Look at Significant Meetings Between the Koreas (Washington Post, 03/06/2018)
Europe
Analysis: Summit would be rite of passage for Kim Jong Un (Washington Post, 03/06/2018)
In Pyongyang's court (Joongang Daily, 03/07/2018)
Kim Jong-un holds 1st direct talks with South Korean envoys [PHOTOS] (Korea Times, 03/05/2018)
Kim Jong Un holds first direct talks with delegation from South Korea (Washington Post, 03/05/2018)
Kim Jong Un Meets High-Level ROK Delegation (NK Leadership Watch, 03/06/2018)
Kim Jong-un wants to 'write new history' with South Korea as diplomatic thaw continues (Telegraph, 03/05/2018)
Moon takes the driver's seat (Korea Times, 03/06/2018)
N.K.'s delegation to Paralympics to come to S. Korea Wed. morning (Yonhap, 03/06/2018)
N.K. apparently attaches importance to S. Korean envoy's trip: Seoul (Yonhap, 03/06/2018)
N.K. leader exchanges views on easing tensions, spurring dialogue with S. Korean envoys (Yonhap, 03/06/2018)
N. Korea invites S. Korean taekwondo demonstration team in latest show of rapprochement (Yonhap, 03/06/2018)
North Korea 'willing to give up nuclear weapons' as summit agreed between Kim Jong-un and South Korean president (Telegraph, 03/06/2018)
North Korea Willing to Scrap Nuclear Program if Threats Removed (VOA, 03/06/2018)

REFILE-N.Korea leader wants to advance Korea ties, makes agreement with South -KCNA (Reuters, 03/06/2018)
Seoul envoys meet N. Korea's Kim during Pyongyang trip (Washington Post, 03/05/2018)
South, North Korea to hold summit in April: South Korea says (Reuters, 03/06/2018)

International:
(LEAD) N.K. leader willing to discuss denuclearization with U.S.: Seoul (Yonhap, 03/06/2018)
(LEAD) Trump on N. Korea: We will see what happens (Yonhap, 03/06/2018)
'They'll think I'm a traitor': North Korean defector makes Winter Paralympics debut (Guardian, 03/06/2018)
China asks for hold on UN ban of North Korea traders (Washington Post, 03/06/2018)
China says hopes North, South Korea can continue reconciliation efforts (Reuters, 03/06/2018)
China welcomes South Korea meeting with Kim Jong Un (UPI, 03/06/2018)
Japan: 'Desperate' North Korea bowing to economic pressure (UPI, 03/06/2018)
Latest U.S. sanctions on N.K. likely to help peacefully resolve nuclear problem: official(Yonhap, 03/06/2018)
North Korea reportedly willing to hold nuclear talk with US (Washington Post, 03/06/2018)
North Korea says it will halt nuclear and missile tests while talking with U.S., Seoul says (Washington Post, 03/06/2018)
North Korea says willing to hold talks with U.S., halt nuclear tests: South (Reuters, 03/06/2018)
Pentagon 'cautiously optimistic' about talks between North, South Korea (Reuters, 03/05/2018)
Picking the right carrots (Joongang Daily, 03/06/2018)
Planned meeting between U.S. and North Korea boosts stock market recovery (Reuters, 03/06/2018)
Trump hails 'possible progress' in North Korea talks (CNN, 03/06/2018)
Trump on Korean news: Could be 'progress' or 'false hope' (Washington Post, 03/06/2018)
Trump sees 'possible progress' in North Korea talks (Reuters, 03/06/2018)
Trump was talking about call from South Korea in vague Gridiron remarks (CNN, 03/06/2018)
Trump's 'madman' approach to North Korea is getting real credit (Washington Post, 03/06/2018)
U.S. intelligence chiefs wary of reported North Korea offer (Reuters, 03/06/2018)
U.S. sanctions N. Korea over use of chemical weapons (Yonhap, 03/06/2018)
U.S. to Keep Pressure on North Korea Until Denuclearization: Pence (NY Times, 03/06/2018)
Washington sanctions Pyongyang for chemical weapons (Joongang Daily, 03/07/2018)
White House: Trump did not have call with N. Koreans (Yonhap, 03/06/2018)
World to get rare glimpse into NK leadership (Korea Times, 03/05/2018)

In North Korea:

- N.Korean leader KJU hosted S.Korean envoys in what NK called a "satisfactory" meeting and dinner at the headquarters of the North's ruling Workers' Party, a spokesman for Seoul's presidential office Cheong Wa Dae said Tues. (Yonhap)
- Communicating through the N.Korean delegation's recent visit to SK, KJU conveyed a message that his country has "enough" willingness to engage in talks with the US. Internal sources, however, report that a signed memo has been dispatched within the country saying that the regime has no intention of restarting meaningful dialogue. (Lee Sang Yong, Daily NK)

- N.Korean leader KJU is willing to discuss denuclearization with the US and halt its nuclear and missile provocations while dialogue is ongoing, a Seoul official said Tues. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- N.Korean leader KJU has expressed his understanding about SK and the US' plan to conduct their postponed joint military drills in Apr. at a similar level to last year's excercises, a Seoul official said Tues. (Yonhap)
- A N.Korean nuclear reactor has recently shown signs of operation, suggesting the regime has resumed production of plutonium for its nuclear weapons program, a US website said Mon. (Yonhap)
- S.Korean President Moon's special envoys left Pyongyang Tues., NK's state media reported, ending their two-day trip to the N.Korean capital that included an unprecedented meeting with reclusive N.Korean leader KJU. (Yonhap)
- NK's state TV broadcaster on Tues. unveiled footage of leader KJU's meeting and dinner with a delegation of S.Korean special envoys a day earlier. (Yonhap)
- NK expressed its intention to have a candid dialogue with the US to discuss denuclearization and promised a moratorium on nuclear and ballistic missile tests during the period of talks, President Moon's special envoy to Pyongyang said Tues. (Ser Myo-Ja, Joongang Daily)
- NK is willing to talk about getting rid of its nuclear weapons but only if its own safety can be guaranteed, SK says. SK says the subject was raised when its officials met with the North's leader, KJU, in Pyongyang on Mon., during a rare visit. (BBC)
- NK is willing to discuss relinquishing its nuclear weapons, and will freeze its nuclear and missile programmes if it begins direct talks with the US, in a dramatic easing of tensions after a visit by senior S.Korean politicians. (Benjamin Haas, Guardian)
- NK's leader, KJU, has told S.Korean envoys that he is willing to negotiate with the US on abandoning his country's nuclear weapons, officials from SK said on Tues. Mr. Kim also said he would suspend all nuclear and missile tests while such talks were underway. (Choe Sang-hun, Mark Landler, NY Times)
- NK is willing to talk to the US about giving up its nuclear weapons, SK said Tues., in a remarkable development that followed unprecedented meetings in Pyongyang. (Joshua Berlinger, Jungeun Kim, CNN)
- NK's grain imports from China last year showed a threefold increase over the same period of the previous year. Having analyzing a set of data released by the Chinese General Administration of Customs, Tae-jin Kwon, a S.Korean expert on N.Korean agriculture and the head of the Center for North Korea and North East Asia Studies of the GS & J Institute, disclosed this analysis to the Voice of America on Feb. 14th. (NK Econ Watch)
- Commercial satellite imagery of NK's Yongbyon Nuclear Scientific Research Center from Feb. 25 indicates that the 5 MWe reactor continue to show signs of operation as indicated by steam vapor plumes emanating from the generator hall and river ice melt near the reactor. (38North)
- In his six years in power, NK's reclusive leader, KJU, has tested more missiles than his father and grandfather combined, before abruptly stopping on Nov. 28 with a final shot of a

Hwasong-15. As a result, his recent attempts to transition from strongman to statesman has left the world nervously second-guessing his next move. (Nicola Smith, Telegraph)

- NK's latest rebuff to denuclearize was issued in an editorial run by the state-run Rodong Sinmun newspaper Tues., indicating the yawning chasm between NK and the US as Trump refuses to engage in any official dialogue with the regime unless it was willing to end its nuclear program. (Lee Sung-eun, Joongang Daily)
- Satellite images indicate that NK has restarted its nuclear reactor at Yongbyon and is once again producing plutonium for its atomic weapons programme, a move that analysts suggest is a "political manoeuvre" designed to put more pressure on SK for the recent outbreak of détente to succeed. (Julian Ryall, Telegraph)
- KJU's chance to play the senior statesman on the Korean Peninsula with a roomful of visiting S.Koreans has afforded the him a whole new raft of propaganda and political opportunities. He'll get another major chance to shine next month: Seoul says that Kim has agreed to hold a summit meeting—the rivals' third-ever—with S.Korean President Moon. (Foster Klug, AP)

In South Korea:

- S.Korean President Moon reiterated his call for dialogue with NK on Mon. but also stressed the need to strengthen the combined defense capabilities with the US, noting peace cannot last without strong military power. (Yonhap)
- President Moon will hold a meeting with the leaders of the major political parties at Cheong Wa Dae, Wed., to discuss pending political and security issues, said Han Byung-do, chief presidential secretary for political affairs. (Choi Ha-young, Korea Times)
- S.Korean President Moon voiced optimism on Tues. that improving inter-Korean relations can foster denuclearization talks between NK and the US. (Brian Padden, VOA)
- S.Korean President Moon said on Tues. the military should focus "all its power" to boost its defense capabilities to counter NK's missile and nuclear programs, even while it engages Pyongyang in dialogue. (Reuters)
- S.Korean President Moon has vowed to bolster military defenses at the same time as pursuing diplomatic avenues with Pyongyang, after a historic meeting between envoys from his government and N.Korean leader KJU. (Joshua Berlinger, Sophie Jeong, CNN)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- In a more than four-hour meeting Mon. night, N.Korean leader KJU and five special envoys from SK discussed how to improve inter-Korean relations and work toward an inter-Korean summit, Seoul and Pyongyang said Tues. (Ser Myo-ja, Joongang Daily)
- N.Korean leader KJU has reached a "satisfactory" agreement with S.Korean special envoys over a summit with Moon, NK's state media said Tues. (Yonhap)
- SK and NK have agreed to hold a summit of their leaders late next month, S.Korean President Moon's top security adviser said Tues. on the outcome of his trip to the communist North. (Yonhap)

- S.Korean President Moon's special envoys returned home Tues. following their two-day trip to reclusive NK on an apparent mission to broker talks between the communist state and the US. (Yonhap)
- S.Korean officials say N.Korean leader KJU has agreed to meet with S.Korean President Moon next month, reviving hopes for a diplomatic approach to dealing with NK's nuclear threat. (Kim Tong-Hyung, Associated Press)
- SK's presidential office announced Tues. evening that the two countries had agreed to hold a summit next month at a truce village inside the Demilitarized Zone that divides their countries. And they plan to do so on the South's side of the village, which would be a first. (Eric Talmadge, AP)
- Denuclearization is a national agenda that cannot be compromised.The nuclear threat is more real than these emotional embraces and figurative talks about peace. Seoul must stick to the international commitment that it can hold dialogue but cannot compromise on the easing of sanctions unless Pyongyang acts toward "complete, verifiable, and irreversible" denuclearization. (Joongang Daily)
- President Moon's special envoys had a dinner meeting with N.Korean leader KJU, Mon., after arriving in Pyongyang earlier in the day for their two-day mission of persuading NK to resume talks with the US over denuclearization. (Kim Rahn, Korea Times)
- Reclusive N.Korean leader KJU hosted a S.Korean presidential delegation for "openhearted" talks over dinner in Pyongyang on Mon., according to the NK's state media, the latest surprising development in a burst of diplomacy that both Koreas hope will stave off threats from the US. (Anna Fifield, Washington Post)
- KJU met and dined with a high-level delegation from the ROK on the evening of Mar. 5. He shook hands with the members of the ROK delegation and "warmly welcomed them on their visit to Pyongyang" and was "courteously handed over the personal letter" of ROK President Moon by Chung Eui-yong. The two parties then "had an openhearted talk with the party of special envoy delegation of the south side over the issues arising in actively improving the north-south relations and ensuring peace and stability on the Korean Peninsula." (NK Leadership Watch)
- KJU, NK's reclusive leader, said he wanted to "vigorously advance" national reunification during his first ever meeting with officials from SK, providing a further fillip to an ongoing diplomatic détente. (Nicola Smith, Telegraph)
- It is not yet clear that Moon can arrange for a meaningful gesture from his DPRK counterpart so that NK-US discussions can take a small step forward. And it's not yet clear that Moon knows he must lead both the SK-NK process and the international coalition-building that will be required to support further rapprochement. But if he does, he will finally squeeze himself into the "driver's seat" regarding Korean Peninsula policy. (Stephen Costello, Korea Times)
- SK's unification ministry said Tues. that NK's 24-member delegation to the PyeongChang Winter Paralympics will come to SK the following morning. (Yonhap)
- NK appears to highly regard S.Korean envoys' visit to Pyongyang, given the state media's unusually broad coverage of their activities, Seoul's unification ministry said Tues. (Yonhap)

- N.Korean leader KJU has exchanged views with S.Korean special envoys over ways to ease military tensions on the divided peninsula and spur various dialogue and cooperation, NK's media said Tues. (Yonhap)
- NK has invited a S.Korean taekwondo demonstration team to Pyongyang, the latest show of detente on the heels of the two sides' Olympic cooperation. (Yonhap)
- NK has vowed to halt nuclear and missile tests if it holds talks with the US, in a major diplomatic breakthrough that could lead to a peaceful resolution of military tensions on the Korean peninsula. (Nicola Smith, Rozina Sabur, Telegraph)
- A S.Korean official says NK signaled there was no need to keep its nuclear program if military threats against the country are eliminated and indicated it is willing to hold talks with the US. (Brian Padden, VOA)
- N.Korean leader KJU told a visiting delegation from SK that it is his "firm will to vigorously advance" inter-Korean ties and "write a new history of national reunification," the North's official news agency said on Tues. (Reuters)
- N.Korean leader KJU held an "openhearted talk" with envoys for S.Korean President Moon on Mon., NK said Tues., the first time S.Korean officials have met with the young N.Korean leader in person since he took power after his dictator father's death in late 2011. (Foster Klug, AP)
- NK and SK will hold their first summit in more than a decade in late Apr., SK's presidential office said on Tues. after a senior delegation returned from a visit to NK where they met leader KJU. (Reuters)

International:

- N.Korean leader KJU has expressed a willingness to talk to the US to discuss denuclearization, an official of SK's presidential office Cheong Wa Dae said Tues. (Yonhap)
- US President Donald Trump said Tues. he will "see what happens" after NK floated its willingness to give up its nuclear weapons in return for a security guarantee. (Yonhap)
- Choi Kwang-hyouk has been unable to escape his past, and every new encounter conjures the same images from his previous life: N.Korean refugee, vagrant, amputee. While Choi will not play against any of his former compatriots, he expects any meetings to be potentially awkward. "I will be happy to see them, but I don't think they will be happy to see me," he said. "They'll think I'm a traitor." (Benjamin Haas, Guardian)
- China's government said Tues. it asked for a hold on a US request for United Nations sanctions against ships accused of helping NK evade sanctions imposed over its weapons programs while it looks into who would be affected. (Associated Press)
- China's Foreign Ministry said on Tues. it hopes NK and SK can continue efforts to advance reconciliation after they agreed to hold their first summit in more than a decade next month. (Reuters)
- China is endorsing the inter-Korea talks held in Pyongyang on Tues., following reports N.Korean leader KJU expressed interest in denuclearization and showed "understanding" of the need for joint US-SK drills on the peninsula. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)

- Japan sees the inter-Korea talks as a sign of N.Korean "desperation" but is also waiting to hear from the S.Korean government regarding the latest developments, according to a Japanese press report. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- SK on Tues. expressed hope that the US' recent imposition of sanctions on NK for its alleged use of chemical weapons will help efforts to peacefully resolve the NK's nuclear stalemate. (Yonhap)
- N.Korean leader KJU has expressed a willingness to discuss nuclear disarmament with the US and impose a moratorium on nuclear and missile tests during such talks, a senior S.Korean official said Tues. after returning from NK. (Hyung-Jin Kim, Kim Tong-Hyung, AP)
- NK has vowed not to test missiles or nuclear weapons during proposed talks with the US and SK, officials from SK said Tues. after returning from surprisingly productive meetings in Pyongyang. (Anna Fifield, Washington Post)
- NK is willing to hold talks with the US on denuclearization and will suspend nuclear tests while those discussions are under way, SK said on Tues. after a delegation returned from meeting NK's leader KJU. (Christine Kim, Reuters)
- The Pentagon is "cautiously optimistic" about talks between Seoul and Pyongyang, a US military spokesman said on Mon. after a 10-member S.Korean delegation met N.Korean leader KJU. (Reuters)
- Offering the wrong carrots is another problem. In the past, the US offered carrots for signs of peaceful resolution. However, much has changed. NK promised to stop provocations but sold missile technologies and developed nuclear weapons. Washington is firm that it won't be fooled again. As Moon said, making vain promises out of impatience is worse than not meeting at all. And the US, which is leading the sanctions, may refuse to offer carrots such as postponing the joint drills. (Nam Jeong-ho, Joongang Daily)
- World share markets regained ground on Tues. as news that the US and NK will meet for talks next month came on top of hopes that President Donald Trump's political allies would convince him to avoid a global trade war. (Marc Jones, Reuters)
- President Donald Trump hailed "possible progress" Tues. in talks between NK and SK, hours after the US ally said that NK is willing to talk to the US about giving up its nuclear program. (Maegan Vazquez, CNN)
- A cautious President Trump spoke of possible progress Tues. after SK announced that NK would halt nuclear weapons and missile tests and put its entire atomic arsenal up for discussion if the US agrees to enter a negotiation. It could also be "false hope," the American leader said. (Darlene Superville, Matthew Pennington, AP)
- US President Donald Trump said on Tues. he saw "possible progress" after SK said NK is willing to hold talks with the US on denuclearization and will suspend nuclear tests while those talks are under way. (Reuters)
- President Donald Trump was referring to his S.Korean counterpart on Sat. evening when he cryptically recounted a telephone call he'd taken about opening talks with NK. (Kevin Liptak, CNN)
- Some foreign policy experts say Trump has helped move the needle — however temporarily or tentatively — because of his "madman" approach to NK and/or the sanctions spurred by the Trump administration's efforts. (Aaron Blake, Washington Post)

- US Director of National Intelligence Dan Coats said on Tues. that Washington would have to know far more before assessing NK's reported willingness to hold talks with the US on denuclearization. (Reuters)
- The US on Mon. imposed new sanctions on NK for its alleged use of chemical weapons, a move that follows the suspected nerve agent assassination of the N.Korean leader's half-brother. (Yonhap)
- The US remains committed to applying maximum pressure against NK, a position that will not change until Pyongyang takes steps toward denuclearization, US Vice President Mike Pence said on Tues. (Reuters)
- The US imposed yet another set of sanctions on NK Mon. as Seoul tries to bring the two countries to the discussion table, this time saying NK used chemical weapons against its own nationals in violation of international law. (Lee Sung-eun, Joongang Daily)
- US President Donald Trump has not had a phone call with the N.Korean regime, a White House official said Mon., commenting on his remarks that suggested such a possibility. (Yonhap)
- N.Korean leader KJU's scheduled meeting with presidential envoys from SK will provide a rare glimpse of his personality and leadership, analysts said Mon., as the meeting will serve as the reclusive leader's de facto debut on the diplomatic scene. (Kim Bo-eun, Korea Times)

Prepared by Jinny Ahn, HRNK Research Intern

——————————————————

Wednesday, March 7, 2018

Congressmen Conaway and Connolly introduce Resolution Condemning NK Labor Camps, Quoting HRNK's "Hidden Gulag IV."; South Korean officials to visit Washington with message from North's leader: South Korea official

Top News:

Congressmen Conaway and Connolly introduce Resolution Condemning NK Labor Camps, Quoting HRNK's "Hidden Gulag IV." (Gerry Connolly, 03/06/2018)

In North Korea:

AP Explains: What to make of N. Korean offer for nuke talks (WaPo, 03/07/2018)
Analysis: Korean summit a rite of passage for Kim Jong Un (WaPo, 03/07/2018)
Ex-U.N. ambassador says N. Korea's Paralympic participation can improve disability rights(Yonhap, 03/07/2018)
Kim Jong-un, a Mystery to the World, Surprises in Diplomatic Debut (NYT, 03/07/2018)
Kim Jong Un: Is North Korea's leader desperate or confident? (WaPo, 03/07/2018)
Kim Jong Un is suddenly talking about peace. Here's why. (WaPo, 03/07/2018)

North's media passes over latest deal in silence (Joongang Ilbo, 03/07/2018)
North Korea Places Strategic Defense Zone Within Pyongyang's Administrative District (RFA, 03/06/2018)

In South Korea:
As talks with North near, South Korea sees familiar hurdles ahead (Reuters, 03/07/2018)
Moon to meet party leaders over outcome of inter-Korean talks (Yonhap, 03/07/2018)
Parties give mixed reactions to inter-Korean agreement (Yonhap, 03/06/2018)
S. Korean president says talks won't ease pressure on North (WaPo, 03/07/2018)
South Korea's Moon says sanctions on North to stay, too early to be optimistic (Reuters, 03/07/2018)
South Korea president assures rivals of continued pressure on North (Reuters, 03/07/2018)
South Korean receives prison term for North Korea praise (UPI, 03/06/2018)
'Too early to be optimistic' on North Korea, says South's president Moon Jae-in (Telegraph, 03/07/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
(LEAD) N. Korean delegation to Paralympics arrives in S. Korea (Yonhap, 03/07/2018)
(LEAD) (Yonhap Feature) Will Korean Wave help bring two Koreas closer to reunification?(Yonhap, 03/07/2018)
(2nd LD) Moon says N. Korea issue still at critical juncture (Yonhap, 03/07/2018)
(3rd LD) Moon reiterates denuclearization goal, rules out eased sanctions on N.K. (Yonhap, 03/07/2018)
Inter-Korean agreement to pave way for reduced tensions: experts (Yonhap, 03/06/2018)
Koreas summit a major step, but much work will remain (WaPo, 03/07/2018)
Moon says South won't ease up on sanctions just yet (Joongang Ilbo, 03/07/2018)
N. Korean paper justifies nuclear arsenal despite recent inter-Korean agreement (Yonhap, 03/07/2018)
N. Koreans enter Paralympic Village in PyeongChang (Yonhap, 03/07/2018)
North Korean leader to visit South for first time (Joongang Ilbo, 03/07/2018)
North, South Korea to inaugurate presidential hotline (UPI, 03/07/2018)
S. Korea vows efforts for better inter-Korean ties (Yonhap, 03/07/2018)

International:
(3rd LD) Moon says conditions now right for U.S.-N. Korea talks (Yonhap, 03/07/2018)
(4th LD) Trump sees 'possible progress' in talks with N. Korea (Yonhap, 03/07/2018)
(6th LD) Trump believes N. Korea is sincere about talks after sanctions (Yonhap, 03/07/2018)
A 'nuclear' summit (Joongang Ilbo, 03/07/2018)
Analysis: Caution likely to guide next steps in Koreas talks (WaPo, 03/07/2018)
Analysis: Is North Korea's nuke offer too good to be true? (WaPo, 03/06/2018)
FM Kang says U.S. and N.K. willing to sit and talk (Yonhap, 03/07/2018)
Japan defense minister says North Korea's intentions unclear, careful analysis needed (Reuters, 03/06/2018)
Japan's Suga: North Korea must show commitment to denuclearization (Reuters, 03/06/2018)
India tightens curbs on trade with North Korea (Reuters, 03/07/2018)

Moon's security adviser to visit U.S. with 'undisclosed' message from N. Korea (Yonhap, 03/07/2018)
(News Focus) N.K. willing to talk with U.S. but doubts remain over denuclearization: experts(Yonhap, 03/06/2018)
(News Focus) N. Korea's offer marks progress in nuclear standoff with U.S. (Yonhap, 03/06/2018)
North Korea's Kim Jong Un Floats Talks With US Over Nuclear Disarmament (RFA, 03/06/2018)
North Korea overture seen as tiny step on rocky, unpromising road (Reuters, 03/06/2018)
North Korea Nuclear Talks – Approach With Caution, Analysts Say (VOA, 03/07/2018)
Not there yet (Joongang Ilbo, 03/07/2018)
Pope praises Pyeongchang Olympics as bridge to peace (WaPo, 03/07/2018)
Pro-N.K. paper urges U.S. to ditch hostile policy toward N.K. for dialogue (Yonhap, 03/07/2018)
Possibility of North Korea detente stirs diplomatic angst in Japan (Reuters, 03/07/2018)
Raising Hopes, North Korea Offers to Talk About Its Nuclear Arsenal (NYT, 03/07/2018)
Reflections on Korea in Washington: a personal perspective (Korea Times, 03/07/2018)
Russia condemns new U.S. sanctions on North Korea (Reuters, 03/07/2018)
Russia endorses North Korea 'Olympic reconciliation' on Facebook (UPI, 03/06/2018)
Seoul: U.S.-North Korea talks may precede inter-Korean dialogue in April (UPI, 03/06/2018)
South Korean officials to visit Washington with message from North's leader: South Korea official (Reuters, 03/06/2018)
Talks With North Korea? China Approves (No Matter the Outcome) (NYT, 03/07/2018)
The prospect of talks about talks (Joongang Ilbo, 03/07/2018)
Trump believes Kim Jong-un is being 'sincere' (Joongang Ilbo, 03/07/2018)
Trump calls North Korea 'sincere' on possible nuclear talks, others skeptical (Reuters, 03/06/2018)
Trump declines to identify preconditions for North Korea talks, eyes progress (Reuters, 03/06/2018)
Trump's 'maximum pressure' on North Korea is working. Now what? (WaPo, 03/07/2018)
Trump says North Korea is 'sincere' on reported offer to hold nuclear talks (WaPo, 03/07/2018)
Trump teeters on the edge of a familiar North Korean trap (CNN, 03/07/2018)
Trump: US 'Willing to Go Either Way' with North Korea (VOA, 03/07/2018)
U.S. is open-minded but skeptical about North Korea overture: official (Reuters, 03/06/2018)
U.S. sanctions North Korea for killing of leader's half-brother with VX chemical (Reuters, 03/06/2018)
US Sanctions N. Korea over Poisoning Death of Estranged Brother (VOA, 03/07/2018)
US says North Korea assassinated Kim Jong-nam with chemical weapon (Guardian, 03/07/2018)
US slaps more sanctions on North Korea 'for using VX nerve agent to kill Kim Jong-nam' in Malaysia (Telegraph, 03/07/2018)

Top News:

- Monday, Congressman Mike Conaway (TX-11) and Congressman Gerry Connolly (VA- 11) introduced a resolution calling upon the leadership of the Government of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea to dismantle its labor camp system. The resolution quotes HRNK's "Hidden Gulag IV." (conaway.house.gov)

In North Korea:

- Experts reading between the lines believe NK may be falling back on a well-worn position when confronting the US. Essentially: You want our nukes? Then give us credible security guarantees. (Kim Hyung-jin,Kim Tong-hyung, AP)
- More than six years after assuming power, KJU has yet to complete one of the defining rituals of a world leader: hosting another head of state, or being welcomed by one on an official visit abroad, but Moon's office said that NK and SK had agreed to hold a summit next month at a truce village inside the DMZ. (Eric Talmadge, AP)
- Oh Joon, former S. Korean Ambassador to the UN, said Wed. he believes NK's participation in the Paralympics can be an opportunity to improve the rights of disabled people. (Yonhap)
- When senior S. Korean envoys sat down this week with KJU, they had a series of talking points in hand for a man whose diplomatic experience was limited to meetings with officials from China, Cuba and Syria. S. Korean officials said the envoys were not prepared for how "forthcoming and daring" he was. (Choe Sang-hun, NYT)
- KJU was all broad smiles and hearty handshakes during an unprecedented meeting with S. Korean envoys this week. Were they the smiles of an authoritarian leader under pressure? Or were they the smiles of an authoritarian leader who feels supremely confident in his position? (Anna Fifield, WaPo)
- With the announcement of a summit between SK and NK leaders as a possible prelude to talks with the Trump administration, KJU has maneuvered within view of a victory his forefathers only dreamed of: membership in the world community, on NK's terms. Many things can still go wrong, but his path forward seems pretty clear. (David Von Drehle, WaPo)
- A day after SK announced a 6-point agreement with NK that included NK's nod to hold denuclearization talks with the US, the regime made no mention of the deal Wed. through its state-run media, but flaunted its nuclear stockpile as a "legitimate deterrence" against US' "nuclear threat scheme." (Lee Sung-eun, Jeong Yong-soo, Joongang Ilbo)
- NK has placed a strategic industrial defense zone within the administrative district of Pyongyang so missile technicians and researchers can have access to the better benefits enjoyed by those who reside in the capital. (Kim Joon-ho, Jun Lee-jin, Roseanne Gerin, RFA)

In South Korea:

- With the specter of two past summits that failed to blunt NK's nuclear ambitions, S. Korean officials planning talks next month now face the thorny task of overcoming familiar sticking points with the threat of war looming over any failure. (Hyonhee Shin, Reuters)
- Moon is set to meet with the leaders of political parties Wed. on security issues that will likely include his scheduled summit with KJU. (Yonhap)
- S. Korean political parties on Tues. demonstrated mixed reactions to the results of the high-stakes visit to NK by Moon's special envoys, which included an agreement to hold a cross-border summit next month. (Yonhap)
- Moon on Wed. downplayed concerns that the resumption of inter-Korean dialogue will be accompanied by an easing of international sanctions and pressure on NK over its nuclear program. (Kim Tong-hyung, AP)

- Moon said on Wed. sanctions on NK will not be eased for the sake of a summit between the two sides as Chinese state media repeated Beijing's line that talks are the only way to end the nuclear standoff. (Christine Kim, Jeff Mason, Reuters)
- SK will continue imposing sanctions on NK, despite warmer relations between the two states which agreed to hold an inter-Korean summit for the first time in more than a decade. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- A S. Korean man in his 50s was sentenced to prison for praising NK and calling for the abolishment of Seoul's anti-communist National Security Law on his personal blog. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- Moon sounded a note of caution Wed. over NK's offer of denuclearization talks, saying it was "too early to be optimistic", even as Trump welcomed the development. (Agence France-Presse, Telegraph)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- A 24-member N. Korean delegation to the PyeongChang Paralympics crossed the border into SK on Wed., according to pool reporters. (Yonhap)
- The Korean Wave is expected to serve as an incentive for N. Korean people to aspire to unification and to learn about their southern neighbor. (Koh Byung-joon, Yonhap)
- Moon said Wed. that inter-Korean relations and efforts to restart talks on ending NK's nuclear ambitions are still in a critical condition, despite his agreement to hold a summit with the KJU next month. (Yonhap)
- Moon reiterated Wed. that SK won't settle for anything short of the ultimate goal of the denuclearization of NK. (Yonhap)
- The agreement between the two Koreas announced Tues., including NK's offer of conditional suspension of nuclear and missile provocations, is expected to pave the way for reduced tensions on the peninsula, experts said. (Yonhap)
- Now that NK and SK have agreed to hold their first summit in more than a decade, here's a word to the wise: Success isn't always defined by quick fixes to big, fundamental problems. (Eric Talmadge, AP)
- Moon on Wed. vowed that SK will not ease its sanctions on NK for the upcoming summit with KJU. (Ser Myo-ja, Joongang Ilbo)
- NK's state newspaper on Wed. justified the country's nuclear weapons development and said it cannot be subject to dispute, one day after SK's unveiled a landmark agreement with the regime to ease tensions on the Korean Peninsula. (Yonhap)
- NK's delegation to the Paralympic Games entered the athletes' village in the South Korean alpine town of PyeongChang on Wednesday. (Yonhap)
- KJU will become the first N. Korean leader to cross the border and visit SK since the Korean War broke out in 1950, as SK and NK agreed to hold a summit in April on the southern side of the truce village of Panmunjom. (Ser Myo-ja, Lee Chul-jae, Joongang Ilbo)
- A phone line connecting KJU and Moon is being pursued as part of an agreement reached Mon. during inter-Korea talks in Pyongyang, S. Korean newspaper Hankyoreh reported Wed. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)

- The S. Korean government will make efforts to keep alive the current reconciliatory mood between the two Koreas to improve inter-Korean ties and bring peace to the divided peninsula, SK's pointman on NK said Wed. (Yonhap)

International:

- Moon expressed hope for the start of US-NK dialogue Wed., insisting that NK's recent offer to freeze its nuclear and missile activities have created the right conditions for at least what he called "preliminary" talks on the resumption of denuclearization talks. (Yonhap)
  Trump said Tues. there is "possible progress" in talks with NK after the regime floated its willingness to give up its nuclear weapons. (Yonhap)
- Trump said Tues. he believes NK is sincere about talking with the US because of sanctions that were imposed on the regime. (Yonhap)
- SK government must tell NK that an inter-Korean summit will be equally in vain unless it clearly defines what denuclearization really means in its meeting with the US. If NK and the US can find a breakthrough, it will help the April inter-Korean summit to deliver some achievements. If not, the summit should not be held. (Joongang Ilbo)
- A look at why the Korean summit matters, even if it doesn't produce an immediate promise by NK to denuclearize, and what some of the next moves for the two Koreas and the US might be. (Eric Talmadge, AP)
- Trump appears to have gotten what he wanted from NK: a willingness to suspend nuclear testing and a promise to put its entire arsenal of atomic weapons on the negotiating table. But is it too good to be true? (Matthew Pennington, AP)
- SK's top diplomat has said that she is sure that both the US and NK are willing to hold dialogue, which is crucial to denuclearizing NK. (Yonhap)
- Japanese Defense Minister Itsunori Onodera said on Wed. that NK's intentions were unclear and careful analysis was needed, when asked by reporters about plans for a summit by North and South Korea. (Reuters)
- Japan's top government spokesman said on Wed. that it is "extremely important" that NK show its commitment and concrete actions toward abandonment of its nuclear missile development in a complete, verifiable and irreversible way. (Reuters)
- India has imposed new restrictions on trade with NK, a government statement said on Wed., in line with UN Security Council sanctions slapped on the reclusive country for its nuclear and missile programs. (Nidhi Verma, Reuters)
- Moon's top security adviser will head to the US this week to brief US officials on the outcome of his recent trip to NK that he earlier said included an undisclosed message from the communist state. (Yonhap)
- NK appears to be willing, if not desperate, to resume its long stalled dialogue with the US as demonstrated by a series of exceptional steps it has agreed to take to make that happen, but how sincere and willing it is to denuclearize still remains questionable. (Yonhap)
- NK's offer to discuss its nuclear weapons program with the US marks a possible end to the two countries' impasse, but it remains to be seen what the regime's intentions are, according to US analysts Tues. (Yonhap)

- KJU has suggested his country is willing to discuss nuclear disarmament with the US and would suspend all nuclear and missile tests during the proposed talks, S. Korean officials said Tues. following meetings with him in Pyongyang. (Hee Jung Yang, Joshua Lipes, RFA)
- In floating the possibility of nuclear talks with the US, NK took a first step on a road likely to be long, more arduous and just as prone to failure as past efforts. (Arshad Mohammed, David Brunnstrom, Reuters)
- NK's agreement to enter into talks with the US could be a diplomatic breakthrough to reach a peaceful resolution to the nuclear crisis, or a ruse to weaken sanctions, or both. (Brian Padden, VOA)
- The critical moment to lower the asking price for the denuclearization of NK hasn't come. It seems that at least six to nine more months will be needed until sanctions have their desired impact. Talks should continue, but we need to wait while keeping up the sanctions. (Kim Byung-yeon, Joongang Ilbo)
- Pope Francis has praised the Pyeongchang Olympics for showing that sport can "build bridges between countries in conflict and give a valid contribution to peace." (AP)
- A pro-N. Korean newspaper in Japan said Wed. the US should give up its hostile policy toward NK for possible dialogue between NK and the US. (Yonhap)
- An agreement between NK and SK to hold a summit and signals about possible talks between NK and the US are stirring concern in Japan about its diplomatic nightmare - being left out in the cold. (Linda Sieg, Reuters)
- NK's sudden willingness to bargain with the Trump administration over scrapping its atomic arsenal surprised the world on Tues., setting in motion an unpredictable diplomatic dance with the US and SK, but raising hopes that one of the most dangerous confrontations of the nuclear age could be defused. (Choe Sang-hun, Mark Lander, NYT)
- The US-SK alliance indeed has endured many disagreements on a variety of issues, and present concerns over the joint response to NK and on trade issues are only the latest in a long series of contentions. Surely there will be more, and surely they will need careful review, dialogue, understanding and compromise. (David Steinburg, Korea Times)
- The Russian Foreign Ministry on Wed. condemned new US sanctions imposed on NK after the US concluded that NK had used the chemical warfare agent VX to kill the half-brother of leader KJU in Malaysia in 2017. (Reuters)
- The Russian ambassador to NK met with N. Korean foreign ministry official Choi Sun-hee, a sign NK's efforts at engagement may be taking place with other members of the stalled six-party talks, according to the embassy's Facebook post. (Jennie Oh, UPI) Dialogue between the US and NK could precede the inter-Korean summit in April, a S. Korean presidential official said. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- Two senior S. Korean officials who met with KJU this week will depart for Washington on Thurs. to brief U.S. officials on the outcome of their meeting, a S. Korean administration official said on Wed. (Reuters)
- As the Trump administration decides how to deal with NK's new offer to talk, China is a bystander. Even so, analysts say, Beijing is sure to be pleased by the prospect of a drawn-out diplomatic process that delays the possibility of war on its border, even if the talks ultimately come to nothing. (Jane Perlez, NYT)

- The US should follow SK's lead and offer to send a high-level delegation to Pyongyang. (Ralph Cossa, Joongang Ilbo)
- Trump said he believes NK is "sincere" about talks with the US on Tues. and hopes for a peaceful breakthrough after NK signaled it is up for discussions with Washington about giving up its nuclear weapons. (Sarah Kim, Joongang Ilbo)
- Feeling the pressure of sanctions, NK seems "sincere" in its apparent willingness to halt nuclear tests if it held denuclearization talks with the US, Trump said on Tues. as US, S. Korean and Japanese officials voiced skepticism about any discussions. (Jeff Mason, Christine Kim, Reuters)
- Trump on Tues. declined to say whether he had any preconditions for talks with NK and said there had been progress with the country. (Reuters)
- If Pyongyang agrees to denuclearize, the shift of position would mark a success for the Trump administration's policy of applying "maximum pressure" to NK and open the possibility of a needed reduction of tensions on the Korean Peninsula. The question is whether Trump is prepared to capitalize on the opportunity. (Editorial Board, WaPo)
- The White House responded with cautious optimism Tues. to NK's reported proposal to hold "candid talks" with the US and SK, and to put its nuclear weapons and missile testing programs on hold while engaged in dialogue. Trump think's NK's sincere. (Karen DeYoung, Anna Fifield, WaPo)
- Trump frequently scorches the last three presidents for leaving him a nightmare scenario on NK, but as a thaw takes hold ahead of the first NK-SK summit in a decade, Trump could be about to be dragged down the same frustrating and inconclusive diplomatic path as his predecessors. (Stephan Collison, CNN)
- Trump said the US is "willing to go either way" in response to NK's development of nuclear-tipped missiles, adding "hopefully it's going to be the proper way." (Peggy Chang, Steve Herman, VOA)
- NK has earned US skepticism for breaking all previous agreements over its nuclear program but the Trump administration is open-minded about potential talks with Pyongyang, a senior administration official said on Tues. (Reuters)
- The US has determined Pyongyang used the chemical warfare agent VX to assassinate the half-brother of KJU in Malaysia in 2017 and has imposed sanctions in response, the US State Department said on Tues. (Reuters)
- The US says it will impose new economic sanctions on NK for using a lethal chemical nerve agent in last year's assassination of the estranged half-brother of KJU. (VOA)
- The US has determined NK used a banned chemical weapon to assassinate the half brother of leader KJU in Malaysia last year, with the claim coming just hours after Pyongyang signalled it was willing to give up its nuclear weapons. (Benjamin Haas, Guardian)
- US formally concluded on Tues. that NK ordered the murder of a half-brother and potential rival to ruler KJU with the VX nerve agent. (Chris Graham, Telegraph)

Prepared by Emma Stubblefield, HRNK Research Intern

Thursday, March 8, 2018

S.Korean special envoys head to U.S. to explain outcome of N. Korea trip; S.Korea Defense Chief's 'joke' adds to speculation about scaled-down drills; Koreas will not march together at opening of Winter Paralympics

In North Korea:

Choe Son-hui, N.K. diplomat on U.S. affairs, promoted to vice minister (Yonhap, 03/08/2018)
For Pyongyang, Mideast offers cautionary nuclear tale (Washington Post, 03/08/2018)
North Korea to launch new TV soap operas (BBC, 03/08/2018)
North Korean intel agency to oversee expanded smuggling ops (*Daily*NK, 03/08/2018)
North Korean women have plenty of reason to say 'Me Too' — but no hope of a reckoning (Washington Post, 03/08/2018)
Rice demand down, price steady in North Korean markets (*Daily*NK, 03/07/2018)
Sexual violence against women and girls 'rampant' in North Korea (Telegraph, 03/08/2018)
While in Pyongyang, Moon's envoys watched S. Korean TV channels freely (Korea Times, 03/08/2018)

In South Korea:

(LEAD) Defense chief's 'joke' adds to speculation about scaled-down drills (Yonhap, 03/08/2018)
(LEAD) Moon's special envoys head to U.S. to explain outcome of N. Korea trip (Yonhap, 03/08/2018)
(LEAD) PM: Sanctions on N. Korea cannot be lifted in exchange for talks (Yonhap, 03/08/2018)
Joint drills may start on April 1 (Joongang Ilbo, 03/08/2018)
Korean officials go to Washington to arrange talks (Joongang Ilbo, 03/08/2018)
Ko Un dismissed from post on unified Korean dictionary panel (Yonhap, 03/08/2018)
Moon notes many obstacles ahead to denuclearization and peace (Yonhap, 03/08/2018)
Moon's approval rating dips over Me Too case (Joongang Ilbo, 03/08/2018)
S. Korea leader sees more obstacles ahead to disarm N. Korea (Washington Post, 03/08/2018)
South Korea to deliver secret message from Kim Jong Un to Trump (UPI, 03/08/2018)
South Korea to brief US on meeting with North Korea's Kim (Washington Post, 03/08/2018)
South Korean Envoys Head to US to Discuss North Korean Offer (VOA, 03/08/2018)
South Korean officials leave for US with message from North Korea to Trump (CNN, 03/08/2018)
South Koreans in Washington to brief on talks with North Korean leader (Reuters, 03/08/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

Alliance outweighs dialogue (Joongang Ilbo, 03/08/2018)
Analysts: Trump Administration Lacks Experts Needed for North Korea Talks (VOA, 03/08/2018)
Kim's calculations (Joongang Ilbo, 03/08/2018)
Koreas Will Not March Together at Opening of Winter Paralympics (VOA, 03/08/2018)
Mission (half) accomplished (Joongang Ilbo, 03/08/2018)
North Korea's Paralympic presence raises eyebrows as winter games open (Guardian, 03/08/2018)

North, South Korea won't march together at Paralympics amid flag row (Reuters, 03/08/2018)
Potential breakthrough but long way to go (Korea Times, 03/08/2018)
S. Korea Leader Sees More Obstacles Ahead to Disarm N. Korea (VOA, 03/07/2018)

International:
Analyst: North Korea weapons a 'political deterrent' for regime (UPI, 03/08/2018)
China eyes greater global leadership role, downplays fears (Washington Post, 03/08/2018)
China's senior foreign policy adviser to visit S. Korea this month (Yonhap, 03/08/2018)
China Urges North, US to Talk Soon (VOA, 03/08/2018)
House resolution urges N. Korea to close labor camps (Yonhap, 03/08/2018)
North Korea talks: China cautiously 'cheering on' Koreas (BBC, 03/08/2018)
North Korea wants nuclear talks but does Trump know what he wants to say? (Guardian, 03/07/2018)
Olympics hack highlights emerging 'false flags' threat: researcher (Reuters, 03/08/2018)
S. Korea, Singapore top diplomats discuss recent inter-Korean agreement (Yonhap, 03/08/2018)
The Latest: US: 'potentially positive symbols' from N. Korea (Washington Post, 03/08/2018)
U.S. wary of North Korea weapons advances while talks take place (Reuters, 03/08/2018)
Victor Cha says no breakthrough yet with N. Korea (Yonhap, 03/08/2018)

In North Korea:

- N.K. has promoted Choe Son-hui, a senior female diplomat in charge of U.S. relations, to the post of vice foreign minister. (Yonhap)
- As N.K. considers negotiating over its nukes, it may find lessons in the Middle East, where leaders imperiled, paranoid or pugnacious have long used the doomsday weapon threat to secure a wobbly perch. (AP)
- N.K.'s state-run television is set to launch two slick soap operas revisiting familiar themes of patriotism and loyalty in time of war. (BBC)
- N.K.'s intelligence and security agency has ordered troops stationed along the Chinese border in Ryanggang Province to engage in smuggling operations. (Seol Song Ah, DailyNK)
- Sexual assault and harassment are rife across all sectors of N.K.'s misogynistic society, according to a new report based on testimony from more than 40 women who have escaped from N.K. (Anna Fifield, Washington Post)
- Market reports from inside N.K. reveal that food prices across the country continue to remain steady despite intensifying international sanctions. (Kang Mi Jin, DailyNK)
- Sexual assault and harassment are entrenched in all sectors of N.K.'s "misogynistic" society, reveals a report based on the testimony of more than 40 female defectors. (Nicola Smith, Telegraph)
- Moon's envoys to N.K. could watch S.K. and foreign broadcasts and use S.K. portal sites at their lodging. (Kim Rahn, Korea Times)

In South Korea:

- S.K. Defense Minister Song Young-moo "jokingly" said Thursday the US does not need to send a nuclear submarine and other strategic assets to Korea for the upcoming joint military drills. (Yonhap)
- Moon's top security adviser left Thursday for the US to explain the outcome of his recent trip to N.K. that led to what many here have called "exceptional" concessions from the communist state, such as plans for an inter-Korean summit. (Yonhap)
- Sanctions on N.K. cannot be lifted just because the communist nation agreed to hold talks and there must be convincing progress in those talks before any reward can be considered, PM Lee Nak-yon said Thursday. (Yonhap)
- The US-ROK joint military exercises could begin as early as April 1, amid a detente on the peninsula and an inter-Korean summit planned for later that month. (Sarah Kim, Joongang Ilbo)
- Korea's top security officials left for the US to brief the Trump administration about their recent meeting with KJU, and to persuade Washington to start talks with Pyongyang. (Ser Myo-ja, Joongang Ilbo)
- Ko Un, a once-revered S.K. poet, has been removed from his position as head of a government-funded commission to compile a unified Korean dictionary amid allegations of his "habitual" sexual misconduct. (Yonhap)
- S.K. still faces many obstacles in its efforts to denuclearize N.K. and establish lasting peace, Moon said, despite what he and many others have called "exceptional" concessions from N.K. that include a suspension of military provocations. (Yonhap)
- Moon's approval rating fell despite his triumphs in diplomacy with N.K. as a result of a sex scandal plaguing a former high-profile member of the Democratic Party. (Ser Myo-ja, Heo Jin, Joongang Ilbo)
- S.K.'s president said Thursday that many "critical moments" still lie ahead to end the nuclear crisis despite N.K.'s recent outreach to Seoul and Washington. (Hyung-Jin Kim, AP)
- The S.K. presidential delegation that met with KJU in Pyongyang on Monday is arriving in Washington on Thursday and is expected to deliver top-secret communication from KJU to Trump. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- S.K. officials are to brief the White House Thursday on the outcome of their pathfinding meeting with KJU. (Matthew Pennington, AP)
- Two S.K. envoys are heading to the US to brief Trump administration officials about their talks with KJU. (VOA)
- Top S.K. negotiators left for the US to brief their American counterparts on the outcome of their historic meeting with KJU earlier this week. (Ben Westcott, CNN)
- Two senior S.K. officials arrived in the US on Thursday to brief US officials on their meeting this week with KJU and Pyongyang's apparent willingness to discuss denuclearization with Washington. (Steve Holland, Christine Kim, Reuters)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- N.K. intends to scrap its nuclear weapons only when a condition like the withdrawal of U.S. Forces in Korea is met. But S.K. cannot accept such demands. Two S.K. envoys must not make the mistake of shaking the foundations of the alliance. (Joongang Ilbo)
- While Trump reacted positively to an unexpected willingness from N.K. to conduct talks on freezing its nuclear program, the Trump administration might not have the experts needed to prepare and conduct such difficult negotiations. (Cindy Saine, VOA)
- KJU seems to have many strategic calculations on his mind. Seoul must use sophisticated diplomatic and negotiating skills on not only Pyongyang, but also Washington and other allies in order not to fall back into the past vicious cycle. (Kim Yeol-su, Joongang Ilbo)
- Two Koreas will not march together at Friday's opening ceremony of the Winter Paralympics because of a disagreement over whether to include islands which are in a dispute with Japan on a united flag. (VOA)
- Moon's envoys returned from their mission in N.K. As anticipated, the news on inter-Korean relations, including the Inter-Korean summit, was satisfactory, but the topics of denuclearization and talks with the US still loomed at large. (Joongang Ilbo)
- The Paralympics opens on Friday in Pyeongchang in what will be the largest winter Games to date, with 240 medals up for grabs and N.K. making its debut, part of a wider cooling of tensions. (Benjamin Haas, Guardian)
- Two Koreas will not march together at the opening ceremony of the Winter Paralympics, as they did at the Olympics last month, because they cannot agree on a united flag that erases islands disputed with Japan. (Dahee Kim, Reuters)
- The latest agreement between the two Koreas for an inter-Korean summit is paving the way to find a potential breakthrough in the N.K. nuclear crisis. (Kim Jae-kyoung, Korea Times)
- Moon said Thursday that many "critical moments" still lie ahead to end the nuclear crisis despite N.K.'s recent outreach to Seoul and Washington. (AP)

International:

- Insufficient evidence that N.K. has fully developed long-range missile systems could mean Pyongyang is mainly using its weapons program as a political deterrent, a U.S. analyst said. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- The world can only benefit as China marches toward "irresistible" national rejuvenation and assumes greater global leadership under Xi Jinping, China's top diplomat said. (Gerry Shih and Christopher Bodeen, AP)
- A Chinese senior foreign policy adviser is expected to visit S.K. this month to discuss issues of mutual concern, including N.K.'s nuclear problem. (Yonhap)
- China's Foreign Minister Wang Yi has urged N.K. and the US to hold talks as soon as possible, calling on all parties to take steps to move the situation forward and, as he put it, fight for peace. (Bill Ide, VOA)
- Two U.S. lawmakers have introduced a resolution calling for the dismantlement of N.K.'s labor camp system. The document details the human rights abuses committed inside the regime's labor camps. (Yonhap)

- China has said it is "cheering on" North and South Korea after they agreed to hold a leaders' summit on reducing tensions on the peninsula. (BBC)
- The Trump administration is considering how to respond to the N.K. offer of talks on its nuclear weapons program at a time when its capacity to engage with Pyongyang has been hamstrung by the departure of its top Korea experts. (Julian Borger, Guardian)
- The "Olympic Destroyer" computer virus used to attack last month's Pyeongchang Winter Games was embedded with forged code to make investigators believe the attack was done by hackers linked to N.K. (Jim Finkle, Reuters)
- The top diplomats of S.K. and Singapore discussed Thursday cooperation on a range of issues, including Seoul's efforts to open dialogue with North Korea for a peaceful resolution of the North's nuclear issues. (Yonhap)
- U.S. Secretary of State Rex Tillerson said there are "potentially positive symbols" coming from N.K. but that N.K. and U.S. are a long ways from negotiations. (AP)
- N.K. could buy time to build up and refine its nuclear arsenal, including a warhead able to survive re-entry into the Earth's atmosphere, if it manages to drag out any talks with Washington. (Matt Spetalnick, David Brunnstrom, Phil Stewart, Reuters)
- Victor Cha, a former White House official who was recently dropped from consideration for U.S. ambassador to Seoul, expressed skepticism Wednesday about N.K.'s offer to discuss its denuclearization with the US. (Yonhap)

Prepared by James Park, HRNK Research Intern

——————————————————

Friday, March 9, 2018

Trump, Kim agree to meet by May: Seoul envoy; Trump and NK talks: S.Korean statement in full; N.Korean defectors warn Donald Trump, 'KJU is lying' on nuclear deal

In North Korea:

"Maximum pressure" and the North Korean economy: what do market prices say? (NK Econ Watch, 03/09/2018)

A North Korean propaganda film foretold proposed talks between Trump and Kim Jong Un (WaPo, 03/09/2018)

Kim Jong Un: Talks with Trump could produce 'great achievement' (UPI, 03/09/2018)

North Korea Touts Federal Unification Plan to Party Executives (RFA, 03/08/2018)

North Korea's nuclear weapons: What you need to know (WaPo, 03/09/2018)

Sexual violence against women and girls 'rampant' in North Korea (Telegraph, 03/08/2018)

In South Korea:

S. Korea approves fund to support N. Korea's Paralympic participation (Yonhap, 03/09/2018)

S. Korean envoys to travel to Japan next week for briefing on N. Korea (Yonhap, 03/09/2018)
S. Korean minister speaks well of N. Korea's ruling family (Yonhap, 03/09/2018)
South Korean president lauds Trump, Kim move toward dialogue (UPI, 03/09/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
Korea 2018: The Beginning of the End of the Post-1990 World Order? (38North, 03/08/2018)

International:
'Diplomatic shock and awe': Here's how people are reacting to Trump's move to meet Kim Jong Un (WaPo, 03/09/2018)
'Shocking, incredible': what the experts say about a Trump meeting with Kim (Guardian, 03/08/2018)
(2nd LD) S. Korea, U.S. to make 'major announcement' on N. Korea (Yonhap, 03/09/2018)
(3rd LD) Trump, Kim agree to meet by May: Seoul envoy (Yonhap, 03/09/2018)
(LEAD) (News Focus) U.S., N.K. ready for historic summit, but uncertainty looms over nuclear diplomacy (Yonhap, 03/09/2018)
(LEAD) China welcomes planned summit between U.S. and N.K. (Yonhap, 03/09/2018)
5 reasons why Donald Trump's massive North Korea gamble makes total and complete sense (CNN, 03/09/2018)
7 Big Things to Understand About Trump's Talks With North Korea (NYT, 03/09/2018)
A Look at What's Ahead in a Landmark Trump-Kim Summit (NYT, 03/09/2018)
Abe: Maximum pressure on North Korea to continue (UPI, 03/08/2018)
Abe says he appreciates N. Korea's shift to talks, will continue pressure (Yonhap, 03/09/2018)
An opportunity and a risk (Joongang Daily, 03/10/2018)
Australia probes company tied to illicit North Korea coal sale - U.N. (Reuters, 03/08/2018)
Before Trump: 6 past high-level US visits to North Korea (WaPo, 03/09/2018)
Cheong Wa Dae denies report N.K. leader called himself short and fat (Yonhap, 03/09/2018)
China likely to greet Trump-Kim talks with hope and trepidation (Guardian, 03/09/2018)
Closer than lips and teeth (Joongang Daily, 03/09/2018)
Donald Trump and Kim Jong-un believe they are winning – and the risks of that are epic (Guardian, 03/09/2018)
Donald Trump to meet Kim Jong-un by May after invitation from North Korea (Guardian, 03/08/2018)
Envoy: Trump says he'll meet Kim Jong Un by May (UPI, 03/08/2018)
Families of Japanese abductees welcome Trump, Kim summit (UPI, 03/09/2018)
For Trump, a meeting with Kim is the ultimate test (CNN, 03/08/2018)
Former Australian prime minister Keating says Trump 'surprisingly' good at foreign policy (Guardian, 03/08/2018)
How Trump caught his White House and the world by surprise (CNN, 03/08/2018)
How Would U.S. Verify That North Korea Is Disarming? (NYT, 03/09/2018)
In his fight with North Korea, Trump may end up with no allies (CNN, 03/08/2018)
Japan PM says he and Trump agree maximum pressure needed on North Korea (Reuters, 03/08/3018)

Japan says North Korea must commit to abandoning nuclear development completely (Reuters, 03/08/3018)
Kim Dynasty Sat Down With a U.S. Leader Before, With Few Results (NYT, 03/09/2018)
Kim Jong-un, Trump to meet by May to discuss denuclearization (Korea Times, 03/09/2018)
Kim Jong Un's invitation and Donald Trump's response (UPI, 03/09/2018)
Kim Jong Un wants to be seen as Donald Trump's equal. A meeting would do that. (WaPo, 03/09/2018)
Markets in Asia gain after Trump, Kim announcement (UPI, 03/09/2018)
Merkel sees 'glimmers of hope' on North Korea (Reuters, 03/09/2018)
Meeting with Kim Jong Un could be a good thing. But Trump will probably screw it up. (WaPo, 03/09/2018)
N.K. leader: Moon will no longer have to wake up early to discuss N.K. missile launches (Yonhap, 03/09/2018)
North agrees to talks with U.S. (Joongang Daily, 03/09/2018)
North Korea and South Korea snooker Trump (WaPo, 03/08/2018)
North Korea talks: China cautiously 'cheering on' Koreas (BBC, 03/08/2018)
North Korea talks: Where will Donald Trump meet Kim Jong-un? (Guardian, 03/08/2018)
North Korea won't give up its nuclear weapons. The U.S. has three good reasons to talk anyway. (WaPo, 03/09/2018)
North Korea's Paralympic presence raises eyebrows as winter games open (Guardian, 03/08/2018)
North Korean defectors warn Donald Trump, 'Kim Jong-un is lying' on nuclear deal (Telegraph, 03/09/2018)
Not there yet (Joongang Daily, 03/09/2018)
On North Korea, Donald Trump Does the Right Thing, for Once (NYT, 03/09/2018)
Only two people have met both Trump and Kim Jong Un. One is Dennis Rodman. (WaPo, 03/09/2018)
Over hotpot and soju, North Korea's Kim Jong Un joked about himself - South Korea officials (Reuters, 03/09/3018)
President Trump plans to meet Kim Jong Un for nuke talks (WaPo, 03/09/2018)
Projected Kim, Trump summit preceded by other landmark meets (WaPo, 03/09/2018)
Rex Tillerson said talking to Kim Jong Un wouldn't be 'realistic' or prudent yet. Hours later, Trump said he'd do it. (WaPo, 03/09/2018)
Road to Talks Between the U.S. and North Korea Has Been Bumpy (NYT, 03/09/2018)
South Korea and White House on talks with North: full transcript (Guardian, 03/08/2018)
Talks bombshell sets up stunning Kim-Trump summit (CNN, 03/09/2018)
The Man Bringing Trump and Kim Jong-un Together (NYT, 03/09/2018)
There are very high, very scary stakes in the Trump-Kim faceoff (CNN, 03/08/2018)
Tillerson changes tune after Trump accepts meeting with North Korea's Kim (CNN, 03/09/2018)
Tillerson professes no surprise at Trump's plans to meet Kim Jong Un (WaPo, 03/09/2018)
Tillerson says 'talks,' but no 'negotiations' with NKorea (WaPo, 03/09/2018)
Trump Kim talks: US surprised at 'dramatic' North Korea shift (BBC, 03/09/2018)
Trump-Kim talks 'some weeks' away: Tillerson (Reuters, 03/09/2018)
Trump, Kim to hold summit by May (Joongang Daily, 03/09/2018)
Trump-Kim Jong Un Summit News Met With Cautious Optimism (VOA, 03/09/2018)

Trump accepts invitation to meet with North Korean leader Kim Jong Un (WaPo, 03/08/2018)
Trump accepts offer to meet Kim Jong Un (CNN, 03/08/2018)
Trump agreed to meet Kim because he is North Korea's decision-maker: official (Reuters, 03/08/2018)
Trump and Kim: Where will they meet and what will they say? (CNN, 03/09/2018)
Trump and Kim Jong-un, and the Names They've Called Each Other (NYT, 03/09/2018)
Trump and North Korea talks: South Korean statement in full (BBC, 03/09/2018)
Trump and North Korea talks: Strange optics of the North Korea announcement (BBC, 03/09/2018)
Trump and North Korea's Kim Jong-un to meet 'as soon as possible' (BBC, 03/09/2018)
Trump has gotten credit on North Korea. But a Kim Jong Un meeting presents an unprecedented challenge. (WaPo, 03/08/2018)
Trump meeting Kim Jong-un is a half-baked idea – and a dangerous one (Guardian, 03/09/2018)
Trump plans to meet Kim Jong-un by May (Joongang Daily, 03/09/2018)
Trump says he'll meet with North Korea's Kim Jong Un (WaPo, 03/08/2018)
Trump says SKorea to make 'major statement' on NKorea (WaPo, 03/08/2018)
Trump teases big news; it arrives in the dark, on driveway (WaPo, 03/09/2018)
Trump to Meet With Kim in Visit to North Korea (VOA, 03/09/2018)
Trump will accept invitation to meet North Korea's Kim: White House (Reuters, 03/08/2018)
Trump's bellicosity secures a diplomatic coup — for now (WaPo, 03/08/2018)
Trump's Meeting With Kim Jong-un Is Another Pledge to Do What Nobody Else Can (NYT, 03/08/2018)
Trump's North Korea gambit blindsides U.S. diplomats (WaPo, 03/08/2018)
Trump's seat-of-his-pants style and lack of message control loom over meeting with Kim Jong Un (WaPo, 03/09/2018)
U.S.-South Korea military exercises are on, despite Trump's planned meeting with Kim. Here's what will happen. (WaPo, 03/09/2018)
U.S. not yet talking about 'negotiations' with N.K.: official (Yonhap, 03/09/2018)
US, N. Korea go from threats to possible summit in a flash (WaPo, 03/09/2018)
US officials say North Korea invites Trump to meet (CNN, 03/08/2018)
What could go wrong? Pitfalls pose risks in Trump, Kim talks (WaPo, 03/09/2018)
What Will Trump Give Up for Peace with North Korea? (NYT, 03/09/2018)
White House: Trump Accepts North Korean Invitation for Talks (VOA, 03/08/2018)
Why Congress is cautiously optimistic on Trump's talks with North Korea (WaPo, 03/09/2018)
Will Kim Jong Un — like every other dictator — sucker Trump? (WaPo, 03/09/2018)
Wisecracks, cold noodles and soju: Is this what Trump could expect from a Kim summit? (CNN, 03/09/2018)
Word of Trump-Kim Summit Meeting Stirs Concern in Asia (NYT, 03/09/2018)

In North Korea:

- With the news today about a summit between KJU and Trump tentatively planned for the end of May, there has been much debate about the role of the US policy of "maximum pressure" through economic sanctions. The efficacy of the policy is difficult to evaluate, particularly since it often takes many months or even years for the full effect of sanctions to play out. Whether the policy has been effective or not depends on, well, how you judge success or failure. (Benjamin Katzeff Silberstein, NK Econ Watch)

- The news that President Trump had accepted an offer to meet KJU to talk about N.Korean denuclearization took many people by surprise. But this scenario may have been foretold. As Jeffrey Lewis, an expert on NK's nuclear program at the Middlebury Institute of International Studies at Monterey has noted, there was a preview of a similar line of events—in a N.Korean propaganda film aired years ago. (Adam Taylor, WaPo)
  As Lewis put it in tweets Thursday evening, the North Korean film "The Country I Saw" envisaged a scenario where "an American President visits Pyongyang, compelled by North Korea's nuclear and missile programs to treat a Kim as an equal."
- N.Korean leader KJU said if he meets US President Trump, there could be "great achievements," Seoul's presidential spokesman Kim Eui-kyeom said Fri. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- NK is holding mandatory lectures for Workers' Party executives to promote leader KJU's decision to pursue the unification of the divided Koreas following a breakthrough in relations between NK and SK at the Pyeongchang Olympics, sources inside the country said. (Jieun Kim, Leejin Jun, Roseanne Gerin, RFA)
- On Thurs., SK national security adviser announced that President Trump is willing to meet N.Korean leader KJU by the end of May. The stunning declaration follows months of divisive back-and-forth rhetoric between the two leaders that, at one point, led Trump to proclaim Kim is a "madman with nuclear weapons." (Joby Warrick, Julie Vitkovskaya, WaPo)
- If NK's women had the chance, they would also be saying #MeToo, according to a new report released on Thurs. that documents endemic sexual violence against N.Korean women and girls. Based on the testimony of more than 40 female defectors, a report by London-based Korea Future Initiative revealed that sexual assault and harassment are entrenched in all sectors of NK's "misogynistic" society. (Nicola Smith, Telegraph)

In South Korea:

- SK approved a plan to use a government fund to financially support NK's participation in the PyeongChang Winter Paralympics, the unification ministry said Fri. (Yonhap)
- The chief of SK's state intelligence agency and a deputy national security adviser will visit Japan next week to brief the neighboring nation on the results of a visit to NL by a delegation of special envoys. (Yonhap)
- The S.Korean minister in charge of NK affairs publicly spoke highly of the communist neighbor's leader KJU and his influential sister Fri., an assessment that reflects Pyongyang's surprising peace overtures. (Yonhap)
- S.Korean President Moon said talks between the US and NK would mark a "historic milestone for establishing peace on the Korean Peninsula." (Jennie Oh, UPI)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- How the latest instance of inter-Korean rapprochement proceeds will provide observers with clues to determine where the involved parties actually stand in the above scenario. One option is that Seoul will at some point stop its cooperative efforts towards NK to prevent a collision with existing sanctions, and Beijing will remain silent. That means we will be back to an unpleasant normal with more N.Korean nuclear and missile tests, US military maneuvers, and mutual threats and accusations. Or this might just be the beginning of the end of the post-1990 world order. (Ruediger Frank, 38North)

International:

- The White House's surprise announcement Thurs. that President Trump had agreed to meet N.Korean leader KJU "at a place and time to be determined" has upended expectations about how disarmament talks with the regime would unfold. (Paul Sonne, WaPo)
- Donald Trump has agreed to meet N.Korean leader KJU before May, a S.Korean official said after a meeting at the White House. It would be the first time a sitting US president has met the leader of NK. The Guardian's Benjamin Haas gets the reactions of five analysts to this news. (Benjamin Haas, Guardian)
- SK and the US plan to make a "major announcement" on NK on Thurs., officials said, after the two sides met over S.Korean officials' recent meeting with N.Korean leader KJU. (Yonhap)
- US President Donald Trump and N.Korean leader KJU have agreed to meet by May to discuss the denuclearization of the regime, a S.Korean envoy said Thurs. SK's national security adviser, Chung Eui-yong, told reporters at the White House that Trump told him he would accept Kim's invitation to meet with him as soon as possible. (Yonhap)
- As the leaders of the US and NK have made a surprise agreement to hold an unprecedented summit, expectations are growing for a breakthrough in the nuclear stalemate. (Koh Byung-joon, Yonhap)
- China welcomed US President Donald Trump's plan to meet with N.Korean leader KJU on Fri., calling it a "positive" message and a step in the right direction. (Yonhap)
- President Donald Trump caught the world by surprise late Thurs. with his stunning announcement that he would accept N.Korean dictator KJU's invitation to meet sometime between now and May. It is a massive, massive gamble—the likes of which we haven't seen from an American president, diplomatically speaking, but in retrospect, it actually makes perfect sense that Trump is willing to roll the dice on such a massive stage. The move to meet with Kim is actually something very close to the Platonic ideal of Trumpism. (Chris Cillizza, CNN)
- Here are seven things Max Fisher learned in the past few years from covering NK diplomacy and, more recently, the Trump administration's unusual approach to foreign policy. (Max Fisher, The Interpreter)
- Here's a look at what may lie ahead in Trump-KJU summit and the challenges that remain. (AP)
- Tokyo responded with caution and guarded optimism on NK's offer to hold denuclearization talks with the US, saying it will continue to impose maximum pressure on the reclusive regime. (Jennie Oh, UPI)

- Japanese Prime Minister Shinzo Abe said Fri. he appreciates NK's shift to talks for denuclearization but that maximum pressure will continue until Pyongyang takes concrete steps to give up nuclear weapons. (Yonhap)
- A summit between NK and the US can lead to crisis as well as opportunity. Guaranteeing the regime's security in return for denuclearization could be complicated. The US may have to remove strategic assets, including the nuclear umbrella, and even pull out soldiers from SK. A peace treaty between NK and the US is also an end to the security alliance between SK and the US. If NK's nuclear capabilities are not completely and irreversibly dismantled, SK can come under a grave security danger. Unexpected bumps are to be expected. (Joongang Daily)
- Australian authorities are investigating a Sydney-based property company accused of breaching United Nations sanctions on NK by brokering an illicit sale of coal, according to a confidential UN report seen by Reuters. (Michelle Nichols, Byron Kaye, Reuters)
- President Donald Trump could become the first sitting US president to visit NK if plans for a summit with KJU hold. But other prominent US political figures have visited Pyongyang, NK's capital, in the past, many with a similar goal of trying to stop its nuclear program. (Haruka Nuga, AP)
- The presidential office Cheong Wa Dae denied a newspaper report Fri. that N.Korean leader KJU cracked a joke calling himself short and fat when he met with S.Korean special envoys earlier this week. (Yonhap)
- China has welcomed the announcement that Trump and KJU are plotting an unprecedented summit to discuss NK's weapons programmes but experts believe Beijing will also greet the news with trepidation and bitterness. (Tom Phillips, Daniel Hurst, Guardian)
- If China and NK proclaim their relationship as being as "close as teeth and lips," the US and SK's relationship may be described as being as "close as fist and wrist." The two countries, after being grafted together by the Korean War, are much more integrated and mutually dependent than most people realize. To put it simply, the Korean Ministry of Defense is an extension of the Pentagon and the Pentagon is very much dependent on SK as well as on the defense infrastructures of the US' key allies, such as Japan, the United Kingdom and Germany, to name just a few. (Tom Coyner, Joongang Daily)
- If a summit between Trump and KJU really takes place in May, it will count as one of the most remarkable and unexpected pieces of theatre in diplomatic history. Having invested so much personal capital in the meetings, there is a significant danger of a backlash from either or both men if they do not get their way under the glare of international attention. (Julian Borger, Guardian)
- Donald Trump has accepted an invitation from the N.Korean leader KJU, to hold an unprecedented summit meeting to discuss the future of the embattled regime's nuclear and missile programme. (Julian Borger, Guardian)
- President Donald Trump agreed to meet N.Korean leader KJU for denuclearization talks by May, a S.Korean envoy who facilitated communication between the two said Thurs. (Danielle Haynes, UPI)
- Families of Japanese nationals who were abducted to NK are welcoming news of a planned summit between US President Trump and NK's KJU, according to a Japanese press report. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)

- Acceptance of Kim's invitation means reversing a long string of threats and calumny Trump has heaped on the N.Korean leader—all of which he appeared to believe in devoutly until now. And that will require some remarkable and utterly uncharacteristic restraint. (David A. Andelman, CNN)
- Donald Trump is "surprisingly" good at foreign policy, according to former Australian prime minister Paul Keating, who says the US was directionless under the previous three administrations. (Australian Associated Press)
- President Donald Trump sent shock waves across the globe when he accepted an invitation from N.Korean dictator KJU for talks. No sitting US president has ever met with a leader from NK. The move represents the largest gamble to date for two truculent leaders who have engaged in a harrowing nuclear stare-down. It also caught presidential advisers off-guard. (Kevin Liptak, CNN)
- Not only would NK have to make a complete declaration of exiting stocks — we would also need a mechanism to access suspected sites, which is something NK has never agreed to. (David E. Sanger, NYT)
- KJU entering talks is not a success in and of itself. The outcome and what tangible, verifiable change they may produce will matter far more, which will ultimately rely on Trump's ability to swing a coalition behind whatever emerges from these talks. This itself will be a far greater test. While looking for allies, Trump will be dogged by his past insults and the impending trade war he seems intent on triggering. He could find himself back in the ring with KJU, sparring again using innuendo and insults, with no one holding the towel in his corner. (Nic Robertson, CNN)
- Japanese Prime Minister Shinzo Abe said on Fri. he confirmed in telephone talks with US President Donald Trump that the international community needed to continue to put maximum pressure on NK. (Reuters)
- Japanese Defence Minister Itsunori Onodera said on Fri. NK must commit to abandoning nuclear development completely in order for meaningful talks to take place with Pyongyang. (Reuters)
- Trump is not the first top US official to negotiate face to face with a Kim. At the end of Bill Clinton's presidency, his secretary of state, Madeleine K. Albright, flew to Pyongyang, NK's capital, and spent six hours trying to persuade Kim Jong-il to suspend his missile tests, with no progress. (Jane Perlez, NYT)
- N.Korean leader KJU has expressed willingness to meet US President Trump for talks over denuclearization as soon as possible, S.Korean officials visiting Washington said, Fri. (Kim Rahn, Korea Times)
- Given the stakes, risks and blowback that inevitably will accompany a Trump-Kim hamburger summit, a safer course, if indeed a summit is inevitable, would be to retain S.Korean involvement by securing an invitation for Trump to join the inter-Korean summit already announced for the end of Apr. at Panmunjom. S.Korean involvement would help address US staffing deficiencies while keeping denuclearization front and center, all the while blunting N.Korean efforts to drive a wedge in the US-SK alliance. (Scott A. Snyder, UPI)
- Just by sitting down with President Trump, KJU would get what he craves the most: legitimacy. He wants to be treated as an equal by the global superpower, and a photo opportunity with the most powerful leader in the free world would go a long way to helping him achieve that. (Anna Fifield, WaPo)

- Markets in Asia moved up following the announcement from the White House that US President Trump plans to meet with NK's KJU. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- German Chancellor Angela Merkel said on Fri. there were reasons to be hopeful about the situation in NK, especially given progress towards talks between N.Korean leader KJU and US President Donald Trump. (Reuters)
- Donald Trump loves to shake things up and do what presidents before him were unwilling to do, which is the simplest explanation for why he has accepted a proposal to meet with N.Korean leader KJU. Not only has there never been a meeting between the leaders of the two countries in the seven decades since the Korean War, there's never even been a phone conversation. (Paul Waldman, WaPo)
- N.Korean leader KJU has said President Moon will no longer have to wake up early in the morning and preside over national security council meetings to discuss missile launches by the communist nation, according to a presidential official. (Yonhap)
- NK expressed its intention to have a candid dialogue with the US to discuss denuclearization and promised a moratorium on nuclear and ballistic missile tests during the period of talks, President Moon special envoy to Pyongyang said Tues. (Joongang Daily)
- S.Korean conservatives have had two nightmare scenarios about President Trump: that he would either embroil their country in a ruinous war with NK or that he would sell out their interests to NK. Now, in a head-snapping display of incoherence, Trump has agreed to meet KJU, giving the worst human-rights abuser on the planet what he most wants: international legitimacy. (Max Boot, WaPo)
- China has said it is "cheering on" NK and SK after they agreed to hold a leaders' summit on reducing tensions on the peninsula. But foreign ministry officials have cautioned it is too early to assume the talks will bring a lasting breakthrough on the central issue: nuclear weapons. (BBC)
- US President Donald Trump's acceptance of meeting with N.Korean leader KJU raises the question of where this meeting would take place, as analysts generally agreed Trump should not hand KJU the public relations coup of a photo opportunity in the N.Korean capital, Pyongyang. Other options include more neutral grounds including SK, China, or Russia, the United Nations in Geneva or New York City, or the DMZ. (David Smith, Guardian)
- Whether a meeting between KJU and Trump ever takes place remains to be seen. Nonetheless, talks between the US and NK in some form now seem likely. But denuclearization is unlikely. It's doubtful NK would ever agree to give up its nuclear weapons, for a simple reason. The US cannot offer NK what it wants, which is a credible commitment not to threaten the regime in the future. Despite this, the US has plenty to gain from talks and has plenty of interests in NK beyond denuclearization. (Mark S. Bell, WaPo)
- The Paralympics opens on Fri. in Pyeongchang in what will be the largest winter Games to date, as all eyes will likely be on the N.Korean athletes who arrived on Wed. as part of a 24-member delegation. It will be the first time NK has participated in the Winter Paralympics, as part of a wider rapprochement on the Korean peninsula. (Benjamin Haas, Guardian)

- Defectors and human rights activists have expressed serious concerns about the sudden warming of ties across the Demilitarised Zone that has divided the Korean Peninsula since 1953, with escapees in particular emphasising that Pyongyang cannot be trusted. (Julian Ryall, Telegraph)
- The S.Korean delegation that went to NK may have heard a slightly more advanced position from Pyongyang. NK's official media said that there was a "satisfying agreement." But it seems to be for a breakthrough to ease sanctions and pressure, and the possibility of NK's regime fundamentally changing its stance on the nuclear arsenal is small. The resolution of the nuclear issue can begin when sanctions are fully effective and NK's attempts to change the situation fail. We haven't reached that point yet. (Kim Byung-yeon, Joongang Daily)
- We have long encouraged Mr. Trump to pursue negotiations to resolve the danger of NK's nuclear weapons program, rather than threatening war, and the US should make the most of this opportunity. (The Editorial Board)
- In another bizarre twist in modern politics, former NBA player Dennis Rodman is praising President Trump after the White House announced Trump had agreed to meet with N.Korean leader KJU for talks by the end of May. (Amy B. Wang, WaPo)
- NK's KJU joked about his image in international media while serving S.Korean officials local spirits and cold noodles during their unprecedented visit to Pyongyang this week, two S.Korean government sources said. (Christine Kim, Reuters)
- N.Korean dictator KJU and President Donald Trump plan to meet in May for nuclear disarmament talks, a whiplash development that would put two leaders who've repeatedly insulted, threatened and dismissed each other in the same room, possibly in the N.Korean capital of Pyongyang. (Foster Klug, AP)
- By stunning the world after seven decades of war and enmity, the projected face-to-face rendezvous between US President Donald Trump and N.Korean leader KJU would immediately take its place in the historic pantheon of electrifying summits between sworn foes. (Associated Press)
- In a brief and impromptu visit to the White House briefing room late Thurs. afternoon, President Trump previewed a major announcement that night from S.Korean leaders. Shortly after 7 p.m., those leaders said Trump had agreed to meet with N.Korean dictator KJU. Then, after an unexplained delay, the White House itself confirmed it. (Aaron Blake, WaPo)
- No sitting president has ever met—or even spoken on the phone—with a N.Korean leader. Here's a look at previous attempts at dialogue and how the possible summit meeting between Mr. Trump and Mr. Kim came about. (Austin Ramzy, Emily Cochrane, NYT)
- This article from the Guardian gives the full transcript of the announcement of the meeting of KJU and US President Donald Trump, as given by SK's national security office chief, Chung Eui-yong, as well as the US response to this announcement. (Guardian)
- President Donald Trump's stunning decision to meet KJU sets up the prospect of the most mind-boggling diplomatic summit in modern history. The meeting, announced by a S.Korean delegation at the White House on Thurs. night, would, if it goes ahead, mark an unmatched moment of history in the 70-year standoff between the US and the isolated state. (Stephen Collinson, Nicole Gaouette, CNN)
- Not only has Moon steered two headstrong, erratic adversaries away from a military conflict that could have been devastating for his nation, he has maneuvered the Trump administration into pursuing negotiations that it has long resisted. But it is unclear if he has a specific deal in mind to resolve the standoff and he will soon have to surrender control again to Trump and KJU. (Choe Sang-hun, NYT)

- The surprise announcement made Thurs. night at the White House that N.Korean leader KJU had invited President Trump for a sit-down meeting (and that Trump had accepted) sets the stage for a historic gather between two leaders who appeared to be at a nuclear-warheads draw not six months ago, especially since no sitting US president has ever met with a sitting N.Korean leader. Regardless of the motivations of each of the leaders, the opportunity is real. As is the peril. (Chris Cillizza, CNN)
- US President Donald Trump's decision to meet with N.Korean leader KJU "was not a surprise in any way," US Secretary of State Rex Tillerson said Fri., less than a day after the top US diplomat said conditions were not yet ripe for negotiations with NK. (Laura Smith-Spark, Euan McKirdy, CNN)
- Secretary of State Rex Tillerson drew a fine line Fri. between talks and negotiations with NK, suggesting large differences in expectations for both. (Carol Morello, WaPo)
- US Secretary of State Rex Tillerson drew a distinction Fri. between "talks" with NK and "negotiations," arguing that President Donald Trump's willingness to chat with KJU shouldn't be construed as anything more than that. (Josh Lederman, AP)
- The US has expressed surprise at the "dramatic" shift in stance by KJU that has seen President Donald Trump agree to talks. US Secretary of State Rex Tillerson said it would take "some weeks" to set up a meeting, due to take place by May. Trump hailed "great progress" but said sanctions would remain in place. (BBC)
- Talks between US President Trump and N.Korean leader KJU will take some weeks to arrange, US Secretary of State Rex Tillerson said on Fri. (Reuters)
- In a dramatic shift in geopolitics, US President Donald Trump accepted an invitation from N.Korean leader KJU to meet for talks about denuclearization, and a summit will be held by May. (Sarah Kim, Joongang Daily)
- After months of trading insults and threats of nuclear annihilation, President Donald Trump agreed to meet with N.Korean leader KJU by the end of May to negotiate an end to Pyongyang's nuclear weapons program, S.Korean and US officials said Thurs. No sitting US president has ever met with a N.Korean leader. (Matthew Pennington, AP)
- President Donald Trump said SK will be making a "major statement" about NK on Thurs. evening. He spoke after S.Korean officials briefed the White House on the outcome of their pathfinding meeting with N.Korean leader KJU. (Matthew Pennington, AP)
- The first inkling that something big was afoot on NK came from President Trump himself: He popped his head into the White House briefing room late Thurs. afternoon to tease a "major statement" coming soon—from S.Korean officials. Within hours came the remarkable news that after years of brinksmanship and threats of mutual obliteration, Trump had agreed to sit down with NK's KJU—a man he's long derided as "Little Rocket Man." (Jill Colvin, AP)
- US President Donald Trump's surprise acceptance of an invitation to meet with N.Korean leader KJU in Pyongyang "by May" to discuss ending the NK's threatening nuclear program was met with a mixture of cautious optimism and skepticism. (VOA)
- President Trump has agreed to meet with N.Korean leader KJU for talks by the end of May, an extraordinary development following months of heightened nuclear tension during which the two leaders exchanged frequent military threats and insults. (Anna Fifield, David Nakamura, Seung Min Kim, WaPo)

- President Donald Trump has agreed to meet with N.Korean leader KJU by May, the White House and the S.Korean national security adviser said Thurs. evening. (Jeremy Diamond, CNN)
- US President Donald Trump agreed to meet N.Korean leader KJU because Kim is the ultimate decision-maker in his country, a senior administration official said on Thurs. (Reuters)
- Very little is known about US President Donald Trump's plans to meet with N.Korean leader KJU except that the historic moment will happen before May. There's no word on who will attend the meeting, other than the two leaders and where the meeting will be held. (Ben Westcott, CNN)
- Trump's acceptance to meet KJU is especially surprising given the insults that the two have fired at each other. Here are some of the most notable things Mr. Trump and Mr. Kim have said about each other. (Matt Stevens, NYT)
- SK has announced a major breakthrough in tensions on the Korean peninsula as senior officials who recently met KJU passed a message from him to US President Donald Trump, in which he asked for talks and committed to giving up NK's nuclear weapons. This article from the BBC contains the statement delivered by SK's national security chief Chung Eui-yong in full. (BBC)
- When SK's national security adviser stood on the front lawn of the White House and delivered the news that NK's KJU and US President Donald Trump would meet by May, a piece of history was made. But analyst Ankit Panda's dissection of that moment and the extraordinary statement shows that all may not be as it seems. (BBC)
- N.Korean leader KJU has invited Donald Trump to meet him, an invitation the US leader has said he will accept. The shock announcement was made by senior S.Korean officials in Washington, who passed on a letter from the N.Korean leader. They said KJU had also agreed to halt nuclear and missile tests and was "committed to denuclearization". (BBC)
- One of President Trump's biggest foreign policy wins as president came back in August when the UN Security Council voted unanimously, including frequent holdouts China and Russia, to impose new sanctions on NK. More sanctions soon followed, as did a thawing of relations between NK and SK at the recent S.Korean Olympic Games. And through it all, Trump has gotten credit for real progress on the NK threat, including from some critics. Now Trump is jumping headlong into the situation—and with little guarantee of continued success. (Aaron Blake, WaPo)
- Richard Wolffe believes that there is one clear thing about this "half-baked idea": "Trump is more likely to spill his guts about classified intelligence than he is to get the upper hand with any kind of meaningful deal." (Richard Wolffe, Guardian)
- US President Donald Trump said he will meet N.Korean leader KJU by May for talks about denuclearization, according to S.Korean President Moon's special envoy. (Sarah Kim, Joongang Daily)
- US President Trump has agreed to meet with N.Korean leader KJU "by May" to discuss ending the NK's threatening nuclear program. NK's openness to talks has been received with a mix of cautious optimism and skepticism, and it is unclear that the US and NK can agree what the goal of the denuclearization talks should be. (Brian Padden, VOA)

- President Donald Trump will accept an invitation to meet N.Korean leader KJU at a place and time to be determined, White House spokeswoman Sarah Sanders said on Thurs. (Reuters)
- For the moment, at least, it appears to be a clear-cut victory—the biggest foreign policy win of his young administration. President Trump has brought his arch-nemesis, N.Korean leader KJU, a.k.a. "Little Rocket Man," to the table to negotiate away his nuclear arsenal. (Karen DeYoung, WaPo)
- Shocking and yet somehow not surprising, Trump's decision to do what no other sitting president has done and meet in person with a N.Korean leader reflects an audacious and supremely self-confident approach to international affairs. Trump has repeatedly claimed that he can achieve what has eluded every other occupant of his office through the force of his own personality. So far, he has little to show for that. (Peter Baker, NYT)
- President Trump's high-wire gambit to accept a meeting with N.Korean leader KJU sets off a scramble among US officials to assemble a team capable of supporting a historic summit of longtime adversaries and determine a viable engagement strategy. (Paul Sonne, John Hudson, WaPo)
- President Trump has agreed to meet KJU, a decision that reportedly surprised US diplomats and set about a preparation panic. Suddenly, we have an unwieldy and bellicose US president set to meet with an unwieldy and bellicose foreign dictator—to discuss nuclear weapons, no less. Nobody knows quite what to expect. But here's what we can say about Trump's brand of diplomacy, based upon evidence. (Aaron Blake, WaPo)
- As the White House prepares for what could be the first meeting between a sitting US president and a N.Korean leader, the US and S.Korean militaries will carry out exercises that Pyongyang has long called provocative but now appears to accept. (Dan Lamothe, WaPo)
- The US is not talking about "negotiations" at this point in seeking an unprecedented summit with NK, a senior US official said Fri., adding that it is too early to discuss how to inspect or verify the reclusive state's nuclear program. (Yonhap)
- President Donald Trump accepting a reported offer to meet with N.Korean leader KJU is a stunning turn of events after a year of heated verbal warfare that included crude insults and mutual threats of nuclear attacks and it remains to be seen whether a summit will take place or lead to a meaningful breakthrough. (Associated Press)
- NK has invited President Donald Trump to meet their leader KJU according to a senior US official and a former US senior official. (Jeremy Diamond, CNN)
- If Trump doesn't play his cards wisely, and if his decision to accept KJU's summit offer was as hasty as the details out in public now suggest, he could risk unnecessarily elevating KJU's global status, setting up a diplomatic breakdown, and rushing other—possibly military—action to make up for it. (Eric Talmadge, AP)
- The unanswered question going forward is what the US is willing to put on the table for a negotiation. In years of dealing with North Korea, I have learned that the regime never gives anything away for free. (Victor Cha, NYT)
- The White House says President Donald Trump has accepted an invitation to talks from N.Korean dictator KJU, but that all sanctions against NK will stay in place. (Ken Schwartz, VOA)

- President Trump hasn't given Congress a lot to feel confident about lately, especially when it comes to dealmaking. Republicans are vehemently opposed to the tariffs he just announced on steel and aluminum imports, and Democrats blame Trump's inability to make a decision on a recent "dreamer" deal falling apart. But on one of Trump's most consequential and risky dealmaking endeavors yet, direct talks with the nuclear-armed pariah state of NK, Congress seems to be cautiously optimistic that Trump can handle it. (Amber Phillips, WaPo)
- The Post reported that NK's belligerent leader, KJU, has asked President Trump for talks and Trump has agreed to meet him "by May," SK's national security adviser said at the White House Thurs. after delivering the invitation to the US president. Some analysts say that Kim is suddenly interested in talks because the sanctions are beginning to hurt and because he is genuinely afraid of US military strikes. But others say that he's feeling more confident than ever. In November, KJU declared that he had "completed" his missile program and is now ready to deal with the US—on an equal footing, as nuclear state to nuclear state. (Jennifer Rubin, WaPo)
- KJU's meeting with S.Korean officials in Pyongyang earlier this week has given a rare insight into the N.Korean leader's style and hospitality. Should he find himself in Pyongyang, Trump, who has spent the last year insulting Kim, could add to the jovial atmosphere. (Euan McKirdy, Jungeun Kim, CNN)
- As Trump accepts an offer from KJU to discuss the country's nuclear program, another fear is looming: that Trump might offer concessions that the North's Asian neighbors would find unpalatable, or, if the talks fail, resort to a military option. (Mokoto Rich, NYT)

Prepared by Jinny Ahn, HRNK Research Intern

——————————————————

Saturday, March 10, 2018

Talks with North Korea are a zero-sum game. Here's how to play it.; Little Rocket Man's Great Big Summit Scam; Human Rights Questions Loom Over Possible US-North Korea Summit

Top News:

Talks with North Korea are a zero-sum game. Here's how to play it. (Washington Post, 03/09/2018)
Little Rocket Man's Great Big Summit Scam (PJ Media, 03/09/2018)

In North Korea:

[Photo] North Korean real estate market opening as authorities eye bribe proceeds (*Daily*NK, 03/10/2018)
[Video] North Korean customers demanding change in dollars and yuan for small purchases (*Daily*NK, 03/10/2018)

He Had the Treasonous Uncle Killed, but He Forgave the Disloyal Chef (NYTimes, 03/09/2018)
N. Korea's state media continues usual confrontational tactics despite possible summit with U.S. (Yonhap, 03/10/2018)
North Korean foreign minister to visit Sweden, Swedish newspaper says (Reuters, 03/09/2018)
North Korean state media quiet on Kim Jong Un's overtures to Trump (Reuters, 03/09/2018)
Plumes Seen at Plutonium Plant May Belie Kim's Disarmament Talk (NYTimes, 03/09/2018)
Soju and jokes: how 'rocket man' Kim boosted chances of meeting Trump (Guardian, 03/09/2018)
Why Making North Korea Nuclear-Free Will Be So Hard (NYTimes, 03/09/2018)

In South Korea:
S. Korean Foreign Minister to visit U.S. next week to discuss N.K. issues (Yonhap, 03/10/2018)

International:
A Trump 'deal' with Kim Jong-un would only help a despicable regime survive (Guardian, 03/09/2018)
Australia must retain sanctions on North Korea, Turnbull says (Guardian, 03/09/2018)
Commentary: What critics of North Korea summit get wrong (Reuters, 03/09/2018)
Damage control at White House to reverse Trump's stunning blunder (Washington Post, 03/09/2018)
Defense hawks aren't sure what to make of Trump's North Korea meeting (CNN, 03/09/2018)
Dennis Rodman on Trump-Kim meeting: I said doors would open (Guardian, 03/09/2018)
Donald Trump to meet Kim Jong-un: President says 'deal very much in the making' after day of mixed messages (Telegraph, 03/10/2018)
Envoy gave Trump 'special message' from Kim: official (Yonhap, 03/10/2018)
Hidden Risks Seen in Trump's High-Stakes Decision to Meet With Kim Jong Un (VOA, 03/09/2018)
How the last attempt at peace talks with North Korea made the situation worse (Telegraph, 03/09/2018)
How South Korea triggered Trump's flip from 'fire and fury' to 'call me maybe' (CNN, 03/09/2018)
How would Trump negotiate with 'little rocket man'? Here's what we know (CNN, 03/09/2018)
Human Rights Questions Loom Over Possible US-North Korea Summit (VOA, 03/09/2018)
In state media, China presents itself as crucial to U.S.-North Korea talks (Reuters, 03/10/2018)
In Trump's decision on North Korea, the world glimpses a president who is his own diplomat, negotiator and strategist (Washington Post, 03/09/2018)
Long sought by North Korea, summit holds risks for Trump administration(Reuters, 03/09/2018)
Neutral ground or dramatic backdrop? Where Donald Trump and Kim Jong-un could meet (Telegraph, 03/09/2018)
Olive branch may beat big stick when it comes to North Korea (CNN, 03/09/2018)
Planning Begins for Kim Jong-un Meeting Some Trump Aides Believe Will Never Happen(NYTimes, 03/09/2018)
President Trump's North Korea Gamble (NYTimes, 03/09/2018)
Republican candidate's North Korea experience may not be all he claims (Guardian, 03/10/2018)
Russia's Lavrov says a Trump-Kim meeting step in right direction (Reuters, 03/09/2018)
Search is on for the best summit site for Trump, Kim (Washington Post, 03/10/2018)
Showman Trump abandons cautious Obama approach to North Korea (Reuters, 03/09/2018)
South Korean envoy gave Trump 'special message' from Kim (Korea Times, 03/10/2018)

The big unknown in a Trump-Kim meeting? Location, location, location. (Washington Post, 03/09/2018)
The deal Trump mustn't make with North Korea (CNN, 03/09/2018)
The White House sounds like it might have cold feet about Trump meeting Kim Jong Un(Washington Post, 03/09/2018)
This isn't the first time Pyongyang has flirted with denuclearization (CNN, 03/09/2018)
Tillerson Says N. Korea Talks Trump's Idea, Downplays Exclusion of State Department (VOA, 03/09/2018)
Top S. Korea, U.S. security advisers meet over Trump-Kim summit (Yonhap, 03/10/2018)
Trump-Kim summit fans Japan fears of being sidelined on North Korea (Reuters, 03/09/2018)
Trump-Kim talks: US signals hardline stance as it scrambles to define position (Guardian, 03/09/2018)
Trump, Xi commit to dialogue, denuclearization: White House (Reuters, 03/09/2018)
Trump is right to negotiate with North Korea. But he needs a plan. (Washington Post, 03/09/2018)
Trump isn't the first US President to get a North Korean invite. But he's the first to accept. (CNN, 03/09/2018)
Trump promised this kind of presidency — unpredictable, ad hoc and impulsive (Washington Post, 03/10/2018)
Trump says China's Xi approves of his North Korea strategy (Washington Post, 03/10/2018)
Trump will meet with Kim Jong Un. Nixon and Reagan have some advice. (Washington Post, 03/09/2018)
U.S. demands 'concrete actions' before summit with N. Korea (Yonhap, 03/10/2018)
U.S. made 'zero concessions' to get North Korea to seek talks: Pence (Reuters, 03/09/2018)
US Military, Intel Officials Cautious About N. Korean Overtures (VOA, 03/09/2018)
US President Trump Agrees to Summit With North Korea's Kim (RFA, 03/09/2018)
White House: 'Concrete Steps' Must Precede Any Trump, Kim Meeting (VOA, 03/09/2018)
White House puts an asterisk on Trump, Kim Jong Un meeting (CNN, 03/09/2018)
White House says Trump-Kim meeting contingent on 'concrete, verifiable actions' by Pyongyang (Washington Post, 03/09/2018)
White House sends mixed messages on talks with North Korea (Washington Post, 03/09/2018)
Xi says appreciates Trump's desire to resolve North Korea issue politically (Reuters, 03/09/2018)

Top News:

- HRNK founding member and board member, Dr. Nicholas Eberstadt, analyzes talks with NK as a "zero-sum game" in this Washington Post opinion article. He outlines and discusses the standard N.Korean negotiation tactics, which include agenda control, disappearance of the agreement, redefinition of key terms, and no "win-win" solutions. He follows it up with a few guidelines and general suggestions that could be followed by "Team West" for high-level meetings with NK, including not meeting in Pyongyang, adding its own agenda items, calling out the opposite party for bad faith, no good-faith concessions, and walking away from any bad deals. (Nicholas Eberstadt, Washington Post)
- According to author Claudia Rosett, KJU's plan for a summit, a plan that is now being widely hailed as a historic step forward and a triumph for Trump's campaign of coralling Pyongyang with "maximum pressure" is actually KJU is gaming the mighty US. While she does not discredit the historic nature of the plan, she also warns that there is an enormous hazard that it's a step right into the same old N.Korean trap. (Claudia Rosett, PJ Media)

In North Korea:

- The real estate market in NK is poised for further growth this spring as sources inside the country report that construction companies continue to bribe officials for land permits. As a direct result, the production and sale of construction materials is also on the rise. (Seol Song Ah, DailyNK)
- The use of US dollars and Chinese yuan not only for wholesale but also retail transactions in NK's markets has become so commonplace that most local merchants now believe it is necessary to keep smaller denominations of these currencies on hand at all times, Daily NK's sources report. "People in the markets are now saying, 'When shopping, using foreign currency is the morally right thing to do'" and "attempting to use N.Korean currency when purchasing over 50,000 KPW worth of goods usually elicits verbal abuse from the merchant, who will insist on payment in dollars." (Seol Song Ah, DailyNK)
- KJU remains an enigma. He is thought to have ordered the executions of disloyal subordinates including his own uncle. But a handful of acquaintances including former school friends and family members who defected to the West have offered details of his life that also suggest a more forgiving personality. (Megan Specia, NYTimes)
- Even after a historic announcement that US President Trump will meet N.Korean leader KJU for the first time as a sitting president, Pyongyang continued Sat. to denounce the US for its sanctions and vowed never to bow to the pressure, as an opinion piece appeared Sat. in the Rodong Sinmun stating that the regime won't bow to "military power, sanctions or blockade." (Yonhap)
- N.Korean Foreign Minister Ri Yong Ho will visit Sweden in the near future and meet with his Swedish counterpart, Margot Wallstrom, the Swedish newspaper Dagens Nyheter reported on Fri., citing sources. (Reuters)
- N.Korean leader KJU's sudden overtures to Washington are making headlines around the world. Almost everywhere, it seems, except NK. N.Korean media noted a visit by a senior delegation from SK earlier this week but it appeared to have had no major coverage of Kim's invitation to meet US President Trump or S.Korean President Moon to discuss the future of Pyongyang's nuclear weapons program. (Haejin Choi, Heekyong Yang, Reuters)
- NK appears to be making new nuclear bomb fuel, satellite imagery shows, even as its leader, KJU, has expressed willingness to negotiate atomic disarmament with President Trump. (William J. Broad, NYTimes)
- The rapprochement began with a New Year's speech, when Kim extended an olive branch to SK by offering to send athletes to the winter Olympics in Pyeongchang. Over the next month, officials from the two sides spoke for the first time in more than two years and met to discuss details and logistics, leading to an exchange of envoys from both Pyongyang and Seoul after the conclusion of the Olympic Games. (Benjamin Haas, Guardian)

- Given the size and sophistication of the N.Korean program, it seems insufficient to say simply that the West wants NK to "denuclearize." The N.Koreans have plutonium-producing reactors and a very sophisticated centrifuge program. They were producing so much lithium 6 used in fusion devices that they were selling the excess. Even handing over their existing devices would be a major initiative that would involve many inspectors, compared to the handful that sufficed in South Africa. (Jeremy Bernstein, NYTimes)

In South Korea:

- S.Korean Foreign Minister Kang Kyung-wha will visit the US to meet State Secretary Rex Tillerson, the minister said Sat. In a meeting with Korean reporters in Hanoi, where she is on a three-day visit, Kang said she will meet her US counterpart to learn more details about Korean envoys' visit to Washington earlier this week to extend an invitation by N.Korean leader KJU to US President Trump. (Yonhap)

International:

- The White House says President Trump is ready to meet the supreme leader, KJU, "by May," at a time and location yet to be determined. Whether or not a "deal" emerges within two months, the mere fact of a summit breaks all the rules of diplomacy. It delivers legitimacy–the "face" the N.Koreans crave, as Washington does not recognise the existence of the Democratic People's Republic of North Korea (DPRK). (Jasper Becker, Guardian)
- Australia must continue to rigorously enforce sanctions on NK ahead of what could be a historic summit with the US, Australian prime minister, Malcolm Turnbull, says. (Australian Associated Press)
- Donald Trump has unexpectedly agreed to become the first sitting US president to meet with a leader of NK. The reaction has ranged from cautious optimism to warnings about the inexperience of the Trump administration to flat-out criticism. The criticisms are easily dispelled. (Peter Van Buren, Reuters)
- At the White House press briefing room lectern, press secretary Sarah Huckabee Sanders essentially walked back President Trump's promise of unconditional talks with KJU by the end of May. She insisted that before such talks can occur—Trump never mentioned any conditions—NK would need to take "verifiable" steps to denuclearize. (Jennifer Rubin, Washington Post)
- Republican defense hawks are watching closely as President Donald Trump prepares to meet with N.Korean leader KJU, an unprecedented meeting that could redefine the future of US-NK relations for decades to come. On Capitol Hill, the reviews from defense hawks were cautious, mixed and in some cases non-existent. After a year of tough talk, Trump, who before entering the White House had little foreign policy experience, will be sitting down in one of the most politically fraught discussions of his presidency and some hawks warn Trump needs ground rules first. (Lauren Fox, CNN)
- The former NBA star Dennis Rodman–the only prominent American who has met KJU–has said he knew the doors between NK and the US would open one day. (Guardian)

- Donald Trump insisted a deal with NK was "very much in the making" on Fri., after a day of mixed messages about a proposed meeting between the US president and KJU. This comes after White House's response of maintaining “maximum pressure” on NK as it tried to swat away criticism that the US was getting nothing in exchange for agreeing to a historic face-to-face summit. (Nick Allen, Julian Ryall, Nicola Smith, Rob Crilly, Chris Graham, Neil Connor, Telegraph)
- A S.Korean envoy gave US President Donald Trump a "special message" from N.Korean leader KJU in addition to his invitation to a summit, a senior official said Fri. (Yonhap)
- As President Donald Trump embarks on an unprecedented diplomatic mission to end NK’s nuclear program, he faces complex, unresolved issues, according to former US officials and analysts who have dealt with NK extensively. (Jenny Lee, VOA)
- The US and NK have agreed to a first meeting of their respective leaders and announced plans for talks that could, in a best-case outcome, bring peace and security to north-east Asia. History suggests, however, that numerous hurdles still need to be overcome–and many of them are very high. (Julian Ryall, Telegraph)
- President Donald Trump's stunning decision to meet with NK's despotic leader, KJU, might have originated in his administration's campaign to squeeze the country economically and diplomatically, but it was triggered by some deft diplomatic maneuvering by SK. (Nicole Gaouette, Elise Labott, CNN)
- It is incredible that the US President would so quickly pivot from aggressive catcalls at "little rocket man" KJU and threatening "fire and fury" to accepting an invitation to face-to-face talks. While the stakes of such a meeting cannot be understated, it's actually not that surprising in the context of Trump's negotiating tactics, although his track record as Presidential negotiator makes this gamble all the more frightening. (Z. Bryan Wolf, CNN)
- The announced talks between US President Donald Trump and N.Korean leader KJU have been broadly welcomed following years of tension over NK's nuclear weapons and missile programs. Less clear is how such a meeting could affect human rights in NK, which has one of the world's most oppressive governments. (VOA)
- China helped bring about a dramatic easing of tensions between the US and NK, according state media outlets, adding evidence that the government sees itself as a central player in any agreement despite largely sitting on the sidelines so far. (Ben Blanchard, Reuters)
- Trump’s personal involvement in the White House’s deliberations over the world’s most serious and vexing security situation has placed a president who considers himself a master dealmaker into the most fraught faceoff of his 71 years. A breakthrough that would reduce Pyongyang’s nuclear threat would be a legacy-defining achievement. A stalemate that gives KJU a photo op for nothing in return could fracture US alliances and be seen as a devastating embarrassment. (David Nakamura, Anne Gearan, Washington Post)
- For at least two decades, leaders in NK have been seeking a personal meeting with an US president. Now, as a summit unexpectedly appears possible, analysts fear US President Donald Trump’s understaffed administration may lack the expertise to successfully turn a political spectacle long sought by Pyongyang into a meaningful opportunity to convince NK to abandon its nuclear program. (Josh Smith, David Brunnstrom, Reuters)

- Donald Trump and KJU caught the world by surprise with the sensational announcement that the pair are to hold unprecedented talks. And now attention has shifted to where the most intensely-watched political event for years will be held. (Neil Connor, Telegraph)
- President Trump's agreement to meet with KJU is a moment for all Americans as his big stick has become something of an olive branch. (John Kirby, CNN)
- A day after President Trump accepted an invitation to meet KJU of NK, the White House began planning on Friday a high-level diplomatic encounter so risky and seemingly far-fetched that some of Mr. Trump's aides believe it will never happen. (Mark Landler, NYTimes)
- Most experts are extremely skeptical that KJU will agree to a bargain in which he verifiably gives up nuclear weapons. The White House says Kim has committed to denuclearize, but that may be on unacceptable terms that NK has previously proposed: You Americans end your alliance with SK and pull your troops, and we'll proceed with denuclearization (presumably on a nonverifiable basis). And while the White House says the US made no concessions, the summit is itself the concession. The summit also raises the stakes, so a failure could trigger angry new escalations on each side, leaving us worse off than where we started. (Nicholas Kristof, NYTimes)
- NK rarely plays a prominent role in US congressional elections, but Rick Saccone–the Republican candidate for Congress in Tues.'s crucial special election in Pennsylvania–has made much of his experience in the reclusive country. Saccone, says he negotiated regularly with communist officials; however, others remember it differently. (Benjamin Haas, Ben Jacobs, Guardian)
- Russia believes that a possible meeting between US President Donald Trump and N.Korean leader KJU "is a step in the right direction", foreign minister Sergei Lavrov told reporters while on a visit to Ethiopia. (Reuters)
- The question of a suitable location for President Donald Trump and KJU to meet for their first face-to-face talks is a question that has crackled through the diplomatic and government circles Fri. The Demilitarized Zone between NK and SK is one possibility. Sweden has also offered to help, and there is always neutral Geneva, Switzerland. Someplace in Asia, such as Beijing also has not been ruled out, and there is always the possibility of a ship in international waters. (Laurie Kellman, AP)
- When former President Barack Obama counseled his successor Donald Trump on the global threats he should expect to face once he assumed office last year, a nuclear NK and its unpredictable leader were at the top of the list. But while the meticulous Obama practiced caution in handling KJU, the blustery Trump succumbed to his own penchant for reality TV showmanship, culminating with his shock decision on Thurs. to agree to meet with NK's leader and become the first sitting U.S president to do so. (Steve Holland, Jeff Mason, Reuters)
- There was more to N.Korean leader KJU's invitation to a summit for US President Donald Trump, as the S.Korean government's senior official said Fri., as S.Korean envoy Chung Eli-Young slipped Trump a "special message" from Kim. (Ko Dong-hwan, Korea Times)
- One of the simplest elements in the plan may be one of the most important—location, which can be key factor in negotiations. Some countries such as Sweden and Switzerland are already vying for the opportunity to host, while former Mongolian president Tsakhiagiin

Elbegdorj suggested that his was the most "suitable, neutral territory." (Adam Taylor, Washington Post)

- If America's allies in SK were already worried that President Donald Trump was about to unleash fire and fury like the world has never seen in their neighborhood, they will find the latest news of Trump's head-snapping reversal on NK far from soothing. (Frida Ghitis, CNN)
- Apparently President Trump's commitment to meet with KJU was to be taken seriously, not necessarily literally. Appearing at the daily White House briefing Fri., press secretary Sarah Huckabee Sanders suggested the meeting was not a done deal after all. She seemed to retroactively attach denuclearization preconditions to the whole thing. But the original agreement, as outlined by the S.Koreans, was only that Kim would halt nuclear and missile tests while talks were underway. They said Kim was "committed to denuclearization," but they did not say he would denuclearize before the meeting as a precondition. (Aaron Blake, Washington Post)
- Along with the stunning announcement that US President Donald Trump and N.Korean leader KJU will meet came the news that Kim offered to put his country's nuclear and missile program on the table. However, this is hardly the first time Pyongyang has talked about freezing or ending its pursuit of nuclear weapons. In the past three decades, leaders of the hermit state have expressed willingness to engage in some form of denuclearization. (Joe Sterling, CNN)
- US Secretary of State Rex Tillerson, who is on the other side of the world on a week-long Africa tour, says President Donald Trump's decision to hold talks with N.Korean leader KJU came from Trump himself, but he downplayed any suggestion that the State Department was blindsided by the announcement. (Cindy Saine, VOA)
- SK's national security adviser met with his US counterpart Fri. to discuss preparations for an unprecedented summit between US President Donald Trump and N.Korean leader KJU. (Yonhap)
- US President Donald Trump's agreement to meet NK's leader looked likely to fan Japanese angst over being sidelined, although Prime Minister Shinzo Abe said on Fri. there was no diplomatic daylight between Tokyo and Washington. (Linda Sieg, Nobuhiro Kubo, Reuters)
- Donald Trump will take a hardline position at his planned summit with the N.Korean leader KJU, the White House said on Fri., as US officials scrambled to keep pace with the president after his sudden acceptance of Kim's offer to talk. (Julian Borger, David Smith, Guardian)
- US President Donald Trump and Chinese President Xi Jinping welcomed the prospect of dialogue with NK in a telephone call, the White House said on Fri., after Trump accepted an invitation to meet with NK's leader. (Reuters)
- President Trump is right to pursue negotiations with NK, but his sudden decision to accept an unprecedented summit with compounds the already high probability of failure. The administration's best course would be to use the coming weeks to hold preliminary talks with the Kim regime that make clear US expectations and place the summit on firmer ground. If it becomes evident that NK is unwilling to commit to a freeze on its nuclear and missile activities, or will make excessive demands in exchange, Mr. Trump can step back. What he should not do is walk blindly into an encounter with a dictator who, we can be sure, will be well-prepared to take advantage of this president's well-known weaknesses—starting with his penchant for impulsive decisions. (The Editorial Board, Washington Post)

- No US president has agreed to sit down with a N.Korean leader–until now. Just by showing up to see KJU, Trump would give his murderous dynasty what it has always craved–the prestige and propaganda coup of a meeting of equals with the President of the US. (Stephen Collinson, CNN)
- Negotiations with NK present a different series of challenges and risks. The spur-of-the-moment decision to accept Kim's offer for talks must give way to a far more orderly and deliberate process of preparation before the two leaders sit down with one another. The president's national security advisers will have to play catch-up, at a time the administration has lost some key officials whose expertise would be valuable right now. And though the announcement said the meeting would take place by May, there is not yet a fixed date. (Dan Balz, Washington Post)
- President Donald Trump says China is glad he's seeking a diplomatic solution to the N.Korean crisis rather than "going with the ominous alternative." (Associated Press)
- On Thurs. it was announced that President Trump has accepted an offer to meet with N.Korean leader KJU. Will it be Munich 2.0 where the evil man with the evil ambitions cons the world? Or will it be a "reverse Munich," where Trump sits down to explain in his inimitable style that it's his way or no highway, for KJU, including no infrastructure left standing near any weapons site or any of Kim's many palaces and hideaways? Whatever Trump's approach, he can learn from his predecessors in the Oval Office, Ronald Reagan and Richard Nixon. (Hugh Hewitt, Washington Post)
- The US said Fri. that NK must take "concrete actions" to demonstrate its commitment to denuclearize in order to realize a summit with US President Trump. (Yonhap)
- The US made "zero concessions" and "consistently increased the pressure" on N.Korean leader KJU, US Vice President Mike Pence said on Fri., one day after US President Donald Trump agreed to meet with Kim. (Reuters)
- US President Donald Trump's decision to sit down for talks with N.Korean leader KJU came as no surprise to top US military officials, though they are wary of setting any expectations. (Jeff Seldin, VOA)
- US President Donald Trump has agreed to meet with NK's leader KJU in what would mark the first summit between the two countries' heads of state since the end of the Korean War nearly 65 years ago. (Hee Jung Yang, Joshua Lipes, RFA)
- The White House on Fri. emphasized that the US had made "zero concessions" in agreeing to face-to-face talks between President Trump and N.Korean leader KJU. (Steve Herman, Peggy Chang, VOA)
- President Trump will not meet with N.Korean leader KJU unless NK unless North Korea takes "concrete and verifiable actions" toward denuclearization, White House press secretary Sarah Sanders said Fri. (Jeremy Diamond, CNN)
- President Trump will insist on "concrete, verifiable actions" from NK before holding a promised summit with N.Korean leader KJU, the White House said Fri., adding conditions and a note of skepticism to the buoyant mood that surrounded the surprise announcement the night before. (Anne Gearan, Washington Post)
- The White House on Fri. sent confusing messages about the prospects for a historic meeting between President Trump and N.Korean leader KJU, raising questions about a summit announced less than 24 hours earlier. (Carol Morello, John Hudson, Washington Post)

- Chinese President Xi Jinping told US President Donald Trump on Fri. that he appreciates his desire to resolve the NK issue politically, state media said. (Reuters)

Prepared by Jinny Ahn, HRNK Research Intern

——————————————————

Sunday, March 11, 2018

N.K. is willing to dismantle nukes; Trump believes N.K. will keep word on missile tests; JSA is a likely option for U.S.-N.K. summit

In North Korea:
N. Korea says its nuclear power status laid foundation to focus on economic development (Yonhap, 03/11/2018)

In South Korea:
(3rd LD) Moon's security adviser returns home from Washington (Yonhap, 03/11/2018)
After visiting North Korea, South Korea officials to meet China, Japan leaders (Reuters, 03/11/2018)
Business owners hope inter-Korean Kaesong Complex will soon resume operations (UPI, 03/11/2018)
JSA is a likely option for U.S.-N.K. summit: S. Korean official (Yonhap, 03/11/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
Kim is willing to dismantle nukes, South Korea says (Joongang Ilbo, 03/11/2018)
Tread carefully (Joongang Ilbo, 03/11/2018)
What is behind Kim's denuclearization offer? (Korea Times, 03/11/2018)

International:
Defense secretary says questions on meeting between U.S., North Korea should be handled by State Department (WaPo, 03/11/2018)
GOP Sen. Johnson: Trump must keep pressure on NK ahead of talks (CNN, 03/11/2018)
Japan offers to pay £2m for inspections of North Korea nuclear facilities (Telegraph, 03/11/2018)
JSA is a likely option for U.S.-N.K. summit: S. Korean official (Yonhap, 03/11/2018)
Mattis goes silent on North Korea ahead of Trump-Kim meeting (Reuters, 03/11/2018)
Mattis says US-North Korea diplomacy is at delicate stage (WaPo, 03/11/2018)
The Latest: US officials say no added conditions for NKorea (WaPo, 03/11/2018)
The Observer view on talks between Donald Trump and Kim Jong-un (Guardian, 03/11/2018)
The 3 big obstacles to success if Donald Trump and Kim Jong Un meet (WaPo, 03/11/2018)
Trump believes North Korea will keep word on missile tests (WaPo, 03/10/2018)
Trump on Olympics: 'Hard to sell tickets when you think you're going to be nuked' (CNN, 03/10/2018)
Trump Says He Believes North Korean Leader Ready to 'Make Peace' (VOA, 03/10/2018)

Trump says North Korea talks could fail or bring 'greatest deal' (Reuters, 03/11/2018)
Trump talks with North Korea not just 'theater,' CIA chief Pompeo says (Reuters, 03/11/2018)

In North Korea:

- An N.K. academic paper released late last year showed that Pyongyang believes that its "nuclear weapons status" will allow the country to fully devote itself to economic development going forward. (Yonhap)

In South Korea:

- S.K. President Moon's top security adviser returned home from the US on Sunday after sharing the results of his recent visit to N.K. with Washington officials. (Yonhap)
- Two senior S.K. officials who met with KJU last week will split up to visit the leaders of China and Japan this week to update them on the talks. (Christine Kim, Reuters)
- S.Korean business owners are hoping the April summit between Seoul and Pyongyang will lead to the reopening of the Kaesong Industrial Complex. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- The Joint Security Area (JSA) of Panmunjeom, located on the demarcation line separating the two Koreas, is one of the likely venues for the agreed-upon summit between Trump and KJU. (Yonhap)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- KJU promised dismantlement of his country's nuclear weapons program - not merely a freeze - when he met with S.K. envoys last week in Pyongyang, according to multiple government sources. (Ser Myo-ja, Joongang Ilbo)
- Despite the stunning relational developments between S.K. and N.K., Moon must be careful. The government approach to inter-Korean affairs still has to be as careful as handling glass. (Joongang Ilbo)
- N.K. is likely to demand that the U.S. withdraws its troops from S.K. in return for Pyongyang giving up its nuclear weapons, according to a former special adviser to the U.S. State Department. (Kim Jae-kyoung, Korea Times)

International:

- Mattis said that he does not want to talk about the Korean Peninsula "at all" at this time, underscoring the sensitivity with which he believes Washington must handle a potential meeting between Trump and KJU. (Dan Lamothe, WaPo)
- Republican Sen. Ron Johnson said Sunday that President Trump must continue to ratchet up pressure on N.K. to denuclearize, even as the two countries prepare to meet for talks. (Maegan Vazquez, CNN)

- Japan will provide Y300 million (£2.03 million) to fund inspections by the International Atomic Energy Agency of N.K.'s nuclear facilities if Pyongyang follows through with its vow to scrap its arsenal of atomic weapons. (Julian Ryall, Telegraph)
- The Joint Security Area (JSA) of Panmunjeom, located on the demarcation line separating the two Koreas, is one of the likely venues for the agreed-upon summit between Trump and KJU. (Yonhap)
- U.S. Defense Secretary Jim Mattis said he will not publicly discuss issues related to N.K., deferring to diplomats and the White House, ahead of a proposed meeting Trump and KJU. (Phil Stewart, Reuters)
- U.S. Defense Secretary Jim Mattis said the diplomatic push to solve the N.K. nuclear weapons crisis was at such a delicate stage that he won't publicly discuss the talks or related issues such as U.S.-ROK military exercises. (Robert Burns, AP)
- Trump administration said there will be no more conditions imposed on N.K. before a first-ever meeting of the two nation's leaders beyond the North's promise not to resume nuclear testing and missile flights, or publicly criticize U.S.-ROK military exercises. (AP)
- Trump seemingly has taken KJU's bait. Though KJU expressed commitment to denuclearization, such pattern has been repeated several times in the past. The more N.K. shows signs of cooperation, the more it will demand from the S.K. and the US. (Guardian)
- Three big obstacles to the success of Trump-KJU meeting could be credibility gaps, expectation gaps on the rules of engagement, and desired outcome gaps. (Patricia Kim, WaPo)
- Trump said Saturday he believes N.K. will abide by its pledge to suspend missile tests while he prepares for a summit by May with the North's leader, KJU. (AP)
- President Trump on Saturday claimed S.K. President Moon credited him with the success of the 2018 Winter Olympic Games and threw out a line about the N.K. nuclear threat. (Eli Watkins, CNN)
- Trump said Saturday that he believed N.K. was ready "to make peace" after its leader, KJU, declared his willingness to meet the U.S. president. (Steve Herman, VOA)
- Trump said that his planned meeting with KJU could fizzle without an agreement or it could result in "the greatest deal for the world" to ease nuclear tensions between the two countries. (Steve Holland, Reuters)
- CIA Director Mike Pompeo said on Sunday an upcoming meeting between Trump and KJU is not just for show. The US expects N.K. to halt all nuclear and missile testing in advance of any meeting. (Pete Schroeder, Doina Chiacu, Reuters)

Prepared by James Park, HRNK Research Intern

——————————————————

Monday, March 12, 2018

North Korea silent on meeting with Donald Trump; Human Rights in N. Korea Must Not Be Held Hostage to Security Concerns

In North Korea:
Calm Before the Storm? North Korea Still Mum on Trump Summit (NYT, 03/12/2018)
International Women's Day Meeting Held (NK Leadership Watch, 03/12/2018)
Kim's domestic moves watched (Joongang Ilbo, 03/12/2018)
North Korea Defies the World With Nuclear Ambitions: QuickTake (WaPo, 03/11/2018)
North Korea silent on meeting with Donald Trump (Telegraph, 03/12/2018)
North Korean media hasn't reported summits with Seoul, U.S. (UPI, 03/12/2018)
'No response' yet from North Korea on talks with the US (BBC, 03/12/2018)
PPJ Visits N. Hamyo'ng (NK Leadership Watch, 03/12/2018)

In South Korea:
Main opposition cautions against 'rosy' expectations about U.S.-N.K. summit (Yonhap, 03/12/2018)
Moon says next two months critical to peace, denuclearization (Yonhap, 03/12/2018)
Most South Koreans welcome North Korea's change of heart but 64 percent doubt sincerity (UPI, 03/11/2018)
N.Korea seen "cautious" in announcing stance over upcoming summits -Seoul (Reuters, 03/11/2018)
S. Koreans welcome N. Korea's peace overtures, but are skeptical of its denuclearization commitment (Yonhap, 03/12/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
Business owners hope inter-Korean Kaesong Complex will soon resume operations (UPI, 03/11/2018)
North Korean Defector Hits Paralympic Ice for South Korea (VOA, 03/12/2018)

International:
(LEAD) 'Difficult' negotiations lie ahead for defense cost sharing deal with U.S.: envoy(Yonhap, 03/12/2018)
(LEAD) N.K. apparently cautious in reporting planned summits with S. Korea, U.S.: Seoul (Yonhap, 03/12/2018)
(3rd LD) Xi: China, S. Korea should bolster communication over N. Korea developments(Yonhap, 03/12/2018)
A Nobel pursuit (Joongang Ilbo, 03/12/2018)
Arrogance, ego at play in Donald Trump, Kim Jong Un meeting (UPI, 03/12/2018)
China supports current diplomatic efforts to resolve N.K. nuke issues (Yonhap, 03/12/2018)
China's Xi says looks forward to smooth U.S.-North Korea talks (Reuters, 03/12/2018)
Cost-sharing talks finish first round in Hawaii (Joongang Ilbo, 03/12/2018)
Envoys of S. Korean leader head to Japan, China on outcome of N. Korea visit (Yonhap, 03/12/2018)
Factbox: The three Americans imprisoned by North Korea (Reuters, 03/11/2018)
Human Rights in N. Korea Must Not Be Held Hostage to Security Concerns (VOA, 03/12/2018)
Hurdles and Hopes Ahead as Trump and Kim Plan to Meet: QuickTake (WaPo, 03/12/2018)
In uncharted waters (Joongang Ilbo, 03/12/2018)
Japan Foreign Minister Says Korean Peninsula Situation Is a Near 'Miracle': South Korea(NYT, 03/12/2018)

Japan, South Korea Agree to Maintain 'Maximum Pressure' on North Korea: Minister (NYT, 03/12/2018)
North Korean 'caution' seen in announcing stance on upcoming summits: Seoul (Reuters, 03/11/2018)
North Korea Nuclear Deal Would Require Major US Concession Too (VOA, 03/12/2018)
Not just theater: U.S. officials defend Trump-Kim meeting (Reuters, 03/11/2018)
Proving a strong alliance (Joongang Ilbo, 03/12/2018)
S. Korean FM Kang to meet Tillerson in Washington this week (Yonhap, 03/12/2018)
South Korea moves to ease Chinese jitters over US-North Korea talks (CNN, 03/12/2018)
South Korea Praises China's Role in North Nuclear Talks (VOA, 03/12/2018)
Talk of Trump-Kim summit raises hopes for son of detained American (Reuters, 03/11/2018)
Tending to the neighbors (Joongang Ilbo, 03/12/2018)
Tillerson Cuts Short Africa Trip to Deal with North Korea (VOA, 03/12/2018)
Trump's condition for Kim meeting is no nuclear, missile test: Mnuchin (Reuters, 03/11/2018)
Trump knew of Kim's invitation well in advance (Joongang Ilbo, 03/12/2018)
Trump-North Korea meeting: US 'knows the risks', says spy chief (BBC, 03/12/2018)
Trump to meet Kim as long as promises kept: White House (Yonhap, 03/11/2018)
U.N. investigator: human rights must be part of any talks with North Korea (Reuters, 03/12/2018)
US Officials: NKorea Will Face No More Conditions for Talks (NYT, 03/12/2018)
US Vows No Concessions to North Korea Ahead of Trump-Kim Talks (VOA, 03/11/2018)
What the heck will happen at the Trump-Kim summit? (WaPo, 03/12/2018)
Where Might Trump and Kim Jong-un Meet? Here Are Some Possibilities (NYT, 03/12/2018)
Will Trump's North Korea gamble actually pay off? (WaPo, 03/12/2018)
With Republicans nervous, more Democrats need to weigh in on ill-conceived Kim meeting(WaPo, 03/12/2018)
Xi Says China, South Korea on the Same Page Over Korean Peninsula Issues: Seoul (NYT, 03/12/2018)
Zakaria: The trouble with Trump's North Korea gambit (CNN, 03/12/2018)

In North Korea:

- News of the planned summit between Trump and KJU sent shockwaves around the globe. But in NK — as of Mon., several days after the announcement — not a word about it had been reported by the state-run media. (AP)
- A central report meeting for International Women's Day was held at the People's Palace of Culture in Pyongyang on March 8. (NK Leadership Watch)
- A big clue as to whether NK will denuclearize could come next month, especially if Pyongyang decides to convene a parliamentary meeting before the Kim-Moon summit. (Jeong Yong-soo, Joongang Ilbo)
- NK isn't your regular totalitarian dictatorship- it's got a ruthless young leader and a nuclear program. It's aggressive rhetoric and regular missile tests, in defiance of UN resolutions, are vexing the international community and pressuring China to rein in its errant neighbor. (Sam Kim, Kanga Kong, Bloomburg)

- NK has yet to respond publicly or privately to the decision by Trump to attend a summit with its leader KJU. (Nicola Smith, Telegraph)
- N. Korean media has refrained from reporting on Pyongyang's upcoming summits with Seoul and Washington, a Seoul official said Mon. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- SK says it has not received a response from Pyongyang on a summit between KJU and Trump. (BBC)
- DPRK state media reported on March 5 that Cabinet Premier and State Affairs Commission Vice Chairman Pak Pong-ju visited metal industry sites in North Hamgyo'ng Province. (NK Leadership Watch)

In South Korea:

- The main opposition Liberty Korea Party (LKP) on Mon. voiced concerns about what it views as unsubstantiated optimism over the planned US-NK summit, pointing to the "impulsive" nature of policy decisions by the leaders of the two countries. (Yonhap)
- Moon called for all-out efforts Mon. to successfully hold rare dialogue with NK over the next two months, calling it an important and also very difficult chance to achieve what the world has failed to do so far. (Yonhap)
- Three in four S. Koreans welcome NK's warmer tone on inter-Korean relations and its willingness to talk about denuclearization with the US. At the same time however, most remain distrustful of the regime's sincerity. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- NK's silence on its upcoming summits with the United States and South Korea is likely due to caution over organizing its stance regarding the meetings, SK's Ministry of Unification said on Monday. (Reuters)
- A majority of S. Koreans welcome NK's peace overtures, but many of them remain skeptical about whether the communist regime has any willingness to give up its nuclear program, a survey showed Mon. (Yonhap)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- S. Korean business owners are hoping the April summit between Seoul and Pyongyang will lead to the reopening of the Kaesong Industrial Complex, the Asia Business Daily reported. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- Now, 17 years after Choi Kwang-hyouk's escape from NK and four years since his first practice on ice, he's living a dream with the S. Korean national team, which aims to clinch the country's first ever Paralympic medal in the sport in the games held at home. (AP)

International:

- The negotiations to renew SK and the US' deal on defense cost sharing are likely to be a "difficult" path, the top S. Korean negotiator said Mon. following the inaugural round of talks last week. (Yonhap)

- NK appears to be remaining prudent with regard to reporting its planned summits with SK and the US, as there has been no official media coverage of them by NK, a Seoul official said Mon. (Yonhap)
- Chinese President Xi Jinping told a visiting S. Korean delegation on Mon. that the two nations should bolster their communication and properly resolve sensitive issues amid a planned summit between Trump and KJU. (Yonhap)
- I am concerned that SK may get caught between the US and NK. Of course, failure will lead to a bigger crisis. I hope that Nobel's belief that strong weapons can bring peace would not return. (Lee Hyun-sang, Joongang Ilbo)
- A meeting that leads nowhere or ends badly will be worse than having no meeting at all. Trump probably feels that his negotiating skills will impress and even overwhelm KJU, relatively immature and youthful protagonist. But arrogance and ego, both of which the Trump possesses in abundance, can be fatal. (Harlan Ulman, UPI)
- A senior Chinese foreign policy advisor said Mon. that NK's nuclear issue should be resolved peacefully, expressing support for the ongoing diplomatic efforts aimed at finding a breakthrough in the nuclear stalemate through dialogue. (Yonhap)
- China is looking forward to smooth talks between the US and NK, President Xi Jinping told the head of SK's National Security Office on Mon., state media said. (Reuters)
- SK and the US wrapped up a first round of discussions for the renewal of a cost-sharing agreement for maintaining American troops in Korea last week and agreed to hold the next meeting in mid-April in what looks to be difficult negotiations. (Sarah Kim, Joongang Ilbo)
- Special envoys of Moon were set to leave for China and Japan on Mon. to explain to their leaders the outcome of the special envoys' monumental trip to NK. (Yonhap)
- A planned summit between Trump and KJU has raised speculation the event could lead to the release of three Americans held by the reclusive state. (Reuters)
- As political tensions on the Korean peninsula appear to be easing, the Special Rapporteur on human rights in the DPRK warns human rights must not be held hostage to security concerns. The rapporteur, who presented his report to the U.N. Human Rights Council, says conditions in NK are dire and must remain a priority. (Lisa Schlein, VOA)
- Trump and KJU have agreed to meet, a prospect that seemed unthinkable when the leaders of the US. and NK were exchanging insults and threats, and NK has even agreed to denuclearize. But more than two decades of nuclear talks have repeatedly broken down. (David Tweed, Kanga Kong, Bloomburg)
- Making a move first and pulling Trump along has been effective but has its risky side. (Wi Sung-lac, Joongang Ilbo)
- The situation on the Korean peninsula is a near "miracle", Japan's foreign minister said on Mon., according to a spokesman of SK's presidential Blue House, referring to a recent breakthrough on talks with NK. (Reuters)
- Japan and SK agreed on Mon. that maximum pressure must be maintained on NK until it takes concrete action toward addressing concerns about its nuclear weapon and missile programs, Japan's foreign minister said. (Reuters)
- NK's silence on its upcoming summits with the US and SK is probably due to caution over organizing its stance on the meetings, SK said on Mon., as China's leader urged patience. (Christine Kim, Reuters)

- The yet to be confirmed summit between Trump and KJU has raised expectations that a major breakthrough in resolving the nuclear crisis on the Korean Peninsula is within reach. However the process to achieve the denuclearization of the Korean Peninsula is complex and will require significant concessions from all involved. (Brian Padden, VOA)
- US officials on Sun. defended Trump's decision to meet with KJU, saying the move was not just for show and not a gift to Pyongyang. (Doina Chiacu, Pete Schroeder, Reuters)
- SK should be exempted from US steel tariffs. Both nations must not let any difference get in the way ahead of the historical inter-Korean and Pyongyang-Washington summit meeting and demonstrate that their alliance is stronger than ever. (Joongang Ilbo)
- S. Korean Foreign Minister Kang Kyung-wha will hold talks with US Secretary of State Rex Tillerson in DC this week to discuss their countries' planned dialogue with NK, the foreign ministry here said Mon. (Yonhap)
- S. Korean officials met with Chinese President Xi Jinping on Mon., as part of an effort to bring jittery regional powers on board with Trump's decision to accept a face-to-face meeting with KJU. (Euan McKirdy, CNN)
- SK's national security adviser on Mon. praised China as having played a role in helping push NK toward new denuclearization talks. (VOA)
- The planned summit between Trump and KJU has raised a California son's hope that a meeting will lead to the release of his father, held nearly a year by the reclusive state, the son said on Sun. (Jon Herskovitz, Reuters)
- SK must draw support for the denuclearization of NK from Russia, China, and Japan. Their cooperation will help improve inter-Korean relations. (Joongang Ilbo)
- Sec of State Rex Tillerson is cutting short his trip to Africa by about a day to deal with pressing matters including NK. (VOA)
- Trump's condition for meeting KJU is that there be no nuclear or missile testing, Treasury Secretary Steve Mnuchin said on Sun. (Reuters)
- Since last year, the US has been aware of NK's intent to resolve the nuclear crisis through a summit, a diplomatic source told the JoongAng Ilbo on Mon., contradicting the idea that Trump impulsively decided to meet with KJU. (Kim Hyun-ki, Ser Myo-ja, Joongang Ilbo)
- CIA director Mike Pompeo has defended Trump's decision to meet KJU, saying the president understands the risks. (BBC)
- Trump will meet with KJU as long as the regime keeps its promises on denuclearization and nuclear and missile tests, a White House official said Sun. (Yonhap)
- Any progress in the nuclear and security dialogue with NK at upcoming summits must be accompanied by discussions on human rights violations, including political prison camps, the UN investigator on the isolated country said on Mon. (Stephanie Nebehay, Reuters)
- Trump administration officials say there will be no more conditions imposed on NK before a first-ever meeting of the two nation's leaders beyond NK's promise not to resume nuclear testing and missile flights or publicly criticize US-SK military exercises. (AP)
- US officials vowed Sun. they would not make any concessions to NK ahead of a planned summit between Trump and KJU and continue to pressure the Pyongyang regime. (Ken Bredemeier, VOA)
- The Trump/KJU summit will probably happen and it's probably going to be a slow-motion disaster. (Daniel W. Drezner, WaPo)

- Among the many questions about a meeting between Trump and KJU is where it might happen. If the two do meet, which some White House officials believe will never happen, they will need a venue suitable for such a historic moment. Here are a few options. (Austin Ramzy, NYT)
- But if Trump isn't careful, the meeting between KJU and himself could fail and send relations down an even more dangerous path. (Amanda Erickson, WaPo)
- Democrats should denounce the president's impetuousness and hunger for acclamation as foolish and dangerous. Democrats should push for firm conditions on any meeting, if the leaders ever need to get together at all. Not even Obama gave the supreme leader in Iran the honor of meeting with the free world. (Jennifer Rubin, WaPo)
- China is "on the same page" with Seoul over the issues of the Korean peninsula, President Xi Jinping said on Mon., a spokesman of SK's presidential Blue House said. (Reuters)
- The potential US-NK summit is a diplomatic breakthrough for NK, but if Trump handles it incorrectly, it leaves little room for further diplomacy. The outcome could actually end up being war. (Fareed Zakaria, CNN)

Prepared by Emma Stubblefield, HRNK Research Intern

——————————————————

Tuesday, March 13, 2018

Stateside—Trump to meet Kim: What Could Go Wrong?; Summit Raises Hope North Korea Will Release 3 US Detainees; Xi, Abe briefed on Seoul's moves

Top News:

Stateside—Trump to meet Kim: What Could Go Wrong? (i24 News, 03/09/2018)

In North Korea:

Defectors: Rape is rite of passage for North Korean women (UPI, 03/13/2018)
Developments in North Korea's electronic payment systems (NK Econ Watch, 03/12/2018)
N.K. media appears to have toned down rhetoric against Trump ahead of summit (Yonhap, 03/13/2018)
New book takes rare, deep look into N. Korean art, Chosonhwa (Yonhap, 03/13/2018)
NK faces no more conditions for talks but yet to contact US (Washington Post, 03/12/2018)
North Korea blasts 'human rights racket' after damning UN report (CNN, 03/13/2018)
North Korea builds monuments to mark famous missile launches (Telegraph, 03/13/2018)

In South Korea:

BOK says a successful Trump-Kim summit would stabilize South Korea financial markets (Reuters, 03/13/2018)

Full disclosure, verification key to North Korea denuclearization: ex-nuke envoys (Yonhap, 03/13/2018)
North Korean defector hits Paralympic ice for South Korea (Washington Post, 03/13/2018)
S. Korea praises China's role in nudging N. Korea to talks (Washington Post, 03/12/2018)
S. Korea signs deal on 90 more Taurus bunker-buster missiles (Yonhap, 03/13/2018)
Seoul preparing to discuss major issues with North Korea in April summit (UPI, 03/13/2018)
South Korea in contract to purchase 90 Taurus missiles (UPI, 03/13/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
KCCI preps for inter-Korean contact amid detente (Yonhap, 03/13/2018)
Thinking the unthinkable (Joongang Daily, 03/13/2018)
Upcoming inter-Korean summit may be shorter than previous ones: Seoul (Yonhap, 03/13/2018)

International:
(3rd LD) Abe calls for N. Korea's 'concrete' action for denuclearization (Yonhap, 03/13/2018)
Factbox: Beyond Weapons, North Korea Talks Could Address Family Reunions, Detainees, and Joint Programs (NYT*imes*, 03/13/2018)
Factbox: Where could Kim Jong Un meet Donald Trump? (Reuters, 03/12/2018)
Former top US negotiator says Kim is 'in the driver's seat' (CNN, 03/12/2018)
Japan cautious while South Korea upbeat after North Korea talks in Tokyo (Reuters, 03/13/2018)
Japan Considers Seeking Summit Between PM Abe and North Korea Leader-Source(NYT*imes*, 03/13/2018)
Japan Fears Being Left Behind by Trump's Talks With Kim Jong-un (NYT*imes*, 03/13/2018)
Japan tells South Korea it wants abduction issue resolved in North Korea talks(Reuters, 03/12/2018)
Japan's Abe: NKorea must take real steps to denuclearization (Washington Post, 03/13/2018)
Japan's Abe doesn't see North Korea buying time through talks with U.S., South Korea: Seoul (Reuters, 03/13/2018)
Japan's Abe, used to being Trump's buddy, finds himself out of step on North Korea(Washington Post, 03/13/2018)
Japanese PM Urges North Korea to Commit to Denuclearization (VOA, 03/13/2018)
Kang, Tillerson to discuss N.K. ahead of historic summits (Yonhap, 03/13/2018)
On Negotiating With the North Koreans: Advice for President Trump (38*North*, 03/12/2018)
Seoul to closely cooperate with China, Japan to tackle North Korea issue (UPI, 03/13/2018)
South Korea moves to ease Chinese jitters over US-North Korea talks (CNN, 03/12/2018)
Summit Raises Hope North Korea Will Release 3 US Detainees (Washington Post, 03/13/2018)
The White House's complete disarray on North Korea continues (Washington Post, 03/12/2018)
Tillerson says several steps needed for U.S. talks with North Korea (Reuters, 03/12/2018)
U.N. investigator: Human rights must be part of any talks with North Korea (Reuters, 03/12/2018)
U.S. optimistic on North Korea meeting, but will keep up pressure: U.S. security adviser (Reuters, 03/12/2018)
US official: Maximum pressure on North Korea until progress (Washington Post, 03/12/2018)
US Maintains 'Maximum Pressure' on North Korea Ahead of Possible Summit (VOA, 03/12/2018)
US starts to prep for North Korea summit even as Pyongyang remains silent (CNN, 03/13/2018)

What Trump could learn from my attempts to denuclearize North Korea (Washington Post, 03/12/2018)
With Republicans nervous, more Democrats need to weigh in on ill-conceived Kim meeting(Washington Post, 03/12/2018)
Xi, Abe briefed on Seoul's moves (Joongang Daily, 03/13/2018)

Top News:

- In this interview with i24 News, HRNK Executive Director discussed the potential pitfalls and risks involved in the Trump-KJU meeting. Scarlatoiu stated that the Trump administration has been applying two fundamental elements of national power very effectively and correctly: economic power through a much more effective sanctions regime and military power through deploying assets to the region through emphasizing its commitment to regional alliances including the US-SK alliance and US-Japan alliance. According to Scarlatoiu, while implementing these measures, President Trump has also signaled that the door for diplomacy remains open, with White House Press Secretary Sarah Huckabee Sanders making it clear that NK must take additional steps to denuclearize in order for the summit to happen. Scarlatoiu also asserted that the Trump administration is well aware of the Kim regime's zero diplomatic credibility and notes that the ball is in KJU's court to build some sort of semblance of good faith and credibility.
  (Greg Scarlatoiu, i24 News)

In North Korea:

- A defector who says she was raped in a N.Korean prison camp and was a victim of human trafficking in China said most N.Korean women who work with brokers have experienced some form of rape. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- According to the N.Korean media on 01/21/2018, the Pyongyang Information Technology Bureau (평양정보기술국) and a subordinate organization, the Card Research Institute (카드연구소), appear to be developing cards for NK's electronic payment system. Perhaps rather ominously, KCTV mentions that the agency is working to expand the use of cards with features like user identification. (NK Econ Watch)
- NK's state media refrained from using a derogative term in referring to US President Donald Trump, apparently toning down its rhetoric against him ahead of a historic bilateral summit. (Yonhap)
- BG Muhn, an artist and professor at Georgetown University, published a book on N.Korean art Tues.—a subject few people dare to study due to limited access to the reclusive country—through thorough, passionate research and nine nerve-wracking visits there over six years. (Woo Jae-yeon, Yonhap)
- The US says it will not impose more conditions on NK before a summit of the two nations' leaders, beyond NK's promise not to resume nuclear and missile tests or publicly criticize US-S.Korean military exercises. (Mark Sherman, Josh Lederman, AP)

- A N.Korean state newspaper denounced what it called "the imperialists' human rights racket" shortly after the publication of a United Nations report highlighted the country's dismal human rights record. (Ivan Watson, CNN)
- KJU loves his missiles and long-range weapons so much that he has reportedly built monuments to mark their launch sites, as an outward reminder of the regime's military prowess. (Nicola Smith, Telegraph)

In South Korea:

- A successful meeting between US President Donald Trump and N.Korean leader KJU would help stabilize S.Korean financial markets and improve sentiment for consumers and investors, SK's central bank chief said on Tues. (Reuters)
- SK's former nuclear envoys on Tues. emphasized NK's full declaration of its nuclear arsenal and the international community's thorough verification as key to future negotiations on its denuclearization. (Yonhap)
- The most talked-about athlete in the Paralympics barely plays, but who cares? The diminutive but hard-nosed reserve forward on SK sled hockey team proudly admits he's just happy to be here. After all, Choi Kwang Hyouk has come a long way, escaping one of the most brutal and isolated places on Earth as a one-legged teenager and traveled weeks through China on crutches before finding freedom in SK. He battled through a sense of desolation for years while struggling to adjust to his new capitalist home before finding rejuvenation in a sport he says now means "everything in life." (Kim Tong-Hyung, AP)
- SK's national security director on Mon. praised Chinese President Xi Jinping's role in nudging NK toward denuclearization talks, following word of a possible summit between US President Donald Trump and N.Korean leader KJU. (Christopher Bodeen, AP)
- SK has inked a contract to purchase 90 more Taurus long-range air-to-ground missiles in line with its weapon system introduction program despite eased tensions on the peninsula, an official said Tues. (Yonhap)
- Ahead of the anticipated inter-Korean summit slated for late Apr., the S.Korean government is preparing to launch working-level talks with NK as early as next week, News 1 reported. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- The SK military plans to purchase more German air-to-surface missiles, according to Seoul's military on Tues. A total of 90 Taurus missiles, capable of targeting and destroying NK's nuclear and missile facilities, are to be acquired from 2019 to 2020, S.Korean newspaper Herald Business reported. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- The Korea Chamber of Commerce and Industry (KCCI) is preparing for possible contact with its N.Korean counterpart amid a mood of detente on the Korean Peninsula, sources said Tues. (Yonhap)
- The Korean Peninsula is moving towards an inflection point at a dizzying pace. The speed is worrisome, but the direction of developments raises hope. The inflection point would reach its peak when an inter-Korean summit takes place in late Apr. and followed by the first-ever meeting between N.Korean and US leaders. Depending on the outcomes, the relationship between the two Koreas—and between NK and the US—could undergo a change. We must be clear-headed. We must not become too optimistic or pessimistic. (Bae Myung-bok, Joongang Daily)

- SK is seeking "practical" preparation for an upcoming inter-Korean summit, as next month's meeting could last for a shorter period of time than summits held in 2000 and 2007, a Seoul official said Tues. (Yonhap)

International:

- Japanese Prime Minister Shinzo Abe on Tues. emphasized the need for NK to take "concrete" actions for denuclearization as the US is set to hold an unprecedented summit with NK by May. (Yonhap)
- Beyond the future of NK's nuclear weapons and ballistic missiles, a number of other issues could be raised during upcoming talks between Pyongyang, SK and, potentially, the US. These issues include family reunions, detainees, as well as economic and cultural exchanges. (Reuters)
- Since US President Donald Trump announced last week he was willing to meet NK's KJU, speculation has mounted over where might be chosen to host the first-ever meeting between sitting leaders of the two countries. Officials, analysts, and other observers have been debating the pros and cons of possible summit sites, ranging from NK's capital city of Pyongyang, to the Joint Security Area (JSA) between the two Koreas, to farther afield in other areas of Asia or Europe. (Reuters)
- N.Korean leader KJU is "in the driver's seat at the moment," Wendy Sherman the former chief US nuclear negotiator with Iran who also advised President Bill Clinton on NK told CNN. (Mick Krever, CNN)
- Differences between Japan and SK on how to handle NK emerged on Tues. with SK upbeat on prospects but a more cautious Japan demanding that NK account for Japanese people it says NK abducted decades ago. (Tim Kelly, Reuters)
- Japan is considering seeking a summit between Prime Minister Shinzo Abe and N.Korean leader KJU to discuss Japanese citizens abducted by N.Korean agents decades ago, a government source who was briefed on the matter said on Tues. (Reuters)
- As recently as last fall, it was Seoul that appeared sidelined by Washington in its approach to NK, as President Trump made fiery threats and accused SK of "appeasement" for advocating dialogue. Shinzo Abe, Japan's prime minister, was Trump's closest friend among world leaders. But now Japan, which has hewed closely to the hard-line US posture toward NK, is scrambling to remain diplomatically relevant as Trump moderates his tone in preparation for a possible meeting with NK's leader, KJU, and SK takes the lead in brokering talks. (Motoko Rich, NYTimes)
- Prime Minister Shinzo Abe told a S.Korean representative on Tues. he wants talks with NK, called to dismantle Pyongyang's nuclear weapons and missile programs, to resolve a dispute over past abductions of Japanese citizens as well. (Reuters)

- Japanese Prime Minister Shinzo Abe met with SK's intelligence chief on Tues., and said that while he welcomes any dialogue with NK regarding the country's denuclearization, NK must take real steps toward that goal. (Mari Yamaguchi, AP)
- Japanese Prime Minister Shinzo Abe doesn't believe NK will use summits with the US and SK to buy time to pursue its nuclear and missile programs, SK's presidential office said on Tues. (Reuters)
- Japan's hard-line prime minister, Shinzo Abe, had grown accustomed to being President Trump's favorite foreign leader. But now he is suddenly scrambling to remain relevant as the US president embarks on a daring diplomatic gambit with NK. (Anna Fifield, Washington Post)
- Japanese Prime Minister Shinzo Abe is calling on NK to match its recent rhetoric about giving up its nuclear weapons program with "concrete actions." (VOA)
- The top diplomats of SK and the US will meet later this week to discuss details on their planned summits with NK, the foreign ministry said Tues. (Yonhap)
- In this 38North piece, author Robert Carlin, reacts to Nicholas Eberstadt's Washington Post op-ed entitled "Talks with NK are a zero-sum game. Here's how to play it." Carlin, in his capacity as a former US official who followed NK for almost 4 decades and participated in negotiations between senior officials and important government representatives as well as leading talks between the Korean Peninsula Energy Development Organization and N.Koreans, believes that although Eberstadt is a "good scholar and a smart man," his [Eberstadt's] observations are as from a planet far away. Carlin uses this piece in 38North to offer his own advice on what it is like to negotiate with the N.Koreans. (Robert Carlin, 38North)
- S.Korean President Moon's special envoys visited regional leaders to rally support on tackling NK-related issues, following their meetings with US President Donald Trump and N.Korean leader KJU. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- S.Korean officials met with Chinese President Xi Jinping on Mon., as part of an effort to bring jittery regional powers on board with US President Donald Trump's decision to accept a face-to-face meeting with N.Korean leader KJU. (Euan McKirdy, Lauren Said-Moorhouse, CNN)
- Hopes for the release of three American citizens imprisoned in NK got a big boost by the news of a possible summit between President Donald Trump and N.Korean leader KJU. (Eric Talmadge, AP)
- It was no surprise that President Trump caught his White House off guard last week when he accepted N.Korean leader KJU's invitation to a summit between the two leaders. So it was to be expected that White House officials would struggle in the immediate aftermath to provide details about the summit. But with the shock worn off now, the president's team remarkably has no plan for NK. For that, there's no excuse. (James Downie, Washington Post)
- Several steps will be necessary to agree the location and scope of talks between the US and NK, US Secretary of State Rex Tillerson said on Mon. (Reuters)
- Negotiations with NK on its nuclear programme should be accompanied by talks to address alleged human rights violations there including torture and political prisoner camps, the United Nations said on Mon. (Stephanie Nebehay, Reuters)

- US national security adviser H.R. McMaster said on Mon. that Washington is optimistic about an opportunity for President Donald Trump to meet with N.Korean leader KJU but is determined to keep up pressure on Pyongyang to denuclearize. (Reuters)
- The US national security adviser said Mon. that the U.N. Security Council supports President Donald Trump's optimism about the opportunity for a diplomatic solution in NK—and his intention to keep up maximum pressure until there is "real progress" toward denuclearization of the Korean peninsula. (Edith M. Lederer, AP)
- The US national security adviser said Mon. that Washington is "determined" to keep up its policy of maximum pressure on NK aimed at its denuclearization. (Margaret Besheer, VOA)
- Administration officials are scrambling to turn President Donald Trump's surprise decision to meet N.Korean leader KJU into a reality, preparing for an unprecedented, high stakes summit with little time, an understaffed State Department and a mercurial President who may not stick to his script when the time comes. (Nicole Gaouette, Laura Koran, Michelle Kosinski, CNN)
- Author William J. Perry, former US defense secretary from 1994 to 1997, imparts advice from his experiences of directly negotiating with the N.Koreans in this Washington Post opinion piece. It is based off of the successes and failures of the previous attempts are negotiating N.Korean denuclearization. (William J. Perry, Washington Post)
- Democrats should follow Warren's lead. They should denounce the president's impetuousness and hunger for acclamation as foolish and dangerous. Democrats should push for firm conditions on any meeting, if the leaders ever need to get together at all. Democrats don't need to cheer war in order to criticize hapless, incompetent diplomacy. They'd do their own reputations on national security and the country a whole lot of good by making clear that Trump's eagerness to meet directly with Kim without obtaining any concrete objective is a losing move. (Jennifer Rubin, Washington Post)
- China and Japan expressed support for SK's diplomatic campaign to engage NK with an inter-Korean summit and a summit between US President Donald Trump and KJU. (See Myo-ja, Joongang Daily)

Prepared by Jinny Ahn, HRNK Research Intern

——————————————————

Wednesday, March 14, 2018

Trump fires Tillerson, taps Pompeo as next secretary of state; N.Korea claims S. Koreans want withdrawal of U.S. forces; N.K. talks aren't just about nukes — think about the people

Top News:

North Korean talks aren't just about nukes — think about the people (Dallas News, 03/13/2018)

In North Korea:

New crackdown on illicit drugs targets locals, bypasses North Korean state-run production operations (DailyNK, 03/14/2018)
North Korea skips derogatory media references to Trump (UPI, 03/14/2018)
North Korea's Paralympics participation belies awful conditions for disabled (DailyNK, 03/14/2018)
Police omitted Kim Jong Nam assassination footage, attorney says (UPI, 03/14/2018)
Report: Kim may speak English in summit with Trump (UPI, 03/14/2018)
Spring harvest brings uptick in theft of farming equipment in North Korea (DailyNK, 03/14/2018)
Why North Korea wants a summit with Trump (WaPo, 03/14/2018)

In South Korea:
Factbox: GM Korea opens its books to seek financial support from South Korea (Reuters, 03/14/2018)
Kang to visit U.S. as planned despite Tillerson's dismissal (Yonhap, 03/14/2018)
Moon watches N. Koreans compete in ski event at Paralympics (Yonhap, 03/14/2018)
Seoul's default risk at 17-month low amid easing tensions with North (UPI, 03/14/2018)
S. Korean foreign minister to meet U.S. diplomat after Tillerson dismissal (UPI, 03/14/2018)
Tillerson's departure will not affect U.S.-N. Korea dialogue: Cheong Wa Dae (Yonhap, 03/14/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
(LEAD) N. Korea claims S. Koreans want withdrawal of U.S. forces (Yonhap, 03/14/2018)
(2nd LD) N. Korean Paralympians, officials to leave PyeongChang before closing ceremony (Yonhap, 03/14/2018)
South Korea mulls North Korea rail, gas pipeline projects (UPI, 03/13/2018)
U.S. troops must leave, says North's mouthpiece (Joongang Ilbo, 03/14/2018)

International:
As Trump and Kim Look to Meet, China Watches From Sidelines (VOA, 03/14/2018)
At the State Department, diplomats prepare for a dramatic shift in style (WaPo, 03/14/2018)
Bracing for a crisis (Joongang Ilbo, 03/14/2018)
Commentary: Tillerson fall shows Trump learning game of politics (Reuters, 03/14/2018)
Dovish Tillerson loses job to hard-line Pompeo (Joongang Ilbo, 03/14/2018)
For Trump, the art of the deal isn't the art of diplomacy (WaPo, 03/14/2018)
In Replacing Tillerson With Pompeo, Trump Turns to Loyalists Who Reflect 'America First' Views (NYT, 03/13/2018)
Japan 'considering' summit with North Korea's Kim Jong-un (Telegraph, 03/14/2018)
Japan leaves door open for PM Abe-Kim Jong Un summit (Reuters, 03/14/2018)
Japan moves to hold Abe-Kim Jong-un meeting: reports (Korea Times, 03/14/2018)
Korea-U.S. FTA talks to focus on cars, steel tariffs (Joongang Ilbo, 03/14/2018)
NATO's Global Engagement Grows To Face North Korea's Nuclear Ambitions (VOA, 03/14/2018)
Pick for top diplomat seen as tight with the president (WaPo, 03/14/2018)
Pompeo expected to reinforce Trump's hardline instincts on Iran and North Korea (CNN, 03/13/2018)
Pompeo replaces Tillerson. Where does that take US foreign policy? (BBC, 03/14/2018)
The Guardian view on Trump and Tillerson: he's fired. What next? (Guardian, 03/13/2018)
Tillerson's dismissal rattles foreign nerves ahead of North Korea summit (CNN, 03/14/2018)

Tillerson's dismissal spawns speculation on impact on U.S.-North Korea summit (Yonhap, 03/14/2018)
Tillerson exits a weakened and disillusioned State Department (CNN, 03/13/18)
Tokyo bids farewell to 'trustworthy' Tillerson, Seoul awaits seasoned Pompeo (Reuters, 03/14/2018)
Trump's choice of Pompeo could boost negotiations with N.K.: expert (Yonhap, 03/14/2018)
Trump fires Tillerson, taps Pompeo as next secretary of state (CNN, 03/13/2018)
Trump fires Rex Tillerson as secretary of state (BBC, 03/14/2018)
Trump fires Tillerson, a moderate; replaces him with hawkish spy chief Pompeo (Reuters, 03/14/2018)
Trump Fires Tillerson, Picks CIA Chief Pompeo to Succeed Him (VOA, 03/13/2018)
Trump 'On the Same Wavelength' as Mike Pompeo on North Korea (VOA, 03/13/2018)
Trump orders larger tariffs to punish China for stealing trade secrets (WaPo, 03/14/2018)
Trump ousts Tillerson, will replace him as secretary of state with CIA chief Pompeo (WaPo, 03/13/2018)
Trump replaces Secretary of State Rex Tillerson with CIA chief (UPI, 03/13/2018)
Trump's tough message (Joongang Ilbo, 03/14/2018)
Where Does Mike Pompeo Stand on the Issues? Too Close to Trump (NYT, 03/13/2018)
White House's Kelly praises Korea for Games (Joongang Ilbo, 03/14/2018)
Vietnam bar owner said to have arranged meeting of suspects in Kim Jong Nam killing (Reuters, 03/14/2018)
Vietnamese recruited 2 months before Kim Jong Nam's murder (WaPo, 03/14/2018)

Top News:

- What started as an ideological commitment to communism is now more of commitment to keeping Kim in power. In N.K., many innocent civilians have been labeled as criminals and even those who are loyal are often suspected of treason. (Matt Liles, Dallas News)

In North Korea:

- The N.K. authorities are reportedly carrying out a major crackdown on illicit drug producers and dealers, calling for those involved to "turn themselves in" while deploying police dogs and conducting searches of suspect residences. (Seol Song Ah, DailyNK)
- N.K. may be softening its media approach toward Trump, only months after calling Trump a "dotard" amid a war of words with Washington that followed the country's sixth nuclear test last September. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- A handful of N.K. athletes' participation in the 2018 PyeongChang Paralympics led many to wonder what life is like for the physically disabled in N.K.. (Seol Song Ah, DailyNK)
- The defense lawyer for one of the murder suspects in the assassination of KJU's half-brother at an airport in Malaysia says police failed to release all footage of the incident and tampered with evidence. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- Ahead of the upcoming summit between Trump and KJU, observers are wondering whether Kim will converse in English or Korean during the negotiation. (Jennie Oh, UPI)

- N.Koreans are typically required to donate such farming equipment as well as compost as part of the country's annual mobilization assignments. But in order to meet their quotas, many are turning to theft. (Kang Mi Jin, DailyNK)
- Three scenarios might explain North Korea's turn to diplomatic engagement: N.K. has achieved full nuclear-weapons capability; economic sanctions and pressure are working; S.K. diplomacy has worked. (Andrew Yeo, WaPo)

In South Korea:

- S.K. began doing due diligence on GM Korea to decide whether to extend financial support to the loss-making operations of General Motors, after the U.S. automaker announced a restructuring of the unit and a closure of one of the plants. (Reuters)
- S.K.'s top diplomat will go ahead with a plan to visit the US this week to discuss N.K.'s nuclear issue despite the announcement of her counterpart's dismissal. (Yonhap)
- President Moon and his wife watched a cross-country skiing event in person at the Winter Paralympics in the country's alpine town of PyeongChang, an event in which N.K. skiers competed. (Yonhap)
- S.K.'s credit default risk has dropped to a 17-month low, as the country's tensions with N.K. have greatly subsided after the Pyeongchang Winter Olympics and an agreement last week to hold an inter-Korean summit. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- S.K. Foreign Minister Kang Kyung-wha will meet with U.S. Deputy Secretary of State John Sullivan, after Trump announced he fired Secretary of State Rex Tillerson. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- The dismissal of Rex Tillerson as top U.S. diplomat will have no effect on the allies' scheduled dialogue with N.K., an official from Seoul's presidential office Cheong Wa Dae said. (Yonhap)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- N.K. slammed the ongoing negotiations between S.K. and the US to renew their deal on defense cost sharing, claiming that S.Koreans want the withdrawal of U.S. forces from the peninsula. (Yonhap)
- N.K. athletes and officials staying in S.K. for the Winter Paralympics will leave before the weekend's closing ceremony, officials said Wednesday, with representatives from Pyongyang's Paralympic committee returning home ahead of schedule. (Yonhap)
- N.K. could get a boost from potential S.K. investments if détente is extended beyond the much-anticipated summit between KJU and President Moon in April. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- N.K.'s state-run newspaper called on the US to withdraw its troops from S.K. ahead of a summit between KJU and Trump, accusing Washington of trying to invade Northeast Asia. (Lee Sung-eun, Joongang Ilbo)

International:

- China is voicing support for the possible U.S.-N.K. summit, despite concerns that it will be left out of talks that could dramatically alter regional security and political dynamics. (Brian Padden, Bill Ide, VOA)
- Diplomats and civil servants at the State Department expressed relief and trepidation after the stunning firing of Rex Tillerson, whose tenure as secretary of state was one of the most contentious in recent memory. (John Hudson, WaPo)
- A summit between N.K. and U.S. is a definite gamble.There could be three possible scenarios of the summit: a package deal to resolve the nuclear threats, settling for an incremental denuclearization, and a breakdown of dialogue. (Kim Hyun-ki, Joongang Ilbo)
- Tuesday's ousting of Secretary of State Rex Tillerson suggests Trump's confidence is still growing – as is his ability to use the power of his office. (Peter Apps, Reuters)
- Tillerson, one of the most consistent advocates of diplomacy with N.K., was fired Tuesday as U.S. secretary of state and replaced by Mike Pompeo, the director of the CIA. (Sarah Kim, Joongang Ilbo)
- Face-to-face diplomacy can affect the course of international relations. But will the U.S. and N.K. reap the benefits that face-to-face diplomacy can offer? (James H. Lebovic, WaPo)
- Trump ousted Tillerson on Tuesday, the most dramatic in a cascade of personnel moves that suggest Trump is determined to surround himself with loyalists more willing to reflect his "America First" views. (Mark Landler, Maggie Haberman, Gardiner Harris, NYT)
- Japan's prime minister Shinzo Abe is considering a meeting with KJU in an apparent change of strategy in dealing with Pyongyang. (Danielle Demetriou, Telegraph)
- Japan's top government spokesman left the door open on Wednesday to a possible summit between Shinzo Abe and KJU to discuss the matter of Japanese citizens kidnapped by Pyongyang's agents decades ago. (Kaori Kaneko, Linda Sieg, Reuters)
- Japan is moving to hold a meeting between Prime Minister Shinzo Abe and KJU, local media reported on Wednesday. (Park Si-soo, Korea Times)
- Analysts expect the ROK-U.S. FTA talks to focus on Trump's recently announced higher steel tariffs and non-tariff barriers on U.S. automobiles. (Lee Ho-jeong, Joongang Ilbo)
- The NATO has its roots in Europe and North America, but as the alliance faces new global threats, it has begun to broaden its horizons. N.K.'s missile and nuclear build-up has led NATO to boost its engagement in the Asia-Pacific region. (Jela de Franceschi, VOA)
- Considering his conservative political bent and closeness to Trump, Pompeo's approach to foreign policy will be strikingly different from Tillerson's, as he's likely to promise far more aggressive stances on Iran and N.K.. (Matthew Lee, AP)
- CIA Director Mike Pompeo's expected move to lead the State Department is likely to lead to harder-line policies toward Iran and N.K., though his ability to shape policy under President Trump remains to be seen. (Nicole Gaouette, CNN)
- If Pompeo can bolster the state department's Korea expertise in short order, he may help take the US into a summit in a stronger position. But his hardline stance on Pyongyang could also scupper talks with a notoriously sensitive regime. (BBC)
- The dismissal of Tillerson was long predicted, but its timing is suspicious and his replacement, Mike Pompeo, is a deeply disturbing choice. The administration's claim that the switch will aid planned talks with KJU, only weeks away, is a ludicrous attempt to distract. (Guardian)

- In Asia, where governments are engaged in hurried preparations for a momentous inter-Korea summit, there are signs of nervousness following Trump's dismissal of Tillerson. (Jamie Tarabay, CNN)
- Following President Trump's dismissal of his top diplomat, speculations are rising here as to what ramifications, if any, the sudden decision could have on the planned summit between the U.S. and N.K.. (Yonhap)
- Tillerson's ouster made him the last casualty in an exodus of senior officials and long-term foreign service professionals that has weakened the department under his tenure. (Nicole Gaouette and Laura Koran, CNN)
- Japan's foreign minister said on Wednesday he personally regretted the departure of "frank, trustworthy" U.S. Secretary of State Rex Tillerson ahead of a proposed summit between Trump and KJU. (Linda Sieg, Hyonhee Shin, Reuters)
- President Trump's pick of Mike Pompeo as his new top diplomat could lend credibility to any future negotiations with N.K., a U.S. expert said Tuesday. (Yonhap)
- Trump has fired Secretary of State Rex Tillerson and will nominate CIA Director Mike Pompeo to succeed him, replacing his top diplomat ahead of a potential high-stakes sitdown between the U.S. and N.K.. (Nicole Gaouette, Kaitlan Collins and Dan Merica, CNN)
- President Trump has fired Secretary of State Rex Tillerson via Twitter, naming CIA Director Mike Pompeo as his replacement. (BBC)
- Trump fired Secretary of State Rex Tillerson on Tuesday after a series of public rifts over policy on N.K., Russia and Iran, replacing his chief diplomat with loyalist CIA Director Mike Pompeo. (Roberta Rampton, Lesley Wroughton, Reuters)
- President Trump has fired his Secretary of State Rex Tillerson and picked CIA director Mike Pompeo to replace him. (Steve Herman, Peggy Chang, VOA)
- Trump says he is "on the same wavelength" as his choice for top U.S. diplomat Mike Pompeo, and the White House envisions a key role for the country's new top diplomat in high-profile talks between Trump and KJU. (Cindy Saine, VOA)
- Trump has ordered his chief trade negotiator to develop tougher tariff proposals to punish China for years of stealing U.S. trade secrets, according to industry executives familiar with the matter. (David J. Lynch, WaPo)
- Trump has ousted Tillerson and plans to nominate CIA Director Mike Pompeo to replace him as the nation's top diplomat, orchestrating a major change to his national security team amid delicate outreach that includes possible talks with N.K.. (WaPo)
- President Trump announced a major shakeup in his Cabinet on Tuesday, replacing Secretary of State Rex Tillerson with CIA Director Mike Pompeo. (Susan McFarland and Danielle Haynes, UPI)
- While Trump's dismissal of Tillerson strongly suggests that he will turn to an extreme hard-line approach if N.K. does not show sincerity in denuclearization, Moon must ensure that N.K. understands the meaning of Trump's nomination of Pompeo. (Joongang Ilbo)
- Pompeo who is expected to replace Tillerson as the next secretary of state, is a defender of Trump and will echo his preferences on major national security and foreign policy matters. (Paul R. Pillar, NYT)

- Marcia Lee Kelly, the deputy assistant to President Trump, praised S.K. for a successful PyeongChang Paralympics and encouraged more women and people of ethnic minorities to pursue their dreams. (Esther Chung, Joongang Ilbo)
- A Vietnamese bar owner was asked to act in a video prank show by a man wanted for the killing of Kim Jong Nam, KJU's half-brother, but declined the offer, a Malaysian court heard on Wednesday. (Reuters)
- A Vietnamese woman accused of murdering the estranged half-brother of KJU was recruited by a N.K. suspect at a Hanoi bar two months before the killing, her lawyer said Wednesday. (Eileen Ng, AP)

Prepared by James Park, HRNK Research Intern

——————————————————

Thursday, March 15, 2018

'Denuclearization' may be the goal of U.S.-North Korean summit, but each side defines it differently; Kang to visit U.S. as planned despite Tillerson's dismissal; S. Korea to launch new preparation committee for inter-Korean summit

In North Korea:

(LEAD) N. Korea's delegation to Paralympics returns home (Yonhap, 03/15/2018)
(LEAD) N. Koreans finish their last PyeongChang Paralympics event (Yonhap, 03/14/2018)
North Korea decries U.S. 'human rights abuses,' 'racism' (UPI, 03/15/2018)
North Korea Paralympic athletes to leave before closing ceremony (UPI, 03/14/2018)
North Korea's Paralympic Loss is a Sign of Progress (VOA, 03/15/2018)
North Korean Envoy in Sweden Amid Planning for Trump-Kim Meeting (NYT, 03/15/2018)
North Korean Foreign Minister Heads to Sweden (VOA, 03/15/2018)
North Korean foreign minister heads to Sweden amid summit speculation (CNN, 03/15/2018)
North Korean foreign minister visits Sweden (AP, 03/15/2018)
Harmful North Korean 'traditional medicines' still for sale in China (Daily NK, 03/15/2018)
Kalma Coastal Tourist Area Update (NK Economy Watch, 03/15/2018)
North Korean media has nothing to say about nuclear talks but plenty about alleged U.S. human-rights abuses (Washington Post, 03/15/2018)
North Korean minister to visit Sweden amid summit speculation (Reuters, 03/15/2018)
North warns against human rights talk (Joongang Ilbo, 03/15/2018)
Yes, canned soup may be fueling North Korea's air force (AP, 03/15/2018)

In South Korea:

(LEAD) S. Korea to launch new preparation committee for inter-Korean summit (Yonhap, 03/15/2018)

(3rd LD) Kang emphasizes S.Korea-U.S. coordination ahead of summits (Yonhap, 03/15/2018)
Kang to visit U.S. as planned despite Tillerson's dismissal (Yonhap, 03/14/2018)
NK's peace overture diverts attention away from joint military drill (Korea Times, 03/15/2018)
Tillerson's departure will not affect U.S.-N. Korea dialogue: Cheong Wa Dae (Yonhap, 03/14/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
(LEAD) S. Korea rejects businessmen's trip to Kaesong complex (Yonhap, 03/15/2018)
(Yonhap Feature) Peace hopes rise among S. Koreans in wake of resumed talks with North (Yonhap, 03/15/2018)
Blue House starts summit preparations (Joongang Ilbo, 03/15/2018)
Cutting the knot (Joongang Ilbo, 03/15/2018)
Gov't disapprove S. Korean firms' Gaeseong complex visit (Korea Times, 03/15/2018)
S.Korea official says too early to prepare inter-Korean economic projects at upcoming summit (Reuters, 03/15/2018)

International:
(LEAD) N.K. foreign minister seen at Beijing airport ahead of U.S.-proposed summit (Yonhap, 03/15/2018)
(2nd LD) N.K. foreign minister Ri to visit Sweden (Yonhap, 03/15/2018)
(News Focus) Tillerson's dismissal spawns speculation on impact on U.S.-North Korea summit (Yonhap, 03/14/2018)
'Denuclearization' may be the goal of U.S.-North Korean summit, but each side defines it differently (Washington Post, 03/15/2018)
'I didn't fancy being stuck in North Korea': the stormy thriller by a Japanese Ulsterman (Guardian, 03/14/2018)
Americans divided over Trump-Kim meeting: poll (Yonhap, 03/15/2018)
Analysts: Pompeo Will Have Little Time to Prepare for North Korea Summit (VOA, 03/15/2018)
At the State Department, diplomats prepare for a dramatic shift in style (Washington Post, 03/14/2018)
Cabinet Changes Could Delay Planning for Meeting with Kim Jong-un (NYT, 03/15/2018)
China says North Korean foreign minister on his way to Sweden (Reuters, 03/15/2018)
China, Russia welcome Korean peace efforts with diplomacy in overdrive (Reuters, 03/15/2018)
Differences on North Korea key to Trump's Tillerson decision: sources (Reuters, 03/15/2018)
Dovish Tillerson loses job to hard-line Pompeo (Joongang Ilbo, 03/14/2018)
Envoy: China, Russia offer support for upcoming summits with North Korea (UPI, 03/15/2018)
European Parliament in 'secret' talks with North Korea (Telegraph, 03/14/2018)
Here's how the Senate should handle Mike Pompeo's confirmation hearing (Washington Post, 03/15/2018)
Is North Korea's silence on the Trump-Kim summit a worry? (CNN, 03/15/2018)
Japan 'considering' summit with North Korea's Kim Jong-un (Telegraph, 03/14/2018)
Malaysia: Defense Lawyers Blast Prosecutors in Kim Jong Nam Murder Case (RFA, 03/15/2018)
Mike Pompeo Is Good for Diplomacy (NYT, 03/15/2018)
Monitoring System to Hold North Korea Accountable for Rights Abuse (VOA, 03/15/2018)
No 'Bloody Nose' Plan for North Korea Strike: U.S. Commander (Reuters, 03/15/2018)

PM: Moon-Trump talks possible in between inter-Korean summit and Trump-Kim meeting (Yonhap, 03/14/2018)
Pompeo could play a key role in North Korea talks — when and if they happen (Washington Post, 03/14/2018)
S. Korea, Japan discuss upcoming summits involving N. Korean leader (Yonhap, 03/15/2018)
Tillerson's dismissal rattles foreign nerves ahead of North Korea summit (CNN, 03/14/2018)
Tillerson's Ouster Has Allies Hoping for Coherence, but Fearing the Worst (NYT, 03/14/2018)
Top US top military officer in Asia says he's not 'overly optimistic' about Trump-Kim summit (CNN, 03/15/2018)
Trump and Kim Jong Un should form an alliance (Washington Post, 03/14/2018)
Trump apparently threatens to withdraw US troops from South Korea over trade (CNN, 03/15/2018)
Trump's appointment of hawkish secretary of state a 'warning' against N.K. leader: lawmaker (Yonhap, 03/14/2018)
Trump's tough message (Joongang Ilbo, 03/14/2018)
U.S. must go into North Korea summit with 'eyes wide open': commander (Reuters, 03/15/2018)
White House touts Pompeo's accomplishments as CIA chief (Yonhap, 03/15/2018)
Without Rex Tillerson's protection, a top State Department Asia nominee is in trouble (Washington Post, 03/15/2018)
'Xi may try to rule past 2035 to achieve his Chinese Dream' (Joongang Ilbo, 03/14/2018)

In North Korea:

- N. Korean athletes and officials at the PyeongChang Winter Paralympics returned home Thursday after participating in a winter Paralympic Games for the first time. (Yonhap)
- N. Korean athletes finished their last event at the PyeongChang Winter Paralympics in SK on Wednesday before they return home. (Yonhap)
- NK slammed the US on Thursday in a statement that described the world's largest economy as the "leader" in human rights abuses. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- NK's Paralympic athletes are returning to their country Thursday, skipping the closing ceremony after exchanging personal greetings with President Moon. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- The first N. Korean winter Paralympic team returned home Thursday after participating in the Pyeongchang Games in SK. (Brian Padden, VOA)
- NK's fm flew to Sweden on Thursday, amid speculation that the country could be used as a venue for hammering out details of the planned talks between President Trump and KJU, or could be the site of the talks themselves. (Gerry Mullany, NYT)
- NK FM Ri Yong Ho is heading to Sweden on a mission that could set the stage for a possible summit between President Trump and KJU. (VOA)
- NK's fm was flying to Sweden on Thursday in the first significant diplomatic move by Pyongyang sincePresident Trump said a week ago that he'd be willing to meet KJU. (Joshua Berlinger, Euan McKirdy and Eliza Mackintosh, CNN)
- NK's FM is traveling to Sweden Thursday, a surprise move that could be a first step toward a meeting in the Scandinavian country between US President Donald Trump and N. Korean leader KJU. (David Keyton, AP)

- N. Korean health supplements available in China have been found to contain harmful levels of heavy metals and reportedly remain in circulation. (Jang Seul Gi, Daily NK)
- There appear to be two staging areas for the construction site where workers live and supplies are stored. (NK Economy Watch)
- The most recent article that focuses on the US in the Rodong Sinmun, NK's official party newspaper, is a commentary that brands America as the "world's worst human rights abuser." (Adam Taylor, Washington Post)
- NK's fm will visit Sweden on Thursday, prompting speculation that the two-day trip could lay the groundwork for a mooted meeting between the leaders of the US and NK. (Reuters)
- The North's Rodong Sinmun newspaper called Washington's accusations an "anti-North Korea human rights scheme," saying the US was hurting North Koreans' by threatening their sense of security and through sanctions. (Jeong Yong-soo, Joongang Ilbo)
- Is North Korea's air force selling canned soup and taxi rides to upgrade its runways and airstrips? (Eric Talmadge, AP)

In South Korea:

- SK will soon launch a committee to prepare for an upcoming summit with NK with President Moon's chief of staff set to head the new preparation committee. (Yonhap)
- SK's top diplomat said Thursday that it is important to maintain close coordination with the US to discuss details of their summit plans with NK. (Yonhap)
- SK's top diplomat will go ahead with a plan to visit the US to discuss NK's nuclear issue despite the announcement of her counterpart's dismissal. (Yonhap)
- NK's rare signal for dialogue with the US is drawing attention away from the upcoming joint military exercises between Seoul and Washington. (Lee Min-hyung, Korea Times)
- The dismissal of Rex Tillerson as top U.S. diplomat will have no effect on the allies' scheduled dialogue with NK (Yonhap)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- SK rejected a request by businessmen to visit NK's border city of Kaesong to inspect their facilities at the now-shuttered joint industrial complex. (Yonhap)
- For the first time in a decade, S. Koreans appear to wonder if their country will finally be at peace with NK. (Yonhap)
- Economics is off the agenda, but Moon strives for grand deal. (Ser Myo-ja, Kang Tae-hwa, J*oongang Ilbo*)
- The Moon administration announced that it is determined to resolve all the complex issues involving NK's nuclear weapons program with a single stroke. (Joongang Ilbo)
- The current reconciliatory mood will not directly lead to the reopening of the inter-Korean Gaeseong Industrial Complex. (Kim Rahn, Korea Times)
- An official with SK's Presidential Office said on Thursday it was too early to prepare for any inter-Korean economic projects in the upcoming summit with NK in April. (Reuters)

International:

- N. Korean FM Ri Yong-ho was seen at an airport in Beijing on Thursday, raising the possibility that his trip might be aimed at contacting US officials ahead of a proposed summit between the two countries. (Yonhap)
- N. Korean FM Ri Yong-ho plans to visit Sweden, raising the possibility that his trip might be aimed at contacting US officials ahead of a proposed summit between the two countries. (Yonhap)
- Following President Trump's dismissal of his top diplomat, speculations are rising here as to what ramifications, if any, the sudden decision could have on the planned summit between the US and NK. (Yonhap)
- President Trump says he will "talk denuclearization" at his planned summit with KJU — a word he has emphasized to underscore the tough line he plans to take in the most surprising foreign policy development of his presidency. (Anne Gearan, Washington Post)
- During six-months of research, the writer thought of going to NK as a tourist, but worried about being arrested as a spy: "Being stuck in NK for two years might have provided good material for a play but, in the end, it wasn't something I fancied." (Mark Lawson, Guardian)
- American voters are divided over whether President Trump should meet KJU without concrete steps to dismantle the regime's nuclear weapons program. (Yonhap)
- President Trump's decision to replace Rex Tillerson as secretary of state with CIA Director Mike Pompeo comes just days after the president surprised many by announcing his plans to meet soon with KJU. (Cindy Saine, VOA)
- If confirmed, President Trump's pick to succeed Tillerson, CIA Director Mike Pompeo, would come in with a strong working relationship with the president and a track record of giving broad autonomy to his underlings. (John Hudson, Washington Post)
- Differences over how to deal with NK's nuclear challenge were a key factor in President Trump's decision to replace Rex Tillerson as US secretary of state, according to sources familiar with the internal deliberations. (Steve Holland, Lesley Wroughton, Reuters)
- The White House has created a working group to prepare for the landmark meeting between President Trump and KJU of NK. (Mark Landler, NYT)
- N. Korean FM Ri Yong Ho is on his way to Sweden via Beijing,amid preparations for a planned meeting between President Trump and N. Korean leader KJU. (Reuters)
- China's President Xi offered encouragement for SK's initiative to nurture peaceful engagement with NK, and Russia also expressed support. (Christine Kim, Reuters)
- Rex Tillerson, one of the most consistent advocates of diplomacy with NK, was fired Tuesday as US secretary of state just days before S. Korean FM Kang flies to Washington to discuss the upcoming summits with Pyongyang. (Sarah Kim, Joongang Ilbo)
- Chinese and Russian leaders offered full support for SK and the US' respective summits with NK. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- European Parliament delegation said Wednesday it has been conducting secret talks with NKover the last three years to try to persuade Pyongyang to negotiate an end to its nuclear programme. (Telegraph)
- Here is the chance for Democrats and responsible Republicans willing to take their advise-and-consent responsibilities seriously, to demand answers to hard questions: (Jennifer Rubin, Washington Post)

- It's been a week since President Trump surprised the world -- and the White House -- by accepting an invitation to meet with NK's reclusive leader KJU. (Jamie Tarabay, CNN)
- Japan's pm Abe is considering a meeting with KJU in an apparent change of strategy in dealing with Pyongyang. (Danielle Demetriou, Telegraph)
- The lawyer for a Vietnamese woman accused of killing the N. Korean leader's estranged half-brother last year accused Malaysian authorities of prejudice toward his client, while questioning the prosecution's star witness on Wednesday. (RFA)
- Trump isn't going to be disciplined by someone whose views are dovish or establishmentarian. But he might listen to, and be tempered by, a responsible hawk. Especially when it comes to NK. (Bret Stephens, NYT)
- Progress is being made in setting up a system to monitor and document human rights violations in NK, particularly those that may amount to crimes against humanity. (Lisa Schlein, VOA)
- The head of the US Pacific Command said on Thursday the US does not have a "bloody nose" strategy for a possible preventive strike against NK, insisting that such a move "is not contemplated." (Reuters)
- S. Korean President Moon may hold a summit with President Trump after talks with KJU to brief him about the results of the inter-Korean meeting before Trump meets with the North's leader, PMr Lee Nak-yon. (Yonhap)
- The nomination of Mike Pompeo as the next secretary of state could shake up preparations for a historic and complicated summit between President Trump and KJU that could be just two months away. (Carol Morello, Washington Post)
- Senior officials from SK and Japan discussed details of President Moon and Trump's planned summits with KJU in their bilateral security policy consultation meeting. (Yonhap)
- Rex Tillerson may have spent the last 14 months being contradicted by his boss on all manner of foreign policy, but the now-fired Secretary of State was at least a known quantity for US allies during tense moments in 2017. (Jamie Tarabay, CNN)
- The operatic ouster of Rex Tillerson leaves a State Department angry and adrift, and a world even more confused about the management and direction of American foreign policy. (Steven Erlanger, NYT)
- Adm. Harry Harris, who oversees US military operations in the Indo-Pacific, said Thursday that "we can't be overly optimistic on outcomes" when it comes to the recently announced summit between President Trump and KJU. (Ryan Browne, CNN)
- If Trump has a shrewd eye on the chessboard, he should be able to discern NK's deeply rooted anti-China sentiment. (Hong Seok-hyun, Washington Post)
- President Trump on Wednesday appeared to threaten to withdraw US troops from SK if he can't get a better trade deal with Seoul. (Veronica Stracqualursi, CNN)
- President Trump's decision to replace Secretary of State Rex Tillerson with CIA Director Mike Pompeo is a warning and pressure directed at KJU. (Yonhap)
- President Trump on Tuesday ordered Secretary of State Rex Tillerson to resign and nominated CIA Director Mike Pompeo as new head of the State Department. (Joongang Ilbo)
- The US cannot be overly optimistic about the outcome of any summit between President Trump and N. Korean leader KJU and must go into it with "eyes wide open," (David Brunnstrom, Matt Spetalnick, Reuters)

- The White House on Wednesday touted the accomplishments of Central Intelligence Agency Director Mike Pompeo, who was tapped a day earlier to be the new top US diplomat. (Yonhap)
- Since Pompeo could have a key role in preparing for a potential Trump summit with N.Korean leader KJU, he may want his own choice to help manage that effort. (Josh Rogin, Washington Post)
- While Xi tried to establish influence on both South and North Korea through equidistant diplomacy, he was slapped in the face by North Korea and snubbed by the South. (You Sang-chul, Joongang Ilbo)

Prepared by Huiwon Yun, HRNK Legal Research Intern

——————————————————

Friday, March 16, 2018

UN Body Freezing Out Human Rights Groups; Human Rights Council Oral Updates on DPRK; Moon, Trump reaffirm close cooperation on N. Korea in phone talks

Top News:

UN Body Freezing Out Human Rights Groups (Human Rights Watch, 03/15/2018)
Human Rights Council: Oral Updates on DPRK (UN Deputy HC for Human Rights, 03/14/2018)

In North Korea:

(LEAD) N.K. media reports foreign minister's trip to Sweden (Yonhap, 03/16/2018)
Chinese Traders Hope For Return to North Korea (RFA, 03/16/2018)
Knife fights, market forces changing North Korea 'self-criticism' sessions (UPI, 03/16/2018)
N. Korea to join Ramsar Convention in May (Yonhap, 03/16/2018)
Nobel Peace Prize for this guy? (Korea Times, 03/16/2018)
North Korea diplomats in Beijing, Stockholm ahead of U.S. summit (UPI, 03/16/2018)
North Korea nuclear reactors show new signs of activity (CNN, 03/15/2018)
North Korea says will talk to Sweden on 'bilateral relations' among other issues: KCNA (Reuters, 03/16/2018)
North Korea's top envoy flies to Sweden (Joongang Ilbo, 03/16/2018)
North Korean authorities demand residents use oxcarts as fuel supplies become scarce (DailyNK, 03/16/2018)
North Korean foreign minister visits Sweden amid summit speculation (Reuters, 03/16/2018)
North Korean minister in 'constructive' talks in Sweden (AP, 03/16/2018)
North Koreans hope government will relax media crackdown with inter-Korean thaw (DailyNK, 03/16/2018)
Report: North Korea flouting, evading UN sanctions (CNN, 03/15/2018)
Report: North Korea rocket engine includes Ukrainian technology (UPI, 03/16/2018)

Satellite photos indicate declining cargo movement on N.K.-China border: report (Yonhap, 03/16/2018)
Wine and Diamonds: How North Korea Dodges Sanctions (NYT, 03/16/2018)

In South Korea:
(LEAD) S. Korea's top diplomat begins U.S. trip ahead of N.K. summits (Yonhap, 03/15/2018)
(2nd LD) Moon says Pyongyang-Tokyo ties are significant (Yonhap, 03/16/2018)
Kang calls for continued support from U.S. congressional leaders on Korea issues (Yonhap, 03/15/2018)
Kim would do 'victory dance' if U.S. troops left Korea: U.S. commander (Yonhap, 03/15/2018)
Leading businesspeople to accompany Moon to Vietnam, UAE tour: sources (Yonhap, 03/16/2018)
Minister stresses int'l cooperation for N.K. denuclearization (Yonhap, 03/16/2018)
Moon's approval rating rises to 74 percent thanks to improved ties with N. Korea (Yonhap, 03/16/2018)
S. Korea, U.S. set for biennial meeting for defense discussion (Yonhap, 03/16/2018)
South Koreans want to know what Trump really meant by 'Let's see what happens' (Washington Post, 03/15/2018)
U.S.-South Korea Military Drills to be Smaller, Shorter (VOA, 03/16/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
(LEAD) Inter-Korean summit expected to be one-day meeting: official (Yonhap, 03/16/2018)
(LEAD) S. Korea to push for summit preparation talks with N. Korea late this month (Yonhap, 03/16/2018)
Moon says S. Korea's destiny can change dramatically through inter-Korean, U.S.-N. Korea summits (Yonhap, 03/16/2018)
S.Korea gears up for summit, report shows N.Korea testing reactor (Reuters, 03/16/2018)
Seoul aims for more talks about talks with North Korea this month (Reuters, 03/16/2018)
Seoul will propose high-level talks this month (Joongang Ilbo, 03/16/2018)
South Korea to seek talks with North Korea in preparation for summit (Reuters, 03/16/2018)
South Korea's taekwondo team to visit North Korea next month (Korea Times, 03/16/2018)

International:
(3rd LD) Moon, Trump reaffirm close cooperation on N. Korea in phone talks (Yonhap, 03/16/2018)
All this chaos is a sign of Trump's confidence (Washington Post, 03/15/2018)
Before meeting with Kim, Trump should look back to Reykjavik (Washington Post, 03/15/2018)
Ex-US diplomat: North Korea 'surprised' Trump agreed to meeting (NY .Ppost, 03/16/2018)
Exclusive: Former US envoy says North Korea surprised Trump said yes to talks (CNN, 03/15/2018)
Experts: US, North Korea Heading for Collision Over Meaning of 'Denuclearization' (VOA, 03/16/2018)
Foreign Minister Kang to Meet Ivanka Trump in US (KBS World 03/15/2018)
In uncharted waters (Joongang Ilbo, 03/16/2018)
Is anyone sure North Korea actually invited Trump? (Washington Post, 03/16/2018)
In Faint Praise of Rex Tillerson (NYT, 03/16/2018)

Japan says South Korea's Moon promised help to resolve North Korea abduction issue (Reuters, 03/16/2018)
Japan, EU submit draft resolution on N. Korea's human rights to U.N. (Yonhap, 03/16/2018)
Kang makes Washington rounds (Joongang Ilbo, 03/16/2018)
Mattis calls Tillerson firing a 'Washington D.C. story' (Reuters, 03/16/2018)
Moon, Abe agree on drawing NK action for denuclearization (Korea Times, 03/16/2018)
N. Korean Top Diplomat's Sweden Talks Could Pave Way for Trump-Kim Summit (VOA, 03/16/2018)
North Korea: The one big thing Trump needs to be clear about when he meets with Kim (Fox News, 03/16/2018)
North Korean minister's Swedish visit fuels Trump-Kim expectations (Guardian, 03/16/2018)
S. Korea, Vietnam hold public diplomacy forum ahead of Moon's visit (Yonhap, 03/15/2018)
Senior Chinese foreign policy advisor's visit to S. Korea delayed by a week (Yonhap, 03/16/2018)
Sources: Trump ready to replace H.R. McMaster as national security adviser (CNN, 03/15/2018)
South Korea says Japan's Abe expressed wish for talks with North Korea (Reuters, 03/16/2018)
Southeast Asian leaders gather for first Australia summit (AP, 03/16/2018)
Sweden hosts North Korean foreign minister amid speculation (AP, 03/16/2018)
Sweden pledges to support historic US-North Korea dialogue (CNN, 03/16/2018)
Sweden says happy to help on North Korea, amid summit speculation (Reuters, 03/16/2018)
Top diplomats of S. Korea, Japan to meet to discuss N.K. (Yonhap, 03/16/2018)
Trump, S.Korea's Moon vow to keep max pressure on N.Korea (AP, 03/16/2018)
Trump needs to be clear about one thing in meeting with Kim Jong Un (Wahington Post, 03/16/2018)
Two days of talks will focus on upcoming Trump-Kim summit (Joongang Ilbo, 03/16/2018)
Unrealistic expectations will doom the North Korea summit (Wahington Post, 03/16/2018)
US-North Korea meeting: N Korean Minister in surprise Sweden visit (BBC, 03/16/2018)
U.S. 'going forward' on preparations for N.K. summit (Yonhap, 03/15/2018)
U.S. envoy says he urged North Korea to release Americans before summit (Reuters, 03/16/2018)
US Moving Forward with Proposed US- North Korea Talks (VOA, 03/16/2018)
White House defends President Trump's blistering comments about trade partners (Washington Post, 03/16/2018)
Will Sweden host Trump-Kim summit? North Korean official visits country for talks (Telegraph, 03/16/2018)

Top News:

- Elections for the NGO Committee are set for April. Governments that value the role of nongovernmental organizations in promoting respect for human rights should seek seats. It's essential that the committee become a body that works with, not against, civil society. (Louis Charbonneau, Human Rights Watch)
- The international community's aim must be to support long-term, a principled protection and accountability approach that improves the situation for the people of the DPRK. Measures that will hold those responsible for human rights violations to account are necessary steps in this, and will provide victims with their right to justice, to remedy, to restoration of their dignity. (UN Deputy HC for Human Rights)

In North Korea:

- NK's foreign minister has left for Sweden to meet with his Swedish counterpart to discuss bilateral ties and issues of mutual concerns (Yonhap)
- Chinese businessmen put out of work in NK because of tightened international sanctions against Pyongyang are eyeing a return to normal trade as talk builds of possible talks between national leader KJU and Trump. (Joonho Kim, RFA)
- N. Korean society is changing, and incidents like knife fights and the growing influence of markets are taking a toll on the way local communities in the country conduct "self-criticism" sessions, according to sources in the country. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- NK will become a member of the Ramsar Convention on Wetlands, an intergovernmental treaty to protect and efficiently use environmentally important wetlands, in May. (Yonhap)
- If there could be lasting peace on the Korean Peninsula after two summits by the end of May, all three protagonists — President Moon, President Trump and, yes, NK's young dictator KJU — would deserve a piece of this year's Nobel Peace Prize. (Oh Young-jin, Korea Times)
- N. Korean diplomats have been sighted abroad, including Stockholm and Beijing, ahead of a planned summit between President Trump and leader KJU. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- New satellite imagery examined by Western experts suggests NK has begun preliminary testing of one of its nuclear reactors at the Yongbyon research facility. (Tim Lister, CNN)
- NK's state media said on Friday its fm, Ri Yong Ho, had left the country for Sweden the day before to meet his counterpart Margot Wallstrom to "exchange views on the bilateral relations and issues of mutual concern". (Reuters)
- The N. Korean authorities have recently ordered residents to increase their usage of ox carts instead of motorized vehicles, as it has become more difficult to source fuel in the wake of international sanctions. (Ha Yoon Ah, DailyNK)
- Two days of talks will focus on upcoming Trump-Kim summit (Sarah Kim, Joongang Ilbo)
- NK's foreign minister landed in Sweden on Thursday for talks, prompting speculation that the two-day trip could lay the groundwork for a possible meeting between President Trump and KJU. (Reuters)
- Sweden's fm held what she called "good and constructive" talks with her N. Korean counterpart on Friday amid growing speculation about a possible meeting in the Scandinavian country between President Trump and KJU. (Jan M. Olsen, David Keyton, AP)
- Sources inside NK are reporting that residents are expressing hopes of improved inter-Korean relations after the highly-publicized recent meeting in Pyongyang between KJU and a team of South Korean special envoys. (Ha Yoon Ah, DailyNK)
- Hugh Griffiths, the head of the UN's Panel of Experts on NK, speaks about sanctions enforcement on the hermit nation. (CNN)
- A rocket engine NK used in the test of its intercontinental ballistic missiles may have been of Ukrainian origin. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- Recent satellite photos indicate that the movement of goods across the N. Korean-Chinese border has sharply declined amid international sanctions on the North. (Yonhap)
- The UN detailed on Friday how NK gets around international sanctions designed to hobble the government and its nuclear weapons program. (Motoko Rich, NYT)

In South Korea:

- S. Korean FM Kang arrived in Washington Thursday to meet with US officials over the two nations' planned summits with NK. (Yonhap)
- President Moon told Japan's PM Abe on Friday that Pyongyang-Tokyo relations should improve to help address the NK issue. (Yonhap)
- SK's top diplomat has asked for continued support from US congressional leaders for efforts to resolve issues related to the Korean Peninsula, ranging from security to trade and economic cooperation between the allies. (Yonhap)
- N. Korean leader KJU would do a "victory dance" if the US pulled its troops from South Korea (Yonhap)
- Leaders of SK's major business groups and economic organizations will accompany President Moon on his visit to Vietnam and the UAE next week to further strengthen economic cooperation. (Yonhap)
- SK's unification minister on Friday stressed the importance of international cooperation in seeking NK's denuclearization and improving inter-Korean ties. (Yonhap)
- President Moon approval rating rose 3 percentage points, to 74 percent, from a week earlier thanks to positive views of his handling of relations with NK, a survey showed Friday. (Yonhap)
- SK and the US will hold their biennial defense dialogue next week in Washington to discuss cooperation on denuclearization of NK. (Yonhap)
- "So we lose money on trade, and we lose money on the military. We have right now 32,000 soldiers on the border between North and South Korea. Let's see what happens." (John Hudson, Washington Post)
- The US and SK have decided to scale down and shorten annual joint military exercises in light of a diplomatic rapprochement with Pyongyang. (VOA)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- Next month's summit between President Moon and KJU is expected to be a one-day meeting. (Yonhap)
- SK will propose holding high-level talks with NK late this month to work out the details of a planned summit between President Moon and KJU. (Yonhap)
- President Moon said Friday that SK will see its "destiny change dramatically" and leap forward if it takes advantage of the planned inter-Korean and US-NK summits to bring peace to the divided peninsula. (Yonhap)
- S. Korean officials began preparations on Friday for a summit next month with NK aimed at reducing tensions on the peninsula, as a report showed the North had probably begun testing a nuclear reactor as recently as late February. (Christine Kim, Reuters)
- SK said on Friday it was seeking high-level talks this month with NK to prepare for a summit and that the S. Korean president may meet Trump before the US president's planned meeting with the N. Korean leader. (Christine Kim, Lesley Wroughton, Reuters)

- South Korea will propose a senior-level dialogue with North Korea at the end of this month to prepare for the inter-Korean summit in April. (Ser Myo-ja, Joongang Ilbo)
- SK will make a request to hold high-level talks with NK over a planned summit meeting of their leaders. (Reuters)
- In an effort to maintain a peaceful atmosphere on the Korean Peninsula, SK will send a team of taekwondo athletes to NK next month. (Jung Min-ho, Korea Times)

International:

- President Moon assured Trump on Friday that his government will be in lockstep with Washington on summit diplomacy with NK. (Yonhap)
- Trump's shift in N. Korean policy was, by all accounts, a spur-of-the-moment sort of thing — less like a high-stakes diplomatic gambit with nuclear implications and more like, hey, what the hell, let's have breakfast for dinner. (Michael Gerson, Wahington Post)
- The history of that remarkable weekend in Iceland, Oct. 11-12, 1986, when President Ronald Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev improvised their way — almost — to eliminating their nuclear arsenals, is worth examining now as the president heads toward meeting KJU. (David E. Hoffman, Wahington Post)
- The ex-US diplomat who spearheaded Washington's efforts on NK said officials in Pyongyang were "surprised" that President Trump was so quick to agree to a sit-down with leader KJU. (Yaron Steinbuch, NY Post)
- The man who spearheaded US diplomatic efforts on NK until his unexpected retirement earlier this month said the N. Koreans were "surprised" that President Trump agreed to meet with leader KJU so quickly. (Laura Koran, CNN)
- A difference in how the US and NK define denuclearization could potentially derail the summit scheduled for May between President Trump and KJU, according to experts. (Christy Lee, VOA)
- S. Korean FM Kang will meet with President Trump's daughter during her visit to the US. (KBS World)
- The Moon government's Olympics diplomacy led to agreements to hold an inter-Korean summit and a NK-US summit. (Joongang Ilbo)
- The Trump administration, to our knowledge, has yet to hear from NK that it actually wants a meeting between KJU and President Trump. (Jennifer Rubin, Washington Post)
- Now, with an international summit between Trump and the N. Korean leader KJU ostensibly two months away, Tillerson leaves a State Department where the top North Korea expert, Joseph Yun, has just resigned (in great frustration, I hear). (Roger Cohen, NYT)
- Japan said on Friday that President Moon had promised to help PM Abe resolve the issue of Japanese abducted by NK and agreed to keep maximum pressure on Pyongyang over its nuclear and missile programmes. (Reuters)
- Japan and the EU have jointly submitted a draft resolution on NK's human rights violations to a UN panel. (Yonhap)
- Trip proceeds despite tumult in White House, Tillerson's exit. (Sarah Kim, Joongang Ilbo)

- Differences over how to deal with NK's nuclear challenge were a key factor in Trump's decision to replace Tillerson as America's top diplomat. (Reuters)
- Seoul, Tokyo and Washington need to strengthen cooperation so that NK's statements on denuclearization will develop into concrete action, S. Korean President Moon and Japanese PM Abe agreed in a telephone conversation, Friday. (Kim Bo-eun, Korea Times)
- Sweden's UN ambassador, Olof Skoog, said Friday his country is trying to help de-escalate tensions on the Korean Peninsula by hosting N. Korean FM Ri Yong Ho, a visit some global observers believe could help pave the way for a meeting between the leaders of the US and NK. (VOA)
- A face-to-face meeting is a chance for Trump to look Kim in the eye and tell him: You will not be allowed to deploy missiles that can reach U.S. cites. (Marc Thiessen, Fox News)
- Ri Yong-ho expected to hold second day of talks with Swedish counterpart in Stockholm. (Guardian)
- SK and Vietnam have reaffirmed their commitment to further develop their cooperation, in a public diplomacy forum ahead of President Moon's visit to the Southeast Asian nation. (Yonhap)
- His trip comes as SK and the US are preparing to hold their respective summits with NK to discuss denuclearization. (Yonhap)
- President Trump is ready to oust Lt. Gen. H.R. McMaster and find a new national security adviser before the NK meetings in May. (Pamela Brown, Gloria Borger, Zachary Cohen and Maeve Reston, CNN)
- Japanese PM Abe on Friday expressed a wish for talks with NK following Pyongyang's planned summits with SK and the US. (Reuters)
- The dual themes of the Sydney summit are security and prosperity, with the threat to both posed by NK high on the agenda. (Rod McGuirk, AP)
- NK's foreign minister met with his Swedish counterpart Thursday after making a surprise trip to Stockholm that has fueled speculation about a meeting between President Trump and KJU. (David Keyton, AP)
- Sweden's top diplomat said Friday that her country stands ready to assist the US and NK in moving forward a historic dialogue between the two nations. (Euan McKirdy, CNN)
- Sweden is happy to help resolve tensions on the Korean peninsula but it is up to the parties involved to try to find a way forward. (Reuters)
- The top diplomats of SK and Japan will hold a meeting later this week to discuss NK's nuclear issue and other matters of mutual concern. (Yonhap)
- President Trump and S.Korean President Moon, who are both planning to meet KJU this spring, pledged Friday to maintain "maximum pressure" on his authoritarian regime and seek action on giving up his nukes. (Matthew Pennington, AP)
- With the nomination and likely confirmation of Mike Pompeo as secretary of state, President Trump will soon have a trusted adviser who can prepare him for his upcoming summit with N. Korean dictator KJU. (Marc A. Thiessen, Washington Post)
- N. Korean FM Ri Yong-ho arrived in Stockholm on Thursday for talks with his Swedish counterpart likely to set the groundwork for the summit between President Trump and N. Korean leader KJU. (Sarah Kim, Joongang Ilbo)

- The combination of escalating military threats, stiff economic sanctions and a united front among allies and China, as well as the deft and disciplined efforts of S. Korean President Moon to lower tensions with Pyongyang, have brought us, finally, to negotiations. (Nathan Gardels, Washington Post)
- NK's fm has attended talks in Stockholm with Sweden's PM Stefan Lofven, ahead of a possible meeting between President Trump and KJU. (BBC)
- The US is pushing ahead with preparations for a summit with NK despite the regime's silence on its offer to meet. (Yonhap)
- The State Department's recently retired envoy for NK said on Thursday he has urged NK to send a positive signal by releasing three American prisoners before a possible summit between President Trump and KJU. (Reuters)
- A major shakeup in President Trump's Cabinet has not derailed plans for an unprecedented meeting between the president and the leader of NK. (VOA)
- Trump said. "We lose money on trade, and we lose money on the military. We have right now 32,000 soldiers on the border between North and South Korea. Let's see what happens." (Josh Dawsey, Damian Paletta, Washington Post)
- NK's foreign minister has travelled to Sweden for talks, giving rise to speculation that the Scandinavian country could play host to the unprecedented summit between President Trump and KJU. (Nicola Smith, Telegraph)

Prepared by Huiwon Yun, HRNK Legal Research Intern

Saturday, March 17, 2018

Top diplomats of S. Korea, U.S. vow close coordination on N. Korea; N.Korean top diplomat extends talks with Sweden; N. Korea raps Japan for seeking to cripple ongoing dialogue

In North Korea:
North Korea's Most Powerful Missile Now Has Its Own Shrine (NYT, 03/17/2018)
N. Korea raps Japan for seeking to cripple ongoing dialogue (Yonhap, 03/17/2018)

In South Korea:
(2nd LD) Moon says Pyongyang-Tokyo ties are significant (Yonhap, 03/17/2018)
How SKorea leader took the reins in NKorea nuclear diplomacy (WaPo, 03/17/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
S. Korean foreign minister upbeat about upcoming summits with N. Korea (Yonhap, 03/17/2018)

International:

Analysts Predict Tougher Stance on Iran, North Korea Under Pompeo (VOA, 03/17/2018)
China says resolutely opposed to new U.S. law on ties with Taiwan (Reuters, 03/17/2018)
Donald Trump loses patience with 'no men' as speculation of mass sackings reaches fever pitch (Telegraph, 03/16/2018)
No Heads Rolled at the White House on Friday. But Anxiety Abounds (NYT, 03/16/2018)
North Korean minister meets again with Swedish counterpart (WaPo, 03/17/2018)
N. Korean, Swedish Officials Resuming Talks Amid Trump-Kim Summit Speculation (VOA, 03/16/2018)
N.K. top diplomat extends talks with Sweden to Saturday: report (Yonhap, 03/17/2018)
Spies, Not Diplomats, Take Lead Role in Planning Trump's North Korea Meeting (NYT, 03/16/2018)
Top diplomats of S. Korea, U.S. vow close coordination on N. Korea (Yonhap, 03/17/2018)
Trump signs U.S.-Taiwan travel bill, angering China (Reuters, 03/16/2018)
Will Trump convince Kim Jong Un to give up nuclear weapons? (WaPo, 03/17/2018)

In North Korea:

- Satellite-images taken between last December and March 11 show how N.K. is converting the site of its most powerful missile launch into a monument. (William J. Broad, NYT)
- N.K. condemned Japan's call for continued sanctions against the communist state Saturday, accusing Tokyo of trying to undermine the recent improvement in its ties with S.K. and the US. (Yonhap)

In South Korea:

- S.K. President Moon told Japan's Prime Minister Shinzo Abe on Friday that Pyongyang-Tokyo relations should improve to help address the N.K. issue. (Yonhap)
- Having a meeting with KJU and convincing Trump to meet KJU don't mean the decades-long effort to thwart the North's nuclear ambition is settled, but it's clear that Moon is having a diplomatic moment. (Hyung-Jin Kim, AP)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- S.K.'s top diplomat has voiced hope that the planned summits with N.K. will produce a "breakthrough" in finding a way toward a peaceful resolution of the North's nuclear and missile issue. (Yonhap)

International:

- Tillerson's designated replacement, Pompeo, has often taken a hardline approach to N.K., emphasizing the existential threat Pyongyang's nuclear missiles pose to cities on the U.S mainland. (Cindy Saine, VOA)

- China's Foreign Ministry on Saturday expressed its "resolute opposition" after Trump signed legislation that encourages the US to send senior officials to Taiwan to meet Taiwanese counterparts and vice versa. (Reuters)
- Trump's patience with his administration's 'no men' appeared finally up on Friday as speculation of imminent sackings entered overdrive. Trump was reportedly on the brink of dismissing a string of moderating figures who have hemmed in his hardline instincts over the last year. (Ben Riley-Smith, Nick Allen, Telegraph)
- Seeking to tamp down the anxiety inside the West Wing and the sense of never-ending dysfunction, Trump refrained from any firings-by-tweet. His chief of staff delivered a message that nobody will be fired for now. (Michael D. Shear, Maggie Haberman, NYT)
- N.K.'s foreign minister met again Saturday with his Swedish counterpart amid growing speculation about a possible meeting in the Scandinavian country between Trump and KJU. (Jan M. Olsen, David Keyton, AP)
- Talks are resuming Saturday in Sweden between Swedish officials and N.K. Foreign Minister Ri Yong Ho. Some global observers say the discussions could help pave the way for a meeting between Trump and KJU. (VOA)
- N.K.'s foreign minister will continue talks with his Swedish counterpart Saturday, extending his schedule in Stockholm by one day, a news report said, ahead of a proposed summit between the North and the US. (Yonhap)
- The CIA has emerged as the primary player in Trump's audacious diplomatic opening to N.K., conducting back-channel communications and taking a major role in planning Trump's meeting with KJU. (Mark Landler, NYT)
- S.K. Foreign Minister Kang Kyung-wha met with Deputy Secretary of State John Sullivan at the State Department to discuss recent developments between two Koreas, and between the U.S. and N.K. (Yonhap)
- Trump on Friday signed legislation that encourages the US to send senior officials to Taiwan to meet Taiwanese counterparts and vice versa, angering China, which views the self-ruled island as a wayward province. (David Brunnstrom, Reuters)
- Previous presidents have taken a much more cautious and methodical approach to negotiations with N.K. — but in some ways, Trump's brisk approach might be seen as a tactical opportunity to make N.K. give up its nukes. (Martine Powers, WaPo)

Prepared by James Park, HRNK Research Intern

Sunday, March 18, 2018

N.K. diplomat heads to Finland for semiofficial talks with Washington, Seoul; Sweden, North Korea talks end, may help pave way for Trump-Kim encounter

In North Korea:

N. Korea exports contaminated food supplements (Korea Times, 03/18/2018)
N. Korea gives foreigners access to 'sacred' places in return for money (Korea Times, 03/18/2018)
N. Korea may resume Arirang mass games in September (Korea Times, 03/18/2018)
N. Korea to join Ramsar Convention in May (Korea Times, 03/18/2018)
North Korea's Most Powerful Missile Now Has Its Own Shrine (NYT, 03/17/2018)
North Korea safe from #MeToo? (Korea Times, 03/18/2018)

In South Korea:
Relishing its role, Seoul plans more summits (Joongang Ilbo, 03/18/2018)
Why so quiet? (Joongang Ilbo, 03/18/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
(LEAD) Koreas to meet on Tuesday over S. Korean art performance in Pyongyang (Yonhap, 03/18/2018)
Joint development of N. Korean mines expected to create over 90,000 jobs yearly in two Koreas: think tank (Yonhap, 03/18/2018)
Olympics are over. Will peace continue? (Korea Times, 03/18/2018)
Report: Joint Korean projects on mines could generate 90,000 jobs (UPI, 03/18/2018)

International:
(LEAD) N.K. diplomat heads to Finland for semiofficial talks with Washington, Seoul (Yonhap, 03/18/2018)
(LEAD) N. Korean, Swedish foreign ministers conclude rare talks (Yonhap, 03/18/2018)
Can Kim become pro-American? (Joongang Ilbo, 03/18/2018)
Five middle-power countries welcome Olympics-driven peace efforts (Yonhap, 03/18/2018)
German spy agency said North Korean rockets can reach Europe: paper (Reuters, 03/18/2018)
North Korean diplomat heads to Finland (Joongang Ilbo, 03/18/2018)
North Korean diplomats discuss denuclearization in Stockholm (UPI, 03/18/2018)
North Korea's Kim congratulates China's Xi on re-election as president (Reuters, 03/17/2018)
North Korea-Sweden Talks Focus on 'Peaceful Solution' to Nuclear Conflict (NYT, 03/17/2018)
North Korea to hold unofficial talks with South Korea, U.S. in Finland (UPI, 03/18/2018)
North Korea, US representatives to meet in Finland (CNN, 03/18/2018)
Now North Korean diplomat heads to Finland amid new diplomatic flurry (Reuters, 03/17/2018)
Postwar betrayal (Joongang Ilbo, 03/18/2018)
Southeast Asia, Australia 'gravely' concerned by North Korean weapons (Reuters, 03/18/2018)
Southeast Asia Leaders Back Sanctions Against North Korea (VOA, 03/18/2018)
Southeast Asia leaders urge tough stance on North Korea (WaPo, 03/18/2018)
South Korea: North Korean and Former US Diplomats to Meet in Finland (VOA, 03/18/2018)
Sweden helping negotiate release of Americans held in North Korea (CNN, 03/18/2018)
Sweden, North Korea end 3 days of talks on security issues (WaPo, 03/17/2018)
Sweden, North Korea talks end, may help pave way for Trump-Kim encounter (Reuters, 03/17/2018)
White House firings signal Trump's most hawkish era yet on North Korea and Iran (Guardian, 03/18/2018)

In North Korea:

- N. Korean food supplements sold overseas are contaminated with excessive levels of heavy metals, sources familiar with the matter say. (Yi Whan-woo, Korea Times)
- NK is allowing international tourists to enter "sacred" places associated with its late leaders Kim Il-sung and Kim Jong-il in return for money amid international sanctions on its regime, according to sources familiar with Pyongyang. (Yi Whan-woo, Korea Times)
- NK may resume its Arirang mass games, its signature dance and gymnastic performance suspended since 2014, in September, according to a NK tour operator. (Yi Whan-woo, Korea Times)
- NK will join the Ramsar Convention on Wetlands, an international treaty for the conservation and sustainable use of wetlands, in May, according to the Ramsar Secretariat. (Yi Whan-woo, Korea Times)
- Satellite images show construction of a shrine to NK's most powerful missile, the Hwasong-15, that could hit anywhere in the US. (William J. Broad, NYT)
- Many N. Korean women are subject to sexual assaults in their workplaces, especially in the military, where superiors exploit their power to rape their female juniors.This means the secretive state is still far from the #MeToo Movement that has affected politics, culture and all other sectors in SK. (Yi Whan-woo, Korea Times)

In South Korea:

- With SK laying the groundwork for its summit with NK next month and a landmark summit between NK and the US later, the Moon administration is making the most of its diplomatic moment - by squeezing in more summits in between. (Wie Moon-hee,Joongang Ilbo)
- The Moon administration does not want to lose the momentum for dialogue with NK. But if the government simply begs for public understanding, it will invite not only public outrage over the administration keeping an overly low profile, but also internal division. (Joongang Ilbo)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- NK ans SK will meet on Tuesday to discuss a performance in Pyongyang by a S. Korean art troupe, officials here said. (Yonhap)
- The two Koreas' joint development of N. Korean major mines, if implemented, is expected to create more than 90,000 jobs in the two Koreas annually, a report by a private think tank showed Sun. (Yonhap)
- The 2018 PyeongChang Olympics and Paralympic Winter Games, which wrapped up their run Sunday, resulted in a dramatic, peaceful shift in security on the Korean Peninsula, according to analysts. (Yi Whan-woo, Korea Times)
- A joint inter-Korean development of major mines in NK to create more than 90,000 jobs a year, according to a Seoul-based think tank. (Jennie Oh, UPI)

International:

- A senior N. Korean diplomat handling affairs with the US headed to Finland on Sun. for semiofficial talks with the US. and SK. (Yonhap)
- The foreign ministers of NK and Sweden have ended their three-day talks, which were widely expected to deal with the planned summit between Trump and the KJU as well as American citizens detained in NK. (Yonhap)
- There is no room for Trump or Kim to fail in the upcoming summit. Success is not a choice but a necessity. In the case of failure, the Korean Peninsula and Northeast Asia will fall into a situation more dangerous than ever before. The two leaders must trust each other and bungee jump off the cliff together. (Hong Seok-hyun, Joongang Ilbo)
- SK and its four middle-power partners of MIKTA, a cross-regional cooperative forum of SK, Mexico, Indonesia, Turkey and Australia issued a statement Sunday welcoming the revived peace efforts driven by the PyeongChang Winter Games. (Yonhap)
- N. Korean rockets can now be fitted with nuclear weapons and could reach Germany and central Europe, a top official with Germany's foreign intelligence agency told lawmakers this week. (Reuters)
- Choe Kang-il, a senior diplomat handling North American affairs in NK's Foreign Ministry, was seen at a Beijing airport on Sun. en route to Finland for a two-day meeting with former US and S. Korean officials that is expected to thaw tensions between the reclusive regime and the US. (Jeong Yong-soo, Kim Sung-tak, Joongang Ilbo)
- N. Korean diplomats met Swedish officials in Stockholm to discuss denuclearization and security on the Korean peninsula, ahead of NK's upcoming summit with the US, S. Korean media reported Sunday. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- KJU has offered his congratulations to China's Xi Jinping upon his re-election as president, N. Korean state media said on Sun., in a rare direct message from Pyongyang to Beijing after ties nosedived. (Reuters)
- The Swedish and N. Korean foreign ministers concluded three days of talks in Stockholm on Sat. over the security situation on the Korean Peninsula, discussions that may help facilitate a meeting between Trump and KJU. (Christina Anderson, NYT)
- A N. Korean diplomat will hold unofficial talks with SK and the US this week in Finland, ahead of Pyongyang's upcoming summits with both countries. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- Representatives of NK, SK, and the US are set to meet in Finland for talks on denuclearization, according to S. Korean and Finnish officials. (David McKenzie, Jungeun Kim, Yuli Yang, CNN)
- A senior N. Korean diplomat left for Finland on Sun. for talks with former US and S. Korean officials amid a series of diplomatic encounters ahead of a possible US-NK summit. (Reuters)
- To Americans, the French and S. Koreans have both been ungrateful, but France is strong and does not have an enemy threatening war. SK, on the other hand, runs the risk of nuclear war without US protection. (Bok Geo-il, Joongang Ilbo)
- Southeast Asian countries and Australia said on Sun. they held "grave concerns" about escalating tension caused by NK's nuclear and missile programs and urged "irreversible" denuclearization. (Reuters)

- Southeast Asian leaders and Australia's prime minister Sun. called on NK to end its nuclear program and urged United Nations countries to fully implement sanctions. (AP)
- Southeast Asian leaders and Australia's prime minister on Sun. called on NK to end its nuclear program and urged UN countries to fully implement sanctions against the country. (Trevor Marshallsea, AP)
- S. Korean media said Sun. a senior N. Korean diplomat is headed to Finland to meet with former US diplomats, this after a N. Korean delegation wrapped up three days of talks with Swedish diplomats that could lead to a possible meeting between Trump and KJU. (VOA)
- Sweden is helping negotiate the release of three Americans held captive in NK, sources with knowledge of the negotiations tell CNN. (Susannah Cullinane, Julia Jones, CNN)
- Sweden's foreign minister concluded three days of talks Sat. with her N. Korean counterpart, saying they discussed the "opportunities and challenges for continued diplomatic efforts to reach a peaceful solution" to the Koreas' security dispute. (Jan M. Olsen, David Keyton, AP)
- The N. Korean and Swedish foreign ministers ended three days of talks on Sat. on the security situation on the Korean peninsula which may help prepare the way for a planned meeting between Trump and KJU. (Reuters)
- In foreign policy, the new era looks to be more confrontational. At the state department, Tillerson's job is being taken by the CIA director Pompeo, who is considerably more hawkish that his predecessor on Iran and NK. (Julian Borger, Guardian)

Prepared by Emma Stubblefield, HRNK Research Intern

——————————————————

Monday, March 19, 2018

The Kim regime wants cash & What is to be done?; In Pursuit of North Korean Human Rights and Denuclearization; S. Korea, U.S. to announce joint military training schedule Tuesday

Top News:

The Kim regime wants cash & What is to be done? Greg Scarlatoiu, Executive Director of the Committee for Human Rights in North Korea. (The John Batchelor Show, 03/07/2018)

In Pursuit of North Korean Human Rights and Denuclearization (Lawfare, 03/18/2018)

In North Korea:

(Yonhap Feature) Foreign-run university in N. Korea serves as window to rare capitalist education (Yonhap, 03/19/2018)

[Photo] North Korean king crab for sale in China in latest sanctions breach (Daily NK, 03/19/2018)

Kim Jong Un's latest overtures follow pattern of attempted switch to international decorum (Daily NK, 03/19/2018)

North Korea launches updated national tourism portal website (NKNews.org, 03/19/2018)

North Korean official to meet US delegation in Finland to discuss 'denuclearization' (Telegraph, 03/19/2018)
Reforestation in North Korea (NK Econ Watch, 03/19/2018)
Report: North Korea imported large amounts of diamonds, wine, cosmetics (UPI, 03/19/2018)
Senior N. Korean diplomat set for meeting with ex-South Korean, U.S. officials in Helsinki (Yonhap, 03/19/2018)

In South Korea:
KCCI panel praises North's changing economy (Joongang Daily, 03/19/2018)
Kim Jong-un has committed to denuclearisation, says South Korea (Guardian, 03/18/2018)
N.K. leader gave 'his word' on denuclearization: Kang (Yonhap, 03/19/2018)
New Northern Policy seeks to contribute to peace on Korean Peninsula (Yonhap, 03/19/2018)
Seoul forming new missile unit to take down North Korean artillery sites (UPI, 03/19/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
(LEAD) Cho Yong-pil, Lee Sun-hee to perform at S. Korea's Pyongyang concert (Yonhap, 03/19/2018)
K-pop artist heads North to plan concert (Joongang Daily, 03/19/2018)
Mainstream K-pop stars may perform at S. Korea's Pyongyang concert (Yonhap, 03/19/2018)
North Korea Nuclear Summits Planning Underway (VOA, 03/19/2018)
S. Korean art troupe's gig in N.K. likely to center on S. Korean pop music (Yonhap, 03/19/2018)

International:
(LEAD) S. Korea, U.S. to announce joint military training schedule Tuesday (Yonhap, 03/19/2018)
Japan afraid of being excluded from N. Korea talks (Korea Times, 03/19/2018)
North Korea in talks to release US detainees (The National, 03/19/2018)
No location, no agenda: Trump administration scrambles for North Korea talks (Washington Post, 03/19/2018)
Reading the tea leaves (Joongang Daily, 03/19/2018)
S. Korean, French FMs hope for in-depth discussion in summits with N.K. (Yonhap, 03/19/2018)
Security meeting focuses on upcoming summits (Joongang Daily, 03/19/2018)
Sweden briefs South Korea on its talks with North (Yonhap, 03/19/2018)
The Dirty Secret of American Nuclear Arms in Korea (NY Times, 03/19/2018)
The one thing Donald Trump should do before meeting with Kim Jong Un (Washington Post, 03/19/2018)
Top security advisers of S. Korea, U.S., Japan meet over N. Korea: Cheong Wa Dae (Yonhap, 03/19/2018)
U.S., South Korea, Japan security advisers meet on North Korean summits: Seoul (Reuters, 03/19/2018)
US, South Korea, Japan discuss denuclearization, summits (Washington Post, 03/19/2018)
White House: Sweden has been requesting Americans' release from N. Korea (Yonhap, 03/19/2018)
Who and what's involved in bringing the US and North Korea together (CNN, 03/19/2018)

Top News:

- In this segment of the John Batchelor Show, HRNK Executive Director Greg Scarlatoiu, host John Batchelor, and Gordon Chang of the Daily Beast discuss the significance Moon's announcement of his lowered expectations of negotiations with NK in light of the criticism he has been receiving from the opposition party in SK. They also discuss the rushed nature of these talks, the impact of current sanctions on the Kim regime and their significance, and KJU's response to these impacts. (Greg Scarlatoiu, Gordon Chang, John Batchelor, The John Batchelor Show)
- Critics might see the elevation of N.Korean human rights as ill-timed or imprudent given the positive momentum in inter-Korea relations and S.Korean efforts to promote diplomatic engagement between the US and NK. Nevertheless, there are sound reasons for the Trump administration to address human rights issues while in pursuit of N.Korean denuclearization in a Trump-Kim summit meeting. Although human rights was once viewed as a distraction to nuclear talks or treated as a separate issue, a growing consensus has emerged to pursue human rights and the nuclear issue simultaneously. Like nuclear weapons, human rights abuses are also part of a core strategy for N.Korean regime survival. (Andrew Yeo, Lawfare)

In North Korea:

- A small university run by foreigners on the outskirts of Pyongyang has trained young N.Koreans on capitalist skills for several years. Opened in 2010 by the Northeast Asia Foundation for Education and Culture, a S.Korean Christian charity organization, Pyongyang University of Science & Technology (PUST) is the only privately run school in NK, where all education is provided free of charge. (Park Boram, Yonhap)
- Daily NK sources in northeast China are reporting that N.Korean seafood products continue to be sold in the Chinese city of Yanji, suggesting that international sanctions banning such exports are being violated. (Ha Yoon Ah, Daily NK)
- As SK prepares for next month's summit between President Moon and N.Korean leader KJU, analysts and commentators are widely speculating that KJU's top priority will be to attain recognition for his country as a legitimate member of the international community. Observers have noted that since KJU took power, he has given a number of signals suggesting a desire to conform to more standard international etiquette when dealing with other countries. (Jang Seul Gi, Daily NK)
- NK's National Tourism Administration (NTA) launched a new-look tourism portal website on Fri., claiming that demand for tours of the country is "on the rapid increase." The overhauled website, which promotes a range of NK tourist sites, itineraries, and travel news, says that the DPRK tour industry has been "developing afresh under the wise leadership of Supreme leader KJU." (NKNews.org)
- A senior N.Korean official has flown to Finland for talks with former US and S.Korean officials, in the latest round of a flurry of diplomatic encounters ahead of a proposed summit between KJU an Trump. (Nicola Smith, Telegraph)
- One of the most striking differences between NK and SK on the satellite imagery is the observable difference in forest coverage. By the end of the Korean War, the entire peninsula had experienced severe deforestation. To repair the damage to the environment, SK launched a massive re-forestatoin campaign in the 1960s and 1970s, while NK reportedly established "Tree Planting Day on Mar. 2, 1946). Implementation of this policy in NK always seemed to be on the back burner; however, KJU has placed a high priority on reforestation. (NK Econ Watch)

- NK imported hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of luxury goods last year, including diamonds, wine and cosmetics, while curbing major global sanctions on the regime. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- A senior N.Korean diplomat handling affairs with the US will hold a three-way, semiofficial meeting with former government officials and academics from SK and the US this week in Helsinki, Finland, according to sources. (Yonhap)

In South Korea:

- Amid thawing inter-Korean relations, experts at a conference hosted by the Korea Chamber of Commerce and Industry (KCCI) praised the growing market economy in NK but offered mixed views on the geopolitical situation on the Korean Peninsula. (Seo Ji-eun, Joongang Daily)
- SK's foreign minister has said that NK's leader has "given his word" that he is committed to denuclearization, a prime condition for a potential summit with President Trump in May. (Guardian)
- S.Korean Foreign Minister Kang Kyung-wha expressed confidence in NK's commitment to abandon its nuclear weapons program, saying the regime's leader gave "his word." (Yonhap)
- SK's push to expand economic cooperation with Russia, China and their neighboring countries is expected to promote peace and cooperation on the Korean Peninsula if it draws in NK's participation in joint projects, the chief of a presidential committee said Mon. (Yonhap)
- SK plans to set up a new guided missile unit that can take down NK's long-range artillery sites. Local broadcaster KBS reported that the S.Korean army will combine its first and third military headquarters to launch a new ground operation command in Oct. (Jennie Oh, UPI)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- S.Korean pop singers Cho Yong-pil and Lee Sun-hee will be part of the South's art troupe performance in Pyongyang next month, according to music industry sources Mon. (Yonhap)
- Lee Yoon-sang, a singer-songwriter and record producer, will lead a group of S.Korean interlocutors to NK today for working-level discussions on a concert in Pyongyang next month. The meeting is scheduled to be held at Tongilgak, a N.Korean-controlled building in the truce village of Panmunjom, which straddles the inter-Korean border. The N.Korean negotiators will be led by Hyon Song-wol, leader of the Samjiyon Orchestra. (Lee Sung-eun, Jeong Young-soo, Joongang Daily)
- As the NK and SK prepare to discuss a performance in NK by a S.Korean art troupe, all eyes are on whether big name K-pop stars will be included in the cultural event celebrating the rapprochement between the countries. (Yonhap)

- Diplomatic efforts are intensifying to coordinate the logistics and agendas for expected NK summits with SK and then with the US, to work out a deal to end NK's nuclear weapons program. (Brian Padden, VOA)
- A S.Korean art troupe to Pyongyang will mainly perform S.Korean pop music, as SK and NK will hold talks this week on its planned performance in early Apr., a Seoul official said Mon. (Yonhap)

International:

- Following months of strategic reticence, SK and the US will soon reveal the schedule of their combined military drills, defense sources here said Mon. (Lee Chi-dong, Yonhap)
- Japan is stepping up efforts to join talks with NK after stressing the importance of sanctions over dialogue for Pyongyang's denuclearization. Some diplomatic sources say Tokyo's abrupt shift in its NK policy is to avoid being left behind, as the other five shareholders of the Korean Peninsula including the US, China and Russia, have thrown their support behind inter-Korean reconciliation. (Yi Whan-woo, Korea Times)
- NK is in talks with the US and Sweden to release three jailed Americans as part of increased diplomatic activity ahead of Pyongyang's planned summits with Washington and Seoul. (Agence France-Presse, The National)
- The White House is overseeing a frantic scramble to resolve even the most fundamental questions on the US side: Where will the summit be? Who will be at the table? What should be on the agenda? (David Nakamura, Washington Post)
- In this Joongang Daily column, author Michael Green attempts to predict what will actually happen when Trump and Kim actually meet and discusses four possible scenarios. These scenarios are the following: Trump does not actually meet Kim (40 percent chance), Trump meets Kim, but talks break down (40 percent chance), Trump meets Kim and pretends to get a breakthrough (18 percent chance), and Trump meets Kim and actually achieves concrete disarmament steps (2 percent chance). (Michael Green, Joongang Daily)
- The top diplomats of SK and France have exchanged views on ways to peacefully resolve NK's nuclear issue and expressed hope for in-depth discussion on the matter in the upcoming S.Korean and US summits with the NK, the foreign ministry here said Mon. (Yonhap)
- Moon's national security adviser held two days of closed-door talks with his US and Japanese counterparts in San Francisco over the weekend to coordinate on upcoming summits with NK, as SK, Japan, and US vow not to repeat past mistakes with NK. (Sarah Kim, Joongang Daily)
- Sweden's Foreign Minister Margot Wallstrom briefed her S.Korean counterpart, Kang Kyung-wha, on the result of her recent talks with NK's top diplomat, Seoul's foreign ministry said Mon. (Yonhap)
- As President Trump prepares for a possible meeting with KJU, the N.Korean leader, many American are raising warnings that NK has walked away from previous arms agreements. But those skeptics should remember that it was the US, in 1958, that broke the 1953 Korean

Armistice Agreement, when the Eisenhower administration sent the first atomic weapons into SK. (Walter Pincus, NY Times)

- President Trump stunned the world when he announced that he would meet with N.Korean leader KJU sometime before May. If he is, in fact, serious about this decision and expects to strike a deal with the N.Koreans regarding their growing nuclear arsenal, he should seek the counsel of three people: former presidents Jimmy Carter and Bill Clinton, and former secretary of state Madeleine Albright. (Aaron S. Brown, Washington Post)
- Chung Eui-yong, top security adviser to S.Korean President Moon, traveled to the US over the weekend to hold talks with his US and Japanese counterparts on the upcoming dialogue with NK, Seoul's presidential office Cheong Wa Dae said Mon. (Yonhap)
- The national security advisers of the US, SK and Japan met over the weekend to discuss NK and the "complete denuclearization of the Korean Peninsula," SK's presidential Blue House said on Mon. (Joyce Lee, Reuters)
- Top US, S.Korean and Japanese officials discussed how to achieve the denuclearization of the Korean Peninsula during weekend talks ahead of upcoming inter-Korean and US-NK summits, Seoul said Mon. (Hyung-jin Kim, AP)
- Sweden has consistently worked on behalf of the US to request the release of three Americans detained in NK, a White House official said Sun. (Yonhap)
- US President Trump's snap decision accept an invitation to meet KJU has triggered a series of secretive meetings to make sure it happens by May. Envoys have been flying between Asia, the US and Europe, holding talks from Stockholm to San Francisco, about the location, timing and crucially what both sides want from the first ever meeting between a sitting US President and N.Korean leader. Negotiations have also included the potential release of three US in N.Korean custody, as diplomats seek to make the most of re-opened lines of communication. (Euan McKirdy, CNN)

Prepared by Jinny Ahn, HRNK Research Intern

Tuesday, March 20, 2018

Human Rights Should be on the Agenda for a Possible Trump-Kim Jong-un Meeting; The S. Korean people are fragmented in their opinion of appeasing the Kim regime; Trump should address human rights issue with Kim: ex-US envoy

Top News:

Human Rights Should be on the Agenda for a Possible Trump-Kim Jong-un Meeting (The Penisula, 03/19/2018)

The South Korean people are fragmented in their opinion of appeasing the Kim regime (The John Bachelor Show, 03/07/2018)

Trump should address human rights issue with Kim: ex-U.S. envoy (Yonhap, 03/19/2018)

In North Korea:
Chinese man accused of espionage dies in North Korean labor camp (Daily NK, 03/20/2018)
Kim Jong Un keeps out of public eye following summit announcements (UPI, 03/20/2018)
Kim Jong-un to re-launch Mass Games in bid to lure tourism dollars (Telegraph, 03/19/2018)
N. Korea will not give up nuclear weapons: Mearsheimer (Yonhap, 03/20/2018)
No mention of denuclearization in North Korea's state media - Why? (Daily NK, 03/20/2018)
North Korea will use tours to place money earning merchants abroad (Daily NK, 03/20/2018)
North Korean Beer Banned for Export, Sold as 'Fake' In China (RFA, 03/20/2018)
Quick Takes: Sohae Satellite Launching Station Remains Quiet (38 North, 03/20/2018)

In South Korea:
Main opposition party decries possible move to keep military drills low-key (Yonhap,03/20/2018)
North Korean cyber attacks continue on South despite detente (Daily NK, 03/20/2018)
South Koreans Optimistic Over Prospect of Nuclear Talks (VOA, 03/20/2018)
Strong posture needed (Joongang Ilbo, 03/20/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
(LEAD) Koreas kick off talks on S. Korean art troupe's performance in Pyongyang (Yonhap, 03/20/2018)
(4th LD) S. Korea to send 160-member art troupe to N.K. for concerts (Yonhap, 03/20/2018)
(News Focus) From classic to cutting-edge, Seoul seeks balance in Pyongyang K-pop shows(Yonhap, 03/20/2018)
Red Velvet, K-pop stars to perform in Pyongyang (Joongang Ilbo 03/20/2018)
Sanctions won't be eased until N.K. takes action on denuclearization: Kang (Yonhap, 03/20/2018)
South Korea to send 160-member art troupe to North Korea (Korea Times, 03/20/2018)
South Korea to send K-pop singers to Pyongyang in late March (Reuters, 03/20/2018)
South Korean K-Pop singers to perform in North Korea (WaPo, 03/20/2018)
South Korean pop sensations Seohyun, Red Velvet to visit North Korea next month (UPI, 03/20/2018)

International:
(LEAD) Foreign ministers of S. Korea, EU vow cooperation for peaceful denuclearization of N. Korea (Yonhap, 03/20/2018)
(LEAD) Trump-Kim summit outcome hinges on S. Korea: ex-U.S. diplomat (Yonhap, 03/20/2018)
(2nd LD) S. Korea, U.S. to begin massive military drills April 1: ministry (Yonhap, 03/20/2018)
China, Not North Korea, to Dominate Japan Military Planning (NYT, 03/20/2018)
Deal maker or deal breaker? (Joongang Ilbo, 03/20/2018)
Lawyer: Kim Murder Suspect Thought Smearing Face Was Prank (NYT, 03/20/2018)
Listening to the diplomats (Joongang Ilbo, 03/20/2018)
Low-key US-S Korea military drills ahead of N Korea summits (WaPo, 03/20/2018)
(News Focus) Allies downplay planned military drills amid peace mood (Yonhap, 03/20/2018)
North Korea denuclearization not on the agenda in Helsinki talks: Finland (Reuters, 03/20/2018)

North Korean diplomats break the ice with U.S. in Finland (Joongang Ilbo, 03/20/2018)
Pentagon: U.S.-South Korea military exercises will not shrink despite potential Kim talks (WaPo, 03/19/2018)
Pompeo to face tough questions on North Korea, Iran: senator (Reuters, 03/19/2018)
Postponed joint U.S.-Korea drills start April 1 (Joongang Ilbo, 03/20/2018)
S. Korea, IAEA to hold high-level meeting to discuss N.K. (Yonhap, 03/20/2018)
S. Korea, U.S. agree success of dialogue with N. Korea critical to peace: official (Yonhap, 03/20/2018)
South Korea, U.S. to resume joint military drills in April (UPI, 03/20/2018)
U.S.-South Korea military exercises to resume next month (Reuters, 03/20/2018)
US and South Korea to begin 'lower key' military drills as tensions cool with North (Telegraph, 03/20/2018)
Verifiable steps denuclearization necessary before summits, says former North Korean deputy ambassador (Daily NK, 03/20/2018)
Woman accused in Kim Jong Nam killing played prank on Vietnamese official, lawyer says(Reuters, 03/20/2018)

Top News:

- It is important that the US presses the NK on human rights, though it may not produce immediate success. Human rights is not the focal point of the discussions between Trump and Kim, but it is important to include that topic. (Robert King, KEI)
- Bob Collins, author of several HRNK Publications, joined the the John Bachelor Show to discuss the South Korean public opinion on negotiations and concessions with NK, and what that might mean for Moon's reelection. (John Bachelor Show)
- Trump should press KJU to improve the regime's human rights record if the two meet as planned, Robert King, former US special envoy for NK human rights said in an Op-Ed Mon. (Yonhap)

In North Korea:

- The N. Korean authorities have quietly announced the sudden death of a Chinese citizen imprisoned in a correctional labor camp in Sariwon, allegedly due to illness. The man was serving a sentence there after being accused of selling N, Korean "state secrets" to SK three years ago. (Seol Sung-ah, Daily NK)
- KJU appears to have kept out of the public eye for about 2 weeks, indicating that he is occupied with preparations for upcoming summits with SK and the US. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- NK looks set to resurrect a mass acrobatic extravaganza in what appears to be a renewed drive to boost tourism revenue in the isolated regime. (Nicola Smith, Julian Ryall, Telegraph)
- There's no way NK would give up its nuclear weapons because they have no reason to believe the US will implement any denuclearization deal between them, John Mearsheimer, a professor at the University of Chicago well known for his realist views on international politics, said Tues. (Yonhap)

- There has been no mention of the willingness to denuclearize in NK's media to date, or the fact that NK's stated willingness to denuclearize has enabled the meeting between KJU and Trump. (Ahn Jong-sik, Daily NK)
- In yet another attempt to evade sanctions and earn foreign currency, the N. Korean authorities have reportedly been expanding permits allowing citizens to visit relatives in China and earn money during the trip. (Jang Seul-gi, Daily NK)
- A popular N. Korean beer banned under international sanctions for export outside the country is now being bottled in China and sold to restaurants as a smuggled product. (Kim Joon-ho, Jun Lee-jin, Richard Finney, RFA)
- Commercial satellite imagery from Mar.14 of the Sohae Satellite Launching Station, NK's main space launch facility, indicates little activity around the facility as a whole and shows no indications of a recent or forthcoming engine test or preparations for a satellite launch. (Joseph S. Bermudez Jr., 38 North)

In South Korea:

- The main opposition Liberty Korea Party (LKP) on Tues. criticized the possible move by SK and the US to keep their upcoming military exercises low-key, arguing it could send the "wrong signal" to NK. (Yonhap)
- Over 8,000 cyber attacks orchestrated by hacker groups sponsored by the N. Korean government have been detected since early Feb. this year, according to a new report published by the Japanese newspaper Sankei Shimbun. (Jang Seul-gi, Daily NK)
- S. Koreans are increasingly optimistic about the prospects for peace following Trump's surprising decision to meet with KJU to resolve the nuclear standoff on the Korean Peninsula. (Brian Padden, VOA)
- The S. Korean government should not bend over backwards and tone down the military drills to please NK when Seoul and Pyongyang have not even established a basic framework for denuclearization. (Joongang Ilbo)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- SK and NK kicked off working-level talks Tues. to discuss a S. Korean art troupe's planned performance in Pyongyang in early Apr. (Yonhap)
- SK agreed Tues. to send a 160-member art troupe to Pyongyang for rare concerts in early April ahead of SK and NK's planned summit late next month. (Yonhap)
- With the dates and venues for the upcoming S. Korean music shows in Pyongyang set, eyes are now turning toward the K-pop stars picked for the rare cultural event celebrating the rapprochement between the two countries. (Chang Dong-woo, Yonhap)
- Red Velvet, a girl group known for its eclectic K-pop stylings, will be one of several music artists performing in NK next month ahead of a summit meeting between Moon and KJU. (Lee Sung-eun, Joongang Ilbo)

- Sanctions imposed on NK will not be eased until NK takes concrete action on its denuclearization, SK's top diplomat said Tuesday, reaffirming that Pyongyang will receive no compensation for simply coming out for talks. (Yonhap)
- The two Koreas agreed Tues. that a 160-member performance troupe from SK will perform two times in Pyongyang in Apr. (Kwon Mee-yoo, Korea Times)
- A group of SK's K-pop singers will visit Pyongyang from Mar. 31, SK said on Tues., a reciprocal visit after NK sent performers to the Pyeongchang Winter Olympics. (Reuters)
- SK said Tues. it will send a 160-member artistic group to NK, including about 10 celebrated K-Pop singers, for rare concerts there. (Kim Hyung-jin, AP)
- SK's biggest pop acts are set to perform in NK next month, as part of the two government's agreement to hold cultural concerts in Pyongyang, ahead of a rare inter-Korean summit. (Jennie Oh, UPI)

International:

- The top diplomats of SK and the member countries of the EU have reaffirmed that they will work closely together to achieve a peaceful and negotiated solution of N. Korean nuclear issues, the foreign ministry said Tues. (Yonhap)
- SK will have a large role in determining the success of a planned summit between Trump and KJU, a former senior US diplomat said Mon. (Yonhap)
- SK and the US will kick off their large-scale combined military exercises Apr. 1 that have been delayed amid an Olympics-driven peace mood, the defense authorities here announced Tues. (Lee Chi-dong, Yonhap)
- NK's growing missile arsenal might be the most obvious and immediate military threat facing Japan, but defense planners in Tokyo are focused on a much larger and more challenging foe as they prepare for the years ahead. China. (Reuters)
- NK has a nasty history of cheating deals and we don't know how many nuclear weapons NK has. Nor is there a foolproof way to verify what NK says. (Robert A. Manning, Joongang Ilbo)
- A Vietnamese woman accused of killing KJU's estranged half brother told police she realized she had been used to murder him after she was detained, her lawyer said Tues. (AP)
- As far as we know right now, the Trump-Kim meeting could be nixed as fast as it was agreed to. To ensure that the summit takes place and achieves the historical opening up of NK, leaders of SK and the US should use all the wisdom of their diplomatic teams. (Nam Jeong-ho, Joongang Ilbo)
- Annual US-SK military drills that infuriate NK will begin on Apr. 1, the allies said Tues., but they will likely be more low-key than past years ahead of two highly anticipated summits among the countries' leaders. (Kim Hyung-jin, Robert Burns, AP)
- SK and the US finally made public a decision Tues. to resume their regular joint war games, apparently trying to tone down the annual exercises. (Lee Chi-dong, Yonhap)
- Denuclearization is not on the agenda in a meeting in the Finnish capital on Tues. between delegations from NK, SK,, and the US, Finland's Foreign Minister Timo Soini said. (Jussi Rosendahl, Simon Johnson, Reuters)

- N. Korean diplomats met with former S. Korean and US officials in talks facilitated by the Finnish government in Helsinki on Mon. (Sarah Kim, Joongang Ilbo)
- The Pentagon said Mon. that it will launch military exercises alongside S. Korean troops beginning Apr.1 at a scale similar to that of previous years, despite potentially sensitive talks involving Trump and KJU that could begin the following month. (Dan Lemothe, WaPo)
- The Republican who heads the US Senate Foreign Relations Committee said on Mon. that Trump's nominee for secretary of state, Mike Pompeo, will face tough questions on NK and Iran if he is to be confirmed in the role. (Lesley Wroughton, Patricia Zengerle, Reuters)
- The US and SK will resume their annual combined exercises on Apr. 1 on a scale similar to those of previous years, the Ministry of National Defense announced Tues. (Lee Sung-eun, Lee Chul-jae, Joongang Ilbo)
- SK and the International Atomic Energy Agency will hold a meeting this week to discuss NK's nuclear issue and nonproliferation efforts, the foreign ministry said Tues. (Yonhap)
- SK and the US have agreed to work together closely for the success of their upcoming dialogue with NK that could determine the fate of the countries and the world, Seoul's top security adviser said Tues. (Yonhap)
- SK and the US have decided to resume their joint military drills next month, while reassuring NK that the exercises will be "defense-oriented." (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- The US and SK will resume joint military drills next month, Seoul and Washington said on Tues., exercises that will go ahead despite Trump's planned meeting with KJU. (Hyonhee Shin, Idrees Ali, Reuters)
- SK and the US will on Fri. commence postponed military exercises although the manueuvres appear to have been scaled back amid a diplomatic thaw on the Korean peninsula. (Julian Ryall, Telegraph)
- Thae stressed that the US and SK must understand KJU's strategy to achieve legitimate nuclear power status through his current peace offensive, and the allies must insist on verifiable progress towards denuclearization prior to any meeting. (Unification Media Group)
- A woman accused of poisoning KJU's half-brother played a prank on a Vietnamese government official in Hanoi less than two weeks before the sensational killing, her lawyer told a Malaysian court on Tues. (Reuters)

Prepared by Emma Stubblefield, HRNK Research Intern

Wednesday, March 21, 2018

South Korean President Moon hints at three-way US, North Korea talks; North Korea urges hardliners not to 'spoil atmosphere' as it breaks silence on planned Trump-Kim meeting

In North Korea:

'Peace-loving' North Korea claims credit for thaw with US (Guardian, 03/21/2018)
[Photo] Money-hungry authorities permit special trips for cash (Daily NK, 03/21/2018)
Report: Drunk driving, speeding show elite status in North Korea (UPI, 03/21/2018)
NKorea says its diplomatic moves are not a sign of weakness (WaPo, 03/21/2018)
North Korea's criticism sessions become less cutthroat (Daily NK, 03/21/2018)
North Korea importing mining equipment in anticipation of US sanctions relief (Daily NK,03/21/2018)
North Korea launches diplomatic offensive (Joongang Ilbo, 03/21/2018)
North Korea says sanctions did not push it to seek US talks (BBC, 03/21/2018)
North Korea urges hardliners not to 'spoil atmosphere' as it breaks silence on planned Trump-Kim meeting (Telegraph, 03/21/2018)
North Korea warns its detractors, notes an 'atmosphere for reconciliation' ahead of talks(WaPo, 03/21/2018)
North Korean authorities sell restricted TV channel to residents for cash (Daily NK,03/21/2018)
North Korean media lashes out at skeptics, softens tone on Seoul, U.S. (UPI, 03/20/2018)
Traffic accidents in N. Korea appear to have increased since Kim Jong-un took power: research team (Yonhap, 03/21/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
(LEAD) Six-member advance team for S. Korea's art troupe to visit N.K. this week (Yonhap, 03/21/2018)
S. Korea women's hockey team coach misses practicing with N. Koreans (Yonhap, 03/21/2018)
Seoul proposes high-level talks on summit with N. Korea on March 29 (Yonhap, 03/21/2018)

International:
(LEAD) Britain willing to play role in N. Korea denuclearization process, new envoy says(Yonhap, 03/21/2018)
(LEAD) IAEA ready to return to N.K. to verify its nuke program: IAEA official (Yonhap, 03/21/2018)
(3rd LD) Moon hints at possible three-way summit with U.S., N. Korean leaders (Yonhap, 03/21/2018)
About 200 N.K. ships on U.S. Coast Guard watch list: report (Yonhap, 03/21/2018)
DMZ? Sweden? Washington? Trump-Kim summit site rumors swirl (WaPo, 03/21/2018)
Japan Wants Abductees, Mid-Range Missiles on Table in US-North Korea Talks (VOA,03/20/2018)
Kim Jong Un congratulates Russia's Putin on re-election (UPI, 03/21/2018)
Moon: Trilateral summit with Seoul, U.S., North possible (UPI, 03/21/2018)
N.K. calls for prudence ahead of proposed summits with S. Korea, U.S. (Yonhap, 03/21/2018)
N. Korean leader congratulates Putin for re-election (Yonhap, 03/20/2018)
No deal is not an option (Joongang Ilbo, 03/21/2018)
North Korean, South Korean, U.S. delegates had constructive meeting, host Finland says(Reuters, 03/21/2018)
S. Korea, U.S. to maintain pressure, dialogue to induce N. Korea's 'sincere' change (Yonhap, 03/21/2018)
Seoul is proposing a three-way summit (Joongang Ilbo, 03/21/2018)
South Korea's Moon says three-way summit with North Korea, U.S. possible (Reuters, 03/21/2018)
South Korean President Moon hints at three-way US, North Korea talks (CNN, 03/21/2018)

Summit Offers Hope to Son of American Held in North Korea (NYT, 03/21/2018)
Trump says to meet Putin soon to discuss N.K. (Yonhap, 03/20/2018)
Two Koreas, U.S. end semiofficial talks in Finland (Yonhap, 03/21/2018)
U.S. dismisses report of deal on N.K. detainees as 'purely speculation' (Yonhap, 03/20/2018)
Video Shows Kim Murder Suspect Playing Prank in Hanoi, Defense Says (RFA, 03/20/2018)
Vietnam suspends trading of certain N.K. items in line with UNSC resolutions (Yonhap, 03/21/2018)

In North Korea:

- NK has commented for the first time on the recent rapprochement on the peninsula, saying warming relations with SK and the US are thanks to its "proactive measure and peace-loving proposal". (Benjamin Haas, Guardian)
- The N. Korean authorities have permitted foreign visitors at Paektu Mountain to swim in the Samjiyon Pond. Swimming in the pond is not normally permitted, but this exception is seen as a bid to welcome and encourage foreign tourists to visit and spend foreign currency. (Kang Mi-jin, Daily NK)
- Road accidents in NK appear to have increased in recent years with members of the elite class driving recklessly or under influence, S. Korean experts said. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- NK's recent moves to ease tensions on the Korean Peninsula are evidence of its confidence and national strength, not a sign of weakness, according to its state-run media. (Eric Talmadge, AP)
- Criticism session: students, factory workers, farmers, and cadres alike are forced to partake in regular meetings to announce and discuss transgressions and mistakes, but authorities have recently issued orders encouraging residents to discuss positive stories rather than dwelling only on negative information. (Kang Mi-jin, Daily NK)
- NK has begun importing equipment needed to restart coal production and export. The developments suggest that business managers in NK are anticipating sanctions relief to follow planned meetings in Apr. and May between KJU, Moon, and Trump. (Seol Song-ah, Daily NK)
- Ahead of KJU's landmark summits with SK and the US in Apr. and May, the reclusive regime has been engaging in whirlwind diplomacy, preparing for what many see as the young leader's grand debut on the international stage. (Sarah Kim, Joongang Ilbo)
- N. Korean state media has said it was "self-confidence" and not sanctions that drove it to seek talks with SK and the US. (BBC)
- NK has called for a "patient" approach to the recent fast paced developments in its relations with SK and the US, finally breaking its silence since Trump surprised the world by accepting an invitation to meet Kim Jong-un. (Nicola Smith, Telegraph)
- NK has warned detractors to exercise "prudence" ahead of planned summits with the Moon and Trump, noting there is a "dramatic atmosphere for reconciliation" between the two Koreas and also a "sign of change" in the relationship between NK and the US. (Anna Fifield, WaPo)
- For the first time, the N. Korean authorities are selling access to a television station for foreign currency which was previously only available to elite residents in Pyongyang. (Kang Mi-jin, Daily NK)

- NK says now is only the beginning of inter-Korean relations as well as its ties with the US, lashing out at skepticism from right-wing critics in SK. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- Traffic accidents in NK appear to have increased since KJU took power, a S. Korean research team said Wed., citing increased reports about overseas traffic accidents in state media and warnings of punishment for traffic violators. (Yonhap)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- A six-member S. Korean advance team will visit NK this week to check venues for a S. Korean art troupe's planned performances in Pyongyang, a government official said Wed. (Yonhap)
- Nearly a month after the two Koreas' joint women's ice hockey team worked together at the PyeongChang Winter Olympics, head coach Sarah Murray said Wed. she misses working with the N. Korean players. (Joo Kyung-don,Yonhap)
- SK on Wed. proposed holding high-level talks with NK next week to discuss details of the upcoming summit between their leaders. (Yonhap)

International:

- The UK is willing to provide its expert knowledge in nuclear nonproliferation and power generation to assist in the process of denuclearizing NK, its new ambassador to SK said Wed. (Yonhap)
- The International Atomic Energy Agency stands ready to do its nuclear verification work on NK, a high-ranking official of the nuclear watchdog said Wed. (Yonhap)
- Moon on Wed. floated the possibility of a three-way summit among the two Koreas and the US. (Yonhap)
- The U.S. Coast Guard has been monitoring about 200 N. Korean ships since last month, a US broadcaster reported Wed. (Yonhap)
- With just weeks to go, there's still no official word on where Trump and KJU will hold their unprecedented summit. (Eric Talmadge, AP)
- Japanese leaders, while calling for a united front with the US and SK ahead of proposed US-NK nuclear talks, are seeking to thrust issues of their own onto the agenda. (Yuri Nagano, VOA)
- KJU has congratulated Russian President Vladmir Putin on his re-election this week, reaffirming the decades-long ties between the two states. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- There could be a three-way summit between the two Koreas and the US, Moon said Wed. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- NK on Wed. broke its silence about its burgeoning mood of conciliation with the US, cautioning hardliners in Seoul and Washington against trying to "spoil the atmosphere." (Yonhap)
- KJU on Tues. extended his "heartfelt congratulations" to Russian President Vladimir Putin for his landslide re-election victory. (Yonhap)
- Kim is still young and thinking about his future. Trump is desperate in the face of a special counsel investigation and possible impeachment. Moon is desperate, too. No deal is not an option for them. We hope that their desperation will create a miracle in the dark. (Kim Hyun-ki, Joongang Ilbo)

- Informal talks held in Finland between N. Korean, S. Korean and US delegates ended on Wed., the Finnish foreign ministry said, describing the talks as constructive. (Simon Johnson, Jussi Rosendahl, Reuters)
- SK and the US agreed Wed. to maintain the two-pronged approach of pressure and dialogue toward NK in order to lead it to change its course with sincerity, the Ministry of National Defense said. (Yonhap)
- Moon teased the possibility of a three-way summit for the leaders of the two Koreas and the US Wed. during a meeting with his aides at the Blue House, stressing that the summit diplomacy of the next few weeks will have to "completely end" the nuclear crisis on the Korean Peninsula. (Lee Sung-eun, Joongang Ilbo)
- Moon said on Wed. a three-way summit with NK and the US is possible and that talks should aim for an end to the nuclear threat on the Korean peninsula. (Shin Hyonhee, Kristine Kim, Reuters)
- Moon has teased the possibility of a three-way meeting between the US, NK and SK, if a series of upcoming summits is successful. (Ben Westcott, Sophie Jeong, CNN)
- The son of an American held in NK sees a glimmer of hope that a planned summit by Trump and KJU can help win his father's freedom. (AP)
- Trump said Tues. he plans to meet Russian President Vladimir Putin in the "not-too-distant" future to discuss various issues, including NK. (Yonhap)
- A three-way semiofficial meeting between the two Koreas and the US in Finland ended on Wed., the Finnish foreign ministry said, describing the talks as constructive. (Yonhap)
- The US on Tues. dismissed a news report about a deal on the release of American citizens in NK as "purely speculation." (Yonhap)
- One of the two Southeast Asian women accused of murdering the estranged half-brother of NK's leader practiced carrying out what she believed was a prank at an airport in Vietnam two weeks before the Kuala Lumpur killing, a Malaysian court heard on Tues. (BenarNews)
- Vietnam has temporarily suspended the trade of "certain" N. Korean products in line with two UN Security Council resolutions adopted in the wake of its missile and nuclear provocations. (Yonhap)

Prepared by Emma Stubblefield, HRNK Research Intern

Thursday, March 22, 2018

N.K.'s parliament to hold meeting in April before inter-Korean summit; U.N. extends work of panel monitoring N.K. sanctions; Finding a role for China in the North Korean peace process

In North Korea:

(2nd LD) N. Korea's rubber-stamp parliament to hold meeting April 11 (Yonhap, 03/22/2018)
(3rd LD) N.K.'s parliament to hold meeting in April before inter-Korean summit (Yonhap, 03/22/2018)
(LEAD) N. Korea's rubber-stamp parliament to hold meeting April 11 (Yonhap, 03/22/2018)
NADA General Satellite Control Building (38*North*, 03/22/2018)
Namyang's post 2016 flood recovery (NK Econ Watch, 03/21/2018)
North Korea: 'Peace Offensive' With US, South Korea Shows Strength (VOA, 03/21/2018)
North Korea's rubber-stamp parliament to meet in April ahead of inter-Korean summit (Reuters, 03/21/2018)
North Korea to hold Supreme People's Assembly ahead of summits (UPI, 03/22/2018)
PPJ Visits South Hwanghae (NK Leadership Watch, 03/22/2018)
South Korean song becomes hit in North Korea after Samjiyon Orchestra Olympic performance (Daily NK)
SPA Will Meet on April 11 (NK Leadership Watch, 03/22/2018)
The Last Americans in North Korea: Christian Missionaries (Wall Street Journal, 03/19/2018)
Youth Farming Work Teams Hold Meeting (NK Leadership Watch, 03/22/2018)

In South Korea:
(LEAD) Advance team for S. Korea's art troupe leaves for N. Korea (Yonhap, 03/22/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
S. Korea offers high-level inter-Korean talks next week (Yonhap, 03/22/2018)

International:
'Track 1.5' Helsinki talks deemed 'constructive' (Joongang Daily, 03/22/2018)
DPRK-Russia Intergovernmental Committee Meets (NK Leadership Watch, 03/22/2018)
Fears of flying (Korea Times, 03/22/2018)
Finding a role for China in the North Korean peace process (Daily NK, 03/22/2018)
IAEA says it will 'actively' contribute to denuclearization process for N.K. (Yonhap, 03/22/2018)
Koreas, US conclude 'constructive' talks in Finland (Washington Post, 03/21/2018)
Malaysia Police Deny Prejudice Against Kim Murder Suspects (VOA, 03/22/2018)
Mearsheimer: Trump-Kim summit will worsen relations (Joongang Daily, 03/22/2018)
More U.S. voters confident in diplomatic solution with N.K.: poll (Yonhap, 03/22/2018)
NKorean sanctions evasions reveal Hong Kong's middleman role (Washington Post, 03/22/2018)
Senior diplomats of S. Korea, EU to discuss cooperation over N. Korean nuke issue (Yonhap, 03/22/2018)
South Korea's Leader Floats 3-Way Talks With Trump and Kim Jong-un (NYT*imes*, 03/21/2018)
Triumph of Moon's diplomacy (Korea Times, 03/22/2018)
Trump should go to Pyongyang or there may be no summit (Korea Times, 03/22/2018)
Trump's Unorthodox North Korea Diplomacy Begins at Top (VOA, 03/22/2018)
U.N. extends work of panel monitoring N.K. sanctions (Yonhap, 03/22/2018)
UN extends work of experts monitoring North Korea sanctions (Washington Post, 03/21/2018)
White House dodges direct comment on trilateral summit with Koreas (Yonhap, 03/22/2018)
Why the United States might accept a nuclear North Korea (Washington Post, 03/22/2018)

In North Korea:

- NK's parliament plans to convene a session next month, state media said Thurs., ahead of its planned summits with SK and the US. (Yonhap)
- NK's parliament plans to convene a session next month, state media said Thurs., amid attention over whether the North will send messages targeting SK and the US ahead of its planned summits with them. (Yonhap)
- NK's parliament plans to convene a session next month, state media said Thurs., ahead of its planned summits with SK and the US. (Yonhap)
- NK plans to convene a major parliamentary meeting on Apr. 11, Pyongyang's state media said Thurs., without disclosing agenda details. (Yonhap)
- In May 2015, during a field guidance visit from KJU, NK unveiled a new General Satellite Control Building in Pyongyang, replacing the old General Satellite Control and Command Centre and serving as the central headquarters for the DPRK's National Aerospace Development Administration (NADA). The newer facility greatly expanded and modernized NK's ability to track and monitor satellite launches. (38North)
- New Google Earth imagery shows for the first time the scale of the construction work taken in the Namyang District of Onsong County in North Hamgyong Province, an area of NK along the Tumen River that experienced severe devastation from flooding in Sept. 2016. (NK Econ Watch)
- NK is contending that its recent "dialogue peace offensive" with the US and SK is the result of national strength, not pressure from international economic sanctions aimed at ending Pyongyang's nuclear and missile tests. (Ken Bredemeier, VOA)
- NK's Supreme People's Assembly, the isolated state's rubber-stamp parliament, will hold a meeting on Apr. 11, NK's state media said on Thurs., just weeks before an historic summit between NK and SK. (Christine Kim, Reuters)
- NK plans to hold a meeting of the Supreme People's Assembly in Apr. but it is unlikely the event will be held to make significant changes to the state's commitment to nuclear weapons development. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- DPRK state media reported on Mar. 20 (Tues.) that State Affairs Commission Vice Chair and Premier Pak Pong Ju surveyed various places in South Hwanghae Province including Haeju Trailing Farm Machine Factory and Ohyo'n Co-op Farm in Yo'nan County. (NK Leadership Watch)
- The 1984 hit song "To J" by S.Korean artist Lee Sun Hee is finding a new audience in NK after the Samjiyon Orchestra performed the song during one of their performances in SK. (Seoul Song Ah, Daily NK)
- The Supreme People's Assembly will gather in Pyongyang on Apr. 11, according to a decree released by the SPA Presidium (standing committee) on Mar. 15 (Thurs.). This meeting will be the sixth session of the 13th SPA. This SPA session will focus on approving the report of 2017 and the 2018 policy plan of the DPRK Cabinet and approving the DPRK's national budget for 2018. (NK Leadership Watch)
- The work of humanitarian groups has resurrected tough questions about giving aid to despot nations, a debate centered on whether assistance to the needy frees up state resources for corrupt purposes. In NK, the question is whether the help allows the regime to spend more money on nuclear arms that threaten the US and its allies. The international response KJU's aggressive pursuit of nuclear-armed long-range missiles has been to squeeze commerce and reduce foreign aid. As a result, faith-based groups, which once accounted for a small proportion of aid to NK, now have an outsize role. These humanitarians, who are eligible for exemptions to the US travel ban, are among the last Americans who engage in face-to-face work between people of the two nations, which over the past year have swung between brinkmanship and, of late, the possibility of talks between KJU and US President Trump. (John Lyons, Jonathan Cheng, Wall Street Journal)

- A national meeting of youth work teams was held on Mar. 12 (Mon.) at the People's Palace of Culture. Among those in attendance were DPRK Vice Premier Minister of Agriculture Ko In Ho, Workers' Party of Korea Workers and Social Organizations Department Director Ri Il Hwang, Youth League Central Committee 1st Secretary Pak Chol Min, along with other DPRK Cabinet, rural management committee and Youth League officials. (NK Leadership Watch)

In South Korea:

- A six-member S.Korean advance team left for NK on Thurs. to check venues for a S.Korean art troupe's performances planned in Pyongyang in early Apr. ahead of an inter-Korean summit. (Yonhap)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- SK on Thurs. officially offered to hold high-level talks with NK next week to discuss the date and agenda items for an inter-Korean summit slated for late Apr. (Yonhap)

International:

- Finland's Foreign Ministry described the "track 1.5" meetings between N.Korean diplomats and S.Korean and American former officials and academics in Helsinki, which concluded Wed., as "constructive" and "positive." (Sarah Kim, Joongang Daily)
- The DPRK-Russia Intergovernment Committee for cooperation in trade, economic, science and technology occurred at a conference room in the People's Palace of Culture in central Pyongyang during Mar. 20 (Tues.) and Mar. 21 (Wed.). The meeting was chaired by DPRK Minister of External Economic Relations (and former DPRK Ambassador to the Russian Federation) Kim Yong Jae and Russian Minister of Development of the Russian Far East Aleksandr Galushka. (NK Leadership Watch)
- US President Donald Trump is in such hot water in Washington that his summit with KJU, if it actually happens, will be either a distraction or a welcome relief from the pressure-cooker atmosphere at home. For both KJU and Trump, now may not be the best time to be flying off to some summit, knowing they're not all that safe and sound back home. (Donald Kirk, Korea Times)
- With the recent announcement of a meeting between the leaders of NK and SK in Apr. and potentially between KJU and US President Donald Trump in May, some observers are speculating that China fears it will not have a seat at the negotiating table. Although China officially announced that it welcomes the coming high-level summits, references to

'surprise' over the matter in state media suggest that China may not be so comfortable with the current state of affairs. (Yoo Hyun Jung, Daily NK)

- A high-ranking official of the International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA) said the nuclear watchdog will play an active role in the process of NK's denuclearization, a foreign ministry official said Thurs. (Yonhap)
- Finland's government said Wed. that delegates from NK, SK and the US concluded "constructive" unofficial diplomatic talks in the Nordic country that were widely believed to be laying the groundwork for an upcoming meeting between the Koreas and a planned US-NK summit. (Jari Tanner, AP)
- A Malaysian police investigator said Thurs. the absence of four N.Korean suspects believed to have orchestrated the killing of their leader's half brother didn't cause prejudice against the two women who are on trial. (AP)
- The US and NK are "highly unlikely" to reach a deal at their bilateral summit, and the meeting will only exacerbate relations between both sides, political scientist John Mearsheimer said Thurs. at a forum in Seoul. (Lee Sung-eun, Joongang Daily)
- More American voters have expressed confidence in a diplomatic solution to the nuclear standoff with NK, a survey showed Wed., as US President Donald Trump is set to meet with the N.Korean leader this spring. (Yonhap)
- Records for the Wan Heng and a number of other ships identified in recent UN and US sanctions blacklists and Japanese surveillance reports reveal ties to Hong Kong through front companies based here. The findings underscore rising concern over the southern Chinese financial capital's role as a nexus for NK's underground business network, which has led the US government to urge Hong Kong authorities to crack down. (Kelvin Chan, AP)
- Senior officials of SK and the European Union's diplomatic office will hold a meeting next week to discuss their cooperation over NK's nuclear issue, the foreign ministry here said Thurs. (Yonhap)
- President Moon of SK said on Wed. that he and President Trump could sit down for a three-way summit meeting with KJU if their individual meetings with the N.Korean leader on denuclearizing his country proceed well in the coming weeks. (Choe Sang-hun, NYTimes)
- This opinion piece in The Korea Times argues that President Moon adroitly used NK's weakness to prod KJU to eschew his saber rattling and seek accommodation with SK and the US. NK must realize that only SK can save it from total collapse and utter destruction. KJU lives under the shadow of a popular revolt or a coup and only through a peaceful resolution of the conflict might he be able to escape the harsh punishment of history. (Mahmoud Elahi, Korea Times)
- Trump would be in a better position to go to Pyongyang than KJU would to leave his home base. If the two sides persist on their original stances, there could be no summit. Trump would feel tempted to go to Pyongyang and claim his place in history. (Oh Young-jin, Korea Times)
- US President Donald Trump's sudden decision to meet with N.Korean leader KJU, without first working out the framework of a nuclear deal, could produce a historic agreement, but it would come at the beginning of a long negotiation process. (Brian Padden, VOA)
- The United Nations Security Council voted Wed. to extend the work of a panel monitoring sanctions on NK for another year. (Yonhap)

- The Security Council voted unanimously Wed. to extend the mandate for UN experts monitoring sanctions against NK. (Edith M. Lederer, AP)
- The White House on Wed. dodged a direct response to S.Korean President Moon's suggestion of a future trilateral summit involving both Koreas and the US. (Yonhap)
- In view of limited American resources, the accommodation approach seems most pragmatic, both in the past and today. While the US may not yet be ready to accept a nuclear NK, that calculation may change, given the high military and political costs involved in trying to end the N.Korean nuclear weapons program forcefully. As a result, the US may fall back on its tried and true method—accepting KJU's nuclear program in exchange for concessions that help Washington to pursue its broader geopolitical interests in Asia. (Elmar Hellendoorn, Washington Post)

Prepared by Jinny Ahn, HRNK Research Intern

——————————————

Friday, March 23, 2018

Trump picks hardliner Bolton to replace McMaster as national security adviser; S. Korea preps for inter-Korean summit for progress on ties, denuclearization; U.S. showcases stealth fighter training on amphibious carrier

In North Korea:

Chinese customs confiscate North Korean shipment of metal wire deemed 'dual-use material' (*Daily*NK, 03/23/2018)

Inspections Tighten on Moscow-Pyongyang Rail Line After Weapon Found in Bag (RFA, 03/22/2018)

Kim Jong Un signals commitment to nuclear development, orders tight lid on activities at Yongbyon (*Daily*NK, 03/23/2018)

Lectures urge North Koreans to remain firm in resolve to possess nuclear weapons (*Daily*NK, 03/23/2018)

North Korea's Punggye-ri Nuclear Test Site: Significant Slowdown in Tunneling (38 North, 03/23/2018)

Prominent building in Pyongyang defaced with anti-regime graffiti (*Daily*NK, 03/23/2018)

Renewed economic 'self-reliance' goals in N. Korea insufficient to overcome sanctions, say experts (*Daily*NK, 03/23/2018)

In South Korea:

Inspection by art troupe's advance team proceeding as scheduled in N. Korea (Yonhap, 03/23/2018)

Listening to the diplomats (Joongang Ilbo, 03/23/2018)

The Nobel art of self-defense (Joongang Ilbo, 03/23/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

S. Korea preps for inter-Korean summit for progress on ties, denuclearization (Yonhap, 03/23/2018)

International:

(News Focus) Trump's pick of hawkish Bolton heralds tougher N.K. policy before summit: experts (Yonhap, 03/23/2018)
Asian Allies Refrain From Comment on Upheaval in Trump's Security Team (VOA, 03/23/2018)
Bolton's Appointment Comes at Sensitive Time for China Ties (NYT, 03/23/2018)
Bolton's move to White House signals a more hawkish turn (CNN, 03/22/2018)
Bolton the Hawk Gets His Chance (NYT, 03/23/2018)
Bolton's views on Russia, Iraq and North Korea contradict almost everything Trump says (WaPo, 03/23/2018)
Donald Trump is radically transforming his White House. He's been president for 1 year (CNN, 03/23/2018)
Geopolitical risk drives oil prices higher (UPI, 03/23/2018)
'Human scum and bloodsucker': Bolton's White House appointment fans worries over hawkish record in Asia (Reuters, 03/23/2018)
Japan loses out amid China trade threat that shakes markets (Reuters, 03/23/2018)
John Bolton: foreign policy radical who backs war with Iran and North Korea (Guardian, 03/23/2018)
John Bolton on: bombing Iran, North Korea, Russia and the Iraq War (CNN, 03/23/2018)
Korea and Vietnam to boost trade (Joongang Ilbo, 03/23/2018)
Misreading Trump: Ally Japan Is Spurned on Tariff Exemptions (NYT, 03/23/2018)
S. Korea, U.S., Japan vow unrelenting fight against N. Korea's illicit trade (Yonhap, 03/23/2018)
U.S. military to hold civilian evacuation drill in Korea (Yonhap, 03/23/2018)
U.S. showcases stealth fighter training on amphibious carrier (Reuters, 03/23/2018)
U.S. trusts S. Korea in preparing for N.K. summit: State Department (Yonhap, 03/23/2018)
Tariffs show Trump doesn't want China's help with North Korea (CNN, 03/23/2018)
The return of John Bolton, a hawk on North Korea and Iran, sparks concerns around the world (WaPo, 03/23/2018)
'The Whole World Should Be Concerned': U.S. Allies React to Bolton's Appointment (NYT, 03/23/2018)
Time's up for Abe (Joongang Ilbo, 03/23/2018)
Trump defends congratulatory phone call to Putin (Reuters, 03/23/2018)
Trump picks hardliner Bolton to replace McMaster as national security adviser (Reuters, 03/23/2018)
Trump picks hard-liner as his security adviser (Joongang Ilbo, 03/23/2018)
Trump temporarily excludes EU, six other allies from steel tariffs (Reuters, 03/23/2018)
Trump to set stage for China tariffs amid trade war fears (Reuters, 03/22/2018)
Turkmenistan's vice PM to visit S. Korea next week (Yonhap, 03/23/2018)
Why North Korea called John Bolton 'human scum and a bloodsucker' in 2003 (WaPo, 03/23/2018

In North Korea:

- A shipment of goods supposedly slated for use in N.K. festivities surrounding the April 15 birthday of former leader Kim Il Sung has reportedly been confiscated by the Chinese customs office at the Dandong-Sinuiju border crossing. (Seol Song Ah, DailyNK)
- Russian railway police are increasing their scrutiny of trains bound for N.K. after a handgun was found last month in the baggage of a N.K. worker returning home. (RFA)
- The N.K. authorities have reportedly ordered the strengthening of protectionist measures surrounding the Yongbyon nuclear facilities following the meeting in early March between KJU and a team of S.K. special envoys in Pyongyang. (Ha Yoon Ah, DailyNK)
- Despite KJU expressing a desire to resolve the nuclear issue on the Korean peninsula, sources inside N.K. report that a directive has been issued to high-level officials to remain firm in their resolve to possess nuclear weapons. (Jang Seul Gi, DailyNK)
- Recent commercial satellite imagery of N.K.'s Nuclear Test Site suggests that there has been a significant slowdown in tunneling and a reduced presence of related personnel at the site. During this same time period, high-level talks between two Koreas moved forward, including Pyongyang's proposal for a summit with Trump. (38 North)
- The N.K. authorities have been put on high alert after discovering anti-KJU graffiti defacing a major government building in the capital earlier this month. (Lee Sang Yong, DailyNK)
- Domestically-manufactured products continue to gain market share over their Chinese counterparts in N.K.'s local markets as the authorities ramp up their emphasis on self-reliance. (Jang Seul Gi, DailyNK)

In South Korea:

- A S.K. advance team to N.K. is expected to inspect venues for a Seoul art troupe's April concerts in Pyongyang on Friday and return home as scheduled over the weekend. (Yonhap)
- Moon and Trump are known for their distrust in career diplomats. But Moon should be aware of that both the US and S.K. have experienced multiple diplomatic failures after neglecting the voices of diplomats. (Joongang Ilbo)
- Winning the Nobel Peace Prize would not only be an honor for Moon, but would also mean that an infrastructure for peace on the peninsula is being established. (Jaung Hoon, Joongang Ilbo)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- S.K. is preparing for an inter-Korean summit next month on hopes for "progress" in developing its ties with N.K. and resolving the nuclear issue. (Yonhap)

International:

- Trump's choice of security hawk John Bolton as new national security adviser could herald Washington's tougher stance on N.K. ahead of its planned summit with the reclusive state. (Yonhap)

- The announced appointment of John Bolton, who has advocated for preventive military strikes against N.K., to become the U.S. national security adviser has drawn muted reaction from key American allies in Asia. (Brian Padden, VOA)
- Foreign policy hard-liner Bolton's appointment as national security adviser comes at a sensitive time for relations with Beijing following Trump's approval of new tariffs on China and a law encouraging closer relations with Taiwan. (AP)
- Trump's appointment of Bolton as the security adviser marks a belligerent turn that could doom attempts to save the Iran nuclear deal, increase the possibility of a clash with N.K. and ratchet up tensions with Moscow. (Nicole Gaouette, CNN)
- The Trump administration has transitioned from the merely inept to the patiently terrifying. The appointment of the hawkish Bolton as national security adviser places him next to the hand that has access to the nuclear button. (NYT)
- Trump's newly named national security adviser is one of the most hawkish voices in American foreign policy and has been for years, which could provide a contrast and perhaps a shift in Trump's stated preference for noninterventionism. (Aaron Blake, WaPo)
- In the last 16 days, Trump has replaced his top economic adviser, his top foreign policy adviser and his top national security adviser. The new team has been chosen for their willingness to carry out the whims and wishes of the President. (Chris Cillizza, CNN)
- Geopolitical risk emerged Friday to drive oil prices higher for another day as Trump named a hawkish John Bolton as his national security adviser. (Daniel J. Graeber, UPI)
- Once rejected by N.K. as “human scum,” Bolton has called for regime change in N.K., prompting worries in Asia ahead of a historic summit between Washington and Pyongyang. (Christine Kim, Josh Smith, Reuters)
- Trump dealt a blow to China with plans to slap tariffs on $60 billion of trade, he quietly delivered a slap in the face to one of Washington’s closest allies, Japan, which got no exemption from earlier announced duties. (Ami Miyazaki, Kaori Kaneko, Reuters)
- Trump has hired John Bolton, an unwavering and radical advocate of war against both N.K. and Iran to oversee his administration’s national security policy. (Julian Borger, Guardian)
- Bolton: "The N.K. threat is imminent, and the case against pre-emption rests on the misinterpretation of a standard that derives from prenuclear, pre-ballistic-missile times." (Gregory Krieg, CNN)
- S.K. and Vietnam agreed to boost their bilateral trade to $100 billion by 2020 in a summit meeting Friday, a 56 percent increase from last year’s total. The agreement came after Moon met with his Vietnamese counterpart Tran Dai Quang in Hanoi. (Lee Sung-eun, Joongang Ilbo)
- Japan, the largest American ally, was left off a list of countries temporarily exempted from stiff tariffs on steel and aluminum imports by the Trump administration. (Mitoko Rich, NYT)
- S.K., the US and Japan agreed Friday to maintain close cooperation against N.K.'s maritime activity prohibited under U.N. Security Council resolutions despite a peace mood on the peninsula. (Yonhap)
- The U.S. military plans to hold a regular noncombatant evacuation drill in Korea next month under the scenario of a crisis here despite markedly eased tensions. (Yonhap)
- The U.S. military launched vertical take-off and landing (VTOL) F-35Bs from the deck of the USS Wasp amphibious carrier in the waters around Okinawa in its first show of stealth aircraft force at sea. The exercise comes at a time when concerns remain high over N.K.'s nuclear program. (Nobuhiro Kubo, Reuters)

- The US is preparing for its summit with N.K. based on what its ally S.K. has said about the proposed meeting, the State Department said. (Yonhap)
- Trump's willingness to risk a trade war with China just weeks before his potential meeting with KJU shows how sidelined Xi's become in efforts to rein in Pyongyang's nuclear weapons program. (James Griffiths, CNN)
- Trump's decision to make John Bolton his new national security adviser ricocheted around the globe on Friday, unsettling allies and raising alarm that a hawk who advocates military action against N.K. and Iran will have the president's ear. (Michael Birnbaum, Anna Fifield and Loveday Morris, WaPo)
- With deeply conservative, nationalistic and aggressive views about American foreign policy, Bolton may bring more consistency and predictability to Trump's foreign policy, but there are also many worries about his hawkish views on Iran and N.K. (NYT)
- Contenders for a post-Abe Japan are likely to advocate an Asia-centered policy rather than Abe's extreme focus on the Japan-U.S. alliance. They may also seek improved relations with China and cooperation with S.K. (Jin Chang-soo, Joongang Ilbo)
- Trump defended his congratulations to Vladimir Putin on the Russian president's disputed re-election victory on Wednesday, saying he wants Putin's help in solving crises from N.K. to Syria and beyond. (Steve Holland, Reuters)
- Trump shook up his foreign policy team again on Thursday, replacing H.R. McMaster as national security adviser with John Bolton, a hawk who has advocated using military force against N.K. and Iran. (Steve Holland, Reuters)
- John R. Bolton, a former U.S. ambassador to the UN who once threatened N.K. with military action and regime change, was named the new national security adviser to Trump. (Lee Sung-eun, Yoo Jee-hye, Joongang Ilbo)
- Trump has temporarily excluded six countries, including Canada and Mexico, and EU states from higher U.S. import duties on steel and aluminum meant to come into effect on Friday. (Lesley Wroughton, Reuters)
- Trump was expected to lay the foundation for tariffs on Chinese imports worth around $50 billion on Thursday, in a move likely to trigger retaliation from Beijing and stoke fears of a global trade war. (Roberta Rampton, Reuters)
- Turkmenistan's vice prime minister in charge of foreign affairs will visit S.K. next week to discuss bilateral cooperation. (Yonhap)
- When Bolton visited S.K. in 2003, he delivered a speech titled "A Dictatorship at the Crossroads" and personally insulted then-N.K. leader Kim Jong Il, calling him a "tyrannical dictator." (Adam Taylor, WaPo)

Prepared by James Park, HRNK Research Intern

Saturday, March 24, 2018

Koreas to hold high-level talks to set up Moon-Kim summit; World wary as Trump turns to hardliners Bolton and Pompeo

In South Korea:
New jeans, new schools, new worries: North Korean family settles into South Korea (WaPo, 03/23/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
(LEAD) N. Korea agrees to high-level inter-Korean talks March 29: ministry (Yonhap, 03/24/2018)
Koreas Hold Summit Prep Talks Next Week (VOA, 03/24/2018)
Koreas to hold high-level talks to set up Kim-Moon summit (WaPo, 03/24/2018)
North and South Korea to Hold Preparatory Talks for Summit Meeting (NYT, 03/24/2018)
North and South Korea schedule talks at Panmunjom within days (Guardian, 03/24/2018)
South Korea says North Korea agrees to hold high-level talks (CNN, 03/23/2018)
South Korea says North agrees to hold summit preparation talks on March 29 (Reuters, 03/24/2018)

International:
(News Focus) Bolton divides pundits on prospects for Trump-Kim summit (Yonhap, 03/24/2018)
Bombs away: John Bolton's most hawkish views on Iran, Iraq and North Korea (Guardian, 03/23/2018)
Experts: Bolton Likely to Tackle 'One-China' Mantra (VOA, 03/23/2018)
Interview: Trump-Kim Talks to be 'A Very Short Meeting' if Pyongyang Won't Discuss Denuclearization (RFA, 03/23/2018)
Jimmy Carter briefed by White House on North Korea (CNN, 03/23/2018)
Sanctions and the Summit: Coordination Challenges for the Trump Administration (38 North, 03/23/2018)
The hawkish views of Bolton and Pompeo could mark a turning point for Trump (WaPo, 03/24/2018)
Trump should insist on Libya-style denuclearization for North Korea: Bolton (Reuters, 03/23/2018)
Will John Bolton's hawkish views rub off on Trump? (WaPo, 03/24/2018)
World wary as Trump turns to hardliners Bolton and Pompeo (CNN, 03/24/2018

In South Korea:

- A family who defected N.K. is now living a whole new life in S.K. It was only last August when the family was making a terrifying escape from N.K., fleeing over rivers, on buses and in rickety taxis through China, Vietnam, Laos and Thailand. (Anna Fifield, WaPo)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- N.K. has accepted S.K.'s proposal to hold high-level talks on March 29 to discuss the date and agenda items for an inter-Korean summit slated for late April. (Yonhap)

- N.K. has agreed to meet with S.K. next week to coordinate the logistics and agendas for an inter-Korea summit in April. Each side will send a three-member team Thursday to the border truce village of Panmunjom. (VOA)
- The rival Koreas have agreed to hold high-level talks this coming week to prepare for an April summit between KJU and Moon. The summit aims to improve relations and resolve the standoff over the North's nuclear program. (Tong-Hyung Kim, AP)
- High-ranking officials from two Koreas will meet on the countries' border next week to prepare for the inter-Korean summit meeting planned for late next month. (Choe Sang-hun, NYT)
- The two Koreas are to hold high-level talks on 29 March to prepare for an April summit between both countries' leaders, Moon and KJU. Officials will discuss the date and specific agendas of the April summit at Panmunjom. (Guardian)
- S.K. said Saturday that N.K. has accepted its proposal to hold high-level inter-Korean talks next week. (Taehoon Lee, CNN)
- N.K. has agreed to hold high-level talks with S.K. on March 29 at the border truce village of Panmunjom to prepare for a summit of their leaders planned for April. (Cynthia Kim, Reuters)

International:

- Trump's incoming national security adviser, John Bolton, has divided pundits on whether the views of a hawkish former diplomat will change U.S. policy on N.K. ahead of an unprecedented bilateral summit. (Yonhap)
- A hawk among hawks, Bolton has advocated for pre-emptive strikes against N.K. and Iran, and pushed anti-immigration rhetoric. (Jamiles Lartey, Guardian)
- While John Bolton has said he would set aside his personal policy preferences and implement Trump's policies, the new appointment sparks speculations that a review on the US' current one-China stance may be underway. (Nike Ching, VOA)
- Bolton stated in an interview if N.K. is not prepared to have a serious discussion about what the real objective should be, which is its denuclearization, the Trump-KJU summit could actually be a very short meeting. (RFA)
- Former President Jimmy Carter is keeping tabs on the situation in N.K., and is willing to help if needed. Though he has been critical of Trump's rhetoric surrounding N.K., he welcomed Trump's willingness to meet with KJU. (Betsy Klein, CNN)
- As if the Trump administration did not face enough policy coordination and formulation challenges for the proposed Trump-Kim summit, sanctions policy will add other challenges that could derail the summit before it happens. (Joseph Dethomas, 38 North)
- The last two weeks could mark a major turning point in Trump's presidency, as Trump has elevated two of the most consistently hawkish Republicans in Washington. (Greg Jaffe, WaPo)
- John Bolton, Trump's new national security adviser, said Trump should insist that any meeting he holds with N.K.'s leader must be focused squarely on how to eliminate that country's nuclear weapons program as quickly as possible. (Reuters)

- Trump's pick of John Bolton for his next national security adviser stirred up a burning question in Washington and in foreign capitals: Just how much will his hawkish approach rub off on Trump? (Josh Lederman and Jonathan Lemire, AP)
- Trump's decision to bring on John Bolton as national security adviser jolted the usually careful diplomatic world enough that a few unusually frank adjectives slipped out. (Nicole Gaouette and Richard Roth, CNN)

Prepared by James Park, HRNK Research Intern

——————————————————

Sunday, March 25, 2018

'We Are Ready to Die.' Five North Korean Defectors Who Never Made It.; N.K. slams S. Korean military for backpedaling against peace mood

Top News:
'We Are Ready to Die.' Five North Korean Defectors Who Never Made It. (NYT, 03/25/2018)

In North Korea:
North Korea slows down operations at main nuclear test site (UPI, 03/25/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
(3rd LD) Artists of two Koreas to perform together in Pyongyang on April 3: officials (Yonhap, 03/24/2018)
Despite conciliatory mood, private sector exchanges between two Koreas remain stalled(Yonhap, 03/25/2018)
N.K. slams S. Korean military for backpedaling against peace mood (Yonhap, 03/25/2018)
North Korea criticizes South Korea's plans for more jets, missiles (UPI, 03/25/2018)
S. Korean musicians to sing their famous songs, N.K. numbers in Pyongyang (Yonhap, 03/25/2018)
Talks on summit to be held soon (Joongang Ilbo, 03/25/2018)

International:
Be frank with Bolton (Joongang Ilbo, 03/25/2018)
Donald Trump and North Korea tipped to be on agenda as Barack Obama renews friendship with Shinzo Abe (Telegraph, 03/25/2018)
N. Korea's joint diplomatic mission condemns U.N. resolution on N.K. human rights (Yonhap, 03/25/2018)
Obama, in Japan, says NKorea's isolation means less leverage (WaPo, 03/25/2018)
South Korean president visits UAE amid deepening ties (WaPo, 03/25/2018)
Russia wants to build a bridge to North Korea. Literally. (WaPo, 03/25/2018)

Top News:

- The story of five North Koreans who were caught in China and did not make it South Korea. (Jane Perlez, Lee Su-hyun, NYT)

In North Korea:

- NK appears to have slowed down operations at its main nuclear site of Punggyeri, ahead of leader KJU's upcoming summits on denuclearization with SK and the US. (Jennie Oh, UPI)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- SK's art troupe will perform together with N. Korean artists in one of the two rare concerts slated for early next month in Pyongyang, Seoul officials said Sat. (Yonhap)
- Despite a flurry of conciliatory moves between SK and NK and their planned historic summit about a month away, exchanges on the private level have remained stalled largely due to diplomatic hurdles, observers said Sun. (Yonhap)
- NK blasted the S. Korean military on Sun. for acting against the conciliatory mood developing on the Korean Peninsula, saying that SK is engaging in military maneuvers against Pyongyang. (Yonhap)
- Pyongyang criticized SK's plans to acquire more fighter jets and air-to-surface missiles to scale up its weapons capacity against NK, amid efforts to ease tensions on the Korean Peninsula. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- S. Korean musicians who will perform in Pyongyang in April are expected to sing songs that are well known to N. Koreans as well as a few N. Korean numbers, industry watchers said Sun. (Yonhap)
- NK on Sat. agreed to high-level talks with SK on Thurs. to discuss a summit meeting between the country's leaders in late April. (Kang Jin-kyu, Joongang Ilbo)

International:

- Bolton has persistently championed military action to tame Pyongyang and is expected to advise Trump to go tough in his talks with KJU and not be deceived into agreeing to a deal of peace. Seoul authorities must not take lightly the recruitment of a hard-line figure as the top negotiator in White House. (Joongang Ilbo)
- Japanese PM Shinzou Abe joined Obama for lunch on Sun. Although it was released as a catch-up lunch, local media reports claimed there would be one key topic which the pair were most likely to discuss: NK. (Danielle Demetriou, Telegraph)
- N. Korean diplomatic missions have denounced the latest adoption of a resolution by the UN condemning NK's human rights situation, accusing it of being an attempt to "tarnish the image" of the regime to further isolate it. (Yonhap)
- Obama said Sun. that negotiations with NK on its nuclear weapons program are difficult, partly because the country's isolation minimizes possible leverage, such as trade and travel sanctions against Pyongyang. (Yuri Kageyama, AP)

- Moon's visit to the United Arab Emirates this week shows the Asian nation's deepening cooperation with the Gulf country, from buying its oil to building the Arabian Peninsula's first nuclear power plant and potentially backing it in war. (Jon Gambrell, AP)
- This week, amid a period of relative calm on the oft-tense Korean Peninsula, Russian representatives traveled to NK to discuss an idea: They should open another bridge.
  Though the planning appears to be at a preliminary stage, it may show that Russia and NK are looking toward a trading future beyond sanctions and military tensions. (Adam Taylor, WaPo)

Prepared by Emma Stubblefield, HRNK Research Intern

——————————————————

Monday, March 26, 2018

North slams human rights monitor; N. Korea savages South's security consultations with U.S., Japan; Trump says sanctions are hurting the North Korean economy. But in some ways it appears stable.

In North Korea:
'Reduced activities' at NK nuclear test site (Korea Times, 03/25/2018)
Despite K-pop stars visit to North, crackdowns on foreign information intensify (DailyNK, 03/26/2018)
High-level North Korean official may be visiting Beijing: Japanese media (Reuters, 02/26/2018)
North slams human rights monitor (Joongang Daily, 03/26/2018)
North Korea's top diplomat Ri Yong Ho to visit Russia (UPI, 03/26/2018)
North Korea urges U.S. to adopt 'serious attitude' for peace, end sanctions (Reuters, 02/26/2018)
Ranking N.K. official apparently visiting China: report (Yonhap, 03/26/2018)
Some neighborhood watch leaders picked by more democratic process (DailyNK, 03/26/2018)

In South Korea:
Gwangju top educator proposes field trip to North Korea (Korea Times, 03/25/2018)
Minor quake strikes near inter-Korean maritime border (Korea Times, 03/26/2018)
Pyongyang Style? South Korea wants pop star Psy to play in the North (Guardian, 03/25/2018)
S. Korea renovating conference house at Joint Security Area ahead of inter-Korean summit (Yonhap, 03/26/2018)
Seoul to seek both security guarantee for N.K., denuclearization: spy agency (Yonhap, 03/26/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
Chiefs of South, North Korean Red Cross to meet in regional forum this week (Yonhap, 03/26/2018)
Gangnam Style soft diplomacy too much for North Korea (Telegraph, 03/26/2018)

N. Korea savages South's security consultations with U.S., Japan (Yonhap, 03/26/2018)

International:

(LEAD) EU reaffirms support for peaceful resolution of N.K. nuke issue (Yonhap, 03/26/2018)
A flurry of summits on Korea (Korea Times, 03/25/2018)
America's global friends and foes are on the edge of their seats (CNN, 03/25/2018)
AP-NORC Poll: Americans open to Trump's planned NKorea talks (Washington Post, 03/26/2018)
As moves for dialogue between North Korea and allies gather momentum, Japan prepares to enhance its missile shield (The Japan Times, 03/26/2018)
Bolton: N. Korea wants to buy time to develop nukes (Yonhap, 03/26/2018)
Bolton accuses North of buying time with talks (Joongang Daily, 03/26/2018)
China 'still a player' on North Korea, despite Trump-Kim talks, Japanese official says (South China Morning Post, 03/26/2018)
China Feb fuel exports to North Korea tiny; no corn, rice exports (Reuters, 03/26/2018)
China pushing to strengthen communication amid growing peace mood: official (Yonhap, 03/26/2018)
Dealing with Bolton (Joongang Daily, 03/26/2018)
Iran nuclear issue could affect N. Korea talks (Korea Times, 03/25/2018)
Lawmakers call for pressure on Myanmar over Pyongyang ties (Washington Post, 03/26/2018)
North Korea, U.S. must "cut to the chase" on denuclearization: Bolton (NKNews.org, 03/26/2018)
North Korea buying time to develop nuclear weapons, says Trump's new security adviser John Bolton (Telegraph, 03/26/2018)
Reports: Special NKorea train arrives in Beijing under guard (Washington Post, 03/26/2018)
Singapore revokes all North Korean work permits: report (NKNews.org, 03/26/2018)
The moment of truth (Joongang Daily, 03/26/2018)
Trump's hawkish turn (Korea Times, 03/25/2018)
Trump says sanctions are hurting the North Korean economy. But in some ways it appears stable. (Washington Post, 03/26/2018)
U.S. travel ban hits foreign attendance figures for North Korea marathon(Reuters, 03/26/2018)
US shows off new F-35 fighter jets ahead of US-South Korea drills (CNN, 03/26/2018

In North Korea:

- Tunneling at NK's Punggye-ri nuclear test site eased in mid-Mar., according to 38 North, a US news outlet focusing on N.Korean affairs. The slowdown comes as the Koreas prepare for a summit in Apr. (Kim Bo-eun, Korea Times)
- Although NK is outwardly promoting an image of relative 'opening' through its participation in the Olympics and recent invitation to S.Korean K-pop artists to perform in Pyongyang, sources in other areas of the country are reporting that within NK, the authorities are intensifying their crackdown on the spread of outside information. (Jang Seul Gi, DailyNK)
- A high-ranking N.Korean official appeared to have arrived by train in Beijing, Japanese media reported, though speculation that N.Korean leader KJU is currently visiting the Chinese capital has not been confirmed. (Reuters)

- NK accused the United Nations of trying to topple its leadership with resolutions condemning the country's human rights record and called such pressure a core reason for strengthening its military capabilities. (Lee Sung-eun, Joongang Daily)
- NK's foreign minister is expected to visit Russia in Apr., according to a Russian press report. RIA Novosti reported Mon. Ri Yong Ho, who made headlines in 2017 after threatening to detonate a hydrogen bomb over the Pacific, is planning to meet with Russian officials next month. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- NK said on Mon. its policy of seeking better ties with SK was enjoying broad international support, and called on the US to halt its sanctions and pressure. (Stephanie Nebehay, Reuters)
- A high-ranking N.Korean official appears to be visiting China, but it has yet to be confirmed whether the figure is N.Korean leader KJU, a Japanese report said Mon. (Yonhap)
- Multiple sources inside NK have confirmed a move by the authorities to institute popular elections for local People's Unit (inminban) leaders. Although the elections will be taking place at the very lowest level of administration in the country, the selection of People's Unit leaders by their constituents represents at least a small step towards raising democratic awareness among N.Koreans. (Kang Mi Jin, DailyNK)

In South Korea:

- Gwangju Metropolitan Office of Education wants to send students to NK for their field trip. The education office said Sun. it sent the proposal to Cheong Wa Dae and the Unification Ministry ahead of a planned SK-NK summit next month. Officials said students would be able to learn much about NK through hands-on experience. (Jung Min-ho, Jung Da-min, Korea Times)
- A minor 2.7-magnitude earthquake struck off an island near the inter-Korean maritime border in the West Sea, the state weather agency said on Mon. (Park Si-soo, Korea Times)
- Seoul is pushing for Gangnam Style star Psy to perform in next week's historic concerts by S.Korean artists in NK's capital, according to multiple reports. (Agence France-Presse, Guardian)
- SK is renovating a conference building at the Joint Military Area (JSA) with NK as the countries are gearing up for a summit of their leaders at the venue next month, officials said Mon. (Yonhap)
- SK plans to simultaneously seek to provide a security guarantee for NK and make NK give up nuclear weapons when the two Koreas hold a summit, Seoul's spy agency said Mon. (Yonhap)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- The Red Cross chiefs of SK and NK will meet this week in a regional forum to discuss cooperation on social issues, the South Korean chief said Mon. (Yonhap)
- NK may be willing to negotiate on denuclearisation, but allowing outlandish S.Korean pop star Psy to inflict his "provocative" dance moves on Pyongyang is apparently a step too far. (Nicola Smith, Telegraph)

- NK on Mon. slammed SK's recent security consultation meetings with the US and Japan, accusing them of weighing down inter-Korean relations. (Yonhap)

International:

- The European Union reaffirmed its active support for SK's efforts to peacefully resolve the NK nuclear issue, a foreign ministry official said Mon.. (Yonhap)
- Whether Trump can produce a successful deal will depend on how much reward he is ready to give to North Korea and how soon. Negotiation is a process of give-and-take. If Trump wins in his gamble, war will be avoided. And that will be good for all. (Tong Kim, Korea Times)
- The N.Korean regime has called Bolton "human scum" and vowed not to deal with him, likely a result of his public views embracing military force and regime change in NK. Allies Japan and SK are likely also wondering whether Bolton will mean that the US will revert back to all fire and fury in place of giving all options—including diplomacy—a real shot. (Samantha Vinograd, CNN)
- Americans appear open to President Donald Trump's surprise decision to negotiate directly with N.Korean leader KJU, and at the same time are less concerned than in recent months by the threat posed by the pariah nation's nuclear weapons. (Matthew Pennington, Emily Swanson, AP)
- As the world looks to upcoming summits involving Pyongyang, Seoul and Washington with hopes of achieving even slight progress toward denuclearizing NK, Japan's Defense Ministry maintains that it's still too soon for the nation to consider dropping plans to boost security. (Daisuke Kikuchi, The Japan Times)
- NK is offering negotiations with the US in order to buy time to develop its nuclear weapons, the incoming US national security adviser said Sun. (Yonhap)
- John R. Bolton, an US hard-liner on NK policy who was named President Donald Trump's new national security adviser last week, accused Pyongyang of trying to "slow-roll the negotiations" with Washington to buy more time for its nuclear weapons development, saying the regime had only a "limited number of things" to do to strike the US with nuclear warheads. (Lee Sung-eun, Joongang Daily)
- China still has a significant role to play on the NK nuclear issue, regardless of the planned talks between US President Donald Trump and N.Korean leader KJU, according to a former Japanese foreign minister. (Teddy Ng, South China Morning Post)
- China kept fuel exports to NK to a trickle and shipped no corn or rice to its isolated neighbour last month, data showed on Mon., extending a months-long drop in trade amid tensions over Pyongyang's nuclear and missile program. (Reuters)
- China appears to be pushing to strengthen its communication with NK, amid signs of a growing peace mood, after the reclusive state recently expressed willingness to come out for talks on its denuclearization, a foreign ministry official said Mon. (Yonhap)
- According to The New York Times, Bolton said the upcoming summit between KJU and Trump should "be a fairly brief session where Trump says: 'Tell me you have begun total denuclearization, because we're not going to have protracted negotiations. You can tell me right now or we'll start thinking of something else." The newspaper said Bolton made clear that the "something else" is a pre-emptive strike against NK. Unless the Moon administration keeps step with Washington, SK could face danger. (Chun Yong-gi, Joongang Daily)

- The possibility of the US abandoning the Iran nuclear deal, a move supported by US President Donald Trump as well as his newly appointed national security adviser John Bolton, could have implications for how Washington will address the Pyongyang nuclear issue. (Kim Bo-eun, Korea Times)
- The Trump administration has slapped sanctions on companies across the globe to punish illicit trade with nuclear-armed NK, yet Myanmar, which is suspected of acquiring ballistic missile systems from the pariah state, has escaped the full force of the "maximum pressure" campaign. (Matthew Pennington, AP)
- Prospective US National Security Advisor John Bolton on Sun. said NK and the US must use an upcoming summit between the two countries to "cut to the chase" on the denuclearization issue. (Dagyum Ji, NKNews.org)
- Incoming US national security advisor John Bolton on Sun. vowed to maintain a hardline stance in upcoming negotiations with NK, warning that Pyongyang was only coming to the table in an effort to buy time to develop its nuclear weapons program. (Nicola Smith, Telegraph)
- Japanese media reports said a special N.Korean train arrived in Beijing under unusually heavy security on Mon., suggesting a senior delegation might have been aboard. (AP)
- The government of Singapore has canceled all work permits previously issued to N.Korean citizens in the country, according to its latest implementation report to the United Nations Security Council (UNSC) committee on sanctions against the DPRK. (Hamish Macdonald, NKNews.org)
- The moment of truth is coming on the NK nuclear issue. US President Donald Trump appointed hawks like Mike Pompeo and John Bolton to secretary of state and national security adviser. Tensions are rising, and some are worried that the inter-Korean and US-NK summits might be disastrous. The appointment of Bolton is especially noteworthy as the neoconservative figure previously advocated bombing NK to resolve the nuclear issue. (Lee Hyun-sang, Joongang Daily)
- President Trump's reshuffle of his security and diplomatic team is likely to enable him to take a more hard-line stance on NK. By tapping the hawkish John Bolton as his national security adviser, Trump seems to clarify his intention of not repeating mistakes as far as NK's denuclearization is concerned. (Korea Times)
- The Trump administration says international trade sanctions are undermining the N.Korean economy, and that the financial squeeze has compelled KJU to negotiate. But information about the N.Korean economy is scarce at best–it has never published reliable economic figures. And amid the statistical blackout, some informal indicators indicate that the country has remained stable, according to specialists working from public sources including commercial satellite photography and reports, gathered at great risk, from people within NK. (Peter Whoriskey, Washington Post)
- Described as NK's "biggest hit of the year," next month's Pyongyang Marathon is expected to have half as many foreign participants as last year, tour operators say, as political tensions and a ban on US visitors take their toll. (Josh Smith, Reuters)

- The US military is demonstrating its newest—and most expensive—weaponry a week before it begins annual war games with SK. The drills, which usually provoke fury from NK, will go ahead this year despite heightened sensitivity as diplomats try to organize a summit between the two Koreas, as well as an historic meeting between US President Trump and the North Korean leader, KJU. (Rebecca Wright, Ivan Watson, CNN)

Prepared by Jinny Ahn, HRNK Research Intern

——————————————————

Tuesday, March 27, 2018

‘Ready to Die.’ Five North Korean Defectors Who Never Made It.; Kim Jong-un and the mystery of the 'special green train' in China

Top News:
‘Ready to die’: five North Korean defectors who never made it (Irish Times, 03/26/2018)
'We are ready to die': 5 North Korean defectors who never made it (Strait Times, 03/26/2018)

In North Korea:
Bulletproof, Slow and Full of Wine: Kim Jong-un’s Mystery Train (NYT, 03/26/2018)
Karaoke Bars Closing in North Korea’s Capital Pyongyang (RFA, 03/26/2018)
North Korea seeks help to stamp out 'bourgeois culture' (UPI, 03/26/2018)
North Korean Envoy Derides 'Futile' US Sanctions (NYT, 03/26/2018)
North Korean official calls on U.S. to end sanctions, pressure (UPI, 03/27/2018)
[Video] North Korean trader drowns in icy Yalu River during crackdown on private smuggling(Daily NK, 03/27/2018)

In South Korea:
Search for duds under way near USFK shooting range (Yonhap, 03/27/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
Kang San-ae, Kim Kwang-min join Pyongyang Concert (Korea Times, 03/27/2018)
N. Korean football officials to visit S. Korea this week (Yonhap, 03/27/2018)
S. Korea unveils list of delegates for high-level talks (Yonhap, 03/27/2018)
S. Korean taekwondo demonstration team to perform twice in Pyongyang (Yonhap, 03/27/2018)
South Korean concerts in Pyongyang set for April 1 and 3 (Joongang Ilbo, 03/26/2018)
Two more added to S. Korean cast for Pyongyang performances (Yonhap, 03/27/2018)

International:
(LEAD) Ranking N.K. official apparently visiting China: report (Yonhap, 03/27/2018)
(LEAD) U.S. 'can't confirm' Kim's visit to China (Yonhap, 03/27/2018)
(LEAD) U.S. to end aid to countries helping N. Korea's cyberattacks (Yonhap, 03/27/2018)

(4th LD) S. Korea trying to verify reports of high-ranking N. Korean official's China visit(Yonhap, 03/27/2018)
Analysis: NKorean Visit Shows China Still Has Role to Play (NYT 03/27/2018)
AP-NORC Poll: Americans open to Trump's planned NKorea talks (WaPo, 03/26/2018)
At Odds With Bolton on North Korea, Mattis Appears Isolated (NYT 03/27/2018)
Authorities block train station, bridge near North Korea border (UPI, 03/26/2018)
Beijing shrouded in security, speculation over mystery North Korean guest (Reuters, 03/27/2018)
Change is in the air (Joongang Ilbo, 03/27/2018)
China censors 'Fatty the Third' Internet search as North Koreans visit (UPI, 03/27/2018)
China says has no understanding of reported Beijing visit by North Korea's Kim (Reuters, 03/27/2018)
High-level North Korean Delegation Reported in Chinese Capital (VOA, 03/27/2018)
High profile visit from North Korea likely aimed to reaffirm ties with China (UPI, 03/26/2018)
INTERVIEW-Japanese foreign minister: Japan, U.S. "completely in sync" on N.Korea (Reuters, 03/27/2018)
Is Kim Jong-un the mystery visitor who just arrived in Beijing? (Telegraph, 03/27/2018)
Kim Jong-un and the mystery of the 'special green train' in China (Guardian, 03/27/2018)
Kim Jong Un Reportedly on Visit to China (VOA, 03/26/2018)
Mystery in Beijing (Joongang Ilbo, 03/27/2018)
North Korea, Chinese leaders meet in Beijing (Korea Times, 03/27/2018)
North Korea: Kim Jong-un in China for 'unannounced state visit' (Guardian, 03/26/2018)
North Korea leader Kim Jong Un visits China: Bloomberg (Reuters, 03/27/2018)
[Photos] Heightened security indicative of North Korean train carrying high-level official to China (Daily NK, 03/27/2018)
Pyongyang VIP secretly travels to China (Joongang Ilbo, 03/26/2018)
Reports: Special NKorea train arrives in Beijing under guard (WaPo, 03/26/2018)
S. Korea may agree to pay more for U.S. troops: Victor Cha (Yonhap, 03/26/2018)
Singapore cancels all work passes for North Korean guest workers (UPI, 03/27/2018)
Singapore repeals work permits of all N. Koreans (Yonhap, 03/27/2018)
'Strong possibility' North Korea's Kim Jong Un made surprise Beijing visit (CNN, 03/27/2018)
Train believed carrying top North Korean delegation leaves Beijing (Reuters, 03/26/2018)
What Kim Jong-un May Get in Reaching Out to China (NYT, 03/27/2018)
Why would Kim Jong Un make a secret trip to China? (CNN, 03/27/2018)
'Xi could join Kim, Trump for summit' (Korea Times, 03/27/2018)

Top News:

- The story of five North Koreans who were caught in China and did not make it SK. (Jane Perlez, Lee Su-hyun, NYT)

In North Korea:

- A train, nearly as mysterious as its principal passenger, pulled into Beijing's central train station Monday night, fueling speculation that KJU had arrived in the capital for secret talks with his Chinese counterpart. Here's what we know about the train. (Russell Goldman, NYT)

- Karaoke bars, formerly a reliable money-maker for NK's sanctions-hit regime, are now being closed in the capital Pyongyang amid falling business and concerns over crime and other antisocial behavior, sources in the country say. (RFA)
- N. Korean media is fanning the flames of patriotism ahead of planned summits with the US and SK. It is likely that the KWP's Newspaper was condemning the widespread consumption of foreign and SK media in NK. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- A N. Korean parliamentarian says the US should end its "futile moves of sanctions and pressure" against his country, while stressing the need for dialogue and negotiation. (AP)
- A N. Korean official has urged the US to end sanctions and pressure on Pyongyang, NHK reported Tues. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- A N. Korean attempting to smuggle goods across the Yalu River from Hyesan into China drowned after an accident. Because the authorities are demanding larger amounts in bribes these days, the man tried to carry a much larger amount of goods than usual, and slipped and fell into the water due to the extra weight. (Seol Song-ah, Daily NK)

In South Korea:

- S. Korean and US troops will conduct a joint operation this week to find and get rid of duds in an area close to the Rodriguez Live Fire Range of the US Forces Korea, the Ministry of National Defense said Tues. (Yonhap)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- Singer Kang San-ae and pianist Kim Kwang-min will join the S. Korean performance troupe's special concert in Pyongyang next month. (Kwon Mee-yoo, Korea Times)
- N. Korean football officials will visit SK later this week to attend a meeting on regional football issues, an official with Seoul's football governing body said Tues. (Yonhap)
- SK on Tues. sent a list of names for its three-member delegation to NK for this week's high-level talks between the two Koreas to prepare for an inter-Korean summit slated for late Apr. (Yonhap)
- SK's taekwondo demonstration team will have two performances in NK next month, the sports ministry in Seoul announced Tues. (Yonhap)
- Eleven S. Korean music artists will hold two concerts in Pyongyang next month, one of which will include performances with N. Koreans, the South's Ministry of Culture, Sports and Tourism announced Tues. (Yim Seung-hye, Joongang Ilbo)
- Folk singer Kangsaneh and jazz pianist Kim Kwang-min will join a group of S. Korean artists to stage rare performances in Pyongyang early next week, the government said Tues. (Yonhap)

International:

- A high-ranking N. Korean official appears to be visiting China, a Japanese report said Mon., ahead of summits with SK and the US. (Yonhap)
- The White House said Mon. it can't confirm reports that N. Korean leader KJU is currently visiting Beijing. (Yonhap)

- The US government will stop aid to any country involved in deals that can be instrumental to strengthening NK's cyberattack capabilities, according to an appropriations bill, signed by Trump last week. (Yonhap)
- The S. Korean government has been striving Tues. to verify news reports that a high-ranking N. Korean official, possibly KJU, visited China. (Yonhap)
- No matter who was on the private train that pulled into Beijing from Pyongyang overnight, one thing is clear: China still plays a major role in efforts to end NK's nuclear program.(AP)
- Americans appear open to Trump's surprise decision to negotiate directly with KJU, and at the same time are less concerned than in recent months by the threat posed by the pariah nation's nuclear weapons. (Matthew Pennington, Emily Swanson, AP)
- Of the issues that divide Defense Secretary Jim Mattis and Trump's incoming national security adviser, John Bolton, one stands out: NK. (AP)
- Large screens blocking views of Dandong Station have been installed, and local sources in the Chinese border city say there is speculation KJU may have secretly paid a visit to China. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- With Beijing under heavy security as a mystery N. Korean delegation visited the Chinese capital, internet users scrambled to stay a step ahead of censors on Tues. as China's tightly controlled state media remained silent. (Sue-Lin Wong, Reuters)
- When change is in the air, mutual confidence can be built. Once trust is built, the changes can be lasting. If the two Koreas and the US are sincere, permanent peace may not be an impossible dream. (Bae Myung-bok, Joongang Ilbo)
- News of a N. Korean visit to Beijing has been followed by censorship on the Chinese Internet, according to multiple reports. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- China's foreign ministry said on Tues. it had no understanding of the situation when asked about a report by Bloomberg that said KJU is currently visiting Beijing. (Reuters)
- A high-level N. Korean delegation has reportedly made a brief visit to Beijing, fueling speculation the reclusive country's leader, KJU, met with Chinese officials in the capital. (Bill Ide, Brian Padden, VOA)
- NK may be attempting to reaffirm ties with its neighbor and biggest ally China, ahead of KJU's upcoming summits with SK and the US. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- The US and Japan are "completely in sync" over NK and agree that it must abolish its medium- and short-range missiles as well as intercontinental and intermediate range ballistic missiles, Japan's foreign minister said on Tues. (Reuters)
- Strict censorship of China's internet and increased security in Beijing on Tues. has fuelled intense speculation that KJU was making a secretive visit to the Chinese capital ahead of talks with Trump. (Neil Connor, Telegraph)
- A green and yellow train, similar to the one used by Kim Jong-il, has set off a firestorm of speculation as to whether the KJU has been in China on his first trip abroad. (Lily Kuo, Guardian)
- KJU is reportedly in China on an unannounced visit, Bloomberg News reported Mon., citing three unnamed sources. (VOA)
- The S. Korean government must be thoroughly prepared for improved ties between Pyongyang and Beijing. At the same time, the government must not provoke China. It must take into account all parties involved, including Russia and Japan, to improve relations with NK. (Joongang Ilbo)

- KJU met with his Chinese counterpart Xi Jinping during a two-day visit to Beijing that started Mon., according to intelligence sources Tues. (Lee Min-hyung, Korea Times
- KJU is believed to be in Beijing on an unannounced trip, in what would be his first foreign state visit since taking power in 2011, according to reports. (Lily Kuo, Guardian)
- KJU has visited China, Bloomberg reported on Monday citing three unnamed sources, in what would be his first known overseas trip since taking power in 2011 and ahead of a potential summit with Trump. (Ben Blanchard, Reuters)
- Daily NK has learned from sources in Dandong, China, of evidence suggesting KJU or another high-level official may have made their way through the city by train on their way towards Beijing. (Ha Yoon-ah, Daily NK)
- Media reports about a visit by a top-level N. Korean official to China dominated the local news Tues., raising questions of whether it was KJU. (Kang Jin-kyu, Joongang Ilbo)
- Japanese media reports said a special N. Korean train arrived in Beijing under unusually heavy security on Mon., suggesting a senior delegation might have been aboard. (AP)
- SK may agree to shoulder a larger burden of the cost of stationing US troops on its soil as part of the two nations' deal on trade, former White House official Victor Cha said Mon. (Yonhap)
- Singapore has canceled all work permits for N.Korean workers in its borders, in line with United Nations Security Council resolutions, a recent UN sanctions report shows. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- Singapore has nullified work permits for all N. Koreans in the country in line with the latest UN sanctions over its weapons programs, according to the sanctions committee. (Yonhap)
- KJU is believed to have wrapped up an unprecedented whirlwind trip to the Chinese capital, ahead of a planned summit with his S.Korean counterpart and a potential meeting withTrump. (Joshua Berlinger, Will Ripley, Steven Jiang, CNN)
- A train believed to be carrying a senior N. Korean delegation left the Chinese capital on Tues. following a dramatic whirlwind visit that some reports said included KJU. (Ben Blanchard, Christine Kim, Reuters)
- The prospect of a high-level visit from NK even a meeting with China's leader, Xi Jinping — raised questions about what Mr. Kim hopes to accomplish with this latest, unexpected burst of diplomacy after years of provocative threats punctuated by nuclear and ballistic missile tests. (Steven Lee Myers, Choe Sang-hyun, NYT)
- A surprise visit by KJU to China may indicate Pyongyang's need for support from its closest ally ahead of upcoming summits with SK and the US. (James Griffiths, CNN)
- If the Trump-Kim talks are in Beijing, Xi will play a role in mediating for a "freeze-for-freeze" formula to have NK stop its weapons of mass destruction programs, while the US helps suspend international sanctions on NK, especially the last two by the UN. (Oh Young-jin, Korea Times)

Prepared by Emma Stubblefield, HRNK Research Intern

Wednesday, March 28, 2018

Kim Jong-un paid 'unofficial' visit to Beijing, Chinese state media confirms; Trump gives positive sign on talks with Kim, good review of Xi meeting

In North Korea:

Ahead of Trump summit, new activity at North Korea nuke site (WaPo, 03/28/2018)
How does Kim tell North Korea he's giving up nuclear weapons? (Reuters, 03/27/2018)
Is North Korea's crackdown on 'anti-Socialist culture' to blame for karaoke bars closing down?(Telegraph, 03/28/2018)
Kim Jong Un and Ri Sol Ju Visit China (NK Leadership Watch, 03/28/2018)
Kim Jong Un's China visit may be start of his world travels (WaPo, 03/28/2018)
Kim Jong-un says 'North Korea is committed to denuclearization' (Korea Times, 03/28/2018)
N.K. confirms leader visited China at invitation by Xi Jinping (Yonhap, 03/28/2018)
N. Korea's reclusive leader makes surprise diplomatic debut (Yonhap, 03/28/2018)
North Korea recalled spies from China for placement in Pyeongchang Olympics groups (Daily NK, 03/28/2018)
North Korea's Kim seen building global status in trip to China (Reuters, 03/28/2018)
Report: North Korea reduces troops near main nuclear facility (UPI, 03/28/2018)
With secretive China trip, North Korea's Kim builds bargaining power (Reuters, 03/28/2018)

In South Korea:

(LEAD) Top Chinese diplomat to visit Seoul to offer briefing on results of Xi-Kim talks(Yonhap, 03/28/2018)
Cheong Wa Dae confirms N.K. leader's visit to China (Yonhap, 03/28/2018)
China informed S. Korea of Kim's visit in advance: Cheong Wa Dae (Yonhap, 03/28/2018)
Chinese official to brief Moon on Xi-Kim summit (Korea Times, 03/28/2018)
Chinese official to brief South Korea officials on North Korea-China summit: Blue House(Reuters, 03/28/2018)
Gov't forms group of advisers for inter-Korean summit (Yonhap, 03/28/2018)
Jeju joins race to host Trump-Kim meeting (Korea Times, 03/27/2018)
Parties view N.K. leader's visit to China with expectation, concerns (Yonhap, 03/28/2018)
S. Korea 'welcomes' Kim Jong-un's talks with Chinese leader (Yonhap, 03/28/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

Kang San-eh astonished to be part of historic Pyongyang concert (Yonhap, 03/28/2018)
Make minerals work (Joongang Daily, 03/28/2018)
N. Korea notifies S. Korea of names of delegates for high-level talks (Yonhap, 03/28/2018)
North and South Korean officials shake hands, share a Swiss toast (Reuters, 03/28/2018)

(Yonhap Feature) Inter-Korean summit preparation underway at border truce village (Yonhap, 03/28/2018)

International:

(3rd LD) Kim reaffirms commitment to denuclearization in first summit with Xi (Yonhap, 03/28/2018)
Abe fears US-NKorea talks will omit Japan security concerns (WaPo, 03/28/2018)
Bad History Makes for Flawed Policy (38 North, 03/28/2018)
China briefed U.S. on Kim's visit to Beijing: White House (Yonhap, 03/27/2018)
China Says Kim Jong Un Confirms Denuclearization Commitment (VOA, 03/28/2018)
China says North Korea's Kim pledged commitment to denuclearization (Reuters, 03/26/2018)
China steps in (Joongang Daily, 03/28/2018)
China throws Trump a curveball ahead of his meeting with Kim (CNN, 03/28/2018)
China vows to maintain tough North Korea sanctions after Kim visit (UPI, 03/28/2018)
Chinese diplomat gets key role on N. Korean issues as Beijing fights to remain relevant(Korea Times, 03/28/2018)
CNN Poll: Nearly two-thirds approve of Trump's plan to meet North Korean leader (CNN, 03/27/2018)
Differing views of 'denuclearization' complicate North Korea talks (Reuters, 03/28/2018)
Donald Trump hails progress with Kim Jong-un as North Korean leader's trip to China confirmed (Telegraph, 03/28/2018)
Experts: US, South Korea Differ on Expectations for US-North Korea Summit (VOA, 03/27/2018)
Key moments in North Korea-China relationship (WaPo, 03/28/2018)
Kim in Beijing: Why Xi's still the one he needs to see (BBC, 03/28/2018)
Kim Jong-un, a mysterious motorcade, and a potentially historic trip to China (Telegraph, 03/27/2018)
Kim Jong-un's China Visit Strengthens His Hand in Nuclear Talks (NYT, 03/28/2018)
Kim Jong Un's cunning strategy could lead the world down a dangerous path (CNN, 03/28/2018)
Kim Jong-un makes diplomatic debut in Beijing (Joongang Daily, 03/28/2018)
Kim Jong-un meets Xi in Beijing (Korea Times, 03/27/2018)
Kim Jong-un met with Xi Jinping in surprise visit to Beijing (Joongang Daily, 03/28/2018)
Kim Jong-un paid 'unofficial' visit to Beijing, Chinese state media confirms (Guardian, 03/28/2018)
Kim Jong-un's visit to China fails to hide strain in relations (Guardian, 03/28/2018)
Kim Jong Un visits China's 'Silicon Valley' during Beijing trip (UPI, 03/28/2018)
Kim-Xi meeting presents a new challenge for Trump on North Korea (WaPo, 03/28/2018)
Kim, Xi portray strong ties after NKorea leader's China trip (WaPo, 03/28/2018)
Korea is a priority post-Brexit, says new British ambassador (Joongang Daily, 03/28/2018)
Kremlin: no immediate plans for Russia-North Korea summit (Reuters, 03/28/2018)
(News Focus) Kim seeks China's backing ahead of S. Korea, U.S. summits (Yonhap, 03/27/2018)
(News Focus) With talks with Xi, N.K. leader ups ante for showdown with Trump (Yonhap, 03/28/2018)
North Korean leader Kim Jong Un visits China: state media (Reuters, 03/28/2018)
So what was the point of Kim Jong-un's mysterious trip to China? (Guardian, 03/28/2018)
State Media: North Korean Leader Visits China (VOA, 03/28/2018)

The US-DPRK Summit: Assessing Chinese Anxieties (38 North, 03/27/2018)
Trump gives positive sign on talks with Kim, good review of Xi meeting (Reuters, 03/28/2018)
Trump: Good chance NKorean leader will do 'what is right' (WaPo, 03/28/2018)
Trump keen to meet Kim after 'successful' China talks (BBC, 03/28/2018)
Trump says maximum pressure on N.K. will remain 'at all cost' (Yonhap, 03/28/2018)
Trump says Xi told him Kim meeting went 'very well' (CNN, 03/28/2018)
Trump wants to go to war with N. Korea: U.S. lawmaker (Yonhap, 03/28/2018)
When Xi Met Kim: How China and North Korea Depicted It (NYT, 03/28/2018)
Worried about Bolton? Pentagon chief Mattis dismisses concerns (Reuters, 03/27/2018)

In North Korea:

- Increased activity at a N. Korean nuclear site has once again caught the attention of analysts and renewed concerns about the complexities of denuclearization talks as Trump prepares for a summit with KJU in the coming weeks. (Eric Talmadge, AP)
- Absent any public confirmation from Pyongyang, analysts are skeptical KJU will suddenly give up the nuclear arsenal he and his family have spent decades developing. Instead, he's likely to seek a more nuanced and long-term approach that could allow him to emerge looking victorious in the minds of his people and domestic elites, they say. (Josh Smith, Soyoung Kim, Reuters)
- NK's once popular karaoke bars are reportedly being closed down as business struggles with a drop in foreign visitors. (Nicola Smith, Telegraph)
- KJU and his wife Ri Sol-ju visited China during March 25 and March 28. Here is a very detailed description of what they did in China. (NK Leadership Watch)
- A look at where KJU's been, where he might be headed and what kind of "souvenirs" he'll be hoping to gather along the way. (Eric Talmadge, AP)
- N. Korean leader KJU told Chinese President Xi Jinping during a visit to Beijing that NK is "committed to denuclearization," the official Xinhua news agency reported. (Park Si-soo, Oh Young-jin, Korea Times)
- KJU has visited China at the invitation by Chinese President Xi Jinping, state media said Wed., marking his first summit with China's leader. (Yonhap)
- With his visit to China, KJU made a surprise diplomatic debut, ending nearly six years of seclusion from the international scene. (Yonhap)
- The N. Korean government was not confident that agents without international experience would faithfully execute their duties in SK, and decided to recall those working in China for Olympics-related assignments instead. (Lee Sang Yong, Daily NK)
- Accompanied by his wife, greeted by honor guards, and entertained at banquets, KJU made his international debut as NK's leader by being wined and dined in the capital of the world's most populous country. (Christine Kim, Ben Blanchard, Reuters)
- NK is reducing the number of troops stationed at its main nuclear test site of Punggye-ri, a Japanese daily reported. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- KJU's visit to China, countering what had been growing estrangement between the Cold War allies, is likely to bolster Pyongyang's leverage going into a planned summit between Kim and Trump. (Christian Shepard, Heekyong Yang, Reuters)

In South Korea:

- Chinese State Councilor Yang Jiechi will visit Seoul on Thurs. morning to brief SK on the results of talks between President Xi Jinping and KJU, a Cheong Wa Dae official said. (Yonhap)
- SK's presidential office Cheong Wa Dae confirmed Wed. that KJU visited Beijing. (Yonhap)
- China notified SK in advance that KJU would visit Beijing, a presidential official said Wed. (Yonhap)
- A ranking Chinese official is scheduled to visit SK and brief officials here on this week's summit between Chinese President Xi Jinping and N.Korean leader KJU, Cheong Wa Dae said Wed. (Kim Rahn, Korea Times)
- Yang Jiechi, one of China's top diplomats, will brief officials in Seoul on Thurs., including Moon, on Chinese President Xi Jinping's meeting with KJU, the presidential office in Seoul said on Wed. (Reuters)
- On Wed. the S. Korean government selected former top point men on NK and experts on inter-Korean relations as advisers for preparations for next month's summit between Moon and KJU. (Yonhap)
- Jeju Island Governor Won Hee-ryong proposed the island as the venue for the planned summit between Trump and KJU in May, in a video message posted to Trump's Twitter page, Mon. (Choi Ha-young, Korea Times)
- SK's political parties on Wed. evaluated this week's summit between China and NK with a mix of hope and worries, calling on Seoul to prepare more thoroughly for the inter-Korean summit slated for next month. (Yonhap)
- The S. Korean government on Wed. "welcomed" the recent talks between KJU and Chinese President Xi Jinping, hoping they could expedite NK's denuclearization. (Yonhap)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- Singer-songwriter Kang San-eh said he's amazed to be part of history by performing in NK to celebrate the recent rapprochement of the divided nations. (Yonhap)
- Watershed summit meetings that could shape the future of the Korean Peninsula are in the making. Seoul is busy preparing a denuclearization scheme for a summit with Pyongyang in Apr. It will likely ask NK to return to the path of denuclearization in return for normalization of its ties with Washington and acceptance of the rogue state by the international community. (Kim Byung-yeon, Joongang Daily)
- NK notified SK of the names of the officials it will send to a high-level inter-Korean meeting intended to discuss the details of a summit the two Koreas are preparing to hold in Apr., the unification ministry here said Wed. (Yonhap)
- Senior N. and S. Korean parliamentarians shook hands and shared a toast to "peace" with Swiss wine on Tues., a Reuters witness said, in a rare gesture of friendship suggesting relations between their two countries are thawing. (Stephanie Nebehay, Reuters)

- The border truce village of Panmunjom, surrounded by inter-Korean tensions, is set to greet a special guest in late Apr. -- KJU will make a rare crossing of the border for an inter-Korean summit. (Kim Soo-yeon, Yonhap)

International:

- KJU has visited China at the invitation of President Xi Jinping and reaffirmed his commitment to denuclearization during their first summit, the two countries' media said Wed. (Yonhap)
- Japanese PM Shinzo Abe said Wed. he is worried that N. Korean security threats to Japan, including short- and medium-range missiles, may not be discussed at a US-NK summit. (Mari Yamaguchi, AP)
- Instead of basing the approach to the summit on a gross misreading of the past, Trump would do better to test whether or not KJU means what he says now. (Leon V. Sigal, 38 North)
- China has briefed the US on KJU's visit to Beijing, the White House said Tues. (Yonhap)
- China says N.Korean leader KJU confirmed during a secretive visit to Beijing his commitment to denuclearize the Korean peninsula and engage in talks with SK and the US. (Brian Padden, VOA)
- KJU pledged his commitment to denuclearization and to meet US officials, China said on Wed. after his meeting with President Xi Jinping, who promised China would uphold friendship with its isolated neighbor. (Ben Blanchard, Joyce Lee, Reuters)
- Xi welcomed Kim warmheartedly. Kim saved Xi's face by stressing that he chose China as the destination for his first overseas trip because of a need to discuss the rapidly changing situation on the Korean Peninsula. (Joongang Daily)
- The date for their meeting is still not set, but when Trump finally meets KJU, the specter of China will also be in the room, a potent signal to Trump that the young reclusive leader has support for his cause from the region's most formidable presence. (Jamie Tarabay, CNN)
- China says it is not reducing economic pressure on NK following a historic summit between KJU and Chinese President Xi Jinping on Tues. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- A veteran diplomat is set to take over as China's deputy special representative for Korean affairs, as Beijing seeks to avoid being sidelined on the peninsula amid plans for NK to hold talks with both SK and the US, sources said. (Laura Zhou, Catherine Wong, Korea Times)
- With the White House and NK's tentative agreement for Trump and KJU to meet, Americans' concerns about the threat from NK have abated and Trump's approval ratings for handling the situation there have risen, according to a new CNN poll.(Jennifer Agiesta, CNN)
- "Denuclearization" is a word dominating the headlines as Trump leads an effort to pressure NK to abandon its nuclear weapons program. But everyone has different views on what denuclearization actually means in practice. (Josh Smith, Reuters)
- Trump said he is looking forward to meeting KJU after the N. Korean leader used a surprise trip to Beijing to affirm his commitment to discussing his nuclear weapons programme. (Chris Graham, Louis Emanuel, Telegraph)

- US and S.Korean leaders need to coordinate their now divergent approaches to NK before their summit meetings with KJU, said experts on NK. (Christy Lee, VOA)
- A look at key moments in relations between North Korea and China. (AP)
- As preparation begins for the inter-Korean summit and a chaotic White House in DC lurches toward its own summit with NK, China has made it clear that it is anything but irrelevant. (Ankit Panda, BBC)
- Shaky mobile phone footage of a motorcade zooming through the streets of Beijing deepened the intrigue on Tues. surrounding whether a groundbreaking meeting had taken place between NK's leader KJU, and Chinese leaders. (Neil Connor, Helen Nianias, Telegraph)
- With a dose of mystery and the flair of a showman, North Korea's young leader, Kim Jong-un, used his debut as an international statesman on Wednesday to present himself as confident, reasonable — and willing to bargain. (Jane Perlez, NYT)
- KJU's strategy may be clever, but it is not without risk. KJU has no reason to trust the US. (Jonathan Crystal, CNN)
- KJU made an unannounced visit to China from Mon. to Tues. on the invitation of Chinese President Xi Jinping, NK and China's state news media confirmed Wed., an international diplomatic debut for a young leader who's only weeks away from holding summits with SK and the US. (Lee Sung-eun, Yoo Jee-hye, Joongang Daily)
- KJU met with his Chinese counterpart Xi Jinping during a two-day visit to Beijing that started Monday, according to intelligence sources Tues. (Lee Min-hyung, Korea Times)
- KJU made an unannounced visit to China from Sun. to Wed. on the invitation of Chinese President Xi Jinping, NK's state news media confirmed. (Lee Sung-eun,Joongang Daily)
- China has confirmed that KJU has visited Beijing, where he met the Chinese president, Xi Jinping, and pledged his commitment to denuclearizing the Korean peninsula. (Lily Kuo, Guardian)
- The pageantry of Kim's surprise visit to Beijing, confirmed only after he left China on Wed., obscures a strained relationship between the two long-time communist allies. China's state news agency, Xinhua, was careful to describe the visit as "unofficial". (Lily Kuo, Guardian)
- KJU made a stopover at China's technology hub on Tues., a move possibly aligned with his pledge to accomplish an economic breakthrough for NK. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- A secretive meeting between KJU and China's Xi Jinping this week showcased enduring bonds between the two countries, highlighting the diplomatic challenge facing Trump. (Emily Rauhala, Anna Fifield, WaPo)
- With smiles and firm handshakes, NK and China used a surprise summit this week to show that despite recent tensions, Pyongyang still has a powerful backer and Beijing will not be sidelined in discussions about the fate of its unpredictable neighbor. (Gillian Wong, Kim Tong-hyun, AP)
- The UK's prospective exit from the EU will upend the country's free trade commitments and require Britain to negotiate new deals with other countries. Korea will be a top priority, said Simon Smith, the new British ambassador to Seoul. (Esther Chung, Joongang Daily)
- There are no immediate plans for a Russia-NK summit, or for a meeting between Russian President Vladimir Putin and KJU, Kremlin spokesman Dmitry Peskov told reporters on Wed. (Reuters)

- KJU likely went to China to solicit President Xi Jinping's support ahead of his meetings with the S. Korean and US leaders, analysts said. (Yonhap)
- KJU's surprise visit to Beijing is viewed as part of efforts to collect more bargaining chips ahead of his showdown with Trump. (Lee Chi-dong, Yonhap)
- KJU visited China from Sun. to Wed. on an unofficial visit, China's state news agency Xinhua reported on Wed. (Reuters)
- Meeting Xi Jinping was more than a rehearsal for the Korean leader's date with Trump. It was a necessary staging post. (Mary Dejevsky, Guardian)
- KJU visited China this week on an unofficial visit, China's state news agency Xinhua reported on Wed. (Bill Ide, Brian Padden, VOA)
- The visit by the mysterious N. Korean visitor on Mon. raises wide speculation about what China and NK are jointly planning ahead of N.Korean leader KJU's summits with Moon in Apr. and with Trump in May. Information about the meeting is scarce. (Yun Sun, 38 North)
- Trump said on Wed. that KJU looked forward to meeting with him, indicating the planned landmark talks between the isolated Asian leader and Republican president will go forward. (Reuters)
- Trump said Wed. there's "a good chance" that KJU will "do what is right for his people and for humanity" and make moves toward peace. (Alan Fram, Matthew Pennington, AP)
- Trump has said he is keen to meet KJU after being told the N. Korean leader's trip to China "went very well". (BBC)
- Trump reaffirmed on Wed. that he will maintain maximum pressure against NK "at all cost" despite recent developments that raise expectations for a breakthrough in the issue of NK's nuclear program. (Yonhap)
- Trump on Wed. said on Twitter he received a message from Chinese President Xi regarding this week's covert visit by KJU to Beijing. Trump said Xi told him that his meeting with Kim went "very well" and that "KIM Looks forward to his meeting with me." (Elizabeth Landers, CNN)
- Trump wants to go to war with NK, a point demonstrated through his pick of a hawkish national security adviser, Rep. Joaquin Castro (D-TX) said Tues. (Yonhap)
- Here's a look at how the Chinese and N. Korean news media portrayed the meeting. (Javier C. Hernandez, NYT)
- U.S. Defense Secretary Jim Mattis said on Tues. he had no reservations or concerns about Trump's incoming national security adviser, John Bolton, a hawk who has advocated using military force against NK and Iran. (Phil Stewart, Idrees Ali, Reuters)

Prepared by Emma Stubblefield, Jinny Ahn, HRNK Research Interns

Thursday, March 29, 2018

KJU agrees to meet SK president at summit on 27 Apr.; N.Korean Defectors Worry Nuclear Deal Will Overlook Atrocities; NK leader may also visit Russia for talks with Putin

In North Korea:

N. Korea's high-tech goods imports rise sharply in recent years despite sanctions: report (Yonhap, 03/29/2018)
N. Korea's pretty-face diplomacy... is it working? (Korea Times, 03/29/2018)
N. Korea comes to dialogue as sanctions "seeping through" its economy: source (Yonhap, 03/29/2018)
NK leader may also visit Russia for talks with Putin (Korea Times, 03/29/2018)
North Korea imprisoning more youth for viewing foreign media (*Daily*NK, 03/29/2018)
North Korea releases list of delegates for Panmunjom talks (UPI, 03/28/2018)
North Korea's swankiest ride: Kim Jong Un's tricked-out armored family train (WaPo, 03/29/2018)
North Korean residents react to Kim Jong Un's China visit (*Daily*NK, 03/29/2018)
Pyongyang Bike Share (NK Econ Watch, 03/28/2018)

In South Korea:

(2nd LD) S. Korea's first F-35 jet unveiled amid N. Korea's peace offensive (Yonhap, 03/29/2018)
Cheong Wa Dae hails N. Korea-China summit as 'meaningful' development (Yonhap, 03/29/2018)
S. Korea closely watching developments over reported operation of N.K. nuclear reactor (Yonhap, 03/29/2018)
Seoul raises hopeful voices over NK-China talks (Korea Times, 03/29/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

(3rd LD) Koreas kick off high-level talks to prepare for summit (Yonhap, 03/29/2018)
(3rd LD) Two Koreas agree to hold summit April 27 (Yonhap, 03/29/2018)
Advance team of South Korean art troupe to leave for Pyongyang (Korea Times, 03/29/2018)
High-level talks likely to set date for inter-Koran summit: Cheong Wa Dae (Yonhap, 03/29/2018)
Inter-Korean summit set for April 27 in Panmunjom (Joongang Daily, 03/29/2018)
Kim Jong-un agrees to meet South Korea president at summit on 27 April (Guardian, 03/29/2018)
NK vents anger over Seoul's F-35A jet deployment (Korea Times, 03/29/2018)
North, South Korea fix April date for first summit in years (Reuters, 03/29/2018)
North, South Korea to hold summit on April 27: Seoul (Reuters, 03/29/2018)
North and South Korea agree date for historic summit (Telegraph, 03/29/ 2018)
North and South Korea Set a Date for Summit Meeting at Border (NY Times, 03/29/2018)
North and South Korea set date for leaders' summit (BBC, 03/29/2018)
North and South Korean leaders to meet for historic summit on April 27 (CNN, 03/29/2018)
Rival Korean leaders to meet April 27 in historic summit (WaPo, 03/29/2018)
South and North Korean leaders to meet on April 27 (UPI, 03/29/2018)
Third inter-Korean summit set for Apr. 27 (Joongang Daily, 03/29/2018)
Two Koreas to hold summit April 27 (Korea Times, 03/29/2018)

International:

'The fatty on the train': Kim Jong Un nicknames proliferate in China despite censors (WaPo,03/29/2018)
(LEAD) S. Korea, China exchange views on N. Korean nukes ahead of summit (Yonhap, 03/29/2018)
Abe seeks face-to-face talks with Kim Jong-un (Korea Times, 03/29/2018)
Beijing envoy says Kim Jong Un's China visit will help toward denuclearization (Reuters, 03/29/2018)
Breakingviews - Kim Jong Un's change of heart might be for real (Reuters, 03/28/2018)
China and North Korea, best friends forever (Korea Times, 03/29/2018)
China commends North, South Korea efforts on ties after summit set (Reuters, 03/29/2018)
Divided Koreas have held summits only twice before (WaPo, 03/29/2018)
IOC chief Bach arrives to North Korea, to stay until Saturday (Reuters, 03/29/2018)
IOC chief visits NKorea after its participation in Olympics (WaPo, 03/29/2018)
Japan offers North Korea summit, Pyongyang discussing meetings with Japan: Asahi (Reuters, 03/28/2018)
Kim family has made denuclearization vows in China before (WaPo, 03/29/2018)
Kim Jong-un offers conditional denuclearization (Korea Times, 03/28/2018)
Kim Jong-un's visit to China fails to hide strain in relations (Guardian, 03/28/2018)
Kremlin: Potential Putin-Kim Jong-un meeting not on agenda yet (Korea Times, 03/29/2018)
Never mind about John Bolton. Trump's ego could force a North Korea deal anyway (CNN, 03/29/2018)
North Korean Defectors Worry Nuclear Deal Will Overlook Atrocities (VOA, 03/29/2018)
Report: Kim Jong Un's wife becomes beauty icon in China (UPI, 03/28/2018)
Russia foreign ministry working on North Korea meetings in Moscow (Reuters, 03/29/2018)
Secrecy, delays surrounded North Korea leader's slow train to China (Reuters, 03/29/2018)
Surprise meetings and potential pitfalls. Trump preps for North Korea (CNN, 03/29/2018)
The fiery £2,000 bottle of liquor that helped charm Kim Jong-un (Telegraph, 03/29/2018)
Three big questions about a Trump-Kim summit (WaPo, 03/29/2018)
Trump administration 'cautiously optimistic' summit with N. Korea will take place (WaPo,03/28/2018)
UN chief welcomes commitment by North Korea to denuclearisation (The Times of India, 03/29/2018)
U.S. 'cautiously optimistic' after Xi-Kim summit (Yonhap, 03/29/2018)
White House: North Korea situation moving in right direction (Reuters, 03/28/2018)
Xi envoy gives briefing on meeting (Joongang Daily, 03/29/2018)

In North Korea:

- NK's imports of smartphones, notebook computers and other high-tech products have risen sharply in recent years despite international sanctions following the country's nuclear and missile tests, a report said Thurs. (Yonhap)
- There is no doubt that Ri Sol-ju, who accompanied her husband, NK's young dictator KJU on his recent surprise visit to China, certainly turned heads. Her smart, elegant looks distracted attention from her overweight, grumpy-looking husband who is infamous for many heinous acts: allegedly killing his elder half-brother and uncle, and purging his supposed close lieutenants. Her presence made her husband appear more human. (Oh Young-jin, Korea Times)

- The multi-layered international sanctions are "seeping through" NK's economy, and the reclusive country has come out for talks to ease the restrictions and make people's lives easier, an expert said Thurs., citing a Pyongyang source. (Yonhap)
- With N.Korean leader KJU making a surprise visit to China, chances are that the dictator will also hold dialogue with Russian leader Vladimir Putin. (Lee Min-hyung, Korea Times)
- Young N.Koreans are reportedly being sent to youth labor-reform centers with increasing frequency as the authorities strengthen their crackdown on the consumption of S.Korean media. (Lee Sang Yong, DailyNK)
- NK has released a list of delegates who are to meet with S.Korean officials on Thurs., according to Seoul. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- The Kim family's fleet of trains—reportedly tricked out with five-star accommodations and cuisine—have long been symbols of power in an indigent country where bad infrastructure is the norm and travel is restricted. The trains are the rolling inner sanctum of the secretive regime, and have played a part in some of the country's pivotal moments. (Kyle Swenson, WaPo)
- As international media outlets report on KJU's meeting with Chinese President Xi Jinping in Beijing earlier this week, Daily NK has learned that rumors of the event had spread amongst ordinary N.Korean residents even before images of the meeting were published in the Mar. 28 edition of the Rodong Sinmun (NK's state-run publication). (Kang Mi Jin, DailyNK)
- The Pyongyang Times (2018-3-8) has published an article on the new Pyongyang bike share program. It is not the first mention of this program in N.Korean media, as it was first mentioned by Tongil News in Jul. 2017, which reported that the bike rental services were due to begin in late July 2017. However, according to a S.Korean source, the service did not actually begin until Jan. 15, 2018, which is consistent with the PY Times article's claim. (NK Econ Watch)

In South Korea:

- The first F-35A stealth fighter aircraft for SK has made its public debut at a sensitive time for diplomacy on NK. (Lee Chi-dong, Yonhap)
- SK on Thurs. welcomed the recent summit between the leaders of China and NK, calling it a significant development that will help denuclearize NK and establish peace on the Korean Peninsula. (Yonhap)
- SK said Thurs. it is closely watching developments related to recent media reports that NK has started operation of a nuclear reactor in Yongbyon ahead of planned summits with SK and the US. (Yonhap)
- Cheong Wa Dae welcomed the recent summit between Chinese President Xi Jinping and N.Korean leader KJU, Thurs., saying it will help stabilize the situation on the Korean Peninsula. (Kim Rahn, Korea Times)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- SK and NK kicked off their high-level talks Thurs. to set the date and agenda for an inter-Korean summit slated for late Apr. (Yonhap)
- SK and NK agreed Thurs. to hold their third summit on Apr. 27 amid attention over whether the historic meeting could serve to craft ways to resolve NK's nuclear issue. (Kim Soo-yeon, Joint Press Corps, Yonhap)
- An advance team of a S.Korean art troupe will head to NK on Thurs. for their performances in Pyongyang ahead of the historic inter-Korean summit scheduled for late Apr. (Yonhap)
- SK and NK may set the date for a scheduled meeting for their leaders Thurs. when their high-level officials meet to also discuss topics for the rare summit, an official from SK's presidential office Cheong Wa Dae said. (Yonhap)
- A joint press statement released by SK's Unification Ministry, which handles relations with NK, said that a working-level meeting between the two countries discussing protocol, security and press coverage for the summit will be held next Wed. on SK's side of Panmunjom, which straddles the border. (Lee Sung-eun, Joongang Daily)
- The leaders of NK and SK have agreed to hold a summit at a village on the border between the two countries on 27 Apr., only the third-ever such meeting and another sign of a thaw in relations. (Lily Kuo, agencies, Guardian)
- NK has vented its anger over the South's plan to deploy 40 F-35A stealth jets by 2021, saying the move "gets in the way of the ongoing peace momentum" on the Korean Peninsula. (Lee Min-hyung, Korea Times)
- NK and SK will hold their first summit in more than a decade on Apr. 27, S.Korean officials said on Thurs., after N.Korean leader KJU pledged his commitment to denuclearization as tensions ease between the old foes. (Christine Kim, Reuters)
- NK and SK will hold their first summit in more than a decade on Apr. 27, S.Korean government officials who held high-level talks with their N.Korean counterparts on Thurs. said. (Reuters)
- The leaders of NK and SK are to meet on Apr. 27 for the first time in more than a decade, the two countries announced on Thurs. after preliminary talks between senior officials. (Nicola Smith, Telegraph)
- NK's leader, KJU, and President Moon of SK will meet for the first time on Apr. 27, officials said on Thurs., setting a date for talks meant to continue the recent détente on the Korean Peninsula and pave the way for discussions between Mr. Kim and President Trump. (Choe Sang-hun, NYTimes)
- The leaders of NK and SK will hold their first summit in more than a decade on 27 Apr. Talks between the NK's KJU and S.Korean President Moon would be held in the border village of Panmunjom, a joint statement said. The date was announced after officials from the two sides met to prepare for the summit. The announcement comes a day after news emerged of discussions between KJU and Chinese President Xi Jinping. (BBC)
- The leaders of NK and SK will meet on Apr. 27 for the first time since 2007, the two countries announced Thurs. after high-level talks. The landmark meeting between President Moon and KJU will be held at Freedom House on the southern side of the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ), according to the joint statement issued after the talks. (Ben Westcott, Yoonjung Seo, CNN)

- N.Korean leader KJU will meet S.Korean President Moon at a border village on Apr. 27, SK announced Thurs., for a rare summit that could prove significant in global efforts to resolve the decades-long standoff over NK's nuclear program. (Lee Jin-Man, Kim Tong-Hyung, AP)
- SK and NK will hold a summit on Apr. 27 at the southern side of the Panmunjom truce village. Seoul and Pyongyang officials agreed on the date of the cross-border summit on Thurs., during a high-level meeting, which took place at NK's Tongilgak building in Panmunjom. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- The leaders of SK and NK will meet on Apr. 27 for the first inter-Korean summit since 2007, officials from both countries agreed Thurs. in a high-level meeting. (Lee Sung-eun, Joint Press Corps, Joongang Daily)
- The two Koreas agreed to hold the summit between their leaders Apr. 27 at the truce village of Panmunjeom, according to a joint press statement released after a high-level meeting Thurs. (Kim Bo-eun, Joint Press Corps, Korea Times)

International:

- Censorship is a lot harder in China than it used to be because of social media. But that didn't stop the Chinese government from trying to keep secret the historic visit to Beijing by N.Korean leader KJU until it was over. Officials did it in part by scrubbing from the country's Internet Chinese characters for "Kim Jong Un," "North Korea" and Kim's popular nicknames among Chinese, such as "Fatty Fatty," Business Insider reported. But Chinese users know how to skirt bans. According to Reuters, they just came up with new nicknames. (Allyson Chiu, WaPo)
- Ranking officials from SK and China met in Seoul on Thurs. to exchange views on how to rid NK of its nuclear ambitions, while the two Koreas set the date for what could be a historic meeting between their leaders. (Yonhap)
- Japan has sounded out the N.Korean government about a bilateral summit, and Pyongyang has discussed the possibility of a leaders' meeting with Japan, Japan's Asahi newspaper said on Thurs. (Reuters)
- A senior Chinese official visiting SK said on Thurs. N.Korean leader KJU's visit to Beijing this week should help ease tensions and lead to the denuclearization of the Korean peninsula. (Reuters)
- N.Korean despot KJU is suddenly playing nice. Having thawed relations with Seoul during the winter Olympics, this week he kowtowed to Chinese President Xi Jinping. He's open to reopening negotiations with the US and talking "de-nuclearization". This could be a cheap ploy to get sanctions lifted, after which KJU will go straight back to extortion. But the young leader might actually be ready to start putting his country on a more normal development path. (Pete Sweeney, Reuters)
- As the Chinese and Americans again face one another in a standoff that seems likely to worsen, President Xi Jinping has received KJU on an historic mission from NK despite misgivings about KJU's nuclear program. Xi may have hitherto ignored KJU as a supplicant anxious to see him, but ugly realities dictated a change of heart. (Donald Kirk, Korea Times)

- China commended on Thurs. efforts to improve ties by NK and SK and said it hopes positive momentum can be sustained, after a date was set for the first summit between the two countries in more than a decade. (Reuters)
- A summit on Apr. 27 will be only the third time that the leaders of the divided Koreas have met in the 65 years since the end of the Korean War. (Associated Press)
- International Olympic Committee (IOC) President Thomas Bach travelled to Pyongyang on Thurs., the Olympic body said, in a visit that comes after NK's participation in the Pyeongchang Winter Games helped ease inter-Korean relations. (Reuters)
- International Olympic Committee President Thomas Bach arrived in NK on Thurs. after playing a key role in allowing it to participate in last month's Pyeongchang Olympic Games in SK. (Associated Press)
- Japan has sounded out the N.Korean government about a bilateral summit, and Pyongyang has discussed the possibility of a leaders' meeting with Japan, Japan's Asahi newspaper said on Thurs. (Reuters)
- An enigmatic N.Korean leader takes a secretive train trip to China to affirm fraternal ties and declare a commitment to denuclearization. (Matthew Pennington, AP)
- N.Korean leader KJU offered to give up his nuclear weapons during a meeting with Chinese President Xi Jinping in Beijing if Seoul and Washington take "phased" steps for peace and stability, according to Chinese media reports. (Lee Min-hyung, Korea Times)
- When the N.Korean leader, KJU, and his wife, Ri Sol-ju, visited Beijing this week they were treated to a banquet at the stately Great Hall of the People, a performance, and a lesson in Chinese tea culture, given by the Chinese president, Xi Jinping, and his wife, Peng Liyuan. The event was "overflowing with a harmonious and intimate atmosphere from its beginning to the end", NK's state news agency, KCNA, breathlessly reported. (Lily Kuo, Guardian)
- A potential meeting of Russian President Vladimir Putin and N.Korean leader KJU is not under discussion now, Kremlin spokesman Dmitry Peskov said Wed. (TASS)
- If author Michael Desch is right that Trump's ego will trump Bolton's hardline strategic agenda, any flaws in an agreement with NK may be irrelevant. (Michael Desch, CNN)
- N.Korean defectors are voicing concern the repression and long-standing human rights violations allegedly committed by the leadership in Pyongyang will be forgotten during the nuclear summits expected to be held soon. (Brian Padden, VOA)
- Ri Sol-ju, wife of N.Korean leader KJU, has become something of a beauty icon in China, following her surprise visit to Beijing earlier this week. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- Russia is working on setting up meetings about the N.Korean issue in Moscow, foreign ministry's spokeswoman Maria Zakharova said on Thurs., without providing further details. (Reuters)
- For a regime obsessed with secrecy, N.Korean leader KJU's decision to travel to Beijing on a distinctive green armored train was an all-but-dead giveaway that he was making his first journey abroad since assuming power in 2011. (Brenda Goh, Sue-Lin Wong, Reuters)
- President Donald Trump's rosy outlook at the prospect of meeting with N.Korean despot KJU is about to hit a wall of hard truths erected by US allies, outside experts and officials within his administration. (Kevin Liptak, Jeremy Diamond, CNN)

- N.Korean leader KJU was treated to the most expensive tipple in Xi Jinping's drinks cabinet during their historic meeting—a £2,200 bottle of 53 percent liquor which the Chinese president rarely opens for foreign guests. (Neil Connor, Telegraph)
- In this WaPo column, author Ishaan Tharoor posits three primary questions for the possible KJU-Trump summit. These questions are as follows: Is "denuclearization" actually feasible, what's at stake for China, and will John Bolton undermine Trump? (Ishaan Tharoor, WaPo)
- The White House on Wed. declared itself "cautiously optimistic" that the planned summit with N.Korean leader KJU will take place sometime in May, even as key details such as where Kim will meet with President Trump, and the parameters of their talks, remain undetermined. (Karen DeYoung, Anne Gearan, WaPo)
- UN Secretary General Antonio Guterres has welcomed the "reported commitment" by NK towards denuclearisation of the Korean peninsula. (PTI, The Times of India)
- The White House expressed cautious optimism Wed. after a meeting between the N.Korean and Chinese leaders, saying "things are moving in the right direction." (Yonhap)
- The White House said on Wed the situation with NK was moving in the right direction after N.Korean leader KJU met with Chinese President Xi Jinping in Beijing. (Reuters)
- To brief SK on the details of the Kim-Xi meeting, China's state councilor Yang Jiechi arrived in Seoul Thurs. and met with Chung Eui-yong, head of the Blue House National Security Office. (Kang Jin-kyu, Joongang Daily)

Prepared by Jinny Ahn, HRNK Research Intern

————————————————

Friday, March 30, 2018

Trump warns he may freeze the US-ROK trade deal for N.Korea talks; S. Korean president meets Chinese envoy over N. Korean summit; Top diplomats of S. Korea, Japan discuss bilateral relations and N.Korea issue

In North Korea:
Kim Jong Un's China Visit Exposes Pitfalls for Nuclear Talks (VOA, 03/30/2018)
N. Korea set to part ways with Norwegian football coach (Yonhap, 03/30/2018)
New footage shows Kim Jong Un holding court inside armored train (CNN, 03/30/2018)
North Korea Border Closed For Kim China Visit (RFA, 03/29/2018)
North Korea stresses 'blood alliance' with China (Korea Times, 03/30/2018)
North Korean residents subject to new inspections in nationwide crackdown (*Daily*NK, 03/30/2018)
North Koreans search for alternatives amid S. Korean media crackdown (*Daily*NK, 03/30/2018)
Not So Fast: A Closer Look at What's Really Going on with North Korea's Experimental Light Water Reactor (38 North, 03/29/2018)

Kim Jong-un visit: What else crosses the China-North Korea border? (BBC, 03/30/2018)

In South Korea:
(LEAD) S. Korean president meets Chinese envoy over N. Korean summit (Yonhap, 03/30/2018)
(2nd LD) Moon calls for China's cooperation to reduce fine dust (Yonhap, 03/30/2018)
Dangerous divergences (Joongang Daily, 03/30/2018)
Emotions high as South Korean pop stars prepare to rock Pyongyang (CNN, 03/30/2018)
Libya case not applicable to NK: Cheong Wa Dae (Korea Times, 03/30/2018)
N.K. media's failure to report summit date, venue not meaningful: ministry (Yonhap, 03/30/2018)
Seoul nixes Libya model for denuclearization (Joongang Daily, 03/30/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
Denuclearization is key (Joongang Daily, 03/30/2018)
How Seoul raced to conclude U.S. trade deal ahead of North Korea talks (Reuters, 03/30/2018)
On summit diplomacy on the Korean Peninsula (Korea Times, 03/30/2018)

International:
(LEAD) China voices support for summits with N.K., expects important achievement (Yonhap, 03/30/2018)
(LEAD) IOC President Bach meets with N. Korean sports minister in Pyongyang (Yonhap, 03/30/2018)
(LEAD) U.S. 'pleased' after Koreas set date for summit (Yonhap, 03/30/2018)
(2nd LD) Trump says could 'hold up' Korea trade deal for N.K. issue (Yonhap, 03/30/2018)
(3rd LD) China vows to end 'retaliatory measures' against THAAD deployment soon (Yonhap, 03/30/2018)
China envoy tells Moon all sides must advance talks on Korean peninsula (Reuters, 03/30/2018)
China turns the screw on North Korea by cutting its petrol supply, report says (Telegraph, 03/29/2018)
EU-N.K. trade plunged last year amid sanctions: Eurostat (Yonhap, 03/30/2018)
Ex-U.N. chief urges inter-Korean summit to focus on denuclearization (Yonhap, 03/30/2018)
How nuclear bottom lines collide (Korea Times, 03/30/2018)
IOC's Bach makes three-day trip to Pyongyang (Joongang Daily, 03/30/2018)
Japan's defense chief welcomes resumption of U.S.-South Korea military drills (Reuters, 03/29/2018)
Japan PM to raise North Korean abductions in Trump summit (Reuters, 03/29/2018)
Japan seeking own North Korea summit as Abe risks being left out (CNN, 03/29/2018)
Kin of Japanese abducted to N. Korea want Trump's help (WaPo, 03/30/2018)
Korea, China hold talks on joint industrial deal (Joongang Daily, 03/29/2018)
Report: Xi Jinping may visit North Korea for armistice anniversary (UPI, 03/30/2018)
South Korea, Japan to cooperate on North Korea despite friction (UPI, 03/30/2018)
South Korea seeking clarity on Trump comments on trade deal (WaPo, 03/30/2018)
South Korea seeks China's help on tackling air pollution (Reuters, 03/30/2018)
The Guardian view on North Korea and China: three in this relationship (Guardian, 03/29/2018)
Three takeaways from Kim Jong Un's trip to China (WaPo, 03/30/2018)
Top diplomats of S. Korea, Japan discuss N.K., bilateral relations (Yonhap, 03/30/2018)

Trump and Kim Jong Un have a lot in common. Is that a good thing? (WaPo, 03/29/2018)
Trump only has one chance if North Korea calls his bluff (CNN, 03/29/2018)
Trump says may hold up South Korea trade deal until after deal with North Korea (Reuters, 03/30/2018)
Trump Threatens to Hold Up Revised US-Korean Trade Deal (VOA, 03/29/2018)
Trump threatens to link FTA to North Korea deal (Joongang Daily, 03/30/2018)
Trump warns he may freeze SKorea trade deal for NKorea talks (WaPo, 03/29/2018)
Trump's strange comparison of the Korean DMZ and Mexican border crosses a line (WaPo, 03/30/2018)

In North Korea:

- While meeting with Chinese President Xi Jinping, N.K. leader KJU may have revealed a glimpse of his vision of denuclearization that experts say could conflict with Washington's expectation of a denuclearized North. (Christy Lee, VOA)
- N.K. will part ways with its men's national football team head coach Jorn Andersen after spending nearly two years with the Norwegian. (Yonhap)
- N.K.'s official Korean Central News Agency (KCNA) has published footage revealing new details of KJU's historic trip to China to visit Xi Jinping. (Judith Vonberg and Vasco Cotovio, CNN)
- N.K.'s border with China has remained closed since Sunday in a tightened security move during the visit of national leader KJU to Beijing for meetings with Xi Jinping. (RFA)
- N.K. has stressed that cooperation with China is essential for peace on the Korean Peninsula, saying they are "blood allies." (Kim Rahn, Korea Times)
- The N.K. authorities have been ramping up surveillance over residents in recent days following the delivery in early March of mandatory nationwide lectures emphasizing the cost of committing "anti-state" crimes. (Jang Seul Gi, DailyNK)
- KJU has demonstrated a willingness to engage with S.K. through the country's participation in the Pyeongchang Olympics, but domestically, the regime has been strengthening its control over the cultural influence of S.K. media abroad. (Lee Sang Yong, DailyNK)
- While a recent NYT article concluded that N.K.'s Experimental Light Water Reactor (ELWR) is now in the process of starting up, in the absence of other corroborating data, that conclusion is premature at best and is likely wrong. (38 North)
- KJU's recent visit to Beijing was the N.K. leader's first trip across the Chinese border since coming to power in 2011. That border with China is one of the main ways N.K. interacts with the outside world. (BBC)

In South Korea:

- S.K. President Moon on Friday met Chinese President Xi Jinping's envoy to be briefed on the outcome of Xi's recent summit with N.K. leader KJU. (Yonhap)
- S.K. President Moon on Friday called for China's cooperation to help reduce S.K.'s worsening fine dust pollution, which he said the neighboring country is partly responsible for. (Yonhap)

- An inter-Korean summit slated for April 27 carries great significance as it must help avert a war. But a senior Blue House official said Friday that the Libyan solution cannot be applied to N.K.. This directly collides with Washington's approach. (Joongang Daily)
- S.K. musicians will travel to N.K. this weekend for the first time in over a decade, as the two countries prepare for a groundbreaking leaders' summit next month. (Alexandra Field, Jo Shelley and Sophie Jeong, CNN)
- Libya's process of denuclearization, in which rewards were provided after the regime made an instantaneous decision and completely dismantled its nuclear program, cannot be applied to resolving the N.K. nuclear issue, a Blue House official said. (Kim Bo-eun, Korea Times)
- S.K.'s unification ministry said Friday it does not attach any meaning to N.K. state media reports that did not mention the date and venue for an inter-Korean summit in April. (Yonhap)
- A senior Blue House official on Friday said the denuclearization framework used with Libya in 2003 that resulted in the disposal of weapons of mass destruction by the Muammar Qaddafi regime could not be applied to N.K.. (Kang Jin-kyu, Joongang Daily)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- If Moon can talk KJU into disabling his nuclear facilities to some extent, he may be able to press for symbolic actions such as normalization of ties from Washington. Whatever Seoul can lay out for denuclearization will be the key to the summit talks. (Joongang Daily)
- What was meant to be a week-long trip to Washington ended up being a four-week marathon, as dozens of Seoul officials sought to wrap up talks aimed at amending the six-year-old U.S.-Korea Free Trade Agreement. (Jane Chung, Christine Kim, Reuters)
- The denuclearization of the Korean Peninsula seems impossible, perplexing, and complicated. And yet, these scheduled bilateral and possibly trilateral summits provide a rare momentum for cutting the Gordian knot on the peninsula. (Yang Sung-chul, Korea Times)

International:

- China supports S.K. and the US in their efforts to hold summits with N.K., a senior Chinese official said Friday, hoping that an "important achievement" will be made in the process. (Yonhap)
- International Olympic Committee chief Thomas Bach met with the N.K. sports minister during his visit to Pyongyang on Friday, the North's state media reported. (Yonhap)
- The US said Thursday it was "pleased" after South and North Korea announced a date for their summit in late April. (Yonhap)
- President Trump threatened Thursday to "hold up" a renegotiated free trade agreement with S.K. until he reaches a deal with N.K. on its nuclear weapons program. (Yonhap)
- China will end what are believed to be retaliatory measures over S.K.'s deployment of a U.S.-developed missile shield in the near future, a top Chinese official said Friday. (Yonhap)

- Senior Chinese diplomat Yang Jiechi told S.K. President Moon on Friday that all parties must seize the moment to advance talks between leaders of two Koreas, and between N.K. and the US. (Reuters)
- China has turned off the tap on crucial goods for N.K. in a bid to pile on economic pressure as two Koreas prepare for an unprecedented diplomatic summit this April, and hopes for May talks between the US the isolated country mount. (Anna Isaac, Telegraph)
- The EU's trade with N.K. nose-dived last year as it significantly toughened sanctions on the North's continued nuclear and missile provocations. (Yonhap)
- Former U.N. Secretary-General Ban Ki-moon said Friday that S.K. President Moon should be firm and clear in demanding North Korea's denuclearization when he meets N.K. leader KJU in late April. (Yonhap)
- Regarding the N.K. nuclear issue, US, China, Japan, and two Koreas will all jockey for their own best interests, bringing a period of confusion. But the outcome would be settled as their bottom lines clash and coordinate with each other. (Oh Young-jin, Korea Times)
- International Olympic Committee (IOC) President Thomas Bach landed in Pyongyang on Thursday, raising the question of whether he would meet N.K. leader KJU during his three-day visit. (Kang Jin-kyu, Joongang Daily)
- Japan's defense chief welcomed on Friday the planned resumption of U.S.-ROK joint military exercises, saying the annual drill set to start on Sunday would add pressure on N.K. to abandon its nuclear weapons program. (Reuters)
- Shinzo Abe said on Friday he would explain Japan's stance on the N.K. abduction of Japanese citizens in a meeting with President Trump, ahead of the U.S. president's planned summit with KJU. (Reuters)
- Japan revealed it was seeking a summit with KJU, as some in Tokyo expressed concern they were being left out as the situation on the Korean Peninsula continues to change rapidly. (James Griffiths, CNN)
- Families of Japanese abducted by N.K. decades ago urged Japan's leader on Friday to persuade President Trump to help win the abductees' release during a possible summit with N.K.'s leader. (Mari Yamaguchi, AP)
- S.K. and China are once again considering developing a joint industrial complex in North Jeolla, nearly two years after talks on the plan broke down. (Choi Hyung-jo, Joongang Daily)
- Xi Jinping is likely to visit N.K. in July, when both Koreas are scheduled to observe the 65th anniversary of the Armistice Agreement that ended the 1950-53 Korean War. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- S.K. and Japan are coordinating on N.K. following a surprise summit between KJU and Xi Jinping. Seoul and Tokyo, often at odds over historical issues, have proposed a trilateral summit with China. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- S.K. is trying to find out what Trump meant when he made remarks linking the recently renegotiated S.K.-U.S. free trade agreement with talks on denuclearizing N.K. (Youkyung Lee, AP)
- S.K. President Moon said on Friday cooperation with China is needed not only to end tension over N.K.'s weapons but also to tackle the problem of air pollution. (Reuters)

- What KJU and Xi discussed this week remains a mystery, but opacity fogs the vision of the players as well as that of their audience. If Trump and KJU meet as planned, ignorance and misapprehensions could have truly frightening consequences. (Guardian)
- Three takeaways from KJU's trip to China include: 1) China fears being sidelined, 2) China can't afford to take a back-seat role in the upcoming talks, and 3) China will use formal and informal tools to shape talks. (Rush Doshi, WaPo)
- The top diplomats of S.K. and Japan discussed the N.K. nuclear problem, bilateral ties and other issues of mutual concern. (Yonhap)
- Trump's history is to "go big" and look for the flamboyant deal. Kim seems to have a similar flair for the dramatic, and he has already taken big, bold risks. (David Ignatius, WaPo)
- As Trump has emasculated the State Department and shorn himself of solid diplomatic substance at his back, he also has limited his options and leaves him at serious risk of Kim and Xi playing him off against each other. (Nic Robertson, CNN)
- President Trump said on Thursday he may hold up a trade agreement reached this week with S.K. until after a deal is reached with N.K. on denuclearization. (Steve Holland, Reuters)
- One day after calling it a "great deal for American and Korean workers," President Trump threatened to hold up a renegotiated trade deal between Washington and Seoul. (VOA)
- President Trump abruptly threatened to put the implementation of the recently-revised free trade agreement with S.K. on hold to use it as leverage to strike a deal with N.K.. (Choi Hyung-jo, Joongang Daily)
- President Trump on Thursday threatened to hold up the trade agreement his administration finalized this week with S.K. in an effort to gain more leverage in potential talks with N.K.. (Darlene Superville, AP)
- In a wide-ranging speech ostensibly about his infrastructure agenda on Thursday, President Trump compared the U.S.-Mexico border unfavorably with the demilitarized zone (DMZ) that runs between two Koreas. (Adam Taylor, WaPo)

Prepared by James Park, HRNK Research Intern

4. APRIL

Sunday, April 1, 2018

US, S.Korea begin annual joint military exercises; N.Korea agrees to participate in next two Olympics; S. Korea backs new U.N. sanctions against N. Korea

In North Korea:
Anti-Kim Jong-un messages found in Pyongyang (Korea Times, 04/01/2018)
North agrees to attend next two Olympics (Joongang Daily, 04/01/2018)
N. Korea beefs up crackdown on S. Korean entertainment viewers (Korea Times, 04/01/2018)
N. Korea faces growing sanctions from UN, US, EU (Korea Times, 04/01/2018)
North Korea in re-education drive as foreign media increasingly smuggled across the border (Telegraph, 03/31/2018)
North Korea's two-faced approach toward K-pop (Korea Times, 04/01/2018)
North Korea to participate in Tokyo, Beijing Olympics (UPI, 04/01/2018)
North Korea to take part in Tokyo Olympics, IOC chief says (Guardian, 03/31/2018)
North Korea will take part in next two Olympics: IOC chief Bach (Reuters, 04/01/2018)

In South Korea:
Cooperating with Beijing (Joongang Daily, 04/01/2018)
Joint drills begin after delay for PyeongChang (Joongang Daily, 04/01/2018)
South Korea, U.S. begin massive military drill (UPI, 04/01/2018)
S. Korean, U.S. troops begin joint field training (Yonhap, 04/01/2018)
US, South Korea Begin Annual Joint Military Exercises (VOA, 03/31/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
(LEAD) S. Korean artists set to perform in Pyongyang after rescheduling (Yonhap, 04/01/2018)
(LEAD) S. Korea to propose more inter-Korean cultural, sports ties: minister (Yonhap, 04/01/2018)
Forget the singers, focus on nukes (Joongang Daily, 04/01/2018)
Kim Jong-un, his wife enjoy South Korean troupe's performance in Pyongyang (Korea Times, 04/01/2018)
K-Pop Diplomacy: South Koreans fly to Pyongyang for Rare Concerts (VOA, 04/01/2018)
K-Pop sensations set to perform in Pyongyang (UPI, 04/01/2018)
Report: Chinese President suggested Korean peace treaty to Donald Trump (UPI, 04/01/2018)
S. Korea backs new U.N. sanctions against N. Korea (Yonhap, 04/01/2018)

International:
Pope Francis expresses hope over inter-Korean dialogue (Yonhap, 04/01/2018)

In North Korea:

- Authorities in Pyongyang launched a crackdown after messages critical of N.K. leader KJU were found on walls in the capital. (Yi Whan-woo, Korea Times)
- IOC President Bach met with N.K. leader KJU in Pyongyang during his three-day trip to the country and was told the North was committed to participating in the 2020 Tokyo Summer Olympics and the 2022 Beijing Winter Games. (Lee Sung-eun, Joongang Daily)
- Youngsters are being sent to labor camps in N.K. after being caught secretly watching S.K. entertainment — including movies and soap operas. (Yi Whan-woo, Korea Times)
- The UN, the US and the EU are stepping up efforts to ban trade with N.K.. On Friday, the UNSC blacklisted 27 ships, 21 companies and a businessman for helping N.K. evade sanctions. (Yi Whan-woo, Korea Times)
- N.K. is reportedly detaining more young people in re-education camps for secretly watching S.K. movies. The crackdown on the clandestine viewing of foreign media comes amid fears by the regime that its "ideological purity" will be eroded. (Nicola Smith, Telegraph)
- Speculation is growing about why N.K. leader KJU has allowed artists from Seoul to perform in Pyongyang despite his nation's crackdown on S.K. entertainment. (Yi Whan-woo, Korea Times)
- N.K. will take part in the next two Olympic Games held in Tokyo and Beijing, IOC President Thomas Bach said Saturday. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- IOC President, Thomas Bach, says KJU is committed to having N.K. participate in the 2020 Tokyo Summer Olympics and the 2022 Beijing Winter Olympics. (AP)
- N.K. will take part in the next two Olympic Games in Japan and China, IOC President Thomas Bach said on Saturday after meeting N.K. leader KJU in Pyongyang. (Martin Quin Pollard, Irene Wang, Reuters)

In South Korea:

- As N.K. and China improve their relations, S.K. may have to worry about the possibility of being ignored once again. Moreover, if China's attitude toward N.K. improves, it could send the wrong signal to Pyongyang. (Park Byung-kwang, Joongang Daily)
- The US and ROK kicked off their annual joint military exercises Sunday after a month-long delay due to the PyeongChang Winter Olympics, a major concession to Pyongyang that led to a rare rapprochement between the two Koreas. (Lee Sung-eun, Joongang Daily)
- S.K. and the US began their delayed joint military training on Sunday, mobilizing more than 300,000 troops. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- A combined field training of S.K. and U.S. troops got under way Sunday as scheduled, defense officials said amid a nascent peace mood on the divided peninsula. (Yonhap)
- S.K. and the US kicked off their annual joint military exercises Sunday after they were delayed about a month for the Winter Olympics and to help create conditions for a resumption of talks between two Koreas. (Reuters)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- S.K. singers' concert in Pyongyang was scheduled to begin at 5:30 p.m. but was delayed by two hours to 7:30 p.m. at the request of N.K. for the "convenience of more audience." It was then moved up to 6:30 p.m. (Yonhap)
- S.K. Culture Minister Do Jong-hwan expressed hope for the resumption of suspended inter-Korean projects, such as the publication of a unified Korean dictionary and the excavation of historic relics in Kaesong. (Yonhap)
- Despite Moon's diplomatic breakthrough, uncertainties are growing over the fate of the Korean Peninsula after the appointment of hawks to key positions in the U.S. government and Kim's summit with Xi. Moon must cement the Korea-U.S. alliance by making denuclearization and communication his top priority. (Joongang Daily)
- S.K. entertainers performed in Pyongyang for the first time in 13 years, presenting a wide variety of K-pop music to the reclusive regime. After the Sunday show, the S.K. will hold a joint concert with N.K. on April 3rd. (Kwon Mee-yoo, Korea Times)
- From aging crooners to bubbly K-Pop starlets, some of S.K.'s biggest pop stars flew to N.K. on Saturday for rare performances that highlight the sudden thaw in inter-Korean ties after years of tensions over the North's nuclear ambitions. (AP)
- S.K.'s biggest pop acts including Cho Yong-pil, Seohyun and Red Velvet prepared to stage a rare concert in N.K. Sunday, as the two Koreas continue efforts to improve ties ahead of a cross-border summit later this month. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- Xi Jinping suggested striking up a peace treaty between two Koreas, the US and China, during a phone conversation with President Trump last month. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- The S.K. government threw its weight behind the U.N. Security Council's additional pressure on N.K. despite a mood of inter-Korean reconciliation. (Yonhap)

International:

- Pope Francis on Sunday expressed hope over prospects for peace on the Korean Peninsula, as Seoul and Pyongyang recently launched efforts for a possible reconciliation. (Yonhap)

Prepared by James Park, HRNK Research Intern

————————————————

Monday, April 2, 2018

Telling the Stories of Defectors From North Korea; Kim Jong-un praises K-Pop concert, calls for follow-up event in Seoul; NK Issues Rare Apology Over Media Access to K-Pop Show

In North Korea:
How far does Kim Jong Un's openness to 'Hallyu' go? (Daily NK, 04/02/2018)
North Korea Defections (NYT, 04/01/2018)
South Hamgyong Sci-Tech Library (NK Econ Watch, 04/02/2018)
Telling the Stories of Defectors From North Korea (NYT, 04/02/2018)
Threat of life imprisonment to North Koreans who call outside world (Daily NK, 04/02/2018)

In South Korea:
As tensions ease, wartime hotspots draw more tourists (Joongang Ilbo, 04/02/2018)
S. Korea to broadcast art troupe's Pyongyang performance on Thursday (Yonhap, 04/02/2018)
S. Korea unveils 3-year plan to support N.K. defectors (Yonhap, 04/02/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
(LEAD) N. Korean official apologizes for limiting S. Korean media's concert coverage(Yonhap, 04/02/2018)
(LEAD) Sports ministers of Koreas agree to push for joint march at Asian Games (Yonhap, 04/02/2018)
(2nd LD) N.K. leader says S. Korean musicians' gigs could show unity of Koreas (Yonhap, 04/02/2018)
(3rd LD) S. Korean art troupe performs in Pyongyang with N.K. leader in attendance (Yonhap, 04/02/2018)
A K-pop girl band loved by Kim Jong-un [VIDEO] (Korea Times, 04/02/2018)
Kim Jong Un applauds South Korean pop stars in newest sign of diplomatic warming (WaPo, 04/02/2018)
Kim Jong Un 'deeply moved' by K-pop concert in Pyongyang (CNN, 04/02/2018)
Kim Jong-un meets K-pop stars... What did he say to them? [PHOTOS] (Korea Times, 04/02/2018)
Kim Jong Un praises K-Pop concert, calls for follow-up event in Seoul (UPI, 04/01/2018)
Kim Jong-un says concert was 'wonderful' (Joongang Ilbo, 04/02/2018)
North Korea's Kim Jong Un, wife, watch South Korean K-pop stars perform in Pyongyang (Reuters, 04/01/2018)
N.Korean leader Kim watches performance by S. Korean pop stars (WaPo, 04/02/2018)
North Korea Issues Rare Apology Over Media Access to K-Pop Show (NYT, 04/02/2018)
North Korean leader Kim Jong-un attends 'K-pop' conference (Telegraph, 04/02/2018)
Onstage, South Korean K-Pop Stars. In the Balcony, Kim Jong-un, Clapping. (NYT, 04/01/2018)
Reporters clash with N. Korea authorities over Pyongyang concert (UPI, 04/02/2018)
South and North Korea to march together at Asian Games (UPI, 04/02/2018)
The power of truth (Joongang Ilbo, 04/02/2018)
Time fixed, all seats reserved for S. Korean artists' second Pyongyang concert (Yonhap, 04/02/2018)

International:
(2nd LD) Complete, irreversible denuclearization of North is 'nonnegotiable' goal: U.S. envoy(Yonhap, 04/02/2018)
Downscaled US-South Korea Military Drills Could Be Part of Nuclear Deal (VOA, 04/02/2018)
Graham: John Bolton has 'very healthy skepticism' on North Korea (Guardian, 04/01/2018)

Incoming U.S. national security advisor 'fears North Korea is buying time' (UPI, 04/02/2018)
In upcoming summit, the Koreas could trump Trump (UPI, 04/02/2018)
Japan's Abe to visit US to discuss North Korea with Trump (WaPo, 04/02/2018)
Losing the edge with China (Joongang Ilbo, 04/02/2018)
N. Korea slams S. Korea's recent defense talks with U.S., Japan (Yonhap, 04/02/2018)
New model needed for North's denuclearization: Knapper (Joongang Ilbo, 04/02/2018)
Q&A: Things to know about US-South Korea war drills (WaPo, 04/02/2018)
Sen. Warren says administration 'chaos' harming Asia policy (WaPo, 04/01/2018)
Senator says Bolton is wary of North Korea stall tactics (WaPo, 04/01/2018)
Shinzo Abe to bring up North Korean abductions in visit with Donald Trump (UPI, 04/02/2018)
Three-way talks are next round, says Blue House (Joongang Ilbo, 04/02/2018)
Trump's Iran Threat May Wreck Talks With North Korea (NYT, 04/01/2018)
Trump worried over Seoul's leniency with Pyongyang (Korea Times, 04/02/2018)

In North Korea:

- Agreeing to let a group of S. Korean pop music artists come to Pyongyang appears positive, but KJU has in fact increased the country's crackdown on S. Korean music, movies, and television shows, with a focus on stopping the so-called, "Yellow Wind of Capitalism". (Ha Yoon-ah, Daily NK)
- We do not know how successful KJU will be in his latest maneuvers to seek sanctions relief and thereby secure regime survival for the elite. But what we do know is that most likely Pyongyang will remain unaccountable for the oppression and deprivation of its common citizens. (Thomas Byrne, NYT)
- A new Sci-Tech Library has been built in Hamhung. It is the first Sci-Tech Library at the provincial level, and more could be on the way in other provinces. (NK Econ Watch)
- The life of a N. Korean defector is brutally carved into two parts: before and after. Those who escape exchange their country's near-total isolation for the headiness of freedom. But in the process, their history is erased. Here are the stories and potraits of six North Korean defectors. (Alexandra Genova, Tim Franco, NYT)
- The N. Korean authorities are strengthening censorship and cracking down on so-called "anti-socialist" acts, such as the smuggling, possession, and distribution of 'impure' media, and have been warning of severe punishments for any who leak internal information to the outside world. (Lee Sang-yoon, Daily NK)

In South Korea:

- More foreign tourists interested in the history of the conflict between the two Koreas are heading to historical sites of conflict in SK as tensions on the peninsula have thawed over the past few months. (Seo Ji-eun, Joongang Ilbo)
- SK will air its art troupe's performance in Pyongyang on Thurs. afternoon, the culture ministry said. (Yonhap)

- SK set up a three-year plan to support N. Korean defectors on Mon., including measures to help them secure stable jobs. (Yonhap)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- Top N.Korean official Kim Yong-chol has made a rare apology to S. Korean reporters for restricting their coverage of a concert by S. Korean musicians in Pyongyang, according to a pool report Mon. (Yonhap)
- Sports ministers of the two Koreas on Mon. agreed to push for a joint march by their athletes at this year's Asian Games. (Yonhap)
- KJU has expressed hope that S. Korean musicians' performances in Pyongyang could serve as an occasion to show the unity of the two Koreas, state media reported Mon. (Yonhap)
- A S. Korean art troupe held a historic performance in Pyongyang on Sun. with KJU and his wife in attendance. (Shim Sun-ah, Joint Press Corps, Yonhap)
- KJU expressed a rare interest in the S. Korean K-pop girl group Red Velvet on Sun., when he watched an historic performance by SK's art troupe in Pyongyang. (Ko Dong-hwan, Korea Times)
- In the past, SK's popular K-pop didn't find a great deal of love in Pyongyang. But as both countries appear to be warming up to each other ahead of talks later this month, it suddenly doesn't appear to be so evil anymore. In fact, KJU, who became the first N. Korean leader to attend a K-pop concert, may have actually enjoyed it. (Rick Noack, WaPo)
- KJU, accompanied by his wife Ri Sol-ju, clapped and waved Sun. as he attended a rare concert of S. Korean singers and performers in Pyongyang. (Yoonjung Seo, Eric Leveson, Euan McKirdy, CNN)
- KJU has expressed hope that S. Korean musicians' performances in Pyongyang could serve as an occasion to show the unity of the two Koreas, state media reported Mon. (Korea Times)
- N. Korean media on Monday reported that regime leader KJU thoroughly enjoyed the performance of SK's biggest pop acts staged in the capital of Pyongyang. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- KJU made an unannounced appearance at a concert thrown by S. Korean artists Sun. night in Pyongyang, and said it was wonderful, and that the Koreas should hold another joint concert this fall in Seoul. (Lee Sung-eun, Joint Press Corps, Joongang Ilbo)
- KJU and his wife, Ri Sol-ju, were among the hundreds in Pyongyang on Sun. watching S. Korean K-pop singers perform in NK for the first time in more than a decade as tensions between the old rivals thaw. (Christine Kim, Heekyong Yang, Reuters)
- KJU clapped his hands and said he was "deeply moved" as he, his wife, and hundreds of other citizens, watched a rare performance by S. Korean pop stars visiting Pyongyang. The concert highlights the thawing ties between the rivals after years of friction over NK's nuclear program. (Kim Hyung-jin, AP)
- S. Korean reporters visiting NK's capital to cover a K-pop performance there received a surprise on Mon.: an unusually graceful apology from a senior N. Korean official. (Choe Sang-hun, NYT)

- KJU and his wife, Ri Sol-ju, attended a rare performance by S. Korean singers on Sun., in the latest of a series of diplomatic breakthroughs in an ongoing thaw between the two Koreas. (Nicola Smith, Telegraph)
- The appearance by KJU on Sun. at a concert by S. Korean musicians in Pyongyang was all the more unusual because his authoritarian government has been struggling to stave off what it sees as an infiltration of SK's pop culture among his isolated people. (Choe Sang-hun, NYT)
- A high-ranking N. Korean official apologized to S. Korean reporters for restricting access to a Pyongyang concert staged by major K-Pop artists. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- S. and N. Korean athletes are set to make a joint entrance at the Asian Games this summer, according to a S. Korean pool report from Pyongyang. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- Moon must demand KJU remove his short-range nuclear missiles targeting various cities in the South, not the inter-continental ballistic missiles that the US is worrying about. (Chun Young-gi, Joongang Ilbo)
- The schedule for another concert by a S. Korean art troupe visiting Pyongyang has been fixed, Seoul officials said Mon. (Yonhap)

International:

- The acting US. ambassador to SK said Mon. a complete, verifiable and irreversible dismantlement of NK's nuclear program remains a "nonnegotiable" US goal in its upcoming talks with Pyongyang. (Yonhap)
- Permanently ending the US-SK joint military exercises that began this week could become a key factor in the nuclear talks with NK to come. (Brian Padden, VOA)
- The Republican senator Lindsey Graham said on Sun. he was glad John Bolton will be Trump's national security adviser going into talks with NK, because of his "very healthy skepticism." (Guardian)
- Incoming US National Security Advisor John Bolton has expressed "very healthy skepticism" of NK's move toward dialogue on denuclearization, according to Republican senator Lindsey Graham. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- Kim, Moon, and Xi have several parallel and common interests. Excluding the US by working out an agreement without Washington may seem another bridge way too far. But that possibility cannot be entirely ignored. (Harlan Ullman, UPI)
- Japanese PM Shinzo Abe said Mon. he plans to visit the US this month to discuss NK with Trump ahead of expected summits between NK and the US and SK. (Mari Yamaguchi, AP)
- SK must be careful to stay out of the escalated tensions between the US and China. (Lee Hee-ok, Joongang Ilbo)
- NK on Mon. slammed SK's recent defense cooperation talks with the US and Japan, claiming such cooperation with outside forces would lead to confrontation and war. (Yonhap)
- Rather than adopting previous models used to dismantle weapons of mass destruction programs in other dictatorial regimes, Washington and Seoul have to work together to come up with a new approach best suited for the situation in NK, said Marc Knapper, US acting ambassador to Korea, in a forum in Seoul Mon. (Sarah Kim, Joongang Ilbo)

- Japanese PM Shinzo Abe said he will seek US cooperation in dealing with NK when he meets with Trump later this month. (Ed Adamczyk, UPI)
- Some questions and answers about this year's low-key US-SK military drills, which come ahead of two separate historic summits between Kim and his S. Korean and US counterparts. (Kim Hyung-jin, AP)
- US Senator Elizabeth Warren says chaos in the Trump administration is harming its ability to formulate coherent policy toward NK's nuclear program and other important issues in Asia. (Christopher Bodeen, AP)
- Republican Sen. Lindsey Graham of South Carolina said he's glad John Bolton will serve as Trump's national security adviser going into talks with NK because of his "very healthy skepticism." (Kevin Freking, AP)
- The Blue House said it wants three-way talks involving S. and N. Korea and the US before having a four-way negotiation that also includes China, which was proposed by Chinese President Xi Jinping. (Kang Jin-kyu, Joongang Ilbo)
- As Trump prepares for possible talks with KJU about controlling the North's nuclear weapons program, he is facing his most complicated national security challenge so far. He has made the task far harder by threatening to blow up the only other recent deal to control a nuclear program, with Iran. (Editorial Board, NYT)
- Trump is aiming to gain leverage in orchestrating talks with NK by tying a renegotiated trade deal with SK to Pyongyang's denuclearization, analysts said Mon. (Kim Jae-kyoung, Korea Times)

Prepared by Emma Stubblefield, HRNK Research Intern

——————————————————

Tuesday, April 3, 2018

NK raps SK for welcoming UN rights resolution; NK's top envoy to attend conference of Non-Aligned Movement in Baku; KJU Goes to China: Mending A Weathered Alliance; Google most used Internet search engine in NK: report

In North Korea:
[Photos] No customers at North Korean restaurant in Shenyang (DailyNK, 04/03/2018)
12,000 attend second concert in Pyongyang (Joongang Daily, 04/03/2018)
Crackdown escalates on foreign information and contact with outside world (DailyNK, 04/03/2018)
Google most used Internet search engine in N. Korea: report (Yonhap, 04/03/2018)
Huge LED display added to top of Pyongyang's iconic Ryugyong Hotel: photo (NKNews.org, 04/02/2018)

Kim Jong-un apparently made song request at S. Korea's Pyongyang concert (Yonhap, 04/03/2018)
Korean rock star performs in Pyongyang (Korea Times, 04/03/2018)
N. Korea's top envoy to attend conference of Non-Aligned Movement in Baku (Yonhap, 04/03/2018)
Report: Google is North Korea's No. 1 search engine (UPI, 04/03/2018)
The need for a North Korean 'Me Too' movement: no justice for sexual assault victims (*Daily*NK, 04/03/2018)

In South Korea:
Blue House describes its nuclear plan for North (Joongang Daily, 04/03/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
(LEAD) N.K. proposes 1-day delay to working-level talks for inter-Korean summit (Yonhap, 04/03/2018)
Cultural exchanges build inter-Korean trust (Korea Times, 04/03/2018)
Koreas target unified march at Asian Games opening ceremony (Reuters, 04/03/2018)
N. Korea raps S. Korea for welcoming U.N. rights resolution (Yonhap, 04/03/2018)
North Korea slams South Korea warship remembrance (UPI, 04/03/2018)
S. Korea to send 7-member delegation to working-level talks for summit with N.K. (Yonhap, 04/03/2018)

International:
Avoiding a schism (Joongang Daily, 04/03/2018)
China tells N. Korea official Beijing supports its US summit (WaPo, 04/03/2018)
China tells North Korea it appreciates its efforts on denuclearization (Reuters, 04/03/2018)
Chinese Border Guards Block Attempt to Smuggle Car Into North Korea (RFA, 04/02/2018)
Foreign ministers of N. Korea, China meet in Beijing (Yonhap, 04/03/2018)
Japan's Abe to visit US to discuss North Korea with Trump (WaPo, 04/02/2018)
Kim Jong Un Goes to China: Mending A Weathered Alliance (38North, 04/03/2018)
North Korea launches charm offensive ahead of US summit (Nikkei Asian Review, 04/03/2018)
North Korean diplomat reaching out to China, Russia ahead of inter-Korean summit (UPI, 04/03/2018)
Q&A: Things to know about US-South Korea war drills (WaPo, 04/02/2018)
Trump-Kim summit will be a start to a start, says Gallucci (Joongang Daily, 04/03/2018)
United Nations sanctions North Korean ship for fuel transfer at sea (Reuters, 04/03/2018)
Why North Korea agreed to meet with Trump (Business Insider, 04/02/2018)

In North Korea:

- The N.Korean Pyongyang Restaurant, located in the Xita neighborhood of China's Shenyang, was once a popular eatery among foreign and Chinese patrons alike, but UN sanctions continue to take a toll on its business. A separate source in China close to N.Korean affairs said, "Most of the N.Korean restaurants aren't doing well. Chinese residents in the area avoid patronizing these establishments. When I went into Pyongyang Restaurant recently there were no patrons to speak of—all you saw was a sea of empty tables." (Kim Sung Il, DailyNK)

- S.Korean artists held a second concert in Pyongyang Tues., this time alongside NK's Samjiyon Orchestra, belting out hit songs from both countries to a crowd of 12,000. (Joongang Daily)
- The N.Korean regime has moved to strengthen punishments and increase crackdowns on the consumption of foreign media, including through a constitutional revision in 2015. The 2012 version of the constitution stipulated a maximum penalty of five years, but this was raised to ten years in the 2015 revision. (Kang Mi Jin, DailyNK)
- Google is the most used Internet search engine in NK, with usage of software systems designed to search for information on the World Wide Web being very much limited in the country, Radio Free Asia reported Tues. (Yonhap)
- A huge LED-style display has been added to the top of Pyongyang's iconic 105-floor Ryugyong Hotel, photos and videos dated Sun. and Mon. seen by NK News show. The animated display, which spans an at least five-floor cone-shaped structure near the top of the pyramid-shaped building, was seen in pictures and video depicting a large N.Korean flag appearing to blow in the wind. (Chad O'Carroll, NKNews.org)
- N.Korean leader KJU appears to have made a song request at a rare concert by S.Korean musicians in Pyongyang, according to pool reports Tues. (Joint Press Corps, Yonhap)
- Korean singer-songwriter Kang San-ae performed at the East Pyongyang Grand Theatre in Pyongyang, NL, Sun. The 55-year-old Korean rockstar, who has been often likened to a Korean Bob Dylan, with his iconic debut song wishing for peace on the Korean Peninsula, said it was "very emotional" to perform in Pyongyang. (Jhoo Dong-chan, Korea Times)
- N.Korean Foreign Minister Ri Yong-ho will take part in the ministerial meeting of the Non-Aligned Movement (NAM) to be held this week in Baku, the capital of Azerbaijan, diplomatic sources said Tues. (Yonhap)
- Google is NK's search engine of choice, among the few online databases available within the tightly-controlled regime, Radio Free Asia reported Mon., citing web analytics firm StatCounter which showed Google recorded a 92.44 percent usage rate in NK from Mar. last year to Mar. this year. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- N.Korean women are exposed to broad sexual abuse, including rape, molestation, and harassment. In particular, women who are in custody, including temporary detention, political prison camps, and labor camps are frequently subjected to unwanted sexual advances and abuse. Although NK's constitution has provisions referring to rape and assault, and while Article 46 of the Guaranteed Women's Rights Law bans and provides protections against domestic violence, these legal protections are not properly enforced. Violations are rampant, and the majority fall through the legal cracks. Corruption and bribery make it difficult to enforce these regulations. The absence of sexual awareness education, the social impulse to conceal such transgressions, and the complacency of the authorities are other enabling factors as well. (Lee Sang Yong, DailyNK)

In South Korea:

- The Blue House on Tues. gave more specifics on how it would try to negotiate denuclearization with NK, calling for a comprehensive package that is implemented in a series of steps. (Kang Jin-kyu, Joongang Daily)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- NK on Tues. suggested delaying by one day this week's planned working-level talks to discuss the details of an inter-Korean summit in late Apr., the S.Korean government said. (Yonhap)
- Before the historic summit between President Moon and KJU, scheduled Apr. 27, the two Koreas are seeking to further tighten "emotional bonds" by conducting joint music performances. (Lee Min-hyung, Korea Times)
- Ministers from the two Koreas agreed to push for a unified delegation from both countries parading together in the opening ceremony at this year's Asian Games in Indonesia, according to the Yonhap News Agency. (Jack Tarrant, Reuters)
- NK on Tues. criticized SK for welcoming a recent UN resolution condemning communist NK for its dire human rights conditions, saying Seoul should not undermine the dignity of a country it seeks to hold a serious dialogue with. (Yonhap)
- N.Korean media is denying Pyongyang's involvement in the 2010 sinking of the S.Korean warship Cheonan, a day after a senior N.Korean official lightly joked about the attack before S.Korean reporters. Pyongyang's Workers' Party newspaper Rodong Sinmun claimed Tues. the attack on the S.Korean warship was a "manipulation" or conspiracy against NK. The article also condemned a new S.Korean anniversary commemorating incidents when S.Korean personnel were injured or killed in action in the Yellow Sea. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- SK will send a seven-member delegation to this week's working-level talks to discuss protocol and security for an inter-Korean summit in late Apr., government officials said Tues. (Yonhap)

International:

- Any cracks between SK and the US can trigger schisms on the sanctions front and weaken their negotiating power. John Bolton, Trump's new national security adviser, said that NK can complete its nuclear weapons development in nine to 12 months. That's a warning that the US will return to putting maximum pressure, including the threat of military action, on the rogue state unless it completely scraps its nuclear weapons within a year. The S.Korean government must abandon the "phased denuclearization" approach, which could take as long as 10 years. SK and the US must closely cooperate if they desire to denuclearize NK in such a short period of time. (Joongang Daily)
- Senior Chinese diplomat Wang Yi told NK's foreign minister on Tues. that Beijing supports NK's planned summits with SK and the US. (Associated Press)

- China appreciates NK's "important efforts" to ease tension on the Korean peninsula, senior Chinese diplomat Wang Yi told NK's foreign minister on Tues., hours after he called on all sides to stay focused on talks. (Michael Martina, Heekyong Yang, Reuters)
- Chinese border guards late last month seized a military vehicle being taken illegally into NK, boarding a Chinese vessel in the Yalu River after the boat was cleared to depart by another guard unit working with the smugglers, N.Korean sources say. (Hyemin Sohn, Leejin Jun, Richard Finney, RFA)
- N.Korean Foreign Minister Ri Yong-ho met with his Chinese counterpart, Wang Yi, in Beijing on Tues. before heading for Azerbaijan to attend an international meeting, the Chinese foreign ministry said. (Yonhap)
- Japanese Prime Minister Shinzo Abe said Mon. he plans to visit the US this month to discuss NK with President Donald Trump ahead of expected summits between NK and the US and SK. (Mari Yamaguchi, AP)
- Since N.Korean leader KJU assumed power over 6 years ago, there had been several practical and specific reasons for the lack of a top-level meeting between China and NK. KJU's first visit to China on Mar. 25th to meet with Chinese President Xi Jinping helped mend a fraying Sino-DPRK relationship and will help strengthen NK's position and give it bargaining leverage in its upcoming meeting with the US and SK. (Yun Sun, 38North)
- NK is actively trying to improve its international image ahead of an important summit with the US set to take place by the end of May, even relying on its first lady as well as S.Korean pop stars to forge a bridge to the outside world. (Yosuke Onchi, Nikkei Asian Review)
- NK appears to be attempting to bolster ties with key countries, ahead of leader KJU's upcoming summits with SK and the US. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- With the coming of another spring on the Korean Peninsula comes another round of war games by the US and S.Korean militaries. However, this week's drills will feature a new and unusually low-key approach, as the allies resist bringing in their big guns. NK, for the time being, is avoiding its usual belligerent propaganda against exercises that it claims are an invasion rehearsal. The reason for this departure lies in the US and SK's interest in nurturing a diplomatic outreach by NK's young leader, KJU, after months of weapons tests and threats of nuclear war by NK. In this article, AP writer Hyung-Jin Kim addresses several questions about this year's drills that come ahead of two separate historic summits between KJU and his S.Korean and US counterparts. (Hyung-Jin Kim, AP)
- In a series of interviews conducted by the Joongang Daily, international affairs experts weighed in on the proposed summit between N.Korean leader KJU and US President Trump—a summit that could determine the future of the Korean Peninsula. In this interview with former US diplomat Robert Gallucci, the former chief US negotiator during the 1994 N.Korean nuclear crisis, Gallucci shared his expertise negotiating with NK. While Gallucci cannot see a single session solving the N.Korean nuclear crisis, he believes that "if it is going to be a successful engagement, the summit between KJU and Trump will the start of a series of talks." (Kim Hyun-ki, Jung Hyo-sik, Joongang Daily)
- The United Nations has blacklisted a N.Korean ship for receiving oil in an Oct. transfer that breached UN sanctions, as first revealed by Reuters. (Reuters)
- In this interview with Business Insider, N.Korean defector and founder of NAUH, Ji Seong-ho, gives his thoughts on the underlying motivating factors that may have led NK's sudden decision to meet with US President Trump. (Nathaniel Lee, Alana Kakoyiannis, Noah Friedman, Business Insider)

Prepared by Jinny Ahn, HRNK Research Intern

——————————————————

Wednesday, April 4, 2018

Kim Jung-un Trying to Soften Image Ahead of Trump Summit; Trump should make no mention of Libya in summit with Kim: ex-U.S. envoy

Top News:

Kim Jung-un Trying to Soften Image Ahead of Trump Summit (CNN, 04/02/2018)
Trump should make no mention of Libya in summit with Kim: ex-U.S. envoy (Yonhap, 04/03/2018)

In North Korea:

Kalma Coastal Tourist Area Update via Planet Labs (NK Econ Watch, 04/04/2018)
N.K. official hopes for continued inter-Korean reconciliation (Yonhap, 04/04/2018)
New mandatory lectures target smuggled phone users, warn against 'complaints' (Daily NK, 04/04/2018)
North Korea makes rare apology for banning press from K-pop concert (Guardian, 04/04/2018)
North Korean woman executed for ax murder ... Can bad economy be blamed? (Korea Times, 04/04/2018)
Reading North Korean Intent: The Importance of What Is and Is Not Said (38 North, 04/03/2018)

In South Korea:

Kang claims Seoul has a 'roadmap' for denuclearization (Joongang Ilbo, 04/04/2018)
Red Velvet's mistake (Joongang Ilbo, 04/04/2018)
Returning from Pyongyang, S. Korean art troupe 'unbelievably moved' (Yonhap, 04/04/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

(3rd LD) Two Koreas' art troupes end joint performance on high note (Yonhap, 04/04/2018)
DMZ meeting put off for a day (Joongang Ilbo, 04/04/2018)
Joint concert led to 'warm feelings' (Joongang Ilbo, 04/04/2018)
Kim Jong Un's arrival at Panmunjom summit to be discussed (UPI, 04/04/2018)
Koreas likely to discuss hotline between Moon and N.K. leader this week (Yonhap, 04/04/2018)
North Korea slams South Korea for welcoming U.N. human rights resolution on North (UPI, 04/03/2018)
North Korea's KCNA mentions South Korean taekwondo performance (UPI, 04/03/2018)
Popstars fail to cut tension as North Korea warns its neighbour of 'dubious double dealing' (Telegraph, 04/04/2018)
Singer Cho says music can connect two Koreas (Yonhap, 04/04/2018)

South and North perform together in Pyongyang (Korea Times, 04/04/2018)
South, North Korea to arrange direct hotline between leaders (UPI, 04/04/2018)

International:
(LEAD) FM says S. Korea, U.S. share goal of complete denuclearization of N.K. (Yonhap, 04/04/2018)
(LEAD) The Elders vows support for S. Korean efforts to denuclearize peninsula (Yonhap, 04/04/2018)
China submits report on efforts to implement sanctions against N.K. (Yonhap, 04/04/2018)
Has spring come? (Joongang Ilbo, 04/04/2018)
Japan Increasingly Isolated As N. Korea Diplomacy Progresses (VOA, 04/04/2018)
North Korean foreign minister to visit Moscow next week, says Russia (Reuters, 04/04/2018)
The Word That Could Help the World Avoid Nuclear War (NYT, 04/04/2018)
Trump can turn N.K. summit into photo op or postpone it: ex-Pentagon chief (Yonhap, 04/03/2018)

Top News:

- HRNK Executive Director Greg Scarlatoiu was interviewed by CNN regarding KJU's human rights violations hiding underneath his recent charm offensive. (CNN)
- Trump should not mention the example of Libya when he meets with KJU to discuss the denuclearization of the regime, former US special envoy for N. Korea human rights Robert King said Tues. (Yonhap)

In North Korea:

- An assessment on the construction of the Kalma Coastal Tourist Area. It appears there are well over 100 facilities under construction on the beach, stretched over a four-kilometer-long construction site. (NK Econ Watch)
- Senior N. Korean official Kim Yong-chol expressed hope for continued reconciliation between the two Koreas as he thanked S. Korean artists for performing in his country, according to pool reports Wed. (Yonhap)
- The N. Korean authorities are continuing their campaign against foreign information with the delivery of new mandatory lectures at workplaces nationwide focused on warning residents to refrain from voicing any complaints against the government amidst their latest international diplomatic push. (Seol Song-ah, Daily NK)
- NK issued a rare apology to a group of S. Korean journalists over access to a K-pop concert attended by KJU. While apologies from NK are highly unusual, a mea culpa from a senior official over press freedom is almost unimaginable. (Benjamin Haas, Guardian)
- A N. Korean woman was recently executed for killing her friend with an ax over a small amount of money. This tragedy reflects the deepening economic trouble facing N. Korean people amid international sanctions on the isolated country over its nuclear and missile programs. (Park Si-soo, Korea Times)
- NK has been clearly signaling; both in what it has and what it hasn't said. (Robert Carlin, 38 North)

In South Korea:

- The S. Korean government has an overall roadmap for the denuclearization of North Korea based on its past history of negotiations on the issue, said Foreign Minister Kang Kyung-wha Tues., who added that the nuclear issue is expected to be at the top of the agenda in upcoming summits with Pyongyang. (Sarah Kim, Joongang Ilbo)
- It isn't right for a member of Red Velvet to say that shaking hands with the third-generation hereditary dictator who poisoned his half-brother and detained a tourist for 17 months in a country with no human rights was “an honor." (Ahn Hye-ri, Joongang Ilbo)
- S. Korean musical and taekwondo delegations returned home early Wed. after performances in Pyongyang, the latest in inter-Korean exchanges since NK's participation in the Winter Olympics. (Yonhap)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- Art troupes of S. and N. Korea finished their joint performance in Pyongyang on a high note amid thawing tension on the Korean Peninsula. (Shim Sun-ah, Joint Press Corps, Yonhap)
- The night before officials from Seoul and Pyongyang were scheduled to meet for a working-level meeting to discuss protocol, security and press coverage for the April 27 inter-Korean summit, NK asked SK to postpone the meeting by a day without an explanation, said SK's Unification Ministry. (Lee Sung-eun, Kang Tae-ha, Joongang Ilbo)
- NK continues to propose working-level talks with SK ahead of a summit scheduled for April 27, and matters including the possibility of a live broadcast, and KJU's arrival in SK, could be discussed this week. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- NK’s state-run media commended the joint performances Wed. for bringing the two nations together, saying the show instilled the N. Korean audience with “warm feelings.” But that still didn’t stop NK from excoriating Seoul for recently backing the UN Human Rights Council’s adoption of a resolution condemning NK’s human rights abuses. (Lee Sung-eun, Joongang Ilbo)
- S. and N. Korea are expected to discuss ways to set up an inter-Korean hotline at the offices of their leaders at working-level talks to be held over the weekend. (Yonhap)
- NK has slammed SK for welcoming the adoption of a UN resolution on N. Korean human rights, deeming the move "a heinous insult" and a "challenge" to the regime. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- N. Korean state media reported Tues. SK's taekwondo demonstration team was well received by N. Koreans, the same day visiting S. Koreans were taken to Mangyongdae Children's Palace in Pyongyang. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- Despite the bonding of the N. and S. Korean elites over a shared culture and mutual love of traditional songs, thorny issues like human rights are likely to remain firmly off the table when the leaders of the two countries meet on the heavily militarized border later this month. (Nicola Smith, Telegraph)

- Veteran singer Cho Yong-pil, a key member of the S. Korean artist troupe to Pyongyang, suggested that music can serve as a tool for the two Koreas to communicate emotionally. (Yonhap)
- S. Korean singers appeared on stage with N. Korean performers, singing popular songs from the Koreas at the Ryugyong Chung Ju-yung Gymnasium in Pyongyang, Tues. (Kwon Mee-yoo, Korea Times)
- Seoul and Pyongyang officials will discuss the installation of the direct line during their working-level talks on Sat. at the northern side of Panmunjom truce village. (Jennie Oh, UPI)

International:

- Seoul's top diplomat reaffirmed Wed. a complete denuclearization of NK is a shared objective of SK and the US, emphasizing that the allies are closely coordinating their strategies to achieve the goal. (Yonhap)
- The Elders, an international organization of global leaders, has expressed its support for SK and Moon's efforts to denuclearize the Korean Peninsula, calling Moon's upcoming summit with KJU a "precious opportunity" to achieve that goal, the presidential office Cheong Wa Dae said Wed. (Yonhap)
- China has disclosed its ongoing implementation efforts for sanctions imposed by the U.N. Security Council against NK in the wake of Pyongyang's missile provocation. (Yonhap)
- The spring seems to have come to the Korean Peninsula. With the rise of John Bolton, however, Washington's spring seems still distant. And the difference in temperature is worrisome. (Kim Hyun-ki, Joongang Ilbo)
- PM Shinzo Abe may be looking for reassurance when he meets later this month with Trump, given that the Japanese leader has been left out of the rapidly progressing diplomatic talks to resolve the N. Korean nuclear threat. (Brian Padden, VOA)
- NK's foreign minister will visit Moscow next week and meet his Russian counterpart on April 10, Maria Zakharova, a spokeswoman for the Russian Foreign Ministry said on Wed. (Reuters)
- The word "denuclearization" is more or less native to the Korean Peninsula. Experts have always used "disarmament" to refer to other nuclear programs. So why have diplomats this time chosen the far more complicated word "denuclearization?" Because the situation is, well, far more complicated. (Jeffery Lewis, NYT)
- Trump should accept that any summit with N. Korean leader KJU under the current circumstances will either be a photo opportunity or should be postponed, former US Secretary of Defense Leon Panetta said Tues. (Yonhap)

Prepared by Emma Stubblefield, HRNK Research Intern

———————————————————

Thursday, April 5, 2018

Two Koreas hold preparatory talks to set up the Moon-Kim summit; S.Korean singers reveal impressions of Pyongyang; N. Korea may have shut down nuclear reactor for now

Top News:
S.Korean Singers Reveal Impressions of Pyongyang (Chosun Ilbo, 04/05/2018)

In North Korea:
A Generational Shift in Pyongyang: Is Change Ahead? (38 North, 04/04/2018)
Hundreds of North Korean female workers reappear in China (DailyNK, 04/05/2018)
Missionaries at border spread Christianity to North Korea (WaPo, 04/05/2018)
N. Korea highlights founder's friendship, exchanges with Chinese leaders (Yonhap, 04/05/2018)
N. Korea may have shut down nuclear reactor for now: 38 North (Yonhap, 04/05/2018)
N. Korea shows interest in ways for women to juggle family duties, work: journal (Yonhap, 04/05/2018)
N. Korea's top diplomat to visit Russia next week (Yonhap, 04/04/2018)
North Korea's Yongbyon Nuclear Research Center: Major Activity at the Five Megawatt Reactor (38 North, 04/04/2018)
North Korea shuts down plutonium reactor (Joongang Daily, 04/05/2018)
North Korea soon likely to have missiles that could reach UK – MPs (Guardian, 04/04/2018)
North Korea workers returning to China, sources say (UPI, 04/05/2018)
North Korea's missiles to be able to hit UK within 18 months - but cyber strike more likely, MPs warn (Telegraph, 04/05/2018)
North Korean Workers Return to China in Defiance of UN Restrictions (RFA, 04/04/2018)

In South Korea:
(LEAD) S. Korean, U.S. marines cancel 'D-Day' landing drill due to weather (Yonhap, 04/04/2018)
Aid Group Sends Food in a Bottle to North Korea (VOA, 04/05/2018)
Critical voices are needed too (Joongang Daily, 04/05/2018)
South Korean fighter jet crashes, two pilots presumed dead (Reuters, 04/05/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
(2nd LD) South, North Korea hold 'thorough' discussions on upcoming summit: official (Yonhap, 04/05/2018)
2 Koreas Hold Preparatory Talks Ahead of Landmark Summit (VOA, 04/05/2018)
2 Koreas meet to prepare for summit (Korea Times, 04/05/2018)
Koreas holds preparatory talks to set up Kim-Moon summit (WaPo, 04/05/2018)
Negotiators mum on details of summit talks (Joongang Daily, 04/05/2018)

S. Korea closely monitoring N.K.'s recent diplomatic activities (Yonhap, 04/05/2018)

International:
China can't go wobbly (Joongang Daily, 04/05/2018)
China envoy says prefers to resolve trade dispute by negotiation (Reuters, 04/04/2018)
China importers hope to sell U.S. cargoes to north Asia after tariff move (Reuters, 04/04/2018)
Malaysian prosecutors rest case in Kim Jong Nam murder trial (WaPo, 04/05/2018)
News Daily: London killings and North Korea 'UK missile threat' (BBC, 04/05/2018)
North Korea's Kim told Xi he wanted to resume six-party disarmament talks: Nikkei (Reuters, 04/05/2018)
Trump administration to hit more Russians with sanctions (WaPo, 04/05/2018)
Trump's easy campaign promises run into the difficulties of reality (WaPo, 04/05/2018)
U.S., Chinese diplomats reaffirm commitment to denuclearizing Korea (Yonhap, 04/05/2018)

Top News:

- HRNK Executive Director Greg Scarlatoiu argues that the recent K-pop concert held in N.K. was a propaganda campaign for the N.K. regime and viewed only by the North's elite. (Chosun Ilbo)

In North Korea:

- The recent developments since KJU's New Year's speech raise the possibility of a generational shift in the leadership and political culture of N.K. at the highest level. (Jongsoo Lee, 38 North)
- A large group of N.K. women were moving through the streets of the Chinese border city of Helong earlier this month, leading some in the area to believe it may be connected to KJU's visit to Beijing in late March. (Ha Yoon Ah, DailyNK)
- Along the N.K. border, dozens of missionaries are engaged in work that puts them and their N.K. converts in danger. Most are S.Koreans, but others are ethnic Koreans whose families have lived in China for generations. (Hyung-Jin Kim and Gerry Shih, AP)
- An influential N.K. newspaper on Thursday introduced an anecdotal event involving its state founder Kim Il-sung and former Chinese Premier Zhou Enlai and their friendship, as the country has been highlighting the records of blood ties with China lately. (Yonhap)
- N.K. may have shut down a nuclear reactor for now, while conducting major construction work nearby, a U.S. website monitoring the reclusive regime said Wednesday. (Yonhap)
- N.K. has indicated the importance of coming up with ways for women to balance their family duties and careers as part of its efforts to expand women's labor power in society, according to a thesis in a N.K. economic journal obtained Thursday. (Yonhap)
- N.K. Foreign Minister Ri Yong-ho will make a visit to Russia next week to discuss issues surrounding the Korean Peninsula, Russia's foreign ministry said Wednesday. (Yonhap)
- Commercial satellite imagery from March 30 indicates that N.K. may have shut down the 5 MWe (plutonium production) reactor for the time being. (38 North)

- N.K. has likely shut down the nuclear reactor at its Yongbyon research site in North Pyongyan Province and is working on major construction projects nearby, according to analysis of new satellite images. (Sarah Kim, Joongang Daily)
- N.K. is almost certain to complete development within 18 months of ballistic missiles capable of reaching the UK. According to a report, the missiles could potentially carry nuclear warheads and the UK has only a limited ballistic missile defense capability. (Ewen MacAskill, Guardian)
- N.K. may have begun redeploying forced laborers to China following a summit between KJU and Xi Jinping, a move that could violate UNSC sanctions resolution 2375. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- N.K. will almost certainly be capable of hitting the UK with ballistic missiles within 18 months, MPs have warned, but a "reckless" cyber strike is considered far more likely. (Telegraph)
- N.K. laborers barred under UN sanctions from working abroad are now moving back into China in an apparent violation of restrictions aimed at punishing Pyongyang for its illicit nuclear weapons and missile programs. (Joonho Kim, RFA)

In South Korea:

- S.K. and U.S. marines have called off a massive combined amphibious landing exercise this week due to adverse weather, the combined command announced Wednesday. (Yonhap)
- Humanitarian groups in S.K. are using the ocean current to send needed food and information from the outside world into impoverished regions of N.K. (Brian Padden, VOA)
- Critics of Pyongyang and N.K. defectors are said to be receiving disadvantages or even being removed from office under the liberal government known for its détente policy towards Pyongyang. The case raises concerns for balanced views on N.K. and the freedom of expression. (Joongang Daily)
- An S.K. fighter jet crashed southeast of Seoul on Thursday, leaving two pilots presumed dead, the air force said. The jet was unrelated to U.S.-ROK military drills taking place this month. (Reuters)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- Officials from two Koreas held "serious and thorough" discussions Thursday at a meeting inside the heavily-fortified DMZ to arrange a summit between their leaders to be held later in the month. (Yonhap)
- N.K. and S.K. officials held preparatory talks Thursday for a summit later this month between the countries' two leaders amid a global effort to resolve tensions over Pyongyang's nuclear program. (VOA)
- Two Koreas began working-level discussions Thursday on protocol, security and media coverage details for the upcoming summit between S.K. President Moon and N.K. leader KJU. (Kim Rahn, Korea Times)

- The rival Koreas held preparatory talks Thursday for a summit later this month between N.K. leader KJU and S.K. President Moon amid a global diplomatic push to resolve tensions over the North's nuclear program. (Kim Tong-Hyung, AP)
- Two Koreas on Thursday had a working-level meeting for the upcoming inter-Korea summit to discuss protocol, security and press coverage and agreed to hold a second such meeting in coming days. A date was not announced. (Kang Jin-kyu, Joongang Daily)
- S.K. is closely watching recent overseas diplomatic activities by N.K. ahead of upcoming summit talks, the S.K. foreign ministry said Thursday. (Yonhap)

International:

- China needs to use its N.K. card in fear of being isolated from the negotiation process and in the face of Washington's mounting trade pressure. But the denuclearization of N.K. involves not only the peninsula, but the East Asia as a whole. If the negotiations fail, it could trigger a nuclear domino effect in Asia. (Joongang Daily)
- The US and China should avoid a trade war, China's Ambassador to the US Cui Tiankai said on Wednesday, stressing that Beijing's preference was to resolve the dispute through negotiations. (Reuters)
- Chinese importers expecting cargoes of U.S. commodities from beef to propane said they hope to sell the goods to S.K. or Japan after Beijing's decision to slap extra tariffs on a swathe of items from agricultural products to chemicals. (Reuters)
- Malaysian prosecutors wrapped up their case Thursday against two Southeast Asian women accused of killing the estranged half-brother of N.K.'s leader KJU in a brazen attack at an international airport. (Eileen Ng, AP)
- US experts have been warning for months about the development of N.K.'s long-range missile program. It is predicted that KJU's military could have the capability of hitting the UK within 6 to 18 months. (BBC)
- N.K. leader KJU told Chinese President Xi Jinping during talks in Beijing last week that he agreed to return to six-party talks on his nation's nuclear program and missile tests. (Reuters)
- The Trump administration is preparing to impose new sanctions on powerful Russian business and political figures under a law passed last year in response to alleged Russian meddling in the 2016 election. (Matthew Lee and Zeke Miller, AP)
- President Trump is discovering that the policies he once described as easy fixes for the nation are a lot more complicated in reality — creating a backlash among allies, frustrating supporters and threatening the pocketbooks of many farming communities that helped get him elected. (Michael Scherer, Josh Dawsey and Philip Rucker, WaPo)
- Senior diplomats of the US and China on Wednesday reaffirmed their commitment to achieving a complete denuclearization of the Korean Peninsula, the State Department said. (Yonhap)

Prepared by James Park, HRNK Research Intern

———————————————

Friday, April 6, 2018

Is the world ignoring N.Korea's 'crimes against humanity'?; Impeached S.Korean president Park sentenced to 24 years in prison; Six-party talks to discuss N.K. denuclearization could still be valid

Top News:
Is the world ignoring North Korea's 'crimes against humanity'? (DW, 04/06/2018)

In North Korea:
Kim Jong-un likely to visit Russia before inter-Korean summit (Korea Times, 04/06/2018)
Kim Jong-un says concert was 'wonderful' (Joongang Daily, 04/06/2018)
More North Koreans turning to shamanism in midst of economic downturn (*Daily*NK, 04/06/2018)
North Korea newspaper warns against 'fantasy of peace' (UPI, 04/06/2018)
Those North Korea sanctions might be working. Here's why (WaPo, 04/06/2018)
Two defectors discuss possible domestic reactions to K-pop performance in Pyongyang (*Daily*NK, 04/06/2018)

In South Korea:
Ex-S. Korean leader Park gets 24-year prison term (WaPo, 04/06/2018)
Geopolitical situation good for Seoul: Moody's (Joongang Daily, 04/06/2018)
Impeached South Korean President Sentenced to 24 Years in Prison (VOA, 04/06/2018)
Park Geun-hye, South Korea's Ousted President, Gets 24 Years in Prison (NYT, 04/06/2018)
S. Korean officials visit venue of inter-Korean summit for possible renovation (Yonhap, 04/06/2018)
Seoul vows efforts to free detainees in N.K. amid improving inter-Korean ties (Yonhap, 04/06/2018)
South Korea: Ex-President Park sentenced to 24 years in prison (UPI, 04/06/2018)
South Korea's history of bad presidential endings grows (WaPo, 04/06/2018)
South Korean court jails former president Park for 24 years (Reuters, 04/06/2018)
The power of truth (Joongang Daily, 04/06/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
(News Focus) Will six-party talks to discuss N.K. denuclearization be resumed? (Yonhap, 04/06/2018)
Koreas to discuss establishing first hotline between leaders (Yonhap, 04/06/2018)
N. Korean diplomat says atmosphere of reconciliation emerging, hopes for breakthrough (Yonhap, 04/06/2018)
Six-party talks could still be valid (Korea Times, 04/06/2018)
Striking a balance (Joongang Daily, 04/06/2018)

International:

(LEAD) Senior member of EU parliament vows support for Korean denuclearization, unification (Yonhap, 04/06/2018)
(Yonhap Interview) Trump must insist on goal of nuclear weapons-free Korean Peninsula: Gallucci (Yonhap, 04/06/2018)
A year after Mar-a-Lago summit, US-China ties are tested (WaPo, 04/06/2018)
Britain approves new sanctions on N. Korean ships, firms: report (Yonhap, 04/06/2018)
China hopes North Korea leader's summits with Trump, Moon will defuse tension (Reuters, 04/06/2018)
China says relations with Russia at 'best level in history' (CNN, 04/06/2018)
In a U.S.-China trade war, who has more to lose? (WaPo, 04/05/2018)
Japan creates North Korea division to address abductions, nuclear concerns (UPI, 04/06/2018)
Trump, Kim summit may boost recovery of US Korea War remains (WaPo, 04/06/2018)

Top News:

- As N.K. human rights issues were unmentioned during the talks between the IOC President and KJU last month, there's an increasing concern that human rights will be seen as the longer-term issue and sidelined by governments involved in the Korean Peninsula issue. (DW)

In North Korea:

- N.K. leader KJU has received an invitation to visit Russia, adding to the speculation that KJU may meet Putin to bolster diplomatic leverage on N.K.'s nuclear program before a planned inter-Korean summit on April 27. (Yi Whan-woo, Korea Times)
- N.K. leader KJU made an unannounced appearance at a concert thrown by S.Korean artists Sunday night in Pyongyang, and said the two countries should hold another joint concert this fall in Seoul. (Joongang Daily)
- As N.Koreans continue to struggle through the country's economic downturn due to international sanctions, it is being reported that a rising number of residents are turning to shamanism for solutions. (Kang Mi Jin, DailyNK)
- N.Koreans are being called to arm themselves with state ideology, following two recent S.K. concerts in Pyongyang, as Korean Workers' Party newspaper stated Friday the pursuit of "revolutionary ideology education" is an urgent issue. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- While KJU has played a brilliant diplomatic hand, he may have miscalculated the impact of sanctions - coordinating on sanctions is always difficult and China now plays a pivotal role in sanctions. (Stephan M. Haggard, WaPo)
- Two N.K. defectors including a former resident of Pyongyang and a former Ryanggang resident share their opinions on how they think N.Koreans are likely reacting. (Moon Dong Hui, DailyNK)

In South Korea:

- Former S.K. President Park Geun-hye was formally convicted of an array of corruption charges and sentenced to 24 years in prison on Friday, a year after she was driven from office and arrested over her scandal. (Hyung-Jin Kim and Kim Tong-Hyung, AP)
- The geopolitical situation on the Korean Peninsula is turning positive for S.K. as its economic fundamentals remain sound, a global rating agency said Friday. (Yonhap)
- Impeached S.K. President Park Geun-hye has been sentenced to more than two decades in prison for abuse of power, coercion and bribery, at the conclusion of her corruption scandal. (Brian Padden, VOA)
- Park Geun-hye, S.K.'s impeached and ousted president, was sentenced to 24 years in prison on a variety of criminal charges, in a case that exposed the entrenched, collusive ties between the S.K. government and huge conglomerates. (Choe Sang-hun, NYT)
- A group of top S.K. officials made a rare trip Friday to the JSA inside the heavily fortified DMZ, the venue of recent inter-Korean dialogue and an upcoming summit between the leaders of the two divided Koreas. (Yonhap)
- S.K. said Friday it will make efforts to win the release of S.Korean detainees in N.K. in the process of making an improvement in inter-Korean ties. Currently, six S.Koreans, including three pastors, are being detained in N.K. (Yonhap)
- Former S.K. President Park Geun-hye will spend up to 24 years in prison on corruption charges, a court in Seoul ruled Friday. (Sara Shayanian, UPI)
- Park Geun-hye's corruption conviction on Friday extended the tradition of S.K. presidencies ending badly. Nearly every former president, or their family members and aides, have been mired in scandals near the end of their terms or after they left office. (Kim Tong-Hyung, AP)
- An S.K. court jailed former President Park Geun-hye for 24 years on Friday over a scandal that exposed webs of corruption between political leaders and the country's conglomerates. (Hyonhee Shin, Heekyong Yang, Reuters)
- It is time to show KJU the reality, not a sugarcoated entreaty. Moon must sit down for the summit with a determination to challenge and raise his voice against Kim as the representative of a country. (Chun Young-gi, Joongang Daily)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- With preparations underway for S.K. and the US to hold their respective summits with N.K., experts are now paying attention to whether the long-suspended six-party talks could be used as an effective format to ensure the denuclearization of N.K. (Koh Byung-joon, Yonhap)
- The two Koreas are set to hold talks this week to install what will be the first direct hotline between their leaders, who are set to hold their first meeting in person later in the month (Yonhap)
- N.K.'s top diplomat has said an atmosphere is emerging on the Korean Peninsula for inter-Korean reconciliation and trust-building and that a "breakthrough" for reunification could be made if the two Koreas closely cooperate. (Yonhap)

- Nuclear dialogue with N.K. may possibly extend to all members of the now-dormant six-party talks after N.K. leader KJU meets leaders of S.K. and the US. (Yi Whan-woo, Korea Times)
- All first-rate powers have balanced diplomacy and defense. The Moon government also must have such a balance to raise competitiveness in denuclearization talks. Negotiating skill comes from control and a mix of hawks and doves. (Park Bo-gyoon, Joongang Daily)

International:

- A senior member of the Parliament of the EU pledged Friday the region's continued support for denuclearization and ultimately the reunification of the two Koreas in a meeting with a senior official here. (Yonhap)
- Trump must use his summit with N.K. leader KJU to insist that the regime's denuclearization will remain a goal for Washington and its allies, a former U.S. nuclear negotiator said Thursday. (Lee Haye-ah and Song Sugyong, Yonhap)
- Trump first tried to disarm Xi Jinping at Mar-a-Lago with smooth talk and hospitality. A year later, he's resorted to hardball as Xi is willing to throw it back. But at least for now, acrimony over trade is unlikely to spill over into sensitive national security issues. (Matthew Pennington, AP)
- Britain has approved a new set of sanctions on N.K. that target ships and companies involved in alleged smuggling activities by the North. (Yonhap)
- The Chinese government's top diplomat hopes that planned summits between N.K. leader KJU and the presidents of S.K. and the US will "take the fuse" out of the situation on the Korean peninsula. (Reuters)
- China and Russia are publicly heralding a new age of diplomacy between the two countries, at a time when both are being targeted by the US with punitive measures. (Ben Westcott, CNN)
- Who has more to lose in the U.S.-China trade as it gets uglier? China has more to lose economically in an all-out trade war. But politically, there's a strong case that Trump would be less able to sustain a protracted conflict than the Chinese. (Heather Long, WaPo)
- Japan could be establishing a new line of communication to facilitate talks with N.K., as its foreign ministry said Friday a department that will focus on dialogue over N.K.'s weapons program will be created, as S.K. and US prepare for summits with KJU. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- The repatriation of the remains of thousands of U.S. military personnel missing in action and presumed dead from the Korean War may finally get a boost now from the upcoming Trump-KJU summit. (Eric Talmadge, AP)

Prepared by James Park, HRNK Research Intern

Saturday, April 7, 2018

All the right enemies at the UN; Separating KJU from his Elites; NK open to cooperation if political system guaranteed, some experts say; Aid Groups Send NK a Message, Aid in a Bottle

Top News:
All the right enemies at the UN. (The John Batchelor Show, 04/05/2018)
Separating Kim Jong Un from his Elites (The Cipher Brief, 04/05/2018)

In North Korea:
N. Korea may be testing new nuclear reactor: U.S. think tank (Yonhap, 04/07/2018)
N. Korea calls imprisoned ex-S. Korean president 'traitor' (WaPo, 04/07/2018)
North Korea expresses interest in Azerbaijani energy cooperation, oil fields (NKNews.org, 04/06/2018)
North Korea open to cooperation if political system guaranteed, some experts say (DailyNK, 04/06/2018)
North Korea's Yongbyon Nuclear Research Center: Construction Progressing Rapidly Near Reactors; No Signs of Reprocessing (38North, 04/06/2018)
North Korean authorities demanding bigger fees in 'illegal' remittance smuggling (DailyNK, 04/06/2018)
North Korean local officials wooing foreigners, easing restrictions in bid for assistance (DailyNK, 04/06/2018)

In South Korea:
Hopes, fears, reality: The generation gap on Korean unification (Al-Jazeera, 04/07/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
Koreas discuss communication issues ahead of summit (WaPo, 04/07/2018)

International:
Aid Groups Send North Korea a Message, Aid in a Bottle (VOA, 04/06/2018)
Bolton's Illegal War Plan for North Korea (NYTimes,04/07/2018)
China and South Korea at odds over first step in nuclear crisis talks (South China Morning Post, 04/07/2018)
China applies its own maximum pressure policy on Pyongyang (WaPo, 04/07/2018)
International Criminal Court refuses to prosecute North Korean leader Kim Jong-un 'for abducting Japanese citizens' (South China Morning Post, 04/07/2018)
North Korea-China Thaw Could Undermine International Sanctions (VOA, 04/07/2018)
North Korean Denuclearization: One Goal, Different Interpretations (The Diplomat, 04/06/2018)
North Korean hackers pose "a growing threat" to the UK (NS Tech, 04/06/2018)
Secret, direct talks underway between US and North Korea (CNN, 04/07/2018)

Top News:

- On this segment of the John Batchelor Show, HRNK Executive Director Greg Scarlatoiu discussed HRNK's struggle to gain consultative status with the UN ECOSOC with host John Batchelor, and Gordon Chang from the Daily Beast. He discussed the Feb. 2nd vote in the 19-member NGO committee, where 5 countries voted for HRNK and 9 countries voted against HRNK consultative status, also noting that 3 members were absent, while 2 abstained. He expressed hope that those countries that voted against HRNK in committee would change their minds for the Apr. 17th vote. Scarlatoiu also discussed the importance of HRNK gaining consultative status. Achieving this status would allow HRNK to go on record, make statements at various UN meetings, co-sponsor and co-host events with member states, and issue its own credentials. He noted that the UN has already quoted HRNK on a number of occasions including the UN Commission of Inquiry report, Secretary-General Guterres, senior UN officials, UN agencies. According to Scarlatoiu, the importance of HRNK's consultative status application is about more than its mission or human rights in NK—it is ultimately "about the participation of civil society in the UN decision-making process." (Greg Scarlatoiu, Gordon Chang, John Batchelor, The John Batchelor Show)
- The US-led alliance against Pyonyang can undermine the strength and reliability of KJU's military by convincing regime elites that—should Kim take them to war—his interests will sharply diverge from theirs. In the long run, Kim is more likely to push elites and ordinary N.Koreans further away by reacting harshly. Although this is unlikely to trigger a putsch, offering elites an alternative to dying for KJU will find increasingly fertile ground, the closer Kim takes them to war. And undermining Kim's confidence in the loyalty of his military and regime elites might not only give him pause; it could significantly reduce the level of violence should his actions force a conflict upon us. (Commander Fredrick 'Skip' Vincenzo, The Cipher Brief)

In North Korea:

- NK may have started testing a new reactor as it continues to expand the capability of its nuclear facilities, according to a US think tank. In a report published Thurs., the Institute for Science and International Security said the Experimental Light Water Reactor at the Yongbyon nuclear complex shows signs of activity. (Yonhap)
- NK on Sat. called disgraced former S.Korean President Park Geun-hye a "traitor" responsible for "extra-large hideous corruption," in its first reaction to the sentencing of Park to 24 years in prison on corruption charges. (Associated Press)
- NK is interested in exploring energy cooperation with Azerbaijan–likely in the oil sector–DPRK foreign minister Ri Yong Ho told his Azerbaijani counterpart on Fri., according to the Eurasian country's Ministry of Foreign Affairs. (Hamish Macdonald, NKNews.org)

- Many observers believe that NK's signal of an unprecedented positive shift in attitude towards SK is a part of a strategy by NK to make larger changes to their country. According to Lee Su Seok, a NK analyst at SK's Institute for National Security Strategy, "Through improving relations with the US and SK, NK is attempting to both find sanctions relief and at the same time receive guarantees over the safety and longevity of the Kim regime." (Ha Yoon Ah, DailyNK)
- Commercial satellite imagery of the Yongbyon Nuclear Scientific Research Center from Apr. 4 shows significant progress in the modifications underway associated with the 5 MWe reactor's secondary cooling system. The purpose of this new structure remains unclear, but it could be for a new pump house comparable to the one serving the ELWR. Given recent efforts to dam the river below this point to create a reservoir, this could be part of a larger effort to provide a steady flow of water into that reactor allowing it to run more continuously and safely in the future. Alternatively, since its location is near where the reactor cooling water used to be expelled during previous reactor operations, it could be part of a new cooling water outflow system to enhance the overall efficiency and potentially the cooling capacity of the secondary cooling loop. (38North)
- Remittance payments to N.Korean residents from abroad are reportedly on the rise even as the authorities have warned against the practice as part of a nationwide crackdown on so-called 'anti-socialist' activities. The smuggling of cash into the country is, according to sources inside the country, often allowed under explicit permission from the central authorities or done directly with the help of Ministry of State Security agents. (Kang Mi Jin, DailyNK)
- N.Korean officials in small towns in the country's northeast are reportedly hosting foreign guests and asking for their assistance in helping to solve the region's worsening economic problems. (Ha Yoon Ah, DailyNK)

In South Korea:

- For younger S.Koreans, like graduate student Min Hyeonjong, years of living under threat with little evidence of peace talks makes reunification seem unlikely. "My parents were very sympathetic to NK, more so than my peers ... We have had more experience with N.Korean provocations than with talks and dialogues and I think this still has a big impact on perspectives." (Al-Jazeera)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- NK and SK on Sat. held talks over establishing a telephone hotline between their leaders and other communication issues ahead of a rare summit between the rivals later this month. (Kim Tong-Hyung, AP)

International:

- Some humanitarian groups in SK are using unusual ways to send food aid and information to people in NK. Their efforts come as officials from NK and SK prepare for talks between the leaders of the two countries. S.Korean President Moon is expected to meet with N.Korean leader KJU in Panmunjom on Apr. 27. Recently, activists gathered on Ganghwa island in the Yellow Sea, close to the border dividing North and South Korea. They launched packages containing aid such as rice, medicine, and American money into the sea. (As It Is, VOA)
- In this opinion piece in the NYTimes, Scott D. Sagan and Allen S. Weiner argue the flaws and dangers of incoming national security advisor John Bolton's legal analysis and strategic logic in his recent WSJ op-ed, "The Legal Case for Striking North Korea First," from both international and domestic law perspectives. (Scott D. Sagan, Allen S. Weiner, NYTimes)
- China and SK appear split over how to start talks on ridding the Korean peninsula of nuclear weapons, as each player vies for influence in the negotiations, according to diplomatic sources. Sources told the South China Morning Post that Beijing wanted a structure that would continue to give it an active role in reining in Pyongyang's nuclear programme while protecting China's regional interests. Meanwhile, Seoul prefers a process built around US talks with the two Koreas, according to the sources. (Jeong Ho Lee, South China Morning Post)
- As the US-NK summit looms, President Donald Trump's maximum pressure policy on NK may be working—thanks to China. Beijing appears to have gone well beyond UN sanctions on its unruly neighbor, reducing its total imports from NK in the first two months this year by 78.5 and 86.1 percent in value—a decline that began in late 2017, according to the latest trade data from China. Its exports to NK also dropped by 33 percent to 34 percent both months. (Eric Talmadge, AP)
- The International Criminal Court has turned down a petition to prosecute N.Korean leader KJU and others in the country's leadership for the suspected abductions of Japanese citizens, a group of people involved said Fri. (Associated Press, Kyodo)
- As relations between Beijing and Pyongyang thaw slightly, the prospect of China relaxing its sanctions imposed on NK and thwarting US President Donald Trump's "maximum pressure" campaign makes experts wary. (Christy Lee, VOA)
- Officially, both Seoul and Washington have consistently reiterated that their goal is the complete, verifiable, and irreversible denuclearization (CVID) of NK. However, official rhetoric notwithstanding, there are clear indications of a potentially fractious divide between the Moon and Trump administrations, not in terms of CVID itself, but in terms of how it is to be achieved. (Clint Work, The Diplomat)
- NK's burgeoning black hat hacker scene poses a growing threat to the UK government, businesses and consumers, the defence select committee has warned in a new report. (Oscar Williams, NS Tech)
- The US and NK have been holding secret, direct talks to prepare for a summit between President Donald Trump and N.Korean leader KJU, a sign that planning for the highly anticipated meeting is progressing, several administration officials familiar with the discussions tell CNN. (Elise Labott, Kevin Liptak, Jenna McLaughlin, CNN)

Prepared by Jinny Ahn, HRNK Research Intern

——————————————————

Sunday, April 8, 2018

Seoul optimistic about "secret, direct contact" between U.S. and North Korea; Koreas discuss establishing hotline between leaders

In North Korea:
Hundreds of foreigners join Pyongyang race as tensions ease (Washington Post, 04/08/2018)
N. Korean Red Cross officials have new 'flexible' attitude: official (Yonhap, 04/08/2018)
Pyongyang marathon: Fewer foreigners compete in North Korea's annual race (BBC, 04/08/2018)

In South Korea:
S. Korean presidential office keeping close tabs U.S.-N.K. pre-summit talks (Yonhap, 04/08/2018)
Seoul optimistic about "secret, direct contact" between U.S. and North Korea (UPI, 04/08/2018)
South Korean conservative heavyweight warns against "facade of peace" between two Koreas (UPI, 04/08/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
Koreas discuss establishing hotline between leaders (Yonhap, 04/07/2018)
Talks on the Moon-Kim hotline (Joongang Ilbo, 04/08/2018)

International:
EU adds 21 entities to N. Korea sanctions list: report (Yonhap, 04/07/2018)
'NK, US make secret contact for summit' (Korea Times, 04/08/2018)
North, U.S. negotiating summit (Joongang Ilbo, 04/08/2018)
S. Korea, U.S. wrap up weeklong combined exercise (Yonhap, 04/08/2018)
The politics of the grand gesture (Joongang Ilbo, 04/08/2018)

In North Korea:

- Hundreds of foreigners joined in the annual Pyongyang marathon on Sun. despite political tensions that have only recently begun to ease and a ban on US citizens traveling to the country that is still in effect. (AP)
- N. Korean Red Cross officials who recently met S. Koreans in a regional forum were flexible and actively engaged in talks, an official who served Seoul's Red Cross chief said Sunday. (Yonhap)
- There were 429 foreign amateurs competing in Pyongyang's annual marathon this year, less than half 2017's number. A US travel ban and fears of nuclear war seem to have cut numbers - the marathon is usually the peak time for Western tourists to visit. (BBC)

In South Korea:

- SK's presidential office appears to be keeping close tabs on reports that the US and NK have been holding talks to prepare for a summit between their leaders, a government official said Sun., expressing hope that such steps could lead to denuclearization discussions in the future. (Yonhap)
- SK's top office expressed optimism on reports of contact between Washington and Pyongyang, to arrange a summit between their leaders in May. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- S. Korean conservative heavyweight Hong Jun-pyo has accused the incumbent Moon government of running a "facade of peace between the South and North," warning against the current optimism surrounding inter-Korean relations. (Jennie Oh, UPI)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- The two Koreas held talks on Sat. to discuss establishing a direct telephone link between their leaders and other communication issues ahead of a historic summit between them later this month. (Yonhap)
- SK and NK held a working-level meeting on Sat. at the border village of Panmunjom to discuss setting up a hotline between their two leaders. (Kang Jin-kyu, Joongang Ilbo)

International:

- The European Union has added one person and 21 entities to its list of those subject to restrictive measures against NK in line with the latest sanctions imposed by the UN, a US radio station reported Sat. (Yonhap)
- Secret contacts are taking place between Pyongyang and Washington to prepare for a summit between their leaders slated for May, according to sources, Sun. (Kim Bo-eun, Korea Times)
- Following reports of secret talks between the US and NK to make preparations for a first bilateral summit, the Blue House said Sun. that it is “observing closely” the situation without confirming further details. (Sarah Kim, Joongang Ilbo)
- SK and the US wrapped up a massive combined exercise Sun. after their week long maneuvers. (Yonhap)
- Support from Xi and Moon is needed now more than ever as the constraints on Trump fall away. Close coordination among China, the US and SK over the NK-SK summit is the best way to exploit the hopes of a negotiated settlement. (Stephen Haggard, Joongang Ilbo)

Prepared by Emma Stubblefield, HRNK Research Intern

Monday, April 9, 2018

US confirms NK willingness to discuss denuclearization; Pyongyang sends envoy to Moscow ahead of talks; Moon wants reunions on the agenda; Report: N.Korean leader wants security guarantee from Washington

In North Korea:
Images show North Korea piling coal in shipment yard (UPI, 04/09/2018)
Kim Jong-un's Wonsan boat at Tae-do in 2017 (NK Econ Watch, 04/09/2018)
North Korea breaks out of diplomatic isolation and scores a win (Daily NK, 04/09/2018)
Pyongyang marathon: hundreds run through hermit city [PHOTOS] (Korea Times, 04/09/2018)
Pyongyang sends envoy to Moscow ahead of talks (Joongang Daily, 04/09/2018)
Pyongyang Welcomes Hundreds of Foreigners for Yearly Marathon (NYTimes, 04/08/2018)
Ri Sol-ju rumoured to be joining husband Kim Jong-un at South Korea summit (Telegraph, 04/09/2018)

In South Korea:
Moon wants reunions on the agenda (Joongang Daily, 04/09/2018)
Seoul determined to remain the mediator (Joongang Daily, 04/09/2018)
South Korean gov't at odds with US think tank (Korea Times, 04/08/2018)
South Korean president thanks US veteran of Hungnam evacuation (Korea Times, 04/08/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
(LEAD) S. Korea mulling ways to develop sustainable inter-Korean ties under sanctions (Yonhap, 04/09/2018)
Focusing on Korea's true security challenges before, and after, the South-North summit (Korea Times, 04/08/2018)
Koreas likely to hold more working-level talks this week for summit (Yonhap, 04/09/2018)
Moon's aide told Kim Jong-un to stop smoking, got away (Korea Times, 04/09/2018)
South, North Korea to arrange first phone call between leaders, prep for summit (UPI, 04/08/2018)

International:
'NK, US make secret contact for summit' (Korea Times, 04/08/2018)
(2nd LD) U.S. confirms N.K. willingness to discuss denuclearization (Yonhap, 04/09/2018)
[Photos] China allows expelled North Korean workers to stay, shuffled to other jobs (DailyNK, 04/09/2018)
China bans exports of 32 'dual-use' items to N.K. (Yonhap, 04/09/2018)
China bans exports of 'dual use' items to North Korea (Reuters, 04/09/2018)
China bans exports to North Korea of weapons-related goods (WaPo, 04/08/2018)
Contending formulas of denuclearization (Korea Times, 04/08/2018)
Do's and don'ts for summits (Joongang Daily, 04/09/2018)
Foreign ministers of S. Korea and Japan to meet to discuss bilateral ties, N.K. (Yonhap, 04/09/2018)
Ho and Kim Jong-un (Joongang Daily, 04/09/2018)

N Korea-US talks: Pyongyang 'ready to discuss' nuclear programme (BBC, 04/09/2018)
North Korea confirms to White House that it is willing to talk about denuclearization, administration officials say (WaPo, 04/08/2018)
North Korea's definition of 'denuclearization' is very different from Trump's (WaPo, 04/09/2018)
North Korea prepared to discuss denuclearisation, US official says (Telegraph, 04/09/2018)
North Korea puts nukes on table (Korea Times, 04/09/2018)
North Korea Ready To Talk About Denuclearization, U.S. Officials Say (NPR, 04/09/2018)
North Korea Said to Offer Direct Assurance It Will Discuss Denuclearization (NY*Times*, 04/08/2018)
North Korea tells U.S. it is prepared to discuss denuclearization: source (Reuters, 04/09/2018)
North Korea's foreign minister arrives in Moscow (Korea Times, 04/09/2018)
Pyongyang learned lesson from Qaddafi, says Yang Xiyu (Joongang Daily, 04/09/2018)
Report: North Korean leader wants security guarantee from Washington (UPI, 04/09/2018)
Russian Security Council Official Holds Talks With North Korean Foreign Minister-TASS (NY*Times*, 04/09/2018)
Sending wrong signal (Korea Times, 04/09/2018)
South Korea, U.S. to begin special military drills this week (UPI, 04/08/2018)
US Confirms N. Korea Willing to Discuss Denuclearization (VOA, 04/09/2018)
U.S. Confirms North Korean Offer to Talk Denuclearization (Bloomberg, 04/08/2018)
U.S. confirms talks with North (Joongang Daily, 04/09/2018)
US official says North Korean leader ready to discuss nukes (WaPo, 04/09/2018)

In North Korea:

- Recent satellite images of NK indicate the regime may have begun building a new coal yard in a seaport in South Pyongan Province. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- With Planet Labs imagery, we are able to get improved and affordable access to some remote places in NK, allowing for an improved tracking of changes than is possible with just Google Earth or Google Maps. One such example is the observation of several unique boats that are stored by KJU in Wonsan. (NK Econ Watch)
- Last year, NK was severely isolated in the international community due to its nuclear weapons and missile development. Entering 2018, however, Pyongyang has dramatically changed its status after seizing on the opportunity of the PyeongChang Olympics in SK. NK-SK relations have warmed, and a special S.Korean delegation travelled to Pyongyang and managed to help set up a US-NK high level summit. Through an unexpected China-NK visit, KJU has also evidently moved Sino-NK relations towards a friendlier disposition. (Ahn Jong Sik, DailyNK)
- Hundreds of foreign professionals and amateurs competed in the Pyongyang marathon on Sun., a source of foreign currency for UN-sanctioned NK. The annual race was part of celebrations marking N.Korean founder Kim Il-sung's birth in 1912. In previous years, there were about 1,000 participants, but there were only 429 this year due to a US travel ban imposed last year after Otto Warmbier's death. (Park Si-soo, Korea Times)
- NK's Foreign Minister Ri Yong-ho touched down in Russia Mon. for a three-day visit that will include a meeting with his Moscow counterpart Sergey Lavrov, another diplomatic outreach to a traditional ally before KJU holds summits with the leaders of SK and the US. (Chun Su-jin, Joongang Daily)

- Hundreds of foreigners took part in the annual marathon in Pyongyang on Sun., despite political tensions that have only recently begun to ease and a ban on US citizens traveling to NK that is in effect.(The Associated Press)
- KJU's wife Ri Sol-ju may accompany the N.Korean leader to his first summit with S.Korean President Moon later this month, in a sign of her growing role as a key player in the regime's international diplomacy. (Nicola Smith, Telegraph)

In South Korea:

- The S.Korean government is trying to persuade NK to add reunions of families separated during the Korean War to the agenda for the inter-Korean summit on Apr. 27, and for the reunions to be held on a regular basis. But Pyongyang officials have not given a direct answer, a high-level government official in Seoul exclusively told the JoongAng Ilbo Mon. (Jeong Yong-soo, Joongang Daily)
- As N.Korean leader KJU and US President Donald Trump make preparations for a historic first meeting between the heads of the two countries, SK is intent on maintaining its role as a mediator between the two. (Kang Jin-kyu, Joongang Daily)
- Tension is mounting between the Korean government and the US-Korea Institute (USKI), a think tank at Johns Hopkins School of Advanced International Studies (SAIS), after the government announced it would cut off its funding for the Washington, DC-based institute beginning in Jun. Since its foundation in 2006, the think tank, which runs 38 North specializing in N.Korean affairs, has received 2 billion won ($1.87 million) from the government annually through the Korea Institute for International Economic Policy (KIEP) installed under the Prime Minister's Office. (Choi Ha-young, Korea Times)
- President Moon has expressed his gratitude to a US veteran, who participated in the operation that saved the lives of Moon's parents during the Korean War (1950-53). In his letter to Burley Smith, 89, who is visiting SK with his family, Moon expressed his deep gratitude to the former sailor on the SS Meredith Victory, a ship that carried 14,000 N.Korean refugees, including Moon's parents, to SK at the height of the war. (Jung Min-ho, Korea Times)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- Ahead of a summit with NK, SK is exploring ways to improve inter-Korean relations to a sustainable level and develop them even under international sanctions, Seoul's point man on NK said Mon. (Yonhap)
- In this opinion piece for the Korea Times, Emanuel Pastreich—director of the Seoul-based Asia Institute—writes that the summits must indicate, symbolically and substantively, a fundamental shift in the relationship between the SK and the NK, and, to make that work, a transformation of relations between the US, China, Russia and Japan. He also argues that the NK-SK summit should be seized upon as an opportunity to rethink security in East Asia, as well as to appeal to the citizens' rationality in planning for a dangerous future. (Emanuel Pastreich, Korea Times)

- SK and NK are expected to hold one or two more working-level talks this week to discuss ways to establish a telephone hotline between their leaders, Seoul's unification ministry said Mon. (Yonhap)
- Top presidential aide Chung Eui-yong advised N.Korean leader KJU to stop smoking during a dinner Kim hosted for Chung visiting Pyongyang as President Moon's top envoy early last month. (Oh Young-jin, Korea Times)
- S.Korean and N.Korean officials are set to hold one or two more working-level meetings to arrange the Apr. 27 summit between President Moon and N.Korean leader KJU, as well as arrange their first phone call through a direct hotline. (Jennie Oh, UPI)

International:

- Secret contacts are taking place between Pyongyang and Washington to prepare for a summit between their leaders slated for May, according to sources, Sun. (Kim Bo-eun, Korea Times)
- The US has confirmed that NK is willing to talk about abandoning its nuclear weapons program during a bilateral summit next month, the White House said Sun. (Yonhap)
- Further details are emerging in regards to NK's practice of reshuffling its dispatched laborers in China. After being forced out of previous jobs by the Chinese government, such maneuvers are helping the regime to evade sanctions and continue earning money. A source close to N.Korean affairs in China told Daily NK on Apr. 5 that China still appears to be complying with sanctions, at least on the outside. (Ha Yoon Ah, DailyNK)
- China has banned exports of 32 items to NK that could be converted for use in developing weapons of mass destruction (WMD), Beijing's commerce ministry said Mon. (Yonhap)
- China has banned the export to NK of some items with potential dual use in weapons of mass destruction, the Chinese Ministry of Commerce said in a statement on its website. (Reuters)
- China has banned exports to NK of electronics and other goods that can be used in making weapons, tightening UN sanctions imposed over Pyongyang's nuclear and missile development. (The Associated Press)
- In this opinion piece for the Korea Times, Tong Kim writes that Trump's primary interest is to denuclearize NK once and for all in the shortest time. Kim believes that NK is not coming to the table to surrender or to unilaterally disarm its nuclear and missile programs. He argues that the Libyan style of "denuclearization first and rewards later" will not work because of NK had already learned a lesson from it. (Tong Kim, Korea Times)
- As these two summits approach, there are some important "do's" and "don'ts" that should inform policy and diplomacy in SK and the US. They are as follows: strictly adhere to the diplomatic doctrine of "No Surprises," have NK define exactly what it means by denuclearization, be prepared to address issues related to a likely "freeze as first step to denuclearization" gambit, utilize "synchronous steps," and to think about the basis for a peace regime and the signing of peace treaty to replace the armistice. (Robert A. Manning, Joongang Daily)

- The top diplomats of SK and Japan are expected to meet this week to exchange views on the NK nuclear problem and other issues of mutual concern, a source said Mon. (Yonhap)
- KJU will face a new world of diplomatic relations with the US and economic assistance if he chooses the rational move of a complete dismantlement of his nuclear program. When that happens, the "Doi Moi" style economic reforms of Vietnam will be best suited, as it will allow NK to maintain socialism as its political system while adopting a market economy. In this case, NK can achieve rapid growth by attracting foreign investments and opening up its markets after establishing diplomatic relations with the US, and it will no longer be under the influence of China. However, the "wealth and honor with socialism" promised by Kim is impossible to achieve as long as NK has nuclear weapons. (Lee Ha-kyung, Joongang Daily)
- NK has promised the US it is ready to discuss the future of its nuclear arsenal when the two nations' leaders meet, US officials say. NK has already told SK it was prepared to address denuclearisation, but this is the first time assurances have been given to Washington directly, the US officials claimed. (BBC)
- NK has confirmed directly to the Trump administration that it is willing to negotiate with the US about potential denuclearization, administration officials said Sun., a signal that the two sides have opened communications ahead of a potential summit between President Trump and KJU next month. (David Nakamura, WaPo)
- The White House is gearing up for President Trump to discuss denuclearization with N.Korean leader KJU at their much anticipated summit next month. However, the definition of "denuclearization" depends on who one asks. To the Trump administration, "denuclearization" means KJU handing over his nuclear weapons and missile systems, and allowing international inspectors to check that the regime is keeping its word. However, to Pyongyang, it means mutual steps to get rid of nuclear weapons, including requiring the US to take down the nuclear umbrella it has put up over SK and Japan. (Anna Fifield, WaPo)
- NK has told the US for the first time that it is prepared to discuss the denuclearisation of the Korea peninsula, paving the way for an historic summit between KJU and Donald Trump, according to US officials. (Telegraph)
- NK has apparently assured the US of its willingness to talk about removing its nuclear weapons during direct contacts between officials of the two countries, according to sources in SK and American media reports. (Kim Rahn, Korea Times)
- Pyongyang has told Washington that it is ready to discuss the denuclearization of the Korean Peninsula when N.Korean leader KJU and President Trump meet, a US official has confirmed to NPR. (Scott Neuman, NPR)
- NK has told the US that its leader, KJU, is willing to discuss denuclearization of the Korean Peninsula, administration officials said on Sun., the first direct confirmation that he intends to participate in an extraordinary meeting with President Trump about his nuclear program.(Julie Hirschfeld Davis, NYTimes)
- NK has told the US for the first time that it is prepared to discuss the denuclearization of the Korean Peninsula when N.Korean leader KJU meets President Donald Trump, a US official said on Sun. (Matt Spetalnick, David Brunnstrom, Reuters)

- NK's Minister of Foreign Affairs Ri Yong-ho has arrived in Moscow on a visit. He arrived at a Moscow airport by a scheduled flight from Ashgabat where he had been on a visit before. (TASS, Korea Times)
- As part of a series of interviews with international affairs experts conducted by Joongang Ilbo, Yang Xiyu, a senior fellow at the China Institute of International Studies, discussed NK's two-track policy of pursuing both economic development and nuclear weapons as a "zero-sum" game. He also discussed the nature of the KJU regime's mistrust of Seoul and Washington, noting that it was a factor that has often been overlooked by the two allies. (Yeh Young-june, Kang Jin-kyu, Joongang Daily)
- N.Korean leader KJU is willing to "complete denuclearize," in return for a security guarantee from the US, Japanese media reported Mon. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- Russian Security Council Secretary Nikolai Patrushev held talks on Mon. with N.Korean Foreign Minister Ri Yong Ho about the options for dialogue between Pyongyang and Seoul, the TASS news agency reported. (Reuters)
- N.Korean leader KJU's recent visit to China and his summit with Chinese President Xi Jinping raised concerns his diplomatic offensive might weaken international sanctions against his nuclear program. We urge Beijing to hold fast to sanctions against NK. China should not send the wrong signal to Pyongyang. Beijing must work with Seoul and Washington to make the Kim regime take the path toward denuclearization and peace. (Korea Times)
- S.Korean forces and the US Special Operations Command are set to begin combined training this week, as part of their regular exercises aimed at deterring military threats from NK. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- The US has confirmed that N.Korean leader KJU is willing to discuss the denuclearization of the Korean Peninsula, a Trump administration official said. (VOA)
- The US has confirmed that KJU is willing to talk to President Donald Trump about getting rid of his nuclear weapons, as SK claimed when it passed along the N.Korean leader's offer for a historic meeting, according to an administration official. (Nick Wadhams, Bloomberg)
- NK confirmed directly to the Donald Trump administration on Sun. that it is willing to negotiate denuclearization, according to multiple White House officials Sun. The WSJ and other media outlets confirmed the report, citing senior administration officials saying that KJU offered assurances to Washington that he willing to discuss the denuclearization of the Korean Peninsula, breaking a long silence from NK on the issue. (Sarah Kim, Kim Hyun-ki, Joongang Daily)
- NK's government has communicated with the US to say that its leader KJU is ready to discuss his nuclear weapons program with President Donald Trump, officials said Sun., increasing the likelihood that the unprecedented summit will actually occur. (Josh Lederman, AP)

Prepared by Jinny Ahn, HRNK Research Intern

——————————————————

Tuesday, April 10, 2018

Trump says N. Korea summit will be in May or early June; Russian Foreign Minister accepts invitation to visit N.Korea; KJU briefs party leaders on future dialogue with US; S.Korea defunds Johns Hopkins USKI after leadership dispute

In North Korea:
(2nd LD) N.K. leader makes first comment on dialogue with U.S. at party meeting (Yonhap, 04/10/2018)
'Air Force Un': As North Korea's leader steps onto international stage, a question over his ability to fly (WaPo, 04/10/2018)
Kim Jong Un briefs party leaders on future dialogue with US (WaPo, 04/09/2018)
Kim tells inner circle his 'profound' plan (Joongang Daily, 04/10/2018)
N.K.'s parliament to meet this week ahead of summit with S. Korea, U.S. (Yonhap, 04/10/2018)
North Korea releases young mother caught trying to defect, in unusual move amid diplomatic thaw (Telegraph, 04/09/2018)
N. Korean diplomat reaffirms commitment to 'phased, synchronized' denuclearization (Yonhap, 04/10/2018)
North Korea falling into financial crisis...hidden reason for peace overture? (Korea Times, 04/10/2018)
North Korea's generational power shift: Kim puts young in important posts (DailyNK, 04/10/2018)
North Korean authorities earn big bucks on construction, work with new rich class (DailyNK, 04/10/2018)
North Koreans dream of unification ahead of inter-Korean summit (DailyNK, 04/10/2018)
Political Bureau Meeting Held (nkleadershipwatch, 04/10/2018)
Readying for Trump, North Korea's Kim engages in steroid diplomacy (CNN, 04/10/2018)
Son of American held in North Korea pins hopes on summit (UPI, 04/10/2018)
The state of the sanctions on North Korea (April 2018): one step forward, one step back...? (nkeconwatch, 04/09/2018)

In South Korea:
Foreign ministers of S. Korea and Japan to meet to discuss bilateral ties, N.K. (Yonhap, 04/10/2018)
Korea forces shutting of Johns Hopkins research center (Joongang Daily, 04/10/2018)
Seoul defunds US NKorea think tank after leadership dispute (WaPo, 04/10/2018)

International:
(2nd LD) Trump: N. Korea summit will be in May or early June (Yonhap, 04/10/2018)
(2nd LD) Perry: Testing, transfer bans first step toward denuclearization of N.K. (Yonhap, 04/10/2018)
820 people from N. Korea obtain citizenship in EU from 2007 to 2016 (Yonhap, 04/10/2018)
Bolton takes the helm on national security at time of tumult (WaPo, 04/09/2018)
Kin of Japanese abducted by N. Korea ask US envoy to help (WaPo, 04/10/2018)

Over 100,000 sign petition to White House for Korea peace treaty (Korea Times, 04/10/2018)
Russia backs U.S.-North Korea contacts, sending foreign minister to Pyongyang (Reuters, 04/10/2018)
Russian Foreign Minister Lavrov accepts invitation to visit North Korea (CNN, 04/10/2018)
Tensions rise over Taiwan Strait as U.S. and China harden positions (WaPo, 04/10/2018)
The best deal Trump can hope for from North Korea is a flawed one. Here's why that's okay. (WaPo, 04/09/2018)
Trump optimistic about North Korea summit but suggests it could slip to June (WaPo, 04/09/2018)
Trump predicts 'de-nuking' deal ahead (Joongang Daily, 04/10/2018)
Trump says will meet with North Korean leader in May or early June (Reuters, 04/09/2018)
U.S. envoy meets families of Japanese abducted by North Korea (Reuters, 04/10/2018)
U.S. should get N.K. commitment to abandon nukes: Victor Cha (Yonhap, 04/10/2018)
Xi Jinping Urges Dialogue, Not Confrontation, After Trump Seeks Tariffs (NYT, 04/09/2018)

In North Korea:

- KJU has talked about prospects for dialogue with the US at a key party meeting, state media said Tuesday, in his first official comment on a planned summit with President Trump. (Yonhap)
- As KJU prepares for a possible summit with Trump next month, it's not clear that he possesses another piece of crucial hardware for the aspiring global negotiator — an airplane that could reliably fly him across the Pacific Ocean, or to Europe, without stopping. (David Nakamura, WaPo)
- KJU briefed top ruling party officials on his vision for the future direction of dialogue with the US and his upcoming summit with S.K.'s president, the North's official media reported Tuesday. (Eric Talmadge, AP)
- KJU made a "profound analysis and appraisal" of the recent developments in inter-Korean ties and the prospect of N.K.-US dialogue during a recent political meeting. (Lee Sung-eun, Joongang Daily)
- N.K.'s rubber-stamp parliament is set to hold its key meeting this week amid attention over what messages it could unveil to S.K. and the US ahead of its summits with them. (Yonhap)
- N.K. has released a young mother who was expected to be sentenced to life in a prison camp, in an unusual move that offers rare hope for a potential improvement in human rights during an ongoing thaw of international diplomatic ties. (Nicola Smith, Telegraph)
- An N.K. diplomat reaffirmed Tuesday that Pyongyang remains committed to denuclearizing the peninsula through progressive and simultaneous actions. (Yonhap)
- N.K. is suffering a cash crunch due to international sanctions and could soon face a currency crisis, according to experts. KJU's recent visit to Beijing was likely aimed at seeking sanctions relief and easing cash drainage in the reclusive regime. (Kim Jae-kyoung, Korea Times)
- Anti-espionage officers, operating under the auspices of the Korean People's Army Defense Security Command, is carrying out a generational transition by bringing in college graduates in their twenties to join its ranks. (Lee Sang Yong, DailyNK)

- The N.K. authorities are teaming up with the country's donju (North Korea's wealthy entrepreneurial class) to generate profits in the real estate and home construction industries. (Moon Dong Hui, DailyNK)
- Unification with the South has become a recent hot topic of conversation among ordinary N.Koreans following performances by S.K. musicians in Pyongyang last week. (Kang Mi Jin, DailyNK)
- A meeting of the Workers' Party of Korea Political Bureau was held on April 9. The meeting was held to formulate and authorize policies prior to the convocation of the sixth session of the 13th Supreme People's Assembly on April 11. (nkleadershipwatch)
- A summons from Beijing brought KJU out of isolation into his first foreign foray since taking power. This week, his foreign minister is visiting Moscow to meet with Russia's top diplomat, Sergei Lavrov. (Jamie Tarabay, CNN)
- As the Trump administration prepares to meet with KJU, the son of a U.S. citizen detained in the reclusive country hopes the summit will lead to his father's freedom. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- Judging from recent history, China's sanctions enforcement would likely be a temporary phenomenon, probably only lasting long enough to give the "right" impression to the US and the international community. (Benjamin Katzeff Silberstein, nkeconwatch)

In South Korea:

- The top diplomats of S.K. and Japan will meet this week to exchange views on the N.K. nuclear problem and other issues of mutual concern, Seoul's foreign ministry said. (Yonhap)
- Johns Hopkins University is expected to shut down its 12-year-old U.S.-Korea Institute (USKI) next month amid controversy over the S.K. government cutting off its funding. (Jung Hyo-sik, Kim Jun-young, Sarah Kim, Joongang Daily)
- A U.S. university institute at the cutting edge of research on N.K. says the S.K. government has terminated its funding, forcing it to close after it rejected demands to change its leadership. (Matthew Pennington, AP)

International:

- President Trump said Monday he plans to meet with N.K. leader KJU next month or in early June to "hopefully" reach a deal on denuclearizing the regime. (Yonhap)
- William Perry, former U.S. defense secretary, said Tuesday a ban on N.K.'s nuclear and missile tests and prevention of any transfer of related technologies would be the first step toward achieving the goal of denuclearization. (Yonhap)
- A total of 820 people from N.K. acquired citizenship of member countries of the EU in the 2007-2016 period, with nearly 90 percent of them living in Germany and Britain. (Yonhap)
- Preparations for a high-risk N.K. summit are barreling forward, and the national security team is holding its breath to see whether their new leader will be a shock to the system. (Josh Lederman and Catherine Lucey, AP)

- Families of Japanese abducted by N.K. decades ago have asked the U.S. ambassador to Japan to urge President Trump to discuss ways to win their loved ones' return at his summit with the North's leader. (Mari Yamaguchi, AP)
- An online petition posted on the White House website calling for a peace treaty with N.K. has gathered over 100,000 signatures in about three weeks since its posting _ the minimum number to get a response from the White House. (Park Ji-won, Korea Times)
- Russian Foreign Minister Sergei Lavrov held talks with his N.K. counterpart, Ri Yong Ho, on Tuesday, and said afterward that Moscow supported contacts between N.K. and the US. (Reuters)
- Russian Foreign Minister Sergey Lavrov will visit Pyongyang after accepting a formal invitation from the country's top diplomat, the latest in a series of outreaches by N.K. (Nada Bashir, Lauren Kent and Ben Westcott, CNN)
- As President Trump battles it out with China over trade and the mood in Washington sours toward Beijing, there is a growing fear that Taiwan will end up suffering the consequences. (Simon Denyer, WaPo)
- For N.K., surrendering its nuclear program does not seem to be on the table. The only realistic option is a moratorium on nuclear tests and missile launches. No matter what, the North will try its hardest to keep some of the nuclear weapons they have already produced. (Andrei Lankov, WaPo)
- President Trump expressed optimism Monday about his proposed summit with KJU, saying it will take place in late May or early June, the most specific time frame the White House has yet offered. (Anne Gearan, WaPo)
- President Trump said Monday he planned to meet N.K. leader KJU next month or in early June, adding he hoped to "make a deal" on denuclearization. (Sarah Kim, Joongang Daily)
- President Trump said on Monday he planned to meet N.K. leader KJU next month or in early June and hoped the discussions would ultimately lead to an end of the North's nuclear weapons program. (Steve Holland, Christine Kim, Reuters)
- The U.S. ambassador to Japan on Tuesday met the families of people abducted by N.K. decades ago to train its spies, just a week before Japan's prime minister is expected to raise the emotive topic at a summit with President Trump. (Elaine Lies, Reuters)
- The US should get N.K. to commit to abandoning all nuclear weapons and nuclear programs, not just the broadly defined "denuclearization" of the Korean Peninsula, Victor Cha said Monday. (Yonhap)
- Xi Jinping on Tuesday portrayed China as committed to opening its economy as he presented an alternative vision to President Trump's calls for tariffs and restricting trade, urging "dialogue rather than confrontation." (Alexandra Stevenson, NYT)

Prepared by James Park, HRNK Research Intern

Wednesday, April 11, 2018

Human rights not on agenda for upcoming Moon-Kim summit: Cheong Wa Dae; Denuclearization to top agenda of Trump-Kim meeting, human rights could be discussed; Nuclear Deal Could Increase Risk for N.Korean Defectors

In North Korea:
[Photo] Cadres' attire at mobilization draws ire of ordinary North Koreans (DailyNK, 04/11/2018)
Dealing with 'traitors,' North Korean authorities reunite defectors for a price (DailyNK, 04/11/2018)
N. Korea appears to be expanding fuel storage facility at Nampho oil terminal pier: report (Yonhap, 04/11/2018)
N. Korea reports its foreign minister meets Russian counterpart (Yonhap, 04/11/2018)
North Korea falling into financial crisis... hidden reason for peace overture? (Korea Times, 04/10/2018)
North Korea parliament to convene to approve national agenda (WaPo, 04/11/2018)
Pyongyang Audiences of South Korean Performers Limited to Elites (RFA, 04/10/2018)
Shifting definition of private ownership reflects economic change in North Korea (DailyNK, 04/11/2018)
State of reproductive rights remains dire in North Korea (DailyNK, 04/11/2018)

In South Korea:
Minister stresses int'l cooperation for N.K. denuclearization (Yonhap, 04/11/2018)
Moon calls for restrained efforts for successful summit with N. Korean leader (Yonhap, 04/11/2018)
Moon's mentor vows to overcome USKI fiasco (Korea Times, 04/11/2018)
Seoul closely watching N.K. parliament session ahead of summits (Yonhap, 04/11/2018)
Seoul told US think tank to fire 2 officials (Korea Times, 04/11/2018)
South Korea official expresses 'regret' over dispute with U.S. think tank (UPI, 04/11/2018)
THAAD talks break down between activists, South Korea military (UPI, 04/11/2018)
US-NK summit has historic meaning: Moon (Korea Times, 04/11/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
Human rights not on agenda for upcoming Moon-Kim summit: Cheong Wa Dae (Yonhap, 04/11/2018)

International:
(LEAD) S. Korean, Japanese FMs voice hope for cooperation on N.K. and other issues (Yonhap, 04/11/2018)
(LEAD) Senior Chinese official to visit N.K. leading art troupe (Yonhap, 04/11/2018)
38 North Will Continue (38 North, 04/10/2018)
Banking on top-down method (Joongang Daily, 04/10/2018)
Britain sends third warship to Asia Pacific to monitor North Korea (Independent, 04/11/2018)
Britain sends warships to Asia to monitor North Korean trade (WaPo, 04/11/2018)
British warship to help police North Korean sanctions (Reuters, 04/11/2018)

Denuclearization to top agenda of Trump-Kim meeting, human rights could be discussed (Yonhap, 04/11/2018)
Embassy, State Dept. set up a kind of hotline (Joongang Daily, 04/11/2018)
High-ranking Chinese diplomat to visit North Korea (WaPo, 04/11/2018)
HMS Sutherland to monitor for North Korea trade at sea (BBC, 04/11/2018)
Institutional censorship (Joongang Daily, 04/10/2018)
Japan's top diplomat in South Korea to discuss North Korea, abductions (UPI, 04/10/2018)
Japan's top envoy visits Korea after a long time (Joongang Daily, 04/11/2018)
Korea think tank at U.S. university to close after Seoul withdraws funding (WaPo, 04/11/2018)
Lavrov-Ri talks show depth of Russia-North Korea ties (Deutsche Welle, 04/11/2018)
Moon urges efforts to improve S. Korea-Japan ties (Yonhap, 04/11/2018)
North Korea and Trump's dangerous perception gap on denuclearization (The Japan Times, 04/11/2018)
Nuclear Deal Could Increase Risk for North Korean Defectors (VOA, 04/10/2018)
Relatives of Japanese abducted by North Korea urge US to raise issue in Trump-Kim summit (Telegraph, 04/11/2018)
Report: Senior Chinese official may hold talks with Kim Jong Un (UPI, 04/10/2018)
Senior Chinese official to lead art troupe to North Korea (Reuters, 04/10/2018)
Son of American held in North Korea pins hopes on summit (UPI, 04/10/2018)
The US and South Korean military appear to be trying not to give North Korea an excuse for more provocations (Business Insider, 04/11/2018)
Tokyo diplomat hopeful for cooperation on North Korea crisis (UPI, 04/11/2018)
Trump names Admiral Davidson to lead Pacific Command (Joongang Daily, 04/11/2018)
U.S. and North Korea in 'Detailed' Talks on Trump-Kim Meeting, South Says (NYT*imes*,04/11/2018)
U.S. think tank to close in May following Seoul's decision to halt funding: report (Yonhap, 04/10/2018)
US-North Korea talks have many obstacles to overcome - starting with where to meet (Korea Times, 04/11/2018)

In North Korea:

- Central government officials in NK were recently depicted in state media participating in tree-planting mobilizations as part of KJU's "reforestation plan." But while this sort of propaganda is commonplace in NK, it has been reported that ordinary residents were quick to notice a staging mistake that inspired a new round of criticisms. (Kang Mi Jin, DailyNK)
- N.Korean trade agencies deployed abroad are arranging reunions between N.Korean citizens and their defector family members living abroad. In conducting these activities, the N.Korean authorities have been able to amass significant profits, reports an inside source. (Kang Mi Jin, DailyNK)
- NK has shown signs of expanding an oil storage facility at an oil terminal pier in the western port city of Nampho, Voice of America reported Wed. (Yonhap)
- NK's state media on Wed. reported Foreign Minister Ri Yong-ho's meeting with his Russian counterpart, Sergei Lavrov, earlier this week. (Yonhap)

- NK is suffering a cash crunch due to international sanctions and could soon face a currency crisis, experts on NK said Tues. They said leader KJU's recent visit to Beijing was aimed at seeking sanctions relief and easing cash drainage in the reclusive regime. (Kim Jae-kyoung, Korea Times)
- NK's parliament was scheduled to convene on Wed. amid a series of diplomatic moves by leader KJU that could have a major impact on the direction the country takes in the months and possibly years ahead. (Eric Talmadge, AP)
- Concerts given by S.Korean performers earlier this month in the N.Korean capital were opened only to top government officials and the country's privileged class in a move aimed at blocking wider exposure to "capitalist culture," sources in the isolated country say. (Hyemin Sohn, Yong Jae Mok, Leejin Jun, Richard Finney, RFA)
- The perception of ownership in NK is changing. Although initially restricted to individual consumption, the changes in perspective are now spreading wider into economic activities related to production. (Na Jung Won, DailyNK)
- Lately, women giving up their children is a problem on the rise in NK. It's being reported that after giving birth to unwanted children, mothers are abandoning them in the streets, and the N.Korean government has yet to implement an effective countermeasure to the phenomenon. (Unification Media Group, DailyNK)

In South Korea:

- SK's unification minister on Wed. stressed the importance of international cooperation in resolving NK's nuclear problem and improving inter-Korean ties. (Yonhap)
- While meeting with members of a preparation committee for the upcoming inter-Korean summit, President Moon called for ambitious but restrained efforts on Wed. to ensure the success of his upcoming summit with N.Korean leader KJU. Moon stated that the meeting will only mark the first step in what he called a great transition toward peace. (Yonhap)
- The Moon administration is determined to expand cooperation with US experts about Korean Peninsula issues, despite a recent controversy over the government cutting funds for the US-Korea Institute (USKI), Seong Kyoung-ryung, chairman of the National Research Council for Economics, Humanities and Social Sciences (NRC), said Wed. (Kim Rahn, Korea Times)
- SK's unification ministry said Wed. it is watching whether NK's parliament will unveil key policy directions at its annual session ahead of the country's summits with SK and the US. (Yonhap)
- The government pressured the US-Korea Institute (USKI) to fire two top-ranking officials and follow operational guidelines seeking to take control of the Washington-based private think tank, a USKI source said, Wed. (Kim Jae-kyoung, Korea Times)
- A state-run S.Korean think tank expressed "regret" on Wed. following a decision from directors at the US-Korea Institute at Johns Hopkins School of Advanced International Studies to close most operations after the government's decision to pull funding. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)

- A S.Korean military decision to begin additional construction at the anti-missile defense base in Seongju may lead to clashes between protesters and army personnel, according to local reports. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- The planned Washington-Pyongyang summit will have historic meaning just by taking place and a good outcome for permanent peace on the Korean Peninsula is expected, as the two sides show strong will for it, President Moon said Wed. (Kim Rahn, Korea Times)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- Human rights issues will not be a major agenda item for S.Korean President Moon's talks with N.Korean leader KJU, at least for now, an official from Moon's presidential office Cheong Wa Dae said Wed. (Yonhap)

International:

- The top diplomats of SK and Japan expressed hope on Wed. for strengthening cooperation in resolving NK's nuclear issue and establishing lasting peace in the region. (Yonhap)
- A senior Chinese official will visit NK, leading an art troupe as Pyongyang and Beijing have agreed to strengthen cultural exchanges, NK's state media said Wed. (Yonhap)
- Following the announcement that the Korea Institute for International Economic Policy (KIEP) is ending the funding to 38 North's parent institution, the US-Korea Institute at the Johns Hopkins School of Advanced International Studies, Joel Wit's statement regarding the future of 38 North can be found in this editor's column. Wit is the founder of 38 North. (Joel Wit, 38 North)
- The Libyan model is an invitation to KJU to come to a duel unarmed and is an archetype of a form defining content. The closest thing to it is the top-down method. At the inter-Korean summit, KJU can declare his will for denuclearization and agree on a framework of inter-Korean reconciliation and cooperation. Then, working-level officials can negotiate the overall process of denuclearization in feasible stages. When the process hits a roadblock, the leaders will spearhead breakthroughs. A joint economic entity of SK and NK could be a great incentive SK can offer in return for denuclearization. (Kim Young-hie, Joongang Daily)
- The UK has deployed a third navy warship to the Asia-Pacific as diplomatic tensions with NK continue to rise. HMS Albion will join HMS Sutherland and will help enforce UN sanctions against NK, as well as take part in joint training and exercises with regional allies. (Jamie Johnson, Independent)
- A British warship has arrived in Japan to join international efforts to enforce sanctions on NK by monitoring any prohibited trading by the country at sea. (Mari Yamaguchi, WaPo)
- A British warship “changed its deployment” and arrived in Japan on Wed. to join efforts to police UN sanctions imposed on NK over its nuclear and missile programs. (Reuters)
- The denuclearization of the Korean Peninsula will top the agenda for the upcoming meeting between US President Donald Trump and N.Korean leader KJU, but NK's human rights situation could also be discussed, the State Department said Tues. (Yonhap)

- The S.Korean Embassy in Washington and US Department of State established what they call a hotline system to regularize meetings in advance of the upcoming inter-Korean and US-North summits, according to a senior government official Wed. (Joongang Daily)
- China said Wed. that a high-ranking diplomat plans to travel to Pyongyang later this week amid a flurry of diplomacy following N.Korean leader KJU's surprise visit to Beijing.(Associated Press)
- A Royal Navy warship with close links to the Highlands is to join in efforts to enforce international trade sanctions on NK. The Type 23 frigate is to monitor illegal trading at sea by NK. (BBC)
- It may be an infringement of academic freedom. That is how some Americans view the attempt to influence the leadership of the US-Korea Institute (USKI) at Johns Hopkins School of Advanced International Studies (SAIS). They ask why the liberal administration censors the academic position of an US institute. Regardless of their liberal and conservative tendencies, experts feel the same way about the issue. For example, Joshua Stanton, a lawyer with a hawkish view on NK, wrote on his blog, One Free Korea, that SK's liberal government was trying to censor the NK policy debate in the US. Stanton wrote, "Paradoxically, USKI is best known for publishing the reliably soft-line, anti-anti-N.Korean, pro-'engagement' 38 North blog. It's the last outlet you'd think Moon's people would mess with." (Jung Hyo-sik, Joongang Daily)
- Japanese Foreign Minister Taro Kono arrived in SK late Tues. to meet with his S.Korean counterpart Kang Kyung-hwa for discussions on NK. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- S.Korean Foreign Minister Kang Kyung-wha and her Japanese counterpart Taro Kono stressed the importance of the upcoming summits involving NK in achieving the joint goal of denuclearization and establishment of permanent peace on the Korean Peninsula in bilateral talks held in Seoul Wed. (Sarah Kim, Joongang Daily)
- The US-Korea Institute at the renowned Johns Hopkins School of Advanced International Studies—the only think tank in Washington devoted to Korean Peninsula issues—will close next month after a dispute over funding and academic independence with the government in Seoul. (Anna Fifield, WaPo)
- As a series of key international summits draw closer, Pyongyang is seeking support from a traditional ally, while Russia is keen to play a significant role on the international stage. (Julian Ryall, Deutsche Welle)
- S.Korean President Moon called for efforts to increase cooperation between his country and Japan on Wed., calling it a necessary step to ensure success in his upcoming summit with N.Korean leader KJU. (Yonhap)
- Washington's acknowledgment this week that Pyongyang is ready to discuss the "denuclearization of the Korean Peninsula" may sound like a step toward ridding NK of its hard-won nuclear weapons, but experts and observers say such a move is extremely unlikely in the near-term and highlights a potentially dangerous perception gap between the two countries. (Jesse Johnson, The Japan Times)
- China's continued forced deportation of N.Korean defectors, who face imprisonment or even death upon return to the repressive state, has received muted international criticism, as diplomatic efforts have intensified to negotiate a denuclearization deal with Pyongyang. (Brian Padden, VOA)

- Families of Japanese abducted by NK to train their spies have made an emotional appeal for the issue to be tackled at the forthcoming US-NK summit. (Danielle Demetriou, Telegraph)
- NK's state-run Korean Central News Agency (KCNA) said Wed. that a Chinese cultural delegation will visit Pyongyang to attend the 31st Apr. Spring Friendship Art Festival which runs from Wed. through next Tues. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- Senior Chinese diplomat Song Tao will lead a Chinese art troupe to NK, Chinese state media said on Wed., in a further sign of improving ties after N.Korean leader KJU's visited Beijing last month. (Reuters)
- As the Trump administration prepares to meet with N.Korean leader KJU, the son of a US citizen detained in the reclusive country hopes the summit will lead to his father's freedom. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- Amid the thaw in relations and upcoming summits between NK and the US, news coverage of US-S.Korean joint exercises near the N.Korean border have been unusually muted. (David Choi, Business Insider)
- Japanese Foreign Minister Taro Kono expressed hope that Seoul and Tokyo would closely cooperate to bring about the denuclearization of NK and establish peace in the region. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- President Donald Trump has nominated Navy Adm. Philip S. Davidson to lead the Pacific Command, the Pentagon said in a statement Tues., in another reshuffle from Washington that could affect highly anticipated talks between the US and NK. (Lee Chul-jae, Joongang Daily)
- The US and NK have been negotiating with "will and sincerity" over the details of the planned talks between President Trump and NK's leader, KJU, President Moon of SK said on Wed. (Choe Sang-hun, NYTimes)
- A US think tank, noted for its research on NK, plans to close next month following the S.Korean government's decision to cut off funding, a news report said Tues. Robert Gallucci, chairman of the US-Korea Institute (USKI) at John Hopkins University's School of Advanced International Studies, told the Associated Press that the institute will cease operating after it rejected Seoul's demand that it replace its leadership. (Yonhap)
- US and N.Korean contacts, in secret talks about the time and place of a summit between President Donald Trump and NK's KJU, are at odds on at least one critical question. (Donald Kirk, Korea Times)

Prepared by Jinny Ahn, HRNK Research Intern

Thursday, April 12, 2018

Kim Jong-un 'sincere and genuine' about talks, S.Korean minister says; S.Korea's national security adviser in US to meet Bolton; Moon, Xi and Abe to meet in Japan after inter-Korean talks

Top News:
The Cold Frontier, Part Three: A journey along North Korea's edge (Reuters, 04/12/2018)

In North Korea:
(3rd LD) N.K. parliament meets in leader's absence ahead of summits (Yonhap, 04/12/2018)
Construction is booming in North Korea, but who's paying? (WaPo, 04/12/2018)
North Korea has a big tuberculosis problem. It's about to get worse (WaPo, 04/12/2018)
North Korea's rubber stamp parliament convenes in leader's absence (Reuters, 04/12/2018)
North Korea skips mention of nuclear weapons at Supreme People's Assembly (UPI, 04/12/2018)
North Korea's Supreme People's Assembly Session: Economic reporting (nkeconwatch, 04/12/2018)
North Korean Workers in Russia Warned Against 'Anti-Socialist' South Korean Culture (RFA, 04/11/2018)
Over 1,000 North Korean workers slated for dispatch to China (DailyNK, 04/12/2018)

In South Korea:
(LEAD) Seoul closely watching N.K. parliament session ahead of summits (Yonhap, 04/12/2018)
Activists accuse South Korean president of 'sacrificing' millions in the North for Kim Jong-un summit (Telegraph, 04/12/2018)
Cheong Wa Dae to daily monitor preparations for summit with N. Korea (Yonhap, 04/12/2018)
Kim Jong Un 'sincere and genuine' about talks, South Korean minister says (CNN, 04/12/2018)
Moon: 'Inter-Korean relations depend on Washington-Pyongyang ties' (Korea Times, 04/12/2018)
Moon says success of upcoming summit with N. Korea requires all-out efforts (Yonhap, 04/12/2018)
No need for protraction (Joongang Daily, 04/12/2018)
S. Korean culture minister says Kim Jong-un 'sincere' about improving inter-Korean ties (Yonhap, 04/12/2018)
S. Korean foreign minister to visit Kazakhstan, Uzbekistan (Yonhap, 04/12/2018)
US-NK summit will be historic event: Moon (Korea Times, 04/11/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
[NORTH KOREA WATCHER'S VIEW] 'Top-down' approach may help, says Isozaki (Joongang Daily, 04/12/2018)
Reshuffle in Pyongyang hints at Kim's summit plans (Joongang Daily, 04/12/2018)
What Does Denuclearization Mean to North Korea? (VOA, 04/11/2018)

International:
Allies hold high-level talks ahead of summits (Korea Times, 04/12/2018)
Carter to Trump: shun military action, keep country at peace (WaPo, 04/12/2018)
HMS Sutherland arrives in Japan in effort to curb North Korea's evasion of sanctions (Telegraph, 04/12/2018)
Mike Pompeo to tell Senate soft US policy on Russia 'now over' (Guardian, 04/11/2018)
Moon, Xi and Abe to meet in Japan after inter-Korean talks (Joongang Daily, 04/12/2018)
South Korea's national security adviser in U.S. to meet Bolton: officials (Reuters, 04/11/2018)
The Latest: Pompeo isn't seeking regime change in NKorea (WaPo, 04/12/2018)

Trump Pick for Top Diplomat Faces Confirmation Hearing (VOA, 04/12/2018)
Trump should tell Kim U.S. is not abandoning S. Korea: Hill (Yonhap, 04/12/2018)
Trump to demand North Korea's denuclearization by year end: report (Korea Times, 04/12/2018)
US-South Korea Military Exercises Minimize Public Show of Force (VOA, 04/12/2018)
US to open embassy in Pyongyang after Trump-Kim summit: report (Korea Times, 04/12/2018)

Top News:

- In N.K., each corps in the military and security ministry are involved in gold-mining, more like smuggling, searching for gold in rivers and streams on the Chinese side of the border in order to procure luxury goods for the Kim regime, wrote Kim Kwang-jin, an N.K. defector, in his HRNK report "Gulag, Inc.: The Use of Forced Labor in North Korea's Export Industries." (Sue-Lin Wong, Damir Sagolj, Reuters)

In North Korea:

- N.K. has convened a key parliamentary meeting without its leader KJU in attendance, state media said Thursday, ahead of his planned summits with S.K. and the US. (Yonhap)
- N.K. is racing forward with major development projects some experts believe are aimed at expanding a market for rented or privately owned real estate to help fortify the finances of KJU's regime against the bite of sanctions. (Eric Talmadge, AP)
- A Bloomberg News report this week warned of the threat of N.K.'s "other weapon" — tuberculosis. In February, the Global Fund to Fight AIDS, Tuberculosis, and Malaria announced that it would suspend grants to combat tuberculosis and malaria in N.K. by June 30. (Jeremy Youde, WaPo)
- N.K.'s Supreme People's Assembly convened and discussed state finances, state media said on Thursday, but leader KJU appeared to be absent from the proceedings. (Reuters)
- N.K. avoided references to its nuclear weapons program in official statements as the S.K. government monitors the regime ahead of an inter-Korea summit in April. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- On Wednesday, N.K.'s rubber-stamp parliament held a session in Pyongyang. Some news media has focused on KJU's absence from the session, but some interesting reporting on the economic situation came out of the session. (Benjamin Katzeff Silberstein, nkeconwatch)
- N.Koreans working as contract laborers in Russia are being warned by authorities in Pyongyang against exposure to S.K. culture, as the two Koreas prepare for summit talks between the countries' national leaders later this month. (RFA)
- Over 1,000 N.K. laborers are preparing to be dispatched to work assignments in Dandong, China. This follows sightings earlier this month of over 400 N.K. workers in the Chinese city of Helong to the east, together suggesting the two countries may be cooperating to restart joint business ventures in China. (Ha Yoon Ah, DailyNK)

In South Korea:

- S.K.'s unification ministry said Wednesday it is watching whether N.K.'s parliament will unveil key policy directions at its annual session ahead of the country's summits with the South and the US. (Yonhap)
- Human rights activists have reacted angrily to confirmation from S.K.'s presidential office that the well-being of millions of N.Koreans will not be a significant part of the agenda when Moon meets KJU. (Julian Ryall, Telegraph)
- The S.K. presidential office Cheong Wa Dae is set to launch a new situation room on Thursday to daily check its preparations for the upcoming summit between President Moon and KJU. (Yonhap)
- KJU is "completely different from the person featured in news reports," according to a S.K. official who joined him to watch a K-Pop concert in Pyongyang last month. (Paula Hancocks and James Griffiths, CNN)
- Inter-Korean relations cannot improve without an agreement between N.K. and the US on the North's denuclearization, S.K. President Moon said Thursday. (Kim Rahn, Korea Times)
- President Moon sought to rally public support for his upcoming dialogue with KJU Thursday, saying it would require all-out efforts on all sides to ensure success in the rare opportunity to ease tension between the two Koreas. (Yonhap)
- There is no need to provoke N.K. ahead of summits. But the threats from N.K.'s nuclear weapons and missiles have not been addressed. The government must not protract follow-up steps needed for the full operation of the antimissile battery in S.K.. (Joongang Daily)
- S.K. Culture Minister Do Jong-whan said Thursday that KJU is serious about trying to improve inter-Korean ties, adding that it is a cause for optimism with the Seoul-Pyongyang summit just days away. (Yonhap)
- S.K. Foreign Minister Kang Kyung-wha will visit two central Asian countries next week to discuss bilateral ties and cooperation. (Yonhap)
- The planned Washington-Pyongyang summit will have historic meaning just by taking place and a good outcome for permanent peace on the Korean Peninsula is expected, as the two sides show strong will for it, S.K. President Moon said. (Kim Rahn, Korea Times)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- The N.K.-U.S. summit may produce substantive results which can even lead to a "paradigm shift," as both KJU and Trump are leaders who want quick, top-down results, a Japanese N.K. expert Atsuhito Isozaki said. (Yoon Seol-young, Sarah Kim, Joongang Daily)
- N.K.'s rubber-stamp legislature reshuffled the country's powerful State Affairs Commission on Wednesday in apparent preparation for summits with leaders of S.K. and the US. (Lee Sung-eun, Jeong Yong-soo, Joongang Daily)
- At the upcoming inter-Korean summit, S.K. should seek a clear understanding of N.K.'s interpretation of denuclearization as a way to pave the way for the US to discuss denuclearization at the anticipated Trump-Kim summit, said former U.S. officials who have dealt with N.K. extensively. (Soyoung Ahn, VOA)

International:

- S.K. National Security Office chief Chung Eui-yong sat down with his new U.S. counterpart John Bolton in Washington D.C. on Thursday to map out a picture of N.K. denuclearization ahead of scheduled summits. (Kim Bo-eun, Korea Times)
- Former President Jimmy Carter warned that President Trump should steer clear of any military action involving Syria or other world hot spots like N.K., Russia, and avoid a nuclear attack at all costs. (Bill Barrow, AP)
- The Royal Navy's HMS Sutherland docked in the Japanese port of Yokosuka and will take part in operations to combat efforts by N.K. to get around UN sanctions of banned commodities, including fuel and components for the regime's nuclear and long-range missile programmes. (Julian Ryall, Telegraph)
- Mike Pompeo, the CIA director picked to be the next secretary of state, will tell the Senate that years of soft US policy toward Russia are "now over". (Guardian)
- The Blue House confirmed Wednesday that the leaders of S.K., China and Japan will hold a trilateral summit in Japan next month after S.K. President Moon and KJU sit for their first inter-Korean summit. (Kang Jin-kyu, Joongang Daily)
- S.K.'s national security adviser was in Washington on Wednesday for his first meeting with his new American counterpart, John Bolton, U.S. officials said, amid preparations for separate U.S. and S.K. summits with N.K.. (Reuters)
- The current CIA Director Mike Pompeo says he has never advocated for regime change in N.K, but the Trump administration has responsibility to prevent KJU being able threaten the U.S. with a nuclear weapon. (AP)
- President Trump's nominee to be Secretary of State, CIA Director Mike Pompeo, will appear before a Senate Committee for his confirmation hearing Thursday, where he will emphasize a harder line towards Russia. (VOA)
- President Trump should make it clear to KJU that the U.S. is not withdrawing its military presence from S.K., a former U.S. ambassador said Wednesday. (Yonhap)
- The US and N.K. are in "last-minute" negotiations on the agenda for historic talks between Trump and KJU, according to the Chosun Ilbo daily, citing sources in Washington. (Park Si-soo, Korea Times)
- The annual US–ROK joint military exercises have historically been a very public demonstration of force intended to counter N.K.'s aggressive nuclear and missile tests. But as diplomatic summits with N.K. approach, media coverage of the drills has so far been limited. (Brian Padden, Hyung Jin Kim, VOA)
- The Trump administration is now detailing a compensation package for the KJU regime that would boost economic and diplomatic sectors. In addition, if the Trump-Kim summit is a success, the US is willing to open a liaison office and an embassy in Pyongyang, and start humanitarian aid, according to the Dong-A Ilbo daily. (Park Si-soo, Korea Times)

Prepared by James Park, HRNK Research Intern

————————————————

Friday, April 13, 2018

Pompeo rules out giving rewards to N. Korea before denuclearization; N. Korea told Helsinki meeting that 6-party talks are dead: think tank

In North Korea:
Analyst: Sanctions pressure on North Korea is working (UPI, 04/13/2018)
As sanctions bite, rental market grows in North Korea (*Daily*NK, 04/12/2018)
Central Report Meeting Marks KJU's Appointment to Top Jobs (NK Leadership Watch, 04/13/2018)
Economic development key focus in North Korean rubber stamp parliamentary session (*Daily*NK, 04/13/2018)
Kim Jong Un's love of K-pop signals progress, analysts say (UPI, 04/13/2018)
North Korea's construction boom may build more than skyline (WaPo, 04/13/2018)
North Koreans alter South Korean song lyrics to create defector anthem (*Daily*NK, 04/13/2018)
Report sheds light on severity of sexual assault in North Korean military (*Daily*NK, 04/13/2018)

In South Korea:
(3rd LD) Moon urges bipartisan support for success of upcoming summit with N. Korea (Yonhap, 04/13/2018)
Defense ministry briefs foreign military attaches on latest inter-Korean exchanges (Yonhap, 04/13/2018)
Moon talks summit with Hong (Joongang Ilbo, 04/13/2018)
(News Focus) Moon struggles to rein in too high expectations ahead of summit with Kim (Yonhap, 04/13/2018)
S. Korean culture minister says Kim Jong-un 'sincere' about improving inter-Korean ties (Yonhap, 04/12/2018)
THAAD-related costs may be covered using Seoul's share of defense costs with U.S.: ministry (Yonhap, 04/13/2018)
When unification is a tough sell (Joongang Ilbo, 04/13/2018)

International:
(LEAD) Pompeo rules out giving rewards to N. Korea before denuclearization (Yonhap, 04/12/2018)
Donald Trump 'to tell Kim Jong-un to scrap nuclear arsenal within year in return for US embassy in Pyongyang (Telegraph, 04/13/2018)
Experts: Failure at North Korea summit could lead to armed conflict (UPI, 04/12/2018)
Ho and Kim Jong-un (Joongang Ilbo, 04/13/2018)
Mike Pompeo says he could imagine US ground invasion of North Korea during nomination grilling (Telegraph, 04/12/2018)
N. Korea told Helsinki meeting that 6-party talks are dead: think tank (Yonhap, 04/13/2018)
No reward for North Korea without irreversible denuclearization: Pompeo (Reuters, 04/13/2018)

Pompeo plays down hopes for comprehensive deal at NK summit (WaPo, 04/12/2018)
Report: Chinese Communist Party official arrives in North Korea (UPI, 04/13/2018)
S. Korea, U.S. in full agreement on efforts to denuclearize N. Korea: security adviser (Yonhap, 04/13/2018)
'Six-party talks are over' (Korea Times, 04/13/2018)
Trump says meeting with Kim will be 'terrific' (Yonhap, 04/12/2018)
U.N. needs $111 mln budget for humanitarian aid to N. Korea this year: report (Yonhap, 04/13/2018)

In North Korea:

- International sanctions against NK might have played the principal role in pushing the regime to seek a way out of isolation, according to a S. Korean economist. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- N. Koreans in agricultural regions are reportedly renting out their homes for monthly fees to help cope with the knock-on effects of international sanctions targeting the regime for its nuclear and missile development. (Lee Sang-yong, DailyNK)
- A central report meeting marking the sixth anniversary of KJU's assumption of the top positions in the Workers' Party of Korea and DPRK Government was held on April 11 at the People's Palace of Culture in Pyongyang. (NK Leadership Watch)
- "Economic self-reliance" and "improvements to the lives of the people" were some of the key areas of focus for NK during the Sixth Session of the 13th Supreme People's Assembly on Wed. showing signs of a shift from nuclear weapons towards economic matters. (Ha Yoon-ah, DailyNK)
- Recent concerts by S. Korean pop artists in Pyongyang show KJU's appreciation of pop culture and the performing arts, as well as signal a generational shift, analysts say. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- NK is racing forward with major development projects some experts believe are aimed at expanding a market for rented or privately owned real estate to help fortify the finances of KJU's regime against the bite of sanctions over its nuclear program. (Eric Talmadge, AP)
- 'Unconditional' by Park Sang Chul has been gaining in popularity in the N. Korean border region, report sources inside the country. However, instead of singing the original lyrics, some residents have reportedly changed the words to reflect their "longing for unification."(Lee Sang-yong, DailyNK)
- A report from the Database Center for N. Korean Human Rights (NKDB) was compiled from in-depth defector interviews and published to shed light on human rights abuses occurring in the N. Korean military. (Jang Seul-gi, DailyNK)

In South Korea:

- Moon sought to rally opposition support for his upcoming summit with KJU in a rare meeting with the chief of the main opposition Liberty Korea Party (LKP) Fri. (Yonhap)
- The Ministry of National Defense briefed Seoul-based foreign military attaches on Seoul's NK policy and the latest development in inter-Korean ties Fri., the ministry said. (Yonhap)

- Moon consulted with the head of SK's largest opposition party on Fri. about his upcoming summit meeting with KJU. (Kang Jin-kyu, Joongang Ilbo)
- Moon will likely face an uphill battle of denuclearizing NK when he meets KJU later this month, an achievement that he said would mark a new chapter in history. (Yonhap)
- S. Korean Culture Minister Do Jong-whan said Thurs. that KJU is serious about trying to improve inter-Korean ties, adding that it is a cause for optimism with the Seoul-Pyongyang summit just days away. (Yonhap)
- SK's defense ministry said Fri. that the cost of operating a US missile defense system installed in SK may be covered using part of Seoul's new share of upkeep costs for US forces stationed in SK. (Yonhap)
- For the young S. Korean people facing a brutal reality, unification and a unified Korean people are a luxury. They are well aware that they are the ones who have to pay the astronomical bill, and have no desire to. (Ko Dae-hoon, Joongang Ilbo)

International:

- The US will not reward NK before the regime "permanently, irreversibly" dismantles its nuclear weapons program, the nominee to be the top US diplomat Mike Pompeo said Thurs. (Yonhap)
- Trump is expected to demand that Pyongyang abolish its nuclear weapons capability within a year when he sits down for talks with KJU but will offer to open an embassy in the NK's capital and provide humanitarian assistance as an incentive. (Julian Ryall, Nicola Smith, Telegraph)
- Christopher Hill and Victor Cha, two former US diplomats who played a key role in the Six Party Talks with NK warned Thurs. that Trump should make no compromise on sanctions during his upcoming summit with KJU. (Anna Kook, Medill News Service, UPI)
- If Kim chooses Vietnam-style reforms, NK will become an attractive place to invest. At the same time, it will be a country friendly to the US, and will no longer be under the influence of China. But the "wealth and honor with socialism" promised by Kim is impossible to achieve as long as NK has nuclear weapons. (Lee Ha-kyung, Joongang Ilbo)
- Mike Pompeo, Trump's nomination for Secretary of State, said that he could imagine the US launching a ground invasion of NK during his Senate confirmation hearing. (Ben Riley-Smith, Telegraph)
- In a recent semi-official meeting with SK and the US in Helsinki, Finland, NK said the six-party talks are "dead," the head of a S. Korean state-run think tank said Fri., referring to the long-suspended multilateral forum on denuclearizing NK. (Yonhap)
- NK should not expect rewards from talks with the US until it takes irreversible steps to give up its nuclear weapons, Trump's nominee for secretary of state, CIA Director Mike Pompeo, said on Thurs. (David Brunnstrom, Patricia Zengerle, Reuters)
- Trump's pick to be America's top diplomat is playing down expectations for a breakthrough deal on ending NK's nuclear weapons program at a planned summit with NK's leader. (Matthew Pennington, AP)

- A top Chinese official arrived in Pyongyang on Fri. as head of a Chinese performing arts delegation, and he may meet with KJU to discuss critical issues for the peninsula. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- SK and the US fully agree on the need to peacefully denuclearize the Korean Peninsula, Seoul's top security adviser said Fri., returning from his surprising trip to Washington for talks with his new US counterpart. (Yonhap)
- N. Korean officials believe the former six-party talks format will not help resolve the nuclear standoff, implying it is likely to depend more on direct talks with the USover denuclearization, a state-run think tank chief said, Fri. (Kim Bo-eun, Korea Times)
- Trump said Thurs. he thinks his meeting with KJU will be "terrific." (Yonhap)
- The United Nations has said it is in need of a US $111 million budget for humanitarian aid to NK this year, Radio Free Asia reported Fri. (Yonhap)

Prepared by Emma Stubblefield, HRNK Research Intern

——————————————————

Sunday, April 15, 2018

N.Korean leader meets senior Chinese official; Seoul to launch website on inter-Korean summit on April 17; 'Peace, a new start' chosen as slogan for upcoming inter-Korean summit

In North Korea:
(LEAD) North Korean leader meets senior Chinese official (Yonhap, 04/15/2018)
Chinese official meets Kim Jong Un, ahead of inter-Korean summit (UPI, 04/15/2018)
In sign of thaw, Kim meets senior Chinese diplomat (Joongang Daily, 04/15/2018)
Kim Jong Un meets high-ranking Chinese diplomat in Pyongyang (WaPo, 04/15/2018)
Kim Jong-un of North Korea Fetes Chinese Envoy as Ties Warm (NYT, 04/15/2018)
N.K. calmly marks late founder's birthday without mention of nukes, provocations (Yonhap, 04/15/2018)
North Korean leader meets Chinese senior official, fetes Chinese art troupe (Reuters, 04/15/2018)
North Korean media spotlighting Kim Jong Un's wife Ri Sol-ju (UPI, 04/15/2018)

In South Korea:
For first time, gov't holds Sewol memorial (Joongang Daily, 04/15/2018)
Seoul to launch website on inter-Korean summit on April 17 (Korea Times, 04/15/2018)
South Korea's ruling party members hit with online comment rigging allegations (UPI, 04/15/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
[Roundtable] Kim Jong-un's point of view on cross-border summit (Korea Times, 04/15/2018)

[Roundtable] Postal exchanges with N. Korea (Korea Times, 04/15/2018)
[Roundtable] Moon rises as the stars align over Koreas (Korea Times, 04/15/2018)
[Roundtable] Solid steps needed on denuclearization (Korea Times, 04/15/2018)
Building trust is vital, former negotiators say (Joongang Daily, 04/15/2018)
Koreas hold talks on telephone hotline between leaders (Yonhap, 04/15/2018)
'Peace, a new start' chosen as slogan for upcoming inter-Korean summit (Yonhap, 04/15/2018)

International:
A warning for Pyongyang (Joongang Daily, 04/15/2018)
Japan and China's foreign ministers pledge to pursue improved ties (Reuters, 04/15/2018)
The future of Trump's Asia policy (Joongang Daily, 04/15/2018)
U.S. asks Korea to share cost of strategic weapons (Joongang Daily, 04/15/2018)
What does US strike on Syria mean for North Korea? (Korea Times, 04/15/2018)

In North Korea:

- N.K. leader KJU has met with a Chinese official leading an art troupe to Pyongyang and exchanged views on "important matters of mutual concern." (Yonhap)
- A high-ranking Beijing official met KJU, whilst leading a group of Chinese performers to Pyongyang, in apparent attempts to strengthen bilateral ties. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- N.K.'s leader met a senior Chinese diplomat in Pyongyang on Saturday and "earnestly discussed crucial issues" regarding the two countries' relations. (Lee Sung-eun, Joongang Daily)
- N.K. leader KJU has met with a high-ranking Chinese diplomat in Pyongyang, amid a flurry of diplomacy following Kim's recent surprise visit to Beijing. (AP)
- KJU offered a personal welcome to a senior envoy from Beijing, feting him and a visiting Chinese art troupe with a gala dinner, as the estranged Communist allies continued efforts to mend ties. (Choe Sang-hun, NYT)
- N.K. appears to be marking the birthday of its late founder on Sunday without provocations ahead of its planned summit talks with S.K. and the US. (Yonhap)
- KJU met Chinese senior diplomat Song Tao and feted a Chinese art troupe led by Song, indicating closer ties with China after Kim's surprise visit to Beijing last month. (Reuters)
- N.K. media appears to be attempting to raise the profile of Ri Sol-ju, the wife of KJU, reporting that Ri, without her husband, had attended a performance of "Giselle," staged by the visiting National Ballet of China. (Jennie Oh, UPI)

In South Korea:

- President Moon pledged to prioritize safety in a statement on Sunday commemorating four years since a ferry sinking killed 304 in the country's worst maritime disaster. (Esther Chung, Choi Kyu-jin, Yu Sung-kuk, Joongang Daily)
- S.K.'s preparation committee for the inter-Korean summit will open a website, Tuesday, to live stream President Moon's meeting with KJU on April 27. (Yi Whan-woo, Korea Times)

- S.K.'s opposition lawmakers have called for a thorough investigation on the President Moon's liberal Democratic Party, whose members have allegedly rigged online opinions to discredit the conservatives. (Jennie Oh, UPI)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- KJU seems to be back at his old waiting game until the world is again distracted by other pressing issues. After all, it has worked before. Kim would say to himself, "why not this time?" (Oh Young-jin, Korea Times)
- A postal exchange between two Koreas would be a relatively simple and very humanitarian way to build trust and cooperation between people and institutions of the North and South. Much more so than reviving the Kaesong Industrial Complex, or tourism to Mt Kumgang. (Jacco Zwetsloot, Korea Times)
- If the upcoming summits all go well, the key role may well be played, not by KJU or Trump, but by Moon. If all goes well with his summit with KJU and with the Kim-Trump summit a few weeks later, North-South reconciliation could well become the theme that sustains the rest of Moon's presidential term. (Michael Breen, Korea Times)
- Failure of the Moon-Kim summit will not only dampen the recent reconciliatory mood between the two Koreas, but also worsen security on the Korean Peninsula. It would also mean losing Trump's trust that Moon can smooth the way for the N.K.-U.S. summit. (Yi Whan-woo, Korea Times)
- As Seoul and Washington prepare to sit down with Pyongyang in the coming weeks to talk about some process of denuclearization, S.K. diplomats who were involved in the six-party talks from 2003 to 2009 say the allies needed to build trust with the regime as a starting point. (Yoo Jee-hye, Park Yu-mi, Joongang Daily)
- Working-level officials from the two Koreas discussed establishing a telephone hotline between the two countries' leaders on Saturday ahead of their historic summit set for later this month. (Yonhap)
- Seoul has chosen "Peace, a new start" as a slogan for the upcoming inter-Korean summit, which will be held in late April, the presidential office said Sunday. (Yonhap)

International:

- The attack on Syria is a serious warning to Pyongyang. If KJU wants to be free from the fear of a potential raid, he must be willing to denuclearize. Only when he presents a detailed road map devoted to denuclearization can his sincerity be recognized by his counterpart. (Joongang Daily)
- Japanese Foreign Affairs Minister Taro Kono and his Chinese counterpart have pledged to improve ties between their nations and affirmed a commitment to stick with U.N. resolutions aimed at forcing N.K. to abandon nuclear weapons. (Reuters)
- Trump's foreign policy will be shaped and constrained by structure — the distribution of power in Asia, the rising challenges from China and N.K., and the strong domestic support for trade and alliances in the US, Congress and business and agricultural communities. (Michael Green, Joongang Daily)

- Washington asked Seoul to share the cost of U.S. strategic assets around the Korean Peninsula, stoking local fears about a higher financial burden as the Trump administration is pushing allies to pay more for their defense. (Yoo Jee-hye, Lee Sung-eun, Joongang Daily)
- The U.S.-led air strike on Syria, Saturday, may put pressure on N.K. leader KJU ahead of his planned summit with President Trump in May or June. (Yi Whan-woo, Korea Times)

Prepared by James Park, HRNK Research Intern

——————————————————

Monday, April 16, 2018

STATESIDE | N.Korea: Ready to discuss denuclearization; Koreas set to hold high-level talks this week to set agenda for summit; Abe faces awkward Trump summit on North Korea amid plummeting support in Japan

Top News:
STATESIDE | N.Korea : Ready to discuss denuclearization (i24 News, 04/09/2018)

In North Korea:
KJU Gives Banquet for CPC Delegation (NK Leadership Watch, 04/16/2018)
KJU Meets with Song Tao (NK Leadership Watch, 04/16/2018)
N.K. highlights Iran nuke deal ahead of summits with S. Korea, U.S. (Yonhap, 04/16/2018)
No mention of nuclear weapons on North Korea's key memorial day (UPI, 04/15/2018)
North Korea commemorates birth of its founder [PHOTOS] (Korea Times, 04/15/2018)
North Korea construction resumes as China relations bounce back (UPI, 04/16/2018)
North Korea idolizes Kim Jong-un's wife... why? (Korea Times, 04/16/2018)
North Korea warns UK against 'act of war' after Royal Navy deployed to enforce sanctions(Telegraph, 04/16/2018)
North Korean elite youth sought for cyberwarfare training, foreign agent roles (DailyNK, 04/16/2018)
Rare photos of Kim Jong-un's mother [PHOTOS] (Korea Times, 04/16/2018)
Ri Sol Ju Attends Chinese Ballet Performance (NK Leadership Watch, 04/16/2018)
Ri Su Yong Meets Song Tao (NK Leadership Watch, 04/16/2018)
Smuggling operations heat up, feature state-civilian cooperation (DailyNK, 04/16/2018)
What North Korea's 2017 budget report and 2018 projections tell us about its economy (NK Econ Watch, 04/16/2018)

In South Korea:
Buddha's blessing (Jooongang Ilbo, 04/16/2018)
Press center, online platform to be launched ahead of inter-Korean summit (Yonhap, 04/16/2018)
S. Korea's Catholic Church prays for inter-Korean summit's success (Yonhap, 04/16/2018)
Seoul watches its words on Syria (Jooongang Ilbo, 04/16/2018)
Summit preparation in full swing (Korea Times, 04/16/2018)
USFK command to relocate to Pyeongtaek in summer: sources (Yonhap, 04/16/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
Koreas working on final details of North-South summit (UPI, 04/15/2018)
Koreas set to hold high-level talks this week to set agenda for summit (Yonhap, 04/16/2018)
South-North summit to set denuclearization of N. Korea in motion (Yonhap, 04/16/2018)

International:
Abe faces awkward Trump summit on North Korea amid plummeting support in Japan (CNN, 04/16/2018)
As Scandal-Tarred Abe Meets Trump, 'the Situation Is Getting Dangerous' (NYT, 04/16/2018)
S. Korea, U.S. in close coordination over N.K. summits (Yonhap, 04/15/2018)
Tokyo fears Trump could link security with trade at summit with Abe (Reuters, 04/16/2018)
Trump's Syria strike was meant to project strength. It did the opposite. (WaPo, 04/15/2018)
US Strike on Syria Sends Mixed Messages to North Korea (VOA, 04/16/2018)

Top News:

- HRNK Executive Director Greg Scarlatiou joined i24 News' Stateside with David Shuster to discuss the differences between what Trump and KJU mean when they say "denuclearization" and what might happen during the Trump/Kim summit. (i24 News)

In North Korea:

- KJU and his wife Ri Sol-ju hosted a banquet for a Chinese performing arts troupe and Communist Party of China International Liaison Department Director Song Tao on the evening of Apr. 14. (NK Leadership Watch)
- Kim Jong-un met with Communist Party of China International Liaison Department Director Song Tao at the Workers' Party of Korea Central Committee Office Complex #1 on Apr. 14. (NK Leadership Watch)
- NK on Mon. highlighted its 45-year-long ties with Iran and defended Tehran's stance toward a nuclear deal with major powers that Trump has threatened to scrap. (Yonhap)
- NK celebrated the anniversary of regime founder Kim Il-sung's birth without provocative displays or the mention of nuclear weapons during key memorial events, amid the peace-building atmosphere between the two Koreas. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- Thousands of N. Koreans laid flowers before statues of the country's founder Kim Il-sung on the anniversary of his birth on Sun. (AFP)

- Construction of high-rise apartments in NK for the newly rich might have resumed in the wake of improving relations with China. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- NK has begun providing the wife of its leader KJU with a greater role as the regime prepares for summits with SK and the US. (Kim Bo-eun, Korea Times)
- NK has accused Britain of an "act of war" for deploying warships off the Korean Peninsula to enforce international sanctions. (Julian Ryall, Telegraph)
- The N. Korean authorities are looking towards young graduates of prestigious Mangyongdae Revolutionary Academy's 'hackers' program to recruit the country's next generation of foreign agents. (Lee Sang-yong, DailyNK)
- Rare photos of KJU's mother, Ko Yong-hui, have been revealed. They were reportedly taken in Japan in 1973 when Ko was in her early 20s, according to Japanese newspaper The Mainichi, which published the photos on Sat. (Park Si-soo, Korea Times)
- Ri Sol-ju, first lady of the DPRK, watched the National Ballet of China perform Giselle at Mansudae Art Theater in central Pyongyang, as part of the 31st annual April Spring Friendship Art Festival on Apr. 14. (NK Leadership Watch)
- Workers' Party of Korea Vice Chairman and WPK International Affairs Department Director Ri Su-yong met with Song Tao, Director of the Communist Party of China International Liaison Department Director on Apr. 14. (NK Leadership Watch)
- Trading companies and donju (NK's nouveau rich) are actively involved in smuggling operations in NK's Ryanggang Province region, according to new testimony from a defector. Largely seen as a way to circumvent the international sanctions campaign targeting NK, military personnel from both countries are also said to be actively involved. (Yuem Seung-cheol, DailyNK)
- According to NK's own 2017 budget report and 2018 budget projections (which recognize that a large portion of economic activity happens outside of the central government), their economy grew in 2017 and there will be continued growth in 2018 from private and semi-private enterprise revenue. (Benjamin Katzeff Silberstein, NK Econ Watch)

In South Korea:

- Seoul's Jogye Temple has arranged lanterns in its courtyard to form the words "Let's go together" in Korean. The message alludes to peace and reconciliation between the two Koreas ahead of a summit between Moon and KJU on Apr. 27. (Yonhap)
- SK will open a press center next week to accommodate the massive number of journalists likely to come from home and abroad to cover the upcoming historic inter-Korean summit, the preparation committee and government officials said Mon. (Yonhap)
- SK's Catholic Church on Mon. issued a statement calling for the upcoming historic inter-Korean summit to bring an end to confrontation and conflict on the Korean Peninsula. (Yonhap)
- As SK walks a fine diplomatic line to bring the US and NK to the discussion table, SK's Foreign Affairs Ministry appears to have felt the pressure as they left out any mention of the US or its latest military attack on Syria (NK's ally) in an announcement regarding the threat chemical weapons and proliferation pose to international peace and safety. (Yoo Jee-hye, Park Yu-mi, Joongang Ilbo)

- The Blue House is going all out for the inter-Korean summit as there are only 10 days left before the bilateral talks take place. (Kim Rahn, Korea Times)
- The Yongsan era of the US Forces Korea will draw to a close in the coming months with an official transfer ceremony at an expanded base south of Seoul, defense sources here said Mon. (Lee Chi-dong, Yonhap)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- Days away from NK and SK's first summit in more than a decade, officials are finalizing arrangements this week. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- SK and NK are set to hold high-level talks this week to arrange key agenda items for next week's summit amid keen attention over whether the historic meeting could set the stage for NK's denuclearization. (Yonhap)
- The upcoming summit between Moon and KJU will be a historical event all in itself and even more so as it will likely set the tone for the following US-NK summit, which in turn could finally get the process of denuclearizing the communist state moving forward. (Yonhap)

International:

- Embattled Japanese Prime Minister Shinzo Abe, who heads Tues. to Mar-a-Lago for a meeting with Trump, is in dire need of a policy win as he faces challenges abroad and protests at home. (James Griffiths, CNN)
- Amid tensions over trade and NK, Abe leaves Tues. to visit Trump at his Palm Beach estate. It kicks off a frenzy of diplomacy that has Abe meeting President Xi Jinping in China later this year and possibly even NK's KJU as well. (Makoto Rich, NYT)
- SK and the US have engaged in a flurry of diplomacy as both sides prepare for historic summits with KJU, a phenomenon most recently demonstrated by the surprise visit of Seoul's top national security adviser to Washington. (Yonhap)
- Abe could find his oft-touted close ties with Trump sorely tested at a summit this week in which Tokyo fears the US leader will to try to link vital security matters involving NK with touchy trade topics. (Linda Sieg, Nobuhiro Kubo, Reuters)
- The lesson KJU takes from this is that if Trump won't take out Syrian airfields because we're afraid of Russia's response, then he's definitely not going to strike KJU's nuclear and ballistic missile program and risk a N. Korean artillery barrage on Seoul. (Marc A. Thiessen, WaPo)
- The recent US missile strikes against Syria could increase pressure on NK to give up its nuclear weapons, or reinforce in Pyongyang the need for nuclear deterrence. (Brian Padden, VOA)

Prepared by Emma Stubblefield, HRNK Research Intern

———————————————————

Tuesday, April 17, 2018

PRESS RELEASE: ECOSOC VOTES TO GRANT HRNK UN CONSULTATIVE STATUS; Sharp drop in numbers of North Korean defectors reaching safety in the south; Goodbye DMZ? What an End to the Korean War Would Mean: QuickTake

Top News:
PRESS RELEASE: ECOSOC VOTES TO GRANT HRNK UN CONSULTATIVE STATUS (HRNK, 04/17/2018)

In North Korea:
Defector: North Koreans face chronic food shortages (UPI, 04/16/2018)
In North, questions over what's in a name (Joongang Daily, 04/17/2018)
Kim Jong-un couple watches Chinese troupe's performance (Korea Times, 04/17/2018)
Kim Jong Un congratulates Syria's Assad on anniversary (UPI, 04/17/2018)
Kim Jong Un's wife afforded new level of respect in North Korean media (CNN, 04/17/2018)
N.K. leader says Chinese artists' visit will help strengthen ties (Yonhap, 04/17/2018)
No missiles but ballet as North Korea's Kim puts on a show (Reuters, 04/17/2018)
North Korea's surge of friendly visitors (BBC, 04/17/2018)
Remittance fees increase as North Korean police demand bribes (Daily NK, 04/17/2018)
Use of Yuan in the North Korean economy (NK Econ Watch, 04/17/2018)
What made Pyongyang change? (Joongang Daily, 04/17/2018)

In South Korea:
(2nd LD) Seoul may send special envoys to N. Korea if necessary for summit: Cheong Wa Dae (Yonhap, 04/17/2018)
(LEAD) (News Focus) Moon braces for high-stakes showdown with N.K. leader (Yonhap, 04/17/2018)
AP Interview: Moon adviser says NKorea seeks economic growth (WaPo, 04/17/2018)
Choi Eun-hee, actor once abducted by North Korea, dies (Guardian, 04/17/2018)
Envoy may be sent to North Korea soon (Joongang Daily, 04/17/2018)
Film star Choi Eun-hee dead at 92 (Joongang Daily, 04/17/2018)
Moon vows efforts to establish peace between the two Koreas (Yonhap, 04/17/2018)
S. Korean city seeks to invite N. Koreans to national sports event (Yonhap, 04/17/2018)
Seoul seeks Moon-Kim joint press conference after April 27 summit (Korea Times, 04/17/2018)
South Korean actress and former North Korean abductee Choi Eun-hee dies (CNN, 04/17/2018)
South Korean culture minister finds Kim Jong Un open, humorous (UPI, 04/17/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
A mass delusion (Joongang Daily, 04/17/2018)

Border truce village set to greet Koreas' leaders for summit (Yonhap, 04/17/2018)
Goodbye DMZ? What an End to the Korean War Would Mean: QuickTake (WaPo, 04/17/2018)
Inter-Korean summit to set tone for Trump-Kim Jong-un meeting (Korea Times, 04/17/2018)
Inter-Korean summit website launches (Korea Times, 04/17/2018)
Kim Jong-un Plans Formal Nod to Denuclearization, South Korea Says (NYT*imes*, 04/17/2018)
Koreas in consultations for high-level talks this week (Yonhap, 04/17/2018)
Sharp drop in numbers of North Korean defectors reaching safety in the south (Telegraph, 04/17/2018)
South Koreans may Visit North Again Ahead of First Summit in Decade (VOA, 04/17/2018)

International:
Abe hopes Trump meeting will bring Japan in from diplomatic cold (Guardian, 04/17/2018)
Americans detained in North Korea a factor in talks - White House (Reuters, 04/17/2018)
China releases 30 N. Korean defectors: report (Yonhap, 04/17/2018)
National security warning for British firms dealing with Chinese telecoms giant ZTE (Telegraph, 04/17/2018)
Post-ABC poll: Public supports Trump-Kim meeting, but isn't getting its hopes up (WaPo, 04/17/2018)
Report: CIA agent met with Japanese officials in March (UPI, 04/16/2018)
Trump, Abe to meet despite strain over North Korea, tariffs (WaPo, 04/17/2018)
Trump, Japan's Abe seek consensus on North Korea amid strains (Reuters, 04/17/2018)
U.S. bars exports to Chinese telecom firm linked to N. Korea (Yonhap, 04/17/2018)
U.S. vows to 'fully' and 'effectively' enforce sanctions on N.K. (Yonhap, 04/17/2018)
Unpacking a US Decision to Engage North Korea: What it Entails and What it Could Achieve (38 North, 04/16/2018)

Top News:

- At 10 am this morning, the 54 member UN Economic and Social Council took action on a resolution to grant UN consultative status to the Committee for Human Rights in North Korea (HRNK). UN consultative status tremendously amplifies the already strong voice of HRNK as an organization dedicated to promoting human rights for the people of the DPRK through UN channels. UN consultative status is a significant landmark in the 17-year history of HRNK. (HRNK)

In North Korea:

- NK's engagements with the outside world are taking place as the country's impoverished population could be affected by malnutrition. A N.Korean defector activist who requested anonymity told JoongAng Ilbo reporter Lee Young-jong a chronic food shortage is spreading throughout NK and ordinary people are "suffering" because in some areas the public distribution system has been suspended. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)

- As the leaders of NK and SK prepare to meet next week, one question is on the mind of many Pyongyang watchers: Will the N.Korean media refer to SK's first lady by her name? The decision is a dicey one in a state that reveres its ruling family. The S.Korean first lady, Kim Jung-sook, bears the same name in Korean as N.Korean leader KJU's grandmother, Kim Jong-suk, who is beloved in the country as the wife of the state founder Kim Il Sung. In NK, where the cult of personality surrounding the Kim family is strong, their names are treated as sacred and cannot be used by other people. (Kang Jin-kyu, Joongang Daily)
- N.Korean leader KJU and his wife Ri Sol-ju on Mon. attended a ballet performance by a Chinese troupe visiting Pyongyang, the state news agency reported Tues. (Kim Bo-eun, Korea Times)
- KJU sent a message of congratulations to Syrian President Bashar al-Assad on the 72nd anniversary of Syrian independence, according to Pyongyang's news agency KCNA. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- Ri Sol Ju, wife of N.Korean leader KJU, has been afforded a new title in the country's state media, a move that analysts say could signal an evolution in the power structure of the reclusive country. (CNN)
- N.Korean leader KJU has said that a Chinese art troupe's visit to NK will significantly help consolidate ties between Pyongyang and Beijing, state media reported Tues. (Yonhap)
- KJU hobnobbed with a visiting Chinese ballet troupe as he capped a weekend of celebrations in the N.Korean capital that conspicuously lacked a show of military might that marked many previous festivals. (Josh Smith, Reuters)
- Ever since the secretive trip to Pyongyang by two S.Korean officials that opened the way for a dialogue with the US, NK has seen a flurry of friendly visits. (Alistair Coleman, BBC)
- Despite being illegal, NK's Ministry of State Security actively facilitates foreign remittances to earn money, while officers from the Ministry of People's Security have also recently entered into the dynamic as middle men. Lacking the ability to control the remittance market in its entirety, there are rumors that the N.Korean authorities have secretly issued orders to skim money from the remittances instead. (Kang Mi Jin, Daily NK)
- According to Asahi Shimbun, the Chinese yuan apparently has growing currency in NK and is commonly used in daily transactions such as paying taxi fares and restaurant bills. (NK Econ Watch)
- As summits approach, analysts try to describe KJU's logic. In a four-part series, the Joongang Daily analyzes KJU's major change of course this year, the struggles of the country's economy that could have triggered that change, and Kim's powerful inner-circle. (Ko Soo-suk, Jeong Yong-soo, Joongang Daily)

In South Korea:

- SK may send special envoys to NK if necessary to arrange or ensure the success of their summit next week, the presidential office Cheong Wa Dae said Tues. (Yonhap)
- S.Korean President Moon is girding for a high-stakes cross-border summit next week, a hard-won chance that could potentially vindicate his once fragile dialogue approach and chart a diplomatic path toward NK's denuclearization and peace on the peninsula. (Song Sang-ho, Yonhap)

- N.Korean leader KJU likely decided to put his nuclear weapons program up for negotiation to win outside rewards so he can improve his country's economy, win public trust at home and prolong his leadership, a special adviser to the S.Korean president said Tues. (Hyung-Jin Kim, AP)
- Choi Eun-hee, one of SK's most famous actors, who was abducted and made to make films in NK during the 1970s and 80s, has died aged 91. (Martin Belam, Guardian)
- The Blue House said Tues. that it was "open to the possibility" of its National Security Office chief or head of the national spy agency visiting Pyongyang again "anytime" before the inter-Korean summit on Apr. 27 if ongoing discussions between SK and NK at the working level become deadlocked. (Lee Sung-eun, Joongang Daily)
- Choi Eun-hee, an iconic film actor who was active in the 1950s and '60s, died Mon. afternoon after suffering from years of chronic kidney disease. She was 92. She is known not only for being a leading lady during the so-called golden age of Korean film in the 1960s, along with her husband, filmmaker Shin Sang-ok, but also for being kidnapped by NK in 1978 and escaping the communist country in 1986. (Jin Min-ji, Joongang Daily)
- President Moon reaffirmed his resolve Tues. to establish permanent peace on the Korean Peninsula, saying the denuclearization of NK is the most urgent task facing SK but is only part of an ultimate objective to ensure co-existence and co-prosperity of the divided Koreas. (Yonhap)
- A S.Korean city said Tues. it plans to invite a N.Korean team to a national sports event it will host this fall to further boost the relationship between the two Koreas. (Yonhap)
- Seoul is seeking to broadcast the upcoming inter-Korean summit as well as a joint press conference between President Moon and N.Korean leader KJU live, a top presidential aide said Tues. (Kim Rahn, Korea Times)
- S.Korean film legend Choi Eun-hee, who was once abducted and forced to make movies for the N.Korean regime, has died. She was 91. (Evan McKirdy, CNN)
- N.Korean leader KJU appears to have an "open" mind and a "humorous side" and seems willing to continue cultural exchanges with SK, Seoul's cultural minister said Tues. (Jennie Oh, UPI)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- In this opinion piece for the Joongang Daily, editorial writer Nam Jeong-ho argues that inter-Korean reconciliation is the flavor of the day. He argues that Korean society is caught up in a mass delusion that the N.Korean nuclear crisis is over with the promotion of inter-Korean cooperation while everything else is ignored. (Nam Jeong-ho, Joongang Daily)
- The border truce village of Panmunjom, a site symbolizing inter-Korean division, is expected to become a venue for reconciliation as the leaders of the two Koreas are set to hold a rare summit there next week. (Yonhap)
- After a sudden warming of relations between NK and SK this year, the two sides are set to meet at the end of this month for talks. According to the S.Korean publication, Munhwa Ilbo, they're planning to announce the end of military hostilities. This is what an end to the Korean War would look like. (David Tweed, Bloomberg)

- The inter-Korean summit on Apr. 27 is likely to set the tone of another summit between N.Korean leader KJU and US President Donald Trump, according to analysts. (Yi Whan-woo, Korea Times)
- A website updating the public on the upcoming inter-Korean summit is up and running. The portal koreasummit.kr will offer news, photos and broadcasts of the summit between S.Korean President Moon and N.Korean leader KJU to be held Apr. 27 at the truce village of Panmunjom. (Kim Bo-eun, Korea Times)
- KJU, NK's leader, plans to formally announce his willingness to denuclearize his country when he meets with President Moon of SK this month, an official from SK said on Tues.(Choe Sang-hun, NYTimes)
- SK and NK are engaging in discussions to set the date for high-level talks later this week to arrange the agenda for next week's summit, an official at Seoul's unification ministry said Tues. (Yonhap)
- The number of N.Korean refugees finding safety in SK has dropped sharply this year amid an ongoing security crackdown in China, the country that represents their most common escape route. (Nicola Smith, Telegraph)
- S.Korean security officials may visit NK ahead of the first summit since 2007 if more high-level talks are necessary, a Seoul official said on Tues., with SK hoping the NK will reaffirm its commitment to denuclearize. (Reuters)

International:

- Besieged by cronyism scandals that have prompted speculation he will be out of office by early summer, Japan's prime minister, Shinzo Abe, will arrive in the US for talks with Donald Trump this week with a potential foreign policy headache to add to his domestic woes. (Justin McCurry, Guardian)
- Three Americans detained in NK will be a factor in any talks between US officials and their N.Korean counterparts as they discuss a future summit, a White House official said on Tues. (Reuters)
- China has released 30 N.Korean defectors who some feared would be forcibly sent back to the reclusive state, Radio Free Asia reported Tues., citing a defector who has taken asylum in SK. (Yonhap)
- British firms are being warned not to do business with one of China's leading companies over "potential risks" to national security. The National Cyber Security Centre (NCSC) has written to UK telecoms providers to warn against ZTE after it was linked to selling US equipment to Iran and NK. (Neil Connor, Telegraph)
- Americans express low expectations that a planned meeting between N.Korean leader KJU and President Trump will lead NK to give up its nuclear weapons, but a new Washington Post-ABC News poll finds most support Trump participating in the meeting anyway. (Emily Guskin, WaPo)

- A CIA officer with the newly established Korea Mission Center at the agency secretly met with Japanese officials in March, according to a Japanese press report. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- President Donald Trump is playing host to Japanese Prime Minister Shinzo Abe this week amid growing strain between the countries over the president's planned meeting with N.Korean leader KJU and the push for new tariffs. (Jill Colvin, Matthew Pennington, AP)
- US President Donald Trump and Japanese Prime Minister Shinzo Abe will seek common ground on how to deal with NK's nuclear challenge on Tues. amid fears in Tokyo that Trump might be prone to make too many concessions. (Steve Holland, Reuters)
- The US on Mon. sanctioned a Chinese telecom firm suspected of illegal sales to NK and Iran. (Yonhap)
- The US has reaffirmed its commitment to "fully" and "effectively" enforce sanctions on NK, calling for other states to stay in line and maintain the current sanctions regime, a report showed Tues. (Yonhap)
- In this piece for 38 North, authors Carla Freeman and Mel Gurtov discuss the concept, strategy, and achievements of engagement in relation to the US and NK as a response to Robert Jervis' report "Unpacking a US Decision to Use Force Against North Korea: Issues, Options, and Consequences." (Carla Freeman, Mel Gurtov, 38 North)

Prepared by Jinny Ahn, HRNK Research Intern

——————————————————

Wednesday, April 18, 2018

UN ECOSOC Adopts 10 Decisions, Including Granting Status to Groups Focusing on Iran, DPRK; UN accredits US groups on Iran, NK rights; Korean leaders can discuss peace, but can't end Korean War

Top News:

Economic and Social Council Adopts 10 Decisions, Including Granting Status to Groups Focusing on Iran, Democratic People's Republic of Korea (United Nations, 04/17/2018)
UN accredits US groups on Iran, North Korea rights (Daily Herald, 04/17/2018)
UN accredits US groups on Iran, North Korea rights (Idaho Statesman, 04/17/2018)
UN accredits US groups on Iran, North Korea rights (Las Vegas Sun, 04/17/2018)
UN accredits US groups on Iran, North Korea rights (San Francisco Chronicle, 04/17/2018)
UN accredits US groups on Iran, North Korea rights (Sun Herald, 04/17/2018)
UN accredits US groups on Iran, North Korea rights (The Herald, 04/17/2018)
UN accredits US groups on Iran, North Korea rights (New Jersey Herald, 04/18/2018)
UN Accredits US Groups on Iran, North Korea Rights (NYTimes, 04/18/2018)
UN accredits US groups on Iran, North Korea rights (Tampa Bay Times, 04/18/2018)
UN accredits US groups on Iran, North Korea rights (The State, 04/18/2018)

UN accredits US groups on Iran, North Korea rights (WaPo, 04/18/2018)

In North Korea:
[Photos] North Koreans in China ordered to present flowers on Kim Il Sung's birthday (Daily NK, 04/18/2018)
For North Korea's leader, it's the economy (Joongang Daily, 04/18/2018)
Kim cautiously congratulates Syrian president (Joongang Daily, 04/18/2018)
Kim Jong Un turns to his wife and sister to soften his image (WaPo, 04/18/2018)
N.K. leader meets Chinese official again, discusses improving ties (Yonhap, 04/18/2018)
N. Korea to unveil new 'Shining Fatherland' mass games in September: report (Yonhap, 04/18/2018)

In South Korea:
(LEAD) S. Korea seeking to end armistice, establish permanent peace (Yonhap, 04/18/2018)
South Korea considering peace treaty with North (Guardian, 04/18/2018)
South Korea goes over six months without North Korea human rights ambassador (NKNews.org, 04/18/2018)
South Korea says it will lay the groundwork for Trump to talk to Kim about nuclear weapons (WaPo, 04/18/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
(LEAD) Koreas agree to live broadcast of Moon-Kim summit (Yonhap, 04/18/2018)
Explainer: North Korea peace deal - Neither a new nor a simple idea (Reuters, 04/18/2018)
Koreas to hold second working-level talks on upcoming summit (Yonhap, 04/18/2018)
Korean leaders can discuss peace, but can't end Korean War (WaPo, 04/18/2018)
North and South Korea agree to broadcast parts of summit live: report (Reuters, 04/18/2018)
Seoul says parts of inter-Korean summit will be aired live (WaPo, 04/18/2018)
Summit preparation committee releases photos, videos about past inter-Korean talks, exchanges (Yonhap, 04/18/2018)
Two Koreas should push for robust science, technology, R&D exchange: expert (Yonhap, 04/18/2018)

International:
(2nd LD) Trump: Koreas have my 'blessing' to end war (Yonhap, 04/18/2018)
(2nd LD) Trump: Pompeo met N. Korean leader, formed 'good relationship' (Yonhap, 04/18/2018)
(3rd LD) Pompeo met with Kim in secret trip to N. Korea: report (Yonhap, 04/18/2018)
(LEAD) Peace treaty with N. Korea possible following denuclearization: official (Yonhap, 04/18/2018)
(News Focus) Trump's support likely to accelerate talks on peace on peninsula (Yonhap, 04/18/2018)
A nuclear big deal (Joongang Daily, 04/18/2018)
Bumpy road to peace treaty (Joongang Daily, 04/19/2018)
China endorses direct dialogue between Pompeo, Kim (UPI, 04/18/2018)
Chinese President Xi Jinping will visit Pyongyang 'soon,' official says (CNN, 04/18/2018)
C.I.A. Chief's Meeting With Kim Jong-un Is Latest Step in Winding Path to Talks (NYTimes, 04/18/2018)
CIA Chief Pompeo Met with Kim Jong Un, Media reports say (VOA, 04/18/2018)

CIA Director Pompeo met with North Korean leader Kim Jong Un over Easter weekend (WaPo, 04/18/2018)
CIA's Pompeo secretly met with Kim Jong-un (Joongang Daily, 04/18/2018)
Donald Trump reveals CIA chief Mike Pompeo formed 'good relationship' with Kim Jong-un on secret North Korea visit (Telegraph, 04/18/2018)
G7 finance ministers seek maximum economic pressure on North Korea (Reuters, 04/18/2018)
If Trump strikes a deal with North Korea, I'll be delighted. But don't hold your breath (Guardian, 04/18/2018)
Japan abductee kin say mention at US-NKorea talks not enough (WaPo, 04/18/2018)
Japan Fears Being Sidelined by Trump on Trade and North Korea (NYTimes, 04/18/2018)
Key Takeaways of the Kim-Trump Summit Minuet (38 North, 04/18/2018)
Korean peace treaty needs more than Trump's 'blessing' (CNN, 04/18/2018)
Mike Pompeo: CIA chief made secret trip to North Korea (BBC, 04/18/2018)
North Korea: can Trump succeed where so many others have failed? (Guardian, 04/18/2018)
North Korea: Mike Pompeo met with Kim Jong-un over Easter, Trump confirms (Guardian, 04/18/2018)
North Korea meeting won't affect Pompeo vote in U.S. Senate: committee chair (Reuters, 04/18/2018)
Pompeo sets an irreversible course to meet Kim that Trump may not want (CNN, 04/18/2018)
Pompeo trip marks latest in history of N. Korea visits by U.S. statesmen (Yonhap, 04/18/2018)
Pompeo visits North Korea, forms 'good relationship with Kim', says Trump (Reuters, 04/18/2018)
Pompeo's critics offer grudging praise for North Korea meeting (WaPo, 04/18/2018)
Pompeo's visit suggests the Trump-Kim summit is on track. Here's why Kim is ready to talk. (WaPo, 04/18/2018)
President Trump says Koreas 'have my blessing' to discuss ending decades-long war as North, South prepare to meet (WaPo, 04/18/2018)
Record number of journalists to cover historic summit between Koreas (Yonhap, 04/18/2018)
Russia's Pacific Coast Economy Hurt By Sanctions Against North Korea (NPR, 04/17/2018)
Secret Pompeo Mission to North Korea Shows Trump's Trust in Spies Over Diplomats (NYTimes, 04/18/2018)
Seoul, Washington discussing routes to peace treaty: Chung (Joongang Daily, 04/18/2018)
Summit of egos (Joongang Daily, 04/18/2018)
Talks underway to officially end Korean War (Korea Times, 04/18/2018)
The Guardian view on Donald Trump's Korean diplomacy: progress without purpose (Guardian, 04/18/2018)
Top continental sports body to hold Asian Games promotional event in Pyongyang (Yonhap, 04/18/2018)
Treaty to Formally End Korean War Is Being Discussed, South Confirms (NYTimes, 04/18/2018)
Trump-Kim meeting should focus on denuclearization: Lippert (Yonhap, 04/18/2018)
Trump: U.S. has had talks with North Korea 'at very high levels' (UPI, 04/17/2018)
Trump and Abe talk trade as well as relations with NKorea (WaPo, 04/18/2018)
Trump Backs Seoul Effort to End Korean War (VOA, 04/17/2018)
Trump Confirms CIA Chief Met with Kim Jong Un (VOA, 04/18/2018)
Trump hails CIA chief Mike Pompeo's secret trip to N Korea (BBC, 04/18/2018)

Trump rules out summit destinations as North Korea hails 'unification' (UPI, 04/18/2018)
Trump says 'good relationship' formed with North Korea (WaPo, 04/18/2018)
Trump says 5 locations are being considered for Kim Jong Un meeting (CNN, 04/18/2018)
Trump says CIA director Pompeo met with Kim Jong Un last week (Reuters, 04/18/2018)
Trump says initial high-level meeting between U.S. and North Korea 'went very well' (WaPo, 04/18/2018)
Trump says Pompeo meeting with Kim Jong Un went 'very smoothly' (Politico, 04/18/2018)
Trump says Pompeo met with Kim Jong Un (CNN, 04/18/2018)
Trump says US and NKorea talking at 'extremely high levels' (WaPo, 04/17/2018)
U.S. air force general 'confident' of deterrence against North Korea (UPI, 04/18/2018)
US Election Calendar Could Factor into N. Korea Talks (VOA, 04/18/2018)
US troop withdrawal could be put on table (Korea Times, 04/18/2018)
What did Pompeo and North Korea's Kim discuss during their meeting? Here are 3 core issues. (WaPo, 04/18/2018)
Why Pompeo meeting with Kim should make you sleep a little easier (CNN, 04/18/2018)
Xi to visit N. Korea, news report says (Yonhap, 04/18/2018)

Top News:

- From the United Nations Meetings Coverage and Press Releases: "The Economic and Social Council today adopted 10 draft decisions, including two by vote granting consultative status to two non-governmental organizations (NGOs) focusing on Iran and the Democratic People's Republic of Korea, as it continued its 2018 coordination and management meetings. The Council granted consultative status to the Committee for Human Rights in North Korea by a recorded vote of 29 in favour to 6 against (Belarus, China, Russian Federation, South Africa, Venezuela, Viet Nam), with 13 abstentions." (United Nations)
- The UN granted accreditation to US groups focusing on human rights in NK and Iran on Tues., overturning a committee's rejection and giving the groups the right to speak at the Human Rights Council and other UN bodies. The 54-member Economic and Social Council approved the application from HRNK by a vote of 29-6 with 13 abstentions, and the application from the Iran Human Rights Documentation Center by a vote of 22-7 with 17 abstentions. (Associated Press, Mentioned in: Daily Herald, Idaho Statesman, Las Vegas Sun, New Jersey Herald, NYTimes, San Francisco Chronicle, Sun Herald, Tampa Bay Times, The Herald, The State, WaPo)

In North Korea:

- N.Koreans residing in the Chinese border city of Dandong were seen carrying bouquets of flowers into the N.Korean consulate on Sun. as the country celebrates its Apr. 15 "Day of the Sun" holiday marking the birthday of founding leader Kim Il Sung. (Ha Yoon Ah, Daily NK)
- The first face-to-face interaction between S.Korean President Moon and N.Korean leader KJU is only eight days away. In a four-part series, the JoongAng Daily analyzes Kim's major change of course this year, the struggles of the country's economy that could have triggered that change and Kim's powerful inner circle. (Ko Soo-suk, Jeong Yong-soo, Joongang Daily)

- N.Korean leader KJU delivered a courtesy message to Syrian President Bashar al-Assad on Tues. congratulating him on the occasion of the country's 72nd year of independence, saying he was "pleased" that the "friendly" Syrian government and people made "big achievements in the struggle to defend the country's sovereignty and security." (Lee Sung-eun, Joongang Daily)
- N.Korean leader KJU appears to be trying out a new tactic to boost the image of his authoritarian regime—he's putting the spotlight on the women in his life. (Eric Talmadge, AP)
- N.Korean leader KJU has met with a visiting senior Chinese official again to discuss ways to boost strategic cooperation between the two nations, state media said Wed. (Yonhap)
- NK is scheduled to stage a new mass games apparently timed with the 70th anniversary of NK's founding in Sept., the Voice of America reported Wed., citing a Beijing-based tourist company. (Yonhap)

In South Korea:

- SK is seeking to end an armistice left by the 1950-53 Korean War and build a permanent peace regime on the Korean Peninsula, Seoul's unification ministry said Wed. (Yonhap)
- SK may seek to replace its uneasy truce with NK with a formal peace treaty, according to officials in Seoul, as the country's president, Moon prepares to meet N.Korean leader KJU next week. (Justin McCurry, Guardian)
- It's been over six months since the position of ambassador-at-large on N.Korean human rights was vacated in SK's Ministry of Foreign Affairs (MOFA), a source at the ministry confirmed to *NK News*on Tues. (Chad O'Carroll, NKNews.org)
- SK and the US are looking for a way to guarantee "a bright future" for NK if its leader KJU will give up his nuclear weapons program, the national security adviser in Seoul said Wed., as preparations for next week's inter-Korean summit gather pace.(Anna Fifield, WaPo)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- SK and NK have reached an agreement on most major issues related to the upcoming summit of their leaders, including the live broadcast of the summit to be held next week, an official from the presidential office Cheong Wa Dae said Wed. (Yonhap)
- The two Koreas, ahead of a leaders' summit next week, are discussing a peace agreement that could officially end the state of war that has technically lasted since the 1950-53 Korean War ended with an armistice not a treaty. (Josh Smith, Reuters)
- Officials from SK and NK were set to hold a second round of talks Wed. to discuss details of a summit to be held between their leaders next week. (Yonhap)
- President Trump has given his "blessing" for NK and SK to discuss the end of the Korean War amid a diplomatic push to end the N.Korean nuclear standoff. One problem: There can be no real talks without the involvement of the other countries that fought the 1950-53 war, and especially the US. (Kim Tong-Hyung, AP)

- SK's presidential office said on Wed. that NK and SK had agreed to broadcast live parts of next week's inter-Korean summit, SK's Yonhap news agency reported. (Reuters)
- NK and SK have agreed to allow live television broadcasts for parts of the summit between N.Korean leader KJU and S.Korean President Moon next week, SK's presidential office said Wed. (Kim Tong-Hyung, AP)
- SK's preparation committee for the upcoming cross-border summit has unveiled a series of photos and videos related to past inter-Korean talks, exchanges and cooperation, Seoul officials said Wed. (Yonhap)
- The two Koreas should cooperate on exchanges in science, technology and joint research and development (R&D) efforts, a S.Korean scholar said Wed., ahead of the upcoming cross-border summit. (Yonhap)

International:

- US President Donald Trump on Tues. offered his "blessing" to the Koreas to end their decades-long war. (Yonhap)
- US President Donald Trump confirmed Wed. that his new secretary of state nominee met with NK's leader, saying the two formed a "good relationship." (Yonhap)
- Mike Pompeo, the new US Secretary of State nominee, met with N.Korean leader KJU on his secret visit to NK a few weeks ago, a US report said Wed. (Yonhap)
- SK and the US may seek to sign a peace treaty with NK when and if the communist state completely gives up its nuclear ambitions, Seoul's top security adviser said Wed. (Yonhap)
- US President Donald Trump's public support for the two Koreas' discussion on the possibility of declaring an end to the 1950-53 Korean War is expected to accelerate the momentum for efforts to establish lasting peace on the Korean Peninsula, experts said Wed. (Koh Byung-joon, Yonhap)
- The inter-Korean summit must deliver not just a will to denuclearize in writing, but also an agreement on a complete and rapid denuclearization scheme. If KJU and Moon can reach an agreement on that, the inter-Korean summit will become a true watershed in the decades-old standoff. It will not only insure genuineness from Pyongyang but also lessen the odds of a breakdown in the US-NK summit. SK must closely coordinate with the US to prepare a denuclearization roadmap. NK's bargaining power goes up if any discrepancy appears between the two allies. (Kim Byung-yeon, Joongang Daily)
- With NK and the US engaging in dialogue at such a stunning speed and high level, Seoul must closely communicate with Washington and Pyongyang on what it can do to ensure successful summits between President Moon and KJU, and between Trump and KJU. But the road to a peace treaty is full of mines. It involves the withdrawal of U.S. troops from South Korea. If the Moon administration rushes to strike a deal with the North, it could shake the very foundations of our alliance. (Joongang Daily)
- China welcomed news of the meeting between CIA Director Mike Pompeo and KJU,heralding the move as a "right start" that could culminate in a peaceful resolution to the nuclear crisis. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)

- Chinese President Xi Jinping is preparing to visit the N.Korean capital of Pyongyang, an official with knowledge of the discussions told CNN Wed. (Will Ripley, Ben Westcott, CNN)
- Mike Pompeo, the C.I.A. director and nominee to be the next secretary of state, traveled to NK and met with its leader, KJU, the strongest indicator to date that plans for direct talks between Mr. Kim and President Trump are moving ahead. (Austin Ramzy, Emily Cochrane, NYTimes)
- CIA director Mike Pompeo traveled to Pyongyang for a secret meeting with N.Korean leader KJU, according to multiple media reports. (Steve Herman, VOA)
- CIA Director Mike Pompeo made a top-secret visit to NK as an envoy for President Trump to meet with KJU, and plans for a possible summit between the two leaders are underway, Trump confirmed Wed. (Shane Harris, Carol D. Leonning, Greg Jaffe, David Nakamura, WaPo)
- Mike Pompeo, the director Central Intelligence Agency and secretary of state nominee, made a clandestine visit to NK at the beginning of Apr. to meet with leader KJU on behalf of US President Donald Trump, according to reports. (Sarah Kim, Joongang Daily)
- CIA Director Mike Pompeo made a secret trip to NK over the Easter weekend to lay the groundwork for an unprecedented upcoming summit between KJU and US President Donald Trump. (Nicola Smith, Telegraph)
- Group of Seven (G7) finance ministers said Wed. that they would continue to impose maximum economic pressure on NK, which evades international sanctions with a network of front and shell companies to access the global financial system. (Reuters)
- In this editorial piece for the Guardian, author Jonathan Freedland states that despite the clandestine meetings between Mike Pompeo and KJU, there are many potential pitfalls on the road to peace. (Jonathan Freedland, Guardian)
- Families of Japanese citizens abducted by NK urged President Donald Trump on Wed. to do more than just bring up the issue during his expected talks with N.Korean leader KJU. (Mari Yamaguchi, AP)
- But as the two leaders were meeting, news emerged that Mike Pompeo, the CIA director, had been to NK this month for secret meetings with its leader, KJU. There, Mr. Pompeo was laying the groundwork for a meeting between Mr. Trump and Mr. Kim to discuss NK's nuclear program. It was yet another sign that the US was acting independently of Japan, its strongest ally in Asia (Motoko Rich, NYTimes)
- The announcement of a US-DPRK summit took virtually everyone by surprise and upended much of the previous diplomacy connected with NK's nuclear program. Nonetheless, this process already reveals certain "takeaways" that merit careful scrutiny and analysis. Such analysis is essential because the US has hitherto proceeded on the basis of rhetoric and simple demands for denuclearization. Now, however, it must formulate a carefully conceived program and agenda of what it wants to achieve through this summit and ensuing developments. Otherwise, this crisis might worsen and the summit, like most previous encounters with Pyongyang, will end in frustration. (Stephen J. Blank, 38 North)
- US President Donald Trump says he's given his "blessing" to talks between Seoul and Pyongyang aimed at formally ending the Korean war. (Bard Wilkinson, CNN)
- CIA director Mike Pompeo travelled to Pyongyang for a secret meeting with N.Korean leader KJU, US President Trump has confirmed. (BBC)

- On the same day that the White House confirmed that secretary of state nominee Mike Pompeo met the N.Korean leader, KJU, SK suggested that its president Moon would seek a peace treaty with NK when he meets KJU later the month. That would replace the armistice that has been in place on the peninsula since the end of the 1950-53 Korean war. (Robert Kelly, Guardian)
- Mike Pompeo, the director of the CIA, had a secret meeting with KJU in NK over Easter as part of an effort to lay the groundwork for direct talks between Donald Trump and KJU.(Julian Borger, Guardian)
- The chairman of the US Senate Foreign Relations Committee said on Wed. he did not expect that CIA Director Mike Pompeo's meeting with N.Korean leader KJU would affect votes in the Senate on his nomination to be secretary of state. (Reuters)
- The last time a US official of CIA director Mike Pompeo's stature visited NK was in 2014, when then-Director of National Intelligence James Clapper went to secure the release of two Americans held prisoners. (Jamie Tarabay, CNN)
- US Secretary of State nominee and Director of the Central Intelligence Agency Mike Pompeo's reported secret visit to NK marks the latest addition to the list of top-ranking US officials visiting the reclusive country. (Yonhap)
- CIA director Mike Pompeo, US President Donald Trump's nominee to become the top US diplomat, visited NK last week and met leader KJU with whom he formed a "good relationship", Trump said on Wed. (Making Brice, Josh Smith, Reuters)
- Secretary of State nominee Mike Pompeo's newly disclosed trip to NK to lay the groundwork for denuclearization talks is earning him grudging praise from senators opposed to his bid to be the nation's top diplomat—a potentially important development as Pompeo tries to shore up at least some Democratic support for his confirmation vote. (Karoun Demirjian, WaPo)
- The prospect of a Trump-Kim summit has given rise to widespread concerns over unrealistic expectations, nefarious intentions or whether Trump will be prepared to negotiate. And questions abound as to KJU's motives for coming to the table now, as well as his ultimate theory of victory. (John Delury, WaPo)
- President Trump says Koreas 'have my blessing' to discuss ending decades-long war as NK, SK prepare to meet. (Associated Press)
- Literally all eyes will likely be on the upcoming summit between S.Korean President Moon and N.Korean leader KJU, with a record number of journalists from around the globe set to cover the event that Moon said could mark the start of the long delayed denuclearization of NK. (Yonhap)
- Russia's support of UN sanctions against NK means the country will expel tens of thousands of N.Korean migrant laborers. The Russian port city of Vladivostok is one area being impacted. (Lucian Kim, NPR)
- President Trump's decision to send his CIA director, Mike Pompeo, on a secret trip to NK to meet its leader, KJU, reflects the president's trust in Mr. Pompeo as well as the central role that spies, rather than diplomats, played in brokering what could be the historic opening between Mr. Trump and Mr. Kim. (Mark Landler, NYTimes)
- SK's top security official said Wed. Seoul and Washington were exploring ways to set in place a permanent peace regime on the Korean Peninsula, which requires a formal end to the 1950-53 Korean War that ended in armistice, not a peace treaty. (Kang Jin-kyu, Joongang Daily)

- One unexpected factor was Trump's sudden acceptance of a summit meeting with KJU. The N.Korean leader thought that the decision would take months and never imagined it would be announced on the spot, which is why he made that surprise visit to China. Now, Trump and Kim are afraid of each other's unpredictable nature. (Kim Hyun-ki, Joongang Daily)
- SK and NK as well as the US will discuss signing peace treaties to formally end the 1950-53 Korean War during next week's inter-Korean summit and the following one between Washington and Pyongyang, a senior Cheong Wa Dae official said Wed. (Kim Rahn, Korea Times)
- In this editorial piece, the Guardian expresses its view on Trump's Korean diplomacy. It states that while the revelation of face-to-face talks between KJU and Mike Pompeo shows that things are changing, it doesn't prove that the Trump way is working. (Guardian)
- Asia's top sports body said Wed. it will hold a promotional event for the continent's top athletic competition in NK this spring. (Yonhap)
- SK confirmed on Wed. that it had been in talks with US and N.Korean officials about negotiating a peace treaty to formally end the Korean War after more than 60 years, as the US and its ally try to establish a basis for persuading NK to give up its nuclear weapons.(Choe Sang-hun, Jane Perlez, NYTimes)
- US President Donald Trump should focus on ways to denuclearize NK when he meets with KJU, before addressing other issues, such as human rights, a former US ambassador to SK said Tues. (Yonhap)
- President Trump on Tues. said the US and NK have already had direct communications at "extremely high levels." (Danielle Haynes, UPI)
- Seeking to reassure Japanese Prime Minister Shinzo Abe of their close alliance ahead of planned talks with NK, the Trump administration has signaled it is open to considering exempting Japan from new steel and aluminum tariffs that Abe opposes. (Jill Colvin, Zeke Miller, AP)
- US President Donald Trump on Tues. endorsed Seoul's efforts to try to negotiate with Pyongyang to end the Korean War. (Steve Herman, VOA)
- CIA director Mike Pompeo traveled to Pyongyang for a secret meeting with N.Korean leader KJU, according to multiple media reports. (Steve Herman, VOA)
- CIA director Mike Pompeo forged a "good relationship" with N.Korean leader KJU when they met last week, US President Donald Trump has tweeted. (BBC)
- US President Trump has a list of candidate cities and countries for the highly anticipated summit with KJU. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- President Trump on Wed. confirmed that his CIA chief secretly met with KJU in NK and said "a good relationship was formed" heading into the adversaries' anticipated summit. (Matthew Lee, Zeke Miller, AP)
- President Trump told reporters on Tues. that five locations are being considered for his widely anticipated meeting with N.Korean leader KJU. (Kevin Liptak, CNN)
- US President Trump said on Wed. that Mike Pompeo, the current CIA director and his nominee to be the top US diplomat, met with N.Korean leader KJU last week. (Reuters)

- President Trump expressed optimism Wed. that his planned summit with N.Korean leader KJU can help make the world safer, and he said his envoy, CIA Director Mike Pompeo, and Kim have already forged a "good relationship." (Anne Gearan, David Nakamura, WaPo)
- President Trump announced Wed. that CIA Director and Secretary of State-designate Mike Pompeo recently held a secret meeting with N.Korean leader KJU, the most concrete public step to date towards planned talks between Kim and Trump later this spring. (Louis Nelson, Politico)
- President Trump confirmed Wed. morning that CIA Director Mike Pompeo visited NK and met with leader KJU. (Maegan Vazquez, CNN)
- President Trump said Tues. that the US and NK are holding direct talks at "extremely high levels" in preparation for a potential summit with N.Korean leader KJU. (Jill Colvin, Zeke Miller, AP)
- The US is well-prepared to deter incoming N.Korean missiles, should a strike occur following a breakdown in talks between the two countries. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- The US election calendar could be a key factor in determining the scope and timing of a potential deal to end the N.Korean nuclear program. (Brian Padden, VOA)
- Cheong Wa Dae's confirmation that the inter-Korea summit will address the prospects of signing a peace treaty with NK is raising speculation that withdrawing or downsizing US troops stationed in SK could also be on the table. (Kim Bo-eun, Korea Times)
- The details of the Trump-Kim summit and what will be discussed remain up in the air, but three of the key issues include the following: Where will the summit take place? What would denuclearization on the Korean Peninsula entail? Will SK and NK be able to negotiate a peace deal? (Rick Noack, WaPo)
- The world learned on Tues. that earlier this month, CIA Director Mike Pompeo was in Pyongyang, meeting with the N.Korean leader, KJU. (Jonathan Cristol, CNN)
- Chinese President Xi Jinping will travel to NK to reciprocate a recent Beijing trip by the communist ally's leader, a news report said Wed. (Yonhap)

Prepared by Jinny Ahn, HRNK Research Intern

——————————————————

Thursday, April 19, 2018

N.Korea: Committing Crimes Against Humanity in Two Regions of the World; A Role for Human Rights at the Inter-Korean Summit?; Moon: N.Korea could potentially drop withdrawal of US forces as condition of denuclearization

Top News:

North Korea: Committing Crimes Against Humanity in Two Regions of the World (HRNK Insider, 04/19/2018)
A Role for Human Rights at the Inter-Korean Summit? (KEI, 04/17/2018)

In North Korea:
(3rd LD) N. Korea's ruling party set for meeting on key policy decisions (Yonhap, 04/19/2018)
Less emphasis on nuclear development, but no mention of denuclearization either (DailyNK, 04/19/2018)
Kim Jong-un elevates wife to position of North Korea's first lady (Guardian, 04/19/2018)
New role for wife of North Korea's Kim: First lady (Korea Times, 04/19/2018)
NK party to hold key meeting ahead of summit (Korea Times, 04/19/2018)
North Korea has a new budget and it's full of fiscal hijinks (WaPo, 04/19/2018)
North Korean authorities reduce taxes after emboldened locals complain (DailyNK, 04/19/2018)
North Korea: Trump says he will leave Kim summit if it isn't 'fruitful' (Guardian, 04/19/2018)
Ri Sol Ju, Kim Yo Jong leading a new era of women in government in North Korea? (DailyNK, 04/19/2018)
Should We Worry About a North Korean Chernobyl? (38 North, 04/19/2018)

In South Korea:
(LEAD) Moon calls for 'bold' and 'creative' steps to denuclearize N. Korea (Yonhap, 04/19/2018)
(LEAD) N. Korean defectors more prone to expensive loans: report (Yonhap, 04/19/2018)
(2nd LD) Military training on inter-Korean summit day still up in air (Yonhap, 04/19/2018)
Connected figure offered to save USKI (Joongang Daily, 04/19/2018)
Pyongyang isn't demanding withdrawal of U.S. troops, says Moon (Joongang Daily, 04/19/2018)
Seoul lawmaker joins election amid online comment-rigging scandal (UPI, 04/19/2018)
Seoul: N. Korean leader removes major nuclear sticking point (WaPo, 04/19/2018)
Trump's optimism helps perk up the market (Joongang Daily, 04/19/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
(LEAD) Koreas not likely to hold high-level talks this week: Seoul (Yonhap, 04/19/2018)
(2nd LD) Koreas to open hotline between leaders Friday (Yonhap, 04/19/2018)
[ZOOM KOREA] The power of Panmunjom as a gateway for peace (Joongang Daily, 04/19/2018)
D-8: Moon-Kim summit prep 'almost done' (Korea Times, 04/19/2018)
Kim isn't demanding U.S. forces to leave (Joongang Daily, 04/19/2018)
Koreas can declare end of war next week (Korea Times, 04/19/2018)
Koreas to hold rehearsals ahead of next week's summit (Yonhap, 04/19/2018)
Moon optimistic about denuclearization deal (Korea Times, 04/19/2018)
North Korea seeks 'complete denuclearization', says Moon, as U.S. vows continued pressure (Reuters, 04/19/2018)
Panmunjom Truce Village Prepares to Host Inter-Korean Summit (VOA, 04/19/2018)
North Korea drops withdrawal of US forces as condition of denuclearization, Moon says (CNN, 04/19/2018)
North Korea Removes Major Obstacle to U.S. Negotiations, South Says (NYT, 04/19/2018)
South Korea's Moon: North Korea seems willing to denuclearize (UPI, 04/19/2018)

International:
(LEAD) Senior U.S. diplomat to visit S. Korea ahead of N.K. summits (Yonhap, 04/19/2018)
(LEAD) Trump vows efforts for successful summit, threatens to boycott meeting if not 'fruitful' (Yonhap, 04/19/2018)
(3rd LD) Trump: Pompeo met N. Korean leader, formed 'good relationship' (Yonhap, 04/19/2018)
Donald Trump calls Mike Pompeo 'great guy' as nomination for Secretary of State hits trouble (Telegraph, 04/19/2018)
Donald Trump says he'll walk out of Kim Jong-un talks if they're not 'fruitful' (Telegraph, 04/19/2018)
G7 vows maximum economic pressure on N. Korea (Yonhap, 04/19/2018)
Persuading Pyongyang: Advice for Trump when it comes to Kim (CNN, 04/18/2018)
Sticking point on Trump-Kim talks: Location, location, location (CNN, 04/18/2018)
The Latest: Anti-nuclear group backs US-NKorea talks (WaPo, 04/19/2018)
Trade issues expose the limits of Trump-Abe 'bromance' (WaPo, 04/19/2018)
Trump also aiming to eliminate N.K. chemical, biological weapons: official (Yonhap, 04/19/2018)
Trump bullish on North Korea talks, but willing to walk away (CNN, 04/18/2018)
Trump hails Pompeo-Kim meeting, says North Korea summit plans advancing (Reuters, 04/18/2018)
Trump leaves open possibility of bailing on meeting with Kim (WaPo, 04/19/2018)
Trump pledges to make the summit 'a worldwide success' (Joongang Daily, 04/19/2018)
Trump says talks under way for release of Americans held in North Korea (Reuters, 04/19/2018)
Trump 'will walk out' if North Korea talks not fruitful (BBC, 04/19/2018)
US, Japan Trade Differences Remain After Trump-Abe Talks (VOA, 04/19/2018)
Uzbek president hopes for success in inter-Korean summit, peace on peninsula (Yonhap, 04/19/2018)

Top News:

- Syria's use of chemical weapons against its own civilians is a crime against humanity. As it is known that the Kim regime has been providing chemical weapons support to the Syrian regime, the Syria-N.K. connection must be cut off to prevent further crimes against humanity. Any future summit between N.K. and the US should address this issue directly. (Robert Collins, HRNK Insider)
- While the discussion of N.K. human rights is not known to be on the inter-Korean summit agenda, the three general topics agreed upon are broad enough to provide an opportunity to include some human rights issues. (Robert R. King, KEI)

In North Korea:

- N.K. will hold a plenary session of its ruling communist party this week to make key policy decisions, local media said Thursday, as it's preparing for summit talks with S.K. and the US. (Yonhap)

- The words "nuclear development" have not been mentioned in any recent public announcements made by N.K.. However, the N.K. government has made no mention of denuclearization either. (Ahn Jong Sik, DailyNK)
- N.K.'s leader, KJU, has given his wife the title of first lady in what analysts say is a major boost to her status ahead of back-to-back summits with S.K. and the US. (Guardian)
- KJU has given his young, stylish wife the title of first lady in what analysts say is a major boost to her status ahead of back-to-back summits with ROK and US. (Korea Times)
- N.K. will hold a key meeting on Friday when its leader KJU is expected to make public the hosting of the upcoming summits with Moon and Trump. (Lee Min-hyung, Korea Times)
- N.K.'s Supreme People's Assembly passed a budget with all of those features last week in an annual ritual reflecting the country's conflicting desires to keep up appearances, especially for potential foreign investors, while obscuring even the most basic statistics needed to gauge its economic health. (Eric Talmadge, AP)
- Local outrage reached boiling point in Ryanggang Province after the authorities increased demands for contributions towards a construction project. But local authorities have reportedly reduced their demands after residents in at least one instance lodged complaints over 'non-tax contribution assignments.' (Kang Mi Jin, DailyNK)
- Trump has pledged to meet the N.K. leader, KJU, "in the coming weeks" but warned that he was prepared to walk away if the talks were not "fruitful". (David Smith, Guardian)
- Ri Sol Ju and Kim Yo Jong are now prominent, well-known figures throughout N.K., and are beginning to take on more independent political roles almost simultaneously, leading to the emergence of more influential women in the KJU era. (Ahn Jong Sik, DailyNK)
- Until recently, civilian atomic sector was not N.K.'s top priority, with most of the resources going into nuclear programs instead. This, however, may be changing, especially with the specter of an external trade and energy blockade looming ever larger after the adoption of international sanctions measures in 2017.(Oleg Shcheka, 38 North)

In South Korea:

- Moon highlighted the need for bold imaginations and creative solutions to rid N.Korea of nuclear weapons Thursday, hours after Trump left open the possibility of walking out of his upcoming summit with KJU if it seems unfruitful. (Yonhap)
- N.Korean defectors are resorting more to non-bank loans with higher rates of interest than native S.Koreans, making it harder for them to service their debts. (Yonhap)
- S.K. and the U.S. have yet to decide whether to continue their combined military exercises through the inter-Korean summit day next week. (Yonhap)
- Last January, USKI faced scrutiny from the National Assembly and risked losing Seoul's financial support, a well-connected figure who was applying for a visiting scholar position at the institute offered to come to its rescue. (An Hyo-seong, Joongang Daily)
- N.K. is not demanding the withdrawal of the U.S. military forces from S.K. in return for its denuclearization, S.K. President Moon said. (Kang Jin-kyu, Joongang Daily)

- S.K.'s ruling Democratic Party lawmaker Kim Kyoung-soo has decided to press ahead with his bid for the local election, despite allegations that he was involved in online comment-rigging. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- Moon said Thursday that KJU isn't asking for the withdrawal of U.S. troops from the Korean Peninsula as a precondition for abandoning his nuclear weapons. If true, this would seem to remove a major sticking point to a potential nuclear disarmament deal. (Foster Klug, AP)
- Korea's main bourse ended higher Thursday as foreign investors welcomed signs of easing tensions on the Korean peninsula and upbeat prospects for tech companies' earnings. The Korean won appreciated against the U.S. dollar. (Kim Eun-jin, Joongang Daily)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- Two Koreas are not likely to hold high-level talks this week to discuss the agenda for next week's summit between their leaders, Seoul's unification ministry said. (Yonhap)
- The two Koreas will open a direct telephone line between the countries' leaders on Friday ahead of their summit set for April 27, Seoul's presidential office said. (Yonhap)
- Although there have been several meetings between two Koreas at Panmunjom, the upcoming April 27 inter-Korean summit meeting carries the biggest historical significance. (Park Sang-moon, Joongang Daily)
- The historic April 27 inter-Korean summit is just around the corner. And the renovation of Peace House _ the venue for the meeting at Panmunjom inside the DMZ that bisects the two Koreas _ is coming to a close. (Park Si-soo, Korea Times)
- N.K. is not demanding the withdrawal of the U.S. military forces from S.K. in return for its denuclearization, President Moon said on Thursday. (Kang Jin-kyu, Joongang Daily)
- Questions are being raised over how the upcoming inter-Korean summit will pave the way for a declaration ending the Korean War, after a reference to the subject was made by the White House this week. (Kim Bo-eun, Korea Times)
- Two Koreas will hold separate rehearsals ahead of next week's landmark summit between Moon and KJU. (Yonhap)
- S.K. President Moon said Thursday he was optimistic about signing a denuclearization deal with N.K. and establishing peace by formally ending the Korean War. (Kim Rahn, Korea Times)
- N.K. has expressed its commitment to "complete denuclearization" of the Korean peninsula and is not seeking conditions, S.K. President Moon said on Thursday, as the US vowed to maintain "maximum pressure" on Pyongyang. (Joyce Lee, Stephanie Nebehay, Reuters)
- Next week's inter-Korean summit will take place in the uninhabited village of Panmunjom, inside the tense and highly fortified DMZ that separates the communist North and the democratic South. (Brian Padden, Hyung Jin Kim, VOA)
- N.K. has dropped its long-held demand that the US withdraw forces from S.K. in exchange for denuclearization, S.K. President Moon said. (Euan McKirdy, CNN)
- KJU has removed a key obstacle to negotiations with Washington by no longer demanding the removal of US troops from S.K. as a condition for denuclearizing DPRK, the S.K. president Moon said. (Choe Sang-hun, NYT)

- S.K. President Moon said Thursday N.K. is on the same page on "full denuclearization" and isn't making unreasonable demands. (Jennie Oh, UPI)

International:

- A senior U.S. diplomat will visit S.K. next week for further coordination ahead of both countries' summits with KJU. (Yonhap)
- Trump said Wednesday he is doing everything possible to have a "very successful" meeting with KJU, but added he will walk away from the summit if it is unlikely to bear fruit. (Yonhap)
- Trump confirmed Wednesday that his secretary of state-designate met with N.K.'s leader, saying the two formed a "good relationship." (Yonhap)
- Mike Pompeo, the CIA Director, faced growing opposition to him become US secretary of state last night as Democrats attacked him for not disclosing his secret meeting with KJU to Congress. (Nick Allen, Telegraph)
- US President Trump said he'll abandon plans for an unprecedented summit with N.K. leader KJU if he decides it won't be successful - or walk out of the meeting if it's not productive while he's there. (Nicola Smith, Telegraph)
- The world's seven largest advanced economies vowed Wednesday to keep maximum economic pressure on N.K. over its nuclear and ballistic missile programs. (Yonhap)
- As US President Trump and N.K.'s KJU seem set to meet face-to-face in the coming weeks, Trump, who famously quipped that "everything is negotiable," likely sees the talks as transactional within the broader strokes of the "art of the deal." (Jasper Kim, CNN)
- As top national security officials continue to work behind the scenes to prepare for an audacious one-on-one meeting between Trump and KJU, a key sticking point has emerged: where to hold the talks. (Elise Labott, Jenna McLaughlin and Kevin Liptak, CNN)
- The anti-nuclear weapons group that won last year's Nobel Peace Prize says it's "very supportive" of a summit between Trump and KJU, after months of risky tensions between them. (AP)
- Shinzo Abe courted the new American president with a golden driver not long after Trump won the White House. He's met with the billionaire businessman more than any other world leader, and he is Trump's second-most frequent caller. (Zeke Miller and Jill Colvin, AP)
- In his upcoming summit with KJU, Trump is aiming to eliminate the country's arsenal of chemical and biological weapons as well as nuclear ones, the top American envoy to Japan said Thursday. (Yonhap)
- President Trump offered a bullish view of his planned talks with N.K. leader KJU, insisting he's positioned to accomplish what his predecessors could not. He also emphasized he'd be willing to leave the summit if it falls short of his expectations. (Kevin Liptak, CNN)
- Trump said on Wednesday that preparations were advancing for a first-ever summit with N.K. after CIA director Mike Pompeo visited Pyongyang and formed a "good relationship" with its leader KJU. (Makini Brice, Josh Smith, Reuters)
- Trump said that although he's looking ahead optimistically to a historic summit meeting with KJU he could still pull out if he feels it's "not going to be fruitful." (Matthew Pennington, AP)

- Trump pledged Wednesday that he will do “everything possible” to make an historic summit with N.K. leader KJU “a worldwide success.” (Sarah Kim, Joongang Daily)
- President Trump said on Wednesday that negotiations were underway for the release of three Americans held as prisoners in DPRK. (Reuters)
- US President Trump says that if his planned talks with N.K. leader KJU are not fruitful he will "walk out". (BBC)
- Despite frequent assurances that they continue to enjoy a warm friendship, Trump and Shinzo Abe over two days of talks apparently failed to bridge significant differences on major trade issues. (Steve Herman, VOA)
- Uzbek President Shavkat Mirziyoev has expressed hope that the upcoming inter-Korean summit will pave the way for lasting peace on the Korean Peninsula, the foreign ministry here said Thursday. (Yonhap)

Prepared by James Park, HRNK Research Intern

——————————————————

Friday, April 20, 2018

NK set for key party meeting ahead of summits with SK, US; SK, NK set up direct hotline between leaders; N.Korean Denuclearization to Top Agenda at NPT Talks

In North Korea:

(LEAD) N.K. set for key party meeting ahead of summits with S. Korea, U.S. (Yonhap, 04/20/2018)
Ahead of summits, North Korea’s ruling party calls meeting (WaPo, 04/20/2018)
Kim calls an unusual party meeting (Joongang Daily, 04/20/2018)
No ‘lunatics’ or ‘war maniacs’: North Korea dials down the anti-U.S. rhetoric (WaPo, 04/20/2018)
North Korea to bring mobile phones, radio car to DMZ summit (UPI, 04/20/2018)
North Korea undergoes an image change ahead of summits (BBC, 04/20/2018)
North Korea’s nuclear reactor puts 100 million people in ‘mortal danger’ amid fears of Asian Chernobyl (Telegraph, 04/20/2018)
North Koreans in the dark about Trump summit – but officials know 'he's crazy' (Guardian, 04/20/2018)
Political police prey on public for personal gain (Daily NK, 04/20/2018)
Sanctions Are Hurting North Korea. Can They Make Kim Give In? (NY*Times*, 04/20/2018)
Sanctions Force North Korea to Shutter Chemical Factory (RFA, 04/19/2018)
The North Korean Parliamentary Session and Budget Report 2018: Cautious Optimism for the Summit Year (38 North, 04/19/2018)

In South Korea:

Gov't holds interagency meeting to follow up on Moon's summit agreements (Yonhap, 04/20/2018)
Ignoring the rights issue (Joongang Daily, 04/20/2018)
Moon's advisers to speak on summit (Korea Times, 04/20/2018)
Moon faces tough challenges ahead of summit with Kim (WaPo, 04/20/2018)
Reunification activist hikes the country barefoot (Joongang Daily, 04/20/2018)
S. Korea spent 1.6 bln won for art troupe's concerts in Pyongyang (Yonhap, 04/20/2018)
South Korean president says North isn't insisting on American troop withdrawal (WaPo, 04/19/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
(LEAD) Military hopes for summit breakthrough in easing border tension (Yonhap, 04/20/2018)
(LEAD) South, North Korea set up direct hotline between leaders (Yonhap, 04/20/2018)
Confronting a Crisis? Now, Kim Jong-un Can Just Pick Up the Phone (NYT*imes*, 04/19/2018)
Haste is dangerous (Joongang Daily, 04/21/2018)
Hotline that connects Moon and Kim tested (Joongang Daily, 04/20/2018)
Koreas set up 1st hotline between leaders ahead of summit (WaPo, 04/202018)
Maintained momentum must follow inter-Korean summit (Daily NK, 04/20/2018)
Moon, Kim connected with direct hotline (Korea Times, 04/20/2018)
North and South Korea make first call on hotline set up ahead of summit with Kim Jong-un (Telegraph, 04/20/2018)
North Korea drops demand for US troop withdrawal from South in boost for talks (Telegraph, 04/20/2018)
North Korea wants total denuclearisation, says Seoul (Guardian, 04/19/2018)
Person to person: North and South Korea get neighbourly with direct hot line (Reuters, 04/20/2018)
Pyongyang calling: North and South Korean leaders get hotline as stage set for summit (Guardian, 04/20/2018)
Robust verification protocol key to successful denuclearization of N.K.: official (Yonhap, 04/20/2018)
Violinist seeking peace through music finds hope, worry in Korea summits (UPI, 04/20/2018)

International:
(LEAD) S. Korean, Japanese nuclear envoys to discuss N.K. issue (Yonhap, 04/20/2018)
Days shaking the world (Korea Times, 04/20/2018)
Ex-envoy expects U.S. detainees to be freed during Trump-Kim meeting (Yonhap, 04/20/2018)
EU blacklists four over financing North Korea's arms program (Reuters, 04/19/2018)
Is North Korea ready to scrap its nuclear weapons? (Politifact, 04/19/2018)
Latvian bank asks US to hold off money laundering sanctions (WaPo, 04/20/2018)
Neutral ground or dramatic backdrop? Where Donald Trump and Kim Jong-un could meet (Telegraph, 04/20/2018)
North Korean Denuclearization to Top Agenda at NPT Talks (VOA, 04/19/2018)
Pompeo-Kim Meeting 'Very Positive Sign' for US-North Korea Talks (VOA, 04/20/2018)
Russia says will not offer to host Trump meeting with North Korea's Kim: RIA (Reuters, 04/20/2018)
Sanctions Targeting North Korea Ripple Into Russia (NPR, 04/19/2018)
Strategy, not skepticism, needed ahead of North Korea summit (Axios, 04/19/2018)
The G7 is upset about North Korea laundering money. It only has itself to blame (Quartz, 04/20/2018)

Threat to walk out on Kim highlights risks of Trump's volatile diplomatic approach (CNN, 04/20/2018)
Trump-Kim meeting should have purpose: U.S. lawmaker (Yonhap, 04/20/2018)
U.S. expresses support for formal end to Korean War (Yonhap, 04/20/2018)
U.S. State Department officials did not accompany Pompeo on trip to Pyongyang (Reuters, 04/19/2018)
U.S. supports an end to armistice (Joongang Daily, 04/20/2018)
US Envoy: Trump Intent on Bringing Home Americans Held in N. Korea (VOA, 04/19/2018)
What US and North Korea mean when they talk about denuclearization (CNN, 04/20/2018)
Why Mongolia hopes to host a Trump-Kim Jong Un meeting (WaPo, 04/20/2018)

In North Korea:

- NK is set to hold a plenary meeting of its ruling party Fri., drawing keen attention over whether it will send a message of denuclearization ahead of its summits with SK and the US. (Yonhap)
- NK's ruling party was scheduled to convene a meeting of its full Central Committee on Fri. to discuss what state media are calling a "new stage" of policies. (Eric Talmadge, AP)
- NK said it was holding an unusual plenary meeting of the ruling Central Committee of the Workers' Party on Fri. to discuss crucial issues. (Lee Sung-eun, Joongang Daily)
- As the presidents of SK and the US prepare for summits with the previously reclusive KJU, there has been lots of conjecture about what, exactly, the N.Korean leader is prepared to discuss. (Anna Fifield, WaPo)
- NK wants to bring mobile phones to the summit between KJU and S.Korean President Moon next Fri. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- N.Korean leader KJU appears to have undergone a minor media makeover as he prepares for a series of meetings with former sworn enemies. (Alistair Coleman, BBC)
- Shortcuts on safety standards, poor maintenance and disdain for operational protocols at NK Yongbyon nuclear power plant are putting 100 million people across north-east Asia in "mortal danger", according to a new report. (Julian Ryall, Telegraph)
- From Pyongyang's vast, empty boulevards to its dusty, disorderly alleyways, there is no talk of the high-stakes summit between the US president, Donald Trump, and N.Korean leader, KJU, that has transfixed the rest of the world. The meeting is still a state secret, unmentioned in official media, unknown to the majority of N.Korean citizens–and far too dangerous for those who have heard whispers to discuss them in public. (Emma Graham-Harrison, Guardian)
- According to sources inside the country, officers from NK's Ministry of State Security have been going to greater lengths, including false accusations, to arrest citizens for personal gain. (Ha Yoon Ah, Daily NK)
- There is growing evidence that tough new sanctions imposed on NK to stop its nuclear weapons and missile programs have begun to bite, and bite hard. (Choe Sang-hun, NYTimes)
- A N.Korean chemical plant which had been shuttered for 20 years and renovated for reoperation in 2016 appears to have been shut down again due to international sanctions imposed on the regime of leader KJU, sources inside the country and in neighboring China said. (Joonho Kim, Leejin Jun, Roseanne Gerin, RFA)

- The 2017 session of the N.Korean parliament followed more or less the same routine as in previous years. A new aspect was that the state media also reported about a Politburo session during which the budget report has been discussed and authorized. This shows that the Party's official role in directing the country has been strengthened, and that the already largely ceremonial role of the parliament has not been expanded. (Ruediger Frank, 38 North)

In South Korea:

- The government held the first meeting Fri. of an interagency task force established to follow up on agreements that President Moon reached at summit meetings with foreign leaders, officials said. (Yonhap)
- Human rights are universal values that must be promoted beyond ideologies and regimes. Today's Republic of Korea is an accomplishment of the liberals who rejected the peculiar nature of Korean-style democracy in the 1970s and fought authoritarianism. This is the precise reason the Moon administration should raise the human rights issues with NK. SK must persuade NK that the biggest card for Pyongyang to promote KJU's genuineness is improving human rights, and that is the way to win the regime security. (Kim Su-jung, Joongang Daily)
- A group of President Moon's advisers on inter-Korean affairs will participate in a forum on the eve of Moon's summit with N.Korean leader KJU on Apr. 27. (Lee Min-hyung, Korea Times)
- The meeting next week between the leaders of the rival Koreas will be the ultimate test of S.Korean President Moon belief that his nation should lead international efforts to deal with NK. (Kim Tong-Hyung, AP)
- Jo Seung-hwan is doing his part to promote the cause of reunifying the Korean Peninsula—by walking barefoot from his hometown in South Jeolla to Paju, Gyeonggi, near the border between the two Koreas. (Kim Ho, Joongang Daily)
- SK's unification ministry approved Fri. the use of a state fund to cover 1.6 billion won ($1.49 million USD) in expenditures for a S.Korean art troupe's performances in NK earlier this month. (Yonhap)
- N.Korean leader KJU will not demand the withdrawal of the US military from SK as part of a denuclearization deal, SK's president said Thurs. as preparations for their meeting next week proceeded apace. (Anna Fifield, WaPo)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- SK's military said Fri. the inter-Korean summit talks next week may lead the two Koreas to let their guards down along the heavily fortified border. (Yonhap)
- SK and NK on Fri. set up a telephone line between their leaders, enabling direct dialogue between S.Korean President Moon and N.Korean leader KJU, who are also set to meet in person next week. (Yonhap)

- NK and SK on Fri. installed what officials said was the first-ever hotline between their top leaders, another sign of improving relations on the divided Korean Peninsula. (Choe Sang-hun, NYTimes)
- After a peace treaty is signed, the combined SK-US forces will lose justification. SK will be alone against any future N.Korean threat under a peace settlement without the protection of the US. If a peace treaty is signed hastily, we could end up as a Vietnam or Yemen. Let's wait until NK is entirely disarmed of nuclear weapons and SK is safe from any military threat. (Joongang Daily)
- A hotline between the S.Korean and N.Korean leaders, the first of its kind, was successfully tested Fri. afternoon, exactly one week ahead of their summit on Apr. 27, according to the Blue House. (Sarah Kim, Joongang Daily)
- NK and SK installed the first-ever telephone hotline between their leaders Fri. as they prepare for a rare summit next week aimed at resolving the nuclear standoff with Pyongyang. (Kim Tong-Hyung, AP)
- With the upcoming NK-SK summit drawing closer, the issue of formally ending the war between the two countries has become a topic of heavy interest. Accordingly, significant speculation surrounds the progress that will be made towards this end, with one of the major agenda items being peace on the Korean peninsula. (Ha Yoon Ah, Daily NK)
- A hotline connecting President Moon to N.Korean leader KJU has been installed, Cheong Wa Dae said Fri., one week ahead of their historic Apr. 27 summit. (Yi Whan-woo, Korea Times)
- NK and SK on Fri. set up their first ever direct telephone hotline between their leaders, ahead of a historic summit next week that aims to resolve nuclear tensions with Pyongyang and bring peace to the Korean Peninsula. (Nicola Smith, Telegraph)
- N.Korean leader KJU has reportedly dropped his demand that US troops leave the Korean Peninsula in return for giving up his nuclear weapons, potentially removing one of the biggest obstacles to a peace deal. (Nicola Smith, Julian Ryall, Telegraph)
- NK has expressed a desire for the "complete denuclearisation" of the Korean peninsula without attaching preconditions such as the withdrawal of US troops, the S.Korean president has said. (David Smith, Guardian)
- Diplomatic foes NK and SK installed a direct phone line between their leaders on Fri. as they prepare for the first summit since 2007—and the connection was great, SK's presidential office said. (Heekyong Yang, Hyonhee Shin, Reuters)
- A hotline between the leaders of NK and SK went live on Fri., a week before they are due to hold a historic summit on the border that has separated their countries for more than six decades. (Justin McCurry, Guardian)
- A robust verification protocol is an integral part of efforts to successfully denuclearize NK given what appears to be massive nuclear facilities the reclusive country has been operating for decades, a government source said Fri. (Yonhap)
- If tensions ran unusually high when Hyung Joon Won tried to realize inter-Korea harmony through music in 2015, rapidly changing politics in 2018 indicate the musicians, like other S.Korean advocates of civic exchange, might finally realize their goals. But for Won, like many other S.Koreans, uncertainty prevails about the outcome of the upcoming summits. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)

International:

- The top nuclear envoys of SK and Japan will meet early next week to discuss cooperation on NK and its nuclear issue, a foreign ministry official said Fri. (Yonhap)
- There are at least two factors that can give a global scale to the success of US-NK summit. First, it would spell the true end of the Cold War that is often believed to have ended with a series of events that culminated on Nov. 9, 1989, the day the communist East died and the capitalist West triumphed. Second and more importantly, if the summits are successful, they could not just avert a potential nuclear conflict but put it to rest forever. (Oh Young-jin, Korea Times)
- A former US envoy said Thurs. that he expects the three US detainees in NK to be released during an upcoming summit between the two countries' leaders. (Yonhap)
- The European Union on Thurs. imposed travel bans and asset freezes on four people suspected of "deceptive financial practices" to benefit NK's arms program. (Reuters)
- News that Mike Pompeo, current CIA director and President Donald Trump's pick to head the State Department, had been in NK drew an approving nod and a note of caution from the Senate's top Democrat, Sen. Chuck Schumer of New York. At the end of the day, there is a shift in rhetoric, but what NK means by denuclearization and what the US has in mind are likely quite different, experts told us. And NK has not offered any concrete steps in the meaning of that term in past US-N.Korean discussions. (Jon Greenberg, Politifact)
- Latvian bank ABLV has rejected the US government's findings that it "institutionalizes money laundering" and helps evade sanctions as "hyperbolic," saying they refer to old practices it has now changed.ABLV was accused by the US Treasury in Feb. of encouraging money laundering, facilitating financial transactions for sanctioned entities like the N.Korean government, and bribing local officials to keep doing so. (Associated Press)
- Donald Trump and KJU caught the world by surprise last month with the sensational announcement that the pair are to hold unprecedented talks. And now attention is shifting to where the most intensely-watched political event for years will be held. (Neil Connor, Telegraph)
- NK's commitment to the denuclearization of the Korean Peninsula is expected to be a key issue for discussion at next week's 2018 Preparatory Committee for the 2020 Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty Review Conference. (Lisa Schlein, VOA)
- CIA Director Mike Pompeo's secret visit to Pyongyang to meet with N.Korean leader KJU "is a very positive sign" that the US is taking "sensible and necessary steps to prepare for an eventual summit" and increasing the likelihood that a summit will take place, analysts said. (Christy Lee, VOA)
- Russian will not offer to host a meeting between US President Donald Trump and N.Korean leader KJU, Foreign Minister Sergei Lavrov said on Fri., according to the RIA news agency. (Reuters)
- As NK continued to ignore warnings to give up its nuclear weapons program last year, Russia had little choice but to join China in signing on to the latest round of UN sanctions in Sept. At the same time, the Kremlin saw an opening to act as a mediator between NK and the US, said Lukin. And that's why it went along with the sanctions, intended to hit NK's economy by limiting its oil imports, banning textile exports—and requiring Russia to expel some 30,000 N.Korean migrant workers. (Lucian Kim, NPR)

- Critics of the upcoming US summit with NK have voiced concerns that KJU will never agree to denuclearization or that, if he does, he will renege. Those dubious of hardliners like John Bolton suspect talks are a charade and a prelude to war. These fears are real, but so is the potential for success. (Morton H. Halperin, Axios)
- The West's most powerful countries are decidedly unhappy with NK using the offshore world to avoid sanctions—and they have a terse statement to prove it. (Max de Haldevang, Quartz)
- President Donald Trump's claim that he's ready to walk away in the middle of a summit with NK underscores the high risks of the unprecedented meeting with KJU that is set to take place within weeks. (Nicole Gaouette, Kevin Liptak, Jeremy Herb, CNN)
- US President Donald Trump should go into his meeting with N.Korean leader KJU with a purpose, not just to save face, a top US lawmaker said Thurs. (Yonhap)
- The US would support a formal end to the 1950-53 Korean War, the State Department said Thurs., as the two Koreas' leaders are expected to discuss a lasting peace during their summit next week. (Yonhap)
- US State Department officials did not accompany CIA Director Mike Pompeo to Pyongyang for a meeting with N.Korean leader KJU over the Easter weekend, a spokeswoman said on Thurs. (Reuters)
- The US Department of State said that it supports a formal end to the 1950-53 Korean War Thurs. through a peace treaty, a notion President Donald Trump has also endorsed. (Sarah Kim, Joongang Daily)
- US President Trump has "made a very firm commitment to work as hard as possible to try to return" American detainees and Japanese abductees from NK, said William Hagerty, the US ambassador to Japan. (Nike Ching, VOA)
- When N.Korean leader KJU and his S.Korean counterpart, Moon, meet next Fri., the most important topic on the agenda is the one on which there has been least clarity: denuclearization. But are Trump, Kim and Moon talking about same thing when it comes to NK giving up its nuclear capabilities? (Ben Westcott, CNN)
- Mongolia is certainly not the first country that people think of when they consider major international diplomatic events.But Mongolian leaders were quick to present themselves as an option for talks when Trump announced them in early Mar. There are some practical reasons for a summit in Mongolia. They include location and geopolitics. However, these strengths also factor into the concerns over hosting the Trump-KJU meeting in Ulaanbaatar. (Adam Taylor, WaPo)

Prepared by Jinny Ahn, HRNK Research Intern

Saturday, April 21, 2018

NK decides to suspend nuclear, missile tests, shut down atomic test site; S.Koreans Skeptical of NK's Promises; Want to See Proof; Trump praises NK's 'progress' as expert warns against optimism

In North Korea:

(LEAD) (News Focus) North Korean leader shifts policy focus to economy (Yonhap, 04/21/2018)
(5th LD) N.K. decides to suspend nuclear, missile tests, shut down atomic test site (Yonhap, 04/21/2018)
(LEAD) N. Korean officials handling S. Korea affairs gain clout amid peace mood (Yonhap, 04/21/2018)
Kim: North Korea no longer needs nuclear tests, state-run media reports (CNN, 04/20/2018)
Kim Jong-un: North Korea suspending missile launches and shutting down nuclear test site (Telegraph, 04/21/2018)
Kim Jong-un announces 'shutdown of nuclear test site, freeze on nuke and missile tests' (Korea Times, 04/21/2018)
N. Korea, setting stage for talks, halts nuclear, ICBM tests (WaPo, 04/20/2018)
N.Korea says it will stop nuclear tests, abolish test site -KCNA (Reuters, 04/20/2018)
North Korea 'halts missile and nuclear tests', says Kim Jong-un (BBC, 04/21/2018)
North Korea halts nuclear and missile tests ahead of planned Trump summit (Guardian, 04/20/2018)
North Korea says it has suspended nuclear, missile testing (WaPo, 04/20/2018)
North Korea says it will stop nuclear tests, abolish test site (Reuters, 04/20/2018)
North Korea says it will suspend nuclear and missile tests, shut down test site (WaPo, 04/20/2018)
North Korea Suspends Nuclear and Long-Range Missile Tests (VOA, 04/20/2018)
North Korea to close northern test site and halt missile tests (Joongang Daily, 04/21/2018)
Punggye-ri test site: Core facility behind N. Korea's nuclear program (Yonhap, 04/21/2018)
Report: North Korea executed six for leaking phone numbers (UPI, 04/20/2018)
Timeline of events leading to N. Korea nuke test suspension (WaPo, 04/20/2018)
Why has Kim Jong-un halted North Korean tests now? (BBC, 04/21/2018)

In South Korea:

Kaesong businesses welcome N. Korea's nuke test suspension (Yonhap, 04/21/2018)
Measures eyed to ease tension at DMZ (Korea Times, 04/20/2018)
North Korea meaningful progress toward denuclearization: South Korea (Reuters, 04/20/2018)
Parties show mixed reactions to N. Korea's nuke test suspension (Yonhap, 04/21/2018)
South Korea welcomes North's suspension of nuclear tests (Yonhap, 04/21/2018)
South Koreans Skeptical of North Korea's Promises; Want to See Proof (Reuters, 04/21/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

N. Korea's nuke suspension brightens S. Korean economic outlook (Yonhap, 04/21/2018)
Should human rights be on the agenda for the first summit? (Korea Times, 04/21/2018)
Upcoming South-North summit and its true potential (Korea Times, 04/21/2018)

International:

(2nd LD) Trump welcomes North Korea's freeze on nuclear tests (Yonhap, 04/21/2018)
(LEAD) Abe welcomes N.K. decision to halt nuclear, missile tests (Yonhap, 04/21/2018)
(LEAD) U.S. labels N. Korea 'force of instability' over human rights abuses (Yonhap, 04/21/2018)
(News Focus) Cautious optimism rises over N.K.'s decision to suspend tests, close nuclear site (Yonhap, 04/21/2018)
(News Focus) N. Korea's WMD test moratorium deja vu raises cautious summit expectations (Yonhap, 04/21/2018)
AP Analysis: Kim Jong Un tests Trump with latest nuke offer (WaPo, 04/21/2018)
Britain hopes North Korean nuclear move will be positive step (Reuters, 04/21/2018)
China welcomes N.K. suspension of tests (Yonhap, 04/21/2018)
China's foreign ministry welcomes North Korea nuclear test halt (Reuters, 04/21/2018)
EU welcomes N.K's decision to stop nuclear, missile tests (Yonhap, 04/21/2018)
EU Welcomes North Korean Move on Nuclear Tests, Urges Denuclearisation(Reuters, 04/21/2018)
Germany: North Korea Must Disclose Its Nuclear and Missile Program (Reuters, 04/21/2018)
Here's one thing North Korea can do to show it's serious about de-nuking (CNN, 04/21/2018)
Japan defense minister says it's not the time to ease pressure on North Korea: Kyodo (Reuters, 04/20/2018)
Japan PM Abe says North Korean move is 'forward motion,' but results essential (Reuters, 04/20/2018)
North Korea missile and nuclear test halt hailed (BBC, 04/21/2018)
North Korea nuke test halt could be a ruse, but also a sign Pyongyang serious about talks (NBC News, 04/20/2018)
Russia Calls on U.S., South Korea to Cut Military Activity After North Korean Move (Reuters, 04/21/2018)
State Department strikes reproductive rights, 'Occupied Territories' from human rights report (WaPo, 04/20/2018)
Trump praises North Korea's 'progress' as expert warns against optimism (Guardian, 04/21/2018)
Trump says progress being made by all, after North Korea vows to stop nuclear tests (Reuters, 04/21/2018)
Trump welcomes North Korea's suspension of nuclear tests (Reuters, 04/20/2018)
U.S. calls China, Russia, Iran, North Korea 'morally reprehensible' on rights (Reuters, 04/20/2018)
U.S. Human Rights Report Labels Russia and China Threats to Global Stability (NYTimes, 04/20/2018)
UN officials in Sweden for talks on North Korea, Syria (WaPo, 04/21/2018)
Under pressure to show results on North Korea, Trump the showman can't stop raising the bar for success (WaPo, 04/20/2018)
US Says China, Iran, Russia Are 'Forces for Instability' (VOA, 04/20/2018)
US says China, Iran, Russia are 'forces for instability' (WaPo, 04/20/2018)

In North Korea:

- N.Korean leader KJU appears to be shifting his policy focus to lifting NK's threadbare economy, amid brisk diplomacy that could lead to sanctions relief and security assurances, experts in SK said Sat. (Song Sang-ho, Yonhap)
- NK will suspend nuclear and missile tests and shut down its atomic test site, its state media said Sat., in a surprise announcement that could give momentum to its upcoming summits with SK and the US. (Kim Soo-yeon, Yonhap)
- In NK, an apparent power change is under way among top officials amid a peace mood on the peninsula ahead of the inter-Korean summit talks that will be followed by an unprecedented NK-US summit, according to the communist nation's announcement Sat. (Yonhap)
- NK says its quest for nuclear weapons is "complete" and it "no longer needs" to test its weapons capability, a significant development ahead of diplomatic engagement with both SK and the US. (Sophie Jeong, Will Ripley, Euan McKirdy, CNN)
- NK's leader KJU has announced Pyongyang will carry out no more ballistic missile tests and will shut down its nuclear test site, a significant gesture as diplomacy in the region ramps up. (Telegraph)
- NK's leader KJU has announced Pyongyang will carry out no more nuclear or intercontinental ballistic missile tests and will shut down its atomic test site, NK's state media reported Sat. (AFP)
- NK announced Sat. it will suspend nuclear tests and intercontinental ballistic missile launches ahead of its summits with Seoul and Washington, but stopped well short of suggesting it has any intention of giving up its nuclear weapons or scale back its production of missiles and their related component parts. (Kim Tong-Hyung, Eric Talmadge, AP)
- NK will suspend nuclear and missile tests effective immediately and abolish a nuclear test site in the northern part of the country in a bid to pursue economic growth and peace on the Korean peninsula, state media said on Sat. (Reuters)
- N.Korean leader KJU has said he will suspend all missile tests and shut down a nuclear test site with immediate effect. (BBC)
- NK has said it will end its tests of nuclear weapons and intercontinental ballistic missiles, and shut down its nuclear test site, in a dramatic development ahead of a much-anticipated meeting between its leader, KJU, and US President, Donald Trump. (Justin McCurry, Guardian)
- NK said Sat. it has suspended nuclear and long-range missile tests and plans to close its nuclear test site ahead of a new round of negotiations with SK and the US. There was no clear indication in NK's announcement if it would be willing to deal away its arsenal. (Kim Tong-Hyung, AP)
- NK will suspend nuclear and missile tests effective immediately and abolish a nuclear test site in a bid to pursue economic growth and peace on the Korean peninsula, NK's state media said on Sat., ahead of planned summits with SK and the US. (Cynthia Kim, Soyoung Kim, Reuters)
- N.Korean leader KJU has declared that he will suspend nuclear and missile tests starting Sat. and that he will shut down the site where the previous six nuclear tests were conducted. (Anna Fifield, WaPo)

- NK says it has suspended nuclear tests and plans to close its nuclear test site. NK's official Korean Central News Agency said the military is also suspending long-range missile tests and said the suspensions went into effect on Sat. (VOA)
- KJU said NK will scrap its northern nuclear experiment site while halting its nuclear and intercontinental ballistic missile (ICBM) tests, telling his top political aides on Fri. that the socialist regime would now concentrate on improving the economy. (Lee Sung-eun, Joongang Daily)
- NK has promised to close one of core facilities of its nuclear program ahead of its historic summits with SK and the US. Pyongyang on Sat. announced that it will suspend nuclear and missile tests and dismantle the Punggye-ri nuclear test site in the northeastern province. (Yonhap)
- NK may be struggling to keep its population in compliance with strict authoritarian rule, according to sources in the country who say there's evidence of executions and a reduction in food bonuses. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- NK said Sat. it has suspended nuclear and long-range missile tests and plans to close its nuclear test site. The announcement came ahead of a new round of negotiations between Pyongyang, Seoul and Washington.The following article is a timeline of the recent events. (Associated Press)
- KJU's announcement that NK is to halt nuclear and missile tests immediately comes as he prepares for two major diplomatic events. Analyst Ankit Panda asks what the N.Korean leader hopes to gain with his latest move. (Ankit Panda, BBC)

In South Korea:

- S.Korean firms that operated in the defunct inter-Korean factory park in NK welcomed NK's decision on Sat. to suspend nuclear and missile tests and shut down its atomic test site. (Yonhap)
- The Ministry of National Defense will announce measures to ease inter-Korean military tension after the summit between President Moon and N.Korean leader KJU next week, the ministry said Fri. (Lee Min-hyung, Korea Times)
- NK's decision to close its nuclear test site and suspend missile tests is a "meaningful progress" for denuclearization of the Korean peninsula, SK's presidential office said on Sat. (Reuters)
- Political parties on Sat. showed mixed responses over NK's decision to cease its testing of nuclear weapons and ballistic missiles and close its nuclear test site ahead of summits with SK and the US. (Yonhap)
- SK welcomed NK's decision to suspend nuclear and missile tests and shut down its atomic test site on Sat. (Yonhap)
- NK's announcement of a halt in its nuclear and missile tests was met with skepticism by many S.Koreans on Sat., highlighting political risk for SK's president as he embarks on the latest push for peace on the peninsula. (Joori Roh, Cynthia Kim, Reuters)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- NK's decision to halt nuclear tests is expected to ease uncertainties related to geopolitical risks in the S.Korean economy, market watchers said Sat. (Yonhap)
- In her opinion piece for the Korea Times, author Amanda Price raises the question of whether or not the human rights issue should be included in the upcoming NK-SK summit. She states that many have logically argued that it is premature to raise issues of human rights violations at the first Summit.While she is not suggesting that Moon go in all guns blazing for a final showdown, but simply with a bullet point marked "Human Rights Violation—Discuss and decide solution," Moon may be making history and a future for millions at the same time. Price states that if KJU wants sanctions lifted, and he will, addressing his violation of human rights must be on the agenda. (Amanda Price, Korea Times)
- In this opinion piece for the Korea Times, Emanuel Pastreichwrites that although the exact nature of the upcoming NK-SK summit remains uncertain, and could be subject to tremendous shifts as the political landscape in Washington DC evolves. He believes the summit meeting will be like none other and may end up defining a whole new world order, not just some discussions about normalizing relations.He also states that without any doubt, profound geopolitical transformation can be expected. (Emanuel Pastreich, Korea Times)

International:

- US President Donald Trump on Sat. welcomed N.Korean leader KJU's pledge to suspend nuclear and missile tests and shut down its nuclear test site. (Yonhap)
- Japanese Prime Minister Shinzo Abe on Sat. welcomed NK's decision to halt its nuclear and missile tests and shut down its nuclear test ahead of its planned summits with SK and the US, local media reported. (Yonhap)
- The US on Fri. labeled NK a "force of instability" over its violations of human rights. (Yonhap)
- NK's decision to stop missile and nuclear tests, and to shut down its nuclear test site, signals a serious push to create a favorable atmosphere before its back-to-back summits with SK and the US, experts said Sat. (Koh Byung-joon, Yonhap)
- NK's announcement of a moratorium on most of its nuclear and missile activities is the highlight of the unpredictable communist nation's recent peace overture and a potential prelude to a breakthrough deal in the upcoming round of summit diplomacy. (Lee Chi-dong, Yonhap)
- In this analysis article for the AP, Eric Talmadge writes that KJU has finally broken his silence on what he plans to bring to the table during his summits with the S.Korean and US presidents, and it doesn't have a whole lot to do with tossing out his hard-won nuclear arsenal. Talmadge comments that instead, Kim appears to be maneuvering toward his own big "get" which is the chance to sit down with President Donald Trump on an essentially equal basis as the head of a nuclear-armed nation. Talmadge, in his article, also notes that the end of NK's nuclear program does not look to be any closer than it was before. (Eric Talmadge, AP)

- Britain said on Sat. that NK's plan to cease nuclear tests would be a positive step and that it hoped this was a sign of good faith. (Reuters)
- China on Sat. welcomed NK's decision to halt nuclear and missile tests and close its atomic test site. (Yonhap)
- China's foreign ministry said on Sat. it welcomed a move by NK to halt nuclear and missile tests, which it said would help ease tensions on the Korean peninsula and promote denuclearization. (Reuters)
- The European Union (EU) on Sat. welcomed NK's decision to stop its nuclear and missile tests and close an atomic test site, calling the move a "positive, long sought-after step." (Yonhap)
- The European Union's foreign affairs chief said on Sat. that NK's announcement to stop nuclear tests was a positive step and called for an "irreversible denuclearisation" of the Asian country. (Reuters)
- German Foreign Minister Heiko Maas said NK's announcement that it would immediately suspend nuclear and missile tests was a step in the right direction but added that Pyongyang must reveal its nuclear and missile program. (Reuters)
- NK is "livening up the mood" with regards to its talk on denuclearization, but doing very little beyond that, say experts who've long watched the isolated regime wrestle with its nuclear ambitions and international censure. And further, they say, N.Korean leader KJU is positioning himself as an amenable leader open to negotiation as he readies for Fri.'s summit with SK and a forthcoming historic meeting with US President Donald Trump. One expert, Chang-Hoon Shin, a senior research fellow with the Korea Institute for Maritime Strategy, noted that If NK was really serious, it would re-apply to the Non-Proliferation Treaty or accede to international norms under the Comprehensive Nuclear Test Ban Treaty. And there's been no indication it wants to do that. (Jamie Tarabay, CNN)
- Japanese Defence Minister Itsunori Onodera said it was not the time to ease pressure on NK, following news that Pyongyang had decided to suspend its nuclear and missile tests effective immediately, Kyodo News reported. (Reuters)
- Japanese Prime Minister Shinzo Abe said on Sat. he welcomed NK's statement that it was suspending all nuclear and missile tests as "forward motion" but that this must lead to verifiable denuclearization. (Reuters)
- NK's announcement that it is halting nuclear and missile tests has received a broad international welcome. (BBC)
- NK's announcement that it is halting nuclear and missile tests could be a negotiating gambit in advance of an upcoming summit with SK—and the prospective historic meeting being planned with President Donald Trump—but it is still a sign that Pyongyang is serious about the talks. It is also another indication that, despite rampant smuggling, the latest economic sanctions are beginning to hurt. (Andrea Mitchell, NBC News)
- The Russian Foreign Ministry on Sat. welcomed an announcement by NK that it will halt nuclear and missile tests and called on the US and SK to reduce their military activity in the region. (Reuters)
- The State Department's annual human rights report released Fri. drops references to reproductive rights for women and stops using the phrase "Occupied Territories" to describe Israel's presence in Gaza and the West Bank. Acting secretary of state John J. Sullivan, in remarks to reporters, called out several adversaries that the Trump administration has tangled with, including China, Russia, Iran and NK. Sullivan described them as "forces of instability" due to their human rights abuses. (Carol Morello, WaPo)

- Donald Trump has saluted NK's suspension of nuclear and long-range missile tests ahead of planned talks with the US as "very good news for NK and the world." A leading Korean-American expert on the region, however, was among those to sound a note of caution. (Martin Pengelly, Guardian)
- US President Donald Trump on Fri. welcomed a statement by N.Korean leader KJU that he will suspend nuclear and missile tests immediately and abolish a nuclear test site, saying in a tweet: "Progress being made for all!" (Reuters)
- US President Donald Trump on Fri. welcomed a statement by N.Korean leader KJU that he will suspend nuclear and missile tests immediately and abolish a nuclear test site, and Trump said he looked forward to a summit with Kim. (Reuters)
- The US on Fri. labeled China, Russia, Iran and NK as "morally reprehensible" governments that it said violated human rights within their borders on a daily basis, making them "forces of instability." (Lesley Wroughton, David Brunnstrom, Reuters)
- The Trump administration on Fri. labeled Russia and China threats to global stability, saying that their poor human rights records put the countries, the US' principle strategic rivals, in the same ranks as Iran and NK. (Gardiner Harris, NYTimes)
- The UN secretary-general and Security Council officials were meeting in Sweden on Sat. to discuss a range of international issues, including developments on the Korean Peninsula and in Syria. (Associated Press)
- President Trump has been upping the ante for his planned meeting with N.Korean dictator KJU, increasing the pressure on his administration to deliver results on an issue that has vexed his predecessors but that Trump has now embraced as his signature foreign policy initiative. (David Nakamura, WaPo)
- The US has labeled China and Russia "forces of instability" because of their human rights records, along with NK and Iran. (VOA)
- The Trump administration is lashing out at China, Iran, Russia and NK for being "forces of instability" because of human rights abuses of their own citizens and others. (Matthew Lee, Josh Lederman, AP)

Prepared by Jinny Ahn, HRNK Research Intern

————————————————

Sunday, April 22, 2018

Trump says 'long way' to go on North Korea crisis; G7 meeting to discuss Iran, North Korea and Syria: U.S. official; North's statement draws mixed reactions

In North Korea:
How leisure time is changing for North Korea's privileged (BBC, 04/22/2018)
Kim Jong-un: fragile and under pressure but he won't give up (Guardian, 04/22/2018)
NK tries to dub itself nuclear state (Korea Times, 04/22/2018)
Suspicious factory underscores challenge of verifying North Korea's nuclear promises (WaPo, 04/21/2018)
Will Kim Jong-un Trade His Nuclear Arsenal to Rebuild Economy? (NYT, 04/21/2018)

In South Korea:
(LEAD) Police block entrance to THAAD base (Yonhap, 04/22/2018)
North Korea refugees find new pressures in South (Korea Times, 04/22/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
2 Koreas to work on summit rehearsals (Korea Times, 04/22/2018)
Complete denuclearization is key (Joongang Ilbo, 04/22/2018)
No rush to 'settle things' at inter-Korea summit (Korea Times, 04/22/2018)
SMEs should lead growth on Korean Peninsula: think tank (Yonhap, 04/22/2018)
Summit offers last hope for families divided by Korean War (CNN, 04/21/2018)
Two Koreas to hold 3rd working-level talks ahead of summit (Yonhap, 04/22/2018)

International:
As U.S., North Korea plan to meet, Iran warns against Trump deals (Reuters, 04/21/2018)
Don't feed a monster (Joongang Ilbo, 04/22/2018)
Empty promises? N. Korea watchers greet Kim move with skepticism (Korea Times, 04/22/2018)
G7 meeting to discuss Iran, North Korea and Syria: U.S. official (Reuters, 04/22/2018)
North Korea is setting the mood for a summit with Trump. And that is progress. (WaPo, 04/22/2018)
North Korea's nuke tests suspension draws mixed reaction (UPI, 04/21/2018)
North's statement draws mixed reactions (Joongang Ilbo, 04/22/2018)
Road to North Korean denuclearization is littered with failure (Korea Times, 04/22/2018)
Senior U.S. diplomat calls N.K.'s decision on tests, nuclear site "positive" (Yonhap, 04/22/2018)
S. Korea, U.S. to kick off annual military drills as scheduled: official (Yonhap, 04/22/2018)
S. Korea, U.S. to strengthen policy coordination: finance ministry (Yonhap, 04/22/2018)
Trump Cites Gains Ahead of Planned North Korea Summit (VOA, 04/22/2018)
Trump's meeting with Kim will lead to an awful hangover (CNN, 04/22/2018)
Trump says 'long way' from conclusion on N. Korea (Yonhap, 04/22/2018)
Trump says 'long way' to go on North Korea crisis (Reuters, 04/22/2018)
Trump says US has not 'given up anything' in North Korea talks (CNN, 04/22/2018)
Trump Wrongly Claims NKorea Has Agreed to 'Denuclearization' (NYT, 04/22/2018)
What Does Kim Jong-un Want? U.S. Fears Answer Is 'Give a Little, Gain a Lot' (NYT, 04/21/2018)
White House privately skeptical of North Korea's plans to freeze nuclear testing (WaPo, 04/21/2018)
Why Donald Trump is winning on North Korea (WaPo, 04/22/2018)

In North Korea:

- While the majority of people in NK live in poverty, experts say there is a growing middle class with money to spend and free time to enjoy. From dolphin aquariums to shopping centres, this is how the country is changing to meet the demands of its most wealthy citizens. (Gareth Evans, BBC)
- KJU is under huge pressure. For the first time in decades NK may actually fear a US military attack, and its fragile economy is at huge risk from the strictest sanctions it has ever faced. He may be willing to make some genuine concessions for this; an improvement on past talks where NK has blustered and ultimately offered little more than a return to the status quo. But they will not include the US's stated aim: the total and irreversible destruction of the nuclear program. (Emma Graham-Harrison, Guardian)
- NK is seeking to gain more leverage in future negotiations with the US by dubbing itself a nuclear power state, seeking to highlight its nuclear status to secure more economic incentives and guarantees of regime safety. (Kim Bo-eun, Korea Times)
- CIA agents have been pouring over satellite images of a mysterious building in NK that may or may not be a factory for a nuclear reactor component. This underscores a key difficulty in evaluating NK's proposals to freeze or give up portions of its nuclear program: NK has a long history of concealing illicit weapons activity from foreign eyes. (Joby Warrick, WaPo)
- KJU's pivot away from nuclear testing and toward the economy has raised questions behind his motives and whether he will actually relinquish his nuclear weapons. (Choe Sang-hyun, NYT)

In South Korea:

- Police on Sun. blocked the entrance to the US military's new missile defense base on the Korean Peninsula, apparently to block residents and activists from entering. (Yonhap)
- Public sentiment is sour and many N. Korean defectors bemoan difficulties finding decent jobs or making friends, with most of their knowledge and skills deemed outdated or irrelevant, and many S. Koreans viewing them with suspicion and contempt. (Korea Times)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- The two Koreas are gearing up preparations for the inter-Korean summit, with only four days to go before the historic bilateral talks over denuclearization slated for Fri. Officials of SK and NK will have rehearsals of the meeting between Moon and KJU over many times this week, sometimes separately and sometimes jointly. (Kim Rahn, Korea Times)
- Moon must pressure KJU to accept Trump's call for a complete dismantlement of nuclear weapons and pledge to do it within a year. Without clearly fixing the terms, his summit will go nowhere. (Joongang Ilbo)
- Moon should not rush to settle things at the upcoming summit with KJU, Stephan Haggard, distinguished professor of political science at UC San Diego, said in an interview on Sun. (Kim Jae-kyoung, Korea Times)
- Small and medium enterprises (SMEs) should take center stage in fueling future growth in the two Koreas once cross-border tensions recede, Korea Small Business Institute, a Korean think tank said Sun. (Yonhap)

- However you see the upcoming meeting between KJU and Moon, for tens of thousands of Koreans on both sides of the border it represents a last-ditch chance to see loved ones they haven't heard from or seen since fighting in the Korean War ended in 1953. (Paula Hancocks, CNN)
- SK and NK will hold a third meeting of working-level officials to discuss security, protocol and press coverage issues ahead of the landmark summit of their two leaders slated for later this week, the presidential office said Sun. (Yonhap)

International:

- A US push to change the Iran nuclear deal was sending a "very dangerous message" that countries should never negotiate with Washington, Iran's foreign minister warned as US and N. Korean leaders prepare to meet for denuclearization talks. (Michelle Nichols, Reuters)
- The UN continues to provide KJU with humanitarian aid to support N. Koreans that KJU purposefully starves. Instead of giving NK humanitarian aid, offer KJU $10 million for each nuclear weapon and ballistic missile launcher he turns over to the US and/or SK. He can then buy all the food and medicine he needs. (Robert A. Manning, Joongang Ilbo)
- NK's announcement it will halt nuclear tests and intercontinental ballistic missile launches has left experts puzzling over KJU's true intentions - and the extent to which Trump deserves credit. (AFP)
- Iran's "malign" regional activities, the Syrian conflict and NK will be discussed at a meeting of foreign ministers from the Group of Seven (G7) major industrialized nations in Toronto, a US official said on Sun. (Reuters)
- NK's announcement Sat. that it would stop firing missiles and detonating nuclear bombs, and would even close its nuclear test site, prompted a wave of strong reactions. But for now, it's striking that previously belligerent NK has acted to unequivocally set the right mood for those summits. (Anna Fifield, WaPo)
- N. Korean leader KJU's announcement that he will suspend nuclear testing starting Sat. has been met with mixed reaction. (Sommer Brokaw, UPI)
- NK's announcement Fri. that it will stop all nuclear and missile tests was welcomed by NK and the US, but some critics say the statement didn't actually indicate any interest in denuclearization from the recalcitrant state. (Kang Jin-kyu, Joongang Ilbo)
- A look at previous negotiations with NK and how the currently planned talks between Seoul, Pyongyang and Washington took shape. (AP)
- Susan Thornton, acting US assistant secretary of state for East Asian and Pacific Affairs, called NK's recent announcement that it would stop nuclear and missile tests a "very positive" step and emphasized the need for close coordination with US allies in the run-up to the historic summits planned with the reclusive state on Sun. (Yonhap)
- SK and US will hold their annual Key Resolve training exercise starting this week as scheduled, a military official said Sun. (Yonhap)
- Economic chiefs of SK and the US agreed to strengthen their policy coordination at a time when inter-Korean relations are facing a dramatic turn, Seoul's finance ministry said Sun. (Yonhap)

- Trump said Sun. the US has given up nothing ahead of his planned summit with N. Korean leader KJU, while Pyongyang has already curtailed its nuclear weapons development. (Ken Bredemeier, VOA)
- By bumbling into face-to-face talks with KJU, Trump has certainly helped reduce tensions on the Korean peninsula, but the Trump administration has so far done very little to counter NK's nuclear threat. When this becomes clear, today's feel-good moment will feel more like an awful hangover. (Jamie Metzl, CNN)
- Trump said Sun. that the N. Korean nuclear crisis is far from over, but the regime's willingness to denuclearize is "great" for the world. (Yonhap)
- Trump said the N. Korean nuclear crisis is far from conclusion on Sun., striking a cautious note a day after NK's pledge to end its nuclear tests raised hopes before planned summits with SK and the US. (Doina Chiacu, Heekyong Yang, Reuters)
- Trump declared Sun. morning the US has not "given up anything" in negotiations with NK in response to criticism that NK is getting more out of the talks than the US. (Kate Sullivan, CNN)
- Trump is wrongly claiming North Korea has agreed to "denuclearization" before his potential meeting with Kim Jong Un. (AP)
- The sudden offer of olive branches, from a leader who only four months ago warned the US that he was ready to launch missiles from a nuclear button on his desk, is sharpening a question that has long bedeviled NK watchers: What does KJU want? (Mark Landler, Choe Sang-hun, NYT)
- The Trump White House is reacting skeptically in private to NK's announcement of plans to freeze nuclear weapons testing, warning that KJU could be setting a trap and promising not to back off a hard-line stance ahead of a potential leaders' summit. (David Nakamura, John Hudson, WaPo)
- Trump's meeting with KJU is an outside-the-box idea that breaks with decades of US policy, but it just might work, as evidenced by Fri's announcement that NK would halt its nuclear weapons testing. (Gabriel Glickman, WaPo)

Prepared by Emma Stubblefield, HRNK Research Intern

——————————————————

Monday, April 23, 2018

Kim Jong-un and Xi Jinping: "As Close as Lips and Teeth" on Human Rights Denial; HRNK Executive Director Greg Scarlatoiu on Al Jazeera America; S.Korea stops blasting propaganda as summit looms

Top News:

Kim Jong-un and Xi Jinping: "As Close as Lips and Teeth" on Human Rights Denial (HRNK Insider, 04/23/2018)
Greg Scarlatoiu on Al Jazeera America (HRNK, 04/21/2018)

In North Korea:
32 Chinese tourists dead in North Korea bus crash (Telegraph, 04/23/2018)
36 dead, mostly Chinese, in North Korea traffic accident (WaPo, 04/23/2018)
China says 32 nationals killed when bus falls off bridge in North Korea (Reuters, 04/23/2018)
Developments in Sinuiju under Kim Jong-un (nkeconwatch, 04/23/2018)
Dozens of Chinese tourists killed in North Korea traffic accident, government says (CNN, 04/23/2018)
Is Kim following Deng Xiaoping's path in transforming North Korea? (Korea Times, 04/23/2018)
Kim Jong-un's wife, sister play greater roles (Korea Times, 04/23/2018)
North Korea bus crash kills 32 Chinese tourists (BBC, 04/23/2018)
North Koreans unimpressed with latest 'anti-espionage' campaign (DailyNK, 04/23/2018)
DPRK's Closing the Punggye-ri Nuclear Test Site: No, it is not a Case of Passing Off Damaged Goods (38 North, 04/23/2018)
Tour Bus Crashes in North Korea, Killing 36, Chinese Officials Say (NYT, 04/23/2018)
Will North Korea give up the bomb? (Korea Times, 04/23/2018)
With test freeze, North Korea settles for imperfect nuclear threat (Reuters, 04/23/2018)

In South Korea:
(3rd LD) S. Korean, Japanese nuclear envoys meet ahead of inter-Korean summit (Yonhap, 04/23/2018)
(4th LD) S. Korea halts propaganda broadcasts along border with N. Korea: ministry (Yonhap, 04/23/2018)
Inter-Korean summit boosts some stocks (Joongang Daily, 04/23/2018)
Military halts anti-Pyongyang loudspeaker broadcasts (Korea TImes, 04/23/2018)
Moon urges halt to political disputes ahead of historic N. Korea summit (Yonhap, 04/23/2018)
Opposition leader downplays inter-Korean summit (Korea Times, 04/23/2018)
Seoul holds high-level talks with Washington, Tokyo ahead of summit (Korea Times, 04/23/2018)
South halts its K-pop offensive (Joongang Daily, 04/23/2018)
S.Korea halts propaganda broadcasts before summit with North (WaPo, 04/23/2018)
South Korea halts border propaganda broadcasts to the north (Telegraph, 04/23/2018)
South Korea silences loudspeakers that blast cross-border propaganda (Guardian, 04/22/2018)
South Korea stops blasting propaganda as summit looms (CNN, 04/23/2018)
South Korea switches off propaganda broadcasts, Moon upbeat on North Korea nuclear halt (Reuters, 04/23/2018)
South Korea turns off loudspeakers after North suspends tests (UPI, 04/23/2018)
South Korean protesters denounce U.S. anti-missile system ahead of North-South summit (Reuters, 04/23/2018)
Summit committee signs agreements with local media outlets (Yonhap, 04/23/2018)
Thaad site cleared of protesters (Joongang Daily, 04/23/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
(3rd LD) Koreas agree to start Moon-Kim summit in morning, hold official dinner (Yonhap, 04/23/2018)
3,000 reporters to cover Moon-Kim summit (Korea Times, 04/23/2018)
Goodbye DMZ? What an End to the Korean War Would Mean: QuickTake (WaPo, 04/23/2018)
History being made on Korean Peninsula to bring about lasting peace: FM (Yonhap, 04/23/2018)
Koreas hold third working-level talks to prepare summit (Yonhap, 04/23/2018)
Moon calls North Korea's nuke test suspension 'good signal' (Korea Times, 04/23/2018)
Moon-Kim summit to begin Friday morning; end with official dinner (Korea Times, 04/23/2018)
Moon should pursue 'equivalent peace treaty' (Korea Times, 04/23/2018)

International:
(LEAD) U.S. diplomat sees 'better' chance to review N.K.'s sincerity for denuclearization (Yonhap, 04/23/2018)
(2nd LD) Senior U.S. diplomat stresses importance of close coordination before summits (Yonhap, 04/23/2018)
China's first-quarter trade with North Korea down 60.6 percent year-on-year in dollar terms (Reuters, 04/23/2018)
Global community sends messages of hope for Inter-Korean summit (Korea Times, 04/23/2018)
Inter-Korean Summit Will Try to Broker Nuclear Deal for US (VOA, 04/23/2018)
Interests of major powers intersect on Korean Peninsula again (*Daily*NK, 04/23/2018)
Neutral ground or dramatic backdrop? Where Donald Trump and Kim Jong-un could meet (Telegraph, 04/23/2018)
Trump says he has given Kim no concessions (Joongang Daily, 04/23/2018)
UN official praises 'welcome developments' from North Korea (WaPo, 04/23/2018)
White House Sees Denuclearization as Ultimate Goal of N. Korea Talks (VOA, 04/23/2018)
Why Russia is openly violating sanctions against North Korea (WaPo, 04/23/2018)
WSJ: Trump to ask North Korea to dismantle nuclear arsenal before talking sanctions relief (CNN, 04/22/2018)

Top News:

- The tightening PRC-DPRK relationship following the Xi-Kim summit is an indicator that the near future of human rights progress in DPRK remains bleak, with both regimes' unchanging policies of human rights denial. The US-ROK alliance's push for human rights reform in DPRK seems increasingly necessary, as people's lives depend on it. (Amanda Mortwedt Oh, HRNK Insider)
- HRNK Executive Director Greg Scarlatoiu speaks to Al Jazeera America about the current Korean Peninsula situation and possible outcomes of denuclearization negotiations from the upcoming summits. (HRNK)

In North Korea:

- Thirty-two Chinese tourists had been killed when a tour bus fell from a bridge in N.K., authorities said. (Neil Connor, Telegraph)
- A traffic accident in N.K. has killed 32 Chinese tourists and 4 N.Koreans, Chinese officials said Monday. (AP)
- Thirty-two Chinese tourists and four N.Koreans died when a bus crashed off a bridge in N.K., China's foreign ministry said on Monday, with two Chinese nationals in critical condition. (Ben Blanchard, Reuters)
- Some significant changes have taken place in Sinuiju in the KJU era. Sinuiju is interesting because not only is it a provincial capital, but it is an important hub in China-DPRK trade as well. (nkeconwatch)
- As many as 32 Chinese tourists were killed in a bus crash in N.K. Sunday night, the Chinese Ministry of Foreign Affairs has confirmed. (Euan McKirdy, CNN)
- After KJU put emphasis on economic development in tandem with his move toward denuclearization, experts say the young leader may pursue economic reform in the same way as Deng Xiaoping did in transforming China. (Choi Ha-young, Korea Times)
- N.K.'s state news agency for the first time referred to KJU's wife Ri as "respected madam," for the first time in 45 years. Meanwhile, Kim Yo-jong, who led the North's Olympic delegation, has been noted as a trusted adviser to her brother KJU. (Kim Bo-eun, Korea Times)
- A tour bus has crashed in N.K., killing 36 people including 32 Chinese nationals, Chinese officials say. (BBC)
- As N.K. enters its yearly March-April "Anti-Espionage" campaign, the authorities are reportedly stressing the need for a more precise enforcement and reporting system against anti-communist elements within the country. (Kang Mi Jin, DailyNK)
- Despite N.K.'s recent announcement of suspending further nuclear and missile tests and discarding its nuclear centers, the Punggye-ri Nuclear Test Site, where N.K. has conducted six acknowledged underground detonations still seems to be fully operational. (38 North)
- A bus crash in N.K. has killed 32 Chinese tourists and 4 N.K. workers, Chinese officials said. (Javier C. Hernández, NYT)
- While multiple countries that developed or tried to develop nuclear weapons have agreed to abandon them in exchange for sanctions relief and compensation, none of these cases are directly applicable to DPRK, which advanced further and with greater zeal than any of the others. (Kim Tong-Hyung, AP)
- In declaring a unilateral freeze in missile testing, N.K. appears ready to settle for now with an imperfect nuclear arms capability, one good enough to stoke fear in the US but which can't promise to strike US targets reliably, experts say. (Phil Stewart, Haejin Choi, Reuters)

In South Korea:

- The top nuclear envoys of S.K. and Japan met Monday to discuss cooperation on N.K. and the issue of its nuclear weapons program ahead of the upcoming historic inter-Korean summit. (Yonhap)

- S.K. announced Monday that it has stopped propaganda broadcasts over the border ahead of inter-Korean summit talks this week, saying it's expected to help boost the reconciliatory mood on the peninsula. (Yonhap)
- Stocks related to inter-Korean cooperation are skyrocketing on favorable projections for the two countries' summit scheduled for this Friday. (Lee Ho-jeong, Joongang Daily)
- S.K. has stopped anti-Pyongyang propaganda broadcasts at the border town of Panmunjeom in a move to ease inter-Korean military tension ahead of a historic summit between Moon and KJU. (Lee Min-hyung, Korea Times)
- President Moon on Monday called for a complete stop to political disputes at home at least until the end of his historic summit with N.K. leader KJU this week. (Yonhap)
- Main opposition Liberty Korea Party (LKP) leader Hong Joon-pyo downplayed the upcoming April 27 inter-Korea summit as a "political show" that may only benefit N.K. (Park Ji-won, Korea Times)
- S.K. held high-level negotiations with the US and Japan, Monday, discussing a series of pending issues regarding N.K. ahead of the inter-Korean summit scheduled for Friday. (Lee Min-hyung, Korea Times)
- S.K. unplugged front-line loudspeakers that blare K-pop and propaganda criticizing N.K.'s leader on Monday, pulling back a weapon of psychological warfare that has encouraged several N.K. soldiers on the border to defect. (Lee Chul-jae, Lee Sung-eun, Joongang Daily)
- ROK halted anti-DPRK propaganda broadcasts across their tense border on Monday as officials from the two Koreas met again to work out details of their leaders' upcoming talks, expected to focus on the North's nuclear program. (Hyung-Jin Kim, AP)
- S.K. halted the propaganda broadcasts it blares across the border at N.K. for the first time in two years on Monday ahead of the first inter-Korean summit in a decade. (Telegraph)
- S.K. has stopped broadcasting propaganda across its border with N.K. for the first time in more than two years, in a gesture of goodwill just days before the countries' leaders are to meet in a historic summit. (Justin McCurry, Guardian)
- S.K.'s military has turned off loudspeakers that blast propaganda across the highly militarized border with N.K., in an apparent gesture of goodwill ahead of Friday's historic summit between the two nations' leaders. (Joshua Berlinger and Yoonjung Seo, CNN)
- ROK halted the propaganda broadcasts it blares across the border with DPRK on Monday, aiming to set a positive tone ahead of the first summit in a decade between their leaders as Trump cautioned the nuclear crisis was far from resolved. (Christine Kim, Reuters)
- S.K. agreed to end loudspeaker broadcasts across the DMZ following N.K.'s decision to halt all nuclear tests. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- Construction trucks moved into a S.Korean base housing THAAD on Monday, infuriating villagers opposed to its deployment, two days after N.K. vowed to suspend nuclear tests and ahead of a North-South summit. (Reuters)
- S.K.'s preparatory committee for the upcoming cross-border summit signed agreements on Monday with a local news agency, two broadcasters and a wireless service provider to support the historic event this week. (Yonhap)
- The ROK Ministry of Defense completed the delivery of construction equipment and materials to a controversial missile defense system Seongju County after police forcibly removed protesters. (Kim Jung-seok, Sarah Kim, Joongang Daily)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- The historic meeting between ROK Moon Jae-in and DPRK leader KJU will include an official dinner at the joint security area of Panmunjom. (Yonhap)
- More than 3,000 journalists from around the world will gather in Korea this week to cover the historic inter-Korean summit. (Kang Seung-woo, Korea Times)
- After a sudden warming of relations between two Koreas, there are reports that the Koreas are planning to announce the end of military hostilities, and negotiations may focus in part on the DMZ. (David Tweed, Bloomberg)
- History is being made on the Korean Peninsula to bring about a lasting peace with N.K., Foreign Minister Kang Kyung-wha said in a video posted to Twitter on Monday, calling for international support for the peacemaking. (Yonhap)
- Officials from two Koreas gathered again Monday to discuss details of a meeting between their leaders later this week. (Yonhap)
- ROK President Moon has welcomed N.K.'s decision to suspend its nuclear and intercontinental ballistic missile tests, saying Pyongyang is showing its sincerity for denuclearization ahead of inter-Korean and Washington-Pyongyang summits. (Kim Rahn, Korea Times)
- S.K. President Moon and N.K. leader KJU will meet at the truce village of Panmunjeom, Friday morning. A dinner between the leaders will take place after the summit. (Kim Bo-eun, Korea Times)
- Moon should not obsess over a peace treaty itself but focus on ensuring Seoul's equivalency in any agreements with Pyongyang, said Sean King, senior vice president of Park Strategies. (Kim Jae-kyoung, Korea Times)

International:

- A senior U.S. diplomat said Monday that she is seeing "a better opportunity" to check if N.K. is serious about denuclearization as Washington and Seoul prepare for their respective summits with Pyongyang. (Yonhap)
- A senior U.S. diplomat said on Monday that it is "very important" and "good timing" for the U.S. and S.K. to show close coordination before the two countries' planned summits with N.K. (Yonhap)
- China's trade with N.K. in the first three months of 2018 fell 60.6 percent from a year earlier to $482.93 million, customs data showed on Monday. (Reuters)
- With the first Inter-Korean summit in 11 years looming on Friday, global dignitaries and people of diverse ethnic backgrounds sent messages of hope for the summit and a peaceful outcome. (Ko Dong-hwan, Korea Times)
- This week's summit between Moon and KJU is expected to produce a denuclearization framework that Trump could support when he meets with Kim in May or June. (Brian Padden, VOA)

- The Korean Peninsula is unique in the world in that it is the location where the interests of the major powers China, Russia, Japan, and the US all intersect. It is undeniable that the actions of these four nations have had immense sway over the fate of the peninsula. (Lee Geun Young, DailyNK)
- Neutral venues in Asia and Europe are now considered the most likely options, but given that both Trump and KJU have a reputation for enjoying the limelight, the meeting will almost certainly need to have a dramatic backdrop. (Neil Connor, Telegraph)
- U.S. President Trump boasted in a Twitter post on Sunday that N.K. had agreed to denuclearize without the US making any concessions. (Sarah Kim, Joongang Daily)
- The U.N.'s high representative for disarmament affairs is praising N.K.'s decision to suspend its nuclear and ballistic missile tests and dismantle its nuclear sites as "welcome developments." (AP)
- The White House on Monday declared the ultimate goal of any negotiations that President Trump has with N.K. is Pyongyang's denuclearization. (Steve Herman, VOA)
- Two big reasons Russia is openly violating international sanctions against DPRK include: 1) Russia's view of what makes sanctions effective is very different from the U.S. view, 2) Putin is shoring up his internal support. (Samuel Ramani, WaPo)
- President Trump will ask N.K. leader KJU to dismantle the country's nuclear arsenal without conceding significant ground on economic sanctions, according to a report in The Wall Street Journal. (Aileen Graef, CNN)

Prepared by James Park, HRNK Research Intern

——————————————————

Tuesday, April 24, 2018

Kim Jong Un Is "All-In." What's Next for Korea?; Greg Scarlatoiu on The Drew Mariani Show; Kim Jong-un shows human side as he expresses 'bitter sorrow' over bus crash

Top News:

Kim Jong Un Is "All-In." What's Next for Korea? (The Cipher Brief, 04/24/2018)
Greg Scarlatoiu on The Drew Mariani Show (HRNK, 04/24/2018)

In North Korea:

Chinese media still illegal in North Korea despite warming relations with China (DailyNK, 04/24/2018)
Death of Chinese tourists rattles North's leader (Joongang Daily, 04/24/2018)
High risk, high return (Joongang Daily, 04/24/2018)

Kim Jong-un says he and Pompeo share ‘same kind of guts’ as details emerge of secret meetings (Telegraph, 04/24/2018)
Kim Jong-un shows human side as he expresses ‘bitter sorrow’ over bus crash (Telegraph, 04/24/2018)
Kim Jong-un's 'bitter sorrow' as bus crash kills Chinese tourists (BBC, 04/24/2018)
Kim's 'bitter sorrow' as bus crash kills 32 Chinese tourists (Korea Times, 04/24/2018)
(LEAD) N.K. leader mourns Chinese tourists killed in bus accident (Yonhap, 04/24/2018)
North Korean leader visits China embassy, hospital after fatal bus crash (Reuters, 04/24/2018)
N. Korea's nuclear test site 'fully operational: 38 North (Yonhap, 04/24/2018)
Six North Koreans executed for trying to sell phonebook abroad (DailyNK, 04/24/2018)
'Uncontrollable grief' of Kim Jong-un over North Korea bus disaster (Guardian, 04/24/2018)

In South Korea:
(2nd LD) S. Korea's nuke envoy says next few months 'critical' for denuclearization of N.K.(Yonhap, 04/24/2018)
Confirmation bias on North Korea's denuclearization (Korea Times, 04/24/2018)
Declaration to end Korean War tied to N.K. denuclearization: Seoul (Yonhap, 04/24/2018)
Don’t let down our guard (Joongang Daily, 04/24/2018)
It ain’t over till Kim Jong-un sings (Joongang Daily, 04/24/2018)
Seoul making final preparations for Moon-Kim summit: Cheong Wa Dae (Yonhap, 04/24/2018)
What agenda? (Joongang Daily, 04/24/2018)
With food and facts carried in bottles, activists try to penetrate isolated North Korea (WaPo, 04/24/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
Hopes high for peace as Kim takes historic step to inter-Korean summit (AFP, 04/24/2018)
Kim Jong-un Swiss summit dish to remind him of school (BBC, 04/24/2018)
Moon to raise Japanese abductee issue in North Korea summit (WaPo, 04/24/2018)
North Korea's Kim to be served Swiss rösti at inter-Korean summit (Reuters, 04/24/2018)
North Korea to send special noodle making machine (and chef) to DMZ for summit (CNN, 04/24/2018)
Rehearsal held for Moon-Kim summit Friday (Joongang Daily, 04/24/2018)
Stakes on denuclearization remain high ahead of Korea summits (UPI, 04/24/2018)
Two Koreas decide not to hold additional high-level talks on summit preparation (Yonhap, 04/24/2018)

International:
'A lot of reasons for optimism' on N. Korea talks: Mattis (AFP, 04/24/2018)
China keeps fuel exports to North Korea low in March as sanctions bite (Reuters, 04/24/2018)
Chinese authorities raise reward money for North Korean defectors (DailyNK, 04/24/2018)
Japan's Abe says upcoming North Korea summits could mend ties between North, Japan(Reuters, 04/24/2018)
Jimmy Carter Knows What North Korea Wants (NYT, 04/24/2018)

(LEAD) Abe expresses hope for Japan-N. Korea talks after inter-Korean summit (Yonhap, 04/24/2018)
(LEAD) Thornton says U.S. will avoid protracted negotiation with N.K., urges more action to show sincerity (Yonhap, 04/24/2018)
(LEAD) Trump, Kim may agree to statement on peace and denuclearization at least: Victor Cha (Yonhap, 04/24/2018)
Mongolia, Singapore on shortlist of summit hosts (Joongang Daily, 04/24/2018)
Neutral ground or dramatic backdrop? Where Donald Trump and Kim Jong-un could meet(Telegraph, 04/24/2018)
Russia and China seek international support for Iran nuclear deal (Reuters, 04/24/2018)
Trump, France's Macron face differences at glitzy state visit (Reuters, 04/24/2018)
US won't ease sanctions until North Korea takes 'concrete action' (AP, 04/24/2018)

Top News:

- There seems to be a hidden purpose in KJU's proffered moratorium on nuclear and ballistic missile testing announced over the weekend. While Kim is seeking to eventually merge his state into the South, Moon is surrounded with NK's most ardent advocates in Blue House. (Gordon Chang, The Cipher Brief)
  HRNK Executive Director Greg Scarlatoiu speaks to The Drew Mariani Show about the current security issues of Northeast Asia and challenges and different viewpoints regarding denuclearization before upcoming summits. (HRNK)

In North Korea:

- The N.Korean authorities are maintaining restrictions over Chinese media consumption and continuing to punish viewers despite the regime's friendlier stance towards China since KJU's visit to Beijing last month. (Ha Yoon-ah, DailyNK)
- N.Korean leader KJU visited the Chinese Embassy in Pyongyang to express his “deep sympathy” over a bus accident that killed 32 Chinese tourists on Sun. in North Hwanghae Province, just above the border with SK. (Lee Sung-eun, Joongang Daily)
- The first goal of the summit should be confirming the genuineness of Kim’s will to end his nuclear weapons program. Only after a direct and clear confirmation can the summit serve as a pathfinder for the US-North summit. (Bae Myung-bok, Joongang Daily)
- KJU, the N.Korean leader, expressed “joy” and “satisfaction” after his secret meeting earlier this month in Pyongyang with Mike Pompeo, director of the CIA, saying the two men share the “same kind of guts” (Julian Ryall, Telegraph)
- N.Korean leader KJU has met with Chinese survivors of a deadly coach crash and expressed “bitter sorrow” (Neil Connor, Telegraph)
- N.Korean leader KJU has expressed "bitter sorrow" over a bus accident that left 32 Chinese tourists and four N.Koreans dead. (BBC)
- N.Korean leader KJU visited the Chinese embassy in Pyongyang to express his "bitter sorrow" over the deaths of Chinese tourists in a bus accident in his country, by visiting the Chinese embassy in Pyongyang (Kim Rahn, Korea Times)

- N.Korean leader KJU has visited the Chinese Embassy in Pyongyang to express his "deep" condolences over the death of scores of Chinese tourists in a traffic accident in the North. (Yonhap)
- N.Korean leader KJU visited the Chinese embassy in Pyongyang on Mon. to express “deep sympathy” over a bus accident that killed 32 Chinese tourists and critically injured two. (Reuters)
- NK's nuclear test site is still "fully operational" contrary to reports that it is near collapse. NK's announcement Sat. of its decision to close the test site was due to it being unusable. But according to 38 North, the site in northeastern Punggye-ri could be reactivated when necessary. (Yonhap)
- Six N.Korean residents were executed at the end of last year on the charge of attempting to leak the contents of a phonebook to the outside world. An inside source explained that the decision highlights the determination of the authorities to maintain internal information security. (DailyNK)
- State media describes reaction of regime leader after 32 visiting Chinese died when their coach plunged off a bridge (Justin McCurry, Guardian)

In South Korea:

- SK's top nuclear envoy said Tues. that the next few months will be "critical" in laying the groundwork for the denuclearization of NK and reaffirmed Seoul's commitment to close consultation with Washington both before and after the upcoming inter-Korean summit. (Yonhap)
- Expectation over the stated goal of SK and US — NK's willingness to separate itself from its nuclear programs or the so-called denuclearization — is far from reality. (Oh Young-jin, Korea Times)
- The issue of SK and NK's declaration of an end to the 1950-53 Korean War will be tied to progress of NK's denuclearization, a ranking government official said Tues. (Yonhap)
- A freeze on nuclear tests and programs cannot ensure a path toward the ultimate goal of denuclearization. The gambit raises hope for genuineness in his commitment to denuclearization, but we cannot let our guard down. (Joongang Daily)
- Given the North’s track record, however, it is better to hold off on the optimism. Despite a strong need for talks over denuclearization, it’s not over until Kim’s sincerity is proven. (Yeo Young-jun, Joongang Daily)
- Nearly everything has been set for the upcoming summit between Moon and KJU with only the final touches now under way, officials from Seoul's presidential office Cheong Wa Dae said Tues. (Yonhap)
- The Moon administration must make efforts to draw up concrete and detailed negotiating strategies for the success of the summit rather than being bent on merely promoting the event. (Joongang Daily)
- The water bottles, filled with rice and worm medicine and ointment and USB sticks containing movies and songs and Trump’s State of the Union address, were carried away by the currents. Their destination: NK. (Anna Fifield, WaPo)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- N.Korean leader KJU will walk across the DMZ on Fri. for a historic summit with the South's President Moon, the highest-level encounter yet in a whirlwind of nuclear diplomacy. (AFP)
- NK's KJU is to be served a Swiss potato dish at a summit dinner with the South, in an apparent attempt to remind him of school. (BBC)
- S.Korean President Moon plans to raise the issue of Japanese citizens who were abducted decades ago by NK in his meeting with N.Korean leader KJU this week. (Ahn Young-joon, WaPo)
- N.Korean leader KJU will be served Swiss rösti with a Korean twist at a summit on Fri. with S.Korean President Moon, the South's presidential Blue House said on Tues. (Reuters)
- Pyongyang's cold noodles are the most famous on the Korean peninsula. They're so good, that the North is dispatching its top chef to the border, along with a noodle-making machine, to recreate it for dinner after Fri.'s historic inter-Korea summit. (Joshua Berlinger, CNN)
- The Blue House on Tues. held a rehearsal at the border village of Panmunjom for the historic meeting to take place on Fri. (Kang Jin-kyu, Joongang Daily)
- This week's high-stakes summit between S.Korean President Moon and N.Korean leader KJU heralds a new period of negotiations in which regional states attempt to manage a northeast Asian security environment that includes a nuclear NK. (Benjamin Habib, UPI)
- The two Koreas decided Tues. not to hold additional bilateral high-level talks to prepare for the historic cross-border summit slated for later this week, a Seoul official said. (Yonhap)

International:

- US Defense Secretary Jim Mattis said Mon. he saw reasons to be optimistic about talks with NK, after Pyongyang announced it was halting nuclear tests and intercontinental ballistic missile launches. (AFP)
- China kept fuel exports to NK to a trickle in Mar. and exported no corn for a third straight month to its isolated neighbor, as sanctions over Pyongyang's nuclear weapons and missile program continued to bite. (Reuters)
- Following KJU's visit to China last month, the reward for reporting NK defectors hiding inside the country or anyone engaged in illegal transactions in the Sino-North Korea border area has increased, according to sources in the region. (Ha Yoon-ah, DailyNK)
- Japan's Prime Minister Abe said success at upcoming NK has planned with SK and the US could also mean NK and Japan could normalize ties, the South's presidential Blue House said on Tues. (Reuters)
- The N.Koreans want a binding agreement that the US will not attack them so long as they stay at peace with their neighbors and with other countries. (Dan Amira, NYT)
- Japanese Prime Minister Abe expressed his hope to meet with N.Korean leader KJU to discuss ways to normalize the countries' ties on Tues., while asking S.Korean President Moon to help resolve the issue of Japanese citizens abducted by the communist state. (Yonhap)

- A senior US diplomat said Tues. that the US is determined to avoid repeating the mistake this time of getting into a protracted negotiation with NK and allowing its regime to advance its weapons program. (Yonhap)
- US President Trump and N.Korean leader KJU may agree to a statement on peace and denuclearization at the minimum when they meet for a summit in the coming months, Victor Cha, a US academic and former White House official, said Tues. (Yonhap)
- Mongolia and Singapore are on the shortlist of locations for a widely anticipated summit between US President Trump and N.Korean leader KJU. (Kim Hyun-ki, Joongang Daily)
- Neutral venues in Asia and Europe are now considered the most likely options, but given that both Trump and Kim have a reputation for enjoying the limelight, the meeting will almost certainly need to have a dramatic backdrop. (Neil Connor, Telegraph)
- A breach of the JCPOA without any reason and against the will of the international community is hardly likely to assure the DPRK's people that any potential future agreement would be observed. (Reuters)
- Macron, in his remarks, called for the two countries to work together against Islamist militants, on NK and Iran, on "free and fair trade," and on climate change. (Reuters)
- The White House said Mon. NK won't get sanctions relief until it takes "concrete action" toward denuclearization, the goal of President Trump's planned summit with KJU. (AP)

Prepared by Dohyun Kim, HRNK Research Intern

——————————————————

Thursday, April 26, 2018

NK's Phony Peace Ploy; Remember the "Jerusalem of the East"; Navi Pillay: N.Korean has committed grave crimes against its own people. The US should bring that up during the planned meeting

Top News:

North Korea's Phony Peace Ploy (NYT*imes*, 04/25/2018)
Remember the "Jerusalem of the East" (HRNK Insider, 04/26/2018)
Navi Pillay: North Korean has committed grave crimes against its own people. The U.S. should bring that up during the planned meeting. (Justice Hub, 04/25/2018)

In North Korea:

(2nd LD) Nine ranking officials to accompany N.K. leader to inter-Korean summit (Yonhap, 04/26/2018)
'Forever strangers': the North Korean defectors who want to go back (Guardian, 04/26/2018)
'Operation GhostSecret': North Korea Is Suspected in Intensifying Global Cyberattack (Wall Street Journal, 04/25/2018)

Entourage from Pyongyang is a diverse group (Joongang Daily, 04/26/2018)
Goods, and people, crossing the China-North Korea border (NK Econ Watch, 04/26/2018)
How Kim Jong-un's wife Ri Sol-ju went from cheerleader to North Korea's 'first lady' (Telegraph, 04/26/2018)
Kim Yo-jong to attend inter-Korean summit: What we know about Kim Jong-un's sister? (Telegraph, 04/26/2018)
Kim's childhood remains a mystery in North (Joongang Daily, 04/26/2018)
N.K. appears to be opting for normal statehood instead of nuclear armament: experts (Yonhap, 04/26/2018)
N.K. leader Kim revs up high-stakes diplomacy (Yonhap, 04/26/2018)
N.K. leader sees off special train carrying bodies of Chinese tourists (Yonhap, 04/26/2018)
N. Korea credits Kim for hosting of summit (Yonhap, 04/26/2018)
North is 'desperate' to mend ties (Joongang Daily, 04/26/2018)
North Korea nuclear programme rocked by 'collapse' of test site (Telegraph, 04/26/2018)
North Korea offers deep apologies to China over deadly bus crash (Reuters, 04/25/2018)
North Korea slams US censure on human rights (Korea Times, 04/25/2018)
North Korea nuclear test site has collapsed and may be out of action – China study (Guardian, 04/26/2018)
North Korea's nuclear test caused collapse, study says (CNN, 04/26/2018)
North Korean intel agencies escalate extortion of remittance brokers (DailyNK, 04/26/2018)
Optimistic talk of unification on the rise throughout North Korea (DailyNK, 04/26/2018)
Ri Sol Ju's attendance at inter-Korean summit confirmed in internal orders (DailyNK, 04/26/2018)

In South Korea:
(LEAD) Moon's seasoned entourage to face off with Kim's team of loyal aides (Yonhap, 04/26/2018)
BOK official says economic cooperation with North Korea will boost consumer sentiment (Reuters, 04/25/2018)
Border truce village set to greet leaders of Koreas for historic summit (Yonhap, 04/26/2018)
Moon's diplomacy raises hopes for lasting peace on peninsula (Yonhap, 04/26/2018)
Panmunjom, the Korea Truce Village and Tourism Oddity: QuickTake (WaPo, 04/26/2018)
Panmunjom, the village of permanent tension (Joongang Daily, 04/26/2018)
S. Korea opens media center for historic summit with N. Korea (Yonhap, 04/26/2018)
Seoul expects Korea summit to produce signed agreement (UPI, 04/26/2018)
South Korea swept by wave of optimism ahead of historic Moon-Kim summit (Telegraph, 04/26/2018)
South Korea to hit pause on Friday to soak in historic summit (Reuters, 04/26/2018)
South Korea's Moon to meet North Korea's Kim at border for summit (Reuters, 04/25/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
(LEAD) Denuclearization to take center stage at inter-Korean summit (Yonhap, 04/26/2018)
(LEAD) Leaders of two Koreas to hold symbolic tree-planting ceremony (Yonhap, 04/26/2018)
(LEAD) Moon-Kim summit to start early Friday, forge personal ties (Yonhap, 04/26/2018)
(LEAD) Summit dinner menu rich in symbolism (Yonhap, 04/26/2018)
A look at 2 leaders in the inter-Korean summit talks (WaPo, 04/25/2018)

Agenda topped by nukes, a lasting peace 'regime' (Joongang Daily, 04/26/2018)
Armistice and axe murders: Korea's DMZ summit site full of diplomatic, military history (Reuters, 04/26/2018)
Dealing with North Korea: Three lessons from previous summits (CNN, 04/26/2018)
For a successful summit (Joongang Daily, 04/26/2018)
From brink of war to hopes of peace: Kim Jong Un heads south for summit (CNN, 04/26/2018)
In summit, two Koreas to discuss formal end to war, peace regime (Yonhap, 04/26/2018)
Inter-Korean Summit to Set Agenda to Remove Nukes (VOA, 04/26/2018)
Kaesong firms hopeful complex might reopen (Joongang Daily, 04/26/2018)
Kim Jong-un to make historic step across border at 9:30 Friday morning (Joongang Daily, 04/26/2018)
Kim Jong Un to cross line at DMZ: Here's what will happen (CNN, 04/26/2018)
Kim Jong Un walks south to meet his rival: Can they deal? (WaPo, 04/26/2018)
Korean leaders seek to control optics at historic summit (WaPo, 04/25/2018)
Korean summit: everything you need to know (Guardian, 04/26/2018)
Korean summit: How we got here (CNN, 04/26/2018)
Leaders to explore ways to improve inter-Korean ties at summit (Yonhap, 04/26/2018)
Main press center opens for inter-Korean summit (Yonhap,04/26/2018)
Kim, Moon summit is only the third between divided Koreas (WaPo, 04/26/2018)
Panmunjeom: Standing witness to decades of border history (Korea Times, 04/26/2018)
Rehearsals and realism as North and South Korean leaders prepare to meet (Guardian, 04/26/2018)
Rival Koreas' leaders face high stakes at historic summit (WaPo, 04/26/2018)
Second summit betrayed by lack of time (Joongang Daily, 04/26/2018)
Summit - taking ownership of our fate (Korea Times, 04/26/2018)
The historic summit of the Koreas hangs on the North's nuclear intentions (WaPo, 04/26/2018)
Two Koreas complete preparations for leaders' summit (Yonhap, 04/26/2018)
Two previous inter-Korean summits paved the path for peace, reconciliation (Yonhap, 04/26/2018)
Upcoming summit of two Koreas to set many firsts (Yonhap, 04/26/2018)
Venue for Koreas summit a symbol of division (WaPo,04/26/2018)
What will North and South Korean leaders talk about tomorrow? Here's a cheat sheet. (WaPo, 04/26/2018)
When North Met South: A Short History of Inter-Korean Summits (NYT*imes*, 04/26/2018)
Will first ladies of Koreas meet during summit? (Yonhap, 04/26/2018)

International:
Analysts Mixed on North's Nuclear Pledge as Condition of Peace Treaty Ahead of Moon-Kim Summit (RFA, 04/25/2018)
China Cautiously Optimistic About North-South Korea Talks (VOA, 04/26/2018)
Complete denuclearization only way for N.K. to get sanctions lifted: expert (Yonhap, 04/26/2018)
Experts: Summit should clarify North Korea's commitment to denuclearization (UPI, 04/26/2018)
Eyes of the world are watching Panmunjom (Joongang Daily, 04/26/2018)
Kim is on demilitarization, not denuclearization (Korea Times, 04/26/2018)
Kim Jong Un wants you to know that he's a totally reasonable global leader (WaPo, 04/26/2018)
Mattis Plays Down Link Between Iran Nuclear Deal and North Korea Talks (NYT*imes*, 04/26/2018)

Mongolia, Singapore on host city shortlist for Trump-Kim summit: report (Korea Times, 04/25/2018)
Neutral ground or dramatic backdrop? Where Donald Trump and Kim Jong-un could meet (Telegraph, 04/26/2018)
North Korea test site could be unusable after collapse - Chinese scientists (BBC)
North Korea's pledge to dismantle nuclear site sounds good, but verification will be tough (Reuters, 04/26/2018)
Pope Francis hopes for success of inter-Korean summit (Yonhap, 04/26/2018)
S. Korea, U.S. to stop military drills on summit day (Yonhap, 04/26/2018)
South Korea credits Trump for opening door to talks with North (CNN, 04/26/2018)
The Olympics' role in peace talks (Joongang Daily, 04/26/2018)
Trump may meet with South Korea's Moon before summit with Kim (Reuters, 04/25/2018)
Trump on summit with Kim Jong Un: 'Maybe the meeting doesn't even take place' (CNN, 04/26/2018)
Trump says he is weighing options for North Korea meeting (Reuters, 04/26/2018)
Trump says North Korea has made major nuclear concessions (WaPo, 04/26/2018)
Trump says Pompeo was not originally scheduled to see Kim Jong Un on secret North Korea visit (WaPo, 04/26/2018)
Trump's bet on a North Korea summit is looking riskier than ever (WaPo, 04/25/2018)
U.S.-N. Korea denuclearization deal will likely endure if reached: experts (Yonhap, 04/26/2018)
Understanding Kim: Inside the U.S. effort to profile the secretive North Korean leader (Reuters, 04/26/2018)
US envoy in Australia says Adm. Harris is needed in Seoul (WaPo, 04/25/2018)

Top News:

- In this op-ed for the New York Times, founding director and HRNK board member Nicholas Eberstadtstates that it is not only unrealistic to hope that KJU, the NKorean leader will offer SK real and lasting peace, it is delusional. He argues that if the past is any guide, NK will offer SK unenforceable verbiage, and should SK accept this, it will expose itself to more manipulation by the government in Pyongyang in both domestic politics as well as SK's alliance with the US. (Nicholas Eberstadt, NYTimes)
- In this HRNK Insider piece, HRNK Executive Director Greg Scarlatoiu comments that both critics and supporters of the Trump Administration may agree that, of all human rights issues, religious freedom has ranked among its highest. This has been evidenced by the May 4, 2017 Presidential Executive Order "Promoting Free Speech and Religious Liberty" as well as the destinations of the President's first international trip in May 2017 that Saudi Arabia, Israel, Rome, and Vatican City, home to the Holy Sites of three major religions. Scarlatoiu notes that in NK, Christianity was once a way of life as the cradle of the Korean Presbyterian Church, with the city of Pyongyang referred to as the "Jerusalem of the East" prior to the communist takeover. Since 1946, religious freedom in NK went from restriction to suppression to violent obliteration. Scarlatoiu further discusses the current state of underground Christianity and religious oppression under the Kim regime, and also analyzes the reason for the Kim regime's fear of Christianity. Scarlatoiu in his piece also points out that Kim regime aims to deflect international criticism and seek economic aid, which come from well-meaning Christian groups that often fail to understand the true nature of the Kim regime and its policy of human rights denial. (Greg Scarlatoiu, HRNK Insider)

- In this interview with Justice Hub as part of its #MyJustice series, Navanethem "Navi" Pillay spoke about her work exposing rights violations in NK, her thoughts as the Rome Statute turns 20, as well as her thoughts on the current application of international law in states. She spoke of her work on the IBA-commissioned civilian panel that investigated the evidence about crimes against humanity committed by officials in NK following the Kirby Commission report. As part of this investigation that focused on the condition of NKorean prison camps, Pillay and her colleagues not only reviewed satellite pictures, but also heard live evidence from former prisoners, prison wardens, as well diplomatic figures. The panel concluded that the conditions and extreme ill-treatment did constitute to crimes against humanity as defined by the Rome Statue and the ad hoc tribunals. She stressed the importance of these reports produced by the reputable bodies such as the Commission and Pillay's IBA panel because there would be plenty of opportunities for countries like the US—who should care about not only the security issues in the region, but also the human rights of the people in NK—to raise the human rights issues at a high-level meeting with NKorean leadership. (Janet Anderson, Justice Hub)

In North Korea:

- Nine key aides to NKorean leader KJU will accompany him on his trip to the inter-Korean border village of Panmunjom this week for a historic summit, a SKorean presidential official said Thurs. (Yonhap)
- Ahead of this week's summit between NKorean leader KJU and SKorean president Moon, Kim Ryon-hui hopes her dream of returning to Pyongyang will become a reality. NKorean officials have consistently demanded Kim be allowed to return and have said it is a precondition to any reunions between families divided by the 1950-53 Korean War. (Benjamin Haas, Guardian)
- A suspected NKorean cyberattack on Turkish banks last month is broader in scope than originally believed, and has expanded to a global data-theft campaign targeting nations including the US and Australia, according to a new cybersecurity analysis. (Timothy W. Martin, Wall Street Journal)
- Nine key aides of KJU will accompany the NKorean leader when he crosses the border today for a first-ever summit with SKorean President Moon. The delegation is a wide-ranging entourage of party loyalists, cabinet members and military officers that reflects KJU's ambition to discuss multiple issues related to his country's long-strained ties with SK. (Jeong Yong-soo, Lee Chul-jae, Joongang Daily)
- Over the past couple of weeks, there's been several news stories that suggest and increased stream of goods—and people—across the NKorean border to China. (Benjamin Katzeff Silberstein, NK Econ Watch)
- She may have a mysterious background, but Ri Sol-ju, the wife of KJU, is being thrust into the spotlight as NK seeks to normalise its ruling elite. (Neil Connor, Telegraph)

- NK's delegation to an inter-Korean summit on Fri. will include leader KJU's sister, one of his closest advisers, Seoul said on Thurs. (Nicola Smith, Telegraph)
- Beyond the trickle of propaganda from Pyongyang, little is known about NK's enigmatic leader, especially his youth. SKorean intelligence officials believe he was born in 1984 as the son of Kim Jong-il and Ko Yong-hui, a dancer from Japan. (Lee Yong-jong, Chung Yeong-gyo, Joongang Daily)
- Experts said Thurs. NK's latest diplomatic drive reflects its strategic choice to become a normal state instead of a nuclear power, which they view as heralding an existential threat to the regime in Pyongyang. (Yonhap)
- With a "nuclear button" and unchallenged authority at home, NKorean leader KJU is now looking beyond his borders, forging ahead with a diplomatic adventure that could turn his country from an introvert into a player of geostrategic significance, experts said Thurs. (Song Sang-ho, Yonhap)
- NKorean leader KJU has visited a railway station to see off a special train that carried the bodies of Chinese tourists who were killed in a traffic accident in NK, and the injured, state media said Thurs. (Yonhap)
- On the eve of an inter-Korean summit, NK gave credit Thurs. to leader KJU for the hosting of the historic talks. (Yonhap)
- In the final part of a four-part series, the Joongang Ilbo spoke with a number of analysts, experts, and pundits to analyze KJU's major change of course this year that led to the inter-Korean summit, focusing on NK's calculus and motivations. (Ko Soo-suk, Jeong Yong-soo, Joongang Daily)
- Part of NK's main nuclear weapons testing site may not be usable for further trials following a collapse in the mountain above it, according to a report by a team of Chinese geologists. (Jamie Fullerton, Telegraph)
- NKorean leader KJU has offered his deep apologies to China after a bus crash in his isolated country killed 32 Chinese tourists, state media said on Thurs. (Reuters)
- NK condemned US criticism of its human rights record as "ridiculous", days before leader KJU's summit with SK and ahead of a meeting with US President Donald Trump. (AFP)
- NK's main nuclear test site has partially collapsed under the stress of multiple explosions, possibly rendering it unsafe for further testing and leaving it vulnerable to radiation leaks, a study by Chinese geologists has shown. (Justin McCurry, Guardian)
- NK's nuclear test in Sept. last year was so strong that it caused an on-site collapse at the test site, geologists in China claim. (Joshua Berlinger, Serenitie Wang, CNN)
- An increasing number of remittance brokers are being apprehended and held in custody by NK's intelligence agencies, report inside sources. The brokers, who are active in the border region near China, facilitate cash transfers for a fee. (Ha Yoon Ah, Daily NK)
- Sources throughout NK have reported an upsurge in talk of the desire for unification within the country in public spaces in the weeks leading up to this Fri.'s inter-Korean summit. (Kang Mi Jin, Daily NK)
- The N.Korean authorities distributed confidential instructions on Apr. 23 detailing preparations that are to be made for Ri Sol Ju joining her husband KJU for the upcoming inter-Korean summit, reports a source inside the country. (Lee Sang Yong, Daily NK)

In South Korea:

- The inter-Korean summit set for Fri. will bring together President Moon's seasoned security aides and NKorean leader KJU's loyal advisers for an attempt to hammer out a landmark agreement on denuclearization and peace on the Korean Peninsula. (Yonhap)
- A SKorean central bank official said on Thurs. resuming any economic cooperation with NK is likely to boost consumer sentiment in SK. (Reuters)
- The inter-Korean truce village of Panmunjom, a vestige of the Cold War, will become a venue for peace-making when the leaders of the two Koreas meet in a historic summit Fri. (Yonhap)
- Supplanting last year's escalatory threats of war with budding hopes of cross-border trust and reconciliation, President Moon's diplomacy is charting a new course toward a lasting peace on the divided peninsula, experts said Thurs. (Song Sang-ho, Yonhap)
- This article gives readers a quick background into Panmunjom, the site for the impending NK-SK summit. (Jihye Lee, Bloomberg)
- In this Joongang Daily article, Panmunjom—its history, NK-SK interactions, high-profile incidents, and tourism—is explored. (Lee Sung-eun, Joongang Daily)
- SK opened an international media center Thurs. for a historic summit between SKorean President Moon and NKorean leader KJU this week that could also become one of the largest joint events held between the divided Koreas. (Yonhap)
- The leaders of SK and NK will announce and sign a joint agreement after their historic summit talks on Fri. at the border village of Panmunjom, a Seoul presidential official said. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- Just hours before a summit in the border village of Panmunjom that could finally bring a lasting peace to the Korean Peninsula, optimism is breaking out all over SK. (Julian Ryall, Telegraph)
- With a giant TV screen in its capital, and a break from classes for students to watch live coverage, much of SK will hit the pause button on Fri. to watch history unfold—the first time a NKorean leader crosses the border to visit. (Heekyong Yang, Ju-min Park, Reuters)
- SKorean President Moon will greet NKorean leader KJU on Fri. as the latter crosses a military demarcation line to enter SK for the first summit between the two sides in more than a decade, SK said. (Christine Kim, Josh Smith, Reuters)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- When the leaders of the two Koreas meet during a historic summit Fri., all eyes will be on whether they make headway toward denuclearization of the Korean Peninsula, a goal which has been elusive for many years despite ever intensifying global pressure on Pyongyang. (Yonhap)
- The leaders of SK and NK will hold a tree-planting ceremony when they meet this week for an historic summit, as part of efforts to symbolize their wish for peace and prosperity on the Korean Peninsula, a presidential official said Thurs. (Yonhap)

- The historic summit between SKorean President Moon and NKorean leader KJU will include various events apparently aimed at forming personal ties between the two leaders that may assist international efforts to rid NK of its nuclear weapons down the road, a detailed schedule of the meeting released Thurs. showed. (Yonhap)
- Cold noodles from a famous Pyongyang restaurant and other symbolic dishes will be served at the dinner after the leaders of SK and NK hold their first summit on the southern side of the border on Fri.(Yonhap)
- This piece takes a look at the two leaders who are meeting at the NK-SK border on Fri. in the two Koreas' third-ever summit talks since their 1945 division. (Hyung-jin Kim, AP)
- The meeting between Moon KJU at Peace House on the southern side of Panmunjom could shift the tone of relations between the two Koreas, and possibly put an end to the disputes and deadly attacks that have plagued the peninsula for decades. (Kang Jin-kyu, Joongang Daily)
- The "peace village" of Panmunjom, with its cluster of distinctive bright blue buildings and chequered history of defections, tension and murder, is an apt choice for the first inter-Korean summit in more than a decade. (Hyonhee Shin, Reuters)
- When Moon meets KJU on Fri. he'll be the third SKorean President to meet his NKorean counterpart. Two of his predecessors, Kim Dae-jung and Roh Moo-hyun, each held talks with the late NKorean leader Kim Jong Il in 2000 and 2007, respectively. While those summits achieved some tangible results, they failed to significantly move the needle when it came to ending the conflict on the Korean Peninsula. But there are important lessons Moon can take away from the successes and failures of his predecessors. (Joshua Berlinger, Paula Hancocks, Yoonjung Seo, CNN)
- In this Joongang Daily editorial, the Joongang Daily expresses their hope that both NKorean and SKorean leaders do their best in the summit to find a way to prevent the Korean Peninsula from teetering on the brink of war. (Joongang Daily)
- In a meeting heavy with history and symbolism, NKorean leader KJU will hold talks with SKorean President Moon at the Peace House on the southern side of the demilitarized zone that divides the two countries. (Ben Westcott, Joshua Berlinger, CNN)
- When SKorean President Moon talked about a "dauntless journey towards establishing a peace regime" in Berlin last Jul., many viewed that prospect as a matter of a distant future. (Lee Chi-dong, Yonhap)
- The inter-Korean summit is expected to produce a joint statement committing to the denuclearization of the Korea Peninsula, and also a clear definition of what a denuclearization outcome would entail. (Brian Padden, VOA)
- Optimism over today's summit is spreading to the business community, with many welcoming the talks and the effect they may have on the economic cooperation that abruptly stopped in 2016. (Lee Ho-jeong, Joongang Daily)
- NKorean leader KJU will make a historic border crossing into SK at 9:30 a.m. Fri. in Panmunjom, where SKorean President Moon will welcome him to the third inter-Korean summit meeting—with the entire world watching. (Kang Jin-kyu, Joongang Daily)
- On Fri. morning, NKorean leader KJU will be greeted by SKorean President Moon at the demilitarized zone (DMZ) that divides the two countries—the first time leaders of the two countries have met since 2007. The outcome will set the stage for what's primed to be the most significant diplomatic summit in a generation, with Kim and US President Donald Trump set to meet in May or early Jun. (Katie Hunt, CNN)

- Fri.'s summit will be the clearest sign yet of whether it's possible to peacefully negotiate those weapons away from a country that has spent decades doggedly building its bombs despite crippling sanctions and near-constant international opprobrium. (Foster Klug, AP)
- KJU will be in uncharted territory when the third-generation autocrat crosses into the southern half of the Demilitarized Zone separating the rival Koreas on Fri., possibly on foot, and greets S.Korean President Moon. (Foster Klug, AP)
- KJU will meet SKorean leader Moon on Apr. 27. As the two nations technically remain in a state of war, since a peace treaty was never signed at the end of the 1950-53 Korean War, and this meeting could touch on a formal truce. It will also be focused on preparing the ground for US president Donald Trump to meet KJU in May or Jun. This article in the Guardian provides everything you need to know about the historic meeting. (Benjamin Haas, Guardian)
- In 2017, the idea of KJU meeting with US President Donald Trump and SK Moon would've been unthinkable.The following CNN piece contains the timeline of how the diplomatic rapprochement unfolded. (Katie Hunt, Joshua Berlinger, Jason Kwok, CNN)
- SK and NK are expected to discuss ways to advance their relations at this week's summit, but tough international sanctions will likely limit their efforts toward economic cooperation, experts said Thurs. (Yonhap)
- A vast press center is ready to accommodate over a thousand media personnel from around the world who will cover a landmark summit between the leaders of the two Koreas on Fri., the organizing committee said. (Yonhap)
- The Moon-Kim summit on Fri. is only known to be the third time that the leaders of the divided Koreas have met in the 65 years since the end of the Korean War. (AP)
- The heads of the two Koreas meet at Panmunjeom, the first inter-Korean leaders' summit in 11 years and the first at the border village divided in two by the military demarcation line (MDL). NKorean leader KJU will cross the MDL to the south side of Panmunjeom to meet his SKorean counterpart Moon around 9:30 am. They will begin their historic summit at 10:30 am. in the Peace House. A state dinner also will be held at the venue. (Ko Dong-hwan, Korea Times)
- The grandson of NK's founder and the son of a refugee who fled the country for SK will shake hands and sit down to begin talks on Fri. that could defuse what has become arguably the biggest single threat to global security. (Justin McCurry, Benjamin Haas, Guardian)
- It may lack the punch of Trump's vow to unleash "fire and fury" and KJU "nuclear button" boasts, but the stakes will be high on Fri. when Kim and Moon sit down on the southern side of the no man's land that forms the world's most heavily armed border. (Foster Klug, AP)
- A summit between SKorean President Moon and NKorean leader KJU will be held on the southern side of the truce village of Panmunjom. In a three-part series, the Korea JoongAng Daily will examine the landmark first and second inter-Korean summits, both held in Pyongyang, and the history of Panmunjom. The second part describes the second summit held between SKorean President Roh Moo-hyun and NKorean leader Kim Jong-il in Oct. 2007. (Esther Chung, Joongang Daily)

- The Apr. 27 summit at the truce village of Panmunjeom or at least in the lead-up to it has emerged as a rebuttal to all of the above or the first real case of self-determination. It is not entirely about clearing up all this old historic baggage at once, but about Korea taking ownership of its future. (Oh Young-jin, Korea Times)
- SKorean President Moon will welcome KJU Fri. to a summit that, Moon hopes, will lay the groundwork for a meeting between the NKorean leader and President Trump and that will remove the cloud of another war from the peninsula. (Anna Fifield, WaPo)
- SK and NK wrapped up their preparations for a meeting between their leaders Thurs. with one final rehearsal of the historic inter-Korean summit. (Yonhap)
- This week's summit between President Moon and NKorean leader KJU is expected to focus on denuclearization, but the previous two summits in 2000 and 2007 were devoted to reconciliation efforts across the Cold War's last frontier. (Yonhap)
- The upcoming summit between SKorean President Moon and NKorean leader KJU will likely be a historic event that Moon earlier said could mark the start of finally ridding NK of its nuclear ambitions.(Yonhap)
- This week's summit between the leaders of NK and SK will occur at a border littered with mines and laced with barbed wire, a Cold War reminder of a division that dates to the end of World War II.(Hyung-jin Kim, AP)
- This article in the Washington Post discusses how the high-level talks in 1972 and 1991 and two inter-Korean summits in 2000 and 2007 play into Fri.'s summit. It also discusses the domestic political and legal considerations on SKorean President Moon's road map for reunification and peaceful coexistence with NK. (Hyuk Kim, WaPo)
- On Fri., KJU, NK's leader, is expected to walk across that border, where he will be greeted by President Moon of SK before they sit down for talks on the southern side of the Demilitarized Zone. The talks, which would be the third summit meeting between the Koreas, could produce a statement about pursuing a peace agreement to end the Korean War of 1950-53, which was paused by an armistice but never formally brought to a close. (Austin Ramzy, NYTimes)
- With just a day left before a historic inter-Korean summit, whether NKorean first lady Ri Sol-ju will travel with her husband KJU for the meeting has drawn keen interest in SK. (Yonhap)

International:

- Days ahead of a planned summit meeting between the leaders of long-time adversaries NK and SK, observers are mixed on whether a commitment by NK to fully dismantling its nuclear weapons program should be a prerequisite to a negotiation on a formal end to the Korean War. (Leejin Jun, Joshua Lipes, RFA)
- China is intently watching this week's historic meeting between NK and SK, hopeful that crucial steps will be taken towards peace on the Korean peninsula, but also anxious, analysts say, about the role it can play as talks move forward. (Bill Ide, VOA)

- A complete denuclearization will be the only way for NK to get the multilayered sanctions imposed on it lifted, an expert said Thurs., urging the NK to take steps to convince the world of its strong commitment to giving up its nuclear weapons program. (Yonhap)
- Experts expect the Inter-Korean Summit on Fri. to produce agreements aimed at peaceful coexistence of NK and SK—possibly even a peace treaty. But laying the groundwork for denuclearization is the top priority. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- The summit marks the first time that foreign correspondents will be part of the press corps covering the inter-Korean summit on site at Panmunjom, the Blue House said. Journalists from the UK-based Reuters, US-based Bloomberg, China's Xinhua and Japan's Kyodo News and Jiji Press will join Korean media to cover the event from the southern side of Panmunjom. (Sarah Kim, Joongang Daily)
- KJU appears to clearly want to minimize talks on denuclearization and maximize his proposal for demilitarization of the peninsula. That can also obstruct Trump's using a military option to achieve progress on the denuclearization front. (Jang Sung-min, Korea Times)
- Known for a long time as a nuclear-armed tyrant threatening to nuke Washington and take out US military bases in Asia, NK leader KJU now seems to be an active international statesman. (Anna Fifield, WaPo)
- Defense Secretary Jim Mattis played down concerns on Thurs. about whether a potential US withdrawal from the Iran nuclear deal would undermine attempts to strike an agreement with NK to dismantle its nuclear weapons program. (Reuters)
- Mongolia and Singapore are vying to host the historic summit between US President Donald Trump and NKorean leader KJU, SKorean newspaper Joongang Ilbo reported on Wed., citing government sources. (Park Si-soo, Korea Times)
- US President Trump this week said there were five locations under consideration, and none of them were in the US. Neutral venues in Asia and Europe are now considered the most likely options, but given that both Trump and KJU have a reputation for enjoying the limelight, the meeting will almost certainly need to have a dramatic backdrop. (Neil Connor, Telegraph)
- Chinese scientists have concluded that NK nuclear test site has partially collapsed, potentially rendering it unusable. (BBC)
- NK's pledge to dismantle its Punggye-ri nuclear test site sounds like a big step forward but verifying whether that will actually happen will be difficult, underlining the complexities of any deal it may strike with the US. (Malcolm Foster, Josh Smith, Reuters)
- Pope Francis has prayed for peace on the Korean Peninsula, expressing his support to the upcoming inter-Korean summit, SK's presidential office said Thurs. (Yonhap)
- SK and the US have decided to suspend their annual combined military drills on the inter-Korean summit day this week, defense authorities here said Thurs. (Yonhap)
- SK's foreign minister has said she believes President Donald Trump is largely responsible for bringing NKorean leader KJU to the negotiating table. (Mick Krever, Jo Shelley, CNN)
- In this piece for the Joongang Daily, IOC president Thomas Bach discusses the role of the Olympics in recent peace talks between NK and SK. (Thomas Bach, Joongang Daily)
- US President Donald Trump may meet with SK's president before his summit with NKorean leader KJU to seek a denuclearization deal, a White House official said on Wed. (Reuters)

- President Donald Trump on Thurs. morning suggested that some of the elements of his potential summit later this year with NKorean leader KJU are up in the air. (Maegan Vazquez, Allie Malloy, CNN)
- US President Donald Trump on Thurs. said he is considering three or four dates as well as five locations for his meeting with NKorean leader KJU, adding that it remains unclear whether the meeting will occur. (Reuters)
- President Trump said NK has made concessions to the US in advance of a potential summit with KJU in the coming months, while the US hasn't given up anything. (Zeke Miller, AP)
- CIA Director Mike Pompeo was not originally slated to meet with NK leader KJU during his secret trip to Pyongyang, President Trump said Thurs. (Anne Gearan, WaPo)
- The Editorial board at the Washington Post states it's view that as the US President Trump and the governments of NK and SK are combining to create sky-high expectations for a diplomatic breakthrough on NK's nuclear program, the US president's bet on an unprecedented summit with the NKorean leader is looking riskier than ever. (Editorial Board, WaPo)
- A denuclearization deal between NK and the US, if reached, could have a greater chance of surviving a future change in the US administration now than at any other time, NK experts here said Thurs. (Yonhap)
- US intelligence experts are trying to build a profile of KJU to give President Donald Trump a competitive edge in one of the most consequential summits since the Cold War, but they face a huge challenge–figuring out a secretive N.Korean ruler few people know much about. (Matt Spetalnick, David Brunnstrom, John Walcott, Reuters)
- The acting US ambassador to Australia said on Thurs. the commander of US forces in the Pacific, Adm. Harry Harris, is the best envoy to represent the US in SK. (Rod McGurik, AP)

Prepared by Jinny Ahn, HRNK Research Intern

————————————————

Friday, April 27, 2018

(ROUNDUP) Historic summit of Koreas ends with pledge to denuclearize, end confrontation; Otto Warmbier's parents sue North Korea over son's death

In North Korea:

(2nd LD) (News Focus) North Korean leader steps up charm offensive, crafts image as peace driver (Yonhap, 04/27/2018)

All eyes on young N.K. leader in inter-Korean summit (Yonhap, 04/27/2018)

[Audio] Pyongyang resident surprised to learn Kim Jong Un traveling to South for summit(Daily NK, 04/27/2018)

From Cheerleader to Global Stage, North Korea's First Lady Joins Summit Dinner (NYT, 04/27/2018)
Kim Yo-jong gets place at the table at inter-Korean summit: What we know about Kim Jong-un's sister (Telegraph, 04/26/2018)
Mixed feelings among North Koreans as inter-Korean summit commences (Daily NK, 04/27/2018)
N.K. media reports Kim Jong-un's departure for inter-Korean summit (Yonhap, 04/27/2018)
Netizens worldwide expected to tune in live to inter-Korean summit, but what about North Koreans? (Daily NK, 04/27/2018)
North Koreans Kept in the Dark on Talks with South Korea (RFA, 04/26/2018)
With hug and handshakes, North Korea's smiling Kim lightens summit mood (Reuters, 04/27/2018)

In South Korea:
(3rd LD) S. Korean businessmen buoyed by summit, call for more cooperation with N. Korea(Yonhap, 04/27/2018)
(LEAD) N.K. leader's historic crossing to South captures public's attention (Yonhap, 04/27/2018)
(LEAD) Peace mood to have limited impact on S. Korean market: report (Yonhap, 04/27/2018)
(LEAD) S. Korean organizers of swimming worlds to push for N. Korean participation(Yonhap, 04/27/2018)
(LEAD) Seoul shares close higher on historic summit (Yonhap, 04/27/2018)
Defectors: North Korea survival strategy on course ahead of summit (UPI, 04/26/2018)
First Moon-Kim encounter draws 34 pct viewership in S. Korea (Yonhap, 04/27/2018)
Is it time to buy the North's won? (Joongang Ilbo, 04/27/2018)
North Korean Cold Noodles a Hit as Historic Summit Warms Up Ties With South (NYT, 04/27/2018)
Pyongyang food for lunch: Inter-Korean summit spurs demand for cold noodles (Yonhap, 04/27/2018)
Reconciliation on Korean Peninsula likely to push up S. Korean economy: BOK (Yonhap, 04/27/2018)
S. Korean businessmen welcome summit results, expect resumption of Kaesong complex(Yonhap, 04/27/2018)
S. Korean FM hopes Kim commits to denuclearization in writing (Yonhap, 04/26/2018)
South Jeolla churches ring 130 bells for successful summit (Korea Times, 04/27/2018)
South Korean parties divided over summit result (Yonhap, 04/27/2018)
South Koreans clap, cheer for peace during Moon, Kim summit (UPI, 04/27/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
(ROUNDUP) Historic summit of Koreas ends with pledge to denuclearize, end confrontation(Yonhap, 04/27/2018)
(3rd LD) Moon, Kim shake hands, begin historic meeting at border (Yonhap, 04/27/2018)
(3rd LD) Moon, Kim agree to halt all hostile acts (Yonhap, 04/27/2018)
(4th LD) Leaders of Koreas agree to complete denuclearization, efforts to build peace(Yonhap, 04/27/2018)
(LEAD) Koreas agree to resume reunions of separated families (Yonhap, 04/27/2018)
(LEAD) Koreas agree to set up joint permanent liaison office in Kaesong (Yonhap, 04/27/2018)
(LEAD) Leaders of Koreas jointly plant pine tree to symbolize peace and prosperity (Yonhap, 04/27/2018)
(LEAD) N. Korean leader's wife crosses into South for summit dinner (Yonhap, 04/27/2018)

(LEAD) (News Focus) Koreas declare end to military confrontation, present peace vision(Yonhap, 04/27/2018)
(LEAD) Two Koreas to resume construction of cross-border roads, railways (Yonhap, 04/27/2018)
A conciliatory mood and the occasional joke (Joongang Ilbo, 04/27/2018)
A meaningful first step (Joongang Ilbo, 04/27/2018)
AP Analysis: North Korean leader displays nuclear pride (WaPo, 04/27/2018)
Armistice and axe murders: Korea's DMZ summit site full of diplomatic, military history(Reuters, 04/27/2018)
As Kim crosses into South Korea, a historic summit hangs on the North's nuclear intentions(WaPo, 04/26/2018)
As Kim walks across border, Germany has an idea how to tear down that 'wall' for real(WaPo, 04/27/2018)
At summit with South, Kim accompanied by sister, generals (WaPo, 04/27/2018)
At this summit, North and South Korea took a real step towards peace (Guardian, 04/27/2018)
Business sector hopes for changes (Joongang Daily, 04/27/2018)
Different manners of greetings stress stark reality of unfinished war between Koreas (Yonhap, 04/27/2018)
Factbox: Two Korean leaders' joint statement from historic summit (Reuters, 04/27/2018)
Full text: Panmunjom Agreement on Korea launches 'new era of peace' (UPI, 04/27/2018)
Here's what Kim and Moon said when they met for the first time (CNN, 04/27/2018)
High risk, high return (Joongang Daily, 04/27/2018)
Historic Moon-Kim summit expected to ease geopolitical risks in region (Yonhap, 04/27/2018)
How Moon and Kim make history (Korea Times, 04/27/2018)
If Kim Jong Un Wants to Test Nukes Again, He Has Options (VOA, 04/27/2018)
Inter-Korean cultural exchanges likely to gain steam after historic summit (Yonhap, 04/27/2018)
Inter-Korean oceanic trade routes on rosy prospect (Korea Times, 04/27/2018)
Key developments leading to inter-Korean summit (Yonhap, 04/27/2018)
Kim becomes first North Korean leader to cross border into South since war (Reuters, 04/26/2018)
Kim Jong Un: I'm willing to visit South Korean Presidential Office anytime (UPI, 04/27/2018)
Kim Jong-un and Moon Jae-in commit to Korean 'peace regime' to end nuclear conflict at historic summit (Telegraph, 04/27/2018)
Kim Jong Un calls for 'new history' at Korean peace summit (CNN, 04/27/2018)
Kim Jong Un crosses border into South Korea for historic summit (UPI, 04/26/2018)
Kim Jong Un steps across Korean border, makes history (WaPo, 04/27/2018)
Kim Yo Jong: The only woman at the summit table (CNN, 04/27/2018)
Koreas agree to jointly participate in int'l sports competitions (Yonhap, 04/27/2018)
Korea summit: leaders vow to 'write new chapter' in peninsula's history (Guardian, 04/27/2018)
Koreas to push for previously agreed-upon cooperative projects (Yonhap, 04/27/2018)
Koreas to turn tense sea border into safe fishing zone (Yonhap, 04/27/2018)
Korean Leaders: 'No More War' on Peninsula (VOA, 04/27/2018)
Korean leaders aim for end of war, 'complete denuclearization' after historic summit (Reuters, 04/27/2018)
Korean Leaders Agree on Denuclearization Goal at Summit (VOA, 04/27/2018)
Korean leaders plant tree as symbol of peace, prosperity (UPI, 04/27/2018)

Live and unfiltered: Kim Jong Un captivates South Koreans (WaPo, 04/27/2018)
(News Focus) Koreas declare end to military confrontation, present peace vision (Yonhap, 04/27/2018)
North and South Korea agree to work toward 'common goal' of denuclearization (WaPo, 04/27/2018)
North and South Korea Set Bold Goals: A Final Peace and No Nuclear Arms (NYT,04/27/2018)
North and South Korea Summit Is Short on Details, but Long on Theater (NYT, 04/27/2018)
North and South Korean Leaders' Own Words in Meeting at the DMZ (NYT, 04/27/2018)
North and South Korean leaders promise 'lasting peace' for peninsula (Guardian, 04/27/2018)
North Korea's Kim Jong-un makes history by crossing into South Korea (Joongang Daily, 04/27/2018)
Off-topic ramblings, jokes between Moon, Kim indicate emerging rapport (Yonhap, 04/27/2018)
Panmunjom Declaration for Peace, Prosperity and Unification of the Korean Peninsula (NYT,04/27/2018)
Panmunjom Declaration signed (Joongang Daily, 04/27/2018)
READ: Full declaration of North and South Korean summit (CNN, 04/27/2018)
Security has never been so tight in truce village (Joongang Daily, 04/27/2018)
South, North Korea declare commitment to full denuclearization, ending war (UPI, 04/27/2018)
South, North Korean officials, pop stars join leaders for official dinner (UPI, 04/27/2018)
Spouses of Korean leaders meet for first time (Joongang Daily, 04/27/2018)
The full text of North and South Korea's agreement, annotated (WaPo, 04/27/2018)
'Why has it taken us so long': five things we've learned from Korean summit (Guardian, 04/27/2018)

International:
(2nd LD) Foreign journalists hold out hope with subdued expectations ahead of summit(Yonhap, 04/27/2018)
(LEAD) Japan, China welcome inter-Korean summit agreement (Yonhap, 04/27/2018)
(LEAD) Korean War to end, Trump says after inter-Korean summit (Yonhap, 04/27/2018)
(LEAD) Trump says 3 or 4 dates being tossed for Kim summit (Yonhap, 04/27/2018)
Abe welcomes inter-Korean summit agreement (Yonhap, 04/27/2018)
Bonhomie on Korean peninsula puts pressure on bellicose Trump (Guardian, 04/27/2018)
China welcomes joint statement by two Koreas (Reuters, 04/27/2018)
Eyes on Koreas as Southeast Asian leaders hold summit (WaPo, 04/27/2018)
How Trump's, Kim's, Moon's words have changed in just a year (WaPo, 04/27/2018)
In Alaska, soldiers relish role in U.S. missile defense (Reuters, 04/27/2018)
Japan PM Abe welcomes North-South Korea summit, expects concrete steps (Reuters, 04/27/2018)
Kremlin Calls Historic Summit of Korean Leaders Very Positive News (NYT, 04/27/2018)
N. Korea urges U.S. to show sincerity over its denuclearization pledge: KCNA (Yonhap, 04/27/2018)
(News Focus) N.K. leader's 'complete' denuclearization pledge bodes well for Kim-Trump summit (Yonhap, 04/27/2018)
Otto Warmbier's parents sue North Korea over son's death (CNN, 04/26/2018)
Parents Sue North Korea Over College Student's Death After Time in Prison (NYT, 04/26/2018)
Parents sue North Korea over death of detainee Otto Warmbier (WaPo, 04/26/2018)
Parents sue North Korea, saying Warmbier 'tortured and murdered' (Reuters, 04/26/2018)
Pictures released of Kim Jong-un meeting Donald Trump's new secretary of state Mike Pompeo (Telegraph, 04/26/2018)

Pompeo becomes U.S. secretary of state as North Korea, Middle East issues await (Reuters, 04/26/2018)
Russia ready to facilitate cooperation between North, South Korea (Reuters, 04/27/2018)
Trump says he is weighing options for North Korea meeting (Reuters, 04/27/2018)
Trump hails breakthrough at Korea summit, praises Xi (CNN, 04/27/2018)
Trump Renews Attacks on Comey Before Turning to Praise of Korean Talks (NYT, 04/27/2018)
Trump touts 'historic' meeting between Korean leaders but says 'only time will tell' where it leads (WaPo, 04/27/2018)
Trump welcomes historic North, South Korea meeting (Reuters, 04/27/2018)
U.S. GDP figures balance Korean détente in oil markets (UPI, 04/27/2018)
White House releases pictures of Mike Pompeo shaking hands with Kim Jong-un (Guardian, 04/27/2018)
White House releases photos of Kim Jong Un and Pompeo (CNN, 04/26/2018)
White House releases photos of Pompeo-Kim meeting (Yonhap, 04/26/2018)

In North Korea:

- N. Korean leader KJU on Fri. blurred the line of the peninsula's decades-long division by inviting his S. Korean counterpart to cross the border together hand in hand, in a symbolic move to position him as a key driver of reconciliation and peace. (Song Sang-ho, Joint Press Corps, Yonhap)
- All eyes fixated on every word from and move by KJU when he appeared live on local media channels for the first time in history during the landmark inter-Korean summit on Fri. (Yonhap)
- With the inter-Korean summit beginning on the morning of Apr. 27, Daily NK has conducted a brief interview with a Pyongyang resident named Jo Mun Chol (alias) to learn more about what ordinary N. Koreans think of the historic meeting. News of the Moon-Kim meeting has been presented to N. Koreans through state media, but this particular resident told Daily NK that the fact Kim would be crossing into S. Korean territory was a very surprising point. (Ha Yoon Ah, Daily NK)
- Ri Sol Ju first traveled to SK more than a decade ago as a cheerleader for NK's 2005 athletics team. On Fri. she returned as the wife of KJU, sharing the global stage with her husband after an historic summit that pledged to end more than 60 years of conflict on the Korean peninsula. (Reuters)
- KJU's younger sister took a prominent place at the negotiating table for the first NK-SK summit in more than a decade, cementing her public role as KJU's closest confidante and possibly the second-most powerful figure in his ruling regime. (Nicola Smith, Telegraph)
- With the inter-Korean summit officially underway, there is no shortage of opinions and expectations from the international community, but little has been said of the nearly 25 million people living north of the 38th parallel. (Kim Yoo Jin, Daily NK)
- KJU left Pyongyang early Fri. for the historic summit with SK's president at the border truce village of Panmunjom, state media said. (Yonhap)
- The S. Korean government has announced that people across the world will be able to tune into a live broadcast of Fri.'s much-anticipated inter-Korean summit via a free internet feed.

But while S. Koreans are expected to follow the event in large numbers, the same cannot be said for their N. Korean counterparts. (Moon Dong Hui, Daily NK)

- Residents of NK are largely unaware that talks with rival SK are set to be held on Fri., with the few who know about them reluctant to discuss them openly for fear of coming to the attention of police, NKorean sources say. (Joonho Kim, Myung Chul Lee, Hyemin Son, Leejin Jun, Richard Finney, RFA)
- The golden doors on the stately N. Korean building swung open and KJU, in a black Mao suit and surrounded by a gaggle of officials, descended steps towards the border. (Yang Hee-kyung, Park Ju-min, Reuters)

In South Korea:

- About a dozen S. Korean businessmen who had operated factories in NK erupted in cheers on Fri. as they watched a live broadcast of a historic handshake between the leaders of the two rival Koreas ahead of their summit. (Yonhap)
- Seoul citizens shared a moment of collective awe and jubilation as they watched the two leaders of the divided Koreas shake hands in a historic summit at the countries' heavily fortified border Fri. (Yonhap)
- Ongoing peace gestures involving NK could have positive impacts on SK's equity markets, though global woes would limit their upward momentum, a global investment bank said Fri. (Yonhap)
- The S. Korean organizing committee of next year's world swimming championships said Fri. it'll push for N. Koreans' participation in the biennial event. (Yonhap)
- SK's stock market closed higher Fri. as investor sentiment was boosted by the summit between the two Koreas, analysts said. The local currency gained against the greenback. (Yonhap)
- NK's strategy has remained remarkably consistent despite perceptions the KJU regime is turning a new leaf ahead of a historic summit on Fri., according to defectors in SK who spoke to UPI. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- More than 34 percent of S. Korean TV viewers in the capital area watched the historic first encounter between Moon and KJU on Fri., a media researcher said. (Yonhap)
- Kim Nam-jung, an editorial writer of the Joongang Ilbo, writes on Roger Holding's chairman Jim Roger's comments on investing in N. Korean currency. Rogers, in a lecture held in SK, highlighted the prospect of a unified Korea and investment in N. Korean currency, telling the audience "If you buy N. Korean currency, it will make you richer someday." However, Kim expresses some skepticism as the value of the N. Korean currency won is very low right now. According to defectors Kim spoke with, among N. Koreans, the N. Korean won is often viewed as "money without a future" or "money worth less than a sheet of paper" due to the country's failed currency reform in 2009, when Kim Jong-il was in power. (Kim Nam-jung, Joongang Ilbo)
- Long lines formed on Fri. outside restaurants in SK's capital serving Pyongyang-style cold noodles after the dish took on a starring role at a historic summit between N. and S. Korean leaders. (Reuters)

- After it was announced that Moon and KJU would be enjoying the N. Korean noodles, popular N. Korean-style naengmyeon restaurants in Seoul were flooded with customers lining up to have a bowl for lunch. (Yonhap)
- SK's central bank said Fri. that the looming rapprochement mood on the Korean Peninsula will have a positive impact on Asia's fourth-largest economy going forward. (Yonhap)
- S. Korean businessmen who had operated factories at the now-shuttered joint industrial complex in NK's border city welcomed the outcome of the historic inter-Korean summit and expressed hopes for the resumption of the factory park. (Yonhap)
- S. Korean Foreign Minister Kang Kyung-wha expressed hope Thurs. that KJU will commit to denuclearization in writing. (Yonhap)
- Churches in Gwangju and other parts of South Jeolla Province rang their bells simultaneously at 9:30 a.m. Fri. to wish for a peaceful result from the inter-Korean summit. (Ko Dong-hwan, Korea Times)
- SK's main opposition Liberty Korea Party (LKP) denounced the declaration by the two Koreas following the leaders' historic summit on Fri., calling it a political charade in the name of peace. (Yonhap)
- S. Koreans welcomed the joint declaration from leaders of NK and SK to work toward an official end to the 1950-53 Korean War as ruling and opposition political parties reacted to the historic summit between KJU and Moon on Fri. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- The historic summit between Moon and KJU ended Fri. with calls for the complete denuclearization of the Korean Peninsula and an immediate halt to all hostile acts in perhaps the most far-reaching agreement ever made between the two sides. (Byun Duk-kun, Yonhap)
- Moon and KJU began their historic meeting early Fri. with a handshake at the heavily fortified border between the two countries. (Yonhap)
- The leaders of SKand NK agreed Fri. to "completely cease all hostile acts against each other in every domain" as part of efforts to formally end the 1950-53 Korean War and introduce a peace treaty. (Joint Press Crops, Yonhap)
- The leaders of SK and NK reaffirmed their commitment to the complete denuclearization of the Korean Peninsula Fri., while also agreeing to reduce their conventional weapons pending the outcome of their joint efforts to reduce military tension and promote a lasting peace on the Korean Peninsula. (Joint Press Corps, Yonhap)
- SK and NK agreed Fri. to hold reunions of families separated by the 1950-53 Korean War on the occasion of Liberation Day in Aug. (Joint Press Corps, Yonhap)
- SK and NK agreed Fri. to set up a joint permanent liaison office in NK's border city of Kaesong to facilitate closer communication. (Joint Press Corps, Yonhap)
- The leaders of SK and NK jointly planted a tree on Fri., an event that symbolizes their wish for peace and prosperity on the Korean Peninsula. (Joint Press Corps, Yonhap)
- Ri Sol-ju, the wife of KJU, crossed the border in the Demilitarized Zone into S. Korean territory Fri. to attend a summit dinner hosted by Moon. (Yonhap)

- The leaders of the two Koreas took a meaningful, albeit not sensational, step Fri. towards a lasting peace on the peninsula during their Panmunjom summit that was meant to write a "new history." (Lee Chi-dong, Yonhap)
- The historic inter-Korean summit is raising hopes for cooperation on social overhead capital projects as the leaders of SK and NK agreed on Fri. to link cross-border roads and railways. (Yonhap)
- Talks touch on peace, denuclearization and Pyongyang noodles- a summary of the events at yesterday's summit between KJU and Moon. (Kang Jin-kyu, Sarah Kim, Lee Sung-eun, Esther Chung, Joint Press Corprs, Joongang Ilbo)
- The Korean Peninsula took a meaningful first step toward complete denuclearization. Moon and KJU held an inter-Korean summit at Peace House on the southern side of Panmunjom, the symbol of the two Korea's division, and confirmed that it is their "mutual goal to realize a nuclear-free Korean Peninsula through complete denuclearization." They also agreed that the measures being taken by NK are significant for denuclearization and that they will work to win the support and cooperation of the international community for the denuclearization of the Korean Peninsula. These agreements were laid out in the Panmunjom Declaration. It is the first time that the two Koreas' leaders have discussed the denuclearization issue as the core issue of a summit, the third of its kind. It is also the first time that the outcome has been stipulated in the agreement. (Joongang Daily)
- To the rest of the world focused on whether KJU is really willing to negotiate away his nuclear weapons, NK has a message: He isn't embarking on talks with his rivals out of desperation. He's meeting them as the proud leader of a nuclear power. (Eric Talmadge, AP)
- The "peace village" of Panmunjom, with its cluster of distinctive bright blue buildings and chequered history of defections, tension and murder, is an apt choice for the first inter-Korean summit in more than a decade. (Shin Hyon-hee, Reuters)
- KJU on Fri. morning crossed the line that has divided the Korean Peninsula for 65 years, walking into SK for a historic summit with Moon that will lay the groundwork for a meeting between KJU and Trump. (Anna Fifield, WaPo)
- Fri's summit is one for the history books, but whether it will yield any results is still unclear. It could be the beginning of a real peace initiative, or a huge disappointment — or anything in between. In case of a success, however, one once-unthinkable question will emerge sooner rather than later: What would happen to the DMZ that has separated two Koreas since 1953? (Rick Noack, WaPo)
- A list of high-profile NK officials accompanying KJU to a border village to meet with Moon showed how serious KJU was about the Koreas' third-ever summit. (Hyung-jin Kim, AP)
- Today's meeting between NK and SK at Panmunjom, and those few steps by KJU on to southern territory, as he held Moon's hand, must represent one of the sharpest and speediest diplomatic turnarounds in living memory. The leaders later issued a joint statement calling for a nuclear-free Korean peninsula, and agreeing to talk about formally signing a peace treaty. Can this rapprochement last? (Mary Dejevsky, Guardian)
- Hopes for a resumption of inter-Korean economic cooperation rose after the historic summit Fri. (Seo Ji-eun, Joongang Daily)

- As Moon and his entourage welcomed their N. Korean counterparts for a historic summit on the S. Korean side of the border on Fri.,NK's top military officials saluted Moon while their S. Korean peers only exchanged a nod or a handshake with KJU. (Yonhap)
- KJU and Moon signed a joint statement on Fri. after meeting at the heavily fortified demilitarized zone between their countries. Here are the major points. (Reuters)
- S. Korean President Moon and N. Korean leader KJU signed a historic agreement on Fri. in the border village of Panmunjom. The following is the full text of the Panmunjom Declaration for Peace, Prosperity and Unification of the Korean Peninsula document (unofficial translation). (Inter-Korean Summit Press Corps, UPI)
- Here's what the two leaders said to each other during their very first encounter, according to a transcript released by S.Korea. (Katie Hunt, Sophie Jeong, CNN)
- Senior columnist of the Joongang Ilbo, Bae Myung-bok stated in his column that the summit will decide whether the last remaining confrontational structure of the Cold War will be dismantled and convert the Korean Peninsula into a land of peace and prosperity or not. If the military tensions on the peninsula are resolved and a path to denuclearization is opened, Moon and KJU will be remembered as heroes who changed the destiny of the Korean people. (Bae Myung-bok, Joongang Daily)
- The historic first meeting between Moon and KJU on Fri. is expected to ease geopolitical risks and stimulate new economic momentum that will benefit Asia's fourth-largest economy going forward. (Yonhap)
- A summary of the morning of the inter-Korean summit's events. (Kim Rahn, Korea Times)
  NK's main underground nuclear test site may be damaged and portions of it unusable, but analysts say that does not mean Pyongyang can no longer carry out nuclear tests at the facility or elsewhere. (Bill Ide, VOA)
- In the wake of Fri's landmark agreement between the leaders of the two Koreas, cross-border cultural exchanges are expected to pick up speed. (Yonhap)
- With the inter-Korean summit under way on Fri., another inter-Korean breakthrough may be on the way — a network of trade routes connecting cities of both countries near the Korean Peninsula's western seaboard. (Ko Dong-hwan, Korea Times)
- The following is a chronology of major events leading to the historic inter-Korean summit held at the border truce village of Panmunjom on Friday. (Yonhap)
- KJU crossed the border into SK for the first time on Fri., where he was greeted by Moon ahead of the two Koreas' first summit in more than a decade. (Reuters)
- N. Korean leader KJU says the two Koreas "shouldn't go back to square one and not denuclearize," as in the past, and that he is willing to visit SK's presidential office any time, if he is invited. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- Hailing a "new era of peace", KJU and Moon, sealed their talks on Fri. with a joint declaration, and a bear hug, reaffirming their commitment to complete denuclearisation of the Korean Peninsula. (Nicola Smith, Chris Graham, Gareth Davies, Telegraph)
- With a single step, KJU broke with decades of hostility and distrust to become the first NK leader to cross into SK territory since 1953. As shaking hands with Moon, while standing in the DMZ dividing the two countries, KJU told Moon he felt the weight of meeting at "such a historic location." (Ben Westcott, James Griffths, CNN)

- KJU walked across the border Fri. to meet Moon for the first inter-Korean summit in more than 11 years. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- In a historic summit more striking for its extraordinary images than its substance, KJU and Moon set aside a year that saw them seemingly on the verge of war, grasped hands and strode together Fri. across the cracked concrete marking the Koreas' border. (Foster Klug, AP)
- Kim Yo-jong was the face of the N. Korean delegation at the Winter Olympics in SK this year, and she had a seat at the table as the only woman among six delegates for the most significant peace talks between the two nations in decades. (Angela Dewan, Sheena McKenzie, CNN)
- The two Koreas have agreed to jointly participate in international sports competitions, including the 2018 Asian Games, following their historic summit on Friday, raising expectations of unified teams at upcoming events. (Yonhap)
- The leaders of NK and SK have vowed to "write a new chapter" in their peninsula's troubled history at the start of a summit that has raised hopes for a resolution over Pyongyang's nuclear and ballistic missile programs. (Benjamin Haas, Justin McCurry, Guardian)
- Moon and KJU reached an understanding Fri. to push for economic projects that their two late predecessors had previously agreed upon more than a decade ago. (Yonhap)
- The leaders of SK and NK agreed Fri. to establish a peace and cooperation zone on their disputed western sea border, a move that could prevent future clashes. (Yonhap)
- In an unprecedented and historic move, the leaders of the two Koreas have signed a joint statement saying they are committed to the denuclearization of the Korean Peninsula and bringing an official end to the Korean War. (Brian Padden, VOA)
- The leaders of NK and SK embraced on Fri. after pledging to work for the "complete denuclearization of the Korean peninsula", on a day of smiles and handshakes at the first inter-Korean summit in more than a decade. (Christine Kim, Josh Smith, Reuters)
- The Inter-Korean summit began Fri. morning with a historic step as KJU crossed the military demarcation line that has divided Korea for over 60 years. At the end, the leaders of two Koreas embraced prior to announcing a joint declaration committing to denuclearization and peace. (Brian Padden, VOA)
- S. Korean President Moon and N. Korean leader KJU planted a pine tree originally grown in 1953, known as a bansong, along a path on the southern side of the Military Demarcation Line at 4:30 p.m. on Fri. (2018 Inter-Korean Summit Press Corps, UPI)
- S. Koreans watched Fri. as history unfolded and KJU, the NK leader they normally only see in heavily edited footage, walked across the border and had his every word broadcast live and unfiltered on airwaves across the country. (Youkyung Lee, AP)
- The leaders of the two Koreas took a meaningful, perhaps sensational, step Fri. towards a lasting peace on the peninsula during their Panmunjom summit that was meant to write a "new history." (Lee Chi-jong, Yonhap)
- The leaders of two Koreas made bold pledges Fri. to work toward a "common goal" of denuclearizing their peninsula and formally ending the Korean War by the end of this year, following a historic day of talks on the border that has divided them for almost seven decades. (Anna Fifield, WaPo)

- The leaders of NK and SK agreed on Fri. to work to remove all nuclear weapons from the Korean Peninsula and, within the year, pursue talks with the US to declare an official end to the Korean War, which ravaged the peninsula from 1950 to 1953. (Choe Sang-hyun, NYT)
- Fri.'s summit meeting between the leaders of NK and SK was a master class in diplomatic stagecraft, with each scene arranged for its power as political theater and broadcast live. In a perilous standoff that has resisted solutions, it was these images that offered hope, much more than the actual results from the meeting — vague pledges to work toward nuclear disarmament and a peace treaty. (Russel Goldman, NYT)
- The meeting between KJU, and Moon offered a rare opportunity to hear KJU speak spontaneously, without the filter of his nation's state news media. (Austin Ramzy, NYT)
- The leaders of NK and SK have promised after a landmark summit to bring "lasting peace" to the peninsula with a commitment to denuclearization and to ending decades of hostilities. (Benjamin Haas, Justin McCurry, Guardian)
- KJU crossed the inter-Korean border in the border village of Panmunjom at 9:29 am today, becoming the first N. Korean leader to set foot in S. Korean territory. (Joint Press Corps, Kang Jin-kyu, Sarah Kim, Esther Chung, Lee Sung-eun, Joongang Daily)
- Off-topic ramblings, jests and quips during the historic encounter between the leaders of the two Koreas on Fri. highlighted their growing rapport despite the security-heavy summit agenda. (Joint Press Corps, Yonhap)
- The full joint statement by NK and SK released by the S. Korean presidential office on Fri. after KJU and Moon pledged to work for the "complete denuclearisation of the Korean Peninsula". It punctuated a day of smiles and handshakes at the first inter-Korean summit in more than a decade. (Reuters)
- SK and NK declared their commitment to the "complete denuclearization" of the Korean Peninsula in their joint Panmunjom Declaration, the product of the third inter-Korean summit held Fri. (Kang Jin-kyu, Joint Press Corps, Joongang Daily)
- Here is the official translation of full declaration of two Koreas provided by the Inter-Korean summit. (CNN)
- As NK's leader stepped onto southern soil for the first time Fri., SK and NK maintained a tight joint security posture around the military demarcation line (MDL). (Sarah Kim, Joint Press Corps, Joongang Daily)
- The two Koreas have reached a landmark Panmunjeom Agreement to achieve full denuclearization of the Korean Peninsula and agreed to pursue a peace treaty to formally end the Korean War. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- Moon and KJU clinked glasses in an official welcoming dinner, less than an hour after reaching their historic agreement on the denuclearization of the Korean Peninsula. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- Ri Sol-ju, the wife of N. Korean leader KJU, crossed the inter-Korean border on Fri. and met SK's first lady, Kim Jung-sook, in the first face-to-face meeting between the spouses of two Korean leaders. (Lee Sung-eun, Joint Press Corps, Joongang Daily)
- Here is an unofficial translation that shows the full text of the agreement they signed, with annotated key phrases and segments for further information. (Adam Tayler, WaPo)
- KJU said he wondered to himself why he had not met SK's leader before, and then appeared to promise an end to missile tests. (Martin Farrer, Justin McCurry, Guardian)

International:

- Foreign journalists covering the historic inter-Korean summit shared the sense of cautious optimism on Fri., but some called for toning down expectations, saying that a one-off event might not be enough to produce a breakthrough from a decadeslong stalemate. (Yonhap)
- Japanese PM Shinzo Abe on Fri. welcomed a surprise set of inter-Korean summit agreements to build peace and denuclearize the Korean Peninsula but urged NK to prove its commitment with action. (Yonhap)
- Trump declared Fri. that the Korean War will end, after the leaders of the two Koreas met and agreed to pursue a peace treaty and the denuclearization of the peninsula. (Yonhap)
- Trump said Thurs. that three or four dates are under review for his potential meeting with KJU. (Yonhap)
- Japanese PM Shinzo Abe on Fri. welcomed a surprise set of inter-Korean summit agreements to build peace and denuclearize the Korean Peninsula but urged NK to prove its commitment with action. (Yonhap)
- The joint declaration by KJU and Moon, the fruit of Fri.'s unexpectedly warm, fraternal summit, represents a big political and diplomatic triumph for both Korean leaders. It will gratify China's government too, and relieve people around the world worried about nuclear war. But it could be a big problem for US President Trump. (Simon Tisdall, Guardian)
- China welcomed on Fri. a joint statement by NK and SK after their leaders pledged to work for the complete denuclearization of the Korean peninsula and declare an official end to the 1950-53 Korean War. (Reuters)
- ASEAN leaders will discuss economic cooperation and Myanmar's refugee crisis at a summit in Singapore, but much of their attention will be focused on the history unfolding on the Korean Peninsula. (Annabelle Liang, AP)
- KJU and Trump exchanged insults and threats of nuclear annihilation, while the soft-spoken Moon struggled to be heard. And now Kim and Moon are meeting to discuss NK's nuclear weapons ahead of Kim-Trump talks scheduled for May or June. (Kim Tong-Hyung, AP)
- Two hours south of Fairbanks, Alaska, sit row upon row of missile silos embedded in the frozen ground in the shadow of snow-capped mountains. The missiles and a few dozen National Guard soldiers will form the first line of defense should NK, or any other country, fire an intercontinental ballistic missile at the US States. (Justin Mitchell, Reuters)
- PM Shinzo Abe said on Fri. Japan welcomed the summit between the leaders of NK and SK as a positive step and he strongly expected Pyongyang to take concrete steps towards to carry out its promises. (Reuters)
- The Kremlin on Fri. hailed a historic summit between the leaders of NK and SK as very positive news and said President Vladimir Putin had long advocated direct talks between the two countries. (Reuters)
- NK urged the US Fri. to take sincere action in response to the country's commitment to denuclearization, denouncing the US's pledge to continue its sanctions and pressure in the event of no progress on the NK nuclear issue. (Yonhap)
- The "complete" denuclearization pledge that Moon won from KJU in Fri.'s historic summit bodes well for the upcoming talks between KJU and Trump. (Chang Jae-soon, Yonhap)

- The parents of Otto Warmbier filed a wrongful death lawsuit against the NK government on Thursday charging that the country's regime tortured and killed their son, according to lawyers for the family. (Zachary Cohen and Katelyn Polantz, CNN)
- The parents of Otto F. Warmbier, the Cincinnati college student who died after suffering a severe brain injury during 17 months in custody in Pyongyang, sued NK on Thurs., alleging that it kidnapped, tortured and murdered their son. (Mark Landler, NYT)
- The parents of US college student Otto Warmbier filed a wrongful death lawsuit against NK on Thursday, saying its government tortured and killed their son. (Matthew Pennington, AP)
- The parents of US college student Otto Warmbier sued NK on Thurs. over their son's death in 2017 following his release from captivity there, according to the lawsuit which said their son was "brutally tortured and murdered." (Ian Simpson, Reuters)
- Trump on Thurs. said he is considering 3 or 4 dates as well as 5 locations for his meeting with KJU, adding that it remains unclear whether the meeting will occur. (Reuters)
- The White House has released pictures of Mike Pompeo meeting KJU. It came as Pompeo, the former CIA Director, was confirmed as Trump's new secretary of state. (Nick Allen, Telegraph)
- The US Senate confirmed Mike Pompeo as Trump's secretary of state on Thurs., and the former CIA director set off immediately on a trip to meet key allies in Europe and the Middle East. (Patrica Zengerle, Lesley Wroughton, Reuters)
- Russia's Foreign Ministry said on Fri. it was ready to facilitate cooperation between NK and SK, including in the fields of railway transportation, gas and electrical energy. (Reuters)
- Trump hailed the historic announcement made at Fri.s Korea summit, which declared an intention to end longstanding hostilities between the two countries, and singled out Chinese President Xi Jinping for praise. (Clare Foran,CNN)
- Trump on Fri. renewed his attacks on the former F.B.I. director James B. Comey, kicking off a morning Twitter barrage by once again accusing Comey of leaking classified information and lying to cover it up, even as the leaders of NK and SK held a historic meeting hours earlier. (Eileen Sullivan, NYT)
- Mixed results for first quarter US economic growth balanced against a waning risk premium from Korean détente to keep oil prices in stable territory Fri. (Daniel J. Graeber, UPI)
- Trump on Fri. hailed the "historic meeting" between the leaders of two Koreas and said "good things are happening" — but sounded a cautionary note about the thaw in relations between the two nations. (John Wagner, WaPo)
- Trump hailed the historic meeting between KJU and Moon on Fri., even while sounding a note of caution. (Reuters)
- The White House on Thurs. released two photographs of Mike Pompeo, the new US secretary of state, shaking hands with NK's KJU. The photos came hours after the US Senate confirmed Pompeo as Trump's top diplomat. (Staff and agencies, Guardian)
- Not many Americans have shaken the hand of KJU but in new photos released on Thurs. newly confirmed Secretary of State Mike Pompeo is doing just that. (Elizabeth Landers, CNN)
- The White House on Thurs. released photos of U.S. Secretary of State Mike Pompeo's secret meeting with KJU. (Yonhap)

Prepared by Emma Stubblefield, Jinny Ahn, James Park, HRNK Research Interns

———————————————

Saturday, April 28, 2018

NK ‘ready to PROFIT’ from chemical weapon sales after Syria 'demonstration'; How Trump's erratic behavior can be an unlikely asset in the biggest moments; NK's official newspaper gives special coverage to inter-Korean summit

Top News:
North Korea ‘ready to PROFIT’ from chemical weapon sales after Syria 'demonstration' (Express, 4/26/2018)
We're starting to see how Trump's erratic behavior can be an unlikely asset in the biggest moments (Business Insider, 04/27/2018)

In North Korea:
(LEAD) N.K. media reports on 'complete denuclearization' in summit declaration (Yonhap, 04/28/2018)
(LEAD) N. Korea's official newspaper gives special coverage to inter-Korean summit (Yonhap, 04/28/2018)
(News Focus) Can North Korea's 'treasured sword' be bargained away? (Yonhap, 04/28/2018)
N. Korea glorifies summit with South; analysts less sure (WaPo, 04/27/2018)
North Korea hails 'new milestone' and credits Kim with summit success (Guardian, 04/28/2018)
North Korea says inter-Korean summit will be a 'new milestone' (Reuters, 04/28/2018)
North Korea suffers from housing shortage: report (Yonhap, 04/28/2018)
North Korean media hails summit as Trump presses for full denuclearization (Reuters, 04/28/2018)
North Korean News Outlets Fawn Over Kim but Offer Few Clues on Nuclear Plan (NYT, 04/28/2018)
North Korean state media praises 'historic' Kim-Moon summit (CNN, 04/28/2018)

In South Korea:
After summit, South Korea plots 'roadmap' for Trump's meeting with Kim Jong Un (Reuters, 04/28/2018)
South Koreans dare to hope of once unthinkable peace with Kim (CNN, 04/28/2018)
Summit offers South Koreans rare insight into Kim Jong Un (WaPo, 04/28/2018)
Young North Korean defectors struggle to adapt to South Korean schools (Korea Times, 04/28/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
(News Focus) Inter-Korean summit shifts focus to Trump's ability to make nuclear deal (Yonhap, 04/28/2018)

(News Focus) N.K.'s denuclearization promise raises hope, but skepticism lingers over lack of detailed steps: experts (Yonhap, 04/27/2018)
(News Focus) Summit calls for balanced South-North growth, heralds more economic cooperation (Yonhap, 04/27/2018)
Don't get too excited about the Korea summit. There's a lot of work to do (WaPo, 04/27/2018)
Korean Accord Draws Praise, and Caution, From North's Neighbors (NYT, 04/28/2018)
Korean leaders set 'denuclearization' goal, Trump says will maintain pressure (Reuters, 04/27/2018)
Relations Thaw, But Questions Remain on Denuclearization Goals After Korea Summit (RFA, 04/27/2018)
Takeaways from Koreas summit: Kim's smiles, Moon's reception (WaPo, 04/28/2018)
The inter-Korean summit has only raised the stakes for Trump (WaPo, 04/27/2018)

International:
(2nd LD) Trump says meeting with Kim narrowed down to 2 sites (Yonhap, 04/28/2018)
Analysis: Korea summit puts nuclear ball in Trump's court (WaPo, 04/28/2018)
Australia sending plane to monitor North Korean ships' 'illicit trade' (Guardian, 04/28/2018)
Australia to send military aircraft to monitor North Korean ships (Reuters, 04/27/2018)
Israel says 'denuclearized' Korean peninsula helpful versus Iran (Reuters, 04/27/2018)
Pompeo says Kim is serious about denuclearization talks (Yonhap, 04/28/2018)
Trump Convinced North Korea No Longer Playing Around (VOA, 04/28/2018)
Trump rebrands diplomatic norms as events in Asia, Europe and elsewhere spin on his axis (WaPo, 04/27/2018)
Trump says he has a responsibility to end Korean conflict (WaPo, 04/27/2018)
Trump welcomes historic North, South Korea meeting (Reuters, 04/27/2018)
U.N. chief lauds 'truly historic' inter-Korean summit (Yonhap, 04/28/2018)

Top News:

- NK is capable of resupplying Syria with more chemical weapons after facilities used to produce and store them were destroyed in US-led airstrikes, according to an NK expert and an HRNK author Robert Collins. (Harvey Gavin, Express)
- Despite the positive regional atmosphere following the historic Inter-Korean summit, cautiousness should remain. If any of its new demands aren't met, NK can walk away from its peace promises at any time, and will likely blame whomever it wishes for the tragic result, said HRNK Board Member Nicholas Eberstadt. (Daniella Greenbaum, Business Insider)

In North Korea:

- NK's state media reported Saturday that the inter-Korean summit declaration included "complete denuclearization," a rare public mention of the phrase that raised hopes of joint efforts toward the hitherto elusive goal. (Yonhap)

- The Rodong Sinmun, the official newspaper of NK Workers' Party, gave extensive coverage of Friday's inter-Korean summit, carrying as many as 61 photos Moon meeting with KJU at the border peace village of Panmunjom. (Yonhap)
- Despite Friday's cross-border summit affirming the shared goal of complete denuclearization, skepticism lingers over whether NK will forgo its nuclear arsenal, a quintessential source of national pride and "treasured sword of justice." (Yonhap)
- Despite the bold declarations from the Inter-Korean summit, the leaders failed to provide any new measures on a nuclear standoff that has captivated and terrified millions, and analysts expressed doubts on whether the summit represented a real breakthrough. (Foster Klug, Kim Tong-Hyung, AP)
- NK has hailed its summit with the South as “new milestone” in the history of the two countries after the two leaders pledged to pursue a permanent peace and rid the peninsula of nuclear weapons. (Guardian)
- NK’s state news agency said on Saturday the inter-Korean summit a day earlier will be a “new milestone” in bringing about joint prosperity and a turning point for the Korean peninsula. (Reuters)
- As NK has been struggling to increase the government-led housing supply for years, the country's chronic housing shortage may pose difficulties to a unified Korea in the future. (Yonhap)
- NK’s state news agency on Saturday called the inter-Korean summit a turning point for the Korean peninsula, while Trump said he would maintain sanctions pressure on Pyongyang ahead of his own unprecedented meeting with KJU. (Josh Smith, Reuters)
- While NK news media highly praised KJU for his diplomacy, they appeared to give no hints to its readers whether KJU would genuinely consider giving up his nukes, or what he might demand in return. (Choe Sang-hun, NYT)
- NK state media has praised Friday's inter-Korean summit as a "historic" and "groundbreaking development" that will help bring peace to the Korean Peninsula, in a stark shift in tone Saturday from one of the world's most tightly controlled propaganda machines. (Joshua Berlinger and Paula Hancocks, CNN)

In South Korea:

- Moon will be collecting information for Trump when he visits Washington in mid-May, and the ROK government has come up with a comprehensive roadmap that they have been sharing with the US, said said a special adviser to Moon for foreign affairs and national security. (Josh Smith, Reuters)
- The landmark deal signed by the two leaders Friday wasn't the Berlin Wall coming down -- the DMZ between the Koreas remains, and there are still many issues to solve, but it had something of that historical weight, and has left even the most cynical of S.Koreans feeling genuinely optimistic about their country's future. (James Griffiths and Sol Han, CNN)
- A day after the two Korean leaders met for a summit along their shared border, the emotional, memorable, even funny scenes from their time together are both a bitter reminder of the Koreas' seven decades of division and an insight into the mysterious character of NK leader KJU. (Hyung-Jin Kim, AP)

- The number of NK defectors attending SK's elementary and secondary schools stood at 2,538 as of April 2017, marking a 270 percent increase from 687 in 2007, figures from the education ministry showed Saturday. (Yonhap)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- The inter-Korean summit that ended with an agreement to achieve complete denuclearization shifts focus to President Trump's ability to make it a reality. (Yonhap)
- A "complete" denuclearization promised by NK on Friday is raising hopes for a breakthrough in the nuclear standoff, but its seriousness will likely be tested in its upcoming summit with the US, experts said. (Yonhap)
- While the historic summit between leaders of the two Koreas Friday made dramatic progress towards "complete" denuclearization, it deserves further attention for its highlighting the need for balanced development and mutual prosperity on the Korean Peninsula. (Yonhap)
- Although Moon and KJU agreed in the Panmunjom Declaration to work together toward a permanent peace rather than the current armistice and declared a commitment to "denuclearization," it is still unknown whether this statement of principles will be of lasting worth until the details are hammered out. (Wendy R. Sherman, WaPo)
- China, Japan, and Russia, while offering praise for the Inter-Korean summit that riveted the world this week, appeared to acknowledge one thing: Now comes the real part. (Jane Perlez, NYT)
- The leaders of two Koreas pledged at a historic summit on Friday to work for "complete denuclearization" of the Korean peninsula, but Trump said he would maintain pressure on Pyongyang through sanctions ahead of his own unprecedented meeting with NK's KJU. (Christine Kim, Josh Smith, Roberta Rampton, Reuters)
- Analysts on Friday welcomed a joint agreement by the leaders of two Koreas to denuclearize the Korean peninsula, but said the wording of the pledge remains vague and warned that achieving a result that satisfies both parties, and the U.S., will require a significant amount of political will. (RFA)
- A few takeaways from the Inter-Korea summit are: 1) KJU is a real person 2) Moon knows how to impress 3) Trump's got a real task ahead. (Eric Talmadge, AP)
- Puzzling together peace on the Korean Peninsula still requires two missing pieces: KJU's true intentions regarding his nuclear weapons and Trump's ability to persuade KJU to part with his armaments. Thus, the Korea summit has only raised the stakes for the expected summit between Trump and Kim in May or June. (Victor Cha, WaPo)

International:

- US President Trump said Friday that his planned meeting with NK leader KJU has been narrowed to two sites. (Yonhap)

- Despite its feel-good emphasis on relationship-building, the Inter-Korean summit left a lot of question marks around denuclearization. And that puts the ball squarely in the court of Trump, whose much anticipated summit with Kim is expected to be just weeks away. (Eric Talmadge, AP)
- Australia will send a military plane to monitor NK vessels suspected of transferring prohibited goods in defiance of UN sanctions. (Guardian)
- Australia will send a military patrol aircraft to monitor NK vessels suspected of transferring prohibited goods in defiance of UN sanctions. (Alison Bevege, Reuters)
- Friday's historic pledge by the leaders of the two Koreas to work to denuclearize the Korean peninsula should give Trump a stronger hand to renegotiate the treaty curtailing Iran's nuclear program, Israel's intelligence minister said. (Daniel Bases, Reuters)
- New U.S. Secretary of State Mike Pompeo said Friday he senses NK leader KJU is "serious" about the upcoming talks with the US over its denuclearization. (Yonhap)
- Trump does not think KJU is no longer "playing around," he said at a White House news conference when asked about Friday's historic summit between two Koreas. (Jeff Seldin, VOA)
- President Trump on Friday placed himself at the center of the remarkable summit between the leaders of two Koreas, taking credit for bold and innovative diplomacy that may open a path to peace where other leaders failed. (Anne Gearan, WaPo)
- President Trump claimed credit Friday for a historic inter-Korean summit, but now faces a burden in helping turn the Korean leaders' bold but vague vision for peace into reality after more than six decades of hostility. (Matthew Pennington, AP)
- Trump hailed the historic meeting between KJU and Moon on Friday, even while sounding a note of caution. (Reuters)
- U.N. Secretary-General Antonio Guterres praised the inter-Korean summit Friday as a "truly historic" meeting that will hopefully lead to peace and denuclearization on the Korean Peninsula. (Yonhap)

Prepared by James Park, HRNK Research Intern

——————————————————

Sunday, April 29, 2018

N.Korea will invite outside experts to observe closing of nuclear test site; Moon, Trump vow efforts to ensure US, NK agree on concrete denuclearization measures; Trump expects to meet Kim in 'three or four weeks'

In North Korea:
Kim invites outsiders to test site (Joongang Daily, 04/29/2018)
Kim Says He'll Give Up Weapons if U.S. Promises Not to Invade (NYT, 04/29/2018)
Kim Jong Un: I'm not the kind of person who would shoot nukes at U.S., South Korea (UPI, 04/29/2018)
Kim Jong-un: North Korea to allow foreign experts to witness nuclear site closure in May (Telegraph, 04/29/2018)
Kim Jong-un promises to 'dismantle nuclear test site in May in full view of experts, journalists' (Korea Times, 04/29/2018)
N. Korea to close nuke test site in May, unify time zone (WaPo, 04/28/2018)
N. Korea to Invite US, S. Korean Experts & Journalists to Nuclear Shutdown (VOA, 04/29/2018)
N. Korean leader shifts gear to economy (Korea Times, 04/29/2018)
North Korea nuclear test site to close in May, South Korea says (BBC, 04/29/2018)
North Korea to 'unify' standard time with South Korea (UPI, 04/28/2018)
North Korea's Kim promises transparency in nuclear site shutdown as Trump presses for full denuclearization (Reuters, 04/29/2018)
North Korea wants outsiders to observe closure of its nuclear test site, South says (WaPo, 04/29/2018)
North Korea will close main nuclear test site in May, South says (CNN, 04/28/2018)
North Korea will invite outside experts to observe closing of nuclear test site (Guardian, 04/29/2018)
Pyongyang's state-controlled media give extensive coverage to summit (Korea Times, 04/29/2018)

In South Korea:
(LEAD) Moon offers to broker N. Korea-Japan talks (Yonhap, 04/29/2018)
Economists, business owners hopeful after inter-Korean summit (UPI, 04/29/2018)
Gov't to review measures for inter-Korean economic projects (Korea Times, 04/29/2018)
Seoul to push for family reunion talks with North as soon as possible (Yonhap, 04/29/2018)
S. Korean Foreign Minister Kang, Pompeo talk via phone on summit results (Yonhap, 04/29/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
At summit banquet, cheers and promises (Joongang Daily, 04/29/2018)
For border areas, rapprochement means peace and quiet (Joongang Daily, 04/29/2018)
I've seen this breakthrough before (Joongang Daily, 04/29/2018)
Moon to Kim: 'Japan wants to normalize ties with North Korea' (Korea Times, 04/29/2018)
Panmunjom on my mind (Joongang Daily, 04/29/2018)
The rush to optimism (Joongang Daily, 04/29/2018)

International:
(LEAD) Moon, Trump discuss outcome of inter-Korean summit (Yonhap, 04/29/2018)
(3rd LD) Moon, Trump vow efforts to ensure U.S., N.K. agree on concrete denuclearization measures (Yonhap, 04/29/2018)
Abe says Moon addressed abduction of Japanese by North during summit with Kim (Yonhap, 04/29/2018)

Donald Trump expects to meet North Korea 'in three or four weeks' (Guardian, 04/28/2018)
Donald Trump says he will meet Kim Jong-un in 'next three to four weeks' (Telegraph, 04/29/2018)
Japan's Abe, Trump agree Korean summit positive for denuclearization: PM's office (Reuters, 04/29/2018)
Moon, Trump hold longest-ever phone call after inter-Korean summit (UPI, 04/29/2018)
bout Trump-Kim summit: Singapore PM (Korea Times, 04/29/2018)
North Korea 'prepared' to make roadmap for denuclearization: Pompeo (Korea TImes, 04/29/2018)
Pompeo: N. Korean leader 'prepared' to 'help us achieve' denuclearization (Yonhap, 04/29/2018)
Pompeo says Kim Jong Un doesn't care if U.S. leaves Iran deal (WaPo, 04/29/2018)
The Latest: Pope hails the Koreas' 'courageous commitment' (WaPo, 04/29/2018)
The Latest: Seoul says Kim wants to normalize Japan ties (WaPo, 04/29/2018)
The Latest: Trump calls Asian allies to discuss North Korea (WaPo, 04/28/2018)
Trump and South Korean President Moon talk ahead of North Korea meeting (CNN, 04/28/2018)
Trump Discusses North Korea With Leaders of South Korea and Japan (VOA, 04/28/2018)
Trump on North Korea: 'Things are going very well' (Korea Times, 04/29/2018)
Trump says summit diplomacy is winning (Joongang Daily, 04/29/2018)
Trump says US-North Korea summit may be 'in three-four weeks' (BBC, 04/29/2018)
Trump says potential talks with Kim could happen in 'three or four weeks' (CNN, 04/28/2018)
US doubles down on tracking North Korea ahead of Trump, Kim meeting (CNN, 04/29/2018)

In North Korea:

- KJU promised Moon at their summit Friday he would shut down the Punggye-ri nuclear site next month and invite US and SK experts and journalists to inspect the demolition. (Kang Jin-kyu, Joongang Daily)
- KJU told Moon when they met that he would abandon his nukes if the US would agree to formally end the Korean War and promise that it would not invade his country. (Choe Sang-hun, NYT)
- KJU said he is "not the kind of person who will shoot nuclear missiles at the South, the Pacific or the US," promising that he initiates a "verifiable" shut down of the main Punggyeri nuclear facility. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- NK leader KJU promised to invite US experts and journalists to watch the closure of the country's nuclear test site next month, the South's presidential office said on Sunday. (Telegraph)
- NK leader KJU has promised to dismantle a "northern" nuclear test site in May in full view of experts and journalists from SK and the US. (Park Si-soo, Korea Times)
- KJU has vowed to shut down the country's nuclear test site in May and open the process to experts and journalists from SK and the US, Seoul's presidential office said. (Kim Tong-Hyung, AP)
- KJU plans to invite experts and journalists from Seoul and the US to observe when NK shuts down its nuclear test site in May, ROK officials said Sunday. (Jeff Seldin, VOA)
- The summit between Moon an KJU showed NK's "sincerity and commitment" to economic development, experts say. (Yi Whan-woo, Korea Times)

- The Punggye-ri site, NK's main nuclear test site, will close in May. The closure would be done in public and foreign experts from SK and the US would be invited to watch. In addition, NK would change its time zone - currently half an hour different - to match that of the South. (BBC)
- NK has decided to wind its clock forward half an hour to match its time with the South's, two years and eight months after it decided to adopt its own standard time, News 1 reported. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- KJU has pledged to close the country's nuclear test site in May in full view of the outside world, Seoul officials said on Sunday, as Trump pressed for total denuclearization ahead of his own unprecedented meeting with Kim. (Hyonhee Shin, Reuters)
- The SK government is trying to keep the momentum in diplomatic efforts to resolve the nuclear standoff with NK, announcing Sunday that the North would dismantle its main nuclear test site next month. NK leader KJU would invite security experts and journalists to the North to observe the closure of the site. (Anna Fifield, WaPo)
- KJU told Moon that he will close his main nuclear test site in May and invite experts and journalists from the US and SK into the country soon, a senior spokesman for Moon said Sunday. (Ben Westcott, Yoonjung Seo and Eli Watkins, CNN)
- The NK leader KJU has pledged to shutter a nuclear test site and invite foreign experts and journalists to witness the decommissioning in May as he prepares to meet Trump as early as next month. (Benjamin Haas, Guardian)
- NK's state-controlled media outlets gave an extensive coverage of the inter-Korean summit. In its April 28 printed edition, the Rodong Sinmun, the official newspaper of the ruling Workers' Party, filled four of its six pages with news and photos of the summit between Moon and KJU. (Yi Whan-woo, Korea Times)

In South Korea:

- SK President Moon offered to broker a dialogue between NK and Japan, relaying both sides' willingness to improve ties to each other, SK Presidential office said Sunday. (Yonhap)
- A survey conducted by Maeil Business Daily on 50 economy and business experts found 82 percent viewed the inter-Korean summit positively. (Jennie, Oh, UPI)
- SK's transportation ministry said Sunday it is reviewing a set of measures to prepare a potentially full-fledged implementation of cross-border economic projects. (Yonhap)
- SK will push for inter-Korean Red Cross talks as soon as possible to arrange a reunion of families separated since the 1950-1953 Korean War, Unification Minister Cho Myoung-gyon said Sunday. (Yonhap)
- The top diplomats of ROK and the US have agreed to closely consult for the success of the upcoming US-DPRK summit and the resolution of the NK nuclear standoff. (Yonhap)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- The mood was convivial at a banquet attended by the two Koreas' leaders on Friday, with their delegations sharing food, drinks and a few laughs after a historic summit where both sides agreed to work toward a peace treaty to end decades of hostility. (Sarah Kim, Joongang Daily)

- All is silent around the Imjin River wetlands in Yeoncheon County in Paju, Gyeonggi, near the border with NK. The loudspeakers that usually blast propaganda blaring at the military demarcation line (MDL) were turned off - on both sides. (Jeon Ik-jin, Sarah Kim, Joongang Daily)
- Despite multiple attempts for peaceful negotiations, NK's nuclear deterrent has moved from potential to actual over the years. A few years from now, when NK has its next "last chance to join the world," Koreans can crank up the pageantry and start all over on the quest for peace on the Korean Peninsula. (Harold Piper, Joongang Daily)
- Moon relayed Japan's hopes of normalizing ties with NK during his talks with KJU, Cheong Wa Dae said on Sunday. Kim's reaction was unknown. (Park Si-soo, Korea Times)
- It would be naïve to expect immediate and complete denuclearization and peace. However, Koreans have surely seen the most dramatic and hopeful moment of Panmunjom, which has so long been a symbol of division. (Yang Sung-hee, Joongang Daily)
- NK cannot fundamentally change, as seen in Sunday's Rodong Sinmun, which lambasted U.S. democracy. We must not accept Kim's charm offensive as a transformation. We must not be overly optimistic. It is time for cool heads, along with warm hearts. (Joongang Daily)

International:

- Moon and Trump held a phone conversation to discuss the outcome of Moon's historic summit with KJU. (Yonhap)
- Moon and Trump have agreed to push for an early summit between Trump and KJU, and closely coordinate to ensure the upcoming summit leads to an agreement on concrete measures to denuclearize NK. (Yonhap)
- Japanese Prime Minister Shinzo Abe expressed his gratitude to President Moon on Sunday for addressing the issue of Japanese nationals abducted by the North during last week's inter-Korean summit. (Yonhap)
- The US President Trump said on Saturday a meeting with NK could happen over the next three to four weeks. (Benjamin Haas, Guardian)
- Trump said on Saturday a meeting with NK's KJU could happen over the next three to four weeks as he took credit for "everything" to do with the peace talks in the region. (Telegraph)
- Japanese Prime Minister Shinzo Abe and US President Trump welcomed the inter-Korean summit as good for denuclearization and a "historical step" towards peace and stability in Northeast Asia. (Thomas Wilson, Reuters)
- Trump reportedly spoke with Moon for 75 minutes on the phone to congratulate the positive consequences from the Moon-Kim summit and discuss the potential Trump-Kim summit. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- Singapore has not received any "formal" request to host an eagerly awaited meeting between Trump and KJU, the city-state's prime minister said. (AFP)
- Pompeo said he had a "good conversation" with KJU during his visit to Pyongyang, adding Kim was "prepared to... lay out a map that would help us achieve" denuclearization. (AFP)

- US Secretary of State Mike Pompeo said he had a "good conversation" with NK leader KJU on the "hardest issues that face our two countries." (Yonhap)
- Secretary of State Mike Pompeo on Sunday brushed off concerns that a decision to withdraw from the Iran nuclear deal could derail nuclear negotiations with NK. (Carol Morello, WaPo)
- Pope Francis is hailing what he called the "courageous commitment" undertaken by the leaders of two Koreas. (AP)
- Moon told Abe that he conveyed Japan's desire to normalize ties with NK after resolving issues of "past history." Moon's office says KJU replied that he's willing to negotiate with Japan. (AP)
- President Trump called SK President Moon and had "a long and very good talk" with him. Trump also updated Japanese Prime Minister Shinzo Abe about "the ongoing negotiations." (AP)
- Trump said he spoke with his Japanese and ROK counterparts Saturday morning about his upcoming sit-down with NK leader KJU. (Sophie Tatum, CNN)
- Trump expressed optimism about a planned meeting with KJU following conversations Saturday with Moon and Abe. (Jeff Seldin, William Gallo, VOA)
- US President Trump said "things are going very well" with resolving NK issues Saturday after having a phone conversation with SK President Moon. (Jung Min-ho, Korea Times)
- Trump lauded the inter-Korean summit in a phone call with Moon late on Saturday, according to the Blue House, and the two leaders agreed to come up with concrete measures to lead to the "complete denuclearization" of the Korean Peninsula. (Sarah Kim, Joongang Daily)
- Trump has said talks with NK could take place "over the next three or four weeks." (BBC)
- Trump said during a rally in Michigan on Saturday that there would likely be a US-NK meeting in the near future, but "whatever happens, happens." (Eli Watkins and Ben Westcott, CNN)
- The US intelligence community is doubling down on tracking NK as a potential one-on-one meeting between Trump and KJU draws closer, following a historic summit between KJU and Moon. (Jenna McLaughlin, CNN)

Prepared by James Park, HRNK Research Intern

——————————————————

Monday, April 30, 2018

How to Understand What's Happening in NK; Trump floats DMZ as location for NK meeting; Libya as a Model for Disarmament? NK May See It Very Differently; Summit expectations give hope to NK's so-called 'hostile class'

Top News:
How to Understand What's Happening in North Korea (NYTimes, 04/27/2018)

In North Korea:
(LEAD) N. Korea to return to same time zone as S. Korea on May 5 (Yonhap, 04/30/2018)
Kim Jong Un willing to talk, normalize ties with Japan (UPI, 04/30/2018)
Kim Says He'd End North Korea Nuclear Pursuit for U.S. Truce (NYTimes, 04/29/2018)
North Korea nuclear test site to close in May, South Korea says (BBC, 04/29/2018)
North Korea to return to same time zone as South Korea on May 5 (Korea Times, 04/30/2018)
Punggye-ri: What we know about North Korea's nuclear test site (BBC, 04/29/2018)
Reactions to summit from ordinary North Koreans begin to come in (Daily NK, 04/30/2018)
Summit expectations give hope to North Korea's so-called 'hostile class' (Daily NK, 04/30/2018)
The Koreas summit and the North Korean economy: why infrastructure is on the table (NK Econ Watch, 04/29/2018)

In South Korea:
(2nd LD) Moon urges parliamentary ratification of Panmunjom Declaration (Yonhap, 04/30/2018)
65% of South Koreans trust Kim Jong-un's denuke pledge (Korea Times, 04/30/2018)
A Trump Nobel Peace Prize? South Korea's Leader Likes the Idea (NYTimes, 04/30/2018)
Donald Trump 'can take Nobel prize' for summit with Kim Jong-un, says South Korean president (Telegraph, 04/30/2018)
North Korea: from enemy to object of interest (Korea Times, 04/30/2018)
North Korea promises to dismantle its nuclear test site in public view, South says (WaPo, 04/29/2018)
South Korea's Moon Jae-in: Donald Trump should get Nobel Peace Prize (UPI, 04/30/2018)
South Korean leader says Trump 'can take the Nobel' (WaPo, 04/30/2018)
South Korean trust in North jumps after feel-good summit (Reuters, 04/29/2018)
Trump should get the Nobel Peace Prize for North Korea talks, Moon says (WaPo, 04/30/2018)
Trump should win the Nobel Peace Prize, says South Korea's Moon (Reuters, 04/30/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
(2nd LD) S. Korea's military to remove propaganda loudspeakers from DMZ (Yonhap, 04/30/2018)
(LEAD) S. Korea mulling high-level talks with N.K. over joint liaison office (Yonhap, 04/30/2018)
Asian Games could have 7 joint Korean teams: Seoul official (Korea Times, 04/30/2018)
Builders, Train Makers Surge on Hopes of Inter-Korean Exchanges (NYTimes, 04/30/2018)
Koreas to discuss ways to ease tension along border (Korea Times, 04/30/2018)
Moon to Kim: 'Japan wants to normalize ties with North Korea' (Korea Times, 04/30/2018)
North, South Korea take first steps of reconciliation this week (UPI, 04/30/2018)
Panmunjom summit bodes well for S. Korea, but uncertainties remain: rating agencies (Yonhap, 04/30/2018)
S. Korean canoe body looking to team up with N. Koreans at Asian Games (Yonhap, 04/30/2018)
South Korea to End Propaganda Broadcasts Along Border With North (NYTimes, 04/30/2018)

International:

(2nd LD) Pompeo: U.S. has obligation to pursue diplomacy with N. Korea (Yonhap, 04/30/2018)
(LEAD) China's foreign minister to visit N.K. this week (Yonhap, 04/30/2018)
(LEAD) U.S. has Libya model in mind for N.K. denuclearization: Bolton (Yonhap, 04/30/2018)
(News Focus) Can Libya-style denuclearization repeat success with N.K.? (Yonhap, 04/30/2018)
'Diplomatic war' looms large over North Korea's denuclearization (Korea Times, 04/30/2018)
'Sidelined' China seeks to maintain influence as ties between North Korea and US improve (Guardian, 04/30/2018)
Bolton says US considering Libya model for North Korean denuclearization (CNN, 04/30/2018)
China discontent with NK's US approach: reports (Korea Times, 04/30/2018)
China's top diplomat to visit North Korea this week (Korea Times, 04/30/2018)
Chinese Foreign Minister to Visit North Korea (VOA, 04/29/2018)
Chinese foreign minister to visit North Korea this week (WaPo, 04/29/2018)
Chinese government's top diplomat Wang Yi to visit North Korea this week (Reuters, 04/29/2018)
Donald Trump suggests Korean truce village as location for Kim Jong-un summit (Telegraph, 04/30/2018)
Duterte calls North Korea's Kim 'hero of everybody' (Korea Times, 04/30/2018)
Experts react to 'complete denuclearization' pledge by leaders after inter-Korean summit (Daily NK, 04/30/2018)
GOP senator: Better to call Kim Jong Un 'rocket man' than 'honorable' (CNN,04/29/2018)
Libya as a Model for Disarmament? North Korea May See It Very Differently (NYT*imes*, 04/30/2018)
North Korea: Chinese foreign minister to visit Pyongyang after historic talks (BBC, 04/30/2018)
North Korea: 'Real opportunity' for nuclear deal, Pompeo says (BBC, 04/29/2018)
North Korea must take 'irreversible' steps to denuclearization, US warns (Guardian, 04/29/2018)
North Korean defectors say unification requires closing a cultural chasm (CNN, 04/30/2018)
Philippines' Duterte calls North Korea's Kim 'hero of everybody' (Reuters, 04/29/2018)
Senior diplomat to visit Singapore, Indonesia to discuss inter-Korean issues (Yonhap, 04/30/2018)
South Korea-U.S. summit likely to be held earlier than expected (UPI, 04/30/2018)
Trump 'just asking' if Korean border would be best suited for Kim meeting (CNN, 04/30/2018)
Trump floats DMZ as location for North Korea meeting (WaPo, 04/30/2018)
Trump floats the idea of meeting Kim on the border of the two Koreas (WaPo, 04/30/2018)
Trump Indicates Willingness to Meet North Korean Leader in the DMZ (NYT*imes*, 04/30/2018)
Trump says US-North Korea summit may be 'in three-four weeks' (BBC, 04/29/2018)
Trump suggests meeting Kim Jong Un at Korea's Peace House (Reuters, 04/30/2018)
Trump suggests meeting Kim Jong-un at Peace House on South Korea border (Guardian, 04/30/2018)
U.S. warns North Korea must take 'irreversible' steps to denuclearize (Reuters, 04/29/2018)
US urges release of detainees as show of sincerity by NKorea (WaPo, 04/29/2018)

Top News:

- In this opinion column for the NYT*imes*, columnist Nicholas Kristof gives his take on why we should be deeply skeptical—and yet relieved, even a bit hopeful of the results of the recent inter-Korean summit. He expresses his hope that in addition to denuclearization issues, US President Trump will also raise human rights issues. Kristoff states that a commission of inquiry suggested that NK has committed crimes against humanity "on a massive scale" in its labor camps, and we should push for access to these camps by humanitarian organizations. In particular, he quotes former UN high commissioner for human rights, Navi Pillay, who stated the following: "Over 100,000 people, a figure that includes countless innocent family members of so-called enemies of the state, are effectively consigned to die in NK's political prisons. The forced abortions, infanticide, persecution of Christians, torture and summary executions that regularly occur in those various facilities are well documented. President Trump can demand that the Red Cross and the international community be given access to NK's prisons and labor camp systems." (Nicholas Kristof, NYTimes)

In North Korea:

- NK's parliament on Mon. announced its decision to unify its time zone with SK's starting May 5 in a bid to promote the two Koreas' reconciliation and unity, the country's state media said Mon. (Yonhap)
- NKorean leader KJU said he is willing to talk to Japanese Prime Minister Shinzo Abe, a Seoul presidential official said. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- Keeping diplomatic developments coming at a head-snapping pace, the SKorean government said on Sun. that NK's leader, KJU, had told SKorean President Moon that he would abandon his nuclear weapons if the US agreed to formally end the Korean War and promise not to invade his country. (Choe Sang-hun, NYTimes)
- NK's nuclear test site will close in May, the SKorean president's office has said. (BBC)
- Following the two Korean leaders' agreement to unify the time zones used in the SK and NK, Pyongyang's parliament promptly fulfilled the promise made by NKorean leader KJU, its state-run Korea Central News Agency (KCNA) reported Mon. (Choi Ha-young, Korea Times)
- NK has conducted six nuclear tests since 2006 and every time it has used the Punggye-ri test site.Situated in mountainous terrain in the north-east of the country, it is thought to be NK's main nuclear facility and the only active nuclear testing site in the world. But scientists believe the site has partially collapsed and may be unusable. (BBC)
- NKorean state newspaper Rodong Sinmun ran a story on the front page of the morning of the inter-Korean summit, Apr. 27, notifying the public of KJU's travel across the SKorean border for the meeting. (Kang Mi Jin, Daily NK)
- NK's so-called "hostile class" —which is subjected to strict surveillance and control by the country's intelligence and security agency—is experiencing a burst of hope from the NK-SK summit meeting between leader KJU and President Moon, report inside sources. (Kim Yoo Jin, Daily NK)
- It's much too soon to expect concrete outcomes from all the summitry relation to the NKorean economy. Tentative signs suggest, however, that infrastructure will be on the table for the road ahead. (Benjamin Katzeff, NK Econ Watch)

In South Korea:

- President Moon on Mon. called for swift efforts to have the outcome of his historic summit with N.Korean leader KJU ratified by the parliament, a move apparently aimed at ensuring the implementation of the inter-Korean agreement despite a possible change in government down the road. (Yonhap)
- Six out of 10 SKoreans trust NK's promise to seek denuclearization, according to a poll released Mon. (Park Ji-won, Korea Times)
- Commentators and others in Seoul think Mr. Trump deserves a Nobel Prize for helping start the unexpected peace process unfolding on the divided Korean Peninsula. On Mon., SK's president, Moon, said he felt the same. (Choe Sang-hun, NYTimes)
- Donald Trump can have the Nobel Peace Prize for last week's historic Korean summit with KJU, SKorean president Moon said on Mon., as he played down his own prospects of winning. (Esan Swan, Agence France-Presse, Telegraph)
- Last week's historic inter-Korean summit is set to open a new chapter for the relationship between the two Koreas, raising hopes for more cultural and human-to-human exchanges between the two in the future. The rapprochement raises questions about how NK has been portrayed by SKoreans over the past six decades since the end of the Korean War and if there has been any change regarding southerners' attitudes toward their northern neighbors. (Jin Yu-young, Korea Times)
- The SKorean government is trying to keep up the momentum in diplomatic efforts to resolve the NKorean nuclear question, announcing Sun. that NK would dismantle its main nuclear test site next month and that its leader, KJU, was prepared to meet with Japanese Prime Minister Shinzo Abe. (Anna Fifield, WaPo)
- SKorean PresidentMoon is crediting US President Donald Trump for last week's breakthrough talks with NK's KJU,Yonhap reported. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- SKorean President Moon has shaken off a suggestion that he receive the Nobel Peace Prize, saying that US President Donald Trump "can take the Nobel prize" as long as the Koreas receive peace in return. (Hyung-Jin Kim, AP)
- SKorean trust in NK has surged since last week's feel-good summit at which their leaders declared an end to hostilities and to work towards denuclearization of the peninsula. (Hyonhee Shin, Haejin Choi, Reuters)
- If anyone were to win the Nobel Peace Prize for the current effort to solve the NKorean nuclear problem, it should be President Trump. That's what SK's president said Mon. when it was suggested that he himself should be in line for the award. (Anna Fifield, WaPo)
- SKorean President Moon said US President Donald Trump deserves a Nobel Peace Prize for his efforts to end the standoff with NK over its nuclear weapons program, a SKorean official said on Mon. (Hyonhee Shin, Reuters)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- SK's military said Mon. it will soon pull back all high-decibel loudspeakers installed along the border with NK in its first step to implement the bilateral summit agreement reached last week. (Yonhap)

- SK is considering holding high-level talks with NK to discuss the details of establishing a joint liaison office in NK's border city of Kaesong, government officials said Mon. (Yonhap)
- Seven SKorean sports associations are considering forming joint teams with NK for this year's Asian Games in Indonesia, an official told AFP Mon.—but reports said football will not be joining them. (AFP)
- Shares of SKorean construction firms, train and steel manufacturers soared on Mon., buoyed by optimism as leaders of NK and SK held their first summit in over a decade, and boosted hopes of economic projects between the two nations. (Reuters)
- The two Koreas will start discussing key military issues next month, as part of their first meaningful step forward to formally end the technical state of war on the Korean Peninsula no later than this year. (Lee Min-hyung, Korea Times)
- SKorean President Moon relayed Japan's hopes of normalizing ties with NK during his talks with NKorean leader KJU, Cheong Wa Dae said on Sun. (Park Si-soo, Korea Times)
- Seoul plans to scrap dozens of loudspeakers along its border with NK, which blasts SKorean music and news reports critical of Pyongyang, following the two Koreas' historic summit Fri. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- The historic summit between SKorean President Moon and NKorean leader KJU bodes well for Asia's fourth largest economy, although the road toward a permanent resolution of inter-Korean tensions is still bumpy, global rating agencies said Mon. (Yonhap)
- The SKorean canoe governing body said Mon. it will look to team up with NK at this year's Asian Games in Indonesia. (Yonhap)
- SK said on Mon. that it would begin this week to dismantle the loudspeakers that have broadcast propaganda across the border into NK for decades, the first step toward implementing an agreement the country's leaders reached during their summit meeting on Fri. (Choe Sang-hun, NYTimes)

International:

- The US has an obligation to engage in diplomacy with NK to find a peaceful solution to its nuclear weapons issue, the top US diplomat has said. (Yonhap)
- Chinese Foreign Minister Wang Yi will visit NK this week ahead of a historic summit planned between NK and the US, the Chinese foreign ministry said Mon. (Yonhap)
- The US is considering using the model of Libya's denuclearization in upcoming negotiations with NK over its nuclear weapons program, the top US national security adviser said Sun. (Yonhap)
- As the US appears to be considering applying the road map that it employed in making Libya dismantle its nuclear program to NK, the method focusing on swift denuclearization and thorough verification is drawing keen attention amid worries that it would not stand a chance of success in NK. (Koh Byung-joon, Yonhap)
- Extensive rounds of diplomacy are unfolding, prompted by the inter-Korean summit last Fri. in which the leaders of the NK and SK agreed to achieve complete denuclearization of the Korean Peninsula. (Kim Bo-eun, Korea Times)

- During NK and SK's historic summit on Fri., China was notably quiet. Chinese officials and state media focused instead on president Xi Jinping's meeting with Indian prime minister Narendra Modi and a visit by Xi to China's Yangtze river. After the summit, China's ministry of foreign affairs released a short statement saying Beijing "welcomed" the results of the talks. "China stands ready to continue to play its positive role to this end," it added, according to Xinhua news agency. (Lily Kuo, Guardian)
- The White House is looking at Libya as one example of how it will handle potential negotiations with NK on dismantling its nuclear program, John Bolton, US President Donald Trump's national security adviser, said Sun. (Joshua Berlinger, CNN)
- China is apparently discontent with NK's failure to demand a US troop pullout from SK as a condition to the latter's upcoming denuclearization talks with the US, according to Japanese media reports. (Lee Min-hyung, Korea Times)
- China's foreign minister will visit NK this week, his office said Mon. (Apr. 30), becoming the highest-ranking Chinese official to travel there in years as Beijing moves to further improve ties with Pyongyang days after a landmark inter-Korean summit. (AFP)
- Chinese Foreign Minister Wang Yi will travel to neighboring NK this week, following a historic summit between NKorean leader KJU and SKorean President Moon. (Jeff Seldin, VOA)
- The foreign minister of NK's chief ally China will visit Pyongyang this week following the historic summit between the leaders of the two Koreas. (Associated Press)
- The Chinese government's top diplomat, Wang Yi, will visit NK this week, foreign ministry spokesman Lu Kan said on Mon. (Reuters)
- Donald Trump has suggested the truce village that hosted historic inter-Korean talks on Fri. would be the most suitable location for his meeting with KJU. (Nicola Smith, Danielle Demetriou, Telegraph)
- Philippines President Rodridgo Duterte said Sun. he would congratulate NK's KJU for the successful inter-Korean summit if he gets a chance to meet him. (Jung Min-ho, Korea Times)
- Eleven years after the last inter-Korean summit, the leaders of NK and SK have again joined hands to sign a joint agreement – the Panmunjeom Declaration of Apr. 27–this time committing to "complete denuclearization" of the Peninsula. The inclusion of such language in the declaration is being considered by some to sufficiently meet unofficial preconditions set by the US for the upcoming Trump-Kim summit. (Ha Yoon Ah, Daily NK)
- Republican Sen. James Lankford said Sun. that he would not echo President Donald Trump by calling NKorean leader KJU honorable, and said Trump would be better served to return to his nickname for the dictator. (Eli Watkins, CNN)
- In this article for the NY*Times*, Peter Baker discusses why the NKoreans may not find the Libya to be the best model for disarmament. (Peter Baker, NY*Times*)
- Chinese Foreign Minister Wang Yi is to visit NK this week, after historic talks between NK and SK last Fri. (BBC)
- US Secretary of State Mike Pompeo says there is a "real opportunity" for a deal when President Trump meets the NKorean leader KJU. (BBC)
- NK will have to show concrete and tangible evidence it has made a strategic decision to give up nuclear weapons before any move is made to ease pressure on the regime, Donald Trump's national security adviser, John Bolton, said on Sun. (Ed Pilkington, Guardian)

- Over 70 years of separation has left the two Koreas with a rapidly widening cultural gap that can leave NKorean defectors—who often arrive in the country alone, without family or friends to support them—feeling alienated and confused. (James Griffiths, CNN)
- Philippine President Rodridgo Duterte said on Sun. NKorean leader KJU, whom he had previously called a "fool", is now the "hero of everybody", after Kim pledged to work with Seoul for "complete denuclearisation" of the peninsula. (Reuters)
- A senior diplomat will visit Singapore and Indonesia this week to discuss SK's cooperation with Southeast Asian nations, the foreign ministry here said Mon. (Yonhap)
- SKorean President Moon and US President Trumpmay meet sooner than expected next month, a Seoul official said. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- President Donald Trump on Mon. morning suggested that he'd like to hold his potential meeting with NKorean leader KJU near the border of NK and SK. (Maegan Vazquez, CNN)
- President Donald Trump on Mon. floated the idea of holding his planned summit with NKorean leader KJU in the Demilitarized Zone that divides the Koreas. (Associated Press)
- President Trump suggested Mon. that his upcoming meeting with NKorean leader KJU could take place on the border with SK, saying it would a better location than in a "third-party" country. (John Wagner, WaPo)
- President Trump signaled his preference on Mon. to meet KJU, the NKorean ruler, in the Demilitarized Zone between NK and SK, following the example set last week by the leaders of the two Koreas. (Mark Landler, NYTimes)
- US President Donald Trump has said talks with NK could take place "over the next three or four weeks." (BBC)
- US President Donald Trump on Mon. suggested his planned meeting with NKorean leader KJU take place at the Peace House on the border between NK and SK, as preparations for the summit advance. (Reuters)
- Donald Trump on Mon. tweeted a suggestion that his planned meeting with KJU could take place at the Peace House on the border between NK and SK,the same site as Kim's historic meeting last week with SKorean president Moon. (Martin Pengelly, Guardian)
- US Secretary of State Mike Pompeo said on Sun. that he told KJU that the NKorean leader would have to agree to take "irreversible" steps toward shutting its nuclear weapons program in any deal with US President Donald Trump. (Jonathan Landay, Reuters)
- President Donald Trump's national security adviser says the release by NK of three Americans detained there would be a "demonstration of their sincerity" in the run-up to a historic summit between Trump and NKorean leader KJU. (Associated Press)

Prepared by Jinny Ahn, HRNK Research Intern

5. MAY

Tuesday, May 1, 2018

The Drew Mariani Show: The latest on Korea with Greg Scarlatiou; S.Korea wants UN help to monitor closing of North's nuclear facility; Two Koreas dismantle propaganda loudspeakers at tense border

Top News:
The Drew Mariani Show: The latest on Korea with Greg Scarlatiou (Relevant Radio, 04/27/2018)
The Drew Mariani Show: North Korea on denuclearizing with Greg Scarlatiou (Relevant Radio, 04/23/2018)

In North Korea:
(LEAD) N.K. leader can discuss Moon's proposal to install liaison offices in Seoul, Pyongyang: minister (Yonhap, 05/01/2018)
(LEAD) N. Korea holds meeting of senior officials on new strategic line (Yonhap, 05/01/2018)
'Heavy smoker' Kim Jong-un shunned cigarettes during peace talks (Guardian, 05/01/2018)
Kim Jong Un agrees to meet Donald Trump at DMZ, source says (CNN, 04/30/2018)
New Evidence that North Korea Could Still Conduct Nuclear Tests at Punggye-ri (38 North, 04/30/2018)
North Korea in emergency border crackdown following inter-Korean summit (DailyNK, 05/01/2018)
North Korean business developments reflect focus on 'customer needs' (DailyNK, 05/01/2018)
Three Americans detained in North Korea transferred to hotel, activist says (UPI, 05/01/2018)
What a "Chimney Collapse" Means (and Doesn't Mean) for Mt. Mantap (38 North, 04/30)
Why North Korea will give up its nukes (WaPo, 05/01/2018)

In South Korea:
(LEAD) President Moon requests U.N. role in building peace with North Korea (Yonhap, 05/01/2018)
(3rd LD) S. Korea's military begins removing propaganda loudspeakers at border (Yonhap, 05/01/2018)
Authorities grill former aide in Druking case (Joongang Daily, 05/01/2018)
Cost of inter-Korean summit: $5 million (Joongang Daily, 05/01/2018)
Moon shares economic vision for Korean Peninsula with Kim Jong Un (UPI, 05/01/2018)
Moon to brief Abe, Li on meeting with Kim (Joongang Daily, 05/01/2018)
Seoul politicians raise concerns ratifying Panmunjom Agreement (UPI, 05/01/2018)
S. Korea Wants UN Help to Monitor Closing of North's Nuclear Facility (VOA, 05/01/2018)
South Korea begins dismantling loudspeakers along border with North (CNN, 05/01/2018)
South Korea's April exports unexpectedly fall for first time in 18 months (Reuters, 04/30/2018)
South Koreans Hopeful in Wake of Denuclearization Summit (VOA, 04/30/2018)

South pulls back its speakers from border (Joongang Daily, 05/01/2018)
To South Korean youth, North Korea is not 'one of us' (Korea Times, 05/01/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
2 Koreas dismantle propaganda loudspeakers at tense border (WaPo, 05/01/2018)
Denuclearization necessary for Peninsula peace and North's development (DailyNK, 05/01/2018)
Goal in Korea should be peace, trade -- not unification (UPI, 05/01/2018)
Moon gave Kim a 'vision' of economic cooperation (Joongang Daily, 05/01/2018)
More care, less haste (Joongang Daily, 05/01/2018)
North and South Korea start to dismantle border speakers, fulfilling summit pledge (Reuters, 05/01/2018)
North and South Korea still have a long path ahead, most of it uncharted (WaPo, 05/01/2018)
Return to Panmunjom? (Joongang Daily, 05/01/2018)

International:
(4th LD) Trump says he likes idea of meeting Kim on inter-Korean border (Yonhap, 05/01/2018)
China, Japan and South Korea to hold first top level talks since 2015 (CNN, 05/01/2018)
Elliott begins dispute against South Korea over 2015 Samsung merger: government official (Reuters, 05/01/2018)
From 'fire and fury' to peace prize? Some talk of a Nobel award for Trump on North Korea (WaPo, 05/01/2018)
Leaders of South Korea, Japan, China to discuss North Korea (WaPo, 05/01/2018)
Mao Zedong's grandson possibly killed in North Korean bus crash (Korea Times, 05/01/2018)
Moon: 'Nobel Peace Prize should go to Trump' (Korea Times, 04/30/2018)
Trump's high-stakes nuclear poker tactics on full display (CNN, 05/01/2018)
Trump deserves Nobel for role in talks with North, South Korea's leader says (CNN, 04/30/2018)
Trump hints at a summit in Panmunjom (Joongang Daily, 05/01/2018)
Trump Offers DMZ, Singapore as Locations for Meeting with Kim (VOA, 04/30/2018)
Trump suggests Korea's Panmunjeom for Kim summit (Korea Times, 04/30/2018)
Trump to play hardball with Kim on nukes (Korea Times, 05/01/2018)
U.N. chief agrees to participate in Korea peace efforts (UPI, 05/01/2018)
Will NK-US summit be held at Panmunjeom? (Korea Times, 05/01/2018)

Top News:

- HRNK Executive Director Greg Scarlatoiu discusses the recent joint declaration of two Koreas, different viewpoints of the US and NK on denuclearization, and potential consequences in the Korean Peninsula following the Inter-Korean summit and upcoming Trump-Kim summit. (Relevant Radio)
- HRNK Executive Director Greg Scarlatoiu discusses possible outcomes of the Inter-Korean summit, NK's denuclearization, and outlooks for the Korean Peninsula issue. (Relevant Radio)

In North Korea:

- KJU has said it's possible to talk over Moon's proposal to install liaison offices in Seoul and Pyongyang to enhance bilateral communication during last week's summit. (Yonhap)
- NK has held a meeting of senior party, state and military officials to discuss ways to push for its new strategic line on economic reconstruction. (Yonhap)
- Over the course of their meetings, KJU, who is known to be a heavy smoker, did not light up once in Moon's presence, apparently out of respect for the SK president, who is 31 years his senior. (Justin McCurry, Guardian)
- Moon has convinced North Korean leader KJU to hold his upcoming meeting with Trump at the demilitarized zone separating the two Koreas. (Will Ripley, Ralph Ellis, Ben Westcott, CNN)
- Newly acquired synthetic aperture radar data of the Punggye-ri Nuclear Test Site provides additional evidence that the two mountainous areas accessible by the South and West Portals remain viable, and could support future underground nuclear testing. (38 North)
- The NK authorities have reportedly stepped up security in the border areas. The move is being seen as an attempt to ward off any potential incidents arising from the more relaxed outward appearance of the government. (Kang Mi Jin, DailyNK)
- The NK economy reportedly has been growing since the start of the KJU era, despite economic sanctions and pressure from the international community, due to the 'customer needs' focused business developments. (Na Jung Won, DailyNK)
- The three remaining U.S. citizens detained in NK reportedly have been transferred out of labor camps in the country to an undisclosed location in Pyongyang, according to a SK activist. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- Several media reports continue to misconstrue the meaning of "cavity collapse" and "chimney collapse" at the Punggye-ri nuclear test site. Neither a "cavity collapse" nor a "chimney collapse" equates to a test site collapse. (38 North)
- KJU, who has god-like status among his people, has in effect told them four things:
- 1) The nukes program has served its purpose, and NK will stop work on it now. 2) All efforts can now be focused on economic development. 3) He has started a new era of Korean history by reaching out to the South. 4) NK nukes have tamed the US, and now they can trade nukes for permanent security and leverage. (Spencer Kim, WaPo)

In South Korea:

- SK President Moon on Tuesday requested the U.N.'s role in verifying NK's commitment to denuclearization and peace on the peninsula. (Yonhap)
- SK's defense authorities began taking down loudspeakers installed along the border with NK on Tuesday in Seoul's first action to follow up on their summit deal last week. (Yonhap)
- SK Police questioned the former aide of a ruling party lawmaker for more than 10 hours on Tuesday over his alleged involvement in a campaign to manipulate online opinion in favor of President Moon during last year's election. (Choi Kyu-jin, Esther Chung, Joongang Daily)
- The summit between the two Koreas' leaders on Friday cost the ROK government an estimated $5 million. Major expenses included building renovations, the welcoming ceremony, the dinner banquet and promotional costs. (Jeong Yong-soo, Joongang Daily)

- Moon revealed he had passed on a booklet and a flash drive containing a video clip on his "new economic map for the Korean Peninsula" to Kim, during their summit. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- Moon will meet with China's premier and Japan's prime minister on May 9 to discuss the results of his summit with KJU. (Kang Jin-kyu, Joongang Daily)
- As SK's presidential office plans to push for the ratification of the Panmunjom Declaration, reached by Moon and KJU, criticism has sparked from opposition politicians and experts, who have raised concern with the declaration. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- Moon wants the UN to help monitor NK's closing of its Punggye-ri nuclear test facility, as the president expressed that hope in a phone call with UN Secretary-General Antonio Guterres. (Steve Herman, VOA)
- SK is dismantling a bank of loudspeakers along its border, which for years have been used to blast propaganda and music, including K-Pop, into NK. (Joshua Berlinger, CNN)
- ROK exports declined in April for the first time in 18 months, unable to keep up with 2017's brisk pace as global demand softened, adding to worries about the country's trade outlook amid the risk of a deepening U.S-China trade conflict. (Cynthia Kim, Reuters)
- Optimism abounds in Seoul following the historic summit between Moon and KJU, as a recent survey result showed that over 64 percent of respondents believe the North will denuclearize and keep peace on the Korean peninsula. (Brian Padden, VOA)
- SK removed loudspeakers that blare K-pop and propaganda into NK on Tuesday, implementing an agreement that the two countries signed at their summit on Friday to cease broadcasts across the border. (Lee Sung-eun, Lee Chul-jae, Kim Seung-hyun, Joongang Daily)
- A survey result shows a unification policy emphasizing "oneness" would not be well-received by SK's younger generation. It would be more effective to emphasize reducing national security risks rather than nationalistic restoration of a "Korean" identity. (Kim Ji-yoon, Kang Chung-ku, Kim Kil-dong, Korea Times)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- The rival Koreas dismantled huge loudspeakers used to blare Cold War-style propaganda across their tense border on Tuesday, as SK's president asked the UN to observe the North's planned closing of its nuclear test site. (Hyung-Jin Kim, AP)
- The fundamental condition to peacefully achieving the denuclearization of the Peninsula is the complete dismantlement of NK's nuclear weapons. The biggest item of anticipation with regards to the inter-Korean and US-NK summits is the change in the regime's actions. (Lee Kwangbaek, DailyNK)
- As the older generation's understanding of reunification seems to be a hard shell, SK should instead seek a peaceful coexistence of two Koreas with free trade, free exchange of people and no military threats. (Alexis Dudden, Joan E. Cho, Mary Alice Haddad, UPI)
- Moon gave KJU a USB drive with materials describing his vision for inter-Korean economic cooperation during last week's summit, hinting at a possible resumption of joint projects scrapped or stalled by former conservative administrations. (Lee Sung-eun, Kang Tae-hwa, Joongang Daily)

- The Panmunjom Declaration has three main issues: 1) The declaration did not offer any specific scope or timeline of methods for complete denuclearization. 2) The declaration failed to go beyond the past agreement of merely pursuing multilateral meetings to establish peace. 3) The agreement to remove loudspeakers along the DMZ is a promise to disarm voluntarily. (Chun Young-gi, Joongang Daily)
- Two Koreas began dismantling loudspeakers that blared propaganda across their heavily fortified border on Tuesday, SK's defense ministry said, fulfilling a promise made at last week's historic summit. (Joori Roh, Reuters)
- Moon and Kim have agreed to a destination, a substantial achievement, but the route ahead remains uncharted. Progress between the two Koreas is the most important factor determining lasting peace on the peninsula. (Bridget Coggins, WaPo)
- If Trump-KJU summit happens at Panmunjom, the symbol of the division of the Korean Peninsula can serve as a venue for a historic US-NK summit to resolve the NK nuclear crisis following Friday's inter-Korean summit there. (Joongang Daily)

International:

- Trump said Monday that he likes the idea of meeting with KJU at Panmunjom, the inter-Korean border where the Moon-Kim summit was held last week. (Yonhap)
- The leaders of SK, China and Japan will meet on May 9 for the first trilateral talks between the three countries since 2015, as leaders of Northeast Asian states look to shore up relations following last week's historic Inter-Korean summit. (Ben Westcott, Jungeun Kim, CNN)
- U.S. activist fund Elliott Management has begun a legal dispute with SK over a controversial 2015 merger of two Samsung affiliates after Elliott lost a proxy battle to block it. (Reuters)
- Early progress toward an agreement aimed at ridding NK of nuclear weapons has suddenly raised an idea that thrills many Republicans as much as it horrifies many Democrats: a Nobel Peace Prize for Trump. (Anne Gearan and Ashley Parker, WaPo)
- Leaders of SK, Japan and China will meet next week for a summit expected to focus on NK's nuclear program and other regional issues. (AP)
- Chinese communist revolutionary Mao Zedong's only grandson Mao Xinyu was possibly killed in a bus crash in NK in April that killed over 30 Chinese, according to a report from French radio. (Ko Dong-hwan, Korea Times)
- Moon said the Nobel Peace Prize should go to Trump, if anyone were to win it for their efforts to resolve the issues with NK, noting that "all we need is peace." (Jung Min-ho, Korea Times)
- Trump is turning two crucial foreign policy dramas -- over the Iran deal and a startling opening on the Korean peninsula -- into one big game of televised nuclear poker. (Stephen Collinson, CNN)
- Moon and Trump would be a worthy winner of the Nobel Peace Prize for his involvement in the warming of relations with NK. (Judith Vonberg, CNN)
- Trump fueled expectations that his historic meeting with KJU could take place in Panmunjom, the border village that straddles the inter-Korean border, saying, "There's a great celebration to be had on the site." (Kang Jin-kyu, Joongang Daily)

- "We're looking at various countries, including Singapore, and we are also talking about the possibility of the DMZ," Trump said at a White House press conference. (Steve Herman, VOA)
- Trump suggested Monday that his summit with KJU be held in the truce village that straddles the border separating the two Koreas. (AFP)
- As Trump is expected to play hardball with KJU over denuclearization at the upcoming US-NK summit, Moon would need a fallback plan to handle the potential consequences of the summit. (Kim Jae-kyoung, Korea Times)
- UN Secretary General Antonio Guterres has accepted Moon's request to participate in verifying the closure of NK's main nuclear test site, and turning the demilitarized zone into a peace zone. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- Expectation is growing over the possibility that the truce village of Panmunjeom will serve as a venue for a meeting between KJU and Trump, after the historic inter-Korean summit took place there last week. (Kim Bo-eun, Korea Times)

Prepared by James Park, HRNK Research Intern

——————————————————

Wednesday, May 2, 2018

Human Rights Abuses Overshadow N. Korea's Overtures; US troops 'will stay in South Korea' even if peace treaty is signed with North; China's Foreign Minister Arrives in North Korean Capital

Top News:

Human Rights Abuses Overshadow N. Korea's Overtures (Homeland 411, 05/01/2018)
US troops 'will stay in South Korea' even if peace treaty is signed with North (Telegraph, 05/02/2018)
China's Foreign Minister Arrives in North Korean Capital (VOA, 05/02/2018)

In North Korea:

Activist says Americans detained in N. Korea were relocated to hotel near Pyongyang (Yonhap, 05/02/2018)
Children of struggling North Korean coal miners hauling coal to supplement family earnings(*Daily*NK, 05/02/2018)
China's top envoy visits Pyongyang for first time in 11 years (Joongang Daily, 05/02/2018)
Chinese Foreign Minister visits Pyongyang (UPI, 05/02/2018)
Has Kim Jong-un changed? (Korea Times, 05/02/2018)
Manhunt ensues as North Korean counter-espionage official defects (*Daily*NK, 05/02/2018)
N.K. leader understands denuclearization should involve inspection: Seoul official (Yonhap,05/02/2018)
North Korean laws and regulations for consumer needs (38*North*, 05/02/2018)

Report: North Korea's antivirus tool an 'illegal copy' (UPI, 05/02/2018)
Shadowing North Korea's leader (Joongang Daily, 05/02/2018)
Summit snub rankles opposition (Joongang Daily, 05/02/2018)
Top 10 books about North Korea (Guardian, 05/02/2018)

In South Korea:
Another Oct. 4 Declaration? (Joongang Daily, 05/02/2018)
An uncertain month (Joongang Daily, 05/02/2018)
A rogue adviser (Joongang Daily, 05/02/2018)
Cheong Wa Dae says U.S. Forces Korea will stay even after peace treaty (Yonhap,05/02/2018)
(LEAD) President Moon dismisses possible withdrawal of USFK (Yonhap, 05/02/2018)
Minister: S. Korea-U.S. alliance behind inter-Korean summit success (Yonhap, 05/02/2018)
Moon asks UN to verify closure of North Korea's test site (Korea Times, 05/02/2018)
Moon forced to deny advisor's article about U.S. forces leaving Korea (Joongang Daily,05/02/2018)
Moon asks UN to verify closure of North Korea's test site (Korea Times, 05/02/2018)
Moon to explain outcome of inter-Korean summit to top officials (Yonhap, 05/02/2018)
Moon wants China, Russia to participate in inter-Korean projects (Korea Times, 05/02/2018)
President denies adviser's USFK surmise (Joongang Daily, 05/02/2018)
Pro-North Korea body praises South Korea for not 'blindly following' U.S. (UPI, 05/02/2018)
Seoul: Pyongyang not a possible U.S.-North Korea summit venue (UPI, 05/02/2018)
Seoul top office: U.S. troops needed in South even after peace treaty (UPI, 05/02/2018)
Sexual harassment case rocks top South Korea university (UPI, 05/02/2018)
South to begin discussions on a joint table tennis team (Joongang Daily, 05/02/2018)
S. Korea Wants US Troops to Stay After Any Peace Deal (VOA, 05/02/2018)
South Korea says it wants U.S. troops to stay regardless of any treaty with North Korea(Reuters, 05/02/2018)
South Korea says US troops will stay despite possible peace treaty (BBC, 05/02/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
4 Things You Should Know About the Inter-Korean Summit (VOA, 05/02/2018)
Gov't braces for trade with North (Joongang Daily, 05/02/2018)
(LEAD) N.K. leader understands denuclearization should involve inspection: Seoul official(Yonhap, 05/02/2018)
Seoul's table tennis body to begin discussions on joint Korean squad at Asian Games(Yonhap, 05/02/2018)
South Korea considers financing of possible inter-Korea projects: finance minister (Reuters,05/02/2018)
Two Koreas dismantle propaganda loudspeakers at border (Korea Times, 05/02/2018)
Two Koreas to discuss on joint Korean table tennis team at Asian Games (Korea Times, 05/02/2018)
University of Seoul plans exchanges with North Korean universities (Korea Times, 05/02/2018)

International:
(2nd LD) Trump says location, date of N.K. summit may be announced soon (Yonhap,05/02/2018)

China espouses peace regime on Korean Peninsula, vows to play role (Yonhap, 05/02/2018)
Trump says location, date of summit with Kim Jong-un to be announced 'in couple of days'(Korea Times, 05/02/2018)
Trump's boss act doesn't always work (CNN, 05/02/2018)
Turkish leader affirms partnership with Seoul (Joongang Daily, 05/02/2018)
U.S. lawmakers voice support for Trump's diplomatic efforts on Korea (Yonhap, 05/02/2018)
U.S. sends F-22 Raptors to Korea for training (Joongang Daily, 05/02/2018)

Top News:

- Amid the euphoria surrounding the NK/SK summit last week, NK's human rights record must remain front and center during any negotiations or talks. (Homeland 411)
- S.Korean President Moon on Wed. dismissed claims that US troops stationed in the country would have to leave if a peace treaty was signed with the North. (Telegraph)
- China's FM has arrived in NK's capital where he could meet with leader KJU while trying to ensure a larger role for Beijing in the new round of nuclear diplomacy with Pyongyang that had been driven by Seoul and Washington. (VOA)

In North Korea:

- NK has relocated three American detainees from a labor camp to a hotel on the outskirts of Pyongyang ahead of a planned summit between leader KJU and President Trump. (Yonhap)
- N.Korean coal miners have resorted to mobilizing their children to raise money amid spiraling coal prices and subsequent salary losses. (DailyNK)
- Chinese FM Wang Yi kicked off a two-day trip to Pyongyang on Wed., the first such trip in over a decade, ahead of a high-stakes summit between N.Korean leader KJU and US President Trump. (Joongang Daily)
- Chinese FM Wang Yi travelled to Pyongyang on Wed., to hold talks with his N.Korean counterpart Ri Yong-ho. (UPI)
- Most experts say Kim's kind and friendly attitude does not indicate willingness to give up his missile and nuclear weapons programs and turn the totalitarian regime into a normal state. (Korea Times)
- It has been reported that a man identified as Mr. Kang, the head of the Foreign Counter-Espionage office in charge of North-Eastern China for the Ministry of State Security fled overseas in Feb. (DailyNK)
- N.Korean leader KJU appears to understand that the process of the North's denuclearization needs to entail inspection and verification, a senior government official said Wed. (Yonhap)
- Research has found that the N.Korean economy has been growing continuously since the start of the KJU era, despite economic sanctions and pressure from the international community. (38North)
- NK used foreign technology to develop a computer antivirus, despite earlier claims it had developed the SiliVaccine tool without outside input. (UPI)

- Kim Chang-son is known to have climbed the ranks since the era of KJI, when he worked as a butler and learned from the chief secretary at the time, Kang Sang-chun. (Joongang Daily)
- SK's opposition parties are fuming over their exclusion from the guest list of a dinner that followed last Fri.'s inter-Korean summit, sending relations with the ruling party to a new low. (Joongang Daily)
- Novelist DB John chose fiction, reportage and memoir that reveal some shocking truths about life in this secretive tyranny (Guardian)

In South Korea:

- The third inter-Korean summit at the truce village of Panmunjom on Fri. was a success as a diplomatic event that offered a wide array of attractions. But there are problems behind the glaring diplomatic success. (Joongang Daily)
- The upcoming Trump-Kim summit is a meeting that must not fail. In this situation, it would be a nightmare for Seoul if Pyongyang and Washington make a big deal of loosely addressing denuclearization only enough to declare "victory" and agree on disabling ICBM and guaranteeing the N.Korean system. (Joongang Daily)
- For SK, the USFK are essential to strike a military balance with China and Russia as well as to cope with any rearming of Japan regardless of NK's threats to South Korea. (Joongang Daily)
- A presidential aide said Wed. that US troops will continue to be stationed in SK even if a peace treaty is signed to formally end the 1950-53 Korean War. (Yonhap)
- S.Korean President Moon flatly dismissed the idea of US troops stationed here pulling out following a formal end to the Korean War, saying the issue has nothing to do with NK but only with the Korea-US alliance. (Yonhap)
- S.Korean Defense Minister Song said Wed. the country's robust alliance with the US was a key element behind the success of the inter-Korean summit talks last week. (Yonhap)
- S.Korean President Moon has asked the UN to verify the planned closure of NK's nuclear test site, a UN spokesman said Tues. (Korea Times)
- President Moon said Wed. the issue of US military forces stationed in SK had nothing to do with the signing of a peace treaty that would formally end the 1950-53 Korean War, in a rare public rebuke of his special adviser on inter-Korean policy, Moon Chung-in. (Joongang Daily)
- S.Korean President Moon has asked the UN to verify the planned closure of NK's nuclear test site, a UN spokesman said Tues. (Korea Times)
- President Moon will hold a rare meeting with his country's top officials this week to explain the outcome of his recent summit with N.Korean leader KJU. (Yonhap)
- President Moon proposed including China, Russia and ASEAN countries in conducting inter-Korean economic projects to N.Korean leader KJU at their summit. (Korea Times)
- President Moon said Wed. the issue of US military forces stationed in SK had nothing to do with the signing of a peace treaty that would formally end the 1950-53 Korean War, in a rare public rebuke of his special adviser on inter-Korean policy, Moon Chung-in. (Joongang Daily)
- A Japan-based newspaper praised SK's policy and the inter-Korea Panmunjom Declaration as a move toward peace that shows Seoul is "not blindly following the US." (UPI)

- SK's presidential office said Pyongyang isn't among the list of possible venues for the upcoming US-NK summit. (UPI)
- S.Korean President Moon said Wed. the presence of US troops in SK has nothing to do with signing a peace treaty with NK. (UPI)
- A professor at SK's most prestigious university who was charged with sexual harassment and embezzlement of research funds received a three-month suspension from an internal committee. (UPI)
- The S.Korean national table tennis federation said Wed. it will begin discussions on forming a joint team with NK for this year's Asian Games. (Joongang Daily)
- SK said on Wed. the issue of US troops stationed in the South is unrelated to any future peace treaty with NK and that American forces should stay even if such an agreement is signed. (VOA)
- SK said on Wed. the issue of US troops stationed in the South is unrelated to any future peace treaty with NK and that American forces should stay even if such an agreement is signed. (Reuters)
- SK's government has said US troops will remain in the country, even if a deal is reached to formally end the Korean War. (BBC)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- N.Korean leader KJU met with S.Korean President Moon Apr. 27 in the Demilitarized Zone at Panmunjom. Their discussions centered around the denuclearization of the Korean peninsula and a peace settlement. (VOA)
- As relations between the two Koreas warm, Seoul is gearing up to create new economic ties with Pyongyang, according to the South's top economic official. But finance minister says sanctions must go before exchanges begin. (Joongang Daily)
- The S.Korean national table tennis federation said Wed. it will begin discussions on forming a joint team with NK at this year's Asian Games. (Yonhap)
- SKs finance minister said on Wed. the government was discussing how to finance possible economic projects with NK, although any projects with Pyongyang must first be approved by the international community. (Reuters)
- The rival Koreas dismantled huge loudspeakers used to blare Cold War-style propaganda across their tense border on Tues., as SK's president asked the UN to observe the North's planned closing of its nuclear test site. (Korea Times)
- The S.Korean national table tennis federation said Wed. it will begin discussions on forming a joint team with NK at this year's Asian Games. (Korea Times)
- The University of Seoul held a ceremony for the institution's 100th anniversary Wed. and announced a set of goals to better reflect the current atmosphere. (Korea Times)

International:

- US President Trump said Tues. the location and date of his meeting with N.Korean leader KJU would be announced in the next couple of days. (Yonhap)
- China on Wed. espoused the establishment of a peace regime between SK and NK and pledged to play a role in the process. (Yonhap)
- US President Trump said Tues. the location and date of his meeting with N.Korean leader KJU would be announced in the next couple of days. (Korea Times)
- Trump is following his own advice in high-stakes dealings with NK, in the Iran nuclear deal and with America's friends in Europe and Asia on a hardball trade policy. (CNN)
- President Erdogan congratulated President Moon for the successful 2018 South-North Korea summit and welcomed the adoption of the historic Panmunjom Declaration on peace, prosperity and unification of the Korean Peninsula. (Joongang Daily)
- Two US lawmakers have introduced a resolution supporting US President Trump's diplomatic efforts on the Korean Peninsula. (Yonhap)
- The US Air Force deployed eight F-22 Raptor stealth fighters to an air base in Gwangju, according to multiple sources, to take part in a joint SK-US exercise next week. (Joongang Daily)

Prepared by Dohyun Kim, HRNK Research Intern

——————————————

Thursday, May 3, 2018

Human rights activists refuse S. Korea's request to stop sending leaflets, info into North; Human rights abuses overshadow N.Korea's overtures; Focus on human rights fades as US, S.Korea pursue N.Korea deal

Top News:

Human Rights Activists Refuse S. Korea's Request to Stop Sending Leaflets, Info Into North (CNS, 05/02/2018)

Human Rights Abuses Overshadow North Korea's Overtures (Inhomelandsecurity, 05/02/2018)

In North Korea:

A look at the 3 Americans detained in North Korea (WaPo, 05/03/2018)

Expectations grow for North Korea to release three Americans (Reuters, 05/03/2018)

N.K. FM meets with China's top diplomat over ties, situation on Korean Peninsula (Yonhap, 05/03/2018)

North Korea denies it hacked UN database on sanctions (WaPo, 05/02/2018)

North Korea denies hacking UN sanctions database (Guardian, 05/02/2018)

North Korea-US talks: Who are North Korea's American detainees? (BBC, 05/03/2018)

North Korea's Kim tells China he is committed to denuclearisation (Reuters, 05/03/2018)

North Korean authorities monitoring domestic reaction to summit (*Daily*NK, 05/03/2018)
Senior North Korean espionage official 'may have fled to Britain after defecting' (Telegraph, 05/03/2018)
Who are the three US detainees held by North Korea? (Korea Times, 05/03/2018)

In South Korea:
(LEAD) Cheong Wa Dae launches new commission to implement outcome of N. Korea summit (Yonhap, 05/03/2018)
(LEAD) Presidential secretary tapped as negotiator at military talks with N. Korea (Yonhap, 05/03/2018)
Blue House official tied to defunding scandal (Joongang Daily, 05/03/2018)
Dodging denuclearization (Joongang Daily, 05/03/2018)
Foreign envoys moved by inter-Korean summit (Korea Times, 05/03/2018)
Getting on board (Joongang Daily, 05/03/2018)
Moon meets top leaders over outcome of historic inter-Korean summit (Yonhap, 05/03/2018)
N.K. leader could warm to swift denuclearization to complete economic plan: ex-minister (Yonhap, 05/03/2018)
'Nuclear-free Korean Peninsula' is prerequisite for inter-Korean economic cooperation (Korea Times, 05/03/2018)
PM: S. Korea to seek forestation project in N. Korea (Yonhap, 05/03/2018)
Seoul eyes regional support for Panmunjom Declaration of peace (Yonhap,05/03/2018
Seoul expects U.S.-N. Korea summit to provide complete solution to N. Korean nuclear issue(Yonhap, 05/03/2018)
South Korea Developing Economic Projects for North Korea (VOA, 05/03/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
(LEAD) Koreas team up at table tennis worlds (Yonhap, 05/03/2018)
(2nd LD) S. Korea pushes for high-level talks with N. Korea to discuss summit outcome (Yonhap, 05/03/2018)
Another Look at the North-South Summit (38 North, 05/03/2018)
Moon-Kim summit is 'right first step' (Korea Times, 05/03/2018)
Pingpong diplomacy: Koreas join teams at table tennis worlds (WaPo, 05/03/2018)
Train to nowhere (Joongang Daily, 05/03/2018)

International:
(LEAD) Pence honors defectors on N. Korea Freedom Week (Yonhap, 05/03/2018)
(LEAD) Trump hints at possible release of 3 U.S. detainees in N.K. (Yonhap, 05/03/2018)
(2nd LD) Chinese foreign minister meets N.K.'s leader (Yonhap, 05/03/2018)
As Trump visits State Department, Pompeo says North Korea must denuclearize (Reuters, 05/02/2018)
China congratulates North Korea's Kim on reducing tensions (WaPo, 05/03/2018)
China: North Korea's Kim Committed to Denuclearization (VOA, 05/03/2018)
Chinese foreign minister meets with Kim Jong Un amid warming ties (CNN, 05/03/2018)
China's senior diplomat meets North Korea foreign minister (Korea Times, 05/03/2018)

Donald Trump formally nominated for a Nobel Prize for 'his tireless work to bring peace to our world' (Telegraph, 05/03/2018)
Donald Trump hints at imminent release of three Americans detained in North Korea (Telegraph, 05/03/2018)
Ex-US diplomat to Seoul cautious of North Korea's promises (Korea Times, 05/03/2018)
Focus on human rights fades as U.S., South Korea pursue North Korea deal (Reuters, 05/03/2018)
Gallucci: 'Lots of questions' over North Korea's denuclearization (Korea Times, 05/03/2018)
Giuliani says 3 Americans held by North Korea to be released Thursday (CNN, 05/03/2018)
Pence postponing trip to Brazil ahead of North Korea meeting (WaPo, 05/03/2018)
Pompeo alters wording on nukes (Joongang Daily, 05/03/2018)
Pompeo wants North Korea weapons program dismantled 'without delay' (Korea Times, 05/03/2018)
U.N. chief Guterres sees meaningful negotiation ahead on North Korea (Reuters, 05/03/2018)
US Officials Indicate N. Korea Could Soon Release Detained Americans (VOA, 05/03/2018)

Top News:

- HRNK Board Member Suzanne Scholte: ""The last thing we should be doing is retreating on the human rights issues and information campaign to North Korea." (Patrick Goodenough, CNS)
- NK's human rights record must remain front and center during any negotiations or talks, says HRNK Board Member David Maxwell. (Christopher Prawdzik, Inhomelandsecurity)

In North Korea:

- Trump added to speculation that NK may make a goodwill gesture before his planned summit with KJU when he tweeted of a possible update soon on the status of three detained Americans: Kim Dong Chul, Kim Hak Song, and Tony Kim. (AP)
- CNN said on Thursday that NK would imminently release three Americans held as prisoners, as expectations grew that Pyongyang would make the gesture ahead of an unprecedented US-NK summit due to take place in coming weeks. (Reuters)
- NK's Foreign Minister Ri Yong-ho has held talks with China's top diplomat to discuss ways to improve the two countries' ties and the situation on the Korean Peninsula. (Yonhap)
- NK on Wednesday dismissed as "nonsense" what it said was a US claim that Pyongyang hacked the database of the UN committee that monitors sanctions against the North, saying the Trump administration should instead be working toward peace. (Edith M. Lederer, AP)
- NK has denied hacking the database of a UN committee tasked with monitoring sanctions against Pyongyang, and called on Washington to focus on peace efforts before a planned summit between the countries' leaders. (Guardian)
- Three Americans detained in NK reportedly have been relocated to a Pyongyang hotel and are receiving good food and medical care. They are Kim Hak-song, Kim Sang-duk, and Tony Kim. (BBC)

- KJU told a visiting Chinese diplomat on Thursday that he is committed to denuclearization, China's foreign ministry said, as diplomatic efforts to bring lasting peace to the Korean peninsula gather pace. (Ben Blanchard, Reuters)
- The NK authorities are reportedly monitoring citizen reactions to last Friday's inter-Korean summit, focusing on potential backlash or negative effects of mentions of "denuclearization" in state media in the days following the event. (Kim Yoo Jin, DailyNK)
- NK has launched an international manhunt for one of its most senior counter-espionage officers, who disappeared in late February and is believed to have defected, possibly to Britain. (Julian Ryall, Telegraph)
- While NK has a history of detaining Americans and using them as bargaining chips, Trump hinted Wednesday of imminent news about three Korean-Americans detained in the North, Kim Hak-song, Kim Sang-duk, and Kim Dong-chul. (Korea Times)

In South Korea:

- SK launched a presidential commission Thursday to implement the outcome of a historic summit held between Moon and KJU that calls for a wide range of measures aimed at denuclearizing the North and formally ending the Korean War. (Yonhap)
- SK has picked Kim Do-gyun, a presidential secretary with military background, as its top delegate to upcoming general-grade talks with NK, a government official said Thursday. (Yonhap)
- A Blue House official is in hot water over the cutting of funding to USKI, a think tank in Washington, the presidential office admitted on Wednesday. The official is Hong Il-pyo, senior aide to the secretary to the president for national policy. (Wi Moon-hee, Joongang Daily)
- For Moon's concession to work, the US must accept the change. Given the tough "America First" policy of Trump, that concession is by no means a given. Seoul, not a party to the armistice agreement, technically has no exclusive right to change the current language which the North refuses to accept. (Shim Jae-hoon, Joongang Daily)
- Foreign envoys based in Seoul said they were moved by the Inter-Korean summit. But most were uncertain whether Pyongyang would dismantle its nuclear program and declined to make definite predictions. (Ko Dong-hwan, Korea Times)
- Two Koreas and four major countries are supporting a peaceful resolution of the nuclear problem for the first time since the North's first nuke test in 2006. Both Washington and Pyongyang seem to want to solve the problem in one stroke. Nevertheless, the government must not hurry. (Joongang Daily)
- Moon sought to further rally the support of his people on Thursday over the outcome of his recent summit with KJU, holding a rare meeting with state leaders here, including the National Assembly speaker. (Yonhap)
- KJU could agree to a swift denuclearization timeline with the US to deliver on his ongoing five-year economic development plan, a former SK unification minister said. (Yonhap)
- Unless NK completely abandons its nuclear weapons program, SK will not seek economic cooperation, ROK Unification Minister Cho Myoung-gyon said. (Jung Min-ho, Korea Times)

- SK plans to launch a project to help plant trees in NK as part of efforts to boost reconciliation in the wake of last week's historic summit between the two sides, Prime Minister Lee Nak-yon said. (Yonhap)
- SK is seeking to have the leaders of Japan and China sign off a special statement supporting the outcome of Moon's recent historic summit with KJU. (Yonhap)
- SK expects the upcoming meeting between Trump and KJU to provide a solution that fundamentally resolves the NK nuclear issue and brings in lasting peace on the Korean Peninsula, Foreign Minister Kang Kyung-wha said. (Yonhap)
- SK is looking into developing and financing economic projects with NK that could take effect if a nuclear deal is reached with the US. (Brian Padden, VOA)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- Two Koreas have formed a joint team at the ongoing table tennis world championships in Halmstad, Sweden. (Yonhap)
- SK will seek to hold a high-level dialogue with NK in mid-May to discuss ways to implement the outcome of a recent summit between their leaders, Seoul's presidential office Cheong Wa Dae said. (Yonhap)
- The recent Inter-Korean summit was positive and useful. Moon and KJU have taken each other's measure, and that is liable to be more important than the words that were spoken (or written), or those left unsaid. (Robert Carlin, 38 North)
- Robert Gallucci, a renowned expert on NK said the recent Inter-Korean summit was the "right first step" toward the denuclearization of the Korean Peninsula. (Lee Suh-yoon, Korea Times)
- Pingpong diplomacy is uniting two Koreas at the table tennis world championships, as the women's teams from the two countries, originally competing separately, decided Thursday to combine teams rather than play each other in the quarterfinals. (AP)
- While Moon and KJU discussed a potential launch of a cross-continental railway project, the cost is estimated at $20.4 billion, which the South will end up paying. People need to look at the reality calmly before being enraptured by the fantasy of a cross-continental railway. (Ahn Hye-ri, Joongang Daily)

International:

- US Vice President Mike Pence on Wednesday paid tribute to N.Koreans who fled the regime as he marked "North Korea Freedom Week." (Yonhap)
- Trump on Thursday hinted at the possibility of the release of three US detainees in NK via Twitter. (Yonhap)
- Chinese Foreign Minister Wang Yi met KJU on Thursday, Beijing's foreign ministry said, following Kim's historic summit with his SK counterpart last week. (Yonhap)
- NK must commit to dismantling its nuclear weapons program, new U.S. Secretary of State Mike Pompeo said on Wednesday during a swearing-in ceremony at the State Department where he was strongly endorsed by Trump. (Lesley Wroughton, Reuters)

- China's foreign minister congratulated KJU on Thursday on his moves to reduce tensions with SK, China said. Their meeting in Pyongyang underscored warming ties and Beijing's desire to remain a key player in the Korean Peninsula peace process. (AP)
- KJU said he is committed to denuclearizing the Korean peninsula, according to China's Foreign Ministry. (VOA)
- Chinese Foreign Minister Wang Yi met with KJU during a rare visit to Pyongyang on Thursday, according to Chinese state media. Their meeting is another indication of the warming relations between the two allies. (Ben Westcott, CNN)
- The two-day visit by Wang Yi, the highest-ranking Chinese official to travel to NK in years, follows the Inter-Korean summit and precedes a meeting between Trump and KJU in coming weeks. (AFP)
- Trump has been formally nominated for a Nobel Peace Prize for the US President's efforts to solve the NK nuclear tensions. (Telegraph)
- Three Korean-Americans detained by NK may be on the verge of freedom amid an ongoing thaw with Pyongyang, Trump hinted. (Nicola Smith, Telegraph)
- Evans Revere, a former US deputy chief of negotiations for NK's nuclear program, said Thursday it is important to be cautious of the true intentions of NK following its abrupt decision for denuclearization. (Yi Whan-woo, Korea Times)
- Absent from the recent Inter-Korean summit was Pyongyang's human rights record, and the issue appears to have faded from Trump's public agenda as he prepares for his own meeting with KJU. (Josh Smith, Reuters)
- Robert Gallucci, former chief US negotiator on the NK nuclear crisis, "welcomed" KJU's commitment to denuclearization shown during the Inter-Korean summit. But he remained cautious about Kim's definition of denuclearization, saying there are "still lots of questions" left unanswered. (Park Si-soo, Korea Times)
- Three Americans held in a NK prison are set to be released, former NYC Mayor Rudy Giuliani said Thursday. (Elizabeth Landers, CNN)
- Vice President Mike Pence is postponing a planned trip to Brazil this month as Trump prepares for a historic meeting with KJU. (Ken Thomas, AP)
- Mike Pompeo declared on Wednesday that Washington is committed to the "permanent, verifiable, irreversible dismantling" of NK's weapons of mass destruction program, introducing terminology that could indicate a more hard-line approach to denuclearization, adding "permanent" to his previous statement. (Sarah Kim, Joongang Daily)
- Mike Pompeo vowed Wednesday to seek the swift dismantling of Pyongyang's weapons program, as he argued that America has a chance to alter the "course of history" in NK. (AFP)
- UN Secretary-Genera Antonio Guterres on Thursday said he was optimistic about the prospects for progress on the issue of NK's nuclear program after recent diplomatic moves by Pyongyang, Seoul and Washington. (Reuters)
- US officials have indicated that NK could soon release three detained Americans. Former New York mayor Rudy Giuliani, a member of Trump's legal team, said the Americans are expected to be freed Thursday. (VOA)

Prepared by James Park, HRNK Research Intern

Friday, May 4, 2018

Don't forget North Korean human rights abuse: Michael Kirby; White House declines to confirm release of American detainees in N. Korea; Joint Korean women's table tennis team takes bronze at worlds

Top New:
Don't forget North Korean human rights abuse: Michael Kirby (SBS News, 05/03/2018)

In North Korea:
Chinese foreign minister, Kim Jong Un meet amid warming relations (UPI, 05/03/2018)
If North Korea Opens Up, Rason Could Become North Korea's Shenzhen (Forbes, 05/02/2018)
N. Korea-China trade rises slightly in March (Yonhap, 05/04/2018)
North Korea changes its time zone to match South (BBC, 05/04/2018)
North Korean authorities begin workplace lectures covering inter-Korean summit (DailyNK, 05/04/2018)
North Korean media coverage may signal commitment to diplomacy (UPI, 05/04/2018)
North Korean Officials Trade Meal Coupons on the Black Market For Cash (RFA, 05/03/2018)
North Korea slams U.S. on Iran nuclear deal (UPI, 05/04/2018)
Pyongyang visit suggests China won't sit idly (Joongang Daily, 05/04/2018)
Report: North Korea tourism project takes toll on citizens (UPI, 05/04/2018)
Should Kim get the credit for the Korean detente? (WaPo, 05/04/2018)

In South Korea:
(2nd LD) S. Korean presidential aide visits U.S. ahead of Trump-Kim meeting (Yonhap, 05/04/2018)
Leaders of S. Korea, China vow joint efforts in pushing for formal end to Korean War (Yonhap, 05/04/2018)
(LEAD) S. Korea urges activists to immediately stop anti-N.K. leaflet campaign (Yonhap, 05/04/2018)
Ministers will visit islands near NLL today (Korea Times, 05/04/2018)
Moon's adviser denies he called for withdrawal of U.S. troops (Yonhap, 05/04/2018)
Moon confers with Xi on summit, way ahead (Joongang Daily, 05/04/2018)
Report on U.S. troop cuts denied (Joongang Daily, 05/04/2018)
Moon's security chief visits Washington to coordinate US-NK summit (Korea Times, 05/04/2018)
South Korean national security adviser visits U.S., to meet Bolton: officials (Reuters, 05/04/2018)
Why a South Korean newspaper asked experts to look at photos of Kim Jong Un's shoes (WaPo, 05/04/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
Combined Korean team takes bronze at table tennis worlds (WaPo, 05/04/2018)

Ex-Olympic table tennis champion surprised with formation of joint Korean team (Yonhap, 05/04/2018)
Kim Jong-un's endgame (Korea Times, 05/04/2018)
(LEAD) Joint Korean women's table tennis team takes bronze at worlds (Yonhap, 05/04/2018)
No neighbor left behind (Joongang Daily, 05/04/2018)
North and South Korea teams unite at table tennis world championships (CNN, 05/04/2018)
Seoul sports leader to discuss joint Korean teams with Asian Olympic chief (Yonhap, 05/04/2018)
South Korean leader looks for ways to help North economically without violating sanctions (WaPo, 05/03/2018)
The naengmyeon dilemma (Joongang Daily, 05/04/2018)

International:
Abe avoids NK-bashing ahead of trilateral summit (Korea Times, 05/04/2018)
Activists, Academics Urge Trump Not to Trade Human Rights for Denuclearization in North Korea (VOA, 05/03/2018)
American detainees in N. Korea could be released on Saturday: sources (Yonhap, 05/04/2018)
Asian geopolitical chessboard is changing (Korea Times, 05/04/2018)
Canada's Trudeau pledges support for inter-Korean reconciliation (Yonhap, 05/04/2018)
China says summit with Japan, South Korea to focus on cooperation, not North Korea (Reuters, 05/04/2018)
Deal between Trump, Kim possible over denuclearization: SIPRI director (Yonhap, 05/04/2018)
Donald Trump formally nominated for a Nobel Prize for 'his tireless work to bring peace to our world' (Telegraph, 05/04/2018)
In a first, Japanese and Chinese leaders talk by phone (CNN, 05/04/2018)
IOC to support Korea peace talks with sports initiatives: Bach (Reuters, 05/03/2018)
(LEAD) White House declines to confirm release of American detainees in N. Korea (Yonhap, 05/04/2018)
Never mind the Nobel talk. Trump has a different mission on North Korea (WaPo, 05/04/2018)
North Korean defectors find refuge in Auckland and share stories at churches (New Zealand Herald, 05/04/2018)
Notion of U.S. Troop Cuts Unnerves South Korea and Japan (NYT, 05/04/2018)
Trump, Kim summit must address North Korea rights abuses, victims say (UPI, 05/03/2018)
Trump Orders Pentagon to Consider Reducing U.S. Forces in South Korea (NYT, 05/03/2018)
Trump says date, place set for North Korea summit (Reuters, 05/04/2018)
Trump says site set for historic Kim summit (CNN, 05/04/2018)
Trump says date, venue set for North Korea summit (WaPo, 05/04/2018)
Trump: Time, Place Set for N. Korea Summit (VOA, 05/04/2018)
Trump: U.S. troop withdrawal from South Korea is not on the table — for now (WaPo, 05/04/2018)
U.N. agency to consider North Korea request on new air routes to South (Reuters, 05/04/2018)
What the two Koreas and Trump have said about withdrawing U.S. troops from peninsula (WaPo, 05/04/2018)
White House denies it is reducing US troops in South Korea (Telegraph, 05/04/2018)
White House tells Seoul NYT report about decrease in U.S. forces is untrue (Joongang Daily, 05/04/2018

Top News:

- Former High Court Justice Michael Kirby has sounded a note of caution after recent progress towards peace on the Korean peninsula, telling SBS News that discussions around human rights in NK have so far been conspicuously absent as relations between the NK and SK have thawed. (Rena Sarumpart, Nick Baker, SBS News)

In North Korea:

- Chinese Foreign Minister Wang Yi met with N.Korean Leader KJU on Thurs. in a rare visit that signals warming ties between the two nations. (Sara Shayanian, UPI)
- In this opinion article for Forbes, author Salvatore Babones argues why Rason could be NK's Shenzhen if NK goes down the route of economic reform. He characterizes NK's capital Pyongyang and the Kaesong industrial park on the South Korean border as "politically significant but economically irrational." He concludes his argument by stating that If NK liberalizes, the big investor will be China, and China will opt for Rason. (Salvatore Babones, Forbes)
- Trade between NK and China increased a bit in Mar. from a month ago, marking a turnaround from a downward trend amid international sanctions on the North's weapons program. (Yonhap)
- NK is changing its time zone to match the South after last week's inter-Korean summit. (BBC)
- The N. Korean authorities have been espousing the greatness of KJU at workplaces across the country following last Fri.'s inter-Korean summit. (DailyNK)
- NK's domestic news media remain carefully choreographed and managed by the ruling Korean Workers' Party. Nonetheless, in the wake of major events, a judicious reading of their content can sometimes offer insights into the reclusive state's priorities and resolve. (Meredith Shaw, UPI)
- N.Korean party workers and other members of the country's elite given coupons for meals at high-end restaurants in Pyongyang are now offering them for sale on the black market, earning instant cash and driving prices up for less-privileged residents of the capital, N.Korean sources say. (Hyemin Son, Leejin Jun, Richard Finney, RFA)
- NK slammed the US as the Trump administration considers withdrawing from the Iran nuclear deal, also known as the Joint Comprehensive Plan of Action. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- During his meeting with China's top envoy on Thurs., N.Korean leader KJU reiterated his position that the Korean Peninsula ought to be free of nuclear weapons. (Joongang Daily)
- Construction for a "marine tourism" zone in NK is becoming a burden on ordinary N.Koreans who are being taxed to finance the project. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- Trump deserves credit for seizing the moment for negotiations with NK. But some little-noticed documents reveal that KJU has been planning his denuclearization offer and opening to the US for the past five years. (David Ignatius, WaPo)

In South Korea:

- SK's top national security adviser is currently in the US for discussions on an upcoming summit between US President Trump and N.Korean leader KJU. (Yonhap)
- SK and China will closely work together to push for a peace treaty with NK that would formally end the Korean War. (Yonhap)
- SK called on activists Fri. to immediately stop their campaign to send anti-Pyongyang propaganda leaflets across the border, vowing to take stern actions against it. (Yonhap)
- A group of ministers will visit islands near a controversial western maritime border Sat. to conduct a preliminary study before implementing an inter-Korean agreement to set up a "Peace Zone" there. (Lee Min-hyung, Korea Times)
- A special adviser to S.Korean President Moon denied Thurs. that he called for the withdrawal of US troops from the South. (Yonhap)
- President Moon and President Xi of China agreed to closely communicate and coordinate to declare an end to the 1950-53 Korean War and put in place a peace treaty during a phone conversation Fri. (Joongang Daily)
- A White House official denied a NYT report that US President Trump was considering reducing the size of US military forces in Korea, according to the Blue House. (Joongang Daily)
- Chung Eui-yong, chief of the presidential National Security Office, visited Washington on Thurs. in a move to coordinate the summit between Trump and KJU. (Lee Min-hyung, Korea Times)
- SK's national security adviser is in Washington to meet his US counterpart, John Bolton, ahead of an expected summit between Trump and KJU. (Reuters)
- An accurate image of or detail about KJU could provide some important clues about his health and other physical characteristics. These are details that could actually be useful for crafting policy toward NK. (Adam Taylor, WaPo)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- The combined Korean women's table tennis team won a bronze medal Fri. at the world championships. (AP)
- A man who engineered the formation of a unified Korean team at the ongoing table tennis worlds still has to pinch himself. (Yonhap)
- What would KJU's endgame be? Perhaps a Korea where the South is at his beck and call, with Americans no longer breathing down his neck, and with nuclear missiles on standby. (Oh Young-jin, Korea Times)
- The joint Korean women's table tennis team won the bronze medal at the world championships in Sweden on Fri. (Yonhap)
- the government must pay equal attention to drawing united support on the home front. There should be no difference between the conservatives and liberals on the issue of denuclearization and permanent peace. (Joongang Daily)

- Though there was no victory to cheer, there was still plenty to celebrate as a unified Korean table tennis team made history and provided another symbolic moment in the continued rapprochement between two countries still technically at war. (CNN)
- The head of SK's top sports body said Fri. he will soon meet with the Asian Olympic chief over joint Korean teams at an upcoming continental multi-sport competition. (Yonhap)
- Moon has ordered his officials to start figuring out potential economic engagement projects that can be undertaken without contravening existing sanctions. This prospect is already causing heartburn among hard-liners in Washington who view Moon as too willing to take KJU at his word. But supporters say Moon is no naif. (Anna Fifield, WaPo)
- Times and people change, and the taste and proper way to eat a certain dish will also change. We can move to the future by protecting the tradition and embracing changes. It applies to generational issues and inter-Korean relations as well. (Joongang Daily)

International:

- Japanese Prime Minister Shinzo Abe is apparently softening his remarks on NK, avoiding using terms like "pressure," after the inter-Korean summit on Apr. 27. (Park Ji-won, Korea Times)
- As preparations are being made for the US president and NK's leader to hold an historic summit, activists and academics are urging Donald Trump not to sacrifice human rights to achieve denuclearization. (Margareet Besheer, VOA)
- There is the possibility that three American detainees in NK will be released later this week. (Yonhap)
- The Japan-PRC-ROK announcement is only the latest indicator that the geopolitical chessboard is changing in Asia. Yet, while the mood music is presently mostly positive, significant downside risks remain. (Andrew Hammond, Korea Times)
- PM Trudeau of Canada promised Fri. to actively support Seoul's ongoing efforts to establish peace and denuclearize the Korean Peninsula, while offering condolences over the deaths of two S.Koreans in a recent van attack in his country. (Yonhap)
- No areas will be off limits in talks next week when Chinese Premier Li Keqiang visits Japan, but NK is not going to be a focus, a senior Chinese diplomat said on Fri. (Ben Blanchard, Reuters)
- A deal to denuclearize in return for a peace treaty could possibly come out of the historic meeting planned between US President Trump and N.Korean leader KJU if NK's crucial security issues are addressed in a security arrangement that is guaranteed by China, the head of the Stockholm International Peace Research Institute has said. (Yonhap)
- Donald Trump has been formally nominated for a Nobel Peace Prize for the US President's efforts to solve the N.Korean nuclear tensions. (Telegraph)
- After a breakthrough on the Korean Peninsula last week, Japanese PM Abe and Chinese President Xi discussed the situation on the phone Fri., the first time leaders of the two countries had ever done so. (CNN)

- The International Olympic Committee (IOC), at the request of two Koreas, will support peace talks on the Korean peninsula with sports initiatives, IOC President Thomas Bach said. (Karolos Grohmann, Reuters)
- The White House on Thu. declined to confirm reports that three American detainees in NK have been released or will be during the day. (Yonhap)
- If Trump wants to succeed, he must want a deal less than KJU does. He must be willing to walk away and to make KJU understand that he is serious about a military option if negotiations fail. He can't do so if he is even remotely thinking about a Nobel. (Marc A. Thiessen, WaPo)
- N.Korean defectors started coming to Auckland last year, the New Zealand Herald has been told, and at least five are still here, living in a Christian commune in South Auckland. They are being taught English, Bible study and given hands-on experience on integrating into Western society. (Lincoln Tan, New Zealand Herald)
- With diplomacy moving apace to end NK's nuclear weapons program, Northeast Asia is bracing for something few had thought likely just months ago: a reduction or withdrawal of US troops from SK. (Choe Sang-Hun, Motoko Rich, NYT)
- The much anticipated US-NK summit could present a tough test for President Donald Trump on human rights, as anger simmers among families who want answers regarding relatives held in NK, some for decades. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- Trump has ordered the Pentagon to prepare options for drawing down US troops in SK, just weks before he holds a landmark summit with KJU. (Mark Landler, NYT)
- Trump on Fri. said the date and location have been set for a meeting with KJU, building suspense for the unprecedented talks and hinting at progress in freeing three Americans held in NK. (Steve Holland, Roberta Rampton, Reuters)
- President Trump said Fri. that a date and location for his upcoming summit with N.Korean leader KJU has been set and will be announced soon. (CNN)
- Trump said Fri. that the time and place have been set for his landmark meeting with KJU, but kept the world guessing for now about the when and where. (Zeke Miller and Matthew Pennington, AP)
- US President Donald Trump said Fri. a time and place have been determined for the planned meeting with N.Korean leader KJU. (VOA)
- Trump said Fri. that he will not offer to remove US troops from SK or reduce their presence there during his summit with KJU. But Trump left open the possibility of doing so in the future. (David Nakamura, WaPo)
- UN aviation agency directors will visit NK next week to discuss an earlier request by Pyongyang to open new air routes to SK, the organization said in a statement on Fri. (Allison Lampert, Reuters)
- The US and China are discussing a possible withdrawal of a US missile defense system from SK as part of a grand bargain over NK's nuclear program. (Na Jeong-ju, Yi Whan-woo, Korea Times)
- Trump has not asked the Pentagon for options to reduce US forces based in SK, US National Security Adviser John Bolton said in a statement on Fri. (Reuters)
- KJU appears to have dropped his demand for the withdrawal of US forces ahead of his summit with Trump.The SK government has stated clearly that the presence of US troops in the country was a matter for SK and US, not NK. While Trump said he was not planning to put troop numbers "on the table" during talks with NK, he stated that he would like to save the money in the future. (Adam Taylor, WaPo)

- Donald Trump's national security adviser has denied the US president has ordered the Pentagon to prepare options for reducing the number of US troops in SK. (Telegraph)
- A White House official denied a NYT report that US President Trump was considering reducing the size of the US military forces in Korea, according to the Blue House. (Joongang Daily)

Prepared by Dohyun Kim, James Park, Jinny Ahn, HRNK Research Interns

——————————————————

Saturday, May 5, 2018

Trump-Kim meeting: hope for millions or deceptive ploy by N.Korea's 'satanic' regime?; S. Korean presidential aide rejects talk of US troops reduction; Moon, Trump to hold summit in US on May 22

Top New:
Trump-Kim Jong Un Meeting: Hope for Millions or Deceptive Ploy by North Korea's 'Satanic' Regime? (Christian Post, 4/25/2018)

In North Korea:
Time stands still, freedom comes fast in North Korea, say Americans once held there (Reuters, 05/05/2018)

In South Korea:
(LEAD) S. Korean presidential aide rejects talk of U.S. troops reduction (Yonhap, 05/05/2018)
(2nd LD) Moon, Trump to hold summit in U.S. on May 22 (Yonhap, 05/05/2018)
Finance chief asks for int'l support for inter-Korean efforts to denuke (Yonhap, 05/05/2018)
Ministry launches task force to follow up on summit agreement (Yonhap, 05/04/2018)
S. Korea, U.S. to work closely for successful Trump-Kim talks: Seoul official (Yonhap, 05/05/2018)
South Korea faces dilemma over anti-North leaflets as ties thaw (Reuters, 05/05/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
Interview: 'Kim Jong Un is Thinking About How to Keep His Nuclear Assets' (RFA, 05/04/2018)
North and South Korean time zones get in sync (CNN, 05/04/2018)
Right on time: North Korea adjusts time zone to match South (WaPo, 05/05/2018)

International:

How China looks at the inter-Korean summit (Korea Times, 05/05/2018)
U.N. officials to visit N. Korea over air route to South: reports (Yonhap, 05/05/2018)
U.S., South Korea say no plans to change 'bilateral defense posture': White House (Reuters, 05/05/2018)
Trump says time, place set for planned US-North Korea summit (WaPo, 05/05/2018)

Top News:

- KJU is looking to win favorable negotiations and reduce sanctions on his regime, while doing nothing to improve the horrific human rights in the country. The Trump-Kim summit could be just another deceptive ploy by KJU of a truly "satanic" regime, said HRNK Board Member Suzanne Scholte (Stoyan Zaimov, Christian Post)

In North Korea:

- Freedom can come with remarkable swiftness for US citizens held prisoner by NK, an experience that may await three Americans currently detained by the reclusive nation. (Jon Herskovitz, Reuters)

In South Korea:

- SK's top national security adviser on Friday rejected talk of a possible downsizing of US troops on the Korean Peninsula. (Yonhap)
- Moon and Trump will hold talks in Washington later this month ahead of Trump's meeting with NK leader KJU. (Yonhap)
- SK's Finance Minister Kim Dong-yeon asked Asian and Pacific leaders on Saturday to lend support for the implementation of last week's Inter-Korean peace agreement. (Yonhap)
- SK's foreign ministry has launched a task force to carry out follow-up measures related to the recent cross-border summit agreement. (Yonhap)
- Seoul's top national security advisor said Saturday the leaders of SK and the US will have close consultations in upcoming bilateral talks for a successful Washington-Pyongyang summit. (Yonhap)
- ROK police prevented a planned release of balloons by a defector group after a confrontation with anti-leaflet protesters. Their campaign now poses a thorny dilemma for Seoul, which is striving to keep up the momentum for inter-Korean reconciliation. (Hyonhee Shin, Heekyong Yang, Reuters)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- Besides nuclear and missile facilities, there are many sensitive places that NK cannot open to the outside, like political prison camps. If NK accepts CVID, they would eventually have to expose their crimes against humanity, and would not be able to maintain its current system, said Thae Yong-ho, the former NK Deputy Ambassador to the UK. (RFA)

- At the stroke of midnight in Seoul on Saturday (11 a.m. ET Friday), NK adjusted its clocks 30 minutes forward to be in the same time zone as its southern neighbor. (Ray Sanchez, CNN)
- NK readjusted its time zone to match SK's on Saturday and described the change as an early step toward making the longtime rivals "become one" following a landmark summit. (AP)

International:

- Enhancing China's engagement as a supporter of the peace regime, not as the obstacle, is one of the critical missions Korea is facing. (Hwang Jae-ho, Korea Times)
- UN officials will visit North Korea next week to look into the country's request to open air routes to SK. (Yonhap)
- Trump's national security adviser John Bolton and his SK counterpart, Chung Eui-yong, reaffirmed on Friday that there were no plans to change the two countries' "bilateral defense posture" in SK. (Reuters)
- Trump is offering his latest teaser for a historic US summit with NK: The time and place have been set, but he's not saying when and where. (Matthew Pennington and Zeke Miller, AP)

Prepared by James Park, HRNK Research Intern

——————————————————

Sunday, May 6, 2018

Examining Human Rights In North Korea; North Korea says US ruining mood of detente ahead of summit; North Korea slams Japan for 'freeriding' on peace efforts

Top News:

Examining Human Rights In North Korea (NPR, 05/06/2018)

In North Korea:

A third of forest areas in North Korea has been destroyed (UPI, 05/06/2018)
North Korea says denuclearization pledge not result of U.S.-led sanctions (Reuters, 05/06/2018)
North Korea says Japan must adapt to join diplomatic fray (The Japan Times, 05/06/2018)
North Korea says US ruining mood of detente ahead of summit (Washington Post, 05/06/2018)
North Korea slams Japan for 'freeriding' on peace efforts (UPI, 05/06/2018)
North Korean foreign ministry blasts U.S. pressure claims (UPI, 05/06/2018)
US 'provocation' threatens peace, says North Korea (BBC, 05/06/2018)

In South Korea:

(LEAD) Seoul city to expand inter-Korean cooperation organization (Yonhap, 05/06/2018)
Police block anti-Pyongyang leaflet launch (Joongang Daily, 05/06/2018)
Seoul officials recommended Panmunjom as U.S.-North Korea summit venue (UPI, 05/06/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
Flag signed by joint Korean table tennis team headed to int'l ping pong museum (Yonhap, 05/06/2018)
Inter-Korean summit, 'clear victory' for the South (Korea Times, 05/06/2018)
South Korean convenience shop CU hopes to reopen in Kaesong (Korea Times, 05/06/2018)
Start with planting trees (Joongang Daily, 05/06/2018)
Unlike father, unlike son (Joongang Daily, 05/06/2018)

International:
[INTERVIEW] 'North Korea's complete denuclearization unlikely' (Korea Times, 05/06/2018)
Donald Trump and Theresa May 'looking forward to UK visit' (Guardian, 05/05/2018)
Giuliani says 'good chance' North Korea will release Americans in 'next several days' (CNN, 05/05/2018)
Giuliani says detainees in N.K. may be released over next several days (Yonhap, 05/06/2018)
Mao's grandson, rumored to be dead in N.K. accident, makes public appearance (Yonhap, 05/06/2018)
Moon-Trump meeting to facilitate US-NK summit (Korea Times, 05/06/2018)
Moon, Trump to discuss talks with North (Joongang Daily, 05/06/2018)
UK says foreign minister Johnson to meet U.S. VP Pence, discuss Iran, North Korea (Reuters, 05/05/2018)

Top News:

- HRNK Board member and former Special Envoy for North Korean Human Rights Ambassador Robert King joined NPR's Lulu Garcia Navarro on this edition of Weekly Edition Sunday on NPR to discuss the N.Korean human rights situation. King spoke about the balance between the human rights issue—the need to keep the N.Korean regime accountable for its actions—against the security issue—the strategic need to control nuclear weapons. He also commented on the Trump administration's approach to NK as well as NK's human rights issues. (Robert King, Lulu Garcia-Navarro, NPR)

In North Korea:

- A third of NK's woodlands have been destroyed due to fires and disasters, SK's unification ministry said Sun. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- NK said on Sun. its intention to denuclearize, unveiled at a historic inter-Korean summit, was not the result of US-led sanctions and pressure, warning the US not to mislead public opinion. (Haejin Choi, Hyonhee Shin, Reuters)

- Japan must change its tune and adopt a new approach toward NK if it really wants to join the diplomatic fray in affecting rapidly evolving developments on the Korean Peninsula, the Rodong Sinmun said in a commentary on Sun. (Kyodo)
- With just weeks to go before President Donald Trump and N.Korean leader KJU are expected to hold their first-ever summit, Pyongyang on Sun. criticized what it called "misleading" claims that Trump's policy of maximum political pressure and sanctions are what drove NK to the negotiating table. (Eric Talmadge, AP)
- N.Korean media has directed criticism at the Japanese government, while toning down disparaging remarks on SK and the US. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- NK's foreign ministry has warned Washington not to "mistake its peace-loving intentions for a sign of weakness," blasting claims that the US-led campaign of pressure and sanctions on NK paved the way for the upcoming summit between Trump and KJU. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- NK has warned the US about using "pressure and military threats" against it as the two countries prepare for a historic summit. A Foreign Ministry official said the US was deliberately provoking NK by suggesting sanctions will not be lifted until it gives up nuclear weapons. (BBC)

In South Korea:

- Seoul city government is expanding its organization involved in inter-Korean cooperation as cross-border ties are fast improving. (Yonhap)
- A local civic group led by a N.Korean defector attempted to send leaflets criticizing the KJU regime across the border last weekend but was blocked by police, after both Koreas agreed at their latest summit not to disseminate propaganda material into each other's country. (Lee Sung-eun, Han Young-hye, Joongang Daily)
- S.Korean officials have "strongly recommended" the inter-Korean border village of Panmunjom as the summit venue for US President Trump and N.Korean leader KJU, a Seoul lawmaker said Sun. (Jennie Oh, UPI)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- The Korean Unification Flag signed by members of the joint Korean women's table tennis team is headed to the international ping pong museum, a S.Korean official said Sun. (Yonhap)
- The historic inter-Korean summit carries huge significance as it has allowed SK to act as a go-between for the US and NK, according to Balbina Hwang, a former senior adviser to the US State Department, Sun. (Kim Jae-kyoung, Korea Times)
- In Feb. 2016, S.Korean convenience store chain CU was evicted from an inter-Korean industrial park in the border city of Gaesong in NK as bilateral tension increased and Pyongyang shut down the joint economic venture indefinitely. But as the inter-Korean summit on Apr. 27 at Panmunjeom took a dramatic positive turn and tension eased, the Gaesong Industrial Complex may reopen. If this happens, the 124 S.Korean companies that operated in the complex could, if they choose, get their businesses back—including CU, the only convenience store chain there. (Ko Dong-hwan, Korea Times)

- Economic cooperation is pivotal to upholding the agreements of the Apr. 27 inter-Korean summit. While inviting S.Korean President Moon to visit Pyongyang later this year, N.Korean leader KJU suggested that Moon fly to NK instead of using the roads because of poor "road conditions." His comment underscores how much modernization work NK requires. (Joongang Daily)
- President Moon and N.Korean leader KJU suddenly closed the gap of the "lost 11 years" at Panmunjom. But reading the transcript from the 2007 summit between former S.Korean President Roh Moo-hyun and N.Korean leader Kim Jong-il, I think there could be something more to Kim's break from tradition. (Kang Min-seok, Joongang Daily)

International:

- A US expert on NK's nuclear issue—former chief US negotiator during the 1994 N.Korean nuclear crisis Robert Gallucci—said it might be unrealistic to continue pushing for "a complete, verifiable and irreversible" denuclearization (CVID) of NK's nuclear programs, despite NK's commitment to denuclearization. (Lee Suh-yoon, Lee Min-hyung, Korea Times)
- Donald Trump and Theresa May have held talks by telephone on a range of international issues, the White House has said. A White House statement said that both leaders "reiterated they are looking forward to the president's visit to the United Kingdom in Jul." They also discussed Iran, where the UK is seeking to persuade Trump not to abandon the nuclear deal, and the situation in NK. (Guardian)
- Rudy Giuliani said Sat. that "there is a good chance" that three Americans detained in NK "will be released over the next several days" despite saying Thurs. that the release would take place that day. (Clare Foran, CNN)
- Rudy Giuliani said Sat. that three Americans detained in NK may be freed "over the next several days," revising his previous remark that the release may happen on Thurs. (Yonhap)
- Mao Xinyu, the only grandson of Mao Zedong, made a public appearance last week, silencing a rumor that he was among 32 Chinese tourists killed in a traffic accident in NK last month. (Yonhap)
- The meeting between President Moon and his US counterpart Donald Trump on May 22 is expected to play a mediating role for Trump's following summit with N.Korean leader KJU. (Kim Bo-eun, Korea Times)
- Moon will meet Trump at the White House on May 22 to discuss the upcoming NK-US summit, the Blue House said on Sat. The date and location of the high-stakes meeting between N.Korean leader KJU and Trump have yet to be announced. (Kang Jin-kyu, Joongang Daily)
- British Foreign Secretary Boris Johnson is traveling to the US on Sun. for a two-day visit, during which he will meet Vice President Mike Pence and national security adviser John Bolton, Britain said. The discussions in Washington will center on Iran, NK, Syria and other issues, according to Britain's foreign ministry, and come ahead of a visit to Britain by President Trump planned for Jul. 13. (Reuters)

Prepared by Jinny Ahn, HRNK Research Intern

Monday, May 7, 2018

'Kim Jong Un is Thinking About How to Keep His Nuclear Assets'; Symposium on Possible ways of international cooperation to urge North Korea to take concrete actions to improve the human rights situation in North Korea

Top News:
Interview: 'Kim Jong Un is Thinking About How to Keep His Nuclear Assets' (RFA, 05/04/2018)
Symposium on Possible ways of international cooperation to urge North Korea to take concrete actions to improve the human rights situation in North Korea, including in the abductions issue (UN Web TV, 05/03/2018)

In North Korea:
All eyes now on Punggye-ri site (Joongang Daily, 05/07/2018)
Meet North Korea's art dealer to the West (CNN, 05/06/2018)
North Korea security agent dismissed for drug trafficking (UPI, 05/07/2018)
North Korea steps up criticism of Japan (Yonhap, 05/07/2018)
Textbook shortage in North Korea underscores unequal policy (Daily NK, 05/07/2018)

In South Korea:
(LEAD) S. Korea's nuke envoy plans to visit U.S. this week: foreign ministry (Yonhap, 05/07/2018)
Moon's approval rating surges after inter-Korean summit (UPI, 05/07/2018)
South Koreans praise Trump for peace efforts (Korea Times, 05/07/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
Let's help North Korea become 'normal state' (Korea Times, 05/07/2018)
Moon and Kim may finally use their hotline (Joongang Daily, 05/07/2018)
North had plan if conservatives talked to Kim (Joongang Daily, 05/07/2018)
Projects with North excite South's regions (Joongang Daily, 05/07/2018)
South Korea gave Kim Jong Un a blueprint for developing North Korea — but it could be his downfall (Business Insider, 05/07/2018)
South Korean provinces near North Korea see surge of tourism (UPI, 05/07/2018)
South Koreans give Kim Jong-un star treatment (Korea Times, 05/07/2018)
Start with planting trees (Joongang Daily, 05/06/2018)
Unlike father, unlike son (Joongang Daily, 05/06/2018)
Unification flag headed to table tennis museum (Yonhap, 05/07/2018)
What happens when smiles fade? (Korea Times, 05/07/2018)

International:

Chinese city pins hope on North Korea trade (UPI, 05/07/2018)
Crucial month awaits Korean Peninsula (Korea Times, 05/07/2018)
How three leaders could win a Nobel Prize (Washington Post, 05/06/2018)
Iranians Say Uncertainty Over Nuclear Deal Is Bringing Fear (AP, 05/07/2018)
Is Trump Making Peace With North Korea? The Country Doesn't Seem Too Happy With Him Now (Elite Daily, 05/07/2018)
Is Trump playing North Korea over summit itinerary? (Korea Times, 05/07/2018)
Johnson: Trump could be in line for Nobel Peace Prize if he fixes North Korea and Iran (Sky News, 05/07/2018)
Make North Korea's Nuclear Test Pause Permanent (38 North, 05/07/2018)
North Korea criticizes Japan for 'free riding' on peace efforts (Korea Times, 05/07/2018)
North Korea to US: Don't Ruin Mood of Detente (VOA, 05/06/2018)
President Trump, don't fall for North Korea's trap (CNN, 05/06/2018)
Report: Hundreds of inspectors would have to verify North Korea denuclearization (UPI, 05/07/2018)
Reports: Singapore Likely Site of US-North Korea Summit (VOA, 05/07/2018)
Quotation of the Day: North Korea May Be Hard to Fully Trust (NYT, 05/06/2018)
Seoul, Tokyo differ on trilateral talks for Pyongyang denuclearization (UPI, 05/07/2018)
Singapore likely venue for Trump-Kim summit: sources (Korea Times, 05/07/2018)
Stephan Haggard on the Panmunjon Declaration (PIIE, 05/07/2018)
Top U.S. lawmaker voices doubt about N.K. denuclearization (Yonhap, 05/06/2018)
Verifying the End of a Nuclear North Korea 'Could Make Iran Look Easy' (NYT, 05/06/2018)

Top News:

- Thae Yong-ho, NK's former deputy ambassador to the UK, defected with his family to SKin 2016. Following last week's historic summit between N. Korean leader KJU and S. Korean President Moon Jae-in, Thae told RFA's Korean Service that he believes the North will never agree to end its weapons program through a "complete, verifiable and irreversible denuclearization" (CVID) process. Instead, he said, Pyongyang will likely seek a way to maintain its current nuclear status, while "denuclearizing the Korean peninsula," as the two sides agreed, according to its own definition. (Yong Jae Mok, RFA)
- On Thursday, May 3, 2018, HRNK Executive Director Greg Scarlatoiu attended "Human Rights Situation in the DPRK," which was hosted by the Governments of Australia, Japan, Republic of Korea, the United States and the European Union. The event featured Katsunobu Kato (Minister in Charge of the Abduction Issue of Japan), Robert Boynton (Director of the Literary Reportage concentration at New York University), Takuya Yokota (Representative of abductees' families of Japan), Koichiro Iizuka (Representative of abductees' families of Japan), Keiko Ikushima (Representative of families of missing Japanese probably related to North Korea), Seong-ho Ji (North Korean defector), Fred Warmbier and Cindy Warmbier (Parents of Otto Warmbier), Param-Preet Singh (Associate Director in International Justice, Human Rights Watch), Craig Mokhiber (Director, New York Office of the High Commissioner for Human Rights), Junya Nishino (Professor of Keio University), Jonathan Pollack (Senior fellow at the Brookings Institution), and Sung-Yoon Lee (Professor of The Fletcher School, Tufts University). (UN Web TV)

In North Korea:

- An inspection of North Korea's Punggye-ri nuclear test site will be the first test of Kim Jong-un's willingness to give up his nuclear weapons, experts say, but how far the mercurial leader will open up to international inspectors is anyone's guess. (Yoo Ji-hye, Jeong Yong-soo, Lee Seong-un, Joongang Daily)
- In a sleepy town in Tuscany, over 8,000 kilometers from Pyongyang, you can find one of the West's largest collections of North Korean art. (Hannah Ritchie, CNN)
- At least one N. Korea security agent who abetted drug production and circulation has been dismissed without a sentence of imprisonment or fines, a move that is angering ordinary people. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- NK ratcheted up its criticism of Japan for advocating "maximum pressure" on the communist country ahead of a planned summit between its leader KJU and Trump. (Yonhap)
- Frustration is rising among students and parents who have still not received their textbooks one month after the start of the spring semester. (Kim Yoo-jin, Daily NK)

In South Korea:

- SK's top nuclear envoy plans to visit the US this week to talk about inter-Korean summit agreements and other related issues. (Yonhap)
- South Korean President Moon Jae-in's public approval rate has surged after his summit with North Korean leader Kim Jong Un last month. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- After the Trump administration's tough strategies involving "maximum pressure" brought KJU to the negotiating table, many S. Koreans' views about him — and Obama — have changed dramatically. (Jung Min-ho, Korea Times)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- The historic inter-Korean summit has created a silver lining for the nuclear standoff on the Korean Peninsula. (Kim Jae-kyoung, Korea Times)
- President Moon and KJU will speak on a new hotline once the date for the Kim-Donald Trump summit is set, the Blue House said Monday. (Wie Moon-hee, Esther Chung, Joongang Daily)
- N. Korean officials were dismayed that no conservative lawmakers from the S. Korean parliament attended the post-summit dinner banquet in April, a senior official in the ruling party exclusively said. (Kim Hyoung-gu, Joongang Daily)
- Regional governments across the country are gearing up to resume inter-Korean cooperation projects after the two Koreas agreed to boost exchanges, visits and contacts "at all levels" in their latest summit. (Jeon Ik-jin, Hwang Sun-yoon, Kim Bang-hyun, Kim Yoon-ho, Kim Ho, Joongang Daily)

- KJU received a USB drive with a blueprint for connecting his country to the world when he met President Moon — and while the device was likely meant as a sign of goodwill, it could bring Kim's downfall. (Alex Lockie, Business Insider)
- Following the two Koreas' Apr. 27 Panmunjom Declaration on seeking denuclearization and peace on the Korean Peninsula, travel agencies in the South are seeing growing interest in tours to the DMZ. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- Few would blame KJU, if he (tries to) jump for joy. This is not because he might win a Nobel Peace Prize but because he is very popular among an overwhelming number of S. Koreans, yes, the people of his "enemy state," which the North has vowed to unify on its terms. (Oh Young-jin, Korea Times)
- Economic cooperation is pivotal to upholding the agreements of the April 27 inter-Korean summit. While inviting President Moon to visit Pyongyang later this year, KJU suggested that Moon fly to the North instead of using the roads because of poor "road conditions." (Joongang Daily)
- President Moon and KJU suddenly closed the gap of the "lost 11 years" at Panmunjom. Reading the transcript from the 2007 summit between former President Roh and N. Korean leader Kim Jong-il, I think there could be something more to Kim's break from tradition. (kang Min-seok, Joongang Daily)
- The unification flag signed by members of the joint Korean women's table tennis team is headed to a museum. (Yonhap)
- The two immediate questions are whether Kim can be trusted, and whether Trump can live up to his responsibilities when he meets the N. Korean dictator. (Kevin Rafferty, Korea Times)

International:

- Businesses in Dandong are anticipating improvements in the Chinese border city as NK pledges economic reform and cooperation with its largest trading partner. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- A series of arranged meetings scheduled for this month will determine the fate of the Korean Peninsula, with leaders from the two Koreas, China, Japan and the US set to discuss details of Pyongyang's pledge for denuclearization. (Lee Min-hyung, Korea Times)
- President Trump, KJU, and President Moon would all be considered for the Nobel Prize by agreeing to just one joint operation. (Washington Post)
- One way the US could be harmed is in NK, said Alireza Yarmohammadi. KJU may never take Trump seriously ahead of promised talks between the two leaders. (AP)
- Ahead of planned peace talks between the US and NK in a few weeks, it appears that there is still some friction between the nations' leaders. (Nick Ciccone, Elite Daily)
- Trump takes pride in his ability to keep the other party guessing before negotiating a better deal. (Oh Young-jin, Korea Times)
- SK's President has reportedly suggested Trump should win the honour for his efforts to unify Korea. When asked if he agreed with such a view, the Foreign Secretary said: "If he can fix North Korea, and he can fix the Iran nuclear deal, then I don't see why he's any less of a candidate for the Nobel Peace Prize than Barack Obama, who got it before he even did anything." (Sky News)

- KJU announced on April 20 to the Korean Workers' Party that North Korea no longer needs to conduct nuclear tests and stated his intent to close the nuclear test site at Punggye-ri. (Jon Wolfsthal, 38 North)
- NK's newspaper slammed the Japanese government Sunday for "trying to free ride on the wind of peace" without playing its part. (Jung Min-ho, Korea Times)
- The anticipated summit between Trump and KJU will likely take place next month in Singapore. (VOA)
- While we work to finalize the substantive conditions for your meeting with KJU, there are a lot of North Korean balls in the air. (Samantha Vinograd, CNN)
- Experts say the denuclearization of NK is likely to be the "most extensive inspection campaign in the history of nuclear disarmament." (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- NK has warned the US not to misread its overtures of peace as a sign of weakness, as Trump and KJU prepare to hold their first-ever summit. (VOA)
- "This isn't 'Trust, but verify.' It's 'Distrust everything and verify, verify, verify.'" Ernest J. Moniz, a secretary of energy in the Obama administration, who helped negotiate the Iran nuclear deal in 2015, describing the difficulty of enforcing a similar accord with NK. (NYT)
- Tokyo and Seoul have conflicting stances on whether three-way talks with China this week should include the term "complete, verifiable, irreversible dismantlement" of NK's nuclear program. (Jennie Oh, UPI)
- Singapore has emerged as the most likely venue for the planned summit between Trump and KJU, according to multiple diplomatic sources. (Yi Whan-woo, Korea Times)
- Pessimism about the Trump-Kim summit abounds; Mark Landler's analysis at the New York Times is typical (link is external). But if this problem were easy it would have been solved long ago. (Stephan Haggard, PIIE)
- A top Republican congressman on Sunday voiced skepticism that NK will abandon its nuclear weapons program despite its stated willingness to do so. (Yonhap)
- As he weighs opening nuclear disarmament negotiations with NK, President Trump faces a regime that for decades has hidden key elements of its nuclear programs from international monitors and has banned inspectors from the country. (David E. Sanger, William J. Broad, NYT)

Prepared by Huiwon Yun, HRNK Legal Research Intern

Tuesday, May 8, 2018

Kim Jong-un holds second meeting with Xi Jinping in China; Hyundai group launches task force for inter-Korean business projects; N.Korea proposes new air route through peninsula

In North Korea:
Greenhouse businesses sprout up in North Korea's former coal country (DailyNK, 05/08/2018)
'Kim Jong-un willing to hold dialogue with Japan' (Korea Times, 05/08/2018)
Kim should ally with the U.S. (Joongang Daily, 05/08/2018)
N. Korea committed to implementing inter-Korean summit agreements: Christian groups (Yonhap, 05/08/2018)
N. Korea slams Japan for supporting sanctions amid thaw on peninsula (Yonhap, 05/08/2018)
North Korea proposes new air route through peninsula (Telegraph, 05/08/2018)
North Korea wants international flights in its airspace (UPI, 05/08/2018)

In South Korea:
(LEAD) S. Korean table tennis teams return home with world bronze medals (Yonhap, 05/08/2018)
Hyundai Group is getting ready to do business in North Korea again (CNN, 05/08/2018)
Hyundai Group launches task force for inter-Korean business projects (Yonhap, 05/08/2018)
Hyundai Group plans cooperation with North (Joongang Daily, 05/08/2018)
Hyundai sets up for inter-Korean taskforce (Korea Times, 05/08/2018)
Lawmakers call for Pyongyang's participation in national sporting event (Korea Times, 05/08/2018)
Moon advises Tokyo to engage Pyongyang (Joongang Daily, 05/08/2018)
Moon calls for improved ties between Japan, N. Korea (Yonhap, 05/08/2018)
Positive image of N. Korean leader surges among S. Korean students: poll (Yonhap, 05/08/2018)
Regional governments reach out to North Korea for ties (Korea Times, 05/08/2018)
Seoul, Beijing resume military talks (Korea Times, 05/08/2018)
Seoul's Red Cross chief vows close cooperation with N.K. on reunions of separated families (Yonhap, 05/08/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
A need to mediate (Joongang Daily, 05/08/2018)
Kim's alarming trip (Joongang Daily, 05/08/2018)
Thae Yong Ho shares insights on inter-Korean summit (DailyNK, 05/08/2018)
Two Koreas communicate under unified standard time zone (Yonhap, 05/08/2018)
Unified Korea could be competitive at Asiad ping pong: S. Korean players (Yonhap, 05/08/2018)

International:
(4th LD) N. Korea's Kim, China's Xi hold 2nd summit ahead of Trump summit (Yonhap, 05/08/2018)
Center for North Korean refugees opens in UK (Korea Times, 05/08/2018)
Ex-U.S. envoy cautions against signing peace treaty with N. Korea before denuclearization (Yonhap, 05/08/2018)
Kim Jong Un holds second meeting with Xi Jinping in China (CNN, 05/08/2018)
Kim Jong-un meets Xi Jinping in second surprise visit to China (Guardian, 05/08/2018)

Kim Jong-un meets with Xi Jinping in eastern China (Joongang Daily, 05/08/2018)
Kim Jong-un, Xi Jinping met in China on May 7-8 (Korea Times, 05/08/2018)
North Korea: Kim Jong Un 'reunites' with Xi for second summit (UPI, 05/08/2018)
North Korea's Kim wants to talk to Trump about mutual nuclear issues, says Chinese media (WaPo, 05/08/2018)
North Korean leader Kim visits China, meets President Xi (Reuters, 05/08/2018)
Singapore likely venue for Trump-Kim summit: sources (Korea Times, 05/08/2018)
The Latest: Kim says he's committed to denuclearization (WaPo, 05/08/2018)
The mystery of Trump's fake Nobel Peace Prize nomination (WaPo, 05/08/2018)
The Specter of Katsura-Taft 2.0: Is a US-China Deal Far-Fetched? (38 North, 05/08/2018)
Trump, Chinese president discuss Xi's meeting with Kim (WaPo, 05/08/2018)
Trump looks forward to meeting Kim: White House (Yonhap, 05/08/2018)
US stands tall as Asia's most powerful country despite rising China (CNN, 05/08/2018)
WFP chief to visit N. Korea to discuss food security (Yonhap, 05/08/2018)
Xi Jinping and Kim Jong-un in second meeting in China (Telegraph, 05/08/2018

In North Korea:

- Businesses in NK's coal-producing region have built greenhouses where vegetables are grown, packaged, and shipped all over the country. (Moon Dong Hui, DailyNK)
- NK leader KJU expressed his willingness to have a dialogue with Japan to resolve decades-long bones of contention between the two nations, SK President Moon said in an interview with Japanese local media. (Lee Min-hyung, Korea Times)
- A trilateral alliance that benefits Seoul, Washington and Pyongyang would make Beijing and Tokyo feel left out. They can be handled by the existing North-China alliance and US-Japan alliance. (Joongang Daily)
- Christian leaders who recently visited NK said Tuesday that a high-level Pyongyang official affirmed the country's commitment to implementing the set of inter-Korean agreements signed between the leaders of the countries last month. (Yonhap)
- NK lambasted Japan on Tuesday for supporting sanctions and pressure against its regime, ratcheting up its criticism of Tokyo amid expectations that the two countries could discuss normalizing diplomatic ties. (Yonhap)
- SK said on Tuesday that NK had proposed a new air route through the two countries, as relations between the neighbors thaw after a breakthrough meeting of their leaders last month. (Telegraph)
- SK confirmed NK is looking to open an international flight route so planes bound for Incheon, the SK city home to the country's flagship airport, can fly over NK territory. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)

In South Korea:

- SK men's and women's table tennis teams returned home on Tuesday after picking up bronze medals at the world championships in Sweden. (Yonhap)

- One of the biggest names in SK business is getting ready to take advantage of the country's improving relations with NK, as Hyundai Group announced that it's setting up a task force to prepare for the potential restarting of economic projects in NK. (Daniel Shane, CNN)
- Hyundai Group said Tuesday it has launched a task force to prepare for the possible resumption of its business projects in NK as the two Koreas move to implement a set of agreements signed during their leaders' historic summit last month. (Yonhap)
- Hyundai Group said Tuesday that it formed a task force focused on preparing for economic projects with NK after the success of the inter-Korean summit last month. (Kim Jee-hee, Joongang Daily)
- Amid rapid improvements on inter-Korean relations, Hyundai Group said Tuesday it has formed a taskforce to prepare for the possible resumption of business operation in NK. (Baek Byung-yeul, Korea Times)
- Dozens of lawmakers have called on the government to invite NK athletes to the National Sports Festival in October. (Kim Rahn, Korea Times)
- Moon encouraged resumption of dialogue between Pyongyang and Tokyo, adding that KJU had expressed his willingness to do so. (Sarah Kim, Joongang Daily)
- Moon vowed efforts to help Japan improve its ties with NK, calling it a key to denuclearizing the North and enhancing peace and stability in the countries' shared region. (Yonhap)
- The number of SK college students with favorable perceptions of NK leader KJU has surged about 10-fold following the historic inter-Korean summit talks in April, a poll released on Tuesday showed. (Yonhap)
- SK regional governments are seeking to re-establish ties with NK amid the reconciliatory mood following the historic inter-Korean summit. (Kang Seung-woo, Lee Suh-yoon, Korea Times)
- SK and China resumed Monday a defense policy dialogue, discussing their positions about the recent inter-Korean summit. This came more than two years after both countries held their last working-level defense policy talk in January 2016. (Lee Min-hyung, Korea Times)
- The head of SK's Red Cross said Tuesday he is ready to closely cooperate with his NK counterpart on humanitarian issues, including the reunion of families separated by the 1950-53 Korean War. (Yonhap)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- Seoul must employ its best diplomacy to mediate between Pyongyang and Washington so that the momentum is not wasted. (Joongang Daily)
- KJU's second trip to China could be a demonstration of solidarity with Beijing or to double-check the solidity of Pyongyang's "insurance policy" with Beijing in case the US-NK summit is canceled or postponed. (Joongang Daily)
- Leaders around the world are talking about denuclearization of NK, but in truth they are all happy to trade actually accomplishing that goal for at least the current peace – a mutual freeze to maintain the peace and ensure that NK does not carry out any more provocations. said Thae Yong-ho, NK's former deputy ambassador to the UK. (Ha Yoon Ah, DailyNK)

- Two Koreas communicated on Tuesday under their unified time zone for the first time in nearly three years. (Yonhap)
- SK table tennis players said Tuesday they believe a unified team with N.Koreans could make some noise at this year's Asian Games. (Yonhap)

International:

- KJU and Xi Jinping held their second summit in about 40 days, with KJU voicing his commitment to denuclearization, state media said Tuesday, ahead of an anticipated summit between KJU and Trump. (Yonhap)
- A community center helping NK refugees has opened in the UK. It is known to be the first support organization dedicated to NK escapees outside of SK. (Park Ji-won, Korea Times)
- A former top U.S. diplomat for NK policy cautioned Monday against signing a peace treaty with NK before it completely dismantles its nuclear weapons program. (Yonhap)
- KJU has paid a second visit to China in two months, meeting with Xi Jinping ahead of highly anticipated talks with Trump. (Steven Jiang, Ben Westcott and Sol Han, CNN)
- KJU has made a second surprise visit to China to meet Xi Jinping, amid a flurry of diplomacy as he prepares for a summit with Trump. (Benjamin Haas, Guardian)
- KJU met with Xi Jinping of China on a two-day visit to Dalian, China to coordinate for the upcoming US-NK summit. (Kang Jin-kyu, Joongang Daily)
- KJU and Xi Jinping held their second meeting in China's northern port city of Dalian, as KJU is seeking China's backing ahead of his summit with Trump. (Kim Bo-eun, Korea Times)
- KJU met with Xi Jinping for the second time in the northeastern Chinese city of Dalian, a surprise move that comes ahead of the planned US-NK summit. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- KJU wants to talk to Trump about “phased and synchronous measures” to deal with the standoff over the North’s nuclear program, Chinese state media reported Tuesday after KJU made his second visit to China this year. (Anna Fifield and Simon Denyer, WaPo)
- NK leader KJU visited China and met President Xi Jinping, their second encounter in two months in a flurry of diplomatic engagement that has eased tensions on the Korean peninsula. (Michael Martina, Heekyong Yang, Reuters)
- Singapore has emerged as the most likely venue for the planned summit between US President Trump and NK leader KJU, according to multiple sources. (Yi Whan-woo, Korea Times)
- Chinese state media have quoted KJU as telling Xi Jinping that his country remains committed to denuclearization and has no need to possess nuclear weapons if a “relevant party” drops its “hostile policy and security threats” against it, in a clear reference to the US. (AP)
- While some have suggested that Trump should win the Nobel Peace Prize for his push for talks with KJU, Trump will not win in 2018 as submissions for the prize had to be sent in by Jan. 31, some time before a potential summit with KJU had been announced. (Adam Taylor, WaPo)

- China's interest in Taiwan and US interests in Korea are undisputed. What is less apparent is if and why the US could be willing to give up Taiwan, and why China could be ready to give up Korea. (Ruediger Frank, 38 North)
- Trump and Xi Jinping on Tuesday discussed Xi's meetings with KJU. Xi and KJU met Monday and Tuesday in China. It was the second meeting between the Asian leaders and followed Kim's visit to Beijing in March. (Darlene Superville, AP)
- Trump is looking forward to meeting with KJU, and an announcement on the date and location could come soon, the White House said Monday. (Yonhap)
- The US is still the most powerful nation in the Asia region in spite of a rising challenge from China, a new ranking by an Australian think tank has found. (Ben Westcott, CNN)
- The World Food Programme (WFP) said Tuesday that its chief will make an official visit to NK this week for discussions on strengthening food security in the North. (Yonhap)
- KJU has made a surprise visit to China, meeting Xi Jinping ahead of an expected summit between the NK leader and US president Trump. (Neil Connor, Telegraph)

Prepared by James Park, HRNK Research Intern

——————————————————

Wednesday, May 9, 2018

U.S. Seeks Detainees' Release as "Sign of Goodwill"; HRNK PRESS RELEASE: HRNK WELCOMES THE RELEASE OF 3 AMERICAN DETAINEES; SK working for release of its citizens held in NK.

Top News:

U.S. Seeks Detainees' Release as "Sign of Goodwill" (CNN, 05/03/2018)
HRNK PRESS RELEASE: HRNK WELCOMES THE RELEASE OF 3 AMERICAN DETAINEES (HRNK, 05/09/2018)

In North Korea:

(2nd LD) N. Korea to release 3 U.S. captives: Cheong Wa Dae official (Yonhap, 05/09/2018)
Corporate autonomy expands under Kim Jong Un's strategy (Daily NK, 05/09/2018)
Kim breaks with his flight-phobic father, travels by plane (WaPo, 05/09/2018)
Kim completes 2nd China trip (Joongang Daily, 05/09/2018)
N. Korea cautions U.S. not to hurt dialogue atmosphere (Yonhap, 05/09/2018)
N. Korea needs to decentralize financial system: report (Yonhap, 05/09/2018)
N. Korea repeats criticism of Japan ahead of expected summit with U.S. (Yonhap, 05/09/2018)
North Korea Experiments in Real Estate Speculation (RFA, 05/08/2018)
North Korea frees 3 American prisoners ahead of a planned Trump-Kim summit (WaPo, 05/09/2018)
North Korea releases three US citizens in run-up to Trump summit (Guardian, 05/09/2018)

North Korea frees three US detainees ahead of Trump summit (BBC, 05/09/2018)
North Korea releases detained Americans ahead of planned Trump-Kim summit (Reuters, 05/08/2018)
North Korea's Kim 'very pleased' relationship with China at a high point: media (Reuters, 05/08/2018)
North Korea's real estate price polarization deeper than in the South (Daily NK, 05/09/2018)
North Korean authorities form new group to block foreign influence (Daily NK, 05/09/2018)

In South Korea:
(2nd LD) Moon urges joint efforts of Japan, China to denuclearize N. Korea (Yonhap, 05/09/2018)
Expert sees existing N.K. nuclear bombs as hurdle in talks with U.S. (Yonhap, 05/09/2018)
S. Korea's nuclear envoy to visit D.C. for talks on N. Korea (Yonhap, 05/09/2018)
S. Korea working for release of its citizens held in N.K. (Yonhap, 05/09/2018)
Seoul hails N. Korea's release of Americans, calls for release of own (Yonhap, 05/09/2018)
South Korea says release of U.S. prisoners 'positive' for upcoming Trump-Kim summit (Reuters, 05/09/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
(Yonhap Feature) After summit, simple cold noodles from Pyongyang warm S. Koreans toward North (Yonhap, 05/09/2018)

International:
(LEAD) Moon, Abe call for joint efforts to denuke N. Korea, improve bilateral ties (Yonhap, 05/09/2018)
(LEAD) Moon, Li voice need for adequate reward for N. Korea following denuclearization (Yonhap, 05/09/2018)
(LEAD) Pompeo arrives in N.K. to discuss details on summit (Yonhap, 05/09/2018)
(2nd LD) S. Korea, Japan, China vow joint efforts to denuclearize N. Korea (Yonhap, 05/09/2018)
(LEAD) S. Korean president arrives in Japan for three-way summit with Abe, Li (Yonhap, 05/09/2018)
(LEAD) U.S. committed to cooperating with N.K. to achieve peace on peninsula: Pompeo (Yonhap, 05/09/2018)
'Everyone thinks so, but I would never say it': Trump weighs in on whether he's deserving of a Nobel Peace Prize (WaPo, 05/09/2018)
3 Americans are on the way home from North Korean prison. Here are their stories. (WaPo, 05/09/2018)
A defector's letter to Kim Jong-un (Joongang Daily, 05/09/2018)
A look at the 3 Americans released by North Korea (WaPo, 05/09/2018)
American detainees in North Korea are not political pawns (CNN, 05/08/2018)
An open North Korea (Joongang Daily, 05/09/2018)
China, Japan, South Korea agree on 'complete denuclearization' (UPI, 05/09/2018)
China, Japan and South Korea highlight unity amid North Korea moves (Reuters, 05/08/2018)
China Steps Up Diplomatic Efforts as Trump-Kim Meeting Nears (VOA, 05/09/2018)
China wants it both ways on North Korea. Here's why it can't (CNN, 05/09/2018)
Detainees freed in North Korea, returning to US with Pompeo (WaPo, 05/09/2018)

Iran Deal Exit Complicates But Shouldn't Derail Korea Talks (VOA, 05/09/2018)
Iran pullout a message to North Korea (AFP, 05/09/2018)
Japan, China, South Korea agree to cooperate on North Korea (WaPo, 05/09/2018)
Japan says to normalize North Korea ties if nuclear, abduction issues are solved (Reuters, 05/08/2018)
Kim-Xi summit proposed by N. Korea: Beijing (Yonhap, 05/09/2018)
Kim-Xi summit sends signal to Trump about China's key role (WaPo, 05/09/2018)
Mike Pompeo calls North Korean leader 'Chairman Un' in diplomatic faux pas ahead of Pyongyang visit (Telegraph, 05/09/2018)
Mike Pompeo expected 'to return from North Korea with American detainees and details of Trump-Kim summit' (Telegraph, 05/09/2018)
Mike Pompeo's 'PVID' statement not at issue, South Korea says (UPI, 05/08/2018)
Moon, Li, Abe affirm Panmunjom Declaration (Joongang Daily, 05/09/2018)
North Korea-US talks: Who are North Korea's American detainees? (BBC, 05/09/2018)
North Korea Releases 3 American Prisoners, Trump Says (NYT, 05/09/2018)
Pompeo, on way to Pyongyang, says has no commitment on U.S. prisoner release (Reuters, 05/08/2018)
Pompeo arrives in North Korea; Trump cites hope for detainees (Reuters, 05/08/2018)
Pompeo arrives in North Korea as anticipation builds over Trump's summit with Kim Jong Un (WaPo, 05/08/2018)
Pompeo en route to NKorea to finalize Trump-Kim summit (WaPo, 05/08/2018)
Pompeo flies to Pyongyang for the second time (Joongang Daily, 05/09/2018)
Pompeo heads to N.K. to establish 'framework' for summit (Yonhap, 05/09/2018)
Pompeo in NKorea to finalize summit, seek Americans' release (WaPo, 05/09/2018)
Pompeo in North Korea ahead of Trump-Kim talks (BBC, 05/09/2018)
Pompeo makes second visit to North Korea to finalise summit details (Guardian, 05/09/2018)
Pompeo returning from North Korea with three U.S. detainees: Trump (Reuters, 05/09/2018)
Pompeo visits North Korea again ahead of Trump-Kim summit (CNN, 05/08/2018)
Secretary of State Pompeo visits Pyongyang, could leave with detained Americans (Joongang Daily, 05/09/2018)
Seoul, Tokyo, Beijing agree on joint efforts for NK denuclearization (Korea Times, 05/09/2018)
South Korea, China agree North Korea should be given aid if it denuclearizes: South Korea (Reuters, 05/09/2018)
The Latest: Trump rules out DMZ as summit site (WaPo, 05/09/2018)
The Lawfare Podcast: Mira Rapp-Hooper and Steph Haggard Preview the North Korea Summit (Lawfare, 05/07/2018)
These are the three Americans released by North Korea (CNN, 05/09/2018)
Three Americans freed by North Korea ahead of Trump-Kim summit (Reuters, 05/08/2018)
Three US detainees freed in North Korea during Mike Pompeo visit (Telegraph, 05/09/2018)
Timeline of recent events in US-North Korea relations (WaPo, 05/08/2018)
Trump: 3 Americans Detained in N. Korea Released, Heading Home (VOA, 05/09/2018)
Trump: American prisoners in North Korea headed home with Pompeo (UPI, 05/09/2018)
Trump, Xi Agree North Korea Sanctions Should Remain in Place for Now (VOA, 05/09/2018)
Trump, Xi agree sanctions should continue on North Korea: White House (Reuters, 05/08/2018)

Trump says 3 Americans held in North Korea have been released (CNN, 05/09/2018)
Trump says China has been very helpful on North Korea (Reuters, 05/09/2018)
Trump says top U.S. diplomat en route to North Korea, date set for summit (Reuters, 05/08/2018)
Trump Says U.S.-North Korea Summit Will Not Be at Demilitarized Zone (NYT, 05/09/2018)
Trump wants 'real deal' with N. Korea: Bolton (Yonhap, 05/09/2018)
Trump's Iran decision raises the stakes on North Korea (CNN, 05/09/2018)
Trump's Iran decision won't stop North Korea talks, but it might raise the price (WaPo, 05/09/2018)
U.S. expects China to push N. Korea to denuclearization (Yonhap, 05/09/2018)
U.S. says it is committed to working with North Korea to achieve peace (Reuters, 05/09/2018)
U.S. troops in South Korea not 'on the table' in initial North Korea talks (Reuters, 05/09/2018)
US Troops in Korea: From History's Vantage Point (38 North, 05/08/2018)
Who Are the Americans Freed By N. Korea? (VOA, 05/09/2018)
Who are the three US citizens freed by North Korea? (Guardian, 05/09/2018

Top News:

- In an interview for CNN's "The Situation Room," HRNK Executive Director Greg Scarlatoiu discussed forced confession given by an American detained in North Korea, Kim Dong Chul, in a 2016 interview with CNN. Scarlatoiu asserted that Kim's confession was definitely forced, remarking that such forced confessions have been made by all American detained in North Korea. Scarlatoiu also commented on the conditions that these detainees face in the North Korean labor camps, which include extreme psychological pressure and physical torture. (Greg Scarlatoiu, Brian Todd, CNN)
- The Committee for Human Rights in North Korea (HRNK) welcomes the release by the DPRK of American detainees Kim Dong-chul, Kim (Tony) Sang-duk, and Kim Hak-song. But it is very important to remember that the release of foreign and South Korean abductees and the complete, verifiable, irreversible dismantlement of the North Korean political prison camps are an absolute priority if the DPRK wants to become a responsible member of the international community. (HRNK)

In North Korea:

- NK is soon expected to release three US citizens held in the communist state, an official from Seoul's presidential office Cheong Wa Dae said Wed., in an apparent goodwill gesture ahead of a historic meeting between its leader KJU and US President Donald Trump. (Yonhap)
- N.Korean politics has changed in numerous ways under ruler KJU. His father, Kim Jong Il oversaw the military first (songun) era. In contrast, KJU's rule has been defined by nationalism. Kim has sought to use business strategies to inject rationality into governance and increase effectiveness. (Na Jong Won, Daily NK)
- Unlike his dictator father, who famously shunned air travel, N.Korean leader KJU jetted off to the northeastern Chinese city of Dalian this week, becoming the first N.Korean ruler to fly abroad in 32 years. (Hyung-Jin Kim, AP)

- N.Korean media confirmed KJU's second visit to China in less than two months this week to hold talks with Chinese President Xi Jinping, reporting on Tues. night that the Pyongyang leader mentioned ways to "more actively and closely boost the tactical cooperation" between the two countries amid a whirlwind of diplomacy on the Korean Peninsula. (Lee Sung-eun, Jeong Yong-soo, Joongang Daily)
- NK on Wed. called on the US to show sincerity and restrain from words and acts that could ruin the atmosphere for dialogue ahead of an unprecedented summit between the two countries. (Yonhap)
- NK needs to carry out financial decentralization in order to establish a financial system that would help its burgeoning market system work properly, a report said Wed. (Yonhap)
- NK's media has been pouring out criticism against Japan for advocating continued sanctions against Pyongyang ahead of its expected summit with the US. (Yonhap)
- In a new venture in capitalist economics, N.Korean authorities have begun offering high-rise apartments for sale to Chinese and N.Korean investors with the option for new owners to sell them again at a higher price, N.Korean sources say. (Joonho Kim, Leejin Jun, Richard Finney, RFA)
- Three American men who had been imprisoned by NK are on their way to the US, President Trump announced Wed. after they were released to Secretary of State Mike Pompeo during his visit to Pyongyang. (Carol Morello, Anna Fifield, David Nakamura, WaPo)
- NK has released three US citizens ahead of a meeting between KJU and Donald Trump. The US president said he would travel to Andrews air force base just outside Washington to meet them. (Benjamin Haas, Guardian)
- NK has freed three US citizens from prison, according to a tweet from US President Donald Trump. It is viewed as a goodwill gesture ahead of a historic summit between Mr. Trump and NK's KJU. (BBC)
- NK released three American detainees and handed them over to US Secretary of State Mike Pompeo on Wed., clearing a major obstacle to an unprecedented summit between President Donald Trump and N.Korean leader KJU. (Makini Brice, Susan Heavey, Reuters)
- N.Korean leader KJU said he was very pleased his country's relationship with China had reached a high point, N.Korean state media said on Tues., confirming his meeting with Chinese President Xi Jinping. (Reuters)
- In theory, socialism is based on equality for all of its members in the spheres of politics, the economy, and culture. NK claims that its highest goal is for its people to enjoy happy lives and that "the Party and the people are working together to decide their fates." However, an objective assessment of NK's realities shows that the standard of living for NK's elite and the regular people are completely different from state propaganda. (Jo Hyun, Daily NK)
- After the Apr. 27 Moon-Kim Summit, an inspection unit has been formed by the N.Korean authorities with the pretext of blocking "capitalist phenomenon", tasked with conducting wide scale crackdowns. (Ha Yoon Ah, Daily NK)

In South Korea:

- S.Korean President Moon called for the active support of Japan and China in ridding NK of its nuclear ambitions Wed., calling it an essential element to ensure peace and security on the Korean Peninsula, as well as in the Northeast Asia region. (Yonhap)
- NK's stockpile of around 20 nuclear bombs will be the key hurdle in its ongoing denuclearization negotiations with the US, a S.Korean expert argued on Wed. (Yonhap)
- SK's top nuclear envoy headed to the US on Wed. for consultations on NK ahead of back-to-back summit talks among the countries that will likely redefine regional security conditions. (Yonhap)
- SK will continue to make active efforts to secure the release of six S.Koreans detained in NK, the unification ministry said Wed, amid reports that the release of US citizens held in the communist country is imminent. (Yonhap)
- SK welcomed the release of three American citizens held by NK on Wed., calling for the release of six of its own held captives in the communist state. (Yonhap)
- SK's presidential Blue House welcomed the release of American prisoners from NK on Wed., saying the move would have a "positive effect" for upcoming talks between NK's leader KJU and US President Donald Trump. (Reuters)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- With the so-called noodle diplomacy, major Pyongyang naengmyeon restaurants across SK were inundated with waves of S.Koreans wanting to experience the N.Korean delicacy at the date of the summit. Nearly two weeks after the summit, the popularity is still growing. (Yonhap)

International:

- S.Korean President Moon and Japanese Prime Minister Shinzo Abe stressed the importance of cooperation between their countries in ridding NK of its nuclear weapons. (Yonhap)
- S.Korean President Moon and Chinese Premier Li Keqiang agreed Wed. to continue working together to peacefully denuclearize NK, while stressing the need for the international community to offer the impoverished North adequate rewards in return. (Yonhap)
- US Secretary of State Mike Pompeo arrived in NK on Wed. to discuss details of the upcoming summit between the two countries, the Associated Press reported. (Yonhap)
- The leaders of SK, Japan and China reaffirmed their joint efforts to peacefully rid NK of its nuclear ambitions in a three-way summit in Tokyo on Wed. (Yonhap)
- S.Korean President Moon arrived in Tokyo on Wed. for a summit with Japanese Prime Minister Shinzo Abe and Chinese Prime Minister Li Keqiang that is widely expected to focus on the countries' joint efforts to rid NK of its nuclear ambitions. (Yonhap)
- US Secretary of State Mike Pompeo said Wed. that Washington is committed to cooperating with NK to achieve peace on the Korean Peninsula, according to news reports. (Yonhap)
- President Trump said Wed. that "everyone" thinks he deserves a Nobel Peace Prize for his efforts to rid NK of nuclear weapons—but added that it's not something he would say out loud. (John Wagner, WaPo)

- President Trump announced on Wed. morning that Kim Hak-song, Kim Sang-duk and Kim Dong-chul were en route to the US, released as a goodwill gesture ahead of the proposed summit between Trump and N.Korean leader KJU. (Amanda Erickson, Rick Noack, WaPo)
- In this open letter to KJU, defector An Chan-il penned the following: "We N.Korean defectors have been living with the stigma of being traitors to socialism, but we dream of the day when we can play our role as pioneers of capitalism for the people in NK. Many Vietnamese who fled their country after communism returned home with riches and contributed to the economy's opening to the world. N.Korean defectors also hope for the same chance to contribute to their mother country. In his upcoming summit with KJU, US President Donald Trump will mention defectors. We hope the meeting will be as fruitful as the one between Moon and Kim." (An Chan-il, Joongang Daily)
- US Secretary of State Mike Pompeo has left NK with three American detainees who were released ahead of an upcoming meeting between President Donald Trump and N.Korean leader KJU, the US president said in a tweet Wed. The following article takes a look at the three Americans, who were held by NK for alleged subversion, espionage and other unspecified hostile acts. (Hyung-Jin Kim, AP)
- The administration's apparent opening of NK is something to be lauded, and, if ultimately successful, should be praised as a major diplomatic accomplishment. However, they should not forget that the discussions surrounding our fellow citizens, who are likely being confined in very harsh conditions, involve real human beings whose families continue to hold onto every possible word of hope coming from our leaders. (Josh Campbell, CNN)
- Though a hermit kingdom, NK aspires to become internationalized. Internationalization is the only way for NK to become a normal state and can ensure NK stays on a nuclear-free path. Inter-Korean ventures must be reevaluated in the context of advancing and internationalizing the N.Korean markets. Economic cooperation should go hand in hand with denuclearization. If aid goes ahead, it can slow the denuclearization procedure. (Kim Byung-yeon, Joongang Daily)
- Leaders of Japan, SK and China met in Tokyo Wed. and agreed to the "complete denuclearization" of the Korean Peninsula—a phrase that is raising questions about whether the three sides disagreed on terminology. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- China, Japan and SK agreed on Wed. to cooperate in seeking the denuclearisation of the Korean peninsula, with Japanese Prime Minister Shinzo Abe saying recent positive momentum must be matched by "concrete action" by NK. (Kiyoshi Takenaka, Nobuhiro Kubo, Reuters)
- Analysts say Chinese President Xi Jinping's second meeting with N.Korean leader KJU a little more than a month from now is a sign of just how anxious Beijing is about a nuclear deal on the Korean Peninsula and the impact an agreement could have on its strategic interests. (Bill Ide, Joyce Huang, VOA)
- China has been trying to have it both ways with NK for a long time, on two issues: China wants NK to be weak, but not so weak that it would collapse, and incorrigible enough to keep the US occupied, but not so dangerous that it actually starts a war. (Yvonne Chiu, CNN)
- Three Americans detained in NK for more than a year are on their way back to the US with Secretary of State Mike Pompeo, President Donald Trump announced Wed. in the latest sign of improving relations between the two longtime adversary nations. (Matthew Lee, Catherine Lucey, AP)

- US President Donald Trump's decision to withdraw from the Iran nuclear agreement is not expected to derail diplomatic momentum to reach a deal to end NK's nuclear weapons program, but it could complicate the negotiation process, analysts say. (Brian Padden, VOA)
- President Donald Trump's withdrawal from the Iran nuclear deal is a major setback to US negotiating credibility and will complicate efforts to reach an agreement with Pyongyang over its own more advanced weapons programme, analysts say. (AFP)
- China, Japan and SK warmed their chilly relations Wed., brought together by a common goal: ending NK's nuclear program. (Mari Yamaguchi, AP)
- Japanese Prime Minister Shinzo Abe said on Wed. his nation will normalize ties with NK if the nuclear and missile issues, along with that of the abduction of Japanese citizens, are solved comprehensively. (Reuters)
- This week's surprise summit between N.Korean leader KJU and Chinese President Xi Jinping in the northern Chinese city of Dalian was proposed by NK, China's foreign ministry said. (Yonhap)
- The surprise China-NK summit this week is intended to ensure that Beijing's voice is heard when N.Korean leader KJU holds a historic meeting with President Donald Trump. (Christopher Bodeen, AP)
- US Secretary of State Mike Pompeo appeared to have made a diplomatic faux pas and referred to N.Korean leader KJU as 'Chairman Un' ahead of a visit to Pyongyang on Wed. (Neil Connor, Telegraph)
- Mike Pompeo, the US secretary of state, arrived in NK on Wed. amid hopes he would return with three detained Americans. (Rozina Sabur, Chris Graham, Telegraph)
- There is no dispute between US Secretary of State Mike Pompeo and Seoul regarding the expressions used to describe NK's denuclearization process, SK's foreign minister said Tues. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- Leaders from SK, Japan and China on Wed. adopted a special statement in support of the Panmunjom Declaration, which was signed at the inter-Korean summit last month and confirmed the shared goal of the two Koreas of complete denuclearization. (Kang Jin-kyu, Joongang Daily)
- Three Americans detained in NK are on their way home after being released in what is likely to be a goodwill gesture ahead of unprecedented talks between the leaders of US and NK. (BBC)
- President Trump announced on Wed. that NK had freed three American prisoners, removing a bitter and emotional obstacle ahead of a planned meeting between him and the young leader of the nuclear-armed nation. (Choe Sang-hun, NYT)
- US Secretary of State Mike Pompeo said on Tues. he had not received a commitment from Pyongyang that three American prisoners would be released when he visits NK. (Reuters)
- US Secretary of State Mike Pompeo arrived in Pyongyang on Wed. to prepare an unprecedented summit between N.Korean leader KJU and Donald Trump, while the US president signaled the possibility that three Americans detained in the country could soon be released. (Reuters)

- Secretary of State Mike Pompeo arrived in NK early Wed. to nail down critical details for an upcoming summit between President Trump and N.Korean leader KJU, raising hopes that three American prisoners could soon be released. (Carol Morello, David Nakamura, Anna Fifield, WaPo)
- US Secretary of State Mike Pompeo was heading to NK on Wed. to finalize details of a planned historic summit between President Donald Trump and NK leader KJU. (Matthew Lee, AP)
- US Secretary of State Mike Pompeo flew into Pyongyang on Wed. to finalize details of President Donald Trump's summit with N.Korean leader KJU and successfully secured the release of three Americans detained by the regime. (Sarah Kim, Joongang Daily)
- US Secretary of State Mike Pompeo traveled to NK Tues., hoping to put in place a "framework" for a successful meeting between the two countries' leaders. (Yonhap)
- US Secretary of State Mike Pompeo traveled to NK on Wed. to finalize plans for a historic summit between President Donald Trump and NK's leader, KJU. (Matthew Lee, AP)
- US Secretary of State Mike Pompeo is making a surprise visit to NK, with speculation growing that he will bring home three jailed Americans. Pompeo's visit is intended to lay the groundwork for a historic summit between N.Korean leader KJU and US President Donald Trump. (BBC)
- The US secretary of state has made a second surprise visit to NK to finalise plans for a historic summit between Donald Trump and KJU. (Benjamin Haas, Guardian)
- US President Donald Trump said on Wed. that three Americans detained by NK have been released and are on their way home with Secretary of State Mike Pompeo. (Reuters)
- US Secretary of State Mike Pompeo arrived in Pyongyang Wed. local time to continue preparations for President Donald Trump's upcoming summit with N.Korean leader KJU. (Zachary Cohen, Laura Korean, Kevin Liptak, Betsy Klein, CNN)
- US Secretary of State Mike Pompeo flew into Pyongyang on Wed. to continue planning President Donald Trump's summit with N.Korean leader KJU and possibly secure the release of three Americans detained by the regime. (Sarah Kim, Joongang Daily)
- The leaders of SK, Japan and China have pledged to cooperate in pushing for the denuclearization of NK and creating permanent peace in Northeast Asia. (Kim Rahn, Korea Times)
- S.Korean President Moon and Chinese Premier Li Keqiang said on Wed. NK should be guaranteed economic aid if it were to undertake complete denuclearization, a S.Korean presidential official said. (Reuters)
- President Donald Trump is ruling out the Korean Demilitarized Zone for his upcoming summit with N.Korean leader JU. He ruled that option out Wed. as he kicked off a Cabinet meeting at the White House. Trump said details of the KJU meeting will be announced in the next two or three days. The meeting is expected to be held in late May or early Jun. (AP)
- To understand what to expect from US President Trump's upcoming summit with N.Korean leder KJU, Lawfare editor-in-chief Benjamin Wittes spoke on Fri. with Mira Rapp-Hooper from Yale Law School's Paul Tsai China Center, and Stephan Haggard from the University of California-San Diego to discuss how we got here, what would make the Trump-Kim summit successful, and predications for the future of northeast-Asian security (Matthew Kahn, Benjamin Wittes, Mira Rapp-Hooper, Stephan Haggard, Lawfare)

- Three American citizens held for months in NK have been released, US President Donald Trump announced Wed. Kim Dong Chul, Kim Hak-song and Kim Sang Duk were freed during US Secretary of State Mike Pompeo's second visit to the N.Korean capital of Pyongyang in two months. (Joshua Berlinger, CNN)
- NK released three American prisoners and handed them over to US Secretary of State Mike Pompeo on Wed., clearing a major obstacle to an unprecedented summit between President Donald Trump and N.Korean leader KJU. (Makini Brice, Matt Spetalnick, Reuters)
- Three American prisoners have been freed from NK and are heading back to the US with Mike Pompeo, the US secretary of state, Donald Trump, the US president announced on Wed. (Rozina Sabur, Julian Ryall, Nicola Smith, Telegraph)
- US Secretary of State Mike Pompeo arrived in NK on Wed. to finalize details of a planned summit between President Donald Trump and N.Korean leader KJU. This article provides a timeline of recent events in the US-NK relations. (AP)
- President Donald Trump says three Americans who were detained in NK have been released and they are on their way home, accompanied by Secretary of State Mike Pompeo. (Nike Ching, VOA)
- The three remaining Americans being held in NK have been released and are headed home, US President Donald Trump said Wed. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- The White House says President Donald Trump and Chinese President Xi Jinping agreed Tues. that sanctions against NK should remain in place "until it permanently dismantles its nuclear and missile programs." (VOA)
- US President Trump and Chinese President Xi Jinping agreed in a phone call on Tues. that it was important to continue sanctions on NK over its nuclear and missile programs until it permanently dismantles them, the White House said. (Reuters)
- President Donald Trump announced Wed. that three Americans held in NK have been released and are on their way back home. (Zachary Cohen, Karl de Vries, CNN)
- US President Donald Trump said on Wed. that China has aided efforts with NK, hours after Trump announced that Pyongyang had released three detained Americans. (Reuters)
- President Donald Trump said on Tues. that US Secretary of State Mike Pompeo was currently on his way to NK and that the two countries had agreed on a date and location for a meeting between Trump and N.Korean leader KJU. (Reuters)
- US President Trump said on Wed. he will announce the site for a summit with N.Korean leader KJU within three days and it will not be held at the demilitarized zone along the border between the two Koreas. (Jim Oliphant, NYT)
- US President Trump wants a "real" nuclear deal with NK, a message that was sent in his withdrawal from the Iran nuclear deal, his top national security aide said Tues. (Yonhap)
- President Donald Trump's scrapping of the Iran deal he inherited raised the stakes for a N.Korean agreement he hopes to build, a contradiction over two aspiring nuclear powers that pose the biggest foreign policy challenge yet for his administration. (Jeff Zeleny, Kevin Liptak, CNN)
- Although Trump's decision to withdraw the US from the Iran nuclear deal has complicated the diplomatic process, few analysts expect KJU to just walk away from the negotiations. (Anna Fifield, WaPo)

- The US expects China to use its "unique leverage" to push NK onto the path to denuclearization, the State Department said Tues. in response to the latest meeting between the Chinese and N.Korean leaders. (Yonhap)
- The US is committed to working with NK to achieve peace on the Korean peninsula, US Secretary of State Mike Pompeo told N.Korean officials in Pyongyang on Wed. (Reuters)
- The US troop presence in SK would not be part of initial negotiations with NK, US Defense Secretary Jim Mattis said on Wed., ahead of expected talks between President Donald Trump and N.Korean leader KJU. (Phil Stewart, Idrees, Ali, Reuters)
- Robert Carlin recently observed that despite Pyongyang's historical demands for the removal of US forces as a condition for peace, it might not want to see US forces rapidly depart. Consistent with this, there was no direct mention of US forces in the Panmunjom Declaration following the Inter-Korean Summit, and S.Korean President Moon has stated KJU would not insist on their withdrawal. Pyongyang understands as well as anyone that the US presence is embedded within a larger geopolitical and strategic architecture. Yet it is unclear whether or not US President Trump understands this. This matters because while Trump may be inclined to remove or at least draw down US troops, history demonstrates even a determined president cannot so easily disentangle US forces from the highly militarized peninsula. (Clint Work, 38 North)
- The three U.S. citizens held in NK—Kim Dong Chul, Kim Sang-duk, and Kim Hak-song—have spent long months trapped in the reclusive nation, accused of crimes against the government. (VOA)
- NK has granted an "amnesty" to three US citizens ahead of a planned summit between Donald Trump and the N.Korean leader, KJU. They are Kim Dong Chul, Kim Sang-duk, and Kim Hak-song. (Julia Carrie Wong, Guardian)

Prepared by Jinny Ahn, HRNK Research Intern

——————————————————

Thursday, May 10, 2018

North Korea Frees American Prisoners, Lifting Hurdle to Nuclear Talks; 'Welcome home': 3 Americans released from North Korea ahead of Trump-Kim summit; North Korea summit: Trump greets freed American detainees

Top News:

North Korea Frees American Prisoners, Lifting Hurdle to Nuclear Talks (NYT, 05/09/2018)
'Welcome home': 3 Americans released from North Korea ahead of Trump-Kim summit (Circa, 05/09/2018)
North Korea summit: Trump greets freed American detainees (BBC, 05/10/2018)

'Welcome home': 3 Americans released from North Korea ahead of Trump-Kim summit (WJLA Washington D.C., 05/09/2018)
Don't forget about other foreigners trapped in North Korea's prison camps, human rights activists warn (Telegraph, 05/10/2018)
Report: South Korea Wants 6 Released From NKorea (NewsMax, 05/09/2018)
Kim's capitalist kingdom of Korea (FOX*Business*, 05/10/2018)
Trump mutes his attacks on North Korea's 'depraved' policies (Politico, 05/08/2018)

In North Korea:
(3rd LD) Kim says Trump meeting will be positive for Koreas (Yonhap, 05/10/2018)
Colonel in the Department of the General Staff accused of graffiti executed by firing squad (Daily NK, 05/10/2018)
N.K. Buddhist body sends prayer to S. Korea in support for recent inter-Korean agreements (Yonhap, 05/10/2018)
N. Korea sends out new signal by releasing Americans on leader's amnesty (Yonhap, 05/10/2018)
North Korea agrees to warn of activity hazardous to aviation: U.N. agency (Reuters, 05/10/2018)
North Korea airline plans new China charter flights amid diplomatic thaw (Reuters, 05/10/2018)
North Korea's Kim says releases three American detainees upon U.S. request: KCNA (Reuters, 05/09/2018)
Restrictions on freedom of movement throw wedding plans into disarray (Daily NK, 05/10/2018)

In South Korea:
(2nd LD) S. Korean foreign minister to meet Pompeo in D.C. (Yonhap, 05/10/2018)
(Yonhap Interview) Minister says smaller firms should play key role in inter-Korean projects (Yonhap, 05/10/2018)
Optimism over summit buoys Seoul stocks (Joongang Daily, 05/10/2018)
Seoul expects North Korea to release its citizens as well (Korea Times, 05/10/2018)
South Korea's Moon Gives Diplomacy a Chance (VOA, 05/10/2018)
South Korean foreign minister to strategize with Pompeo ahead of Korea summits (Reuters, 05/09/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
Moon asked Kim to free South Koreans in North (Joongang Daily, 05/10/2018)
S. Korea proposes holding high-level inter-Korean talks next week: official (Yonhap, 05/10/2018)
South Korea Hands Kim Jong-un a Path to Prosperity on a USB Drive (NYT, 05/10/2018)
South Korea preparing to join table tennis contest in Pyongyang (Korea Times, 05/10/2018)

International:
(2nd LD) Trump rules out inter-Korean border for Kim meeting (Yonhap, 05/10/2018)
(2nd LD) Trump says he will soon announce time, place of N. Korea summit (Yonhap, 05/10/2018)
(2nd LD) Trump welcomes arrival of three Americans released from N. Korea (Yonhap, 05/10/2018)
(LEAD) Trump preps Singapore meeting with N. Korean leader: news report (Yonhap, 05/10/2018)
3 Americans held by North Korea have arrived back in the United States. Here are their stories (WaPo, 05/10/2018)

Analysts: Speed of Denuclearization Emerging as Key Summit Issue (VOA, 05/10/2018)
Bring our detainees home (Joongang Daily, 05/10/2018)
China, Japan poles apart over NK (Korea Times, 05/10/2018)
CNN Poll: Three-quarters approve of Trump's plans to meet with Kim Jong Un (CNN, 05/10/2018)
Donald Trump says Kim Jong-un wants to bring North Korea 'into the real world' as he greets freed US detainees with flags and fanfare (Telegraph, 05/10/2018)
Donald Trump to meet Kim Jong-un in Singapore for North Korea summit (Telegraph, 05/10/2018)
Freed Americans tell of abuse, torture and hunger inside North Korea's prison camps (Telegraph, 05/10/2018)
History in the making as Trump welcomes prisoners home (CNN, 05/10/2018)
Hope, fear and pragmatism (Joongang Daily, 05/10/2018)
Kim, Trump to meet in Singapore on June 12 (Korea Times, 05/10/2018)
Mind games: North Korean detention may have scarred U.S. prisoners (Reuters, 05/09/2018)
N. Korea, China strengthen aviation cooperation (Yonhap, 05/10/2018)
No, Trump can't count on a hawk's advantage in making peace with North Korea (WaPo, 05/10/2018)
North Korea Releases Three US Prisoners Ahead of Planned Trump-Kim Summit (RFA, 05/09/2018)
North Korea's release of US prisoners doesn't mean peace (Guardian, 05/10/2018)
Obituary: The Maximum Pressure Policy (38 North, 05/09/2018)
Plane carrying Americans freed by North Korea lands near Washington (Reuters, 05/10/2018)
Pompeo: Date, location of Trump-Kim meeting may be announced next week (Yonhap, 05/10/2018)
Pompeo Returns from North Korea with Three U.S. Hostages (Foundation For Defense of Democracies, 05/10/2018)
President Trump welcomes 3 Americans freed by North Korea (CNN, 05/10/2018)
Schumer warns Trump against 'quick, bad' deal with North Korea (Reuters, 05/10/2018)
Singapore likeliest option for Trump-Kim summit: U.S. official (Reuters, 05/09/2018)
Summit between Kim Jong-un and Donald Trump will take place in Singapore – report (Guardian, 05/10/2018)
Summit is set: Trump-Kim to meet June 12 in Singapore (WaPo, 05/10/2018)
Summit likely to be held in Singapore, not Panmunjom (Joongang Daily, 05/10/2018)
The 'Asian Switzerland': Why Singapore 'has been chosen to host Trump-Kim summit' (Telegraph, 05/10/2018)
The release of Americans held by North Korea shows almost anything can cause a media fight (WaPo, 05/10/2018)
The U.S.-North Korea summit could be Trump's 'Nixon-to-China' moment (WaPo, 05/10/2018)
There cannot be any tricks (Joongang Daily, 05/10/2018)
Three US detainees released by North Korea thank Donald Trump for securing their freedom (Telegraph, 05/10/2018)
Trump: North Korea Summit Will Be in Singapore on June 12 (VOA, 05/10/2018)
Trump, Kim Jong Un meeting to take place in June (UPI, 05/10/2018)
Trump-Kim Jong-un summit set for Singapore on 12 June (BBC, 05/10/2018)
Trump announces date for June summit with Kim Jong-un in Singapore (Guardian, 05/10/2018)
Trump announces June 12 summit in Singapore with North Korean leader (WaPo, 05/10/2018)
Trump announces North Korea summit will be in Singapore (CNN, 05/10/2018)
Trump Eyes Breakthrough After NKorea Frees Americans (NYT, 05/10/2018)

Trump Greets 3 Americans Freed From North Korea (NYT, 05/10/2018)
Trump Greets Americans Released by North Korea (VOA, 05/10/2018)
Trump greets three released by North (Joongang Daily, 05/10/2018)
Trump Meets 3 Americans Held In North Korea As They Arrive In U.S. (NPR, 05/10/2018)
Trump offers hero's welcome to three Americans freed by North Korea (WaPo, 05/10/2018)
Trump says to meet with North Korea's Kim on June 12 in Singapore (Reuters, 05/10/2018)
Trump thanks Kim Jong Un as he welcomes home detainees from North Korea (Politico, 05/10/2018)
Trump welcomes back Americans freed by North Korea (Reuters, 05/10/2018)
Trump welcomes home American prisoners held in North Korea (UPI, 05/10/2018)
Trump welcomes home three Americans released by North Korea (Guardian, 05/10/2018)
U.N. rights expert urges release of 6 South Koreans held in North (Reuters, 05/10/2018)
U.S.-North Korea Summit Set for June 12 in Singapore, Trump says (NYT, 05/10/2018)
Upbeat Trump welcomes U.S. prisoners released by North Korea (Reuters, 05/10/2018)
We should all pull for Pompeo over Bolton (WaPo, 05/10/2018)
Will American Travelers Be Able to Return to North Korea? (NYT, 05/10/2018)

Top News:

- The Washington-based Committee for Human Rights in North Korea welcomed the release of the three US citizens who were imprisoned in NK, but urged the North to release other detainees said to be held there, and to shut down its camps for political prisoners. HRNK Executive Director Greg Scarlatoiu stated, "It is a time to remember the nationals of Japan, SK, and other countries who were abducted and are still held in NK. It is also a time to remember the 120,000 men, women, and children held in NK's political prison camps as well as political prisoners held at other unlawful detention facilities." (Choe Sang-Hun, NYT)
- According to Greg Scarlatoiu executive director of HRNK, the prisoner release is not a matter of geopolitical machinations. Rather, it is a sign the Trump administration is taking N.Korean human rights violations seriously. He states, "What I have seen so far is encouraging and makes me quite hopeful that human rights is on the agenda and will stay on the agenda." (Leandra Bernstein, Circa, WJLA Washington D.C.)
- According to HRNK, some 120,000 people are believed to be imprisoned in NK without due process, according to the Committee for Human Rights in North Korea (HRNK). (BBC)
- The Committee for Human Rights in North Korea said the release of the three Americans "is a time to rejoice and heal". HRNK added, however, that it is important "to remember the nationals of Japan, SK and other countries who were abducted and are still held in NK." The statement added that "It is also a time to remember the 120,000 men, women and children held in NK's political prison camps, as well as political prisoners held at other unlawful detention facilities." (Julian Ryall, Telegraph)
- HRNK welcomed the release of the three Americans, but noted many are still being held in NK. "It is time to remember the nationals of Japan, SK, and other countries who were abducted and are still held in NK," said Greg Scarlatoiu, the executive director of the committee. "It is also a time to remember the 120,000 men, women, and children held in NK's political prison camps, as well as political prisoners held at other unlawful detention facilities," he added. (Joe Crowe, NEWSMAX)

- HRNK Executive Director Greg Scarlatoiu stated that NK is still a one-man system, and the regime "thrives on control, surveillance, punishment." HRNK Board Member David Maxwell suggested that Kim needs to produce "substantial outcomes from the summits and subsequent negotiations." He stated "if Kim has created high expectations and they are not realized, it could undermine the legitimacy of the regime." (Gordon G. Chang, FOXBusiness)
- Greg Scarlatoiu, Executive Director of HRNK, commented that the concern was that "raising human rights would have obstructed a nuclear deal." He stated, "To put it simply, they didn't want to upset the N.Koreans." (Nahal Toosi, Politico)

In North Korea:

- N.Korean leader KJU has said that his upcoming meeting with US President Donald Trump will be a positive development in light of recent tensions on the Korean Peninsula. (Yonhap)
- A colonel in the Department of the General Staff accused of defacing NK's Apr. 25 House of Culture with graffiti critical of the KJU regime was recently publicly executed, according to sources in NK. (Lee Sang Yong, Daily NK)
- NK's Buddhist Federation has sent a prayer to its S.Korean counterpart in celebration of the recent inter-Korean summit declaration ahead of this month's observation of Buddha's Birthday, a S.Korean Buddhist association said Thurs. (Yonhap)
- The unprecedented formalities behind NK's release of three Americans have drawn attention, as Pyongyang's media said Thurs. that they were all set free by an amnesty granted by the chairman of the North's State Affairs Commission. (Yonhap)
- NK has agreed not to engage in activities hazardous to aviation without advanced notice, a UN aviation agency official said on Thurs., an assurance that could lead to major airlines resuming flights through its airspace. (Reuters)
- NK's Air Koryo plans to launch charter flights between Pyongyang and Chengdu in south-west China, two airline officials told Reuters, amid a major improvement in diplomatic relations between the neighbors. (Reuters)
- N.Korean leader KJU said he accepted a US suggestion to release to American detainees and gave them amnesty, state media said on Thurs. (Reuters)
- There are reports that NK has lowered the requirements needed to receive visas for travel abroad, however, ordinary N.Koreans in general cannot dream of travelling abroad nor do they enjoy the right to freely travel within their own country. According to sources in NK, the country has instead recently tightened restrictions over the travel of its citizens. N.Koreans are particularly finding it more difficult to move between Pyongyang and the areas along the NK-Chinese border. (Jo Hyon, Daily NK)

In South Korea:

- S.Korean Foreign Minister Kang Kyung-wha will travel to the US this week for talks with Secretary of State Mike Pompeo on NK and alliance issues, her ministry announced Thurs. (Yonhap)

- SK's minister for small and medium-sized enterprises (SMEs) has said smaller companies should play a leading role in economic cooperation between the two Koreas amid growing hopes for cross-border projects after their two leaders' historic summit last month. (Yonhap)
- Seoul's main bourse closed slightly higher on Thurs., riding on improved investor sentiment on the upcoming summit between the US and NK. (Choi Hyung-jo, Yonhap)
- After NK freed three American detainees, Wed., SK expects NK to do the same quickly for six S.Koreans being detained in NK. Cheong Wa Dae said it will do its best for the release of the six detainees. (Choi Ha-young, Korea Times)
- During his first year in office, S.Korean President Moon's persistent pursuit of diplomacy, often working in parallel with US President Trump's "maximum pressure" campaign, played a significant role in persuading NK to engage in talks to end its nuclear program. (Brian Padden, VOA)
- SK's foreign minister will meet US Secretary of State Mike Pompeo for the first time on Fri., with discussions expected to set the stage for a summit between their leaders later in May, her ministry said in a statement. (Reuters)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- SK has appealed to NK for the release of its own citizens, a Blue House spokesman said Wed. night, after three American detainees were freed in a surprise move ahead of a landmark summit meeting between N.Korean leader KJU and US President Donald Trump. (Lee Sung-eun, Joongang Daily)
- SK has proposed holding high-level talks with NK next week to discuss follow-up measures on agreements reached by their leaders during their recent summit, a unification ministry official said Thurs. (Yonhap)
- NK's leader, KJU, left, and President Moon of SK at the Demilitarized Zone in SK last month. During the meeting, Moon handed KJU a USB drive with an economic plan for the Korean Peninsula. (Choe Sang-hun, NYT)
- SK is preparing to participate in a table tennis event in NK next month, the sport's national governing body in Seoul said Thurs. The Korea Table Tennis Association (KTTA) said it will soon submit entries to take part in the Pyongyang Open tournament in the NK capital for the first time from Jun. 13 to 17. (Korea Times)

International:

- US President Donald Trump on Wed. ruled out the inter-Korean border as the venue for his upcoming meeting with N.Korean leader KJU. (Yonhap)
- US President Donald Trump has told his S.Korean counterpart Moon that he will soon announce the date and location of his planned summit with N.Korean leader KJU, Moon's presidential office Cheong Wa Dae said Wed., apparently confirming that the historic US-NK summit has been arranged. (Yonhap)

- US President Donald Trump on Thurs. welcomed the arrival of three Americans released by NK a day earlier in yet another conciliatory gesture ahead of the upcoming summit between the two countries. (Yonhap)
- US officials are making preparations for a meeting in Singapore between President Donald Trump and N.Korean leader KJU, a news report said Thurs. (Yonhap)
- After long stints in labor camps and days of rumors about their release, three Americans who were held prisoner in NK finally came home early Thurs. morning, shortly before 3 a.m. (Amanda Erickson,Rick Noack, WaPo)
- Pyongyang's interest in taking "incremental" steps and Washington's opposition to this "phased" approach toward denuclearization is emerging as differences that need to be resolved for a successful summit between President Trump and N.Korean leader KJU, according to analysts.(VOA)
- US Secretary of State Mike Pompeo arrived at Joint Base Andrews, Maryland, on Thurs. bringing in three Korean-Americans who were detained in NK. President Donald Trump flew to the military base near Washington to greet the three US citizens on their return. The three detainees expressed deep appreciation for the efforts made by Trump, Pompeo and other Americans to bring them home, the State Department said. (Joongang Daily)
- The latest talks among the leaders of SK, Japan and China in Tokyo, Wed., revealed that Tokyo and Beijing have conflicting positions over how to handle NK, analysts said Thurs. (Park Ji-won, Korea Times)
- About three-quarters of Americans (77%) approve of President Donald Trump's decision to meet with N.Korean leader KJU, according to a new CNN poll conducted by SSRS. Trump's approval rating for handling the situation with NK has jumped 10 points since late Mar. (Grace Sparks, Jennifer Agiesta, CNN)
- The three Korean-Americans detained for over a year by Pyongyang were finally home. (Nicola Smith, Telegraph)
- Trump's long-awaited meeting with KJU will take place in Singapore on Jun. 12, the president has said. (Rozina Sabur, Telegraph)
- Welcoming three freed American detainees back on to US soil on Thurs., Trump, the US President, thanked KJU for their release and said the N.Korean leader had been "excellent to these three incredible people." (Julian Ryall, Telegraph)
- President Donald Trump welcomed home three American prisoners from NK, citing their release as proof that his diplomacy with the isolated state is delivering. (Stephen Collinson, CNN)
- The NK-SK summit should rightly be hailed as an important diplomatic achievement, and the Moon administration deserves an ample share of the credit. Yet in both SK and the US, we are seeing skepticism and fear that are no less warranted than the current bubble of optimism. Rather than denigrating the summit, we should take a pragmatic stance, waiting to see what the negotiations around the Kim-Trump summit reveal about both Kim and Trump's thinking. (Stephen Haggard, Joongang Daily)
- US President Trump said Thurs. he will meet NK leader KJU on Jun. 12 in Singapore. "The highly anticipated meeting between KJU and myself will take place in Singapore on Jun. 12th," Trump wrote on Twitter. (Park Si-soo, Korea Times)

- Three Americans released from N.Korean captivity on Wed. are at risk of a range of symptoms, from crippling anxiety to severe depression, as a result of the trauma experienced during their imprisonment. (Joseph Ax, Reuters)
- NK and China are moving to expand direct flight routes between Pyongyang and major Chinese cities on the back of growing improvements in their bilateral relationship, tourism officials said Thurs. (Yonhap)
- With the release of three US prisoners in NK, face-to-face talks between Trump and KJU appear to be on the horizon. He's now confirmed that the talks will be in Singapore on Jun. 12. After a year of bellicose rhetoric on NK, does Trump's hawkish stance give him a political advantage to make a deal with the enemy? (Sarah Kreps, Elizabeth N. Saunders, Kenneth Schultz, WaPo)
- NK has released three American prisoners, US officials said Wed., ahead of an expected summit between the country's leader KJU and US President Donald Trump that will focus on denuclearization of the Korean peninsula. (Jung Min Noh, Joshua Lipes, Sungwon Yang, RFA)
- High expectations for the coming summit between KJU and Trump are unrealistic and dangerous. (Polly Toynbee, Guardian)
- A family spokesman confirmed today that the maximum pressure policy passed away on Apr. 27, 2018. This was not noticed at the time since it was still walking around in policy circles in Washington, but physicians later determined that the policy lost all ability to affect the outside world sometime between the moment that KJU trod on the red carpet in Beijing and the second he crossed the line into the ROK sector in Panmunjom. The policy is expected to enjoy some form of zombie existence at least until the upcoming summit between US President Donald Trump and KJU, but all medical experts expect its corporeal form will crumble into dust quickly if the US attempts to make use of it. (Joseph DeThomas, 38 North)
- A plane carrying three Americans released by NK landed at a military base bear Washington early on Thurs., where US President Donald Trump was waiting to greet them. (Reuters)
- US Secretary of State Mike Pompeo said Wed. that he hopes to announce the date and venue for a meeting between US President Donald Trump and N.Korean leader KJU early next week. (Yonhap)
- The return home of three American hostages is a cause for celebration, yet the moment remains bittersweet given the tragic death of Otto Warmbier as a result of the trauma he endured in captivity. Furthermore, 24 million N.Koreans continue to suffer every day under KJU's brutal rule. The US should continue its policy of maximum pressure to ensure NK's rapid denuclearization, yet also must address its abhorrent human rights violations.(Mathew Ha, Foundation for Defense of Democracies)
- Under an American flag and dark night sky, US President Donald Trump personally welcomed home three American detainees Thurs. morning after they were released from NK. (Allie Malloy, Jeff Zeleny, Ben Westcott, CNN)
- US Senate Democratic Leader Chuck Schumer said Thurs. that the release of three detained American citizens was "no great accomplishment" of N.Korean leader KJU and that President Trump was weakening US foreign policy by exalting the release. (Reuters)
- Singapore has emerged as the likeliest location for a planned summit meeting between US President Donald Trump and NK leader KJU, a US official said on Wed. (Reuters)

- The first summit between a sitting US president and a N.Korean leader will take place in Singapore, CNN reported on Wed. (Julian Borger, Guardian)
- Trump will meet with KJU in Singapore on Jun. 12, Trump announced Thurs., hours after suggesting that the release of three Americans held in NK heralded a potential breakthrough toward denuclearizing the Korean Peninsula. (Matthew Lee, Jill Colvin, Zeke Miller, AP)
- The first NK-US summit is expected to be held in Singapore after US President Donald Trump ruled out the other possible venue that had been named, Panmunjom, the truce village at the inter-Korean border. (Sarah Kim, Joongang Daily)
- Singapore has reportedly been chosen to host the much-anticipated meeting between Trump and KJU in the coming weeks. (Chris Graham, Telegraph)
- The release of US citizens held hostage by a rogue regime would seem to be a moment for a president to bask in good press. Relations between President Trump and the media are seldom so uncomplicated, however. (Callum Borchers, WaPo)
- Several commentators have observed that Trump's overtures to NK echo Richard Nixon's embrace of Communist China in the early 1970s. Nixon's policy not only led to better international relations with Beijing, but also proved to be a big success at home. (Michaela Mattes, Jessica L.P. Weeks, WaPo)
- KJU is not foolish to think he can get away with figurative promises with Trump. In the final game, the players must throw the cards on the table. There cannot be any tricks. He can persuade Trump of dismantlement in return for security for at least two years. Upon confirming his genuine dedication, Trump could offer grand overtures. Kim also could make bold decisions if large-scale economic aid and normalization of diplomatic ties are promised as soon as NK completely dismantles its nuclear weapons. (Joongang Daily)
- The three Americans headed back to the US after being released by NK have thanked President Trump and Secretary of State Mike Pompeo for securing their freedom. (Nicola Smith, Ben Riley-Smith, Rozina Sabur, Telegraph)
- US President Trump has announced that his summit with N.Korean leader KJU will take place in Singapore on June 12. (Steve Herman, VOA)
- President Trump said Thurs. his meeting with N.Korean leader KJU will take place in June. (Sarah Shayanian, UPI)
- US President Donald Trump will meet N.Korean leader KJU in Singapore on 12 Jun., he has said. Mr. Trump's announcement came hours after he welcomed home three American detainees released by NK. (BBC)
- Donald Trump disclosed on Thurs. that his nuclear summit with KJU will take place on 12 Jun. in Singapore. (Julian Borger, Guardian)
- President Trump announced Thurs. that his summit with N.Korean leader KJU will occur Jun. 12 in Singapore, a high-stakes step in his bid to curb the rogue nation's nuclear weapons program. (David Nakamura, John Wagner, WaPo)
- President Donald Trump will meet with N.Korean leader KJU on Jun. 12 in Singapore, the US president announced Thurs. on Twitter. (Jeremy Diamond, CNN)
- President Trump celebrated the return Thurs. of three Americans freed by NK and suggested their release heralded a potential breakthrough toward the goal of denuclearizing the Korean Peninsula. (NYT)

- President Trump and Melania Trump met the three Americans at an air base in Maryland. He praised the N.Korean leader, KJU, and said that the end goal was to denuclearize the Korean Peninsula. (Katie Rogers, NYT)
- US President Trump personally welcomed three freed Americans returning home from NK early Thurs. morning, declaring "we're starting off on a new footing" with Pyongyang. (Steve Herman, VOA)
- US President Donald Trump greeted in person three Korean-American detainees released by NK as they landed at Joint Base Andrews in Maryland in the dead of the night, underscoring that their release was a step toward denuclearization of the Korean Peninsula. (Sarah Kim, Joongang Daily)
- Three American men who had been held by NK touched US soil once again early Thurs., where they were met by President Trump, who has hailed his diplomacy with N.Korean leader KJU for winning their freedom. (Scott Neuman, NPR)
- Three Americans held captive for more than a year in NK arrived at Joint Base Andrews outside Washington well before dawn Thurs. to a hero's welcome featuring President Trump, Vice President Pence and first lady Melania Trump. (David Nakamura, Carol Morello, WaPo)
- President Donald Trump said on Thurs. that he will meet N.Korean leader KJU for a historic summit on Jun. 12 in Singapore where the US leader will try to persuade Pyongyang to give up its nuclear weapons. (Reuters)
- President Donald Trump welcomed home three Americans formerly imprisoned by NK on Thurs., greeting them in a dramatic scene that played out in the early morning hours on the tarmac at Joint Base Andrews. (Louis Nelson, Zoya Sheftalovich, Politico)
- A plane carrying three Americans released by NK landed at a military base bear Washington early on Thurs. to be welcomed by US President Donald Trump and his wife, Melania. (Roberta Rampton, David Brunnstrom, Reuters)
- Three Americans detained in NK arrived at Andrews Air Force Base in Maryland on Thurs. morning, where they were greeted by President Trump. (Ray Downs, UPI)
- Three Americans released by NK landed in the US in the early hours of Thurs., with Trump waiting on the tarmac to greet their plane. (Benjamin Haas, Guardian)
- The United Nations human rights investigator on NK called on Thurs. for six S.Korean nationals in custody there to be freed, voicing concern over conditions of their detention. (Reuters)
- President Trump announced on Thurs. that his meeting with the N.Korean leader, KJU, will be held on Jun. 12 in Singapore. (Eileen Sullivan, NYT)
- President Donald Trump welcomed three Americans who had been held prisoner in NK back home on Thurs., thanking its leader KJU for their release and sounding upbeat about a planned US-NK summit. (Roberta Rampton, David Brunnstrom, Reuters)
- Pompeo's initial success in setting the stage for a summit with NK leader KJU and the freeing of three American prisoners makes him the most important and influential national security figure in the Trump administration. (Jennifer Rubin, WaPo)
- Americans have been banned from visiting NK since last fall. Operators say they are hoping possible negotiations between President Trump and KJU will change that. (Elaine Glusac, NYT)

Prepared by Jinny Ahn, Dohyun Kim, James Park, HRNK Research Interns

——————————————————

Friday, May 11, 2018

Kim, Trump to meet in Singapore on June 12; The Daily 202: Trump reassures anxious hawks that he's willing to walk away from North Korea talks; North Korea Tells UN Aviation Group No More ICBM Tests;

In North Korea:

Exclusive: North Korean traders offering cheap coal on hopes sanctions will ease - Chinese traders (Reuters, 05/11/2018)
More North Koreans look to traditional medicine for cures (Daily NK, 05/11/2018)
North Korea commits cybercrime but exercises 'caution' (UPI, 05/11/2018)
North Korean nuclear test site closure raises fears of environmental crisis (Telegraph, 05/11/2018)
North Koreans in dark about time, location of Trump, Kim summit (UPI, 05/11/2018)
North Korea Tells UN Aviation Group No More ICBM Tests (NYT, 05/11/2018)
N. Korea vows to halt unannounced missile tests (Yonhap, 05/11/2018)
[Photos] Sections of the Amnok River near Dandong, China, blocked with barbed wire fence(Daily NK, 05/11/2018)
Report: North Korea weapons could be flown to France (UPI, 05/11/2018)
Why North Korea's Kim Jong-un feels comfortable with Singapore (BBC, 05/11/2018)

In South Korea:

(LEAD) Now is golden chance to achieve denuclearization, peace on peninsula: unification minister (Yonhap, 05/11/2018)
(LEAD) Seoul to confirm free will of former N. Korean restaurant workers (Yonhap, 05/11/2018)
Moon vows continued, increased exchanges with N. Korea (Yonhap, 05/11/2018)
Renewed hopes for reunion, visit to homeland (AP, 05/11/2018)
Seoul to re-examine arrival of North Korean women (AP, 05/11/2018)
South Korea says trying to verify complaints by North Korea waitress 'defectors' (Reuters, 05/11/2018)
Tale of North Korean Waitresses Who Fled to South Takes Dark Turn (NYT, 05/11/2018)
U.S. told Seoul about Singapore summit with N. Korea a week ago: official (Yonhap, 05/11/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

Hollow peace is worse than none (Joongang Daily, 05/11/2018)
Finding balance in Northeast Asia (Joongang Daily, 05/11/2018)
At summit, a Westernized Kim on display (Joongang Daily, 05/11/2018)

International:

(5th LD) Trump: N. Korea summit to take place in Singapore June 12 (Yonhap, 05/11/2018)
Ash Carter says US needs concrete plan to make sure North Korea drops nuke program(CNN, 05/11/2018)
Chatter Grows About Trump's Nobel Peace Prize Prospects (VOA, 05/11/2018)
China Welcomes Kim-Trump Summit as 'Important Step' (NYT, 05/11/2018)
Commentary: Did Korea progress deal final blow to Iran nuclear accord? (Reuters, 05/11/2018)
Japan PM to NKorea: Release Japanese Abductees or No Aid (AP, 05/11/2018)
Kim, Trump to meet in Singapore on June 12 (Korea Times, 05/11/2018)
Korean-American CIA official plays role for Trump-Kim summit (Korea Times, 05/11/2018)
On U.S.-North Korea Talks, China May Hold the Cards (NYT, 05/11/2018)
Optimism rises over NK-US summit (Korea Times, 05/11/2018)
'Pacing, verification critical points of NK-US summit' (Korea Times, 05/11/2018)
Singaporeans excited about hosting Trump-Kim summit (Korea Times, 05/11/2018)
Singapore ties with US, NKorea make city-state summit site (AP, 05/11/2018)
Singapore to host Trump, Kim (Joongang Daily, 05/11/2018)
The Daily 202: Trump reassures anxious hawks that he's willing to walk away from North Korea talks (WaPo, 05/11/2018)
Ties with US, North Korea make Singapore optimum choice (AP, 05/11/2018)
Trevor Noah Thinks Kim Jong-un Has Brainwashed Trump (NYT, 05/11/2018)
Trump approaches geopolitics like The Apprentice – but this is not his show (Guardian, 05/11/2018)
Trump hopes 'America First' abroad leads to wins at home (CNN, 05/11/2018)
Trump, Kim summit in Singapore presents logistical challenges for North Korea (Reuters, 05/11/2018)
Trump-Kim summit must succeed (Joongang Daily, 05/11/2018)
The Trump-Kim summit must succeed, but Seoul must also ensure the safety of the South Korean people in any kind of deal. (Joongang Daily)
Trump's Instinct in Korea Crisis and Elsewhere Is 'Go Big' (NYT, 05/11/2018)
Trump's Poll Numbers Rising; North Korea Developments Could Help (VOA, 05/11/2018)
Trump to be flexible on N. Korea denuclearization deadline: expert (Yonhap, 05/11/2018)
Trump will meet Kim in Singapore on June 12 (Joongang Daily, 05/11/2018)
"We Don't Know the Real Motives of North Korea Leader" (CNN, 05/11/2018)

In North Korea:

- Some N.Korean traders are offering cheap coal to Chinese buyers who are stockpiling it at ports inside the isolated country, hoping recent diplomatic moves lead to an easing of sanctions barring purchases of N.Korean coal, three Chinese traders told Reuters. (Reuters)
- As distrust of Western medicine increases among N.Koreans, a rising preference for traditional Korean medicine is emerging, report sources in the country. (Kang Mi-jin, Moon Dong-hui, Daily NK)

- N.Korea engages in cybercrime to make money -- but not all analysts agree whether the regime should be blamed for recent attacks, or whether the country is showing a change in online behavior with its turn to diplomacy. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- Closing down NK's nuclear test site at Punggye-ri is going to be more complicated and fraught with risk than has previously been suggested, with analysts suggesting that acting in haste for short-term political gain might lead to an environmental crisis. (Julian Ryall, Telegraph)
- Ordinary N.Koreans may still not know US President Trump and KJU are scheduled to meet on June 12 in Singapore. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- NK has informed a UN aviation agency that it will not conduct unannounced missile tests or further intercontinental ballistic missile launches because its nuclear arms program is now complete and it no longer needs to do such testing. (NYT)
- NK has promised to not carry out unannounced missile tests and to abstain from other activities hazardous to commercial aviation in a recent meeting with officials of the International Civil Aviation Organization (ICAO), an American media report said Fri. (Yonhap)
- "The barbed wire isn't set up near the Sino-Korean Friendship Bridge, so cruise lines should be able to continue operating there. The barbed wire fence appears to instead be set up along unfrequented areas in order to block smuggling activities." (Ha Yoon-ah, Daily NK)
- The US asked NK to remove five nuclear weapons, that would be then flown to France for destruction, according to a S.Korean press report. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- "non-party, non signatory state to the Rome Statute of the International Criminal Court", so in theory there's no danger of the N.Korean leader being drawn into human rights abuse cases while he's here. (Karishma Vaswani, BBC)

In South Korea:

- SK's unification minister said Fri. that the current situation provides a "golden opportunity" to achieve denuclearization and bring permanent peace to the Korean Peninsula. (Yonhap)
- SK's government said Fri. that it is trying to verify a recent news report alleging some of the 12 female N.Korean restaurant workers who defected to the South two years ago came to Seoul against their will. (Yonhap)
- President Moon vowed to expand cross-border exchanges with North Korea on Fri., saying an increase in exchanges may eventually lead to the unification of the divided Koreas. (Yonhap)
- Ko is among the some 130,000 people separated from family by the 1950-53 Korean War registered with a government-run system for separated families managed by the Ministry of Unification. (Kim Ji-soo, Lee Suh-yoon, Korea Times)
- SK says it will look closer into the circumstances surrounding the arrival of a dozen N.Korean restaurant workers in 2016 after a television report suggested some of the women might have been brought to the South against their will. (AP)
- Several N.Korean waitresses who arrived in SK in 2016 in a group of 13 defectors have said they were coerced into leaving, and a S. Korean ministry that handles ties with the North said on Fri. it was trying to verify their account. (Reuters)

- The manager and three of the women claim that the waitresses did not even know they were going to SK when the manager took them out of China at the behest of the South's National Intelligence Service. (Choe Sang-hun, NYT)
- SK was told the historic US-NK summit will be held in Singapore at least a week earlier, an official from Seoul's presidential office Cheong Wa Dae said Fri., hours after US President Trump revealed the location of his anticipated meeting with N.Korean leader KJU. (Yonhap)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- We should want diplomacy to work, but we must recognize that any gains on denuclearization will be incremental. (Michael Green, Joongang Daily)
- The peace declaration and agreement are two sides of a coin. The solution to create a new Northeast Asian order is a process of finding a balance, not a subtraction. Korea should not be bitter and welcome China's return. (Shin Kyung-jin, Joongang Daily)
- There is hope that KJU's education abroad may make him a different leader from his father. (Joongang Daily)

International:

- US President Trump announced Thurs. that his meeting with N.Korean leader KJU will take place in Singapore June 12. (Yonhap)
- Former US Secretary of Defense Ash Carter said Fri. US should be cautious of any promises made by NK at the upcoming summit between President Trump and KJU. (CNN)
- Now, President Trump's supporters are pushing for him to be the next US leader to win the Nobel Peace Prize — a move that's being met by smirks and eye rolls in Europe, where Trump remains deeply unpopular. (VOA)
- North Korea's key ally, China, said Fri. it welcomes the progress made by the US and NK in setting up next month's summit between their leaders. (NYT)
- It seems clear that, from Trump's perspective, the Iran deal and the diplomatic advances with NK are closely related – and that his policy of "maximum pressure" is paying off. (Maysam Behravesh, Reuters)
- Japan's prime minister on Fri. warned N.Korean leader KJU that Japan will not provide major economic assistance unless the North resolves the issue of Japanese citizens it abducted decades ago. (AP)
- US President Trump said Thurs. he will meet N.Korean leader KJU on June 12 in Singapore to discuss the denuclearization of the Korean Peninsula. (Park Si-soo, Korea Times)
- Andrew Kim, head of the Korea Mission Center (KMC) under the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA), appears to have played a leading role in coordinating the summit between President Trump and N.Korean leader KJU slated for June 12. (Choi Ha-young, Korea Times)
- Along the Chinese border with NK, the evidence of Beijing's leverage in the coming talks between President Trump and the N.Korean leader, KJU, is everywhere. (Jane Perlez, NYT)
- Analysts are cautiously forecasting that the upcoming Pyongyang-Washington summit could produce a big deal on denuclearization, after US Secretary of State Mike Pompeo returned from Pyongyang with three Americans detained in NK and both of the nations showed satisfaction over the current process toward the summit. (Kim Bo-eun, Korea Times)

- While it appears N.Korean leader KJU is ready to negotiate with the US on denuclearization, pacing and verification of the process will be two highly contentious facets of the process, according to a NK expert. (Kim Bo-eun, Korea Times)
- Most Singaporeans are excited about their country hosting the upcoming historic summit between US President Trump and N.Korean leader Kim Jong-un. (Kim Jae-kyoung, Korea Times)
- Singapore's diplomatic ties with NK and its relative proximity made the Southeast Asian city-state a natural choice for the historic summit between President Trump and N.Korean leader KJU. (Annabelle Liang, AP)
- US President Trump announced on Thurs. that he would meet N.Korean leader KJU on June 12 in Singapore for a landmark summit. (Lee Sung-eun, Joongang Daily)
- President Trump used an Indiana rally Thurs. to soothe conservative fears that he's going to make too many concessions to the N.Koreans. (James Hohmann, WaPo)
- With the Demilitarized Zone on the Korean Peninsula out of contention, the small nation of Singapore is a natural choice for the historic summit between US President Trump and N.Korean leader KJU, analysts say. (AP)
- Trevor Noah said President Trump might have come down with Stockholm syndrome after praising NK's leader, KJU, for his "excellent" treatment of three American prisoners. (Giovanni Russonello, NYT)
- The US president thinks he will call the shots at his meeting with KJU in Singapore, but might find Kim is the one in control. (Julian Borger, Guardian)
- The President is taking his political chaos theory beyond America's borders and racking up wins for his faithful political base. (Stephen Collinson, CNN)
- N.Korean leader KJU's trip to Singapore for talks with US President Trump poses logistical challenges that are likely to include using Soviet-era aircraft to carry him and his limousine, as well as dozens of security and other support staff. (Jack Kim, Jamie Freed, Reuters)
- The way President Trump sees it, why go for a solid single when you can swing for a home run? (NYT)
- It was a made-for-TV moment that all presidents would relish, but it seemed especially significant for the man who turned a reality TV career into a successful bid for the presidency. (Jim Malone, VOA)
- US President Trump appears open to lowering the bar for a big deal in denuclearization talks with N.Korean leader KJU, though he's not considering moving the goal post itself, a well-known pundit here said Fri. (Lee Chi-dong, Yonhap)
- US President Trump announced Thurs. he will meet N.Korean leader KJU on June 12 in Singapore for a historic first summit between the two nations. (Kang Jin-kyu, Joongang Daily)
- Former top US diplomat on North Korean policy, Joesph Yun, says pushing for NK to be part of the international community is worth trying, even if it takes time. (CNN)

Prepared by Dohyun Kim, HRNK Research Intern

———————————————

Saturday, May 12, 2018

US offers to help N.Korea's economy if it 'quickly' denuclearizes; N.Korean defector group sends anti-Pyongyang leaflets to North; S.Korea's deputy nuclear envoy to visit IAEA for coordination on NK denuclearization

In North Korea:
Inside the mountain base still on alert to North Korea's missile threat (CNN, 05/11/2018)
Kim Jong-un brings Beijing to heel (Korea Times, 05/12/2018)
N. Korean diplomats caught taking banned luxury goods out of Austria (Yonhap, 05/12/2018)
N. Korea downsizes annual tank firing contest: officials (Yonhap, 05/12/2018)
North Korea: UN gains 'unprecedented access' during visit (BBC, 05/12/2018)

In South Korea:
Moon shines as he drives diplomacy with Pyongyang (WaPo, 05/11/2018)
N. Korean defector group sends anti-Pyongyang leaflets to North (Yonhap, 05/12/2018)
S. Korea's deputy nuclear envoy to visit IAEA for coordination on NK denuclearization (Yonhap, 05/12/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
Renewed hopes for reunion, visit to homeland (Korea Times, 05/11/2018)

International:
(2nd LD) U.S. offers to help N. Korea's economy if it 'quickly' denuclearizes (Yonhap, 05/12/2018)
It's far too early for Trump to take credit on North Korea (WaPo, 05/11/2018)
Mike Pompeo offers aid to North Korea in exchange for forfeiting nukes (Guardian, 05/11/2018)
Mike Pompeo promises North Korea future 'brimming with prosperity' if it denuclearises (Telegraph, 05/12/2018)
Pompeo promises North Korea future 'brimming with prosperity' if it denuclearizes (Reuters, 05/12/2018)
Pompeo says talks with North Korea's Kim were 'warm' (CNN, 05/11/2018)
The surprise coalition of Trump critics supporting the Kim Jong Un meeting (CNN, 05/11/2018)
Traveling with Pompeo on secret mission to North Korea (WaPo, 05/12/2018)
Trump, Kim summit in Singapore presents logistical challenges for North Korea (Reuters, 05/12/2018)
Trump thanks Singapore for hosting Kim summit in call (WaPo, 05/11/2018)
Trump thanks Singapore leader for hosting N. Korea summit (Yonhap, 05/12/2018)
Trump shouldn't expect an approval spike after the North Korea prisoner release (WaPo, 05/11/2018)
US hopes North Korea will become close partner, Pompeo says (WaPo, 05/12/2018)
US President Thanks Singapore for Hosting US-North Korea Talks (VOA, 05/11/2018)

US to North Korea: No Sanctions Relief Until Permanent, Verifiable Denuclearization (VOA, 05/12/2018)

In North Korea:

- North American Aerospace Defense Command (NORAD), the joint Canada-US organization tasked with warning of incoming threats from the sky, continues to monitor NK's nuclear program with the same intensity it did at the height of NK's missile testing. (Scott McLean, CNN)
- The upcoming Kim-Trump summit will be full of promise and peril. However, so far Kim has proved adept on the international stage. He even forced his dominating neighbor and nominal ally to come calling, twice. Whatever happens next, Kim has transformed Northeast Asia. (Doug Bandow, Korea Times)
- NK diplomats stationed in Austria have been caught attempting to take luxury goods banned under UN sanctions out of the European country, an American news report said Sat. (Yonhap)
- NK is said to have sharply scaled down an annual firing contest for its armored units, apparently reflecting the rising detente on the peninsula, government officials in Seoul said Sat. (Yonhap)
- The head of the UN's World Food Programme (WFP) believes there is a "sense of optimism" among NK's leaders after enjoying what he said was unprecedented access to the country. (BBC)

In South Korea:

- Moon doesn't have the power to resolve NK's weapons programs on his own. But in hustling between Pyongyang and Washington to set up the Kim-Trump summit and offering to broker other meetings with Pyongyang, Moon is fulfilling his promise to push SK into the driver's seat in diplomacy with the North. (Kim Tong-Hyung, AP)
- A group of NK defectors scattered leaflets critical of the NK regime across the border to the North on Saturday despite the government's recommendation not to. (Yonhap)
- SK's foreign ministry announced Saturday the country's deputy nuclear envoy will visit the International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA) next week for consultations on NK. (Yonhap)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- Separated from his family by the 1950-53 Korean War, many S.Koreans hope to see their families in North once again, inspired by detente brought on by the April 27 Summit. (Kim Ji-soo, Lee Suh-yoon, Korea Times)

International:

- US Secretary of State Mike Pompeo offered Friday to help boost NK's economy if the regime swiftly dismantles its nuclear weapons program. Pompeo spoke after coming out of talks with SK Foreign Minister Kang Kyung-wha. (Yonhap)
- It is not too late to accredit Trump on NK once KJU really does want to join the civilized world, boost his economy, feed his people and make nice with his neighbors, and if Trump succeeds in effectively securing peace in the region. (Kathleen Parker, WaPo)
- US secretary of state Mike Pompeo has offered economic help to impoverished NK if it gives up its nuclear weapons, as the two countries prepare for an historic summit between Trump and KJU. (Guardian)
- NK can look forward to "a future brimming with peace and prosperity" if it agrees to quickly give up its nuclear weapons, US Secretary of State Mike Pompeo pledged on Friday ahead of a historic summit between Trump and KJU. (Telegraph)
- NK can look forward to “a future brimming with peace and prosperity” if it agrees to quickly give up its nuclear weapons, US Secretary of State Mike Pompeo pledged on Friday ahead of a historic summit between Trump and KJU. (Lesley Wroughton, David Brunnstrom, Reuters)
- Secretary of State Mike Pompeo said his conversations with NK leader KJU were "warm" and "good." (Nicole Gaouette and Ryan Browne, CNN)
- Most Americans who disapprove of Trump overall tend to disapprove of how Trump is handling just about every issue. That is, except for his upcoming meeting with NK leader KJU, according to the latest CNN poll. (Ryan Struyk, CNN)
- Pompeo's second trip to Pyongyang began with quiet words from State Department officials: "Apply for a new passport immediately. You may soon be going to a country for which ordinary US passports are not valid for travel." (Matthew Lee, AP)
- KJU’s trip to Singapore for talks with Trump poses logistical challenges that are likely to include using Soviet-era aircraft to carry him and his limousine, as well as dozens of security and other support staff. (Jack Kim, Jamie Freed, Reuters)
- Trump is thanking the prime minister of Singapore for agreeing to host his upcoming summit with KJU. (AP)
- Trump thanked Singapore's leader Fri for hosting his upcoming meeting with NK leader KJU in the city-state, the White House said. (Yonhap)
- Despite some applause from the public for the release of three men who had been held prisoner by NK, Trump shouldn’t expect an approval spike. (Philip Bump, WaPo)
- The US aspires to have NK as a “close partner” and not an enemy, Secretary of State Mike Pompeo said, noting that the US has often in history become good friends with former adversaries. (Josh Lederman and Matthew Lee, AP)
- Trump has spoken with Singapore's prime minister, Lee Hsien Loong, a day after announcing he and KJU will hold an historic meeting in the southeast Asian city-state. (Steve Herman, VOA)
- Chief diplomats from the US and SK said Friday that a complete denuclearization by NK requires robust verification, and that sanctions against Pyongyang would not be lifted unless it took concrete and further steps toward denuclearization. (Nike Ching, VOA)

Prepared by James Park, HRNK Research Intern

Sunday, May 13, 2018

'Welcome home': 3 Americans released from North Korea ahead of Trump-Kim summit; Report: South Korea Wants 6 Released From NKorea; Pompeo: US firms could invest in North Korea and Kim may get ‘security assurances’

TOP NEWS:
'Welcome home': 3 Americans released from North Korea ahead of Trump-Kim summit(KEPR19, 05/09/2018)
Report: South Korea Wants 6 Released From NKorea (NewsMax, 05/09/2018)

In North Korea:
40% of North Koreans suffer from malnutrition, says WFP (Korea Times, 13/05/2018)
Agricultural research center opens in N. Korea (Korea Times, 13/05/2018)
Greenhouses become new source of income in N. Korea (Korea Times, 13/05/2018)
Kim needs to prove his sincerity (Joongang Daily, 14/05/2018)
Kim Jong-un wants to be 'normal' leader (Korea Times, 13/05/2018)
North Korea details plans to dismantle nuclear bomb test site (Reuters, 13/05/2018)
N. Korea vows not to make unannounced missile tests (Korea Times, 13/05/2018)
N. Korean Olympic ice hockey player cleared of doping offense: report (Yonhap, 13/05/2018)
N. Korean state media outlets widely report nuclear test site dismantlement plan (Yonhap, 13/05/2018)
NK's oil, diesel prices dive despite sanctions: report (Yonhap, 13/05/2018)
North Korea, US in talks over denuke roadmap (Korea Times, 13/05/2018)
Pyongyang 'scales down' annual tank exercise (Korea Times, 13/05/2018)
Pyongyang to scrap nuclear site (Joongang Daily, 14/05/2018)

In South Korea:
Cheong Wa Dae welcomes N. Korea's pledge to dismantle nuclear test site (Yonhap, 13/05/2018)
Opposition leader downplays N. Korea's pledge to dismantle nuclear test site as 'nothing new'(Yonhap, 13/05/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
Firms making inquiries about opening operations at now-shuttered Kaesong complex(Yonhap, 13/05/2018)
Moon, Kim to talk over inter-Korean hotline 'soon' (Korea Times, 13/05/2018)
N. Korean Buddhists send prayer to Seoul to mark joint summit (Korea Times, 13/05/2018)
N.K. restaurant in Dubai becomes haunt for S. Koreans (Yonhap, 13/05/2018)

International:
First North-U.S. summit could be at five-star hotel (Joongang Daily, 14/05/2018)
(LEAD) Pompeo: U.S. may allow private investment in N. Korea if it denuclearizes (Yonhap, 13/05/2018)
Pompeo and Bolton outline North Korea plans as talks approach (CNN, 13/05/2018)
Pompeo: US firms could invest in North Korea and Kim may get 'security assurances'(Guardian, 13/05/2018)
Pompeo: U.S. to lift sanctions on North Korea if it meets demands (Reuters, 13/05/2018)
Pompeo: US Will Need to Give Kim Jong Un Security Assurances (NYT, 13/05/2018)
Three former US prisoners in North Korea leave Walter Reed Medical Center (CNN, 13/05/2018)
Trump hails test site dismantlement as 'very smart and gracious gesture' (Korea Times, 13/05/2018)
Trump, Kim likely to meet at Shangri-La Hotel (Korea Times, 13/05/2018)
Trump to visit Seoul after meeting with Kim Jong-un: report (Korea Times, 13/05/2018)
Trump welcomes N.K's nuclear test site dismantlement plans as 'very smart and gracious gesture' (Yonhap, 13/05/2018)
U.S. can help North's economy, Pompeo says (Joongang Daily, 14/05/2018)
U.S. wants N.K. to ship part of nuclear, missile stockpiles out of country within months: sources (Yonhap, 13/05/2018)
US Would Offer North Korea 'Security Assurances' if It Ends Nuclear Program (VOA, 13/05/2018)

TOP NEWS:

- According to Greg Scarlatoiu executive director of the Committee for Human Rights in North Korea, the prisoner release is not a matter of geopolitical machinations. Rather, he sees it as a sign the Trump administration is taking N.Korean human rights violations seriously. (Leandra Bernstein, KEPR19)
- "It is time to remember the nationals of Japan, SK, and other countries who were abducted and are still held in NK," said Greg Scarlatoiu, the executive director of the committee. (Joe Crowe, NewsMax)

In North Korea:

- NK still needs continued humanitarian assistance because many mothers and young children there still relied on aid to meet their nutritional needs, UN World Food Program (WFP) chief David Beasley said Fri. (Kang Aa-young, Korea Times)
- Agricultural research center opens in N. Korea: Vegetables are planted at a research lab operated by NK's new agricultural research center. The center opened on May 9 with the aim of improving the country's agricultural technology and helping to rebuild the economy. (Korea Times)
- NK is increasingly building greenhouses in coal-mining areas as part of efforts to rebuild its economy hit by UN Security Council (UNSC) sanctions, according to sources familiar with Pyongyang. (Yi Whan-woo, Korea Times)

- We hope KJU makes a wise choice. In the past, the six-party talks went down the drain because of unexpected problems in the process of verification in the complex stages of denuclearization — a nuclear freeze, disabling, verification and dismantlement. (Joongang Daily)
- N.Korean leader KJU is believed to be speeding efforts to make his country appear as a "normal state" in line with his move to dismantle its nuclear program. (Yi Whan-woo, Korea Times)
- NK has scheduled the dismantlement of its nuclear bomb test site for sometime between May 23 and 25 in order to uphold its pledge to discontinue nuclear tests, the country's state media reported on Sat. a month ahead of a historic summit. (Christine Kim, David Brunnstrom, Reuters)
- NK has vowed to not carry out unannounced missile tests and other activities hazardous to commercial aviation, according to the International Civil Aviation Organization (ICAO). (Yi Whan-woo, Korea Times)
- NK's Kim Un-hyang, who participated in the PyeongChang Winter Olympics as a member of the unified inter-Korean ice hockey team, has been cleared of a doping offense as a banned substance detected from her sample showed an "extremely low concentration," an online news outlet specializing in the Olympics reported recently. (Yonhap)
- N.Korean state media outlets on Sun. widely reported the country's decision to dismantle its nuclear test site, a move seen as underscoring its seriousness about denuclearization. (Yonhap)
- The prices of gasoline and diesel fuel in the northern part of NK showed sharp drops this month due to the probable resumption of China's supply or expectations of such a resumption amid the detente surrounding the Korean Peninsula, a US broadcaster reported Sun., citing an Osaka-based NK specialist news media. (Yonhap)
- NK will dismantle its nuclear test site in Punggye-ri between May 23 and 25, the first step toward its "complete denuclearization" in line with an agreement reached between the leaders of the two Koreas, April 27. (Yi Whan-woo, Korea Times)
- NK has scaled down its annual exercise involving tank and other armored vehicle units, according to sources familiar with Pyongyang. (Yi Whan-woo, Korea Times)
- NK announced Sat. it would invite international journalists to cover the dismantling of its northern nuclear test site between May 23 and 25, adding that its authorities were currently taking "technical measures" to carry out the process. (Lee Sung0eun, Joongang Daily)

In South Korea:

- SK's presidential office on Sun. welcomed NK's announcement of its plan to dismantle the country's nuclear test site, saying the move will be helpful in building trust between the United States and the North ahead of their upcoming summit. (Yonhap)
- The leader of the main opposition LKP on Sun. downplayed NK's pledge to dismantle its nuclear test site as "nothing new," saying what's important is what to do with the North's nuclear weapons. (Yonhap)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- A number of firms are making inquiries about the now-shuttered joint industrial complex in NK's border city of Kaesong, industry sources said Sun., as the two Koreas move to implement a set of agreements signed during their leaders' historic summit last month. (Yonhap)
- Leaders of the two Koreas will talk over the inter-Korean hotline "soon," SK's presidential office said in yet another sign of inter-Korean rapprochement before the historic summit between N.Korean leader KJU and US President Trump in Singapore on June 12. (Park Si-soo, Korea Times)
- A group of N.Korean Buddhists has sent a prayer to SK in commemoration of the historic summit between President Moon and N.Korean leader KJU at the truce village of Panmunjeom on April 27. (Yi Whan-woo, Korea Times)
- A N.Korean restaurant specializing in "Pyongyang naengmyeon" bustles with S.Koreans even at late lunchtime, with most of them ordering the dish that originated in the North's capital. (Yonhap)

International:

- With the looming summit between US President Trump and N.Korean leader KJU in Singapore next month, experts have narrowed down possible locations for the historic summit. (Chun Su-jin, Park Hyun-ju, Esther Chung, Joongang Daily)
- US Secretary of State Mike Pompeo on Sun. offered to allow the American private sector to invest in NK if the regime agrees to fully dismantle its nuclear weapons program. (Yonhap)
- Senior Trump administration officials are outlining new details of their plans to work toward the denuclearization NK as President Trump prepares for his meeting with N.Korean leader KJU next month. (Maegan Vazquez, CNN)
- Secretary of State Mike Pompeo said on Sun. that if NK agrees to fully dismantle its nuclear weapons program, the Trump administration will allow the American private sector to invest in the country. (Guardian)
- US Secretary of State Mike Pompeo said on Sun. that Washington will agree to lift sanctions on NK if the country agrees to completely dismantle its nuclear weapons program, a move that would create economic prosperity that “will rival” SK. (Sarah N. Lynch, Reuters)
- Secretary of State Mike Pompeo said Sun. that the US will need to "provide security assurances" to NK's KJU if the adversaries are to reach a nuclear deal. (NYT)
- The three former American prisoners who were detained in NK have left Walter Reed National Military Medical Center after their evaluations and are now reunited with their families. (Kate Sullivan, CNN)
- US President Trump has welcomed NK's announcement of details of its plan to dismantle its nuclear test site as "a very smart and gracious gesture." (Korea Times)
- US President Trump and N.Korean leader KJU are expected to meet at the Shangri-la Hotel next month, according to industry sources and experts, Sun. (Korea Times)

- US President Trump will visit SK and Japan after his historic meeting with N.Korean leader KJU in Singapore on June 12, Japanese media Nikkei reported Sun. (Park Si-soo, Korea Times)
- US President Trump has welcomed NK's announcement of details of its plan to dismantle its nuclear test site as "a very smart and gracious gesture." (Yonhap)
- US Secretary of State Mike Pompeo said that the United States is ready to help NK achieve economic prosperity if it takes "bold action to quickly denuclearize" after a meeting with his S.Korean counterpart in Washington on Fri. (Esther Chung, Joongang Daily)
- The United States has demanded that NK ship some of its nuclear weapons, fissile material and long-range missiles out of the country within months after next month's summit between the two countries, sources said Sun. (Yonhap)
- US Secretary of State Mike Pompeo said Sun. that if NK agrees to full denuclearization, the US is prepared to "provide security assurances" for the Pyongyang government and allow private American investment to build out the country's woefully inadequate electrical grid. (Ken Bredemeier, VOA)

Prepared by Dohyun Kim, HRNK Research Intern

——————————————————

Monday, May 14, 2018

3 Americans Freed by NK Reunited With Families; Kim must send his nukes to US: Bolton; NK officials visit China ahead of summit with US

In North Korea:

Kim Jong-un 'wants 14 Gaeseong-like towns' (Korea Times, 05/14/2018)
'Mean and foolish': North Korea says Japan is stalling peace over cold war abductions (Guardian, 05/14/2018)
N. Korea enjoys 4.5 percent rise in income through trade in past 20 yrs (Yonhap, 05/14/2018)
N. Korea's ultimate goal is to become nuclear weapons state: former N.K. diplomat (Yonhap, 05/14/2018)
North Korea to publicly blow up nuclear test site on May 23-25 (Korea Times, 05/13/2018)
North's former UK envoy says it won't give up all nukes (Joongang Daily, 05/14/2018)

In South Korea:

(LEAD) Moon welcomes planned dismantlement of N. Korean nuclear test site (Yonhap, 05/14/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

2 Koreas expected to hold high-level talks this week: Seoul official (Yonhap, 05/14/2018)
(LEAD) Gyeonggi plans to restart reforestation project for N.K. (Yonhap, 05/14/2018)
(LEAD) Koreas to field limited number of joint teams at Asian Games: official (Yonhap, 05/14/2018)

Peace talks ignite land buying frenzy along South Korea's fortified border (Reuters, 05/13/2018)
S. Korean leader praises North's plan to dismantle nuke site (Washington Post, 05/14/2018)
South Korean companies poised to invest in the North if sanctions relax (Guardian, 05/14/2018)

International:
3 Americans Freed by North Korea Reunited With Families (NYT, 05/13/2018)
Bolton: U.S. focused on total denuclearization in North Korea, Iran (UPI, 05/13/2018)
China's Dandong city, on North Korea border, curbs buying frenzy in property market(Reuters, 05/14/2018)
Closing North Korea nuclear test site an important step, U.N. chief says (Reuters, 05/14/2018)
Ex-diplomat Thae Yong-ho: North Korea likely to limit denuclearization (UPI, 05/14/2018)
Is the administration backing off Trump's demand that North Korea get rid of its nukes?(Washington Post, 05/14/2018)
Kim must send his nukes to U.S.: Bolton (Joongang Daily, 05/14/2018)
(LEAD) N. Korea officials visit China ahead of summit with U.S. (Yonhap, 05/14/2018)
N. Korea may not demand pullout of USFK in return for ties with U.S.: ex-minister (Yonhap, 05/14/2018)
Pompeo promises prosperity (Joongang Daily, 05/14/2018)
Pompeo says U.S. assuring Kim that it does not seek his overthrow (Washington Post, 05/13/2018)
Pompeo: US firms could invest in North Korea if it denuclearizes (Korea Times, 05/15/2018)
Pro-North Korea body: Waitresses should reunite with family (UPI, 05/14/2018)
Reports: North Korean Envoys Visit China (VOA, 05/14/2018)
South Korea, Singapore pledge joint efforts for successful U.S.-N.K summit (Yonhap, 05/14/2018)
Staid Singapore Prepares for Historic Trump-Kim Summit (VOA, 05/14/2018)
US pressures North Korea to ship nuclear weapons overseas before sanctions lifted, according to reports (Telegraph, 05/14/2018)
US Promises N. Korea Economic Investment After Denuclearization (VOA, 05/14/2018)

In North Korea:

- Thae Yong-ho, a senior N.Korean diplomat who defected to SK in 2016, says in his memoire that NK wanted 14 industrial parks like the one set up at the border town of Gaeseong as example of inter-Korean business cooperation. (Oh Young-jin, Korea Times)
- NK has claimed that its cold war abductions of Japanese citizens has been "resolved" and accused Japan of trying to wreck recent progress towards the denuclearization of the Korean peninsula. (Justin McCurry, Guardian)
- NK has enjoyed up to a 4.5 percent increase in real income growth through trade over the past 20 years, a Bank of Korea (BOK) report showed Mon. (Yonhap)
- NK's ultimate goal is to become a nuclear weapons state, a former N.Korean diplomat said Mon., expressing skepticism over the possibility of NK eventually abandoning its nuclear weapons. (Yonhap)
- NK announced Sat. it will publicly dismantle its northern nuclear test site in a ceremony scheduled for between May 23 and 25, adding it is taking "technical measures" to that end. (Korea Times)

- NK will never give up its nuclear weapons, and will only downsize its stockpile, said Thae Yong-ho, Pyongyang's former deputy ambassador to the United Kingdom, who defected to SK in 2016. (Lee Sung-eun, Joongang Daily)

In South Korea:

- S.Korean President Moon on Mon. hailed NK's decision to permanently shut down its only known nuclear test site later in the month, noting it will mark the start of the process to denuclearize the communist state and also reaffirm Pyongyang's commitment to denuclearization. (Yonhap)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- SK and NK are expected to hold high-level talks this week to discuss how to take forward the deal reached between their leaders last month, in which they agreed to halt all hostile acts against each other, open a joint liaison office, and vowed various economic cooperation efforts. (Yonhap)
- SK's Gyeonggi Province said Mon. that it plans to reopen its suspended seedling breeding center in NK if the upcoming talks between N.Korean leader KJU and US President Trump go well and UN sanctions on NK are subsequently lifted. (Yonhap)
- SK and NK may only be able to field a limited number of unified teams at this year's Asian Games, the head of Seoul's Olympic body said Mon., dampening hopes for bringing Korean athletes together in several sports. The Olympic Council of Asia (OCA) confirmed that it will only support joint Korean teams as long as they aren't granted extra roster spots. (Yonhap)
- With NK pledging to reduce tensions and renew ties with its southern neighbor, SK's hottest property market is now along the heavily fortified border between the two countries. (Joori Roh, Cynthia Kim, Reuters)
- S.Korean President Moon on Mon. welcomed NK's announcement that it is set to dismantle its only nuclear test site, calling it a start to the country's nuclear disarmament. (Hyung-Jin Kim, AP)
- S.Korean companies are exploring ways to invest in NK should the country relinquish is nuclear weapons, as Washington signals US firms may also fund projects in the future. (Benjamin Haas, Guardian)

International:

- The Pentagon says three Americans released by NK have left a Washington-area hospital and have reunited with their families. A Pentagon spokeswoman, Maj. Carla M. Gleason, says in a statement that the men "were grateful, in good spirits and coping well." (NYT)
- White House national security adviser John Bolton said Sun. the administration has placed a priority on achieving full denuclearization in NK and Iran, including the removal of non-nuclear weapons. (Daniel Uria, UPI)

- The Chinese city of Dandong, which lies on the border with NK, is tightening regulation of its property market after speculators pushed up home prices as they bet on Pyongyang's pledge to rebuild its economy. (Reuters)
- Irreversibly closing NK's nuclear test site is an important step that could pave the way for progress at talks between US President Donald Trump and N.Korean leader KJU, UN Secretary-General Antonio Guterres said on Mon. (Reuters)
- A high-profile N.Korean defector who fled Pyongyang's embassy in London is voicing skepticism about KJU's intent to completely denuclearize. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- During an interview on Sunday, Secretary of State Mike Pompeo seemed to suggest that a deal may come up shy of making NK get rid of all of its nukes, contrary to President Trump's past assurances. (Aaron Blake, Washington Post)
- John Bolton, US President Donald Trump's national security adviser, said Sun. that NK's denuclearization would entail the dismantling of its nuclear weapons and delivering them to an American nuclear research facility in Oak Ridge, Tennessee. (Sarah Kim, Joongang Daily)
- A delegation of N.Korean officials visited China on Mon. in what appears to be a trip aimed at discussing follow-up measures to a recent summit between their leaders and cooperation on the upcoming US-NK summit talks, sources said. (Yonhap)
- NK may choose to overlook the stationing of US troops in SK in exchange for establishing diplomatic ties with Washington, a former S.Korean unification minister said Mon. (Yonhap)
- US Secretary of State Mike Pompeo said American private investors will be allowed to do business in NK's energy, agricultural and technology sectors if the regime completely denuclearizes, stressing Pyongyang will "certainly" be relieved of sanctions and be given "more" as well. (Lee Sung-eun, Jeong Yong-soo, Joongang Daily)
- The US is assuring N.Korean leader KJU that his ouster is not part of the agenda for the summit next month between Kim and President Trump, Secretary of State Mike Pompeo said Sun. (Carol Morello, Anne Gearan, Washington Post)
- The US is prepared to offer NK security assurances and bountiful private investment if it makes the strategic choice to give up its nuclear weapons, US Secretary of State Mike Pompeo pledged Sun. (Korea Times)
- A pro-Pyongyang newspaper in Japan is calling for the repatriation of the 12 N.Korean waitresses and their manager brought to the SK in 2016. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- A delegation from NK arrived in Beijing Mon. for talks, according to news outlets in Japan and SK. (VOA)
- The foreign ministers of SK and Singapore vowed Mon. to work together to support the upcoming summit between the US and NK in the Southeast Asian country, Seoul's ministry said. (Yonhap)
- Singapore, a highly manicured city-state shaped by skyscrapers and luxury hotels, is preparing for perhaps the most crucial international diplomatic event of the decade. (AP)
- The US has told NK that is must start shipping nuclear weapons, fissile material and some of its long-range missiles out of the country within a couple of months of the Jun. summit between KJU, the N.Korean leader, and President Donald Trump, according to S.Korean media. (Julian Ryall, Nicola Smith, Telegraph)
- The US has indicated it is prepared to open the N.Korean economy to significant private investment, if a nuclear deal can be reached. But even if economic restrictions were lifted, the restrictive and repressive state would likely still present a challenging environment for foreign investment. (Brian Padden, VOA)

Prepared by Lauren Jackson, Jinny Ahn HRNK Research Interns

——————————————————

Tuesday, May 15, 2018

NK blasts US for taking issue with human rights situation ahead of summit; NK invites 8 S.Korean journalists to witness nuclear test site dismantling; NK begins dismantling nuclear test site, according to satellite photos

In North Korea:

(2nd LD) N.K. invites 8 S. Korean journalists to witness nuclear test site dismantling (Yonhap, 05/15/2018)
A sneak peek into North Korea's divorce court (Korea Times, 05/15/2018)
Dismantling of North Korea nuclear site 'well under way', satellite images show (Guardian, 05/14/2018)
Fate of 10,000 Pyongyang nuclear scientists up in the air (Korea Times, 05/14/2018)
Is Kim going down Gorbachev's path? (Korea Times, 05/15/2018)
N. Korea proposes holding high-level inter-Korean talks Wednesday: Seoul (Yonhap, 05/15/2018)
N. Korea blasts U.S. for taking issue with human rights situation ahead of summit (Yonhap, 05/15/2018)
N. Korea's party officials visiting China amid thawing relations (Yonhap, 05/15/2018)
N. Korea has started dismantling nuclear test site: 38 North (Yonhap, 05/15/2018)
No longer 'traitors,' North Korean defectors regarded with envy (DailyNK, 05/15/2018)
North Korea begins dismantling nuclear test site, according to satellite photos (Telegraph, 05/15/2018)
North Korea conducts crackdown on cadres illicitly procuring wealth (DailyNK, 05/15/2018)
North Korea has Begun Dismantlement of the Punggye-ri Nuclear Test Site (38 North, 05/14/2018)
North Korea monitors claim nuclear test site dismantling has begun (CNN, 05/15/2018)
North Korea removing nuclear facilities in test site (Korea Times, 05/15/2018)
North Korean delegation visits China: reports (Korea Times, 05/14/2018)
North Korean official involved in smuggling ring defects (DailyNK, 05/14/2018)
Once a luxury, smartphones now a necessity in North Korea (DailyNK, 05/15/2018)
Pyongyang's public bicycle rental a step toward normality? (Korea Times, 05/15/2018)
Pyongyang officials go to study China reforms (Joongang Daily, 05/15/2018)
Safety, verification questions hang over North Korea's plan to close nuclear site (Reuters, 05/15/2018)

True motivation for Kim's denuclearization (Korea Times, 05/15/2018)
With the Rodong Sinmun in reach, more North Koreans are talking international relations(*Daily*NK, 05/14/2018)
Were North Korean restaurant workers 'kidnapped' to South? (Korea Times, 05/14/2018)

In South Korea:
(LEAD) Without denuclearization timeline, Kim-Trump summit will fail: scholar (Yonhap, 05/15/2018)
7 pct of N. Koreans could move to South in event of sudden reunification: report (Yonhap, 05/15/2018)
Banks plan to re-enter the North (Joongang Daily, 05/15/2018)
Incremental North Korean denuclearization will be unacceptable: South Korea official (Reuters, 05/15/2018)
Moon clears his calendar to concentrate on summits (Joongang Daily, 05/15/2018)
N.K. diplomats to attend S. Korea-hosted forum in Kazakhstan: Seoul official (Yonhap, 05/15/2018)
N. Korea's move to denuke to have modest impact on S. Korean economy: report (Yonhap, 05/15/2018)
The knowledge threat (Joongang Daily, 05/15/2018)
Seoul finds it 'hard to confirm' abduction of South Korean reporter to North (Korea Times, 05/14/2018)
South Korea welcomes US investment proposals for NK (Korea Times, 05/14/2018)
South Korea wants inspectors to attend North Korean nuclear dismantlement (UPI, 05/15/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
(4th LD) 2 Koreas agree to hold high-level talks Wednesday (Yonhap, 05/15/2018)
Koreas in close consultations ahead of N. Korea-U.S. summit: official (Yonhap, 05/15/2018)
Two Koreas to hold talks today (Joongang Daily, 05/15/2018)
Two Koreas to hold talks as North prepares to shut test site (Reuters, 05/15/2018)

International:
Iran is not North Korea (Joongang Daily, 05/15/2018)
Is Mike Pompeo backing off Trump's demand that North Korea get rid of its nukes? (Washington Post, 05/14/2018)
N. Korea will always be recessed nuclear weapons state: Gallucci (Yonhap, 05/15/2018)
Pyongyang leadership is optimistic: WFP head (Joongang Daily, 05/15/2018)
Trump, Kim likely to 'reach accord' in Singapore (Korea Times, 05/15/2018)
Trump's rhetoric matches Kim's actions: White House (Yonhap, 05/15/2018)
U.N. agency said to wait for N.K. invitation to nuke site dismantlement ceremony (Yonhap, 05/15/2018)
UN Prepares to Boost Food Aid to North Korea (VOA, 05/15/2018)
U.S. knows of North's secret uranium site (Joongang Daily, 05/15/2018)
We're setting ourselves up for failure on North Korea (Washington Post, 05/14/2018)
WFP chief says 'tremendous sense of optimism' in N. Korea amid peace efforts (Yonhap, 05/15/2018)
Why Singapore is Ideal for US-North Korea Summit (VOA, 05/14/2018)

In North Korea:

- NK has invited eight S.Korean journalists to an event to showcase the dismantling of its nuclear test site scheduled for next week, Seoul's unification ministry said Tuesday. (Yonhap)
- A NK bestseller "Friend" says there are no major differences in the causes of divorce between a capitalist society and the reclusive regime that is NK. (Park Jin-hai, Korea Times)
- NK has begun dismantling the country's only known nuclear test site, according to satellite photos, following through on a promise made by leader KJU ahead of his meeting with Trump. (Benjamin Haas, Guardian)
- While the communist state's unexpected step has raised expectations of peace across Northeast Asia, the objective will take longer than many have hoped because the future whereabouts of NK scientists. (Ko Dong-hwan, Korea Times)
- Is NK's KJU going down the path of the last Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev? The two have converged a lot so far, but of course we know about the end of Gorbachev's story, while Kim's remains open-ended. (Oh Young-jin, Korea Times)
- NK has proposed holding high-level inter-Korean talks this week to discuss follow-up measures on agreements their leaders reached in a historic summit held last month, Seoul's unification ministry said Tuesday. (Yonhap)
- NK blasted the US on Tuesday for taking issue with the North's human rights situation, calling it "unacceptable" and "extremely rude" for a dialogue partner. (Yonhap)
- A group of NK's ruling party officials is visiting China, the North's state media said Tuesday, amid signs of thawing relations between the two countries following recent summits between their leaders. (Yonhap)
- Satellite imagery shows that NK has begun dismantling its nuclear test site in line with its promise, a US website monitoring the reclusive regime said Monday. (Yonhap)
- What do ordinary N.Korean people think about defectors? According to sources inside the country, rather than feeling wary of them, more and more residents are feeling envious about the opportunities afforded to defectors. Having a defector in the family is economically advantageous for market activities. (Kim Yoo Jin, DailyNK)
- NK has begun dismantling facilities at its nuclear test site, according to a satellite survey conducted by American researchers. (Rob Crilly, Telegraph)
- Multiple sources in NK have reported that the NK authorities are cracking down on government officials who have accumulated wealth through illicit means. (Kim Yoo Jin, DailyNK)
- After initial reporting of plans to allow experts and media personnel to observe the closing of NK's Punggye-ri Nuclear Test Site, now scheduled for next week, commercial satellite imagery from May 7 provided the first definitive evidence that dismantlement of the test site was already well underway (38 North)
- Satellite images appear to show NK is shuttering its nuclear test site, according to analysts from NK monitoring site 38 North. (Joshua Berlinger, CNN)
- NK has begun the dismantlement of its nuclear test site at Punggye-ri, the closure of which it plans to disclose to foreign media, satellite imagery showed Tuesday. (Kim Rahn, Korea Times)

- A NK delegation arrived in Beijing on Monday, Japanese media said, as the two allies step up diplomatic contacts ahead of a landmark meeting between KJU and Trump. (AFP)
- A low-level cadre in Ryanggang Province has reportedly defected from NK after taking part in a smuggling operation on the suggestion of his superiors. The cadre decided to defect after finding out he was going to be accused of "promoting an anti-socialism agenda." (Kang Mi Jin, DailyNK)
- Smartphones were once regarded as a sign of wealth in North Korea, but are now considered a necessity with residents demanding services and features such as high quality audio. (Kang Mi Jin, DailyNK)
- Is NK closer to the "normal" way of life enjoyed by the outside world than has been portrayed? Or is it unique to the North's capital of Pyongyang? A public city bike rental system Ryomyong was launched in January. (Jung Da-min, Korea Times)
- A delegation of Workers' Party Central Committee senior officials traveled from Pyongyang to Beijing Monday to learn from China's economic reforms. Their visit follows diplomatic warming between NK and China following recent back-to-back summits by their leaders. (Joongang Daily)
- A botched tunnel collapse could spread radioactive debris. Nuclear material might be buried, but accessible enough to be dug up and reused in a weapon. And even if all the testing tunnels are destroyed, NK engineers could simply dig a new one if they want to conduct another nuclear test. (Reuters)
- Three views of KJU's motivation for decnulearization could be 1) historical view, 2) the "nukes versus economy" paradox, and 3) Kim's long-term plan for dictatorship. (Lee Seong-hyon, Korea Times)
- More N.Koreans are showing an interest in politics and international relations following the inter-Korean summit and are discussing news from the Rodong Sinmun at markets throughout the country (Kim Yoo Jin, DailyNK)
- A two-year-old controversy around 12 N.Korean restaurant workers, who fled a state-controlled restaurant in China, has been rekindled, following a media report in which three of them claimed they were "kidnapped." (Choi Ha-young, Korea Times)

In South Korea:

- Next month's summit between the leaders of NK and the US will be successful only if it produces a concrete timeline for the denuclearization of the Korean Peninsula, a SK scholar said on Tuesday. (Yonhap)
- A sudden reunification of the Korean Peninsula would cause great confusion, which would include large scale migration of N.Koreans to the South, an economic report said Tuesday, calling for concrete steps to reduce the gap before integration. (Yonhap)
- S.Korean cash may soon be flowing back into the Kaesong Industrial Complex in the North, and local banks are gearing up to become the ones to manage it. (Joongang Daily)
- An incremental NK approach to denuclearization at a June 12 summit with Trump will not be acceptable to the US president or the people of SK, SK's special national security adviser said on Tuesday. (Reuters)

- With a summit with Trump rapidly approaching, Moon is minimizing his official activity this week to prepare for the White House meeting and concentrate on how to bring Washington and Pyongyang closer to cutting a deal in Singapore on June 12. (Joongang Daily)
- NK will send two diplomats to an international forum hosted by SK's government in Kazakhstan this week, apparently reflecting the recent improvement in inter-Korean relations, a unification ministry official said Tuesday. (Yonhap)
- NK's denuclearization would have broad positive implications for the SK economy, but its imminent impact would be modest, a global investment bank said Tuesday.(Yonhap)
- NK won't easily give up its nuclear weapons and its scientist and engineers — its nuclear brain trust. Washington must come up with a concrete plan to keep a close watch on NK nuclear specialists. Otherwise, the nuclear threat could resurface in the future. (Joongang Daily)
- It is hard to confirm a lawmaker's claim that Pyongyang agents abducted a NK defector-turned-journalist last year and are holding him in a dungeon, SK's unification ministry said Monday. (Kang Aa-young, Park Si-soo, Korea Times)
- Seoul welcomed Washington's plan to allow US firms to invest in NK if Pyongyang completely dismantle its nuclear arsenal. A Cheong Wa Dae official said Monday that SK expects such a proposal to be put into practice as soon as possible. (Kim Rahn, Korea Times)
- The SK government could request the North to allow nuclear inspectors to attend the dismantlement of its nuclear test site in Punggye-ri, after Tokyo and Washington expressed concerns an audience of journalists may not be enough for the event planned for May 23-25. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- Two Koreas will hold high-level talks this week to discuss follow-up measures on agreements their leaders reached in a historic summit held last month, Seoul's unification ministry said Tuesday. (Yonhap)
- Two Koreas are in close and continuous dialogue, an official from Seoul's presidential office Cheong Wa Dae confirmed Tuesday, apparently to fine-tune their methods of denuclearizing the Korean Peninsula ahead of a historic US-NK summit.(Yonhap)
- Two Koreas will hold a high-level meeting today at the border village of Panmunjom - in the same building where both their leaders held a landmark summit last month - in order to discuss ways to implement agreements made in the declaration they signed at the summit.(Joongang Daily)
- Two Koreas will hold high-level talks on Wednesday to discuss steps needed to uphold the pledge to denuclearize the Korean peninsula, SK said. (Christine Kim, Reuters)

International:

- The modus operandi of Iranian leaders when it comes to addressing pressure is to become inflexible, steadfast and retaliatory.The same can be said of the Kim regime. If the Trump team doesn't play its cards right, we could end up with more of the war rhetoric. (Joongang Daily)

- Pompeo suggests that a deal might come up shy of making NK get rid of all of its current nukes. He said that the objective was to prevent NK from having the capability to strike the US with a nuclear weapon. And he explicitly called for its getting rid of missiles, without saying the same about existing warheads. (Aaron Blake, Washington Post)
- A former American negotiator on Monday cast doubts over the prospect of irreversibly dismantling NK's nuclear weapons program. (Yonhap)
- After returning from a four-day trip to NK last week, the executive director of the UN World Food Programme (WFP) said on Tuesday that he feels a "tremendous sense of optimism" from the country's leadership that it will turn "a new page in history" amid a whirlwind of diplomacy with the outside world. (Joongang Daily)
- Trump and KJU are likely to reach a deal at their June meeting in Singapore, and if the two leaders walk away from Singapore without a deal, they would be worse off than if there had been no summit as it will reduce options to a potential conflict, according to a noted political scientist on international relations, Tuesday. (Kim Jae-kyoung, Korea Times)
- Trump's changing rhetoric on NK is a reflection of KJU's recent gestures of goodwill, the White House said Monday. (Yonhap)
- The Comprehensive Nuclear-Test-Ban Treaty Organization (CTBTO) said it has yet to be invited to observe NK's dismantlement of its Punggye-ri nuclear test site, according to a US radio report Tuesday. (Yonhap)
- The head of the UN World Food Program (WFP) on Tuesday said the NK leadership is hopeful that following a possible denuclearization deal, the international community will increase humanitarian aid for millions of people in the country who are living in poverty and suffering from malnutrition. (Brian Padden, VOA)
- Washington is currently aware of the location of one or two of Pyongyang's secret uranium enrichment facilities, and NK leader KJU is expected to acknowledge their existence and allow them to be inspected in the upcoming North-US summit, according to a diplomatic source. (Joongang Daily)
- Pompeo must stop promising the unattainable based on the hope that the NK regime has fundamentally changed its purpose. The administration should start figuring out where we could conclude some important, verifiable steps toward reducing tension.(Jennifer Rubin, Washington Post)
- N.Koreans are buoyed with a "tremendous sense of optimism" that recent diplomatic efforts will pave the way for a new future, the chief of a UN food aid agency who recently visited Pyongyang said Tuesday. (Yonhap)
- The historic summit between the US and NK will take place next month in Singapore, about 5,000 kilometers south of the NK capital, Pyongyang. Some reasons Singapore was chosen include security, past experience, and diplomatic ties. (VOA)

Prepared by Sohee Ha, James Park, HRNK Research Interns

Wednesday, May 16, 2018

N. Korea cancels high-level talks with S. Korea over military drill; White House: U.S. still hopeful for North Korea summit; South Korea says North's decision to suspend inter-Korean talks 'regrettable'

In North Korea:

(2nd LD) N. Korea cancels high-level talks with S. Korea, threatens to nix U.S. summit(Yonhap, 16/05/2018)
(4th LD) N. Korea threatens to rethink Trump-Kim summit (Yonhap, 16/05/2018)
A timeline of North Korea's backtracking on denuclearization talks (WaPo, 16/05/2018)
(News Focus) N. Korea's angry reactions portend tough negotiations ahead (Yonhap, 16/05/2018)
N. Korea cancels high-level talks with S. Korea over military drill (Yonhap, 16/05/2018)
N. Korea Escalates Threat to Pull Out of Summit with US (VOA, 16/05/2018)
N. Korea offers to join global ban on nuclear testing (Yonhap, 16/05/2018)
North Korea appears to be fixing up railways before foreign journalists arrive (*Daily*NK, 16/05/2018)
North Korea criticizes US senate passing of NKHR Reauthorization Act: 'It Won't Work'(*Daily*NK, 16/05/2018)
North Korea expands threat to cancel Trump-Kim summit, saying it won't be pushed to abandon its nukes (WaPo, 16/05/2018)
North Korea: Full response to US remarks on Trump-Kim summit (BBC, 16/05/2018)
North Korea is dismantling its nuclear site, but is it abandoning its arsenal or hiding evidence?(Reuters, 16/05/2018)
North Korea officials in China get schooled on economic growth (UPI, 05/15/2018)
North Korea plays hardball ahead of summit (Korea Times, 05/16/2018)
North Korea says may reconsider summit with Trump, suspends talks with South (Reuters, 16/05/2018)
North Korea's Would-Be Investors Can Learn Lessons From Myanmar (Bloomberg, 05/16/2018)
North Korea takes aim at John Bolton as it threatens to scrap Trump summit over nuclear demands (Telegraph, 05/16/2018)
NK threatens to cancel Trump summit (Korea Times, 05/16/2018)
North Korea threatens to cancel Trump summit (BBC, 16/05/2018)
North Korea threatens to cancel Trump summit over nuclear demands (Guardian, 16/05/2018)
North Korea Threatens to Scrap Trump Meeting on Nuclear Demands (Bloomberg, 05/15/2018)
North Korea-US talks: Kim is in this for economic guarantees (BBC, 16/05/2018)
North Korea 'will join efforts for a total ban on nuclear tests', ambassador tells UN (Telegraph, 05/15/2018)
Pyongyang cancels talks with Seoul over joint military drill, threatens to call off summit with U.S. (Joongang Daily, 16/05/2018)
Pyongyang 'reconsiders' summit with U.S., cancels talks with South (Joongang Daily, 16/05/2018)
Pyongyang 'reconsiders' Trump summit (Joongang Daily, 16/05/2018)

Squawking from Pyongyang (Joongang Daily, 16/05/2018)

In South Korea:
(2nd LD) S. Korea voices regret over N. Korea's unilateral suspension of talks (Yonhap, 16/05/2018)
(3rd LD) S. Korea voices regret over N. Korea's unilateral suspension of talks (Yonhap, 16/05/2018)
A heartfelt plea to President Moon: Please bring back my husband (*Daily*NK, 16/05/2018)
Despite North's protest, air drill will proceed as planned (Joongang Daily, 16/05/2018)
Ex-negotiator on NK advises US to be careful about rhetoric (Korea Times, 05/16/2018)
Expert urges factual study and staff training to modernize N.K. ports (Yonhap, 16/05/2018)
For young defectors, life in the South is a real drag (Joongang Daily, 16/05/2018)
Hold the champagne (Joongang Daily, 16/05/2018)
Korea's former '$5' embassy to reopen as museum in Washington (UPI, 05/15/2018)
(LEAD) S. Korea, U.S. reaffirm unity against N. Korea's pre-summit threats (Yonhap, 16/05/2018)
Rival parties give mixed responses to N.K.'s cancellation of talks (Yonhap, 16/05/2018)
Restoring North Korea's forests (Joongang Daily, 16/05/2018)
Seoul remains hopeful despite North Korea's suspension of dialogue (Yonhap, 16/05/2018)
S. Korean businessmen discuss investment in N.K. with regional counterparts (Yonhap, 16/05/2018)
S. Korea planning to set up tree nursery for forestry cooperation with N.K. (Yonhap, 16/05/2018)
S. Korea to contact N. Korea on abrupt cancellation of talks: minister (Yonhap, 16/05/2018)
S. Korea working to find 'true' reason for delay in inter-Korean dialogue: official (Yonhap, 16/05/2018)
South Korea says North's decision to suspend inter-Korean talks 'regrettable' (Reuters, 16/05/2018)
'The summit is the final chance to handle the nuclear crisis' (Joongang Daily, 16/05/2018)
(Yonhap Feature) Anti-N.K. leaflet campaign under pressure amid inter-Korean thaw (Yonhap, 16/05/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
Entrepreneurs with NK roots come to fore (Korea Times, 05/16/2018)
Hyundai to form international consortium for NK biz (Korea Times, 05/16/2018)

International:
(2nd LD) U.S. continues to plan N. Korea summit: State Department (Yonhap, 16/05/2018)
Analysis: Ahead of summit, North Korea lobs barbs at Bolton (AP, 16/05/2018)
Australia supports North Korea-US summit, Julie Bishop says (Guardian, 16/05/2018)
B-52 bomber excluded from drills after North Korea complains (UPI, 05/16/2018)
CIA Korea head paved way for Kim Jong Un, Mike Pompeo meeting (UPI, 05/15/2018)
China says goodwill needed for Korean peninsula denuclearization (Reuters, 16/05/2018)
China's Xi says supports North Korea efforts to develop economy (Reuters, 16/05/2018)
China urges North Korea not to cancel Trump summit (AP, 16/05/2018)
China Urges North Korea Not to Cancel Trump Summit (VOA, 16/05/2018)
False Starts, Failures in Diplomacy With North Korea (NYT, 16/05/2018)
For Pentagon, South Korea drills became a crucial but quiet endeavor (Reuters, 16/05/2018)
Indian minister holds talks in North Korea, first trip in 20 years (Reuters, 16/05/2018)
Kim Risks Empowering Trump Hawks With Threat to Torpedo Summit (Bloomberg, 05/16/2018)

North Korea's About-Face? It's a Return to Form (NYT, 16/05/2018)
Timeline of Recent Events on the Korean Peninsula (NYT, 16/05/2018)
The Trump-Kim Jong Un summit looks like it's on thin ice as North Korea flips on the US(Business Insider, 15/05/2018)
Trump is all in on a North Korea summit that might not happen (CNN, 16/05/2018)
Trump Is 'Ready to Meet' Despite North Korea's Threat on Summit (Bloomberg, 05/16/2018)
Trump's Korea hopes thrown into turmoil (CNN, 16/05/2018)
WFP Chief: I felt a lot optimism in N. Korea (CNN, 16/05/2018)
White House Brushes Aside North Korea's Threats to Cancel Summit With Trump (NYT, 16/05/2018)
White House Cautious on Fate of US-North Korea Summit (VOA, 16/05/2018)
White House downplays Bolton comments after North Korea outcry (CNN, 16/05/2018)
White House hopeful Kim-Trump summit will occur (Korea Times, 05/16/2018)
White House scrambles to interpret North Korea summit threat (CNN, 16/05/2018)
White House: U.S. still hopeful for North Korea summit (Reuters, 16/05/2018)

In North Korea:

- NK said Wed. it is canceling high-level talks with SK and threatened to pull out of a summit with US over the allies' ongoing military exercises. (Yonhap)
- A senior N.Korean official warned Wed. that Pyongyang will reconsider the agreed-upon summit talks with US if it comes under continued pressure to "unilaterally" abandon its nuclear program. (Yonhap)
- Less than three weeks ago, N.Korean leader KJU and S.Korean President Moon spent a day shaking and holding hands, hugging and listening to Korean pop after sunset. (Rick Noack, WaPo)
- Through its latest bouts of anger, NK appears to have shown it is set to drive a hard bargain with US over its regime security and economic benefits in return for denuclearization steps, analysts said Wed. (Yonhap)
- NK said Wed. it is canceling high-level talks with SK planned for later in the day due to ongoing military exercises between the South and US. (Yonhap)
- NK's sudden threat to pull out of the upcoming summit with the US raises new doubts of whether a denuclearization deal is possible. (Brian Padden, VOA)
- NK will join global efforts to ban nuclear weapons testing, an official from the regime has said, following an earlier pledge to halt all nuclear and ballistic missile tests. (Yonhap)
- There are reports that NK is preparing construction on a railway that would be used to transport foreign reporters to the scheduled destruction of the Punggye-ri nuclear weapons site. (Jo Hyon, DailyNK)
- NK's state newspaper has criticized the N.Korean Human Rights Reauthorization Act of 2017, which was passed by the US Senate on April 24. (DailyNK)
- NK is rapidly moving the goal posts for next month's summit between leader KJU and President Trump, saying US must stop insisting that the North "unilaterally" abandon its nuclear weapons program and stop talking about a Libya-style solution to the standoff. (Anna Field, WaPo)

- N.Korean Deputy Foreign Minister Kim Kye-gwan has warned his country could pull out of a summit with US President Trump, accusing Washington of harbouring sinister intentions. (BBC)
- Satellite imagery shows NK dismantling facilities at its nuclear test site, but experts say the images can't reveal whether it is the first step toward full denuclearization, or an attempt to cloak nuclear capabilities from outside observers. (Josh Smith, Reuters)
- Top officials of NK's Workers' Party are in China to get a better understanding of economic reform, according to Beijing's foreign ministry. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- Political analysts presume NK's abrupt cancellation of high-level inter-Korean talks and threats to reconsider the Washington-Pyongyang summit are aimed at taking the lead ahead of talks over its denuclearization. (Kim Rahn, Korea Times)
- NK threw next month's summit between KJU and US President Trump into doubt on Wed., threatening weeks of diplomatic progress by saying it may reconsider if Washington insists it unilaterally gives up its nuclear weapons. (Christine Kim, Josh Smith, Reuters)
- As the world waits to see if US President Donald Trump and NK leader KJU actually meet, investors hoping to profit from peace on the Korean peninsula could learn lessons from Myanmar. (Matthew Burgess, Alyssa McDonald, Bloomberg)
- Donald Trump's historic meeting with KJU has been thrown into uncertainty as NK warned it could be cancelled over US military exercises and if Washington presses ahead with its one-sided demand for Pyongyang to give up its nuclear arsenal. (Ben Riley-Smith, Nicola Smith, Neil Connor, Telegraph)
- NK threatened to cancel the planned summit between its leader KJU and US President Donald Trump, Wed., saying Washington is "unilaterally" demanding the regime relinquish its nuclear weapons. (Lee Min-hyung, Korea Times)
- NK has said it may pull out of a summit with US President Trump if the US insists it gives up its nuclear weapons. (BBC)
- NK has abruptly cancelled high-level talks with Seoul and threatened to pull out of a planned summit with Trump if the US continues to insist on the regime giving up all of its nuclear weapons. (Julian Borger and Justin McCurry, Guardian)
- NK threatened to walk away from its meeting with President Donald Trump next month if the US made a "one-sided demand" for the regime to surrender its nuclear weapons. (Kanga Kong, Andy Sharp, Bloomberg)
- In April of this year though, about five years after announcing his Byungjin policy, KJU said the North had achieved what it needed to on the nuclear front, and could now shift its concentration to the economy. (Karishma Vaswani, BBC)
- NK plans to join international efforts to implement a total ban on nuclear weapons tests, it told the UN disarmament body Tues. (Telegraph)
- NK called off a planned high-level meeting with SK early today, just hours before it was to take place at the border village of Panmunjom, blaming Seoul's ongoing joint drill with Washington as an "undisguised challenge" to the inter-Korean declaration signed at the South-North summit last month. (Lee Sung-eun, Joongang Daily)
- Pyongyang threatened to pull out of its planned summit with Washington on Wed., saying it had no choice but to "reconsider" the landmark meeting if the US keeps driving the regime into a "corner" by forcing it to abandon its nuclear arsenal. (Lee Sung-eun, Joongang Daily)

- Pyongyang threatened to pull out of its planned summit with Washington on Wed., saying it had no choice but to “reconsider” the landmark meeting if US keeps driving the regime into a “corner” by forcing it to abandon its nuclear arsenal. (Lee Sung-eun, Joongang Daily)
- NK suddenly announced it would put off high-level talks just a few hours before they were to take place. Early Wed., Pyongyang notified Seoul of its intention to not attend the meeting after finding fault with a joint SK-US Air Force drill. (Joongang Daily)

In South Korea:

- SK expressed regret over NK's unilateral decision to cancel inter-Korean talks planned for Wed., calling on Pyongyang to return to dialogue as soon as possible. (Yonhap)
- SK expressed regret over NK's unilateral decision to cancel inter-Korean talks planned for Wed., calling on Pyongyang to return to dialogue as soon as possible. (Yonhap)
- A press conference drawing attention to the addition of another name to the list of S.Korean civilians detained by NK was held at the National Assembly’s Jungron Hall on May 11. The press conference included the participation of the family of a N.Korean defector, and a tearful reading of a petition to be delivered to South Korean President Moon. (Kang Mi-jin, DailyNK)
- SK's defense minister and the commander of the USFK held an emergency meeting on Wed. and agreed to proceed with ongoing military exercises as planned after NK abruptly called off a high-level meeting with the South in protest of the drill. (Sarah Kim, Joongang Daily)
- A former negotiator for the inter-Korean summit in 2000 advised Washington, Wed., to give NK a chance to "save face," saying unnecessary harsh rhetoric may spoil the upcoming denuclearization talks with NK. (Park Ji-won, Korea Times)
- A S.Korean scholar on Wed. called for surveying NK's port facilities and pushing for the training of the North's port operators as the first step in the upcoming inter-Korean economic cooperation. (Yonhap)
- Despite growing interest in N.Korean society after the inter-Korean summit last month, young defectors are still battling prejudice and struggling to find jobs in the South. (Kim Ji-a, Laura Song, Joongang Daily)
- What is urgent is stopping NK's nuclear capabilities. Casual talk of a McDonald’s in Pyongyang can come later. We must concentrate on a serious — and feasible — plan to denuclearize NK. (Kim Hyun-ki, Joongang Daily)
- A historical building in Washington, D.C., that belonged to Korea but was seized by Imperial Japan for a mere $5 will reopen as a museum to the public next Tues. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- The top diplomats of SK and US held emergency phone talks Wed. in a show of solidarity against NK's renewed brinkmanship ahead of key summit meetings. (Yonhap)
- S.Korean ruling and opposition parties on Wed. gave mixed responses to NK's unilateral cancellation of high-level talks with Seoul and threat to pull out of a planned summit with US. (Yonhap)
- Experts support the S.Korean government’s will to help NK’s reforestation efforts. Despite sanctions, the international community does not mind such a plan being reviewed before denuclearization because reforestation is a humanitarian issue. (Kim Young-hoon, Joongang Daily)

- SK apparently believes NK is still faithful to its commitment to denuclearize despite the communist state's decision to indefinitely suspend its cross-border dialogue with the South, an official from the presidential office Cheong Wa Dae indicated Wed. (Yonhap)
- S.Korean corporate representatives held talks with their US and Japanese counterparts over a possible joint investment in NK, a local business lobby said Wed. (Yonhap)
- SK plans to set up a tree nursery on its eastern border city of Goseong as it seeks to promote cooperation with NK in the field of forestry, ruling party officials said Wed. (Yonhap)
- SK will deliver its position to NK on its unilateral and abrupt decision to cancel the planned high-level inter-Korean talks, Seoul's unification minister said Wed. (Yonhap)
- SK is moving to identify NK's true intention in delaying inter-Korean dialogue scheduled to be held Wed., an official from the presidential office Cheong Wa Dae said. (Yonhap)
- North Korea's decision on Wed. to suspend a ministerial-level inter-Korean meeting is regrettable and is not in line with a historic declaration announced between the two Koreas in late April, SK's unification ministry said. (Reuters)
- Han Yong-sup, a professor at Korea National Defense University, has a long resume related to NK's denuclearization. His recent book, "The Fate of North Korea's Nuclear Weapons," uses N.Korean source material to explore the process of nuclear weapons development through three generations of leadership in Pyongyang. (Han Yong-sup, Joongang Daily)
- Lee Min-bok has flown more than a thousand balloons north of the inter-Korean border every year, sending anti-North Korean leaflets, one dollar bills, medicines and USB sticks containing S.Korean pop music and soap operas. (Yonhap)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- As SK and NK take steps toward economic cooperation, entrepreneurs who have their roots in NK are expected to play a role. Having contributed to economic development with diligence and vitality symbolizing people from NK, they now expect to contribute to their hometowns. (Yoon Ja-young, Korea Times)
- One of the best-known names in business in SK is preparing to take advantage of the country's improving relations with NK. While there are lots of questions over whether US companies want to invest heavily in NK given the many uncertainties, Hyundai Group is betting big on new kinds of gambles there. (Kim Yoo-chul, Korea Times)

International:

- US said Tues. it continues to plan for a historic summit between US President Trump and N.Korean leader KJU despite the regime's threat to withdraw. (Yonhap)
- NK has a message for US President Trump ahead of next month's summit: Don't listen to your new hard-line national security adviser, John Bolton. (Eric Talmadge, AP)

- 'I have said from the outset that NK must demonstrate concrete, verifiable steps that it is genuine in its desire to denuclearise and to work towards peace on the Korean peninsula,' Julie Bishop says (Guardian)
- Joint exercises between the US and SK will move forward but the B-52 strategic bomber and eight F-22 Raptors will not be deployed during drills. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- The head of the CIA's Korea Mission Center has kept a low profile but should be credited for the recent meetings between Secretary of State Mike Pompeo and KJU according to S.Korean press reports. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- China said on Wed. all parties should demonstrate goodwill and sincerity to create a conducive atmosphere for denuclearization on the Korean peninsula, after NK cast doubt on a summit with US. (Reuters)
- China supports NK's efforts to develop its economy and improve relations with SK, state radio on Wed. quoted President Xi as saying. (Reuters)
- China on Wed. urged ally NK not to cancel a historic summit between its leader, KJU, and US President Trump. (Christopher Bodeen, AP)
- China on Wed. urged ally NK not to cancel a historic summit between its leader, KJU, and US President Trump. (VOA)
- Pyongyang breaking off a high-level meeting with Seoul and threatening to scrap next month's historic summit with Washington over regular allied military drills is seen as a move by Kim to gain leverage and establish that he's entering the crucial nuclear negotiations from a position of strength. (NYT)
- Before NK's condemnation of US-SK military drills, even US policy wonks who follow every twist and turn of events on the Korean peninsula probably did not know much about them. That was no accident. (Phil Stewart, Reuters)
- India has sent a government minister to NK for the first time in nearly two decades for talks on political and regional issues, the foreign ministry said on Wed., following signs of a thaw on the Korean peninsula. (Sanjeev Miglani, Reuters)
- KJU's regime just launched a blistering attack on John Bolton, one of the most hawkish Trump administration members. NK may end up emboldening the US national security adviser instead. (Andy Sharp, David Tweed, Bloomberg)
- Wed.'s news that NK was considering calling off KJU's planned June meeting with President Trump reflected a pattern by the unpredictable regime: diplomatic outreach, followed by erratic behavior and, in many cases, an outright rejection of peace overtures. (Gerry Mullany, NYT)
- After a few months of rapprochement, NK abruptly called off scheduled high-level talks with SK on Wed. and warned US that a planned summit with President Trump could be at risk. (NYT)
- The North Korean government threatened to cancel the impending summit between President Donald Trump and Kim Jong Un. (Johan Haltiwanger, David Choi, Business Insider)
- He's spent weeks cooing about the prospects of a high-level summit, set for June 12 in Singapore, with NK and the prospect of a huge diplomatic win -- getting that country to agree to international demands to end its nuclear program. (Z. Byron Wolf, CNN)

- The White House pushed back on reports that the scheduled nuclear talks with NK could be unraveling, saying President Donald Trump is ready to meet next month despite a threat pull out from KJU's regime. (Terrence Dopp, Bloomberg)
- An unexpected series of threats from the enclosed Stalinist state threatened to nix next month's planned summit in Singapore between Trump and NK's leader KJU and sink White House hopes of a spectacular foreign policy success. (Stephen Collinson, CNN)
- World Food Programme's Executive Director David Beasley talks to Christiane Amanpour about his recent trip to NK, where he says he found a new sense of optimism. (CNN)
- The White House brushed aside threats by NK on Wed. to cancel an upcoming summit meeting between President Trump and the North's leader, KJU, saying it was still "hopeful" the meeting will happen — but that Mr. Trump would be fine if it did not. (Mark Landler, Choe Sang-hun and Jane Perlez, NYT)
- The White House is taking a wait-and-see approach on whether next month's Singapore summit between President Trump and N.Korean leader KJU will take place after Pyongyang expressed sharp reservations about US demands that it dismantle its nuclear weapons program. (VOA)
- The White House on Wed. downplayed comments by national security adviser John Bolton, who recently invoked Libya's decision to denuclearize during the Bush administration as a model for US policy on NK, potentially placing a planned US-North Korea summit in jeopardy. (Veronica Stracqua, CNN)
- The White House is "still hopeful" the summit between NK's KJU and US President Donald Trump will proceed despite Pyongyang's threat to cancel it, spokeswoman Sarah Sanders said Wed. (AFP)
- President Trump's aides were working Wed. to determine whether overnight warnings from NK might scuttle a highly anticipated summit with KJU, even as some in the administration conceded the threats were an expected bump in any dealing with the unpredictable hermit regime. (Kevin Liptak, CNN)
- The US is still hopeful about a planned summit with N.Korean leader KJU but President Trump is prepared for a tough negotiation process, White House spokeswoman Sarah Sanders said on Wed. (Reuters)

Prepared by Dohyun Kim, Jinny Ahn, HRNK Research Interns

——————————————

Thursday, May 17, 2018

N.Korean defectors at risk after TV interviews; N. Korean media: Dialogue and war drills can't co-exist; SK's unification ministry seeks talks with NK to implement summit agreements; NK objects to 'Libya Model' of denuclearization

Top News:
North Korean defectors at risk after TV interviews (UPI, 05/17/2018)

In North Korea:
Kim wants a Donald Trump-John Bolton breakup (CNN, 05/16/2018)
N. Korean media: Dialogue and war drills can't co-exist (Yonhap, 05/17/2018)
North Korea calls ex-diplomat 'human garbage' (UPI, 05/16/2018)
North Korea Cancellation Threats a Bargaining Tool, Analysts Say (VOA, 05/17/2018)
North Korea Is Selling Facial Recognition Technology, Report Finds (NPR, 05/16/2018)
North Korea says won't hold talks with 'incompetent' South unless differences settled (Reuters, 05/16/2018)
North Korea says won't hold talks with South unless 'issues resolved': KCNA (Reuters, 05/17/2018)
North Korea's missile and nuclear programme (BBC, 05/17/2018)
Revealed: North Korea Is Secretly Selling Face Scanning Tech (Daily Beast, 05/16/2018)
Why North Korea Is Angered by 'Libya Model' in Nuclear Talks (NYT, 05/16/2018)

In South Korea:
S. Korea forms task force to prepare joint events with N.K. to mark summit anniversary (Yonhap, 05/17/2018)
S.Korea to play "mediator" to resolve N.Korea-U.S. summit doubts – official (Reuters, 05/16/2018)
S. Korea to seek G-20's backing for Korea peace process (Yonhap, 05/17/2018)
S. Korean NSC urges N. Korea to faithfully implement summit agreements (Yonhap, 05/17/2018)
Seoul pushes for successful Trump-Kim talks as North warns (WaPo, 05/17/2018)
South offers to mediate US-NK standoff (Korea Times, 05/17/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
(LEAD) N. Korea threatens to freeze dialogue with S. Korea over military drills with U.S. (Yonhap, 05/17/2018)
Dance icon Ahn Eun-me turns to N. Korea for inspiration for her latest work (Yonhap, 05/17/2018)
North Korea's Sudden Shift Puts South's Leader on the Spot (NYT, 05/17/2018)
S. Korea's unification ministry seeks talks with N. Korea to implement summit agreements (Yonhap, 05/17/2018)
South Korea has reason to be skeptical — and optimistic — about dialogue with North Korea (WaPo, 05/16/2018)

International:
'Diplotainment at its pinnacle': Critics fear Trump's style eclipses substance on North Korea (WaPo, 05/16/2018)
(2nd LD) Trump on N. Korea summit: We'll see what happens (Yonhap, 05/17/2018)
(LEAD) Minister: N. Korea, U.S. apart over details of denuclearization (Yonhap, 05/17/2018)
(LEAD) Xi emphasizes friendship 'sealed in blood' with N.K. (Yonhap, 05/17/2018)
38 North Joins the Stimson Center (Stimson Center, 05/17/2018)
38 North's New Home: The Henry L. Stimson Center (38 North, 05/17/2018)
Ban says US pullout of Iran deal bad example for NK (Korea Times, 05/17/2018)

China says U.S. should cherish opportunity for peace on Korean peninsula (Reuters, 05/16/2018)
Donald Trump uncertain if Kim Jong-un meeting will happen as US warns sanctions will remain without summit (Telegraph, 05/16/2018)
Enough with the gamesmanship. Dealing with North Korea requires pragmatism. (WaPo, 05/16/2018)
Guam governor supports calls for Donald Trump to receive Nobel Peace Prize for North Korea talks (Telegraph, 05/17/2018)
How Kim Jong Un got cold feet (WaPo, 05/17/2018)
If Donald Trump wants a successful deal with North Korea, the US has to stop using the Libya example (Telegraph, 05/16/2018)
India looks to enhance ties with North Korea with ministerial visit (CNBC, 05/17/2018)
Is North Korea trying to get John Bolton fired? (CNN, 05/17/2018)
John Bolton proposed the 'Libya model' for North Korea. Why is Pyongyang so angry about it? (WaPo, 05/17/2018)
Kim Jong-un's warning shot to the US over nuclear talks (BBC, 05/16/2018)
N. Korea objects to 'Libya Model' of denuclearization (CNN, 05/16/2018)
North Korea summit: US hopeful Trump-Kim meet will go ahead (BBC, 05/16/2018)
North Korea Threatens to Scuttle Talks With US Over Push For Unilateral Denuclearization (RFA, 05/16/2018)
North Korea's bluff should be a White House wake-up call (WaPo, 05/16/2018)
North Korean Threats Are 'Splash of Cold Water' on Expectations for Talks (NYT, 05/16/2018)
Nuclear test-ban body says ready to verify Korean site closure if asked (Reuters, 05/16/2018)
Odds in favor of going ahead with U.S.-North Korea summit: Bolton (Reuters, 05/16/2018)
On North Korea, Trump is getting played by both sides (WaPo, 05/16/2018)
On the Chinese border, optimism for increased trade, better relations (Joongang Daily, 05/17/2018)
Resolution calls on North Korea to return spy ship USS Pueblo (UPI, 05/17/2018)
Summit jitters (Joongang Daily, 05/17/2018)
This is why North Korea reacted so strongly to Bolton's mention of the 'Libya model' (WaPo, 05/17/2018)
Trump: 'We'll see' if North Korea summit is on after Kim's threat to cancel (Guardian, 05/16/2018)
Trump: US hasn't been notified about threat to cancel summit (WaPo, 05/16/2018)
Trump faces North Korea dilemma after Bolton infuriates Pyongyang (Guardian, 05/16/2018)
Trump responds to North Korea balking on summit (CNN, 05/16/2018)
Trump says he will continue to insist on denuclearization of the Korean Peninsula (WaPo, 05/16/2018)
Trump's national security adviser believes US-North Korea summit will still happen (CNN, 05/16/2018)
U.S. demanded North Korea ship some nuclear warheads, ICBM abroad within six months: media (Reuters, 05/17/2018)
U.S. hopeful Trump-Kim meeting will go ahead (CNN, 05/16/2018)
US has a daunting to-do list to get ready for NKorea summit (WaPo, 05/17/2018)
WH on N. Korea summit threat: We expected this (CNN, 05/16/2018)
What Role Will the UN Play in Trump's North Korea Talks? (VOA, 05/17/2018)
White House hopeful Kim-Trump summit will occur (Korea Times, 05/17/2018)

White House pulls back from Libya model for North Korea (Joongang Daily, 05/17/2018)
White House shoots down Libya model (Joongang Daily, 05/17/2018)
Who has upper hand in U.S. and North Korea negotiations? (CNN, 05/16/2018)
Why did an Indian minister just go to North Korea? (BBC, 05/17/2018)
With the North Korea talks at risk, has Trump maxed out on 'maximum pressure'? (Telegraph, 05/17/2018)
Xi talks to delegation from North (Joongang Daily, 05/17/2018)
Xi told Kim he'll support him even if Trump meeting fails (Joongang Daily, 05/17/2018)

Top News:

- Greg Scarlatoiu, executive director of HRNK in Washington, said claims of a S.Korean spy agency abduction of N.Koreans has no credibility. Scarlatoiu said that NK is picking on the waitresses because it is a high-profile case, stating that "they would really like to see one or two or all of the return to NK to make an example out of them, to threaten others, make sure they don't defect, [as well as] threaten defectors in SK." He continued by stating that "the regime is very bothered by the findings of the United Nations Commission of Inquiry and they want them to go away." (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)

In North Korea:

- The choicest words in the N.Korean statement were directed at the ultra-hawkish Bolton. "We do not hide our feeling of repugnance toward him," said senior N.Korean diplomat Kim Kye Gwan in the official statement. (David Rothkopf, CNN)
- NK's media on Thurs. repeated its rhetoric opposing joint military drills by SK and the US, over which it abruptly cancelled planned talks with Seoul the previous day. (Yonhap)
- NK condemned a high-profile defector in SK as part of a series of verbal attacks that have put the US and SK on edge, including top officials overseeing military exercises on the peninsula. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- After a months-long diplomatic thaw in relations, NK on Wed. abruptly threatened to withdraw from planned talks between US President Trump and Leader KJU. Analysts tell VOA's Korea service that the move may be a negotiating tactic ahead of the summit scheduled for Jun. 12 in Singapore. (Jesusemen Oni, VOA)
- NK has been secretly selling facial recognition technology, fingerprint scanning and other products overseas. That's what researchers at the James Martin Center for Nonproliferation Studies found by investigating the country's information technology networks. (Sasha Ingber, NPR)
- NK's chief negotiator called the S.Korean government "ignorant and incompetent" on Thurs., denounced US-S.Korean air combat drills and threatened to halt all talks with SK unless its demands are met. (Joyce Lee, Heekyong Yang, Reuters)
- NK won't sit down for talks with SK unless issues that led to the suspension of a high-level meeting this week are resolved, the Korean Central News Agency said. (Reuters)

- A series of successful missile and nuclear tests throughout 2017 demonstrated NK's growing power and military expertise. (BBC)
- NK's activity in the global IT sector is a significantly underappreciated problem with several dimensions. It represents another source of continued revenue for NK. At present, Pyongyang is not prohibited from providing these sorts of services per se; UN sanctions have focused mostly on banning the export of N.Korean material goods, including electronics. (Andrea Berger, Cameron Trainer, Daily Beast)
- When NK suddenly threw a historic summit meeting with US into question on Wed., it cited—five times—the fate of another country and another leader, half a world away, as an example of why no one should trust US efforts to disarm another nation. (Megan Specia and David E. Sanger, NYT)

In South Korea:

- SK has formed a task force to arrange joint events with NK to celebrate their first summit meeting held in 2000, a unification ministry official said Thurs. (Yonhap)
- SK is seeking to mediate to bridge the gap between the US and NK as they appear to have "some kind of difference in stances" ahead of a planned summit, an official at SK's presidential Blue House said on Thurs. (Joyce Lee, Reuters)
- SK said Thurs. it will try to muster support from the other Group of 20 member states for a nuclear-free Korea and regional peace. (Yonhap)
- SK's National Security Council (NSC) on Thurs. called on NK to faithfully implement agreements for denuclearization and peace reached at the recent inter-Korean summit, one day after the communist state abruptly called off a high-level meeting largely aimed at discussing ways to implement the summit agreements. (Yonhap)
- NK strongly criticized SK over ongoing US-S.Korean military exercises on Thurs. and said it will not return to talks with its rival until Seoul resolves its grievances. (Kim Tong-Hyung, AP)
- Seoul will play a more active role in helping Washington and Pyongyang narrow the gap for their denuclearization talks, after NK threatened to cancel the planned summit between its leader KJU and US President Trump, Cheong Wa Dae said Thurs. (Kim Rahn, Korea Times)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- NK threatened again Thurs. to not hold talks with SK unless Seoul stops an ongoing military exercise with the US, casting a pall over inter-Korean ties after last month's historic summit. (Yonhap)
- The decades-old division of SK and NK has produced two uniquely different variations of what was previously one single Korean culture. Dance may be one of the few cultural sectors where the division is most acutely felt, given that dancing entails little communication, other than the purely physical movement of bodies. With little outside influence and the communist party's control of the arts, NK is where the archetype of Korean culture is better preserved, compared with SK, where culture underwent a wild transformation. (Yonhap)

- A week ago, things could not be going better for President Moon of SK. He was successfully arranging a meeting between NK's leader, KJU, and President Trump. Now, the matchmaking role that has defined Mr. Moon's presidency is suddenly in doubt. (Choe Sang-hun, NYT)
- SK's unification ministry said Thurs. that it will continue to urge NK to come out for talks to discuss follow-up measures to their recent summit agreements. (Yonhap)
- After months of a tense war of words between the US and NK, S.Koreans are looking forward to the next steps toward the promise of denuclearization and a permanent peace on the Korean Peninsula. But S.Koreans are not without skepticism—and the latest threats from NK to withdraw from the Jun. summit with President Trump are a reminder that cooperation on the Korean Peninsula won't be easy to secure. (Il Hyun Cho, Seo-Hyun Park, WaPo)

International:

- President Trump's strategy on NK has played out in full public view over 16 months with dramatic, made-for-TV moments designed to focus global attention on his risky faceoff with dictator KJU. But as N.Korean officials abruptly cast doubt this week on Trump's planned historic summit with Kim in Singapore next month, critics fear that a president determined to declare victory where his predecessors failed will allow his desire for a legacy-making deal to override the substance of the negotiations. (David Nakamura, WaPo)
- US President Donald Trump said Wed. that he will see "what happens" as to the fate of his planned meeting with N.Korean leader KJU. (Yonhap)
- SK's top diplomat said Thurs. there's a gap between NK and the US on ways to achieve the common goal of a nuclear-free Korea. (Yonhap)
- Chinese President Xi Jinping has met with visiting N.Korean ruling party officials and emphasized the importance of advancing a friendship "sealed in blood" between the two countries, NK's state-run media reported Thurs. (Yonhap)
- From the Stimson Center's Press Release: "38 North, the website devoted to providing informed policy and technical analysis of NK, joins the Stimson Center as of Jun. 1, 2018. The 38 North team, led by Joel Wit and Jenny Town, will become an important part the Center's growing East Asia Program." (Stimson Center)
- 38 North is moving to The Henry L. Stimson Center, a Washington-based research center working to solve the world's greatest threats to security and prosperity. (38 North)
- Former UN Secretary General Ban said Wed. the US withdrawing from the Iranian nuclear deal does not serve as a good precedent for negotiating an agreement with NK. (Kim Bo-eun, Korea Times)
- The measures NK has taken to ease tension on the Korean peninsula should be acknowledged, and all other parties, especially the US, should cherish the opportunity for peace, the Chinese government's top diplomat, Wang Yi, said. (Reuters)
- Trump has conceded he does not know if his meeting with KJU will go ahead after N.Korean officials openly criticized his administration's demands. (Ben Riley-Smith and Nicola Smith, Telegraph)
- In this opinion piece for the Washington Post, New Jersey Senator Bob Menendez writes that the improving relations between NK and SK present a historic opportunity for denuclearization and lasting peace. However, he also states that the US must be clear-eyed about the challenges ahead. (Bob Menendez, WaPo)

- Nine months after NK threatened to launch ballistic missiles into waters around Guam, the governor of the Pacific island has joined the campaign for President Trump to be awarded the Nobel Peace Prize. (Julian Ryall, Telegraph)
- Whether the summit goes forward, NK has shown how closely it is keeping tabs on the US news cycle—and how it's adept at influencing that news cycle as well. (Adam Taylor, WaPo)
- The potential collapse of Jun. talks between KJU and Trump is a warning sign that the White House should refrain from championing the denuclearization of Libya as a successful model for NK to follow. (Nicola Smith, Telegraph)
- India, bolstered by recent peace signals from NK, is moving to strengthen ties with the reclusive regime. (Nyshka Chandran, CNBC)
- By focusing their ire on Bolton, the N.Koreans kept the door open to positive relations with Trump, while signaling that Bolton at the table in Jun. would not be in the US leader's interest. (Jamie Tarabay, CNN)
- Apart from the ongoing US-S.Korean air force drills, NK appeared especially dismayed by suggestions from US national security adviser John Bolton that a Libya-style solution could work with NK. (Rick Noack, WaPo)
- NK is making its demands clear. This has very little to do with military drills and more to do with the Sun. talk shows in the US during which John Bolton and Mike Pompeo outlined what might be on offer if KJU gave up his nuclear weapons. (Laura Bicker, BBC)
- NK threatening to withdraw from talks with the US but experts say, based on prior actions, the White House should have seen this coming. (CNN)
- The Trump administration is hopeful its summit with NK will go ahead, despite threats of cancellation. (BBC)
- NK on Wed. threatened to scuttle a planned summit between its leader KJU and US President Trump over Washington's push for its unilateral denuclearization, but the White House said it won't back down on its demands and expects "tough negotiations" with Pyongyang. (RFA)
- NK's threat to call off the summit meeting between dictator KJU and President Trump next month is surely a bluff, but all the same it should serve as a wake-up call for the White House. (WaPo)
- The White House on Wed. brushed aside threats by NK to cancel a summit meeting between President Trump and its leader, KJU, but the harsh words underscored the chasm that will separate the two leaders next month in Singapore over how to deal with NK's nuclear arsenal. (Mark Landler, NYT)
- The world's main nuclear test-ban body stands ready to verify NK's closure of its test site but it has yet to be asked and the process would take weeks rather than days, its chief said on Wed. (Reuters)
- The odds are still in favor of going ahead with a Jun. summit between President Donald Trump and N.Korean leader KJU, US national security adviser John Bolton said on Wed., despite Pyongyang's threat to call off the unprecedented meeting. (Reuters)
- In this opinion piece, Paul Waldman opinions that it's entirely possible Trump will make some kind of agreement in which the N.Koreans pledges to do something that costs them little and which they might renege on anyway, just so he can say he got a win and tell everyone he's the greatest negotiator in history. NK, like everyone else in the world, is realizing not just that this isn't true, but also that Trump actually believes it—and that as a result, it won't be that hard to manipulate him. (Paul Waldman, WaPo)

- Traffic once again clogs the Friendship Bridge connecting China and NK. Most of the freight trucks here have Chinese license plates, but here and there, plates from NK's North Pyongan Province can also be seen. (Ko Soo-suk, Shim Kyu-seok, Joongang Daily)
- As the White House prepares President Donald Trump for his meeting with NK's KJU, a movement is building in Congress to return a US Navy spy ship. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- Washington and Pyongyang are battling over details of denuclearization. Their war of nerves will deepen with less than a month before the summit. Nevertheless, we hope Trump does his best to achieve complete denuclearization in a deal of the century. (Joongang Daily)
- Elizabeth N. Saunders asked Malfrid Braut-Hegghammer, an associate professor of political science at the University of Oslo who wrote a book on the Libyan and Iraqi nuclear programs, to explain why the Libya analogy has become a stumbling block for diplomacy between the US and NK in this analysis piece for the Washington Post. (Elizabeth N. Saunders, WaPo)
- Pyongyang threatened to withdraw over 'one-sided demands' but Trump says he hasn't been told talks have been axed. (Guardian)
- Amid fresh uncertainty over his planned summit with N.Korean leader KJU, President Donald Trump said Wed. that he is committed to pressing for the country to abandon its nuclear program as part of any meeting. (Zeke Miller, Catherine Lucey, AP)
- Trump is keen to keep his appointment in Singapore but the row involving his national security adviser presents a serious hurdle. (Guardian)
- Trump says "we'll see" in response to NK threatening to cancel an upcoming summit. (CNN)
- President Trump said Wed. that he will continue to insist on denuclearization of the Korean Peninsula, despite threats from N.Korean officials to cancel a much-anticipated Jun. 12 summit. (Jenna Johnson, WaPo)
- President Trump's national security adviser, John Bolton, told a radio host Wed. he believes the summit with KJU will happen, despite recent threats from NK to withdraw. (Kevin Liptak, CNN)
- The US has demanded NK ship some nuclear warheads, an intercontinental ballistic missile (ICBM) and other nuclear material overseas within six months, the Asahi newspaper said on Thurs., citing several sources familiar with N.Korean issues. (Reuters)
- Christopher Hill, former. US Ambassador to SK says NK is looking for more concrete measures by the US ahead of the historic summit. (CNN)
- President Donald Trump and his team have a daunting to-do list to work through as they prepare for next month's expected summit with N.Korean leader KJU. (Catherine Lucey, Zeke Miller, Matthew Lee, AP)
- After NK threatened to withdraw from talks, the White House is trying to manage expectations. (Barbara Starr, CNN)
- On Fri., UN Secretary-General Antonio Guterres will meet US President Trump at the White House for their first meeting since the American president withdrew from the Iran nuclear agreement. (William Gallo, VOA)

- The White House is "still hopeful" the summit between NK's KJU and US President Trump will proceed despite Pyongyang's threat to cancel it, spokeswoman Sarah Sanders said Wed. (AFP)
- The White House on Wed. indicated the Libya model advocated by its national security adviser John Bolton was not applicable to denuclearizing NK, apparently reacting to NK's threat to pull out of a summit scheduled for next month. (Kang Jin-kyu, Joongang Daily)
- The White House said Wed. that the Libya model advocated by National Security Advisor John Bolton was not applicable to denuclearizing NK, apparently reacting to NK's threat to pull out of a summit scheduled for next month. (Kang Jin-kyu, Joongang Daily)
- The panel weighs in on NK threatening to cancel the upcoming summit between President Trump and KJU. (CNN)
- On Thur., India revealed that it had sent a minister to NK for the first time in two decades. (Soutik Biswas, BBC)
- When NK threatened to call off next month's summit with the US, because of the insistence it give up its nuclear weapons, the White House appeared to have been caught off guard. (John Hemmings, Telegraph)
- China supports NK's efforts to develop its economy, Chinese President Xi Jinping told a group of NK's ruling Workers' Party senior officials in a meeting in Beijing Wed., as the two sides emphasized friendly cooperation, enhanced exchanges and "blood ties." (Sarah Kim, Joongang Daily)
- Chinese President Xi Jinping told N.Korean leader KJU during their summit last week that Beijing has his back even if the NK-US summit scheduled for next month fails, according to a government source in Seoul. (Jeong Yong-soo, Sarah Kim, Joongang Daily)

Prepared by Jinny Ahn, Dohyun Kim, HRNK Research Interns

——————————————————

Friday, May 18, 2018

Letter asks Trump to remember political prisoners in North Korea negotiations; Defectors juggle mixed sentiments on Korean détente; Trump tells NK's Kim to denuclearize or risk overthrow

Top News:

Letter asks Trump to remember political prisoners in North Korea negotiations (Catholic News Agency, 05/17/2018)

In North Korea:

Ahead of Trump summit, Kim Jong Un crafts a careful message (WaPo, 05/17/2018)
Kim told Pompeo he is willing to accept U.S. troop presence for now (Joongang Daily, 05/18/2018)

N.K. holds party's military commission meeting to decide on 'organizational' matters (Yonhap, 05/18/2018)
N. Korea offers to join global efforts for nuke test ban (Yonhap, 05/18/2018)
North Korean Hackers Are Spreading Spyware On Google Play And Targeting Defectors Via Facebook (Forbes, 05/17/2018)
North Koreans Indifferent to Propaganda Trumpeting Kim Jong Un's Diplomacy (RFA, 05/17/2018)
Pyongyang 'reconsiders' Trump summit (Joongang Daily, 05/18/2018)
Wider availability of canned foods reflects market development in North Korea (DailyNK, 05/18/2018)

In South Korea:
Businessmen renew call to visit shuttered industrial complex in N. Korea (Yonhap, 05/18/2018)
Moon looks to narrow gap between U.S., N.K. at summit with Trump (Yonhap, 05/18/2018)
S. Korea seeks reopening of air routes through NK airspace (Korea Times, 05/18/2018)
South Korea asks: Who is that mystery man with Pompeo and Kim? (WaPo, 05/17/2018)
South Korea's President Heads to Washington to Salvage Nuclear Deal (VOA, 05/18/2018)
South Korean presidential aide "very disturbed," retracts U.S. alliance statement (UPI, 05/18/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
(2nd LD) No N. Korea response to Seoul's list of journalists to cover test site dismantlement (Yonhap, 05/18/2018)
(Yonhap Feature) Trump's planned summit with Kim fuels hope among S. Korean businessmen (Yonhap, 05/18/2018)
'North won't talk with South unless issues are resolved' (Korea Times, 05/17/2018)
Defectors juggle mixed sentiments on Korean détente (Korea Times, 05/18/2018)
Inter-Korea economic projects to be linked to denuclearization (UPI, 05/17/2018)
Inter-Korean relations face murky outlook (Korea Times, 05/18/2018)
Messages in bottles sent across the sea to North Korea (CNN, 05/17/2018)
North Korea 'declines' South Korea media for nuclear site event; China urges 'stability' (Reuters, 05/18/2018)
North Korea rebuffs list of South Korean journalists (UPI, 05/18/2018)
North Korea's about-face complicates South Korea's pitch to Trump (Reuters, 05/18/2018)
Pyongyang won't give visas to South Koreans to cover nuclear site closure (CNN, 05/18/2018)
S. Korea downplays N. Korea's threats to cancel talks (WaPo, 05/18/2018)
Seoul tries to find true reasons for N. Korea's behavior, with deal in mind (Yonhap, 05/18/2018)

International:
(2nd LD) Trump rules out Libya model for N. Korea's denuclearization (Yonhap, 05/18/2018)
(LEAD) China denies Trump's view that Xi could be influencing N. Korea (Yonhap, 05/18/2018)
38 North to join Stimson Center in June (Yonhap, 05/18/2018)
Atlantic Council chief underlines importance of allies standing united in historic moment (Yonhap, 05/18/2018)
Donald Trump blames China for North Korea's threat to cancel face-to-face meeting (Telegraph, 05/17/2018)

Donald Trump's threat to Kim Jong-un: make a deal or suffer same fate as Gaddafi (Guardian, 05/18/2018)
If it happens, it happens: Trump says not told anything on North Korea summit (Reuters, 05/17/2018)
If North Korea wants to meet, 'we'll be there': White House (Korea Times, 05/18/2018)
Is Kim going down Gorbachev's path? (Korea Times, 05/18/2018)
Is Xi Jinping the puppetmaster behind North Korea's pushback on talks? (CNN, 05/18/2018)
Key Differences Over Denuclearization Put Trump-Kim Summit in Peril (VOA, 05/17/2018)
Kim-Trump summit to be 'huge success or complete failure,' says behavior analyst [PHOTOS] (Korea Times, 05/18/2018)
Maximum pressure on North Korea is gone, and it isn't coming back (WaPo, 05/17/2018)
No more naivety (Joongang Daily, 05/18/2018)
No plans to cut back US-South Korea drills: Pentagon (Korea Times, 05/18/2018)
North, South and U.S. at verbal loggerheads (Joongang Daily, 05/18/2018)
North Korea is acting up because Trump has it cornered (WaPo, 05/18/2018)
North Korea summit: Trump says deal with US will save Kim Jong-un (BBC, 05/18/2018)
Nuclear deal Trump seeks with North Korea could mirror Iran deal he hates (WaPo, 05/18/2018)
Pro-Pyongyang paper denounces Bolton as hurdle to N.K.-U.S. relations (Yonhap, 05/18/2018)
Pyongyang's Brushback Pitch (38 North, 05/18/2018)
Trump: Kim Jong-un can stay in power after abandoning nukes (Korea Times, 05/18/2018)
Trump: N. Korea Will Be Rich, Protected If It Forgoes Nukes (VOA, 05/18/2018)
Trump: North Korea still preparing summit 'like nothing happened' (Korea Times, 05/18/2018)
Trump: U.S. not considering 'Libyan model' in North Korea negotiations (UPI, 05/18/2018)
Trump, still planning summit, reassures and warns Kim Jong Un (CNN, 05/18/2018)
Trump is getting briefed on North Korea — by the media (WaPo, 05/17/2018)
Trump just contradicted Bolton on North Korea. What's the 'Libya model' they disagree on? (WaPo, 05/17/2018)
Trump Offers North Korea's Kim Political Safeguards, but Warns of 'Total Decimation' (WSJ, 05/17/2018)
Trump offers reassurance that North Korean dictator Kim Jong Un would remain in power under nuclear deal (WaPo, 05/17/2018)
Trump really wants the (North Korean) show to go on (CNN, 05/18/2018)
Trump says no 'Libya model' for N. Korea's denuclearization (Korea Times, 05/18/2018)
Trump seeks to placate North Korea's Kim over uncertain summit (Reuters, 05/17/2018)
Trump tells NK's Kim to denuclearize or risk overthrow (WaPo, 05/17/2018)
Trump's fresh approach for North Korea denuke: 'South Korean model' (Korea Times, 05/18/2018)
U.S. and South Korea to Discuss North's 'Bright Future' (NYT, 05/18/2018)
UN Panel Asks Biggest Oil Traders for North Korea Information (Bloomberg, 05/18/2018)
US has no plans to downsize drills over NK threat (Korea Times, 05/18/2018)
US Lawmakers Unperturbed by North Korean Threat to Cancel Summit (VOA, 05/16/2018)
US references to Libya model ahead of Kim Summit confuse (WaPo, 05/18/2018)
White House moving forward with summit plans; US officials believe North Korea is posturing (CNN, 05/17/2018)
White House shoots down Libya model (Joongang Daily, 05/18/2018)

Top News:

- HRNK founding director and board member Nicholas Eberstadt, and HRNK board member and former US Ambassador Winston Lord were among the 50+ signatories to a letter sent to President Trump and key foreign policy leaders on May 17th. This letter requested that the US incorporate human rights in the nuclear negotiations set for Jun. 10 in Singapore and urged the US president to negotiate the release of the remaining prisoners in NK's labor camps. (Courtney Grogan, Catholic News Agency)

In North Korea:

- In a country where there is no Twitter but lots of fake news, N.Koreans are getting a very different take than US media-watchers on what got the two leaders to the negotiating table and what they will be trying to accomplish. (Eric Talmadge, AP)
- N.Korean leader KJU told US State Secretary Mike Pompeo during their meeting earlier this month that he was willing to accept the US military's current presence in SK but expects that presence to be reduced in the future, a source with knowledge of the meeting told the JoongAng Ilbo on Wed. (Kim Hyun-ki, Jung Hyo-sik, Joongang Daily)
- NK said Fri. the ruling party's powerful military commission has held a meeting to determine personnel reshuffle and organizational matters to beef up national defense both militarily and politically. (Yonhap)
- A senior N.Korean diplomat has said his country's recent move to stop nuclear tests is an "important process" for global disarmament and it will join international efforts for a "total" halt of nuclear tests. (Yonhap)
- Despite the recent detente with the US and SK, NK continues to launch cyberattacks across the globe. And in recent months, attempts were made by a mysterious hacker crew called the Sun Team to infiltrate the Android phones of N.Korean defectors via phishing attempts on Facebook and malware hosted on Google Play, according to research from McAfee. (Thomas Fox-Brewster, Forbes)
- N.Korean citizens have been largely unmoved by state propaganda heralding the diplomatic achievements of national leader KJU, according to sources in the nuclear-armed, sanctions-hit state. (Ji-eun Kim, Leejin Jun, Richard Finney, RFA)
- Pyongyang threatened to pull out of its planned summit with Washington on Wed., saying it had no choice but to "reconsider" the landmark meeting if the US keeps driving the regime into a "corner" by forcing it to abandon its nuclear arsenal. (Joongang Daily)
- One aspect of a change in the markets is the wider presence of N.Korean-made instant foods. An inside source informed Daily NK about this trend, describing the emergence of instant foods that resembled some of those available in SK. The fact that canned foods are now widely available and accessible to normal folks is indicative of dramatic change. (Unification Media Group, DailyNK)

In South Korea:

- A group of S.Korean businessmen on Fri. renewed their call to visit the shuttered industrial complex in NK to inspect facilities they left behind. (Yonhap)
- S.Korean President Moon will try to use his summit with US President Donald Trump to broker a nuclear deal between the US and NK, a presidential aide said Fri. (Yonhap)
- The S.Korean government is preparing to reopen air routes that go through N.Korean airspace to save time on flights to Russia as well as Europe and North America, according to government officials. (Park Ji-won, Korea Times)
- Who was that white-haired Korean American man sitting at the table with Pompeo and KJU on May 9? The one smiling and laughing with Kim and Pompeo, the one featured on the front page of NK's Rodong newspaper and on the state television channel. The mystery man was the subject of intense speculation in the S.Korean media. (Anna Fifield, Min Joo Kim, WaPo)
- NK's recent threat to pull out of the upcoming nuclear summit with the US has added new urgency to S.Korean President Moon's visit to Washington next Tues. (Brian Padden, VOA)
- A top adviser to S.Korean President Moon is challenging statements attributed to him in The Atlantic, as he defended the need to maintain a US troop presence on the Korean Peninsula. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- NK has not responded to the Seoul government's list of journalists chosen to attend the ceremony for the dismantlement of its nuclear test site, the S.Korean unification ministry said Fri. (Yonhap)
- The Jun. 12 summit—the first between the leaders of the two enemies since the 1950-53 Korean War—is primarily meant to be a forum for discussion on how to rid NK of its nuclear weapons. However, S.Korean businessmen believe that improved ties between the US and NK could eventually lead to the lifting of international sanctions imposed on Pyongyang, which in turn could offer new business opportunities in the isolated country. (Kim Kwang-tae, Yonhap)
- A high-level N.Korean official said Thurs. that it would be difficult to continue talks with SK unless issues that led to the cancellation of previous high-level negotiations were resolved. (Kim Bo-eun, Korea Times)
- The rapid pace toward peace is raising a mixed bag of questions for different groups of Koreans, long accustomed to division and tension on the peninsula following the 1950-53 Korean War. For some 30,000 N.Korean defectors who have settled in SK, however, the questions and apprehensions are about security and stability. (Jung Da-min, Kim Ji-soo, Korea Times)
- SK said it will be linking any inter-Korea economic cooperation projects with progress on denuclearization, a day after NK issued warning statements targeting joint exercises and US officials. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- NK's sudden shift in stance is creating a murky outlook in the recently thawing inter-Korean relations, putting the brakes on implementing the Panmunjeom Declaration. (Lee Min-hyung, Korea Times)

- Activists including Jeong Gwang-il and his fellow volunteers hurl hundreds of plastic bottles into the sea. The activists say that each two-liter (0.5 gallon) bottle is an improvised care package, filled with a kilogram of uncooked white rice and a single US dollar bill, goods it would take the average N.Korean 40 days to earn. (Ivan Watson, Jungeun Kim, Stella Ko, Jo Shelley, CNN)
- NK has declined to accept a list of S.Korean journalists hoping to observe the closure of its nuclear test site, SK said on Fri., raising new questions about NK's commitment to reducing tension. (Heekyong Yang, Reuters)
- NK is not responding to a S.Korean request to accept a list of S.Korean journalists who are scheduled to attend the dismantlement of the Punggye-ri nuclear site. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- S.Korean President Moon has been riding high after a string of successes with NK, seeing his popularity surge after his historic meeting with KJU as he looks ahead to the US-NK summit he helped engineer next month. But just days before a key meeting with US President Donald Trump, Pyongyang has made Moon's role as a diplomatic go-between much harder, calling his government "ignorant and incompetent" and pulling out of inter-Korean talks. (Josh Smith, Reuters)
- S.Korean journalists may not be allowed to enter NK to cover the closure of Pyongyang's nuclear test site, authorities in Seoul said, less than a week after they were reportedly invited. (Yoonjung Seo, Joshua Berlinger, CNN)
- SK said Fri. it believes NK remains committed to improving relations despite strongly criticizing Seoul over ongoing US-S.Korean military drills and insisting it will not return to talks unless its grievances are resolved. (Kim Tong-Hyung, AP)
- SK continues to search for ways to resume dialogue with NK ahead of the US-NK summit, an official from Seoul's presidential office Cheong Wa Dae said Fri., apparently suggesting NK's recent suspension of inter-Korean dialogue may not be meant to be anything permanent. (Yonhap)

International:

- US President Donald Trump said Thurs. he is not considering a so-called Libya model for dismantling NK's nuclear weapons program and would offer strong security guarantees in return for denuclearization. (Yonhap)
- China dismissed US President Trump's assertion Fri. that President Xi Jinping might be behind NK's sudden shift to a recalcitrant attitude. (Yonhap)
- 38 North, a US website dedicated to monitoring developments in NK, will join the Stimson Center think tank next month. (Yonhap)
- The head of a major US-based policy think tank on Fri. emphasized the importance of SK and the US standing united at a time when history is being made on the Korean Peninsula. (Yonhap)
- Donald Trump has blamed China for KJU's apparent change of heart over their face-to-face meeting as he attempted to bring NK back to the table. (Ben Riley-Smith, Telegraph)
- Donald Trump has threatened KJU with the same fate as Muammar Gaddafi if the N.Korean leader "doesn't make a deal" on his nuclear weapons programme. (Julian Borger, Guardian)

- President Donald Trump on Thurs. distanced himself from comments from his national security adviser that led NK to cast doubt on a planned summit and said as far as he knew the meeting with KJU was still on track. (Reuters)
- The US said Thurs. it was ready to proceed with next month's summit between President Donald Trump and N.Korean leader KJU, putting the ball back in Pyongyang's court after it threatened to scrap the meeting. (AFP)
- Is NK's KJU going down the path of the last Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev? The two have converged a lot so far, but of course we know about the end of Gorbachev's story, while Kim's remains open-ended. (Oh Young-jin, Korea Times)
- US President Donald Trump suggested Thurs. Beijing could be behind NK's recent harsh rhetoric against Washington in the past week, which has thrown the Jun. summit in Singapore into doubt. (Ben Westcott, CNN)
- Against this blurry backdrop of questions and uncertainties of the NK-US summit, Lim Moon-su, a seasoned behavior analyst based in Seoul, may be able to provide some answers. Lim has analyzed the N.Korean leader's personality traits based on his behavior, gestures and facial expressions in dozens of video clips, including ones captured during the Apr. 27 inter-Korean summit. He also has explored Trump's personality in the same manner to estimate the depth of Kim-Trump chemistry, which could determine the fate of the Jun. meeting. (Park Si-soo, Korea Times)
- Although the US stated Thurs. that summit preparations are moving forward, NK's threat to cancel the planned talks with the US signals its frustration over Washington's position on how to denuclearize Pyongyang, said former US officials who dealt with NK extensively. (Christy Lee, VOA)
- Columnist Josh Rogin writes that while the Trump administration says that the US and its allies can go back to the "maximum pressure campaign" if the upcoming summit between the US and NK fails or doesn't happen at all, actually doing so would be difficult if not impossible, as the pressure is already diminishing. (Josh Rogin, WaPo)
- We must never let down our guard. Governments both liberal and conservative have been naïve about NK in the past. They doubted that Pyongyang could complete its nuclear and missile programs this fast. They underestimated NK's engineering as well as the resilience of its economy. (Lee Sang-ryeol, Joongang Daily)
- The Pentagon is not considering cutting back the joint US-S.Korean military exercises that have drawn angry condemnation from Pyongyang ahead of a planned US-NK summit, an official said Thurs. (AFP)
- US President Donald Trump said he is not looking to the Libya model for denuclearizing Pyongyang, stressing on Thurs. at the White House that his deal with KJU would make NK "very rich" and provide the young leader "very adequate protection." (Lee Sung-eun, Joongang Daily)
- In this opinion piece for the Washington Post, Marc Thiessen writes that NK's recent temper tantrum over US-S.Korean military exercises and its threat to pull out of its upcoming summit with President Trump are signs that Trump's NK strategy is working. (Marc Thiessen, WaPo)

- President Donald Trump has said the US is not pursuing the "Libya model" for the denuclearisation of NK. Mr. Trump said KJU would stay in power if he made a deal, and hinted he could be deposed if he refused. (BBC)
- President Trump says he wants to strike a nuclear deal with NK that would benefit “the whole world” by neutralizing a looming threat, and he is willing to trade economic concessions to help make it happen. (Anne Gearan, WaPo)
- A pro-N.Korean newspaper in Japan on Fri. poured raw criticism on US President Trump's national security adviser, John Bolton, warning that he might have a negative impact on future relations between the two countries. (Yonhap)
- NK has just delivered a brushback pitch, warning the US and SK that inclusion of nuclear assets like the B-52s in joint military exercises—not the exercises themselves—is inconsistent with President Trump’s pledge at President Moon’s urging to move toward peace in Korea. And peace is a critical part of Pyongyang’s aim in its diplomatic give-and-take with Washington and Seoul.That’s why US and S.Korean military authorities were right to cancel the B-52 flights. (Leon V. Sigal, 38 North)
- US President Donald Trump tried to put his summit with KJU back on track Thurs., offering the N.Korean leader guarantees of staying in power if he abandons nuclear weapons. (AFP)
- US President Donald Trump predicted Thurs. that NK "would be very rich"—and he promised the Kim family dynasty "very adequate protection" to stay in power—if the country agreed to give up its nuclear weapons. (Steve Herman, VOA)
- N.Korean officials are continuing to hold talks on next month's planned summit with the US despite this week's threat to cancel the meeting, US President Donald Trump says. (DPA)
- President Donald Trump dismissed the idea of applying the "Libyan model" for denuclearizing NK, as previously proposed by national security adviser John Bolton. (Daniel Uria, UPI)
- President Donald Trump on Thurs. said US and N.Korean officials are continuing to prepare for a scheduled diplomatic summit next month, even as Pyongyang threatened in recent days to pull out of what would be a historic first meeting between a N.Korean leader and US president. (Jeremy Diamond, Kevin Liptak, CNN)
- President Trump professed Thurs. to know no more than the reporters questioning him about whether NK might cancel his scheduled meeting next month with its leader, KJU. (Callum Borchers, WaPo)
- President Trump contradicted his national security adviser Thurs. on NK policy after an angry rebuke from Pyongyang over John Bolton’s comments. Bolton had recently suggested that Libya could serve as a model for persuading NK to give up its nuclear weapons program. (Rick Noack, WaPo)
- President Donald Trump acknowledged new doubts about the fate of his coming meeting with N.Korean leader KJU, expressing surprise over the uptick in harsh language from Pyongyang while shifting blame to China for the latest uncertainty. Still, the president sought to entice Mr. Kim to the negotiating table by pairing an offer of political safeguards with a fresh round of threats. (Michael C. Bender, Jonathan Cheng, WSJ)
- President Trump on Thurs. reassured N.Korean dictator KJU that he would remain in power under a nuclear deal with the US, emphasizing that his administration is not seeking regime change amid threats from Pyongyang to cancel a historic summit next month. (David Nakamura, Philip Rucker, WaPo)

- President Donald Trump wants KJU to understand he really wants them to meet. The President's prolonged discourse on NK in an Oval Office photo-op Thurs. indicated just how much he has invested in the summit—when Pyongyang threatened to blow up on Wed. over US-S.Korean military exercises and US demands for an irreversible decommissioning of NK's nuclear weapons. (Stephen Collinson, CNN)
- US President Donald Trump on Thurs. tried to put his summit with NK's KJU back on track, saying he would not seek to implement a so-called "Libya model" for denuclearization that would force Pyongyang to give up its arms and see Kim ousted. (AFP)
- US President Donald Trump sought on Thurs. to placate NK's leader KJU after Pyongyang threatened to scrap an unprecedented summit, saying Kim's security would be guaranteed in any deal and his country would not suffer the fate of Muammar Gaddafi's Libya, unless that could not be reached. (Steve Holland, David Brunnstrom, Reuters)
- President Donald Trump laid out a stark choice for NK's KJU ahead of their planned summit next month: Abandon nuclear weapons and be rewarded with "protections," or risk being overthrown and possible death if the arsenal remains. (Lolita C. Baldor, Zeke Miller, AP)
- US President Donald Trump said he pursues a "S.Korean model," not a "Libyan model," for the denuclearization of NK. (Yi Whan-woo, Korea Times)
- When the S.Korean president meets with President Trump in Washington next week, the two will discuss security assurances and economic incentives for a denuclearizing NK, following up on Mr. Trump's reassuring words for NK's young leader, a presidential aide in Seoul said on Fri. (Choe Sang-Hun, NYT)
- A United Nations Security Council panel is asking the world's biggest oil traders to disclose the actions they are taking to stop the sale of crude oil and petroleum products to NK in violation of sanctions. (Andy Hoffman, Bloomberg)
- The US has no plans to downsize joint military exercises with SK over the ongoing verbal provocations from NK, the US defense department said Thurs. (Lee Min-hyung, Korea Times)
- US lawmakers of both parties have told VOA they are not surprised by NK's threat to cancel an upcoming summit between President Donald Trump and KJU. (Michael Brown, VOA)
- Libya is suddenly on the lips of President Donald Trump and his hawkish national security adviser John Bolton ahead of the much-vaunted summit with NK leader KJU, or more precisely, the "Libya model" is. (Associated Press)
- The White House is moving forward with preparations for a summit next month between President Donald Trump and N.Korean leader KJU despite recent N.Korean statements, White House press secretary Sarah Sanders said Thurs. (Kevin Liptak, Jeremy Diamond, CNN)
- The White House said Wed. that the Libya model advocated by National Security Advisor John Bolton was not applicable to denuclearizing NK, apparently reacting to NK's threat to pull out of a summit scheduled for next month. (Kang Jin-kyu, Joongang Daily)

Prepared by Jinny Ahn, HRNK Research Intern

———————————————————

Saturday, May 19, 2018

NK demands SK send back restaurant workers; SK says 2 N. Koreans defect to South across western sea border; Is KJU fooling the world in 'dismantling' NK's nuclear testing site?

In North Korea:
North Korean soldier dies of starvation on train (DailyNK, 05/18/2018)
Punggye-ri Nuclear Test Site: Possible Stand to Observe Explosive Tunnel Closure Identified (38 North, 05/18/2018)

In South Korea:
S. Korea welcomes Trump's new pick for U.S. ambassador (Yonhap, 05/19/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
(3rd LD) S. Korea says 2 N. Koreans defect to South across western sea border (Yonhap, 05/19/2018)
N. Korea demands return of defectors from S. Korea (Yonhap, 05/19/2018)
North Korea demands South Korea send back restaurant workers (WaPo, 05/19/2018)
Two North Koreans defect in latest upset for diplomatic thaw on Korean peninsula (Telegraph, 05/19/2018)

International:
Is Kim Jong-un fooling the world in 'dismantling' North Korea's nuclear testing site?(Telegraph, 05/19/2018)
Kim told Pompeo he is willing to accept U.S. troop presence for now (Joongang Daily, 05/19/2018)
N. Korean diplomat arrives in China (Yonhap, 05/19/2018)
North Korea's about-face complicates South Korea's pitch to Trump (Reuters, 05/18/2018)
North Koreans remain in the dark regarding US-North Korea summit (DailyNK, 05/19/2018)
US B-52 bombers changed flight plan after North Korea threatened Trump summit (CNN, 05/18/2018)
Why North Korean defectors learn English (3) (Korea Times, 05/19/2018)

In North Korea:

- A soldier who had completed his military service and was heading home has died of starvation largely due to delays in NK's rail system. (Jo Hyun, DailyNK)
- Recent commercial satellite imagery from May 15 indicates additional steps towards closure have been taken at NK's Punggye-ri Nuclear Test Site, possibly including preparations to build a safe reviewing stand for visitors to observe the explosive closure of all three Punggye-ri portal areas. (38 North)

In South Korea:

- SK on Sat. hailed US President Donald Trump's nomination of Admiral Harry Harris, head of the US Pacific Command, as Washington's top envoy to Seoul. (Yonhap)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- Two N.Koreans crossed the tense western sea border into SK on a small boat earlier Saturday, officials have said, the latest in a string of defections by N.Koreans in recent years. (Yonhap)
- NK on Sat. called for the release of N.Korean defectors that it claims have been lured and kidnapped by SK, offering a possible reason for its recent suspension of dialogue with Seoul. (Yonhap)
- NK on Sat. reiterated its demands for SK to send back 12 N.Korean restaurant workers who came to the South in 2016, saying such a move would demonstrate Seoul's willingness to improve relations. (Kim Tong-Hyung, AP)
- Two N.Koreans, including a military officer, defected to the South early on St. morning in the latest upset for Pyongyang after a fractious week in which KJU threatened to pull out of June talks with Donald Trump, the US president. (Nicola Smith, Telegraph)

International:

- NK has been accused of trying to fool the world with the closure of its nuclear test site this week, as upcoming talks between Donald Trump and KJU hang in the balance. (Neil Connor, Telegraph)
- N.Korean leader KJU told U.S. State Secretary Mike Pompeo during their meeting earlier this month that he was willing to accept the US military's current presence in SK but expects that presence to be reduced in the future, a source with knowledge of the meeting told the JoongAng Ilbo on Wed. (Kim Hyun-ki, Jung Hyo-sik, Joongang Daily)
- A N.Korean diplomat responsible for Southeast Asian affairs arrived in Beijing on Sat., sparking speculation that he may visit Singapore ahead of a planned summit between US President Donald Trump and N.Korean leader KJU. (Yonhap)
- S.Korean President Moon has been riding high after a string of successes with NK, seeing his popularity surge after his historic meeting with KJU as he looks ahead to the US-NK summit he helped engineer next month. But just days before a key meeting with US President Donald Trump, Pyongyang has made Moon's role as a diplomatic go-between much harder, calling his government "ignorant and incompetent" and pulling out of inter-Korean talks. (Josh Smith, Reuters)
- There are wide-ranging reports regarding the upcoming US-DPRK summit planned for June 12, but ordinary N.Koreans have received very little information about the event. (Kim Yoo Jin, DailyNK)

- The US, SK and Japan agreed this week to shift a planned flight of at least two nuclear-capable B-52 bombers so they would not fly over the Korean Peninsula, according to two US defense officials. (Barbara Starr, Zachary Cohen, CNN)
- Casey Lartigue Jr., co-founder of the Teach North Korean Refugees Global Education Center, compiled statements from interviews with refugees about learning English. (Casey Lartigue Jr., Korea Times)

Prepared by Lauren Jackson, HRNK Research Intern

——————————————————

Sunday, May 20, 2018

[Newsletter inexistent]

——————————————————

Monday, May 21, 2018

Who is that mystery man with Pompeo and Kim?; N. Korea stays mum on proposed list of S. Korean journalists to cover nuclear site shutdown; Moon heads to U.S. for talks on upcoming U.S.-N. Korea summit

Top News:
South Korea asks: Who is that mystery man with Pompeo and Kim? (WaPo, 05/17/2018)

In North Korea:
Former People's Committee official repatriated from China (DailyNK, 05/21/2018)
In North Korea nuke site closure, spectacle trumps substance (WaPo, 05/21/2018)
N. Korean paper warns against dependence on foreign nations for economic growth (Yonhap, 05/21/2018)
North Korea charges $10,000 per reporter to cover Punggye-ri nuclear site blowup (Korea Times, 05/21/2018)
North Korea denounces defectors, ignores calls from South (UPI, 05/21/2018)
North Korean authorities promote China relations to residents, but urge caution to officials(DailyNK, 05/21/2018)
North Korean spy 'vanishes' in China (Korea Times, 05/21/2018)

North Korea traced defectors with malware-infected Android apps: McAfee (Korea Times, 05/21/2018)
Pyongyang preps for Punggye-ri shutdown (Korea Times, 05/20/2018)
Why North Korea is destroying its nuclear test site (BBC, 05/20/2018)

In South Korea:
(LEAD) Moon heads to U.S. for talks on upcoming U.S.-N. Korea summit (Yonhap, 05/21/2018)
Moon Enters Talks With Trump With Driver's Seat at Stake (NYT, 05/21/2018)
Moon to help Trump narrow opinion gap with Kim (Korea Times, 05/21/2018)
NK defector issue re-emerging as snag in inter-Korean relations (Korea Times, 05/20/2018)
Trading nukes for aid (Joongang Daily, 05/21/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
(4th LD) N. Korea stays mum on proposed list of S. Korean journalists to cover nuclear site shutdown (Yonhap, 05/21/2018)
Banks ramp up prep for possible inter-Korean cooperation (Yonhap, 05/21/2018)
Civic group planning joint summit events unable to visit N.K. due to no invitation (Yonhap, 05/21/2018)
Four S. Korean reporters head to N. Korea's nuke-testing site (Yonhap, 05/21/2018)
Reporters from South start trip to demolition (Joongang Daily, 05/21/2018)

International:
Could North Korean defectors affect Trump summit? (BBC, 05/21/2018)
Denuclearisation: The word Trump and Kim can't agree on (BBC, 05/21/2018)
Inter-Korea Relations Hit Impasse Over Military Drills and Defectors (VOA, 05/21/2018)
NYT: Trump weighing political risks of North Korea meeting (CNN, 05/21/2018)
South Korea, U.S. to work closely on summit after Pyongyang's about-face (Reuters, 05/20/2018)
Trump Grappling With Risks of Proceeding With North Korea Meeting (NYT, 05/20/2018)
Trump presses China on North Korea border ahead of summit (Reuters, 05/21/2018)
Trump the dealmaker should understand Trump the president's North Korea problem (WaPo, 05/21/2018)
Trump urges China to control N.K. border until after nuclear deal (Yonhap, 05/21/2018)
Trump warns China to stay 'strong & tight' on North Korea border (WaPo, 05/21/2018)
U.S. senator: Trump wants to end N.K. crisis in first term (Yonhap, 05/21/2018)
Will toughness on Iran help Trump with North Korea? Here are three reasons to doubt it.(WaPo, 05/21/2018)

Top News:

- Andrew Kim, the head of the CIA's Korea Mission Center, he is central to planning the summit between President Trump and Kim Jong Un, scheduled to take place in Singapore on June 12. (Anna Fifield and Kim Min-joo, WaPo)

In North Korea:

- The head of a local People's Committee industry organization in Ryanggang Province who defected to China in late 2016 due to a power struggle was arrested recently and sent back to NK in early May. (Kang Mi-jin, DailyNK)
- Foreign journalists will be allowed to journey deep into the mountains of NK this week to observe the closing of the country's Punggye-ri nuclear test site in a much-touted display of goodwill before leader KJU's planned summit with President Trump next month. (Eric Talmadge, AP)
- NK's main newspaper on Mon. warned against depending on foreign countries for economic growth ahead of its historic summit planned with US next month. (Yonhap)
- NK is demanding that each foreign reporter pay $10,000 for a visa to cover the planned dismantlement of a nuclear test site in Punggye-ri, Seoul government officials said Mon. (Park Si-soo, Korea Times)
- NK is keeping up a campaign of pressure against the South, a policy that is culminating in unresponsiveness at Panmunjom and the retraction of invitations to SK journalists to observe the shutdown of its main nuclear site. (Elizabeth Shim, UPI)
- In lectures delivered to ordinary residents, NK's authorities have been expressing the need to strike a conciliatory approach with China. However, in lectures to party cadres, the authorities are ordering officials to ramp up caution in their dealings with the Chinese. (Lee Sang-yong, DailyNK)
- A N.Korean senior spy in China possibly went into hiding in Feb. with the aim of defecting, Tokyo Shimbun reported Mon. (Ko Dong-hwan, Korea Times)
- N.Korean hackers traced defectors with three malware-infected Android apps, US cyber security company McAfee claims. (Park Si-soo, Korea Times)
- NK is seemingly preparing to dismantle its nuclear test site in the northern village of Punggye-ri, scheduled for May 23 to 25, considering its presumed railroad repair work spotted by the government and construction seen in satellite images. (Choi Ha-young, Korea Times)
- NK has said it will start dismantling its nuclear test site this week, in a ceremony to be attended by foreign journalists. But what would it take for the country to truly "denuclearise"? (Catherine Dill, BBC)

In South Korea:

- S.Korean President Moon headed to Washington on Mon. on an apparent mission to help broker a nuclear deal between US and NK ahead of their first-ever summit next month. (Yonhap)
- For a few months, everything seemed to be clicking for S.Korean President Moon as he pieced together crucial nuclear negotiations between US and NK following a year of intense animosity. But he now enters a White House meeting with President Trump with his status in the diplomatic driver's seat in doubt. (AP)

- President Moon has embarked on a mission to set a joint strategy with US President Trump to help him have a successful summit with N.Korean leader KJU and achieve the North's denuclearization. (Kim Rahn, Korea Times)
- The issue of N.Korean defectors to the South is again heightening tension between the Koreas, as the reconciliatory atmosphere has suddenly gone sour following the North's unilateral cancellation of high-level inter-Korean talks last week. (Kim Bo-eun, Korea Times)
- KJU must see the big picture and trust SK and US. He must accept CVID. A peace treaty and diplomatic relations with US will not guarantee the complete regime security that the North wants. That is why the North must join the global economic system. (Lee Ha-kyung, Jooang Daily)

Inter-Korean Relationship:

- NK has not accepted SK's proposed list of journalists chosen to cover a ceremony for the dismantlement of a nuclear test site planned for this week, the unification ministry said Mon. (Yonhap)
- S.Korean banks are redoubling efforts to tap into possible business opportunities in NK in the wake of a recent thaw in inter-Korean relations, sources said Mon. (Yonhap)
- A civic group's planned visit to NK to discuss joint events marking the first inter-Korean summit in 2000 will not take place as the North has not sent an invitation, the group said Mon. (Yonhap)
- Four S.Korean reporters departed for China en route to NK on Mon. to cover the planned demolition of its nuclear test site. (Yonhap)
- S.Korean journalists flew to Beijing Mon. morning on their way to cover the dismantling of a nuclear test site in NK - without Pyongyang's approval to come. (Kang Jin-kyu, Yoo Jee-hye, Shim Kyu-seok, Joonang Daily)

International:

- Two N.Koreans defected to the South at the weekend, highlighting an issue that has been a source of constant tension over the years. (BBC)
- If Trump and KJU do meet, there's only one thing they'll talk about - denuclearisation. Trouble is, they have very different ideas on what that means. (Tessa Wong and Subin Kim, BBC)
- In addition to growing concerns that NK will pull out of the upcoming nuclear summit with US, prospects for improved inter-Korean relations have also stalled, as Pyongyang demands that US-SK joint military drills be scaled back, and a group of defectors be returned. (Brian Padden, VOA)
- President Trump is becoming increasingly worried about the political risks of the US-NK summit in Singapore next month, administration and foreign officials told NYT. (Maegan Vazquez, CNN)

- S.Korean President Moon and US President Trump held discussions on Sun. to ensure that the NK-US summit remains on track after NK threatened to pull out of the high-level talks. (Jeongmin Kim, Reuters)
- President Trump, increasingly concerned that his summit meeting in Singapore next month with NK's leader could turn into a political embarrassment, has begun pressing his aides and allies about whether he should take the risk of proceeding with a historic meeting that he had leapt into accepting, according to administration and foreign officials. (David E. Sanger, NYT)
- US President Trump urged China on Mon. to maintain a secure border with NK, pressing Beijing ahead of his anticipated meeting with N.Korean leader KJU next month aimed at denuclearization. (Reuters)
- It's just that Trump the dealmaker should have anticipated the way in which Trump the president was weakening his own negotiating position. (Philip Bump, WaPo)
- US President Trump urged China on Mon. to tightly control its border with NK until after he signs a nuclear deal with the regime. (Yonhap)
- Amid uncertainty over a planned US-NK summit, President Trump pushed Mon. for China to continue "strong & tight" trade sanctions against KJU's regime until a possible accord over the North's nuclear program. (Johan Wagner and Philip Rucker, WaPo)
- US President Trump wants to end the N.Korean nuclear crisis during his current term, and will likely use military means if diplomacy fails, an American senator said Sun. (Yonhap)
- President Trump fulfilled a campaign promise when he walked away from the 2015 Iran agreement. The question now is whether he can reasonably expect to negotiate a better deal with Iran, let alone with NK — which already has an advanced nuclear weapons program and sees nuclear weapons as a cornerstone of its national security. (James H. Lebovic, WaPo)

Prepared by Dohyun Kim, HRNK Research Intern

——————————————————

Tuesday, May 22, 2018

Trump suggests summit with N.Korea's Kim could be delayed; Moon arrives in Washington for talks with Trump ahead of US-NK summit; N.Korea declines to accept list of S. Korean journalists to cover nuke site dismantlement

In North Korea:

(3rd LD) N. Korea declines to accept list of S. Korean journalists to cover nuke site dismantlement (Yonhap, 05/22/2018)

As summit looms, North Korean media return to angry tone (WaPo, 05/22/2018)

Demand Grows in North Korea For US Novels, Movies as Summit Nears (RFA, 05/21/2018)

‘Getting Past No’ with Kim Jong Un: The Psychology of Negotiation, and Kim’s ‘Art of the Deal’ (38 North, 05/21/2018)
NK again proves its unpredictability (Korea Times, 05/22/2018)
N. Korea declines to accept list of S. Korean journalists to cover nuke site dismantlement (Yonhap, 05/22/2018)
NK rejects S.Korean pool reporters to cover nuke site blowup (Korea Times, 05/22/2018)
NK rejects S.Korean press coverage of Punggye-ri (Korea Times, 05/22/2018)
North Korea publicizes nuclear dismantlement in state media (UPI, 05/22/2018)
North Korean authorities exploit homeless children (DailyNK, 05/22/2018)
North Korea's nuclear test site: is blowing up Punggye-ri just for show? (Guardian, 05/21/2018)
To experts, North Korea dismantling nuclear site is like destroying evidence (CNN, 05/22/2018)

In South Korea:
(LEAD) Moon arrives in Washington for talks with Trump ahead of U.S.-N. Korea summit (Yonhap, 05/22/2018)
CVID, PVID, SVID and what else? (Korea Times, 05/22/2018)
N. Korea-U.S. summit will be held as scheduled despite tensions: Seoul official (Yonhap, 05/22/2018)
Seoul eyes '99.9% chance of Kim-Trump meeting taking place as planned’ (Korea Times, 05/22/2018)
S. Korea expresses regret over N.K. not allowing its journalists to cover nuclear site demolition (Yonhap, 05/22/2018)
South Korea's Moon heads for Trump talks to try to keep summit on track (Guardian, 05/22/2018)
S.Korean journalists en route to North Korea nuclear test site (Korea Times, 05/21/2018)
Trump-Kim summit is ‘99.9%’ on: Blue House (Joongang Daily, 05/22/2018)
Who’s to blame for the hiccup in North Korea talks? South Koreans say Bolton (WaPo, 05/21/2018)
Validity of ruling party's election pledges on inter-Korean joint projects questioned (Korea Times, 05/22/2018)

Inter-Korean Relationship:
South’s press snubbed by North (Joongang Daily, 05/22/2018)
Northern flip-flops (Joongang Daily, 05/22/2018)

International:
Commemorative coin for Trump-Kim summit unveiled (Korea Times, 05/22/2018)
Commentary: A reality check on Korea nuclear talks (Reuters, 05/22/2018)
Donald Trump says North Korea summit 'may not happen' next month (Telegraph, 05/22/2018)
Foreign media arrive for North Korea nuke site closing (WaPo, 05/22/2018)
Foreign reporters on way to NK's nuke site (Korea Times, 05/22/2018)
Jimmy Carter says Trump could snag the Nobel Prize ... if he secures NK peace deal (CNN, 05/22/2018)
Mike Pence warns Kim Jong-un not to 'play' Trump amid crisis talks over summit (Telegraph, 05/22/2018)
Moon's role with Kim and Trump (Korea Times, 05/21/2018)
Moon, Trump set for talks on upcoming U.S.-N. Korea summit (Yonhap, 05/22/2018)
National Endowment Democracy to award North Korea human rights activists (UPI, 05/22/2018)

Pence: North Korea will end like Libya only if 'Kim Jong Un doesn't make a deal' (CNN, 05/22/2018)
Pence warns KJU not to 'play' Trump (Korea Times, 05/22/2018)
Pompeo says Kim meeting reflects commitment to diplomacy (Yonhap, 05/22/2018)
North Korea oozes with the 'blood of endless revenge' as South Korean president travels to Washington (Telegraph, 05/22/2018)
North Korea summit: Pence warns Kim Jong-un not to 'play' Trump (BBC, 05/22/2018)
The Latest: Pence says US has made no concessions to NKorea (WaPo, 05/22/2018)
The White House's wishful thinking on Iran and North Korea (WaPo, 05/22/2018)
Trump aides growing skeptical of Kim summit as South Korea's President visits (CNN, 05/21/2018)
